A Comprehensive Guide to Addiction Theory and Counseling Techniques

Alan A. Cavaola and Margaret Smith

A mix of theory and counseling techniques, this text gives readers an overview of major counseling theories and their application to substance use disorders and addiction counseling, along with related techniques and interventions. Chapters incorporate cutting edge evidenced-based research explaining the biopsychosocial influences of substance use disorders and examine how substance use disorder risk factors can be utilized for assessment. The text additionally applies theory to practice with intervention techniques and case studies. Highlighted learning opportunities and key terms further help students to apply the theories, interventions, and techniques that the book discusses.

Treating Individuals with Addictive Disorders

A Strengths-Based Workbook for Patients and Clinicians

Donald Meichenbaum

This workbook offers information, tools, and coping techniques to assist addiction patients through recovery. Chapters discuss the science behind addiction and examine how resilience behaviors can alter brain functions. Appendices then evaluate ways to engage patients in the recovery process and how to assess residential treatment programs. Lastly, a glossary provides patients and their family with the guidelines to monitor treatment, support recovery, and bolster their resilience.

Healthcare providers and those with addictive disorders alike will benefit from the science and history, the case-studies, and the coping toolbox-activities designed to develop lasting behavioral changes.

Antisocial, Narcissistic, and Borderline Personality Disorders

A New Conceptualization of Development, Reinforcement, Expression, and Treatment

Daniel J. Fox

This book develops a comprehensive understanding of Antisocial, Narcissistic, and Borderline Personality Disorders, by seeing personality as a dual construct. Merging research and clinical systems into a wholistic model, the text examines personality development and expression and addresses the interpersonal system that keeps the pathology from extinguishing. Chapters discuss origin and symptom manifestation, system and pathology perpetuation, and online behavior expression, ending with practical treatment methods. Researchers and clinicians are challenged to explore the utility of the DSM-5 alternative model of personality disorders and gain a deeper understanding of such disorders.

Anxiety Disorders

Integrated Psychotherapy Approaches

Judy Z. Koenigsberg, Private practice, Illinois, USA

This text examines how different integrated psychotherapy treatment models can be used to help patients with anxiety disorders. The book summarizes major themes that underlie these treatment models, then analyzes the symptoms and causes of specific disorders. Case studies are provided for each disorder, along with the theoretical and technical factors that are involved in applying these approaches. Online materials include PowerPoint slides and test questions to help readers assess their newfound knowledge. Students, therapists, and researchers will learn the rationale for and the history of integrated and unified models of treatment to gain better insight into anxiety disorders.

Transactional Analysis of Schizophrenia

The Naked Self

Zefiro Mellaqu

Series: Innovations in Transactional Analysis: Theory and Practice

Mellaqu presents a full assessment of the relevance and value of transactional analysis in understanding, conceptualizing and treating schizophrenia in contemporary clinical settings. The book opens with a review of Berne's ideas, and subsequently turns to the application of theory to the understanding and psychotherapeutic treatment of people suffering from first-episode schizophrenia and of those already living with more long-lasting psychotic levels of self-disturbance. The book includes engaging case studies throughout and emphasises the importance of multidisciplinary work, as well as incorporating appropriate medications and meetings with families and caregivers.

Understanding and Caring for People with Schizophrenia

Ragy R. Girgis, Gary Brucato and Jeffrey A. Lieberman

This book challenges misconceptions of schizophrenia as an illness with intractable symptoms and inexorable mental deterioration by illustrating the effectiveness of treatment to change the course of or prevent the onset of illness. Fifteen case studies examining psychosis in diverse clients are divided into the four phases of the illness with accompanying analyses of its causes, symptoms, interventions and treatments. Depictions of each stage, with accompanying explanations of how a patient got to that point and what can be done to avoid or achieve this outcome, helps reader gain an appreciation of the nature of the illness and for the therapeutic potential of current treatments.

Coaching with Research in Mind

Rebecca J. Jones

Jones brings together coaching research and psychological literature to provide a clear and specific breakdown of what the evidence tells coaches they should be doing and why. The book is structured around the distinct elements that influence coaching outcomes and emphasises what the coach should be focusing on in order to maximize the impact of their coaching, including understanding what the coachee brings to coaching, what the coach can do before, during and after coaching to maximize the impact of the intervention and what role other factors play. Translating high-level research into real practice, this is the first truly evidence-based coaching text.

Addressing Race-Based Stress in Therapy with Black Clients

Using Multicultural and Dialectical Behavior Therapy Techniques

Monica M. Johnson, University of Ottawa, ON, Canada; Alliant International University, San Diego, CA and Michelle L. Melton

Despite them being at high risk for negative mental health symptoms due to racism and other chronic stresses, disparities persist in the provision of mental health services to Black Americans. This book addresses that gap by explicitly calling attention to the experience of race-based stress in the Black community. The authors urge practitioners to action in promoting societal understanding, affirmation, and appreciation of multiculturalism against the damaging effects of oppression based on stereotyping and discrimination. Worksheets and case studies provide strategies for mental health professionals to improve the condition of individuals, communities, and, by extension, society.

Art Therapy and Childbearing Issues

Birth, Death, and Rebirth

Edited by Nora Swan-Foster

This text introduces the diverse and unique ways art therapy is used with women undergoing the childbearing process. The book discusses a range of topics including the role of transference, attachment, and neuropsychology. The book also addresses motifs outside cultural norms of childbearing, such as sociopolitical issues, midwifery, menstruation, sex-trafficking and disadvantaged populations. Chapters offer research, modalities and case studies, accompanied by visual representations of therapy practices. The approachable style will appeal to a range of readers who will come away with a new awareness of art therapy and how to work with women as they go through this experience.

Art Therapy, Dreams, and Healing

Beyond the Looking Glass

Johanne Hamel

Art Therapy, Dreams, and Healing synthesizes methods to work with one's dreams through art therapy and introduces the reader to brief creative methods, Gestalt and Jungian experiential methods, and research on lucid dreaming and dream re-entry. The author provides a unique, clear, and concise synthesis of dreamwork methods to find the message of our dreams, with examples from her own 35 years of psychotherapy practice. Chapters include information such as how to keep a dream journal, how to remember one's dreams, how to find different dream types, and how to follow your own dreamwork process. Readers will learn how to find the existential message of their dreams and grow from them.

Christianity and Gestalt Therapy

The Presence of God in Human Relationships

Philip Brownell, Private practice, Idaho, USA

This book explores critical concepts in phenomenology and how they relate to both gestalt therapy and Christianity. Using mixed literary forms that include poetry and story, this book provides a window into gestalt therapy for Christian counselors interested in learning how the gestalt therapeutic model can be incorporated into their beliefs and practices. It explores the tension in psychology and psychotherapy between a rigid naturalism and an enchanted take on life.

Craft in Art Therapy

Diverse Approaches to the Transformative Power of Craft Materials and Methods

Edited by Lauren Leone

The first book dedicated to illustrating the incorporation of craft materials and methods into art therapy theory and practice. Contributors explain how they use crafts such as pottery, glass work, textiles, leatherwork, and Indian crafts like mendhi and rangoli in their own art and self-care, and in various art therapy practices. The book explores the benefits of a range of craft materials, as well as craft's potential to build community, support individuals in caring for themselves, and play a valuable role in art therapy practice. This book demonstrates that when practiced in a culturally-sensitive and socially-conscious manner, craft practices hold transformational powers.

The Divided Therapist

Hemispheric Difference and Contemporary Psychotherapy

Edited by Rod Tweedy

This book explores the nature of the divided brain and its relevance for contemporary psychotherapy. Disconnections, dissociations, and imbalances between our two hemispheres underlie many of our most prevalent forms of mental distress and disturbance. These include issues of addiction, autism, schizophrenia, depression, anorexia, relational trauma and personality disorders. A contemporary understanding of the nature of the divided brain is therefore of importance in engaging with and treating these disturbances. The book will be essential for any therapeutic practitioner interested in how the architecture of the brain informs and effects their client's issues and challenges.

The Touch Taboo in Psychotherapy and Everyday Life

Edited by Tamar Swade

Touch has been a taboo in mainstream Western talking therapies since their inception. This book examines the effects on us of touch, and of touch deprivation – what we feel when we are touched, what it means to us, and the fact that some individuals and cultures are more tactile than others. The author traces the development and perpetuation of the touch taboo, puts forward counterarguments to it, outlines criteria for the safe and effective use of touch in therapy, and suggests ways of dismantling the touch taboo should we wish to do so.

Appetite

Sex, Touch, and Desire in Women with Anorexia

Melissa Fabello

The first comprehensive resource on anorexia and women's sexuality in the world, this book presents a model for understanding sexuality as complex with interconnected factors, and how anorexia interacts with the varied components of one's sexuality. Challenging the limiting views of sexuality that research on women with anorexia and sex has yielded, Dr. Fabello centers real women's narratives to explore the various ways in which this population wrestles with sexual health, violence, intimacy, identity, and more. Written in an honest voice, Appetite bridges the gap between academia and practicality, using grounded language that appeals to professionals and survivors alike.

Psychology as Ethics

Reading Jung with Kant, Nietzsche and Aristotle

Giovanni Colacicchi

Series: Philosophy and Psychoanalysis

By drawing on direct quotes from all of Jung's collected works, The Red Book, and his interviews and seminars – as well as from seminal texts by Kant, Nietzsche, Aristotle and Augustine – Giovanni Colacicchi provides a philosophically-grounded analysis of the ethical relevance of Jung's analytical psychology and of the concept of individuation which is at its core. The author argues that in Jung's depth-psychological thinking Kantian deontology, Nietzschean perspectivism, Aristotelian virtue ethics and Christian morality all take part in shaping a moral and ethical character.

A Depth Psychology Model of Immigration and Adaptation

The Migrant's Journey

Phyllis Marie Jensen, Jungian analyst in private practice, Vancouver, Canada

Jensen brings empirical findings from sociology, history and cultural studies into a depth psychology model of migration for research and clinical practice, using the archetype of Campbell's hero's journey as the theoretical framework. The Migrant's Journey has three phases: 1) pre-migration decision-making; 2) the journey; and 3) post-migration adaptation that includes 4) post-migration identity; 5) generational differences; and 6) the host-country response. This six-factor depth psychology model of migration is illustrated with clinical, biographical and historical examples.

Art, Memoir and Jung

Personal and Psychological Encounters

Juliet Miller

In this intimate study Juliet Miller maps the artworks that have influenced her throughout her life and examines how she has integrated them into her development as a psychotherapist. Through this exploration she questions many of the conventions of art and psychotherapy and suggests ways in which looking at art can be used as a psychological tool. Art, Memoir and Jung offers a highly personal and innovative perspective on meaning in art and how it can be used to explore Jungian thought as based in the aesthetic, and how the aesthetic can inform depth psychology.

Images of the Dead in Grief Dreams

A Jungian View of Mourning

Susan Olson

In her first year of training at the C.G. Jung Institute (Zurich), Susan Olson suffered the loss of her college-age daughter in a hit-and-run auto accident. By Grief Transformed describes her journey through mourning, guided by a series of vivid and startling dreams. Jung's definition of the dream as a harbinger of fate, a portent and comforter, the messenger of the gods evolves from academic theory into embodied insight in this chronicle of one woman's encounter with the transforming power of grief. From personal story, this book expands to include premonitory and grief dreams of other mourners, dreams cited in Jung's memoirs, and selections from mythology and literature.

Jung, Deleuze, and the Problematic Whole

Edited by Roderick Main, Christian McMillan and David Henderson

Series: Philosophy and Psychoanalysis

This book of expert essays explores the concept of the whole as it operates within the psychology of Jung, the philosophy of Deleuze, and selected areas of wider twentieth-century Western culture, which provided the context within which these two seminal thinkers worked.

Addressing this topic from a variety of perspectives and disciplines and with an eye to contemporary social, political, and environmental crises, the contributors aim to clarify some of the epistemological and ethical issues surrounding attempts, such as those of Jung and Deleuze, to think in terms of the whole.

Life and Work of Erich Neumann

On the Side of the Inner Voice

Angelica Löwe

This book is the first published in English to shed light on Erich Neumann's life, work and relationship with C. G. Jung. Spanning the years 1905 to 1960, it traces the development of Neumann's thought and shows how it was inspired by his intensive study of the spiritual movement of Judaism. It explores the existential questions motivating Neumann's work, considers socio-historical issues pertaining to the problem of Jewish identity formation and gives special attention to the correspondence between Jung and Neumann, and Neumann's unpublished works. The book also features a preface by Erich's son, Micha Neumann.

Wolfgang Giegerich

Series: The Collected English Papers of Wolfgang Giegerich

Wolfgang Giegerich's third volume of Collected English Papers shows that the soul is not merely the innocent recipient or victim of violence: it also produces itself through violent deeds and expresses itself through violent acts. Beginning in primordial times with the ritual spilling of blood in animal and human sacrifice, a light was kindled within the darkness of what would otherwise have been mere biological existence, the light of consciousness, mindedness, and "the soul." And following upon this, in the clearance thus created, the soul attained new statuses of itself on the historic battlefields of war and revolution.

Symbolic Mental Representations in Arts and Mystical Experiences

Primordial Mental Activity and Archetypal Constellations

Giselle Manica

Series: Research in Analytical Psychology and Jungian Studies

Symbolic Mental Representations in Arts and Mystical Experiences explains how the individual's conceptualization of reality is dependent on the development of their brain, body structure, and the experiences that are physiologically confronted, acted, or observed via learning and/or simulation, occurring in family or community settings.

This book will be of great interest for academics and researchers in the fields of Analytical Psychology, Affective Neuroscience, Linguistics, Anthropology of Consciousness, Art-therapy and Mystical Experiences, as well as Jungian and post-Jungian scholars, philosophers and teachers.

Technology and the Soul

From the Nuclear Bomb to the World Wide Web, Volume 2

Wolfgang Giegerich

Series: The Collected English Papers of Wolfgang Giegerich

C. G. Jung famously declared that it is not the psyche that is in us, but rather we who are in the psyche. Updating this insight, the second volume of Wolfgang Giegerich's Collected English Papers examines what must be regarded as the most all-encompassing presence of our lives today: technological civilization. Living within technology, we now find that what we had formerly regarded as psychological phenomena—our feelings and emotions, images and dreams—have been superseded by phenomena bearing the predicates "artificial," "manufactured," and "virtual." Television, the World Wide Web, and the nuclear bomb are cases in point.

Temporality, Shame, and the Problem of Evil in Jungian Psychology

An Exchange of Ideas

Murray Stein and Elena Caramazza

This rich discussion, ignited by Stein's 2016 lecture on Wolfgang Pauli's The Piano Lesson, moves from the function of temporality to shame and the problem of evil, touching on the work of C. G. Jung, Raimon Panikkar, Erich Neumann and Marie-Louise von Franz. Stein's contributions detail how Pauli's contact with Jung inspired a thought experiment which attempted to merge quantum physics and depth psychology, and how Neumann and Jung compare on 'the problem of evil', while Caramazza shares clinical case studies and personal reflections to illustrate her points.

The Collective Unconscious in the Age of Neuroscience

Severe Mental Illness and Jung in the 21st Century

Hallie B. Durchslag

Durchslag makes a connection between neurochemistry and Jung's collective unconscious through narrative analysis of psychotic delusions and the psychopharmacological drugs used to modulate them. The book includes four autobiographical accounts of severe mental illness, linking them with Jungian themes including cosmic conflict, divine birth and a new world order. The author also draws on her own history with bipolar I psychosis, establishing a relationship between psychotic delusions, archetypal patterns of expression and the presence or absence of the mood stabilizer lamotrigine and offering a space in which soul and science can coexist.

The Neurosis of Psychology

Primary Papers Towards a Critical Psychology, Volume 1

Wolfgang Giegerich

Series: The Collected English Papers of Wolfgang Giegerich

This first volume of The Collected English Papers of Wolfgang Giegerich takes its title from Giegerich's ground-breaking paper, On the Neurosis of Psychology, or The Third of the Two, originally published in Spring Journal in 1977. The third referred to in the title is psychology itself as the theory in which the two, patient and analyst, are contained as they engage with one another in the analytic process. By applying to psychology itself the ideas that analytical psychology draws upon when thinking about the patient, Giegerich establishes the basis for a psychology that defines itself as the discipline of interiority.

The Soul Always Thinks

Volume 4

Wolfgang Giegerich

Series: The Collected English Papers of Wolfgang Giegerich

Giegerich recalls the soul to the inwardness of its own home territory by bringing out the thought-character of the self-creating, self-unfolding logical life that it is. In addition to clarifying what thought means for psychology and analyzing misconceptions surrounding the topic of "soul and thought" a challenging thesis concerning the limitation of an imaginal, "anima-only" approach in psychology is argued, while examining at the same time such topics as "the end of meaning and the birth of man," "anima mundi and time", "the metamorphosis of the gods," and the steps of the transition from childhood to adulthood and from a psychological oneness with nature to alienation from nature.

Thresholds and Pathways Between Jung and Lacan

On the Blazing Sublime

Edited by Ann Casement, Phil Goss, Jungian Analyst, University of Central Lancashire, UK and Dany Nobus

This ground-breaking book was seeded by the first-ever joint Jung/Lacan conference on the notion of the sublime held at Cambridge, England against the backdrop of the 100th anniversary of the outbreak of The Great War. It provides a fascinating range of depth psychological perspectives on aspects of creativity and destruction inherent in the monstrous, awe-inspiring sublime. It will be of interest to practising psychoanalysts, psychotherapists and academics in the field, as well as to all those who are captivated by the still revolutionary thinking of Jung and Lacan.

Sexual Difference, Abjection and Liminal Spaces

A Psychoanalytic Approach to the Abhorrence of the Feminine

Bethany Morris

Series: The Lines of the Symbolic Series in Psychoanalysis

This book uses an interdisciplinary approach to explore the ways in which sexual difference can be understood as an encounter with otherness through the abjected, investigating social discourses and unconscious anxieties around 'monstrous' women throughout history and how they may challenge these characterisations. Approaching the concept of the Borderline from a critical and transdisciplinary perspective, this text will appeal to postgraduate students and researchers from Lacanian psychoanalysis, gender studies, cultural studies and critical psychology.

Affect in Artistic Creativity

Painting to Feel

Jussi Saarinen

Series: Art, Creativity, and Psychoanalysis Book Series

Why do painters paint? Obviously, there are numerous possible reasons. They paint to create images for others' enjoyment, to solve visual problems, to convey ideas, and to contribute to a rich artistic tradition. This book argues that there is yet another, crucially important but often overlooked reason. Painters paint to feel.

On the whole, it enriches our understanding of artistic creativity and sheds more light on how and why we come to feel the things we do. As such, the book will appeal to philosophers, psychoanalysts, and art researchers alike.

Attachment and Adult Clinical Practice

An Integrated Perspective on Developmental Theory, Neurobiology, and Emotional Regulation

Toni Mandelbaum

Attachment theory speaks to one's biological drive to connect, to relate, and to feel heard. The author aims to achieve this by condensing the enormous and diverse literature of the field into a singular, manageable work that clinicians can use to foster these connections. It traces the history of attachment theory and describes how neurobiological research has influenced the expansion of attachment theory, and how emotions and psychophysiology have become critical to our understanding of human attachment connections. It concludes with a detailed examination of how to apply these theories in clinical practice. It will be of great importance for psychotherapy students and clinicians.

Contextual Transactional Analysis

James M. Sedgwick

Series: Innovations in Transactional Analysis: Theory and Practice

Sedgwick captures the importance of what happens around us and the distinctive kinds of psychological distress that arise from pervasive environmental disadvantage. Beginning with a view of people as always situated and socialized, the book highlights that the world always and everywhere constrains or enables thought and action. Ranging through ideas about the kinds of contextual conditions which might make psychological distress more likely and illuminating, the book suggests what the implications of these conclusions might be for clinical understanding. Sedgwick's work fills a current gap in the clinical literature and points the way to greater practitioner efficacy.

Series: Innovations in Transactional Analysis: Theory and Practice

Landaiche presents an approach, grounded in the traditions of transactional analysis, group-as-a-whole, and natural family systems, which acknowledges and examines the difficulties of working with and within groups. Framing group dynamics in terms of human learning processes that operate, collectively and individually, in relation to the challenges we face in our worlds, Landaiche introduces the premise of studying ourselves in collective life. Whether in therapy groups, work teams, families, organizational systems, or larger communities, the book presents a contemporary assessment of how we operate collectively and how modern life has changed our outlook.

Imagination, Creativity and Spirituality in Psychotherapy

Parental Alienation and Factitious Disorder by Proxy Beyond DSM-5: Interrelated Multidimensional Diagnoses

Michael R. Bütz

Using Munchausen's syndrome by proxy/factitious disorder by proxy and parental alienation as blueprints, this book advances a new diagnostic category for addressing complex pathological phenomena that integrates individual characteristics and symptoms, family and other system dynamics under one diagnosis. The author examines why current diagnostic categories within the DSM-5 are inadequate and provides a framework for this new category—Interrelated Multidimensional Diagnosis—to better capture the complexity of MSBP/FDBP and PA. The book proposes step-wise processes to determine if the phenomena exist along with several interventions and treatment recommendations.

Psychoanalysis from the Inside Out

Developing and Sustaining an Analytic Identity and Practice

Lena Theodorou Ehrlich

In the face of considerable scepticism over the function and effectiveness of psychoanalysis, Lena Ehrlich contends that it is unique in its potential to transform patients at an emotionally cellular level by helping them access and process longstanding conflicts and traumatic experiences. Using detailed clinical vignettes, the author demonstrates that when analysts practice from the inside out, i.e., - consider that external obstacles to initiating and deepening an analysis inevitably reflect analysts' fears of our internal world and of intimacy - they become better able to speak to patients' long-term suffering.

Psychoanalysis of Aging and Maturity

The Concept of Maturescence

Guillermo Julio Montero

As developing countries increasingly confront the issues of an aging population, this important book identifies the key period in the life cycle in which changes to the body, as well as concomitant psychological developments, result in the entering of a new phase of life, maturescence.

Supported by clinical examples, the book defines the stimuli which are the precursors to this phase, before examining the complete set of psychological challenges it entails. It will be an essential reading for psychoanalysts, psychotherapists and any professional working with issues around aging.

The Certainty Principle

Lesley Murdin, Director, Westminster Pastoral Foundation, London

Lesley Murdin examines the role of, and need for, certainty in mental life, addressing questions raised by fundamentalism and extremism and exploring its relation to human nature. Murdin proposes a new synthesis in which certainty itself can be a cause of suffering and part of a defensive manoeuvre, and considers how the need for certainty can be managed in a positive way, rather than creating fear and extreme emotional responses. The Certainty Principle considers how the quest for certainty dominates much of human thinking, and is illustrated throughout with examples from psychotherapy practice, literature and international politics.

Scansion in Psychoanalysis and Art

The Cut in Creation

Vanessa Sinclair

Series: Art, Creativity, and Psychoanalysis Book Series

Scansion in Psychoanalysis and Art examines a strain of artists spanning more than a century, beginning at the dawn of photography and culminating in the discussion of contemporary artists, to illustrate various psychoanalytic concepts by examining artists working in a multitude of mediums. This is an intriguing book for psychoanalysts, psychologists and creative arts therapists, who wish to explore the generative potential of scansion and the relationship between psychoanalysis and the arts, as well as to artists and art historians interested in a psychoanalytic view of these processes.

2nd Edition

Sex, Death, and the Superego

Updating Psychoanalytic Experience and Developments in Neuroscience

Ronald Britton

Divided in three parts - Hysteria, Ego and Superego, and Narcissism - this new edition of Ronald Britton's personal reappraisal of psychoanalytic theories adds content on brain, mind and self, the death instinct and a discussion on the biological, psychological and sociological basis of gender. It suggests that our increasing knowledge necessarily produces a dissolution of our coherent concepts of mind and brain, and that during this phase of creative dissolution we need to reassess what we know and what we don't know.

Sustaining Depth and Meaning in School Leadership

Keeping Your Head

Edited by Emil Jackson and Andrea Berkeley

Series: Tavistock Clinic Series

This book concerns the emotional and psychological experience of school leadership - in particular, the felt experience of life as a headteacher. It describes the pressures and rewards of their roles, together with some of the ways that school leaders successfully sustain and develop themselves and their teams.

Rooted in Jackson and Berkeley's belief that school leaders are likely to be at their best when they find their own unique and authentic way of taking up their leadership role, this book is an accessible, supportive and developmental contribution for all those involved in education leadership.

The Cartesian Split

A Hidden Myth

Brandon D. Short

Series: Research in Analytical Psychology and Jungian Studies

The Cartesian Split examines the phenomenon of Cartesian influence as a psychological complex in the Jungian tradition. It explores the full legacy of Cartesian rationality in its emphasis on abstract thinking and masculinisation of thought, often perceived in negative light despite the developments of modernity.

The book will be of great interest for academics, researchers, and post-graduate students in the fields of analytical psychology, mental health, comparative mythology and Jungian studies.

The Psychoanalysis of the Absurd

Existentialism and Phenomenology in Contemporary Psychoanalysis

Mark Leffert

The Psychoanalysis of the Absurd offers an interdisciplinary study of Existentialism and Phenomenology and their importance to the clinical work of Contemporary Psychotherapy and Psychoanalysis.

Existential psychotherapy and psychoanalysis have, until now, largely gone their own way; the goal of this book is to fold them back into Contemporary Psychoanalysis. Establishing that the concept of Absurdity is of singular clinical importance to both diagnosis and therapeutic action, this book will be of great interest to clinicians, philosophers, and interdisciplinary scientists.

The Spiritual Psyche in Psychotherapy

Mysticism, Intersubjectivity, and Psychoanalysis

Edited by Willow Pearson and Helen Marlo

Series: Psyche and Soul

This book examines the interaction of spiritual and psychoanalytic lineages with psychotherapy in everyday practice. Written by a team of seasoned clinicians and illustrated through clinical vignettes, chapters explore topics pertaining to the mystical dimensions of psychological and spiritual life and how it may be integrated into clinical practice. A felt sense of the spiritual psyche in clinical practice emerges from this conversation among spiritual and psychoanalytic lineages, beckoning clinicians ever further on the path of spiritually rooted, psychodynamic practice.

Winnicott and Kohut on Intersubjectivity and Complex Disorders

New Perspectives for Psychoanalysis, Psychotherapy and Psychiatry

Carlos Nemirovsky

Given the complexity of scientific developments inside and outside the psychoanalytic field, traditional definitions of basic psychoanalytic notions are no longer sufficiently comprehensive.

We need conceptualizations that encompass new clinical phenomena observed in present-day patients and that take into account contributions inside, outside, and on the boundaries of our practice.

Uniquely contrasting the works of two seminal thinkers with a Latin American perspective, Winnicott and Kohut on Intersubjectivity and Complex Disorders will be invaluable to clinicians and psychoanalysts.

The Elementary School Counselor's Guide to Supporting Students with Learning Disabilities

A Comprehensive Program

Mati Sicherer

This book informs elementary school counselor practice in a way that changes the lives of students with learning disabilities by helping to engage them in learning in an effective manner. This book gives elementary school counselors the tools they need to work with students with learning disabilities, starting with an overview of disabilities as they apply to the role of the counselor. The book then explores these topics through a step-by-step program for creating counseling groups for students, outlining a 6-to-8-week plan for elementary school counselors to implement the program in their own schools. For elementary school counselors and graduate students in school counseling.

Applying Islamic Principles to Clinical Mental Health Care

Introducing Traditional Islamically Integrated Psychotherapy

Edited by Hooman Keshavarzi, Fahad Khan, Bilal Ali and Rania Awaad

This volume introduces traditional Islamically integrated psychotherapy (TIIP). TIIP is an integrative model of care that honors core principles of Islam while drawing upon empirical truths in psychology. The book introduces the basic foundations of TIIP, then delves into the writings of early Islamic scholars to provide a richer understanding of Islamic literature about mental health. Chapter authors provide a quantitative and qualitative assessment methodology for treatment planning as well as practical interventions illustrated with case studies. This text will be useful for Muslim clinicians, those who treat Muslim clients, and Muslim graduate students in clinical psychology.

Bodies and Social Rhythms

Navigating Unconscious Vulnerability and Emotional Fluidity

Steven Knoblauch, New York University, USA

Series: Psychoanalysis in a New Key Book Series

This exciting new book traces the development of an unfolding challenge for psychoanalytic attention, which augments contemporary theoretical lenses focusing on structures of meaning with an accompanying registration different than and interacting with structural experience. This accompanying registration of experience is given the term 'fluidity' in order to characterize it as too fast moving and unformulated to be symbolized with linguistic categorization.

Part of the popular 'Psychoanalysis in a New Key' book series, it will appeal to teaching and practicing psychoanalysts, and an increasing volume of therapists attending to embodied experience in their practice.

Tackling Cyberbullying and Related Problems

Innovative Usage of Games, Apps and Manga

Edited by Yuichi Toda, Osaka Kyuiku University, Japan and Insoo Oh, Ewha Womans University, South Korea

This book looks at innovative tools developed by Japanese and Korean researchers and practitioners to tackle cyberbullying and internet-related problems (addiction, cybercrimes etc). The contributors have created preventative and intervention measures for children using games, apps, manga and anime videos, which are more accessible for children than textbooks or classroom-based lessons. The contributors cover their experiences of developing these new approaches with children, parents and teachers as well as giving insights and evidence into how these innovative techniques and methods work.

Holocaust Trauma and Psychic Deformation

Psychoanalytic Reflections of a Holocaust Survivor

Alfred Garwood

The book begins by examining the author's own experience as a refugee in the aftermath of the Holocaust; the psychological impact of displacement after such traumatic events, and his attempt to flee its damage through medical and psychoanalytic training. But the second half of the book broadens the perspective to offer a clinical exploration of the psychic effects of surviving the Holocaust. A range of concepts are addressed and explored, from powerlessness and survivor guilt, to psychic security and recovered memories. It concludes by examining how psychic trauma is processed, and the clinical implications for when disorders emerge and dysfunction results.

Surviving Domestic Abuse

Formal and Informal Supports and Services

Michele A. Finneran

The book offers actionable recommendations and multiple-use cases to fill gaps in the understanding of the complexities that exist in domestic violence dynamics. Dr Finneran uses real-life interviews with victims to inform action and intervention for policy, strategy, and decision-making for support and service providers including law enforcement, healthcare, social services, and employers. Identification of successful supports and services can assist in preventing victims from returning to their abusive relationships, and the author provides real-life examples and a sounding board for the voices of real women who have endured domestic abuse.

Decentering Subjectivity in Everyday Eating and Drinking

Digesting Reality

Ali Lara

Series: Concepts for Critical Psychology

Borrowing scientific insights from molecular biology and neuroscience, combined with a touch of decolonial spirit, the author examines specific 'processes' and/or 'objects' triggered by eating and drinking events, such as the production of heat as you eat a taco, or the interchange of knowledge while drinking mezcal. The book develops an approach to human subjectivity informed by material and aesthetic encounters beyond the analysis of language, representation, and social structures, and aims to contribute to the contemporary landscape of efforts decentering our understanding of both, human and non-human affairs.

Psychological Perspectives on Walking

Interventions for Achieving Change

Ralf Rissler and Matúš Šucha

This book provides an overview of the benefits of walking and shows how we can encourage people to walk more based on psychological principles. It examines how walking significantly improves health, positively impacts the environment, contributes to resolving social issues, and boosts the local micro-economy. The authors examine the role of walking in society and explore the barriers to walking, relating to motivation, identity, and group behaviour. They outline how measures can be implemented to increase walking, making this fascinating reading for policy makers and those working in transportation and urban planning, as well as students and academics interested in transport psychology.

Beyond Neural Correlates of Consciousness

Edited by Morten Overgaard, Aarhus University, Denmark, Jesper Mogensen and Asger Kirkeby-Hinrup

Series: Current Issues in Consciousness Research

Beyond Neural Correlates of Consciousness seeks to establish a connection between neural correlates of consciousness and a theoretical interpretation. Over the last 50 years, great developments have been made in the search for neural correlates of consciousness, but to date, few attempts have been made to understand or interpret these correlations. This ground-breaking volume draws on the expertise of leading international academics to provide an overview of the latest research, whilst also reviewing the methodology and discussing the theoretical assumptions behind each NCC and their consequences.

Dark Cognition

Evidence for Psi and its Implications for Consciousness

Edited by David Vernon, Canterbury Christchurch University, UK

The book provides an engaging introduction to the field of parapsychology, uniquely situating it within a discussion of the nature of science and the scientific paradigm. It explores the history of paranormal experiences, considering assessment methodology, empirical evidence, and existing theories attempting to explain such experiences. Drawing on findings from psychokinesis, telepathy and energy healing, the book discusses whether these are distinct aspects of cognition or representative of the ways researchers examine such effects. The book concludes with a reflection on the fields of dark cognition, exploring the implications of such findings for human consciousness.

Prospective Memory in Clinical Populations

Edited by Sarah A. Raskin

Although prospective memory is recognized as an important aspect of daily life, there has been only limited crossover from the research literature to clinical practice. The wealth of research findings need to be translated to evidence-based clinical approaches that are uniquely tailored to individual populations. Each chapter of Prospective Memory in Clinical Populations covers current knowledge of prospective memory deficits in a population; approaches to clinical assessment; any published evidence-based approaches to treatment; and suggestions for management.

The Art of Silence and Human Behaviour

Interdisciplinary Perspectives

Theodor Itten

This book examines the phenomenon of silence in relation to human behaviour from multiple perspectives and draws on psychological and cultural-philosophical ideas. The author explores internal conversation in relation to the self and emotions and demonstrates why silence is sometimes necessary in our modern society. The book also draws on psychoanalytic ideas by outlining the power of silence in processing our emotions and relationships and hiding innermost feelings. Interpersonal communication is examined in relation to everyday life, making this fascinating reading for students and academics in psychology, philosophy, cultural studies, and related areas.

Understanding the Human Mind

Why you shouldn't trust what your brain is telling you

John Edward Terrell and Gabriel Stowe Terrell

Making Sense draws on current research in Cognitive Psychology, Neuroscience and Anthropology to explore how the human mind works. The book considers our brains in the social, environmental, and embodied contexts in which they operate to address why as individuals we find it so easy to believe we are right, even when we are wrong. Using examples drawn from the worlds of fiction and popular science, the authors argue that current dual process models are incomplete, and present their own model of the human mind. It will be a must-read for all researchers at the intersection of Cognitive Psychology and Anthropology.

A Tribute to David E. Over

Edited by Shira Elqayam, De Montfort University, UK, Igor Douven, Université Paris-Sorbonne, France, Jonathan St B. T. Evans, University of Plymouth, UK and Nicole Cruz, Birkbeck University of London

David Earl Over is a leading cognitive scientist and, with his firm grounding in philosophical logic, he also exerts a powerful influence on the psychology of reasoning. He is responsible for not only a large body of empirical work and accompanying theory, but for advancing a major shift in thinking about reasoning, commonly known as the 'new paradigm' in the psychology of human reasoning. This book is therefore important reading for scholars, researchers, and advanced students in psychology, philosophy, and the cognitive sciences, including those who are not familiar with Over's thought already.

Soliloquy Methodology

Jocene Vallack, James Cook University, Australia

Arts-informed research methods are becoming increasingly popular with researchers in Arts, Education and the Social Sciences, but there is often confusion about how to turn arts practice into rigorous research. This book sets out a new and simple, yet theoretically aligned methodology for arts-based researchers, with an emphasis on phenomenology. It shows how to use arts practice for data analysis and presentation, while remaining aware of the requirements of rigour in research.

Applying the Rasch Model

Trevor Bond, James Cook University, Australia, Zi Yan and Moritz Heene

Recognised as the most influential publication in the field, ARM facilitates deep understanding of the Rasch model and its practical applications. The authors review the crucial properties of the model and demonstrate its use with examples across the human sciences. Readers will be able to understand and critically evaluate Rasch measurement research, perform their own Rasch analyses and interpret their results.

Intended as a text for graduate courses in measurement, item response theory, (advanced) research methods or quantitative analysis in social sciences. Professionals in these areas will also

Declarative Mapping Sentences in Qualitative Research

Theoretical, Linguistic, and Applied Usages

Paul M. W. Hackett, Emerson College, USA

Series: Routledge Research in Psychology

Facet theory is an approach to psychological and social science research, and its main research tool is the mapping sentence. In Facet Theory and the Declarative Mapping Sentence, the author introduces the traditional usage of the mapping sentence within quantitative research, reviews its philosophical underpinnings, and proposes the 'declarative mapping sentence' as an instrument and approach to qualitative scholarship. This innovative direction for social research provides a flexible structure for research domain, and it allows qualitative research results to be uniformly sorted.

Routledge International Handbook of Research Methods in Digital Humanities

Edited by Kristen Schuster, King's College London, UK and Stuart Dunn, King's College London

Digital Humanities is a fast-evolving field, and with new methods of knowledge production, storage and dissemination, is developing its own concepts of research methods and methodology. This book draws on both traditional and emerging fields of study to consider what a grounded definition of quantitative and qualitative research in the Digital Humanities might mean; which areas DH can fruitfully draw on in order to foster and develop that understanding; where we can see those methods applied; and what the future directions of research methods in Digital Humanities might look like.

Teaching Statistics and Quantitative Methods in the 21st Century

Edited by Joseph Lee Rodgers, Vanderbilt University, USA

Series: Multivariate Applications Series

This volume has two principal aims. Firstly, it provides innovative, practical and clear guidance for students who are training to teach statistics and quantitative methods to undergraduates or who are already teaching and want to improve their knowledge and skills. Secondly, it inspires students and instructors to think critically about their teaching of statistics and quantitative methods, and to be more aware of, and receptive to, the developments in their field and to be willing to incorporate these developments into their teaching. It will appeal to instructors and graduate students in all behavioral and social science disciplines that require the teaching of statistics.

Bisexual and Pansexual Identities

Exploring and Challenging Invisibility and Invalidation

Nikki Hayfield

Series: Gender and Sexualities in Psychology

This book examines bisexual visual identities, erasure and invisibility, and marginalisation based on existing research and theory. Nikki Hayfield provides an in-depth exploration of bisexual visual identities and highlights their importance as they relate to bisexual people and their identity, health, and wellbeing. The author also synthesises research on biphobia and bisexual marginalisation and addresses gaps in the literature by exploring how early sexologists struggled to accommodate bisexuality within their binary models of sexuality. This is fascinating reading for students, academics and anyone with a personal interest in sexuality, bisexuality and identity.

The Power of Identity Claims

How We Value and Defend the Self

Dale T. Miller

Miller puts forth a novel and compelling argument regarding how severely our identity claims affect our daily lives. The book provides explanations for many forms of puzzling behaviour, such as why people sometimes act against their economic self-interest, how they avoid situations that test their moral identities, and how they respond to failures to live up to their moral identities. It paints an intriguing picture of people's investment in their identity claims by showing how they seek opportunities to demonstrate their validity, avoid actions and circumstances that challenge their legitimacy, and employ psychological defences when others challenge their legitimacy.

Challenges and Solutions in Ethnographic Research

Ethnography with a Twist

Edited by Tuuli Lähdesmäki, University of Jyväskylä, Finland, Eerika Koskinen-Koivisto, Viktorija L.A. Čeginskas, University of Helsinki, Finland and Aino-Kaisa Koistinen

This interdisciplinary book rethinks ethnography 'outside the box' of established traditions. It develops new ethnographic tools and critically discusses core principles of ethnography, such as ethics, subjectivity, the role of the researcher, and ethnographic knowledge production. 'Ethnography with a twist' means both an intentional aim to conduct ethnographic research with novel approaches and methodological tools, and sensitivity to recognize as well as creativity to utilize different kinds of 'twist moments' that research may create. Suitable for postgraduate students in sociology, anthropology and qualitative research.

Dialogues on Agential Realism

Engaging in Worldings through Research Practice

Edited by Malou Juelskjær, Danmarks institut for Pædagogik og Uddannelse, Denmark, Helle Plauborg, Danmarks institut for Pædagogik og Uddannelse, Denmark and Stine W. Adrian, Aalborg University, Denmark

This book consists of conversations with five founding scholars – Karen Barad, Astrid Schrader, Magdalena Gorska, Ericka Johnson and Elizabeth De Freitas – regarding their research practices inspired by agential realism. They are conversations focusing on how they think and analyze empirical material through agential realism in combination with other thinkers (e.g. Deleuze, Derrida, Butler, Haraway, Châtelet and Suchman). The conversations offer entry points to agential realism and the conduct of research practices and open up spaces for learning about research processes, agential realism and agential realist concepts for students and scholars of qualitative research.

Love, Sex and Psychotherapy in a Post-Romantic Era

Edited by Del Loewenthal

How do cultural changes such as the increasing lustful possibilities of our liquid modernity affect 'romantic' values as psychotherapists and counsellors; and, in turn, affect how they work through their clients' relationships? This book seeks to explore recent research on how notions of romanticism and post-romanticism affect therapeutic practices.

Ritual in Human Evolution and Religion

Psychological and Ritual Resources

Matt J. Rossano

This book explores the role of ritual in social life, human evolution, and religion. It explains the functions and purpose of varied rituals across the world and generating predictions about ritual survival. Rossano presents a unique examination of the function of rituals and how they cultivate, mobilize, and direct psychological resources. The book shows how rituals address societal and community problems by cultivating three psychological resources – commitment to communal values, goodwill and social support or social capital making it a fascinating read for students and academics in psychology, sociology, religion, anthropology, and sociology.

The Routledge International Handbook of Organizational Autoethnography

Edited by Andrew F. Herrmann, East Tennessee State University, USA

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

This book maps the interdisciplinary field of organizational autoethnography. It provides a lens that shifts from the dominant paradigm of meta-level organisational discourse to look at how the individual's experience affects wider factors like business productivity, community and families. Contributions from the US, UK, Europe and the Global South span disciplines such as organizational studies and ethnography, communication studies, business and theatre and performance to provide a comprehensive map of this wide-reaching area of qualitative research.

Sex and Gender

A Biopsychological Approach

Heidi R. Riggio, California State University, Los Angeles, USA

Using both scientific and feminist approaches in its analysis, Sex and Gender: A Biopsychological Approach is essential for instructors hoping to offer a thorough and complex investigation of sex and gender studies to their classrooms. The focus on biological, psychological, and social processes—as separate entities and interacting processes—make Sex and Gender particularly crucial for a comprehensive and evolved understanding of the subject. The bonus features, which can be used as discussion topics, student essay topics, or special topics, are intended to transfer the information to the classroom and will be especially valuable to students and teachers alike.

The Social Psychology of Obedience Towards Authority

An Empirical Tribute to Stanley Milgram

Dariusz Dolinski and Tomasz Grzyb

The authors refer to their own series of studies testing various hypotheses from Milgram's research, examining underlying obedience mechanisms as well as factors modifying the degree of obedience displayed by individuals in different situations. They offer their theoretical model explaining subjects' obedience in Milgram's paradigm and describe numerous examples of the destructive effect of thoughtless obedience both in our daily lives as well as in crucial historical events. Concluding with reflections on how to prevent the danger of destructive obedience to authority, this insightful volume will be fascinating reading for students and academics.

The Use and Misuse of the Experimental Method in Social Psychology

An Examination of Classical Research

Augustine Brannigan

This book critically examines the work of a number of pioneers of social psychology, including legendary figures such as Kurt Lewin, Leon Festinger, Muzafer Sherif, Solomon Asch, Stanley Milgram and Philip Zimbardo. Brannigan argues that the reliance of these psychologists on experimentation has led to questions around validity and replication of their studies.

Turning Mental Health into Social Action

Bernard Guerin, University of South Australia, Australia
Series: Exploring the Environmental and Social Foundations of Human Behaviour

This book is part of a trilogy which offers a new way of doing psychology focusing on people's social environments as determining their behaviour, rather than internal attributions. It applies a new approach to mental health by focusing on interventions and lived experience, and explores how by changing our environmental contexts, we can improve mental health conditions. The book deconstructs modern talking therapies, and frames mental health in a wider social context to show how societal structures restrict our opportunities and pathways. This is fascinating reading for academics and students in psychology and the social sciences, and counsellors and therapists.

Turning Psychology into a Social Science

Bernard Guerin, University of South Australia, Australia
Series: Exploring the Environmental and Social Foundations of Human Behaviour

This book is part of a trilogy, which offers a new way of doing psychology focusing on people's social environments as determining their behaviour, rather than internal and individualistic attributions. It shows how everything we do is social and how through research from social anthropology, sociolinguistics, and sociology, can be integrated into a new form of psychology. Referring to political ideologies such as Marxism and indigenous knowledges, the book looks at varying ways that social contextual analyses can aid in a new and growing area of conservation psychology. This is fascinating

Turning Psychology into Social Contextual Analysis

Bernard Guerin, University of South Australia, Australia
Series: Exploring the Environmental and Social Foundations of Human Behaviour

This book is part of a trilogy, which offers a new way of doing psychology focusing on people's social environments as determining their behaviour, rather than internal and individualistic attributions. It puts the 'social' back into social psychology and offers a more integrated way of thinking about and researching people and intervening to change what people do. Covering psychology's history, emotional behaviours, language, and social behaviour, the book seeks to guide readers to see how their behaviours arise from their social, cultural, economic, patriarchal, historical, and other contexts. This is fascinating reading for students in psychology and the social sciences.

The Psychology of Art

George Mather, University of Lincoln, UK
 Series: The Psychology of Everything

How do we define art? Why do we want to create artistic works? How does the brain inform aesthetic judgement? The Psychology of Art provides an eclectic introduction to the myriad ways that psychology can enrich our understanding and appreciation of art. The book draws on scientific approaches to the study of human sensation and perception, bridging the gap between psychology and traditional approaches to art taken in the humanities. With art as a constant source of inspiration, conflict, and conversation, The Psychology of Art introduces the reader to new ways of thinking about why and how we create and consume art.

The Psychology of Belonging

Kelly-Ann Allen
 Series: The Psychology of Everything

The Psychology of Belonging explores why feeling like we belong is so important throughout our lives, from childhood to old age, irrespective of culture, race, or geography. With its virtues and shortcomings, belonging to groups such as families, social groups, schools, workplaces, and communities, is fundamental to our identity and wellbeing, even in a time where technology has changed the way we connect with each other. In a world where loneliness and social isolation is on the rise, The Psychology of Belonging shows how meaningful connections can build a sense of belonging for all of us.

The Psychology of Intelligence

Sonja Falck
 Series: The Psychology of Everything

What fascinates us about intelligence? How do attitudes to intelligence shape a society? Can we overcome our fears and prejudices about intelligence? Sonja Falck shows there have been two main eras in Western society's way of engaging with the phenomenon of intelligence, and that we are on the brink of a third. She explains the psychology that underlies the contradictory psychosocial reactions and interventions surrounding intelligence seen over the decades alongside ongoing neurobiological studies of intelligence. Her thought-provoking analysis challenges popular assumptions and is applied to show how we can benefit from embracing intelligence in ourselves and others as a fact of life.

The Psychology of Dreaming

Josie Malinowski
 Series: The Psychology of Everything

The Psychology of Dreaming will delve into the last 100 years of dream research to provide a thought-provoking introduction to dreaming. Beginning with an account of the history of modern psychological dream research, the book will also explore the role that dreaming plays in consolidating memories, problem-solving, and processing emotions. Using the latest scientific research, the book will discuss the evidence for dream-based therapy, precognitive dreaming, and how rapid improvements in technology affect our dreams. It draws on a range of cognitive, experimental, and theoretical research, and will be of interest to anyone who has wondered why we dream and how it works.

The Psychology of Terrorism

Neil Shortland

Series: The Psychology of Everything

What is terrorism? Can anyone be radicalized? How can we respond to terrorist acts? The Psychology of Terrorism seeks to explain why some acts of violence are considered terrorism, and others are not, and why some individuals may be more susceptible to engaging in terrorist behavior. Debunking myths and lazy stereotypes, the book delves into some of the most shocking atrocities of our times to discuss the complex psychological characteristics of individual terrorists, organised groups, and their acts. Whilst there is no simple solution, The Psychology of Terrorism shows us that a growing reverse radicalization movement and modern interventionist techniques can give us hope for the future.

Make Room for Baby

Perinatal Child-Parent Psychotherapy to Repair Trauma and Promote Attachment

Alicia F. Lieberman, Harris Endowed Chair in Infant Mental Health and Professor, Department of Psychiatry, University of California, San Francisco, Manuela A. Diaz, private practice, Berkeley, CA, Gloria Castro, Department of Psychiatry, University of California, San Francisco and Griselda Oliver Bucio, private practice, Walnut Creek, CA

This state-of-the-art clinician's guide describes Perinatal Child-Parent Psychotherapy (P-CPP), a treatment for pregnant women and their partners whose readiness to nurture a baby is compromised by traumatic stress and adverse life experiences. An application to pregnancy of the widely disseminated, evidence-based Child-Parent Psychotherapy, P-CPP spans the prenatal period through the first 6 months of life. Extended cases illustrate ways to help mothers and fathers understand how trauma has affected them, navigate the physical and emotional challenges of becoming parents, build essential caregiving competencies, and ensure the safety of their babies and themselves.

Military Stress Reactions

Rethinking Trauma and PTSD

Carrie H. Kennedy, University of Virginia, Charlottesville

Many people—including some mental health professionals and service members themselves—have the misconception that military deployment is highly likely to cause posttraumatic stress disorder (PTSD). This book gives practitioners a more nuanced understanding of military stress reactions and related mental health concerns, from transient adjustment problems to clinical disorders. Drawing on expert knowledge of military environments and culture, Carrie H. Kennedy provides vital guidance for evidence-based assessment, intervention, and prevention.

Motivational Interviewing for Leaders in the Helping Professions

Colleen Marshall, Vice President of Behavioral Health, LifeSkills, Bowling Green, KY and Anette Søgaard Nielsen, Unit of Clinical Alcohol Research, University of Southern Denmark, Odense

Series: Applications of Motivational Interviewing

Written expressly for leaders in health care and the social services, this accessible book shows how motivational interviewing (MI) can transform conversations about change within an organization. The authors demonstrate powerful ways to use MI to generate solutions and get employees and organizations unstuck, whether mentoring a staff member in a new role, addressing performance problems, or redesigning procedures or programs. Readers are guided to skillfully and ethically apply the core MI processes—engaging, focusing, evoking, and planning—in the management context.

Principles and Practice of Sex Therapy

Edited by Kathryn S.K. Hall, Private Practice, Princeton, NJ USA and Yitzchak M. Binik, Department of Psychology, McGill University, Montreal, QC, Canada

This widely used clinical reference and text—now significantly updated with 75% new material reflecting therapeutic advances, diagnostic changes, and increased coverage of sexual minority groups—comprehensively addresses sexual problems and their treatment. Prominent contributors interweave theory, research, and clinical considerations. Detailed case examples illustrate the process of assessment and intervention with individuals and couples across the lifespan, with attention to gender-related, cultural, and health concerns. The volume features an integrative introduction and conclusion, plus an instructive editorial commentary at the beginning of each chapter.

The Data-Driven School

Collaborating to Improve Student Outcomes

Daniel M. Hyson, University of Wisconsin—La Crosse, Joseph F. Kovalski, Indiana University of Pennsylvania, Benjamin Silbergliitt, Intermediate District 287, Plymouth, MN and Jason A. Pedersen, Derry Township School District, PA

Series: The Guilford Practical Intervention in the Schools Series

This indispensable practitioner's guide helps to build the capacity of school psychologists, administrators, and teachers to use data in collaborative decision making. It presents an applied, step-by-step approach for creating and running effective data teams within a problem-solving framework. The authors describe innovative ways to improve academic and behavioral outcomes at the individual, class, grade, school, and district levels. Applications of readily available technology tools are highlighted. In a large-size format with lay-flat binding for easy photocopying, the book includes learning activities and helpful reproducible forms.
