Our catalogue

Our New Titles catalogue is designed to bring you the most current and accurate information about our new books.

If you require any further information, please contact your local sales representative who will be happy to assist you (details to be found at the end of this catalogue).

Our history

Over two centuries ago, the foundations of the company were laid in pioneering fashion when in 1798 Richard Taylor launched the Philosophical Magazine, one of the first scientific journals produced by an independent company. It was the start of much close collaboration with scholarly societies. Dr William Francis, a chemist, joined Richard Taylor in 1852 and continued the tradition of the close links between the academic community and the company.

Today, we continue to be fully committed to the publication of academic and scholarly information of the highest quality and this remains our primary goal.

Taylor & Francis has grown rapidly to become a leading international, academic publisher. With offices across the globe, the Taylor & Francis Group now publishes more than 2,200 journals and over 5,200 new books each year; with a books backlist in excess of 110,000 specialist titles.

Prices featured are correct at time of going to press but are subject to change without notice.

Book orders should be addressed to the Taylor & Francis Customer Services Department at Bookpoint, or the appropriate overseas agent.

Deleuze and Guattari's Philosophy of Freedom

Freedom's Refrains

Edited by Dorothea Olkowski, University of Colorado, Colorado Springs, USA and Eftichis Pirovolakis, University of the Peloponnese, Greece

This volume addresses the issue of freedom in the philosophy of Deleuze and Guattari. This is all the more challenging in that Deleuze-Guattari almost never use the term freedom, preferring instead, the concept of the refrain. The essays collected in the volume show that freedom has been understood in a remarkably narrow sense and that in fact freedom operates as the refrain in every realm of thought and creation. The motivating approach in these essays is Deleuze-Guattari's emphasis on the irrealism of media and capitalistic sign regimes, which they perceive to have taken over even the practices of philosophy, the arts, and science.

The Emergence of Relativism

German Thought from the Enlightenment to National Socialism

Edited by Martin Kusch, University of Vienna, Austria, Katherina Kinzel, University of Vienna, Austria, Johannes Steizinger, University of Vienna, Austria and Niels Wildschut, University of Vienna, Austria

Debates over relativism are as old as philosophy itself. And yet, relativism has not to date been a central topic of research in the history of philosophy or the history of the social sciences. This collection seeks to remedy this situation by studying the emergence of modern forms of relativism as these unfolded in the German lands during the "long nineteenth century"—from the Enlightenment to National Socialism.

Of interest to those studying nineteenth and twentieth century philosophy, German idealism and history and philosophy of science as well as those in related disciplines such as sociology and anthropology.

Émilie Du Châtelet and the Foundations of Physical Science

Edited by Katherine Brading, Duke University, USA

Series: Routledge Focus on Philosophy

The centerpiece of Émilie Du Châtelet's philosophy of science is her Foundations of Physics. The Foundations contains epistemology, metaphysics, methodology, mechanics, and physics, including such pressing issues of the time as whether there are atoms, the appropriate roles of God and of hypotheses in scientific theorizing, how bodies are capable of acting on one another, and whether gravity is an action-at-a-distance force. This book argues that Du Châtelet put her finger on the central problems that lay at the intersection of physics and metaphysics at the time, and tackled them drawing on the most up-to-date resources available.

The Routledge Handbook of Emergence

Edited by Sophie Gibb, Robin Findlay Hendry, Durham University, UK and Tom Lancaster, Durham University, UK

Series: Routledge Handbooks in Philosophy

Since the nineteenth century, the notion of emergence has been widely applied in philosophy, particularly in contemporary philosophy of mind, philosophy of science and metaphysics. More recently it has become central to scientists' understanding of phenomena across physics, chemistry, complexity and systems theory, biology and the social sciences.

This book is an outstanding reference source on the concept of emergence, and is the first collection of its kind. It is essential reading for students and researchers in philosophy of mind, philosophy of science and metaphysics, and also of interest to those studying foundational issues in biology, chemistry, physics and psychology.

The Senses and the History of Philosophy

Edited by Brian Glenney and José Filipe Silva, University of Helsinki, Finland

Series: Rewriting the History of Philosophy

The history of perception and the senses remains a relatively neglected subject. This collection offers a thorough philosophical exploration of the senses, from the classical period to the present day. A team of international contributors cover hitherto overlooked, topics, such as perceptual judgment, temporal and motion illusions, mirror and picture perception, animal senses and cross-modal integration.

Essential reading for students and researchers in the history of philosophy, perception, philosophy of mind, philosophical psychology and aesthetics, and also useful for those in related disciplines such as psychology, religion, sociology, intellectual history and cognitive sciences.

Personal Identity

Harold W Noonan, University of Nottingham, UK

Who am I? What is a person? What does it take for a person to persist from one time to another? These are just some of the questions that constitute the problem of personal identity, one of the oldest of philosophical questions. Personal Identity, Third Edition is a clear and comprehensive introduction to these questions and more.

The third edition has been thoroughly reviewed in light of advances in the latest literature and research. Including helpful chapter summaries and annotated further reading at the end of each chapter, it is essential reading for all students of philosophy of mind and metaphysics, as well as students interested in ethics.

Ecclesial Leadership as Friendship

Chloe Lynch, London School of Theology, UK
Series: Explorations in Practical, Pastoral and Empirical Theology
 Engaging with the wider field of leadership studies, the book establishes an understanding of leadership activity and brings it into conversation with an incarnational ecclesiology. The result is a prophetic reimagining of ecclesial leadership in terms of a relational, kenotic praxis. This praxis of mutuality and love is framed here in the rich language of Christian friendship. The book also wrestles deeply with the embodiment of such a praxis, making explicit the power behaviours typical of friendship-leadership and offering constructive guidance for practitioners in the task of implementation within a complex and fractured world.

In Dialogue with Classical Indian Traditions

Encounter, Transformation and Interpretation

Edited by Brian Black, Lancaster University, UK and Chakravarthi Ram-Prasad, Lancaster University, UK
Series: Dialogues in South Asian Traditions: Religion, Philosophy, Literature and History

Dialogue is a recurring and significant component of Indian religious and philosophical literature. This book undertakes a close textual analysis of a range of religious and philosophical literature to highlight the many uses and functions of dialogue in the sources themselves and in subsequent interpretations. Using the themes of encounter, transformation and interpretation – all of which emerged from face-to-face discussions between the contributors of this volume – each chapter explores dialogue in its own context, thereby demonstrating the variety and pervasiveness of dialogue in different genres of the textual tradition.

Jewish Migration in Modern Times

The Case of Eastern Europe

Edited by Semion Goldin, Mia Spiro and Scott Ury
 This collection examines Jewish migration within, from and to eastern Europe since 1880. It details the wide range of factors that influenced the decision to immigrate, but also looks at the personal experiences of migration. Using various disciplinary perspectives in a range of geographic settings, this volume challenges longstanding truisms about the place of anti-Jewish violence in the history of Jewish migration, as well as the chronological division and general direction of Jewish migration over the past 150 years. This book was originally published as a special issue of East European Jewish Affairs.

Moral and Spiritual Leadership in an Age of Plural Moralities

Edited by Hans Alma, Vrije Universiteit Brussel, Belgium and Ina ter Avest, Inholland University of Applied Sciences, The Netherlands

Series: Studies in World Christianity and Interreligious Relations

The essays in this collection focus on the concept of plural moralities, understood as divergent visions on what is a 'good life', both in an ethical, aesthetical, existential and spiritual sense. They explore the political-cultural context and consequences of plural moralities as well as discussing challenges, possibilities, risks, and dangers from the perspective of two promising relational theories: social constructionism and dialogical self theory. The overarching argument is that it is possible to constructively put in nuanced moral and spiritual guidance into complex, plural societies.

Religion, Feminism, and Idoloclasm

Being and Becoming in the Women's Liberation Movement

Melissa Raphael, University of Gloucestershire, UK

Series: Gender, Theology and Spirituality

Examining a period of feminist theory, theology, and culture from about 1965 to 2010, this book shows that secular, as well as Christian, Jewish, and post-Christian feminists drew on ancient and modern tropes of redemption from slavery to idols or false ideas as a means of overcoming the alienation of women's being from their own becoming. With an understanding of feminist theology as a pivotal contribution to the feminist criticism of culture, this original book also examines idoloclasm in feminist visual art, literature, direct action, and theory, not least that of the sexual politics of romantic love, the diet and beauty industry, sex robots, and other phenomena.

Swami Vivekananda and Non-Hindu Traditions

A Universal Advaita

Stephen E. Gregg, University of Wolverhampton, UK

The Hindu thinker Swami Vivekananda (1863-1902) was and remains an important figure both within India, and in the West, where he was notable for preaching Vedanta. This work demonstrates that Vivekananda was no simplistic pluralist, as portrayed in hagiographical texts, nor narrow exclusivist, as portrayed by some modern Hindu nationalists, but a thoughtful, complex inclusivist. Demonstrating that Vivekananda is best understood within the context of 'Advaitic primacy', rather than 'Hindu chauvinism', this book will be of interest to scholars of Hinduism and South Asian religion and of South Asian diaspora communities and religious studies more generally.

The Paranormal and Popular Culture

A Postmodern Religious Landscape

Edited by Darryl Caterine, Le Moyne College, USA and John W. Morehead

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

This volume serves as an interdisciplinary overview of the relationship of the paranormal to the artefacts of mass media (e.g. novels, comic books, and films) as well as the cultural practices they inspire. The book presents essays exploring its spiritual significance in a postmodern society; its (post)modern representation in literature and film; and its embodiment in a number of contemporary cultural practices. Contributors from a number of disciplines and cultural contexts address issues such as the shamanistic aspects of Batman and lesbianism in vampire mythology. It will be of utmost interest to scholars of religious studies as well as media, communication, and cultural studies.

Religions in Contemporary Africa

An Introduction

Laura S. Grillo, Georgetown University, USA, Adriaan van Klinken and Hassan J. Ndzovu, Moi University, Kenya

Religions in Contemporary Africa is an accessible and comprehensive introduction to the three main religious traditions on the African continent, African traditional religions, Christianity and Islam. The book provides a historical overview of these important traditions and focuses on the roles they play on African societies today. With social, cultural and political case studies throughout, suggestions for further reading, discussion questions and a list of glossary terms this is the ideal textbook for religion studies and African studies students approaching this subject area for the first time.

Women Choosing Silence

Relationality and Transformation in Spiritual Practice

Alison Woolley

Series: Explorations in Practical, Pastoral and Empirical Theology

This book investigates chosen practices of silence in the lives of a cohort of Christian women today, evidencing its potential for enabling profound relationality and empowerment within their spiritual journeys. Its substantive theological and empirical exploration of women's practices of silence demonstrates that, for some, silence-based prayer is valued as a place of encounter and transformation in their relationships with God, with themselves and with others. Utilising a methodology that proposes focusing on silence throughout the qualitative research process, this study also presents a new model for depicting relational change.

Contemporary Religions in China

Shawn Arthur

Series: Religions in Focus

Folk and popular religion is a very significant part of Chinese religious life, especially in rural areas. Contemporary Religions in China focuses on the religious activities of the laypeople of contemporary China and their ideas of what it means to be 'religious' and to practice 'religion.' Throughout, the discussion is illustrated with case studies, textboxes, images, thought questions, and further reading, which help to capture what religion is like for everyday people across China in the twenty-first century.

A Cultural History of Bathing in Late Antiquity and Early Byzantium

Michal Zytka

This book discusses social, religious and medical attitudes towards bathing in Late Antiquity. It examines the place of bathing in late Roman and early Byzantine society as seen in the literary, historical, and documentary sources from the late antique period.

The book contributes a unique perspective to understanding the changes and transformations undergone by the bathing culture of the day, and illustrates the important role played by this culture in contributing to the transitional character of the late antique period. In his examination of the attitudes of medical professionals and laymen alike, Zytka provides an innovative and detailed approach to bathing.

A Tale of a Fool?

A Microhistory of an 18th-Century Peasant Woman

Guðný Hallgrímsdóttir, Reykjavík Akademy, Iceland

Series: Microhistories

A Tale of a Fool? explores the life of Guðrún Ketilsdóttir, a peasant woman born in Iceland around 1759. This study provides not only an illuminating view of the life of a peasant woman in the 18th and 19th centuries, but it also addresses the question of the methods, priorities and interpretations applied in collecting, cataloguing and the publication of women's writing.

Alexander the Great in the Roman Empire, 150 BC to AD 600

Jaakkojuhani Peltonen

The life of Alexander the Great began to be retold from the moment of his death. The Greco-Roman authors used these stories as exemplars in a variety of ways. This book concerns the various stories of Alexander and how they have been used in Roman antiquity to promote certain policies, religious views and value systems.; The book is an original contribution to the study of the history and reception of Alexander, analysing the writings of over 70 classical and post-classical authors in a period of over 700 years. Drawing on this extensive range and quantity of material, the study plots the continuity and change of ideas from the early Roman Empire to the early Middle Ages.

Baldwin I of Jerusalem, 1100–1118

Susan B. Edgington

Series: Rulers of the Latin East

Baldwin of Boulogne was born the youngest of three sons and marked out for a clerical career, yet in turn he became a First Crusader, first Latin count of Edessa and the founder of the Latin kingdom of Jerusalem. Nevertheless, remarkably, he has never been the subject of a full-length biography. This study examines in detail the stages of Baldwin's career, returning to the contemporary evidence to discover the qualities that enabled him not only to succeed his brother as ruler in 1100 but to maintain and expand the new kingdom of Jerusalem through the next eighteen years in the face of aggression from Muslim enemies and rivalry from fellow crusaders.

Beyond the Rhetoric of Pain

Edited by Stella Bruzzi and Berenike Jung

Series: Warwick Series in the Humanities

Beyond the Rhetoric of Pain presents a fresh, interdisciplinary approach to the current research on pain from a variety of scholarly angles within Literature, Film and Media, Game Studies, Art History, Hispanic Studies, Memory Studies, Anthropology, Sociology, Philosophy, and Law. Through the combination of these perspectives, this volume goes beyond the existing structures within and across these disciplines framing new concepts of pain in attitude, practice, language, and ethics of response to pain. Comprised of fourteen unique essays, Beyond the Rhetoric of Pain maintains a common thread of analysis using a historical and cultural lens to explore the rhetoric of pain.

British Exploitation of German Science and Technology, 1943–1949

Charlie Hall, University of Kent at Canterbury, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Second World War History

At the end of the Second World War, Germany lay at the mercy of its occupiers, all of whom launched programmes of scientific and technological exploitation. Each occupying nation sought to bolster their own armories and industries with the spoils of war, and Britain was no exception.

This ground-breaking book tells the full story of British exploitation for the first time, sheds new light on the legacies of the Second World War, and contributes to histories of intelligence, science, warfare, and power in the midst of the twentieth century.

Burying America's World War Dead

Tracy Fisher, University of Minnesota, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in First World War History

After the World War ended, the families of the American war dead were faced with a difficult choice. Political leaders like former President Theodore Roosevelt were encouraging families to leave the dead with their comrades in European cemeteries to create stronger political ties between the United States and Europe. Grieving families found that their decision on where to bury the dead had become a political choice.

Through an in-depth examination of the correspondence between the United States government and the families of the dead, this book will examine how families fought to ensure that the government gave them what they needed.

Byzantine Military Manuals as Literary Works and Practical Handbooks

The Case of the Tenth-Century Sylloge Tacticorum

Georgios Chatzelis

This book studies the Sylloge Tacticorum, an important tenth-century Byzantine military manual. The text is used as a case study to connect military manuals with the challenges that Byzantium faced in its wars with the Arabs, but also with other aspects of Byzantine society such as education, politics, and conventions in the productions of literary texts and historical narratives.

Therefore, along with a detailed study of the Sylloge Tacticorum, this monograph also addresses broader issues of the pen and the sword such as military manuals in connection with Byzantine warfare, politics, literature, historiography and education.

Civic Nationalisms in Global Perspective

Edited by Jasper M. Trautsch, University of Regensburg, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern History

Even distinctions between civic-political and ethnic-cultural types of nationalism have been seen as less distinct in time, the question remains as to whether the concept of civic nationalism can still serve as a useful analytical category to reconstruct whether national solidarity has been produced without appealing to ethnic commonalities. Nationalisms that managed to integrate several ethnicities into one stable nation did and do exist while nations that experienced significant immigration in recent decades have retained their identities. This raises the significant question of how civic nationalisms can be promoted and which dangers are inherent in the process.

Cold Science

Environmental Knowledge in the North American Arctic during the Cold War

Edited by Stephen Bocking and Daniel Heidt

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of Science, Technology and Medicine

Science during the Cold War has become a matter of lively interest within the historical research community, attracting the attention of scholars concerned with the history of science, the Cold War, and environmental history. The Arctic - recognized as a frontier of confrontation between the superpowers, and consequently central to the Cold War - has also attracted much attention. This edited collection speaks to this dual interest, by providing innovative and authoritative analyses of the history of Arctic science during the Cold War.

Decolonisation and Regional Geopolitics

South Africa and the 'Congo Crisis', 1960-1965

Edited by Lazlo Passemiers, University of the Free State, South Africa

Series: The Routledge Global 1960s and 1970s Series

This book argues that as much as the 'Congo crisis' (1960-1965) was a Cold War battleground, so too was it a battleground for Southern Africa's decolonisation. This book provides a transnational history of African decolonisation, apartheid diplomacy, and Southern African nationalist movements. It answers three central questions. First, what was the nature of South African involvement in the Congo crisis? Second, what was the rationale for this involvement? Third, how did South Africans perceive the crisis?

Innovatively, the book shifts the focus on the Congo crisis away from Cold War intervention and centres it around African decolonisation and regional geopolitics.

German-occupied Europe in the Second World War

Edited by Raffael Scheck, Colby College, USA, Fabien Théofilakis, University of Paris 1, France and Julia Torrie, Saint Thomas University, Canada

Series: Routledge Studies in Second World War History

Inspired by recent works on Nazi empire, this book provides a framework to guide occupation research with a broad comparative angle focusing on human interactions. Overcoming national compartmentalization, it examines Nazi occupations with attention to relations between occupiers and local populations and differences among occupation regimes.

This is a timely book which engages in historical and current conversations on European nationalisms and the rise of right-wing populisms.

Historical Parallels, Commemoration and Icons

Edited by Andreas Leutzsch

Series: Routledge Approaches to History

History can hardly be neutral or factual because it depends on the historian's, as well the people's, perspective as to what kind of events and sources they combine to make history meaningful. Analysing historical analogies – as embedded in narratives and images of the past – enables us to understand how history and collective memory are managed and used for political purposes and to provide social orientation in time and space.

To rethink theories of history, iconology and collective memory, the authors of this volume discuss a variety of cases from Hong Kong, China and Europe.

Holocaust Studies

Critical Reflections

Edited by Steven T. Katz, Boston University, USA

Series: Variorum Collected Studies

The great majority of Holocaust scholarship concentrates heavily, if not almost completely, on the Final Solution from the German side. The distinctive feature of this book, both individually and as a collection, is its concentration on the Holocaust from a Judeo-centric point of view. The collection also includes an essay on Elie Wiesel, and another that explores the much discussed, very controversial issue of Jewish resistance, as well as several essays on philosophical and comparative issues raised by the Shoah.

Madness, Medicine and Miracle in Twelfth-Century England

Claire Treney

With the expanding authority of the Roman Church and the tightening of papal control over canonisation procedures in this period, historians have claimed that there was a 'rationalisation' of the miraculous. In miracle records, illnesses were explained using newly-accessible humoral theories rather than attributed to divine and demonic forces, as they had been previously.

The first book-length study of madness in medieval religion and medicine to be published since 1992, this book challenges these claims and reveals something of the limitations of the so-called 'medicalisation' of the miraculous.

James Mill's Utilitarian Logic and Politics

Antis Loizides, University of Cyprus

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern British History

James Mill remains to some extent a neglected figure in nineteenth-century intellectual histories. Yet no one questioned his role in the politics of his day. Attending to the long-established distinction between 'Logic' and 'Rhetoric', the proposed book will attempt to bring to the surface the underlying rationale of James Mill's 'deductive' way of presenting his arguments.

Material Cultures of Childhood in Second World War Britain

Gabriel Moshenska, University College London, UK

Series: Material Culture and Modern Conflict

This book draws on memory narratives to construct an historical anthropology of childhood in Second World War Britain, focusing on objects and spaces such as gas masks, air raid shelters and bombed-out buildings. In their struggles to cope with the fears and upheavals of wartime, with families divided and familiar landscapes lost or transformed, children reimagined and reshaped these material traces of conflict into toys, treasures and playgrounds. This study of the material worlds of wartime childhood offers a unique viewpoint into an extraordinary period in history with powerful resonances across global conflicts into the present day.

Local Dimensions of the Second World War in Southeastern Europe

Edited by Xavier Bougarel, Centre national de la recherche scientifique, France, Hannes Grandits, Humboldt University Berlin, Germany and Marija Vulesica, Technische Universität Berlin, Germany

Series: Mass Violence in Modern History

This book deals with the Second World War in Southeastern Europe from the perspective of conditions on the ground during the conflict. The focus is on the reshaping of ethnic and religious groups in wartime, on the 'top-down' and 'bottom-up' dynamics of mass violence, and on the local dimensions of the Holocaust. The approach breaks with the national narratives and 'top-down' political and military histories that continue to be the predominant paradigms for World War Two in this part of Europe.

Reason, Religion and the Australian Polity

A Secular State?

Stephen A. Chavura, Macquarie University, Australia, John Gascoigne and Ian Tregenza, Macquarie University, Australia
Series: Routledge Studies in Modern History

How did the concept of the secular state emerge and evolve in Australia and how has it impacted on its institutions? This is the most comprehensive study to date on the relationship between religion and the state in Australian history, focusing on the meaning of political secularity in a society that was from the beginning marked by a high degree of religious plurality. This book tracks the rise and fall of the established Church of England, the transition to plural establishments, the struggle for a public Christian-secular education system, and the eventual separation of church and state throughout the colonies.

Resistance in Colonial and Communist China, 1950-1963

Anatomy of a Riot

R. B. E. Price, Southern Cross University, Australia

Series: Routledge Focus on the History of Conflict

By focusing on the Hong Kong region, Price compares anatomies of the British colonial government, the Chinese communists and stateless members of the remnant Kuomintang (1950-1963). He asserts that after 1949 the colonial government of Hong Kong politically favoured the Kuomintang organised crime societies over their communist nationalist adversaries despite historiographical explanation that it favoured neither.

This book challenges traditional concepts of the British colonial government and its attitude towards communist China. It engages in current debates surrounding Britain's past by presenting a particularly devious episode of late colonial history.

Edited by Niels Brügger, Aarhus University, Denmark and Ditte Laursen, State Media Archive, State Library, Denmark
Series: Digital Research in the Arts and Humanities

The Historical Web and Digital Humanities fosters discussions between the Digital Humanities and web archive studies by focusing on one of the largest entities of the web, namely transnational web domains such as the British, French, or European web. With a view to investigating whether, and how, web studies and web historiography can inform and contribute to the Digital Humanities, this volume contains a number of case studies and methodological and theoretical discussions that both illustrate the potential of studying the web, in this case national web domains, and provide an insight into the challenges associated with doing so.

The Journey of Deacon Bodo from the Rhine to the Guadalquivir

Apostasy and Conversion to Judaism in Early Medieval Europe

Frank Riess

The experience of Bodo's apostasy was far from unique: other men and women who renounced Christianity for Judaism are also examined in conversion narratives recorded in the following two centuries. These episodes offer an illuminating study of religious changes taking place in Europe and the East where Christianity, Islam and Judaism competed in the ninth century and beyond. Bodo's experience can be viewed as part of a wider phenomenon depicting men and women who travelled as pilgrims, refugees or converts seeking to find a home and escape persecution because of their beliefs.

Series: Routledge Studies in Fascism and the Far Right

The aim of this book is to reconstruct the violent nature of the March on Rome and to emphasise its significance in demarcating a real break in the country's history and the beginning of the Fascist dictatorship. This aspect of the March has long been obscured: first by the Fascists' celebratory project, and then by the ironic and reductive interpretation of the event put forward by anti-Fascists.

Originally published in Italian, this book fills a notable gap in current critical discussion surrounding the March in the English language.

The Masculine Modern Woman

Pushing Boundaries in the Swedish Popular Media of the 1920s

Jenny Ingemarsdotter, Uppsala University, Sweden

Series: Routledge Research in Gender and History

This book explores how the fashionably "masculine" modern woman became one of the most visually striking and controversial symbols of modernity in the Swedish popular media of the 1920s. Drawing on rich empirical material, the analysis traces discourses on female masculinities within film, fashion, sports and literature.

The Reform of the International System of Units (SI)

Philosophical, Historical and Sociological Issues

Edited by Nadine de Courtenay, University of Paris 7 Diderot, France, Olivier Darrigol, Centre Nationale de la Recherche Scientifique, France and Oliver Schlaudt, Heidelberg University, Germany

Series: History and Philosophy of Technoscience

Systems of units still fail to attract the philosophical attention they deserve but this could change with the current reform of the International System of Units. Most of the SI base units will henceforth be based on certain laws of nature and a choice of fundamental constants whose values will be frozen. This book invites a philosophical inquiry that promises to overcome the tensions that have long obstructed science studies.

Actors and Agency (Dis)Connecting Cities and Nature Since 1500

Edited by Tim Soens, University of Antwerp, Belgium, Dieter Schott, TU Darmstadt, Germany, Michael Toyka-Seid, TU Darmstadt, Germany and Bert De Munck, University of Antwerp, Belgium

Series: Routledge Advances in Urban History

The more people are living in cities, the more nature is said to be "urbanizing": turned into a resource or commodity and mobilized over long distances. Urbanizing Nature aims to counter teleological perspectives on the birth of modern "urban nature", unravelling actors and processes urbanizing nature from 1500 till today.

Utopia and Dissent in West Germany

The Resurgence of the Politics of Everyday Life in the Long 1960s

Mia Lee, National University of Singapore

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern European History

And as artists recast politics to address culture and everyday life, they helped forge a path for the West German extraparliamentary left. Utopia and Dissent in West Germany traces these connections and presents a chronological map of the networks that fed into the extraparliamentary left as well as a geographical map of increasing radicalism as the locus of action shifted to West Berlin. These two maps show that in West Germany artists and their interventions in the structures of everyday life were a key starting point for challenging the postwar order.

The Stigmatization of Conspiracy Theory since the 1950s

"A Plot to Make us Look Foolish"

Katharina Thalmann

Series: Conspiracy Theories

This ground-breaking study challenges some of the widely shared assessments in the scholarship about a perceived mainstreaming of conspiracy theory. Providing an in-depth analysis of academic and media discourses, Katharina Thalmann is the first scholar to systematically trace the history and process of the delegitimization of conspiracy theory. By reading a wide range of conspiracist accounts about three central events in American history Thalmann shows that a veritable conspiracist subculture emerged in the 1970s as conspiracy theories were pushed out of the legitimate marketplace of ideas and conspiracy theory became a commodity.

Architectural Energetics in Archaeology

Analytical Expansions and Global Explorations

Edited by Leah McCurdy and Elliot M. Abrams

Architectural Energetics in Archaeology assembles an international array of scholars who have analyzed architecture from archaeological and historic societies using architectural energetics. It is the first such volume of its kind. In addition to applying architectural energetics to a global range of architectural works, it outlines in detail the estimates of costs that can be used in future architectural analyses. This volume will serve archaeology and classics researchers, and lecturers teaching undergraduate and graduate courses related to social power and architecture. It also will interest architects examining past construction and engineering projects.

Museum Innovation and Social Entrepreneurship

A New Model for a Challenging Era

Haitham Eid

Series: Routledge Research in Museum Studies

Museum Innovation and Social Entrepreneurship makes a contribution towards building a museum perspective of innovation that takes into consideration the unique role of museums in society. Beginning and ending with the idea of museum innovation in a wider sense, the book takes digital innovation as a particular focus. Drawing upon innovation theories from business studies and case studies from national museums in the United States and the United Kingdom, as well as numerous examples of innovative museum projects around the globe, the author unpacks, in practical terms, what it means for museums to be innovative and socially enterprising.

Classical Heritage and European Identities

The Imagined Geographies of Danish Classicism

Edited by Lærke Maria Andersen Funder, Troels Myrup Kristensen, Aarhus University, Denmark and Vinnie Nørskov, Museum of Ancient Art, Denmark

Series: Critical Heritages of Europe

Classical Heritage and European Identities focuses on how the heritages of Classical Antiquity have been used to construct European identities, and especially the concept of citizenship, in Denmark from the eighteenth century to the present day. It implements a critical historiographical perspective in line with recent work on the 'reception' of Classical Antiquity that has stressed the dialectic relationship between past, present and future.

Natural Stone and World Heritage: Salamanca (Spain)

Dolores Pereira, University of Salamanca, Faculty of Sciences, Department of Geology, Salamanca, Spain

Series: Natural Stone and World Heritage

Heritage stones are those stones that have been used for many years, even centuries, to build the historic buildings and monuments of places around the world. This book is the first to emphasize the importance and significance of natural stone in the construction of a city, Salamanca, recognized as a World Heritage Site by UNESCO since 1988. It describes the buildings, the stones (all quarried centuries ago in the surrounding area), and the stone quarries. This book will be of interest to professionals and academics in Geology, Engineering, architectural and artistic work in stone, both construction and conservation, but also to the general public.

Curatorial Challenges

Interdisciplinary Perspectives on Contemporary Curating

Edited by Malene Vest Hansen, University of Copenhagen, Denmark, Anne Folke Henningsen, University of Copenhagen, Denmark and Anne Gregersen, University of Copenhagen, Denmark

Series: Routledge Research in Art Museums and Exhibitions

Curatorial Challenges investigates the challenges faced by curators in contemporary society and explores which practices, ways of thinking, and types of knowledge production curating exhibitions could challenge. Bringing together international curators and researchers from the fields of art and cultural history, it provides new research and perspectives on the curatorial process and bridges the traditional gap between theoretical and academic museum studies and museum practices. It should be of great interest to academics, researchers, and postgraduate students engaged in the study of curatorial practice, museum studies, the making of exhibitions, museum communication, and art history.

The Emperor in the Byzantine World

Papers from the Forty-Seventh Spring Symposium of Byzantine Studies

Edited by Shaun Tougher

Series: Publications of the Society for the Promotion of Byzantine Studies

Themes covered by the contributions include: questions of dynasty and imperial families; the imperial court and the emperor's men; imperial duties and the emperor as ruler; imperial literature (the emperor as subject and author); and the material emperor, including imperial images and spaces.

The volume fills a need in the field and the market, and also brings new and cutting edge approaches to the study of the Byzantine emperor. The subject of the Byzantine emperor has also an obvious relevance for historians working on rulership in other cultures and periods.

Assemblage Thought and Archaeology

Ben Jervis

Series: Themes in Archaeology Series

Gilles Deleuze and Felix Guattari's concept of 'assemblages' allows us to explore the past in new ways, by placing an emphasis on difference rather than similarity, on unpredictability rather than reproducible models. Assemblage Thought and Archaeology applies the notion of assemblage to specific archaeological case studies, examining its implications for studying materials and urban settlements, and exploring its consequences for the practice of archaeological research and heritage management.

This book will be of particular interest to postgraduate students of archaeological theory and researchers looking to understand this latest trend in archaeological thought.

The Curation and Care of Museum Collections

Edited by Bruce A Campbell and Christian Baars, National Museum Wales, UK

Many curators find themselves in charge of some collections outside of their expert knowledge. This book aims to give curators the fundamental information and confidence they need to manage and care for all of the collections within their responsibility, regardless of their previous training and experience. The chapters cover Archaeology, Art, History, Military and Natural Sciences collections, as well as Heritage Properties. Written by experienced museum professionals, each with their own specialism, this highly practical guide is essential reading for curators working in all types of museums, galleries and heritage sites, and for students of museology courses.

Aristotle and Early Christian Thought

Mark Edwards

Series: Studies in Philosophy and Theology in Late Antiquity

Aristotle and Early Christian Thought is the first book in English to give a synoptic account of the slow appropriation of Aristotelian thought in the Christian world from the second to the sixth centuries. Concentrating on the great theological topics – creation, the soul, the Trinity and Christology – it makes full use of modern scholarship on the Peripatetic tradition after Aristotle, explaining the significance of Neoplatonism as a mediator of Aristotelian logic. This volume offers a valuable study not only for students of Christian theology in its formative years, but also for anyone seeking an introduction to the thought of Aristotle and its developments in late antiquity.

Combined Arms Warfare in Ancient Greece

From Homer to Alexander the Great and his Successors

Graham Wrightson

Series: Routledge Monographs in Classical Studies

Combined Arms Warfare in Ancient Greece examines the timelines of military developments that led from the hoplite-based armies of the ancient Greeks to the hugely successful and multi-faceted armies of Philip II, Alexander the Great, and his Successors. It concentrates on the introduction and development of individual units and their tactical coordination and use in battle in what is termed 'combined arms': the effective integration of different unit types into one cohesive battle plan and army allowing each unit to focus on its strengths without having to worry about its weaknesses.

Beyond Orality

Biblical Poetry on its Own Terms

Jacqueline Vayntrub

Series: The Ancient World

Beyond Orality: Biblical Poetry on its Own Terms changes the debate by showing how biblical poetry has worked as a mirror, reflecting each era's own self-image of verbal art. Yet Vayntrub also shows that this problem is rooted in a crucial pattern within the Bible itself: the texts we recognize as "poetry" are framed as powerful and ancient verbal performances, dramatic speeches from the past. The Bible's creators presented what we call poetry in terms of their own image of the ancient and the oral, and understanding their native theories of Hebrew verbal art gives us a new basis to rethink our own.

Power Couples in Antiquity

Transversal Perspectives

Edited by Anne Bielman Sánchez

Series: Routledge Monographs in Classical Studies

Power Couples in Antiquity brings together the reflections of ten specialists on Greek and Roman power couples from the 4th century BC to the 1st century AD. It is focused on the birth and the development of the "ruling couple" in the Hellenistic Greek kingdoms and in Rome between the end of the Republic and the beginning of the Empire. This book offers a fascinating insight into power dynamics in the ancient world, exploring not only the subtleties within these often complex relationships, but also their relationships with their subjects through the cultivation and manipulation of their joint public image.

A History of the Roman People

Celia E. Schultz, Allen M. Ward, F. M. Heichelheim and C. A. Yeo

A History of the Roman People offers students a comprehensive, up-to-date, readable introduction to the whole span of Roman history. Richly illustrated, this book takes readers through the mists of Roman prehistory and a survey of the peoples of pre-Roman Italy to a balanced, thoughtful account of the complexities of the Roman Republic, its evolution into a full-fledged Empire, and its ultimate decline. This latest edition enhances the political narrative with explorations of elements of daily life in the Roman world.

Citizen Journalism

Practices, Propaganda, Pedagogy

Melissa Wall

Series: Disruptions

Citizen Journalism explores citizen participation in the news as an evolving disruptive practice in digital journalism. The book offers an overview of the state of the field; exploring its interactions with professional journalism, production outside of traditional news structures and potential to create propaganda. Other forms of citizen participation in collecting and reporting information in non-journalism arenas are surveyed, demonstrating the capacity of large groups to collaborate to collect facts. The book highlights the importance of developing more sophisticated news literacy among citizen journalists, examining existing pedagogies and what citizen practitioners can gain from them.

Critical Encounters with Immersive Storytelling

Alke Gröppel-Wegener and Jenny Kidd, Cardiff University, UK

A uniquely interdisciplinary look at storytelling in digital, analogue and hybridised contexts, this book traces different ways stories are experienced in our contemporary mediascape. It uses an engaging range of current examples to explore interactive and immersive narratives.

This accessible and lively study will be of great interest to students and researchers of media studies, digital culture, games studies, extended reality, experience design and storytelling.

Cultural Production and the Politics of Women's Work in American Literature and Film

Polina Kroik

Series: Interdisciplinary Research in Gender

Through secretarial work and cultural production of the 20th century, this book looks at Fordism, the transition to an era of "soft" work, and women's liberation. As white-collar office work became feminized, cultural institutions gradually admitted women as assistants, editors and screenwriters, yet barred them from professional and managerial positions. The white-collar workplace was an important site of subject-formation, affirming dominant discourses through economic practices. Analyzing work by Sinclair Lewis, Dorothy West, Anita Loos, and Sylvia Plath, this work presents an alternative history of American Modernism, one that is more attuned to gendered discourses of labor and class.

Disability and Digital Television Cultures

Representation, Access, and Reception

Katie Ellis, Curtin University, Australia

Series: Routledge Research in Disability and Media Studies

Disability and Digital Television Cultures offers an important addition to scholarly studies at the intersection of disability and media, examining disability in the context of digital television access, representation and reception.

It will be essential reading for researchers working on disability and media, as well as television, communications and culture; upper-level undergraduate and postgraduate students in cultural studies; along with general readers with an interest in disability and digital culture.

East Asian Art History in a Transnational Context

Edited by Eriko Tomizawa-Kay, University of East Anglia and Toshio Watanabe, Research Centre for Transnational Art, Identity and Nation (TrAIN), The University of Arts London

Series: Routledge Research in Art History

This is the first comprehensive English-language study of East Asian art history in a transnational context, and challenges the existing geographic, temporal, and generic paradigms that currently frame the art history of East Asia. This pioneering study proposes an important new framework that focuses on the relationship between China, Japan, and Korea. By reconsidering existing concepts of 'East Asia,' and examining the porousness of boundaries in East Asian art history, the study proposes a new model for understanding trans-local artistic production – in particular the mechanics of interactions – at the turn of the twentieth century.

Film and Modern American Art

The Dialogue between Cinema and Painting

Katherine Manthorne

Series: Routledge Advances in Art and Visual Studies

Between the 1890s and the 1930s, movie going became an established feature of everyday life across America. Movies constituted an enormous visual data bank and changed the way artist and public alike interpreted images. This book explores modern painting as a response to, and an appropriation of, the aesthetic possibilities pried open by cinema from its invention until the outbreak of World War II, when both the art world and the film industry changed substantially. Artists were watching movies, filmmakers studied fine arts; the membrane between media was porous, allowing for fluid exchange.

Late Byzantium Reconsidered

The Arts of the Palaiologan Era in the Mediterranean

Edited by Andrea Mattiello and Maria Alessia Rossi

This volume offers a unique collection of essays analysing the artistic achievements of Mediterranean centres linked to the Byzantine Empire between 1261 and the decades after 1453. The comparative and interdisciplinary framework offered by this volume aims to challenge established ideas concerning the late Byzantine period such as decline, renewal, and innovation. By examining specific case studies of cultural production from within and outside Byzantium, the essays in this volume highlight the intrinsic innovative nature of the socio-cultural identities active in the late Medieval and early Modern Mediterranean vis-à-vis the rhetorical assumption of the cultural contraction of the Empire.

Masculinities and Desire

A Deleuzian Encounter

Marek Wojtaszek

Series: Interdisciplinary Research in Gender

Building upon Gilles Deleuze's argument that "The point of critique is not justification but a different way of feeling, another sensibility", this book engages with Deleuze and Guattari's theory of desire in order to explore the limits of the masculine, probing its non-dialectical and desiring potential. Illustrating its theoretical meditations with critical readings of select mainstream Hollywood pictures, the book unearths a meshwork of processes such as cruelty, schizophrenia and masochism that trigger a becoming-minoritarian of man.

Media Ethics, Free Speech, and the Requirements of Democracy

Edited by Carl Fox, University of Leeds, UK and Joe Saunders, University of Leeds, UK

Series: Routledge Research in Applied Ethics

How we understand our responsibilities as citizens in a democratic society committed to political equality is connected to the standards of our news media. This book explores the conflict between the rights that people exercise through the modern media and the responsibilities that accrue on account of its increasing power. It covers several recent events and controversial developments in the media, including Brexit, the rise of Trump, Lynton Crosby, Charlie Hebdo, dog-whistle politics, fake news, and political correctness. This much-needed philosophical treatment is a welcome addition to the recent literature in media ethics.

Melancholy Emotion in Contemporary Cinema

A Spinozian Analysis of Film Experience

Francesco Sticchi

Series: Routledge Advances in Film Studies

This book analyzes film experience through the lens of Baruch Spinoza's embodied philosophy. Parts One and Two are dedicated to a re-evaluation of contemporary cognitive and philosophical theories on the emotional and intellectual aspects of film experience. Part Three contains four case studies, films that challenge the viewer's emotional engagement since they display situations of cosmic failure and depict controversial and damaged characters: A Serious Man (2009); Melancholia (2011); The Act of Killing (2012); Only Lovers Left Alive (2013). Spinoza's philosophy allows us to appreciate and master sad passions and, at the same time, to show the conceptual power of film experience.

Play and the Artist's Creative Process

The Work of Philip Guston and Eduardo Paolozzi

Elly Thomas, Independent scholar

Series: Routledge Advances in Art and Visual Studies

Play and the Artist's Creative Process explores a continuity between childhood play and adult creativity. The volume examines how an understanding of play can shed new light on processes that recur in the work of Philip Guston and Eduardo Paolozzi. Both artists' distinctive engagement with popular culture is seen as connected to the play materials available in the landscapes of their individual childhoods. Animating or toying with material to produce the unforeseen outcome is explored as the central force at work in the artists' processes. By engaging with a range of play theories, the book shows how the artists' studio methods can be understood in terms of game strategies.

René Magritte and the Art of Thinking

Lisa Lipinski, The George Washington University

Series: Routledge Research in Art History

For René Magritte, painting was a form of thinking. Through paintings of ordinary objects rendered with illusionism, Magritte probed the limits of our perception—what we see and cannot see, the nature of representation—as a philosophical system for presenting ideas, and perspective as a method of visual argumentation. This book makes the claim that Magritte's painting is about vision and the act of viewing, of perception itself, and the process of how we see and experience things in the world, including paintings as things.

Socially Engaged Art in Contemporary China

Voices from Below

Meiqin Wang, California State University Northridge, USA
Series: Routledge Research in Art and Politics

This book provides an in-depth and thematic analysis of socially engaged art in Mainland China, exploring its critical responses to and creative interventions in China's top-down, pro-urban, and profit-oriented socioeconomic transformations. It focuses on the socially conscious practices of eight art professionals who assume the role of artist, critic, curator, educator, cultural entrepreneur, social activist, among others, as they strive to expose the injustice and inequality many Chinese people have suffered, raise public awareness of pressing social and environmental problems, and invent new ways and infrastructures to support various underprivileged social groups.

The Long Lives of Medieval Art and Architecture

Edited by Jennifer M. Feltman and Sarah Thompson
Series: AVISTA Studies in the History of Medieval Technology, Science and Art

Traditional histories of medieval art and architecture often privilege the moment of a work's creation, yet surviving works designated as "medieval" have long and expansive lives. Inspired by the literary category of biography and the methods of longue durée historians, the introduction and seventeen chapters of this volume provide an extended meditation on the longevity of medieval works and the aspect of time as a factor in shaping our interpretations of them.

Tech Giants, Artificial Intelligence, and the Future of Journalism (Open Access)

Jason Paul Whittaker, University of Lincoln, UK
Series: Routledge Research in Journalism

This book examines the impact of the so-called Big Five technology companies – Apple, Alphabet/Google, Amazon, Facebook and Microsoft – on the media landscape more generally and journalism in particular. It looks at the current role of algorithms and artificial intelligence in curating how we consume media and their increasing influence on the production of the news. The book considers what happens to journalism once it is produced and enters the media ecosystems of these tech giants – and the impact of social media and AI on such things as fake news in the post-truth age.

The Role of Female Combatants in the Nicaraguan Revolution and Counter Revolutionary War

Martín Meráz García, Martha L. Cottam and Bruno M. Baltodano

Series: Focus on Global Gender and Sexuality

This is a study of female participants in the revolution and counter-revolution in Nicaragua from the 1960's to the end of the 1980's. The revolution had an extraordinary number of female combatants, with women making up a possible quarter of the total force. Unlike other approaches to revolution and women's participation, the theoretical framework used in this study of the Sandinista women is based in political psychology. Specifically, the variables focussed on are identities (ethnic, racial, and national) stereotypes and images. The authors also examine if there any identifiable gender-based differences between the men and women who joined the revolution and the Contra war that followed.

The Danish Avant-Garde and World War II

The Helhesten Collective

Kerry Greaves, University of Copenhagen
Series: Routledge Research in Art and Politics

This is the first book to focus on Helhesten (The Hell-Horse), an avant-garde artists' collective active during the Nazi occupation of Denmark and one of the few tangible connections between radical European art groups from the 1920s to the 1960s. The Danes' deliberately unskilled painterly abstraction, embrace of the tradition of dansk folkelighed (the popular) and its iterations of egalitarianism and consensus reform, called for the political relevance of art and interrogated the ideologies underlying culture itself. The group's cultural activism presents an alternative trajectory of continuity, which challenges the customary view of World War II as a moment of artistic rupture.

The Routledge Companion to New Cinema History

Edited by Daniel Biltereyst, Richard Maltby, Flinders University, Australia and Philippe Meers, Antwerp Universiteit, Belgium

Series: Routledge Media and Cultural Studies Companions
he Routledge Companion to New Cinema History is conceived as a showcase of, as well as a reflection upon, recently emerging trends in investigating the history of cinema as a significant social and cultural institution. In its assessment of the wider historical conditions of the cinematic experience, the Companion argues that, alongside the study of film production, distribution and exhibition, a more serious understanding and specific research on film exhibition and reception are required. It brings

The Twitter Presidency

Donald J. Trump and the Politics of White Rage

Edited by Brian L. Ott, Texas Tech University, USA and Greg Dickinson, Colorado State University, USA

Series: NCA Focus on Communication Studies

The Twitter Presidency explores the distinctive rhetorical style of President Donald J. Trump, attending to both his general manner of speaking and his preferred modality of speaking. The authors argue that there is a structural homology between Trump's general communication behavior and the specific platform (Twitter) he uses to communicate with his base. In addition to charting the defining characteristics of Trump's discourse, the book explores how Trump's rhetorical style has bearing on democratic norms, principles, and institutions.

Basic Cinematography

A Creative Guide to Visual Storytelling

Edited by Kurt Lancaster, Digital filmmaker, Multimedia producer, Northern Arizona University, USA

The cinematographer must translate the ideas and emotions contained in a script into something that can be physically seen and felt onscreen, helping the director to fulfil the vision of the film. The shots may look good, but they will not serve the story until the composition, lenses, and lighting express, enhance, and reveal the underlying emotions and subtext of the story. Rather than delve into technical training, Basic Cinematography helps to train the eye and heart of cinematographers as visual storytellers, providing them with a strong foundation for their work, so that they're ready with creative ideas and choices on set in order to make compelling images that support the story.

Race/Gender/Class/Media

Considering Diversity Across Audiences, Content, and Producers

Edited by Rebecca Ann Lind, University of Illinois at Chicago, USA

This fourth edition of Race/Gender/Class/Media considers diversity in the mass media in three main settings: Audiences, Content, and Production. It brings together 53 readings – most are newly commissioned for this edition – by scholars representing a variety of social science and humanities disciplines. Together, these readings provide a multifaceted and often intersectional look at how race, gender, and class relate to the creation and use of media texts as well as the media texts themselves. This volume is an essential introduction to interdisciplinary studies of gender, race, and class across mass

Soft Skills for the New Journalist

Cultivating the Inner Resources You Need to Succeed

Colleen Steffen

Journalism is people managing, wrestling truth and story out of the messy, confusing raw material that is a human being, and the messiest human involved can often be the reporter themselves. It's time to talk about it. Instead of nervously skirting the sizable EQ (emotional intelligence) portion of this IQ (intelligence intelligence) enterprise, Soft Skills for the New Journalist explores how it FEELS to do this strange, hard, amazing job—and how to use those feelings to better your work and yourself.

The Development of Advanced Runtime Sound Systems for Games and Extended Reality

Simon N Goodwin

Series: Audio Engineering Society Presents

Written by an expert, this book is a rigorous, comprehensive guide to interactive audio runtime systems. Packed with practical examples and insights, the book explains each component of these complex geometries of sound. Using practical, lowest-common-denominator techniques, it covers soundfield creation across a range of platforms from phones through to VR gaming consoles. Whether creating an audio system from scratch or building on existing frameworks, the book also explains costs, benefits, and priorities. Interactive audio in the dynamic simulated world of games is becoming almost as complicated as the real world of sound. This book will explain how and why to tame it enjoyably.

Black Feminism in Qualitative Inquiry

A Mosaic for Writing Our Daughter's Body

Venus E. Evans-Winters, Illinois State University, USA

Series: Futures of Data Analysis in Qualitative Research

This book foregrounds the participation and voices of Black women in qualitative inquiry, both as researcher and research subject, looking particularly at the processes of data collection and analysis. The book questions the ostensible innocence of qualitative inquiry as a space for Black identity and for representations of human experiences and identities. The author blurs the boundaries between research, theory, and practice, centering her experiences as a Black woman scholar interested in the education and other social experiences of Black girls and women.

Ethical Reporting of Sensitive Topics

Edited by Ann Luce

Reporting on sensitive issues such as suicide, sexual abuse or migration is a skill that is often glossed over in a journalist's education. This book will correct this oversight and help journalists to cover such stories in a responsible and ethical manner. A diverse set of contributors ground each chapter in research alongside case studies and best practice guidelines. Covering these events can also have a significant impact on journalists which the book addresses by discussing self-care and laying out a roadmap for journalists moving into the middle stages of their career and beyond.

Journalism, Gender and Power

Edited by Cynthia Carter, Linda Steiner and Stuart Allan

Journalism, Gender and Power revisits key themes explored in the 1998 book News, Gender and Power, updating and expanding upon the original publication's approach to cover issues of gender and power across the breadth of the contemporary mediascape. This new volume presents a range of new critical voices to provide a more global perspective on technological developments in traditional and new media. Contributors chart the impact of emerging protest movements and explore gender and power in the reporting of broader social issues. Areas include immigration, sex trafficking and cyberfeminism in a range of cultural settings, including in Arabic, Chinese and Muslim contexts.

Neoliberalism and the Media

Edited by Marian Meyers

Covering a wide range of media and genres, and adopting a variety of qualitative textual methodologies and theoretical frameworks, the chapters examine diverse topics, from news coverage of the 2016 U.S. presidential election to "kitchen porn." The book also takes an intersectional approach, as contributors explore how gender, race, class and other aspects of social identity are inextricably tied to each other within media representation. At once innovative and distinctive in its illustration of how the media is complicit in perpetuating neoliberal ideology, this book offers students and scholars alike an incisive portrait of the intersection between media and ideology today.

Producing Masculinity

The Internet, Gender, and Sexuality

Michele White, Tulane University, USA

In this book Michele White explores the ways normative masculinity is associated with computers and the Internet and is a commonly enacted online gender practice. Through close readings and a series of case studies that range from wedding forums to men's makeup video tutorials, White considers the ways masculinities are structured through people's collaborations and contestations over the establishment of empowered positions, including debates about such key terms and positions as "the nice guy," "nerd," "bro," and "groom." A counterpart to her earlier book, Producing Women, White has crafted an excellent primer for scholars of gender, media, and Internet studies.

Producing Music

Edited by Russ Hepworth-Sawyer, Mastering Engineer (MOTTOsound), Producer, Consultant, Senior Lecturer - York St John University, UK, Jay Hodgson, Mastering Engineer (MOTTOsound) and Professor at Western University, Ontario, Canada and Mark Marrington, York St John University, UK
Series: Perspectives on Music Production

During the last two decades, the field of music production has attracted considerable interest from the academic community, more recently becoming established as an important and flourishing research discipline in its own right. This book presents cutting edge research across topics that both strengthen and broaden the range of the discipline as it currently stands.

Focusing on areas such as genre, technology, concepts and contexts of production, Hepworth-Sawyer, Hodgson and Marrington have compiled key research from practitioners and academics to present a comprehensive view of how music production has established itself and changed over the years.

Radical Utopianism and Cultural Studies

On Refusing to be Realistic

John Storey

Utopian Desire: A Cultural Studies Approach explores the concept of utopianism from the trans-disciplinary perspective of cultural studies. Utopianism is not something new to the field yet the concept has tended to disappear from the mainstream of cultural studies. In this book, John Storey presents an accessible and engaging critical analysis of a range of theoretical approaches to the study of utopia and, in doing so, reintroduces the concept of utopianism into cultural studies as an important and interesting object of study.

Secrets of Screen Directing

The Tricks of the Trade

Patrick Tucker, The Original Shakespeare Company, London, UK

Secrets of Screen Directing: The Tricks of the Trade is a practical guide which bridges the gap between classroom learning and the realities of being on a set. Patrick Tucker uses insights and techniques gained from over 40 years of directing to open up the craft of effectively telling stories, exploring the reality of a directing career with practical day to day solutions and problem-solving methods, including over 200 illustrations, diagrams, and floor plans. This is an ideal resource for filmmaking students and early career directors to refer to when encountering a problem, as well as all those screen enthusiasts, actors and writers, who want to know what directors actually do.

The Advanced Game Narrative Toolbox

Tobias Heussner, Game Content/Narrative Designer

The Advanced Game Narrative Toolbox continues where the Game Narrative Toolbox ended. While the later covered the basics of writing for games, the Advanced Game Narrative Toolbox will cover techniques for the intermediate and professional writer. The book will cover topics such as how to adapt a novel to a game, how to revive IPs and how to construct transmedia worlds. Each chapter will be written by a professional with exceptional experience in the field of the chapter.

The Sound System Design Primer

Josh Loar

The Sound System Design Primer is an introduction to the many topics, technologies, and sub-disciplines that make up contemporary sound systems design. Written in clear, conversational language for those who do not have an engineering background, or who think more in language than in numbers, The Primer provides a solid foundation in this expanding discipline for students, early-/mid-career systems designers, creative/content designers seeking a better grasp on the technical side of things, and non-sound professionals who want/need to be able to speak intelligently with sound system designers.

Climate and Crises

Magical Realism as Environmental Discourse

Ben Holgate

Series: Routledge Studies in World Literatures and the Environment

Climate and Crises: Magical Realism as Environmental Discourse makes a dual intervention in both world literature and ecocriticism by examining magical realism as an international style of writing that has long-standing links with environmental literature. Magical realism enables writers to portray alternative intellectual paradigms, ontologies and epistemologies that typically contest the scientific rationalism derived from the European Enlightenment, and the exploitation of natural resources associated with both capitalism and imperialism.

Climate and Crises explores the overlaps between magical realism and environmental literature.

Literary Circles and Gender in Early Modern Europe

A Cross-Cultural Approach

Julie Campbell

A comparative analysis, this study examines the interactions of early modern male and female writers within the context of literary circles. In particular, Campbell examines how the querelle des femmes as a discursive rhetorical tradition of praise and blame influenced perceptions of well-educated women who were part of literary circles in Italy, France, and England from approximately 1530 to 1650. To gain a better sense of how querelle language and issues were used for or against learned women writers, Campbell aligns selected works by female and male writers, pairing them to analyze how the woman writer responds, deflects, or rewrites the male writer's ideological script on women

Dickens, Nicholas Nickleby, and the Dance of Death

Jeremy Tambling

Series: Routledge Studies in Nineteenth Century Literature

This study of Nicholas Nickleby takes the Dickens novel which is perhaps the least critically discussed, though it is very popular, and examines its appeal and its significance, and finds it one of the most rewarding and powerful of Dickens's texts. Dickens, Nicholas Nickleby, and the Dance of Death explores ways in which Dickens draws on medieval and baroque traditions in how he analyses death and its grotesquerie, especially drawing on the visual tradition of the 'dance of death' which is referred to here and which is prevalent throughout Dickens's novels. This book is a major study which will help in the reevaluation of Dickens's early novels.

Ecocriticism and the Poiesis of Form

Holding on to Proteus

Aaron M. Moe

Series: Routledge Studies in World Literatures and the Environment

Ecocriticism and the Poiesis of Form: Holding on to Proteus demonstrates how a fractal imagination helps one hold the form of a poem within the reaches of Deep Time, and it explores the kinship between the hazy, liminal moment when Sound becomes Syllable and the hazy, liminal moment when the sage energy of the Atom made a leap toward the gaze of the first cell, to echo Merwin. The volume foregrounds the insights of poets/storytellers including Hillman, Snyder, Anzaldúa, EEC, okpik, Whitman, Dickinson, Gladding, Melville, Morrison, and Toomer, for they are most attentive to that liminal moment when the vibratory hum in language, and in the cosmos, turns kinetic.

Lucas Malet, Dissident Pilgrim

Critical Essays

Edited by Jane Ford and Alexandra Gray

Series: Among the Victorians and Modernists

Popular novelist, female aesthete, Victorian radical and proto-modernist, Lucas Malet was one of the most successful writers of her day, yet few of her remarkable novels remain in print. This collection brings together for the first time a selection of scholarly essays on Malet's life and writing, foregrounding her contributions to nineteenth- and twentieth-century discourses surrounding disability, psychology, religion, sexuality, the New Woman, and decadent, aesthetic and modernist cultural movements. The collection asks the question 'who was Lucas Malet?' and 'how—despite its popularity—did her courageous, unique and fascinating writing disappear from view for so long?'

Moral Cupidity and Lettres de cachet in Diderot's Writing

Jennifer Vanderheyden

Series: Routledge Studies in Eighteenth-Century Literature

This volume explores the influence of the lettre de cachet on both Diderot's personal life and his works, beginning with an examination of Diderot's experience as recipient of two such arrest warrants, followed by an analysis of his references to these warrants in three of his fictional works, Le Père de famille, Jacques le fataliste and Est-il bon? Est-il méchant?. The exploration of a fascinating real-life case of Henriette-Émilie de Bautre, a young comtesse whose mother confined her to a convent as a result of a lettre de cachet also based on motives of greed, leads to an examination of the similarities between Suzanne and the Comtesse in terms of their illegitimacy.

Religious Devotion and the Poetics of Reform

Love and Liberation in Malayalam Poetry

George Pati, Valparaiso University, USA

This book, through a close study of Nalini (1911), a Malayalam lyric poem, as well as other poems, authored by Mahākavi Kumāran Āśān (1873–1924), a low-caste Kerala poet, demonstrates how Āśān employed a theme of love among humans during the modern period in Kerala that was grounded in the native South Indian bhakti understanding of love of the deity. Āśān believed that personal religious freedom comes from devotion to the deity, and that love for humans must emanate from love of the deity. In showing how devotional religious expression also served as a resistance movement, this study provides new perspective on an understudied area of the colonial period.

Mythologies of Internal Exile in Elizabethan Verse

Six Studies

Series: Routledge Studies in Renaissance Literature and Culture

This volume considers internal exile as a simultaneously twofold experience. It studies estrangement from one's society and, correlatively, from one's normative sense of self. In doing so, it focuses initially on the sonnet sequences by Sidney, Spenser, and Shakespeare (which is to say, the problematics of romance); then it examines the verse satires of Donne, Hall, and Marston (likewise, the problematics of anti-romance). This book argues that the authors of these major texts create mythologies—via the myths of (and accumulated mythographies about) Cupid, satyrs, and Proteus—through which to reflect on the doubleness of exile within one's own community.

Roads, Mobility, and Violence in Indigenous Literature and Art from North America

Deena Rymhs

Series: Routledge Studies in World Literatures and the Environment

Roads, Mobility, and Violence in Indigenous Literature and Art from North America explores mobility, spatialized violence, and geographies of activism in a diverse archive of literary and visual art by Indigenous authors and artists. For many Indigenous communities, the road has not often been so open. Recent Indigenous writing and visual art explores this tension between mobility and confinement. Drawing primarily on the work of Marie Clements, Tomson Highway, Marilyn Dumont, Leanne Simpson, Richard Van Camp, Kent Monkman, and Louise Erdrich, this volume examines histories of uprooting and violence

Narrative Reliability, Racial Conflicts and Ideology in the Modern Novel

Marta Puxan-Oliva

Series: Literary Criticism and Cultural Theory

How does racial ideology contribute to the exploration of narrative voice? How does narrative reliability help in the production and critique of racial ideologies? Through a refreshing analysis of well-established novels by Joseph Conrad, William Faulkner, James Weldon Johnson, Albert Camus and Alejo Carpentier, this book explores the racial politics of literary form from a comparative perspective. Narrative Reliability, Racial Conflicts and Ideology in the Modern Novel contributes to the emergent effort of revealing the need of literary studies to pay attention to the interrelation of form and politics, which has been underexplored in narrative theory and comparative racial studies.

Edited by Scott Slovic, University of Idaho, USA, Swarnalatha Rangarajan, Indian Institute of Technology Madras and Vidya Sarveswaran

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

Ecocriticism and environmental communication studies have for many years co-existed as parallel disciplines, occasionally crossing paths but typically operating in separate academic spheres. These fields are now rapidly converging, and this handbook aims to reinforce the common concerns and methodologies of the sibling disciplines. It will be an essential reference for teachers, students, and practitioners of environmental literature, film, journalism, communication, and rhetoric as well as the broader meta-discipline of environmental humanities.

Shakespeare's Props

Memory and Cognition

Sophie Duncan, Magdalen College, Oxford University

Series: Routledge Studies in Shakespeare

The cognitive turn in performance studies has given us dynamic new paradigms for understanding playwriting, acting and spectatorship in Shakespeare's theatre. In cognitive science, debates on the location and constitution of thought are intensifying; since 2013, scrutiny has fallen on extended cognition, which hypothesizes that "beyond-the-skull-and-skin" objects (Wheeler 2013) collaborate in cognition with neural and non-neural bodily processes. Shakespeare's Props: Memory and Cognition, is the first book to fully explore how Shakespeare and his playwrighting contemporaries went beyond-the-skull-and-skin to experiment with ideas of extended cognition through theatre props.

Engagements with Shakespearean Drama

William Walker

Series: Routledge Engagements with Literature

Rather than treating the plays as objects to be studied, described and interpreted, Engagements with Shakespeare examines precisely what about Shakespeare's plays is so special. This book argues that what makes the plays great is that they encourage a wide range of intense, pleasurable and valuable experiences. This highly personal approach allows students to take their own responses seriously as grounds for assessing their success and quality. The book also engages with the essential criticism of the plays from Shakespeare's time to our own, equipping students to engage in contemporary debates about the nature and achievement of Shakespearean drama.

Bilingual Parent Participation in a Divided School Community

Julia Menard-Warwick, University of California, Davis, USA Series: Routledge Critical Studies in Multilingualism

This volume theorizes parent participation in a bilingual school community in California, unpacking broader issues around language ideologies, language and power, and parent collaboration in diverse educational contexts. Highlighting data from a two-year ethnographic study of the school community, the book grounds this discussion in theories of discourse and bilingualism, with a focus on translanguaging and translanguaging practice. The volume points to a range of challenges and questions posed by the parents' efforts to unite as a single school community, including linguistic inequality, cultural divides, and differing implicit beliefs on language.

Modern Chinese Parts of Speech

Classification Theory

Guo Rui

Series: Chinese Linguistics

Based on the analysis and research on nearly 40,000 Chinese characters, this book studies the dividing of Chinese parts of speech comprehensively. To begin with, it examines the elemental issues relating to dividing parts of speech, including word parsing, word identity and the internal hierarchies of modern Chinese. Then the relevant theoretical issues are examined. Specifically, it discusses the nature of parts of speech, the criteria for dividing, how to divide according to distribution, etc.

Discourses of Identity in Liminal Places and Spaces

Edited by Roberta Piazza

Series: Routledge Studies in Sociolinguistics

This collection highlights the interplay between language and liminal places and spaces in building distinct narratives of selfhood. The book uses an interdisciplinary approach to examine linguistic and social phenomena in places shaped by displacement and social inequality. The book also looks at chronotopes, the Bakhtinian-inspired concept of the interconnectedness of time and space in identity. The volume demonstrates how studying liminal places and spaces can offer unique insights into how people construct language and selfhood in these spaces, making this key reading for researchers in sociolinguistics, discourse analysis, geography, and linguistic anthropology.

English for Research Publication Purposes

Critical Plurilingual Pedagogies

Karen Englander and James N. Corcoran

Series: Routledge Research in English for Specific Purposes

Increasing attention has been paid recently to multilingual non-native English-speaking scholars who compete in the global production and dissemination of academic knowledge in a market dominated by English. English for Research Publication Purposes analyses the experiences and practices of these scholars using a major Mexican university as a context for this study and focuses on critical pragmatism as a paradigm for course development and assessment. Incisive and cutting-edge, this book raises new avenues of research into the issues surrounding this topic.

Language, Gender, and Sexuality

An Introduction

Series: Routledge Guides to Linguistics

This textbook provides a concise and lively introduction to language, gender and sexuality. Drawing on an international range of examples, this book addresses this topic through three key questions of: how language categorizes the gender/sexuality world; how gender/sexuality is displayed and affects conversations and other interactions; and how and why people display different ways of speaking based on their gender/sexual identities. Aimed at students with no background in linguistics and featuring suggestions for further reading, study questions, and projects, this book is essential reading for anyone studying language, gender and sexuality for the first time.

Academics Writing

The Dynamics of Knowledge Creation

Karin Tusting, Sharon McCulloch, Ibrar Bhatt, Mary Hamilton and David Barton

This book recounts how academic writing is changing in the contemporary university, transforming what it means to be an academic and how, as a society, we produce academic knowledge. Writing practices are changing as the academic profession itself is reconfigured through new forms of governance and accountability, increasing use of digital resources, and the internationalization of higher education. Accounts of academics' professional writing for research, teaching, administration and impact act as 'telling cases' of academic life illustrating broader themes. Key reading for all studying and researching writing and academic support and development within education and applied linguistics.

Millennial Teacher Identity Discourses

Balancing Self and Other

Janet Alsup

Ten years after the original edition of Teacher Identity Discourses, Janet Alsup revisits her work with a new research study examining the characteristics of the millennial teachers now beginning to populate K-12 classrooms. Like the first edition, this text is based on a qualitative, interview-based research study, and provides a contemporary look at how millennial teachers experience professional identity growth through language use. The research investigates how formation of a professional identity is central in the process of becoming an effective teacher and provides practical suggestions and sample assignments for teacher educators to use or adapt in methods courses.

Translating Chinese Art and Modern Literature

Yifeng Sun, Lingnan University, Hong Kong and Chris Song

Series: Routledge Studies in Chinese Translation

The book examines issues in cross-cultural dialogue in connection with translation and modern Chinese art and literature from interdisciplinary perspectives. This comprises the text-image dialogue in the context of Chinese modernity, and cross-cultural interaction between modern literature in Chinese and other literatures. This edited collection approaches these issues with discrete foci and approaches, and the ten chapters in this volume are to be divided into two distinct parts. The first part highlights the mutual effects between literary texts and visual images in the media of book, painting, and film, and the second part includes contributions by scholars of literary translation.

Demonstratives and Grammaticalization

A Perspective from Modern Turkish

Metin Balpınar

Demonstratives and Grammaticalization offers an in-depth analysis of the demonstrative system in Turkish. It provides the first comprehensive analysis dealing with both the synchronic variations in Turkish demonstratives and their grammatical changes. It sheds light on the syntactic, semantic and pragmatic properties of the demonstratives, systematically describes the various usages of these forms, and provides a unified explanation for the various accounts of their distribution. While the focus is on Turkish, this analysis contributes to our understanding of how a demonstrative system operates in a language with a three-way distinction.

Teaching Chinese as a Second Language

The Way of the Learner

Jane Orton and Andrew Scrimgeour

Series: ESL & Applied Linguistics Professional Series

Grounded in analysis of Chinese and international educational concepts and classroom techniques currently used to teach Chinese as a Second Language, and a thorough review of recent research in the field, this volume identifies the learning challenges of the language for native English speakers. Orton and Scrimgeour assess the gap in knowledge and skills between learners' initial and future proficiency levels as L2 Chinese speakers, map their needs as learners towards achieving a high language proficiency, and set out an informed, integrated teaching orientation and practice for the Chinese classroom that responds to those needs.

Migration in Performance

Crossing the Colonial Present

Caleb Johnston and Geraldine Pratt

Series: Routledge Research in Place, Space and Politics

This book explores the use of creative practices, in particular, theatre, as a platform for enabling new research methodologies and spaces in which to practice politics. It offers insights into the use of theatre as a medium to disseminate research to the wider public and extend the terrain of political debate in productive ways. The book explores debates within transnational feminism and transnational justice to offer new perspectives on affect and performance. It also engages with theory on the liveliness of material objects as actors in networks of knowledge production.

The Ritual Theatre of Theodoros Terzopoulos

Freddy Decreus

The Ritual Theatre of Theodoros Terzopoulos outlines the story of the Athenian based Attis Theatre and the way its founder and director, Theodoros Terzopoulos, introduced bio-energetic presences of the body on the stage, in an attempt to redefine and reappraise what it means today not only to have a body, but to fully be a body.

Terzopoulos created a very specific attitude towards life and death, and it is this broad perspective on energy and consciousness that makes his work so appealing.

Freddy Decreus' study charts the career of Greece's most acclaimed theatre director and provides a spiritual and philosophic answer in times where former Western metanarratives have failed.

The Routledge Companion to Theatre and Politics

Edited by Peter Eckersall and Helena Grehan

Series: Routledge Companions

The Routledge Companion to Theatre and Politics is a volume of critical essays, provocations, and interventions on the most important questions faced by today's writers, critics, audiences, theatre and performance makers. Featuring texts written by scholars and artists who are diversely situated, its multiple perspectives broadly address the question "How can we be political now?". Suitable for academics, performance makers, and students, this Companion explores questions of how to be political in the early twenty-first century, by exploring how theatre and performance might provoke, unsettle, reinforce, or productively destabilise the status quo.

Stage Lighting Second Edition

The Fundamentals

Richard E. Dunham

Stage Lighting: The Fundamentals is written specifically for introductory stage lighting courses. The book begins with an examination of the nature of light, perception, and color, then leads into a conversation of stage lighting equipment and technicians. Lamps, luminaries, controls/dimming, and electricity form the basis of these chapters. It also provides a detailed explanation of the lighting design process for the theatre and other traditional forms of entertainment. Finally, the book explores a variety of additional areas where lighting designers can find related future employment, from concert and corporate lighting to themed design and computer animation.

What is Scenography?

Pamela Howard

The third edition of Pamela Howard's What is Scenography? expands on the author's holistic analysis of scenography as comprising space, text, research, art, performers, directors and spectators, to examine the changing nature of scenography in the twenty-first century. The book includes new investigations of recent production projects from Howard's celebrated career, including Carmen and Charlotte: A Tri-Coloured Play with Music, full color illustrations of her recent work, and updated commentary from a wide spectrum of contemporary theatre makers. This book is suitable for students in Scenography and Theatre Design courses, along with professional theatrical designers.

Georg Büchner's Woyzeck

Karoline Gritzner

Series: The Fourth Wall

Georg Büchner's Woyzeck was left unfinished at the time of its author's death in 1837, but the play is now widely recognised as the first 'modern' drama in the history of European theatre. Its fragmentary form and critical socio-political content have had a lasting influence on artists, readers, and audiences to this day.

In this fresh engagement with a modern classic, Gritzner examines the revolutionary dimensions of Büchner's political and creative practice, as well as modern approaches to the play in performance.

Men's Tailoring

Bespoke, Theatrical and Historical Tailoring 1830-1950

Graham Cottenden

Men's Tailoring: Bespoke, Theatrical and Historical Tailoring 1830-1950 introduces the reader to English tailoring and covers the drafting of patterns, cutting out in cloth, and the complete traditional construction techniques in sequence for the tailoring of a waistcoat, trousers and jacket. It also includes drafting blocks and construction techniques for the main three styles of 19th century male garments: frock coat, morning coat and dress coat. From choosing the right cloth to preparing for the fitting process, this how-to guide will help readers create beautiful, historically accurate three-piece suits for events and performances.

Stage Performance for Singers

A Practical Course in 12 Basic Steps

Martin Karnolsky

This text provides 12 basic steps that singers should take for successful stage performance. The outlined approach is the result of the author's 20 years' experience in stage performance training and education, and the careful analysis of various singers' performances. The book brings these conclusions together in an organized and systematic way to provide singers with practical guidance to support effective stage performance. The core principle is effective communication with the audience, and the book provides a methodical study and an explanation of how to put this into action.

Time and Performer Training

Edited by Mark Evans, Konstantinos Thomaidis, Exeter University, UK and Libby Worth, Royal Holloway, University of London, UK

Time and Performer Training addresses the importance and centrality of time and temporality to the practices, processes, and conceptual thinking of performer training. This book offers innovative ways of integrating research into studio practices. It also steps out beyond the more traditional places of training to open up time in relation to contested training practices that take place online, in festival spaces, and in folk or amateur practices. Featuring contributions from an international range of authors who draw on their backgrounds as artists, scholars, and teachers, Time and Performer Training is a major step in our understanding of how time affects the preparation for performance.

Women and Puppetry

Critical and Historical Investigations

Edited by Alissa Mello, Claudia Orenstein and Cariad Astles

Representing female writers and practitioners from across the globe, Women and Puppetry offers students and scholars a comprehensive interrogation of the challenges and opportunities that women face in a unique art form. Part I includes historical and contemporary analyses of women's roles in society, gender anxiety revealed through the unmarked puppet body, and sexual expression within oppressive social contexts. Part II investigates work of female practitioners within specific cultural contexts to illuminate how women are intervening in traditionally male spaces. And in Part III, contemporary artists reflect on their experiences as female practitioners within the art of puppet theatre.

Double Lives: Film Composers in the Concert Hall

Edited by James Wierzbicki, University of Sydney, Australia Series: Routledge Research in Music

Double Lives: Film Composers in the Concert Hall is a collection of fifteen essays dealing with 'iconic' film composers who, perhaps surprisingly, maintained life-long careers as composers for the concert hall. Progressing in a chronological order, the chapters begin with a concise summary of the chosen composer's film work, followed by an account of their concert-hall career and a description of their concert-hall style. Each chapter concludes with a comparison between the composer's music for films and their music for the concert hall, with speculation as to how music in one arena might have affected music in the other. A complete works list is provided as an e-resource.

Heavy Metal at the Movies

Edited by Gerd Bayer, University of Erlangen, Germany Series: Ashgate Screen Music Series

The chapters collected in this volume shed light on the areas of interaction between film studies and heavy metal research, exploring how the audio-visual medium of film relates to, builds on, and shapes metal culture. At one end of the spectrum, metal music serves as a form of ambient background in horror films that create an intense and somewhat threatening atmosphere; at the other end, the high level of performativity attached to the metal spectacle is emphasized. Alongside these tendencies, the recent and ongoing wave of metal documentaries has taken off, relying on either satire or hagiography.

English Dramatick Opera, 1661–1706

Andrew R. Walking, Binghamton University, USA

Series: Ashgate Interdisciplinary Studies in Opera

English Dramatick Opera, 1661–1706 is the first comprehensive examination of the distinctively English form known as "dramatick opera", which appeared on the London stage in the mid-1670s and lasted until its displacement by Italian through-composed opera in the first decade of the eighteenth century. Andrew Walking argues that, while the musical elements of this form are crucial to its definition and history, the origins of the genre lie principally in a tradition of spectacular stagecraft that first manifested itself in England in the mid-1660s as part of a hitherto unidentified dramatic sub-genre to which Walking gives the name "spectacle-tragedy".

Critical Perspectives on Michael Finnissey

Bright Futures, Dark Past

Edited by Ian Pace and Nigel McBride

Series: Ashgate Studies in Theory and Analysis of Music After 1900

Critical Perspectives on Michael Finnissey covers a wide range of topics pertinent to the critical reception and analysis of Finnissey's practices, including: the connection between his works and cinema; performance practices; political contexts and pre-texts; his influence as a performer of experimental music; philosophical approaches to understanding his notation, and his influence as a teacher and professor of composition, amongst others. This important volume brings together the diverse range of approaches taken in understanding Finnissey's work, while also addressing the evolution of Finnissey's aesthetics and works since the last major survey of his music.

Laura K. T. Stokes, Brown University, USA

Series: Routledge Music Bibliographies

Fanny Hensel: A Research and Information Guide provides scholars in Hensel studies with a resource to navigate the research surrounding the composer's over 450 musical works. As part of the larger blossoming of women's music history, new research in the 1980s and '90s promoted an awareness of Hensel's output, in particular in the genres of the Lied and the solo piano work. This research guide includes an introductory chapter, a summary paragraph at the beginning of each chapter, and annotations for more than 500 entries, focusing on scholarly works as well as selected articles from trade publications, catalogs, and Internet resources.

Status Quo: Mighty Innovators of 70s Rock

Andrew L. Cope

Series: Ashgate Popular and Folk Music Series

Status Quo was one of the most successful, influential and innovative bands of the 1970s. They wrote, recorded and performed inventive and highly complex rock compositions, developed 12 bar forms and techniques in new and fascinating ways, and affected important musical and cultural trends. Despite global success, they were maligned by the UK music press and shunned by the superstar DJs of the era who refused to promote their music. Status Quo remains one of the most underrated bands in the history of popular music. Cope redresses that misconception through detailed study of the band's music and performances, related musical and cultural sub-topics and interviews with key band members.

The History of Live Music in Britain, Volume II, 1968-1984

From Hyde Park to the Hacienda

Simon Frith, Matt Brennan, Martin Cloonan and Emma Webster

Series: Ashgate Popular and Folk Music Series

There has been a significant gap in existing knowledge about the social history of music in Britain from 1950 to the present day. The three volumes of Live Music in Britain address this gap and do so through a unique prism - that of live music. The key theme of the books is the changing nature of the live music industry in the UK, focussed upon popular music but including all musical genres. The second volume covers the period from Hyde Park to the Hacienda (1968-1984).

Variations and Variation Technique in the Music of Chopin

Zofia Chechlińska

While Chopin composed only a few works in variation form, he employed variations and variation technique in the majority of his works. Focusing on a broad range of Chopin's works, this book explores the extent to which Chopin's oeuvre is suffused with variations, the role that variation technique plays in his work, to what extent it interacts with other techniques for developing and modifying musical material, and how the variation technique itself evolved. This is the first English translation of one of the classics of musicological literature in Poland and is essential reading for scholars of Chopin and nineteenth-century music, and music analysts.

Music in the Classical World

Genre, Culture, and History

Bertil van Boer, Western Washington University, USA

Music in the Classical World: Genre, Culture, and History provides a broad sociocultural and historical perspective of the music of the Classical Period as it relates to the world in which it was created. It establishes a background on the time span—1725 to 1815—offering a context for the music made during one of the more vibrant periods of achievement in history. Outlining how music interacted with society, politics, and the arts of that time, this kaleidoscopic approach presents an overview of how the various genres expanded during the period, not just in the major musical centers but around the globe. Contemporaneous treatises are integrated into the narrative.

World Music Pedagogy, Volume V: Choral Music Education

Series: Routledge World Music Pedagogy Series

World Music Pedagogy, Volume V: Choral Music Education explores specific applications to choral music education in elementary, middle, and high school, as well as within community settings. The text provides clear and accessible information to help choral music educators select, rehearse, and perform a diverse global repertoire. It also guides directors in creating a rich cultural context for learners, emphasizing listening, moving, and playing as meaningful experiences. Commentary on quality, commercially-available world music repertoires bridges the gap between the philosophy of world music pedagogy and the

The Digital Score

Musicianship, Creativity and Innovation

Craig Vear, De Montfort University, UK

Digital technology is transforming the musical score as a broad array of innovative score systems have become available to musicians. From attempts to mimic the print score, to animated and graphical scores, to artificial intelligence-based options, digital scoring affects the musical process by opening up new possibilities for dynamic interaction between the performer and the music, changing how we understand the boundaries between composition, score, improvisation and performance. The Digital Score: Musicianship, Creativity and Innovation offers a guide into this new landscape, reflecting on what these changes mean for music-making from both theoretical and applied perspectives.<

Challenging the Intersection of Policy with Pedagogy

Edited by Leanne Gibbs, Charles Sturt University, Australia, and Michael Gasper, Centre for Research in Early Childhood, Birmingham, UK.

Series: Thinking About Pedagogy in Early Childhood Education

Asking key questions about how policies impact on children's early years and rethinking the ways in which young children's learning becomes integral to policy, this insightful text challenges the common misconception that policy development and pedagogical implementation are separate endeavours. Chapters explore symbiotic dynamics between policy and practice to consider policies relating to documentation, professional well-being, the role of the family, language development and diversity. Written to provoke group discussion and extend thinking, opportunities for international comparison, points for reflection, and editorial provocations will help readers engage critically with the text.

Listening to Children's Advice about Starting School and School Age Care

Edited by Sue Dockett, Charles Sturt University, Australia, Johanna Einarsdottir, School of Education, University of Iceland, Iceland, and Bob Perry, Charles Sturt University, Australia

Series: Towards an Ethical Praxis in Early Childhood

Reflecting the importance of drawing on children's perspectives to shape professional practice, this book offers a nuanced approach to understanding the aims, implications and practicalities of accessing and incorporating children's perspectives in pedagogical practices relating to transitions. Chapters report research conducted in eight different countries to highlight approaches that acknowledge children's input, and use this as a basis for critical reflection on practice, with a view to improving the children's transition experiences. Using examples of practice and offering practical and theoretical insights, the book illustrates the multiplicity of children's perspectives.

Rethinking Play as Pedagogy

Edited by Sophie Alcock, Victoria University of Wellington, New Zealand and Nicola Stobbs, University of Worcester, UK

Series: Thinking About Pedagogy in Early Childhood Education

The conceptualisation and practice of play is core to early childhood pedagogy. In this essential text, contributors from a range of countries and cultures explore how play might be defined, encouraged and interpreted in early years settings and practice. Chapters provide fresh perspectives of play as a purposeful pedagogy offering multi-layered opportunities for learning and development. Written to provoke group discussion and extend thinking, opportunities for international comparison, points for reflection and editorial provocations will help students engage critically with diverse understandings of play, and varied approaches to harnessing children's natural propensity to play.

Religious Education as a Dialogue with Difference

Fostering Democratic Citizenship Through the Study of Religions in Schools

Kevin O'Grady

Series: Routledge Research in Religion and Education

Religious Education as a Dialogue with Difference addresses current issues over the study of religion in publicly maintained schools. By presenting research on English secondary school pupils' motivation in religious education, this volume argues that religious education is best understood as a democratic dialogue with difference. The book offers empirical evidence for this claim, and it demonstrates how learners gain in religious literacy, both through the exercise of democratic citizenship in the classroom and towards the goal of life-long democratic citizenship.

STEM Literacies in Makerspaces

Implications for Learning, Teaching, and Research

Eli Tucker-Raymond, Chèche Konnen Center at TERC, USA and Brian E. Gravel, Tufts University, USA

Providing an original framework for the study of makerspaces in a literacy context, this book bridges the scholarship of literacy studies and STEM and offers a window into the practices that makers learn and interact with. Tucker-Raymond and Gravel define and illustrate five key STEM literacies—identifying, organizing, and integrating information; creating and traversing representations; communicating with others for help and feedback during making; documenting processes; and communicating finished products—and demonstrate how these literacies intersect with making communities.

Meet the Parents

How Schools Can Work Effectively with Families to Support Children's Learning

Dorothy Lepkowska and Julie Nightingale

Meet the Parents is an essential guide for school leaders and classroom teachers looking to build stronger and more productive relationships with the families of pupils. This book uses more than forty years of experience to explain techniques for uniting families with a range of backgrounds and a variety of circumstances, and highlights the most successful approaches for encouraging and developing the home-school partnership. Drawing on case studies and real-life examples, Lepkowska and Nightingale unpick the reasons behind barriers to learning, and examine the issues that cause parents to be demotivated from engaging with schools.

Special Learners in School

Understanding Essential Concepts

Catherine Routley

Active listening and observation skills, memory, comprehension of pattern and sequencing, positional and expressive language, body awareness and emotional intelligence are key to ensuring a child's access to the school curriculum. Recognising that these can be particular areas of difficulty for pupils with SEND, this book provides a range of photocopiable activities designed to engage and develop children's skills in the areas of auditory and visual memory, pragmatic and sensory skills. Easily accessible and differentiated for children at lower and upper levels of ability, practical examples and activities can be used immediately, and adapted in line with students' abilities and progress.

Reversing the Cult of Speed in Higher Education

The Slow Movement in the Arts and Humanities

Edited by Jonathan Chambers and Stephannie S. Gearhart

A collection of essays written by arts and humanities scholars across disciplines, this book argues that higher education has been compromised by its uncritical acceptance of our culture's standards of productivity, busyness, and speed. Inspired by the slow movement, contributors explain how and why university culture has come to value productivity over contemplation and rapidity over slowness. Concerned with the role of the arts and humanities in a sped-up higher education system, chapter authors critique the scapegotization of these fields as "useless" subjects, and proposes possible solutions to reevaluate and counteract their marginalization.

Confidence in Critical Thinking

Developing Learners in Higher Education

Edited by Arlene Egan, National College of Ireland

Confidence in Critical Thinking is a book that bridges the gap between theory and application for both new and established lecturers who wish to recognise their own critical thinking skills, develop them and in turn support the development of their learners. By harnessing new findings from research on design, engagement, goal setting, mindset and the influence of language, each chapter facilitates educators in moving from thinking about these skills as theoretical concepts to practical application. A must-read for those wishing to examine the assumption that critical thinking development happens to all learners, to an equal degree as a natural part of the education process.

Ubuntu and Buddhism in Higher Education

An Ontological Rethinking

Edited by David Robinson-Morris

Ubuntu and Buddhism in Higher Education theorizes the equal privileging of ontology and epistemology towards a balanced focus on 'being-becoming' and knowledge acquisition within the field of higher education. In response to the shift in higher education's aims and purposes beginning in the latter half of the 20th century, this book reconsiders higher education and Western subjectivity through southern African (Ubuntu) and Eastern (Buddhist) onto-epistemologies.

The Education Ecology of Universities

Integrating Learning, Strategy and the Academy

Robert A. Ellis and Peter Goodyear

Series: Research into Higher Education

Arguing that university teaching and learning ecosystems can be assessed in terms of their balance, feedback and self-correction, The Education Ecology of Universities demonstrates the benefits of institutional flexibility and self-awareness.

Examining issues such as new pedagogies, campus renewal, and digital agendas, the book highlights the opportunities and challenges facing universities, and then uses the Australian higher education sector as a case study to predict what issues are likely to arise internationally over the next 10 years.

Fast Childcare in Public Preschools

The Utopia of Efficiency

Renita Thedvall

Fast Childcare in Public Preschools presents an ethnographic examination of the implementation of fast-policy management models and the efforts of teachers to use these to improve their work organization, and the frictions this brings. Using examples from Swedish public preschools, the book focuses on essential areas of the Lean management model in particular, bringing to life concepts relating to the care and education of children. The book draws on international childcare policy and public reforms, exploring the assignments that preschools are set and argues that separating the pedagogical and the organizational as argued by proponents of management models is not possible.

Including Children and Young People with Special Educational Needs and Disabilities in Learning and Life

How Far Have We Come Since the Warnock Enquiry – and Where Do We Go Next?

Edited by Rob Webster, Institute of Education, UK

Marking the 40th anniversary of the Warnock Enquiry (1978) into special education in the UK and capturing the coverage of a public debate on SEND hosted by the UCL Institute of Education (UCL IOE, 2018), this volume explores the legacy of the Enquiry, considering how it has impacted on policy and practice relating to SEND and inclusion, and how it will continue to do so. Offering historical perspectives and drawing on professional and personal experiences, high profile contributors review the conceptual and practical territory covered by the Warnock committee, and assess the current state of inclusion and education of young people with SEND in the UK.

Public Education Reform and Network Governance

Lessons From Chinese State-Owned Enterprise Schools

Philip Wing Keung Chan, Monash University, Australia

Series: Education and Society in China

This book examines public education reform and the network governance at work in policy implementation and reform in China. It shows how a top-down policy approach has been implemented from central government right down to the district level and the way networks support negotiation and bargaining at the district level, in turn, influences the broader education policy of the central government. Chan uses statistical data and interviews with main stakeholders in this policy arena plus case studies from the railway State Operated Enterprise schools to indicate that the processes of formulating and implementing Chinese education policy can be characterised as a form of network governance.

Indigenous Children's Survivance in Public Schools

Leilani Sabzalian

Series: Indigenous and Decolonizing Studies in Education

This book surveys a range of educational issues, including implementation of Native-themed curriculum, teachers' attempts to support Native students in their classrooms, and efforts to claim physical and cultural space in the district, among others. As a collective, these stories highlight the ways that colonization continues to shape Native students' experiences in schools. By documenting the intelligence, courage, artfulness, and survivance of Native students, families, and educators, the book provides a corrective to deficit framings of Indigenous students, inviting educators to examine their own contexts for knowledge, and resources to better support Native students in public schools.

Pupil, Teacher and Family Voice in Educational Institutions

Values, Opinions, Beliefs and Perspectives

Edited by Janice Wearmouth, University of Bedfordshire, UK and Andrew Goodwyn, University of Bedfordshire, UK.

Taking a novel approach to the concept of 'voice' within education systems, this text considers the extent to which the values, opinions, beliefs and perspectives of students, families, teachers, and members of senior management are heard in educational settings, and explores what can be learned from integrating their views in decision-making processes. Chapters trace the historical and legal developments which have heralded an increased appreciation of individuals' perspectives; consider how various parties can be encouraged to voice their opinions, and address the issues and challenges which may face institutions as they seek to create an atmosphere of open and active consultation.

Skills for Human Development

Transforming Vocational Education and Training

Lesley Joy Powell and Simon McGrath, University of Nottingham, UK

As skills move back up the development policy agenda, a reimagining of the purpose of vocational skills development is needed urgently. The current orthodoxy regarding skills and development is both theoretically weak and of limited practical value for the transformation of skills approaches. This book offers a transformative vision for skills development based on its potential contribution to broader human development and not just to economic development. Drawing on experience working with policymakers and institutional leaders, as well as current trends in development theory, this book points to a new approach that works with learners and leaders instead of seeing them as the problem.

The Transformation of Initial Teacher Education

The Changing Nature of Teacher Training

Ian Abbott, Mike Rathbone and Philip Whitehead, University of Warwick, UK

Tracing the development of Initial Teacher Education (ITE) since the large scale expansion of the teaching professional after the Second World War to the present day, this book explores the changing nature of teacher education. It considers the growth of the 'teaching industry' and addresses key issues including the return to an apprentice model, the growing importance of schools in ITE and the continuing decline in the role played by Higher Education. The book sets these changes in the broader international context to consider the future of teacher education and the changing nature of teaching.

Agency in Teacher Supervision and Mentoring

Reinvigorating the Practice

Alisa Bates and Mary D. Burbank

Series: Routledge Research in Teacher Education

Offering an in-depth examination of field supervision and the role of the university supervisors in preparing teachers, this book addresses the challenges of providing novice teachers with quality supervision through the support and guidance of teacher education programs. Through a research-based lens, Bates and Burbank discuss the role, responsibilities, and opportunities of the university supervisor. Critically examining the supervisor as an agent of change who is positioned to empower early career teachers, the authors dissect the necessary preparation and support new teachers need in contemporary K-12 classrooms.

Philosophising the Dialogos Way towards Wisdom in Education

Between Critical Thinking and Spiritual Contemplation

Guro Hansen Helskog, University of South East Norway, Norway

Philosophising the Dialogos Way towards Wisdom in Education proposes the innovative and holistic Dialogos approach to practical philosophy as a way of facilitating wisdom-oriented pedagogy. The book encourages individual and collective development through dialectical interplays between personal life, philosophical concepts and subject matter.

Philosophising the Dialogos Way towards Wisdom in Education will be of great interest to academics, researchers and students in the fields of teacher education, philosophy of education and higher education. It will also appeal to teachers and teacher educators in secondary and higher education.

Early Childhood Curriculum in Chinese Societies

Policies, Practices, and Prospects

Weipeng Yang, Singapore University of Social Sciences, Singapore and Hui Li, The University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong

Series: Routledge Research in Early Childhood Education

Through this book, readers will learn more about how the Chinese context and culture collide with educators' beliefs about what are the right activities for children and educators in early childhood settings. This book will be the first one of its kind to focus on early childhood curriculum in Chinese societies – from social context and culture to reforms and practices, and finally to the lessons that researchers, policymakers and practitioners could learn, as well as future directions.

Teaching Writing to Children in Indigenous Languages

Instructional Practices from Global Contexts

Edited by Ari Sherris and Joy Kreeft Peyton

Series: Routledge Research in Education

This volume brings together studies of instructional writing practices and the products of those practices from diverse Indigenous languages and cultures. By analyzing a rich diversity of contexts—Finland, Ghana, Hawaii, Mexico, Papua New Guinea, and more—through biliteracy, complexity, and genre theories, this book explores and demonstrates critical components of writing pedagogy and development. Because the volume focuses on Indigenous languages, it questions center-margin perspectives on schooling and national language ideologies, which often limit the number of Indigenous languages taught, the domains of study, and the age groups included.

Equity, Exclusion and Everyday Science Learning

The Experiences of Minoritised Groups

Emily Dawson, University College London, UK

Series: Routledge Research in Education

Science plays an important role in our societies and permeates cultural practices through the mass media, schooling and museums, as well as politics and personal decision-making. But to what extent is public or everyday science learning an educational, cultural or political resource accessible to everyone? This book presents a theoretically informed, empirically detailed analysis of how minoritised people negotiate encounters with science and everyday science learning resources in their lives.

Education, Inequality and Social Class

Expansion and Stratification in Educational Opportunity

Ron Thompson, University of Huddersfield, UK

Education, Inequality and Social Class provides a comprehensive discussion of the empirical evidence for persistent inequality in educational attainment. It explores the most important theoretical perspectives that have been developed to understand class-based inequality and frame further research. With clear explanations of essential concepts, this book draws on empirical data from the UK and other countries to illustrate the nature and scale of inequalities according to social background, discussing the interactions of class-based inequalities with those according to race and gender.

An Ecosystem for Research-Engaged Schools

Reforming Education Through Research

Edited by David Godfrey and Chris Brown

Elements and dimensions of a research-engaged school eco-system are explored by experts in the field of educational improvement. Each chapter looks at multiple aspects of the system, from the concept of research-informed learning organisations and research-based initial teacher education, to an accountability system that supports learning through enquiry. Ground breaking research is presented to portray the issues and case studies that exemplify innovative practice. This book is suitable for anyone interested in the potential for an ecosystem of learning and innovation in our schools where the structures, cultures, practices and policies align to promote research engagement.

Putting Learning Before Technology!

The Possibilities and Limits of Digitalization

Klaus Zierer, University of Augsburg, Germany

For many, digitisation is the key to revolutionising education and upbringing. But what do we know about its impact on the learning process? Which possibilities and limits are associated with digitisation? And what are the consequences for educational interventions? Learning Before Technology! discusses these questions using a multitude of evidence and examples from schools and lessons. Central to the authors' argument is that digitisation as a structural measure will bring little benefit. Using evidence from the visible learning research and the impact of digitisation on young children, the authors argue passionately for learning before technology!

Teaching to Transform Urban Schools and Communities

Powerful Pedagogy in Practice

Etta R. Hollins, University of Missouri, Kansas City, USA

For preservice candidates and novice teachers feeling underprepared to teach in urban schools, this book offers a framework for conceptualizing, planning, and engaging in powerful teaching. Veteran teacher educator Etta Hollins builds on previous work to focus on restorative practices that emphasize the purpose and process of teaching. These practices are designed to improve academic performance, transform the social context in low-performing urban schools, and improve the quality of life in the local community. Focus Questions and a dedicated Application to Practice section in each chapter further guide learning and help make real-world connections.

The Dangerous Rise of Therapeutic Education

Kathryn Ecclestone, University of Sheffield, UK and Dennis Hayes, University of Derby, UK.

Series: Routledge Education Classic Edition

Controversial and compelling, this classic text uses a wealth of examples across the education system, from primary schools to university and the workplace to show how therapeutic education is turning children, young people and adults into anxious and self-preoccupied individuals rather than aspiring, optimistic and resilient learners who want to know everything about the world.

This text is eye-opening reading for anyone who retains any belief in the power of knowledge to transform people's lives. Its insistent call for a serious public debate about the emotional state of education should be at the forefront of the minds of every agent of change in society.

Paradigm Shift in Education

Towards the Third Wave of Effectiveness

Yin Cheong Cheng, Education University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong
 Series: Routledge Research in Education

Pedagogy needs to adapt to changing social contexts and demands in the 21st century. However, it is only by understanding the current trends, vision, and issues in education policy, implementation and research that we can reflect, adapt, and improve future initiatives.

To that end, Cheng explores third wave paradigm shifts in education; charting the rationales, concerns, and effects. He covers topics such as contextualised multiple intelligences, integrated learning, national education in globalization, teacher effectiveness and development, school-based management, and systemic education reform.

Using ESL Students' First Language to Promote College Success

Sneaking the Mother Tongue through the Backdoor

Andrea Parmegiani

Series: Routledge Research in Educational Equality and Diversity

Emerging from a critical analysis of the global power of English and how it relates to academic literacy and culturally responsive pedagogy, this book presents strategies for using ESL students' mother tongue as a resource for academic literacy acquisition and college success. Grounded in a case study of a learning community of native Spanish speakers in the Bronx, Parmegiani provides clear links between ESL instruction and Spanish academic literacy and demonstrates that mother tongue-based pedagogical intervention and strategic use of minority home languages can promote English language acquisition and academic success.

Affect in Literacy Learning and Teaching

Pedagogies, Politics and Coming to Know

Edited by Kevin M. Leander, Vanderbilt University, USA and Christian Ehret, McGill University, Canada

Series: Expanding Literacies in Education

In this cutting-edge volume, scholars from around the world connect affect theory to the field of literacy studies, and unpack the role and influence of this emerging area of scholarship on literacy education. Offering an introduction to affect theory and scholarship as it relates to literacy studies, contributors discuss the role of humanizing and dehumanizing influences on schooling and examine the emotional and affective dimensions at individual and communal levels. Arguing that an affective turn requires a radical rethinking of the nature of literacy, these chapters address the impact and import of emotion and affect on reading, writing, and calling to action.

Reconceptualizing Curriculum, Literacy, and Learning for School-Age Mothers

Heidi L. Hallman, University of Kansas, USA and Abigail P. Kindelsperger

Series: Routledge Research in Education

Reconceptualizing Curriculum, Literacy, and Learning for School-Age Mothers offers a portrait of classroom literacy practices and learning opportunities that are provided for school-age mothers in two different schools. Attuned to the struggle for school-age mothers' access to meaningful and challenging curriculum in public schools, as well as to the relative dearth of scholarly research on the topic, this volume demonstrates how educators can rethink the issue of schooling for this population of students.

Content Area Literacy Strategies That Work

Lori G. Wilfong, Kent State University, USA

Content area teachers are now being tasked with incorporating reading and writing instruction, but what works? In this essential book from Routledge and AMLE, author Lori G. Wilfong describes ten best practices for content-area literacy and how to implement them in the middle-level classroom. She also points out practices that should be avoided, helping you figure out which ideas to ditch and which to embrace. Each chapter includes Common Core connections and practical templates and tools. The templates are available as free eResources so you can easily print them for classroom use.

Pedagogies and Policies for Publishing Research in English

Local Initiatives Supporting International Scholars

Edited by James N. Corcoran, Karen Englander and Laura-Mihaela Muresan

Series: ESL & Applied Linguistics Professional Series

In this book, multilingual scholars examine the pedagogies and policies that have been implemented around the world to foster academic writing for publication. In a market dominated by English journals and books publications, multilingual scholars are increasingly inclined and encouraged to publish in English in order to contribute to the global dissemination of academic knowledge. Addressing the obstacles academics located outside the Anglosphere face, this collection examines the writing programs, courses and interventions held outside the Anglophone countries whose aim is to enhance the scholarly writing and publishing success of multilingual scholars.

Teacher Evaluation as Cultural Practice

A Framework for Equity and Excellence

María del Carmen Salazar and Jessica Lerner

Series: Language, Culture, and Teaching Series

Teacher evaluation, in its current form, positions the dominate culture as normative, and often relegates the needs of CLD learners to the margins. Covering theory, research, and practice, Salazar and Lerner showcase a model to aid prospective and practicing teachers who are concerned with issues of equity, excellence, and evaluation. Placing the needs of CLD learners at the center, this book explores the intersection of teacher evaluation and culture, and addresses critical questions about the role of teacher evaluation in disrupting or reproducing inequity.

Teaching and Researching ELLs' Disciplinary Literacies

Systemic Functional Linguistics in Action in the Context of U.S. School Reform

Meg Gebhard

Series: Language, Culture, and Teaching Series

Written from a critical perspective, this volume provides teachers, teacher educators, and classroom researchers with a conceptual framework and practical methods for teaching and researching the disciplinary literacy development of English language learners (ELLs). Grounded in a nuanced critique of current social, economic, and political changes shaping public education, Gebhard offers a comprehensive framework for designing curriculum, instruction, and assessments that build on students' linguistic and cultural resources and that are aligned with high-stakes state and national standards using the tools of systemic functional linguistics (SFL).

Aging Policy and Politics in the Trump Era

Implications for Older Americans

Edited by Edward Alan Miller, University of Massachusetts Boston, USA, Pamela Nadash, University of Massachusetts Boston, USA and Michael K. Gusmano, Institute for Health, Health Care and Aging Research, Rutgers University, USA

This book explores how Trump administration policies are likely to significantly undermine the social safety net for older Americans, with respect to long-term care, housing, healthcare, and retirement. It also explores how the Trump administration might shape politics and political behavior through policy changes made. The response of older voters to efforts by the Trump administration and its Republican allies in Congress to draw back on the federal government's commitment to programs and policies affecting them, will shape the direction of aging policy and politics for years to come. This book was first published as a special issue of the Journal of Aging & Social Policy.

Anti-System Parties

From Parliamentary Breakthrough to Government

Mattia Zulianello

Series: Extremism and Democracy

This book adopts an innovative conceptualization and analytical framework to the study of anti-system parties, and represents the first monograph ever published on the topic. It features empirical research using original data and combining large-N QCA analyses with a wide range of in-depth case studies from 18 Western European countries. The author examines in particular the interplay between crucial elements of the internal supply-side of anti-system parties such as their organizational and ideological features, and the political opportunity structure. Anti-System Parties is a major contribution to the literature on populism, anti-establishment parties and comparative political parties.

American Hegemony in the 21st Century

A Neo Neo-Gramscian Perspective

Jonathan Pass, UNIVERSIDAD PABLO DE OLAVIDE

Series: Routledge Advances in International Relations and Global Politics

Drawing directly on the ideas of Antonio Gramsci (amongst others), Jonathan Pass presents a sophisticated, overtly materialist, theory of world hegemony, rooted in a critical realist philosophy of science. Through the lens of this Neo neo-Gramscian (NNG) approach, Pass examines the complex interplay of internal and external social forces responsible for the evolving 'nature' of US hegemony, from its establishment in the 1940s, passing through its different stages of crisis and restructuring up to the present.

Aurel Kolnai's The War AGAINST the West Reconsidered

Wolfgang Bialas

Series: Routledge Studies in Fascism and the Far Right

Aurel Kolnai's The War against the West remains one of the most insightful analyses of Nazi thought ever written. In 1938 it was a revelation. Quite different in tone and approach from most other analyses of Nazism available in English, it was remarkable for the thoroughness with which it discussed the writings of Nazi thinkers and for the seriousness with which it took their views. In this edited collection published 80 years after the original book, a team of distinguished scholars reassess this classic text and also consider its continued relevance to contemporary politics.

Anti-fascism in the Nordic Countries

New Perspectives, Comparisons and Transnational Connections

Edited by Kasper Braskén, Nigel Copsey, University of Teesside, UK and Johan A. Lundin

Series: Routledge Studies in Fascism and the Far Right

This book offers the first comprehensive history of anti-fascism in the Nordic Countries. Through a number of case studies on anti-fascism in Sweden, Finland, Norway, Denmark and Iceland the book makes a significant contribution to the history of contentious politics in the Nordic Countries and to our broader knowledge of European fascism and anti-fascism. The case studies concentrate on the different manifestations of resistance to fascism and nazism in the interwar era as well as some of the postwar variants. The book will be of considerable interest to scholars of fascism and anti-fascism as well as researchers of Nordic and Scandinavian history and politics.

Chinese Scholars and Foreign Policy

Debating International Relations

Edited by Huiyun Feng, Griffith University, Australia, Kai He, Griffith University, Australia and Yan Xuetong, Tsinghua University, China

Series: Routledge Studies on Asia in the World

How does China see the rest of the world? One way to answer this question is to look at the work of China's scholars in the field of International Relations (IR). This leads to a second question – to what extent do Chinese IR scholars influence Beijing's foreign policy and outlook? The contributors to this book seek to answer these key questions, drawing on their own first- and second-hand experiences of involvement in scholarly IR debates in China.

Conflict in India and China's Contested Borderlands

A Comparative Study

Kunal Mukherjee, Lancaster University, UK

Series: Routledge Contemporary Asia Series

This book compares and contrasts the situation in India's disputed borderlands – Kashmir and the Indian north eastern states – with China's contested borderlands – Xinjiang and Tibet. The book looks at the root causes of the conflict and how these conflicts have evolved and changed their character with the passage of time. Analysing how the countries have dealt with their territorial disputes from the 50's till more recent times, the author shows to what extent these state policies have exacerbated the already strained situation. Using primary data collected primarily through interviews, from the people/inhabitants of these conflict zones, the book throws new light on the problem.

Decentering European Governance

Edited by Mark Bevir, University of California, Berkeley, USA and Ryan Phillips, Connecticut College, USA

Series: Routledge Studies on Government and the European Union

The book offers an analysis of the formation and transformation of the EU as an example of governance above the nation-state and is framed by the recognition that the construction of the EU has resulted in variegated and decentered forms of governance. The chapters look at distinct aspects of EU governance to bring to light the influence of elite narratives, scientific rationalities, local traditions and meaningful practices in the making and remaking of European governance.

Critical International Relations Theories in East Asia

Relationality, Subjectivity, and Pragmatism

Edited by Kosuke Shimizu, Ryukoku University, Japan

Series: IR Theory and Practice in Asia

This book interrogates the meanings of the established ontology and subjectivity embedded in the discourse of 'Western' and 'non-Western' IR. We are predisposed to see a nation-state as a unified entity, everlasting and moving towards a particular end. This leads us to say, for example, 'Japan is threatened by the possible Chinese attack' without questioning what 'Japan' and 'China' mean in this context. This book tries to locate and unearth the consistent structure and system of the world, with a particular focus on subjectivity and temporality in IR, that captures the way in which we conceive and misconceive the world.

India's Constitutional Identity

ideological beliefs and preferences

Bidyut Chakrabarty, University of Delhi, India

Series: Routledge Studies in South Asian Politics

This book conceptualizes the gradual evolution of an idea by tracing the history of India's constitutionalism with reference to its conceptual roots, historical antecedents and the landmark judicial pronouncements in which the concern for its retention and protection is always privileged. The author examines specific constitutional designs that the 1950 Constitution of India put in place and argues that constitutional identity, despite being drawn on specific constitutional provisions, is also changeable in view of the rapidly transforming socio-economic milieu.

Liberal Parties in Europe

Edited by Emilie van Haute, Département de Science Politique, Université libre de Bruxelles. and Caroline Close, Université libre de Bruxelles

Series: Party Families in Europe

This book investigates how liberal parties have evolved over time as a party family, in a comparative perspective. Through a discussion of the applicability of the concept of party family to liberal parties, it gives a better picture of the development, challenges and opportunities for liberal parties in Europe. Primarily aimed at scholars and students in comparative politics, this book should especially appeal to scholars in the fields of political parties and party systems, representation and elections, voting behavior and public opinion.

The Future of International Courts

Regional, Institutional and Procedural Challenges

Edited by Avidan Kent, University of East Anglia, UK, Nikos Skoutaris and Jamie Trinidad

Series: Routledge Research in International Law

The end of World War II marked the beginning of a new golden era in international law. Treaties and international organisations proliferated at an unprecedented rate, and many courts and tribunals were established with a view to ensuring the smooth operation of this new universe of international relations. The network of courts and tribunals that exists today is an important feature of our global society. It serves as an alternative to other, sometimes more violent, forms of dispute settlement.

The Informal Construction of Europe

Edited by Lennaert van Heumen, Radboud University, The Netherlands. and Mechthild Roos, Université du Luxembourg, Luxembourg

Series: Routledge/UACES Contemporary European Studies

Including case studies that discuss both successful and failed examples of informal action in European integration, this book assembles cutting-edge research by both early-career and more experienced scholars from all over Europe to fill this lacuna. The chapters of this volume offer a guide to the study of informality and show how informality has impacted European integration history and the functioning of the EC/EU as well as other European organisations in a variety of ways.

The Intellectual Origins of Modernity

David Ohana

Series: Routledge Studies in Social and Political Thought

The Intellectual Origins of Modernity explores the long and winding road of modernity from Rousseau to Foucault, and its roots, which are not to be found in a desire for enlightenment or in the idea of progress but in the Promethean passion of Western man. Modernity is the Promethean passion, the passion of man to be his own master, to use his insight to make a world different from the one that he found, and to liberate himself from his immemorial chains. This passion created the political ideologies of the nineteenth century and made its imprint on the totalitarian regimes which arose in their wake in the twentieth.

The International Political Economy of the BRICS

Edited by Li Xing, Aalborg University, Denmark

Series: The International Political Economy of New Regionalisms Series

Exploring to what extent the BRICS group is a significant actor challenging the global order, this book focuses on the degree and consequence of their emergence and explores how important cooperation is to individual BRICS members' foreign policy strategies and potential relevance as leaders in regional and global governance. The comprehensive theoretical and empirical coverage of this timely volume will be especially useful to students, researchers and professionals interested in ongoing academic debates around the IPE of emerging powers, and those researching global governance and globalization.

The Ku Klux Klan and Freemasonry in 1920s America

Fighting Fraternities

Miguel Hernandez

Series: Routledge Studies in Fascism and the Far Right

The Second Ku Klux Klan's success in the 1920s remains one of the order's most enduring mysteries. Emerging first as a brotherhood dedicated to paying tribute to the Southern organization of the Reconstruction period, the Second Invisible Empire developed into a mass movement with millions of members that influenced politics and culture throughout the early 1920s. This study explores the nature of fraternities and the overlap between the Klan and Freemasonry. Drawing on many previously untouched archival resources, it presents a detailed analysis of the development and later decline of the Klan and the complex nature of its relationship with the traditions of American fraternalism.

The Lucid Vigil

Deconstruction, Desire and the Politics of Critique

Stella Gaon, Saint Mary's University, Canada

Series: Psychoanalytic Political Theory

This book provides the first fully philosophical account of the critical nature of deconstruction, based on an original approach to psychoanalysis. Drawing on close readings of Freud and Laplanche, Gaon argues that Derridean deconstruction is driven by a normative investment in reason's psychological force. Her argument is borne out in the cases of Kantian deontology, Deweyan pragmatism, progressive pedagogy, Habermasian moral theory, Levinasian ethics, and others. What emerges is the ground-breaking demonstration that to read deconstructively is to radicalize the emancipatory practice of reason as self-critique.

The Politics of US Aid to Pakistan

Aid Allocation and Delivery from Truman to Trump

Murad Ali, Alexander von Humboldt Postdoctoral Research Fellow at the German Development Institute/ Deutsches Institut für Entwicklungspolitik (DIE), Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in South Asian Politics

Focusing on a comprehensive analysis of aid allocation and delivery mechanisms, this book uncovers the primary factors behind historical and contemporary US aid to Pakistan so far not thoroughly and empirically studied, especially in the post-2001 period of the 'war on terror'. Furthermore, based on findings that have emerged from interviews with over 200 respondents, including government officials, representatives of donor aid agencies, the private sector, civil society organizations and primary beneficiaries of US-funded projects, this book offers significant insights to researchers, policy-makers and practitioners interested in the discipline of aid and development effectiveness.

Environment and Sustainability in a Globalizing World

Edited by Andrea J. Nightingale, Swedish University for Agricultural Sciences (SLU)

Series: Foundations in Global Studies

From the Foundations in Global Studies series, this approachable text introduces students to the globalizing processes relating to the environment and sustainability. Students are guided through a brief history of environmental sustainability in the modern era, the key concepts, key thinkers, and relevant international agencies and treaties. Special emphasis is given to how theory meets reality in models for measuring sustainability, the range of environmental domains at play, and important controversies. Case studies are used to examine theory and practice at work.

Why Vote?

Essential Questions About the Future of Elections in America

Daniel M. Shea

For nearly 200 years, Americans have pinned the democratic character of their system on elections. We have become an election-crazed nation, ever-hoping that the next grand contest or fresh candidate will save the day. But the system is being contorted by a novel brand of partisan polarization, voter access limits, out-of-control social media, declining objectivity, outside interferences, a hyper-partisan press, and more. We've reached a precarious moment in the history of our democracy and it is no stretch to say the future of the republic is at stake. This lively, accessible book tees up a new way of thinking about the future of elections—and beyond—in America.

Political Discourse and Its Discontents

Edited by Robert G. Boatright, Clark University, USA, Timothy J. Shaffer, Kansas State University, USA., Sarah Sobieraj, Tufts University, USA. and Dannagal Goldthwaite Young, University of Delaware, USA.

In the 2016 election and since, reasoned public discourse has suffered at the hands of rising polarization and disrespectful disagreement. This book promotes a coherent, civil conversation between divergent contemporary perspectives in political science, communications, history, sociology, and philosophy to reflect on challenges to civil discourse, define civility, and identify its consequences for democratic life in a digital age. In this accessible text, an all-star cast of contributors tills the earth in which future discussion on civility will be planted.

Science, Technology, and Art in International Relations

Edited by J.P. Singh, Madeline Carr and Renée Marlin-Bennett

This volume brings together two dozen original chapters that provide a unique examination of the issues of science, technology, and art in international relations. The book links global politics with human interventions in the world: We cannot disconnect how humans act on the world through science, technology, and artistic endeavors from the engagements and practices that together constitute IR. There is science, technology, and even artistry in the conduct of war—and in the conduct of peace as well. Scholars and students of international relations are beginning to explore these connections, and the authors of the chapters in this volume are at the forefront.

Evolution, Politics and Charisma

Why do Populists Win?

Elesia Zehndorfer, University of Greenwich Business School, UK

Readers wishing to make sense of the populist juggernauts of Trump and Brexit and of the cyclical and formulaic nature of the rise and fall of charismatic populism will find this book particularly appealing. Elesia Zehndorfer begins by presenting an applied explanation of the critical importance of political physiology, physiology theory, neuroscience and evolutionary biology in populist charismatic politics. She later eloquently explains how manipulation of physiological variables (such as heightened testosterone and dopamine) renders the political rally one of the most powerful weapons in a populist leaders' campaign.

Cultures of Counterterrorism

French and Italian Responses to Terrorism after 9/11

Silvia D'Amato, University of Florence, Italy
Series: Contemporary Security Studies

This book investigates counterterrorism responses from a strategic-culturalist perspective, focusing on France and Italy in the post-9/11 era. This work provides an original contribution to the understanding of counterterrorism by asking how values, norms and a shared sense of identity matter in policy dynamics. It explores and assesses which cultural elements are relevant for the fight against terrorism and investigates the impact which these elements can have on practical approaches to terrorism.

Edited by Richard W. Mansbach, Iowa State University, USA and James M. McCormick, Iowa State University, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in US Foreign Policy

This volume focuses on the sensitive foreign policy issues that have faced the Trump administration and which will determine the prospects for American decline or continued hegemony. Contributions are divided into "regional" and "functional" issues, exploring the nature and significance of the challenge, the previous response and President Trump's policies and their consequences. Topics have been selected to address political, military, economic, and social factors in global politics and the book will appeal to undergraduates and scholars of US foreign policy at all levels.

Terrorism and Counterterrorism

Brigitte L. Nacos

Focusing on the phenomenon of terrorism in the age of ISIS/ISIL, Terrorism and Counterterrorism investigates this form of political violence in an international and American context and in light of new and historical trends. In this comprehensive and highly readable text, renowned expert Brigitte Nacos clearly defines terrorism's diverse causes, actors, and strategies; outlines anti- and counterterrorist responses; and highlights terrorism's relationship with the public and media. Terrorism and Counterterrorism introduces students to the field's main debates and helps them critically assess our understanding of, and our strategies for, addressing this complex and enduring issue.

Critical Approaches to Security in Central Asia

Edited by Edward Lemon, Columbia University, USA

Series: Central Asian Studies

Central Asia remains on the periphery, both spatially and in people's imaginations. When the region does attract international attention, it is often related to security issues, including terrorism, ethnic conflict and drug trafficking. This book brings together leading specialists from a range of disciplines including geography, anthropology, sociology and political science to discuss how citizens and governments within Central Asia think about and practise security. This book will be of interest to students and researchers of Central Asian Studies as well as Security Studies and Political Science. The chapters were originally published in the journal Central Asian Survey.

Indigenous Rights to the City

Ethnicity and Urban Planning in Bolivia and Ecuador

Philipp Horn, Sheffield University, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Urbanism and the City

The book explains how medium and large cities of Latin America have attracted many people from the rural world during the last two decades, and how in the frame of such diaspora the indigenous peoples have also settled in the urban peripheries. This process has led to a new, unexpected reality that has created new challenges for local politicians and technicians, and new forms of struggle for members of indigenous peoples to defend their rights. This matter is exemplified by two cases (Quito and La Paz) and aims to show that the new Latin American - and global - cities will be multicultural and should be inclusive.

Soviet and Post-Soviet Sexualities

Edited by Richard C.M. Mole

Series: Routledge Contemporary Russia and Eastern Europe Series

Despite Soviet Russia having been one of the first major powers to decriminalise homosexual acts between men, attitudes towards lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) people in contemporary Russia and the other post-Soviet states have become increasingly hostile. This book explores how this situation has come about. It discusses how attitudes to non-normative sexualities developed historically and examines the current situation in the post-Soviet space, including Russia, Transcaucasia, Central Asia and the Baltic States. The book provides a wealth of detail on this understudied subject and assesses how LGBT subjects are responding to this state of affairs.

The Dynamics of Emerging De-Facto States

Eastern Ukraine in the Post-Soviet Space

Tetyana Malyarenko and Stefan Wolff, University of Birmingham, UK

What are the causes and consequences of the crisis in Ukraine, and what has been the nature of local, national, and external actors' involvement in it? These are the questions that the authors examine in this comprehensive analysis of the situation in Ukraine. As an in-depth case study of the complex dynamics of the conflict at local, national, regional, and global levels of analysis, the book complements and advances existing scholarship on civil war and international crisis management and also provides insights for the policy community and the wider interested public.

The Populist Radical Left in Europe

Edited by Giorgos Katsambekis, Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, Greece and Alexandros Kioupiolis, Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, Greece

Series: Routledge Advances in European Politics

Building on a comprehensive theoretical framework that draws on discursive and ideational approaches to populism, this volume offers a comparative mapping of the Populist Radical Left in contemporary Europe. It explores the novel discursive, political and organisational features of several political actors, as well as the conditions of their emergence and success, while being alert to the role of relevant social movements. This book fills a crucial gap in the literature on radical left politics and populism in Europe, contributing to the rapidly burgeoning field of populism studies.

Birth of a Colonial City

Calcutta

Ranjit Sen, Department of Islamic History and Culture, University of Calcutta

This book brings home the story of how three clustered villages - a garrison town, a port city and the capital of an empire merged into one entity - Calcutta. It examines the geopolitical factors that were significant in securing Calcutta's position in the light of growing influence of the East India Company and subsequently the British Empire. It examines how Calcutta came to be nucleus of the British Raj in India and the eventual stripping away of the powers of the Nawab.

Christianity in India

The Anti-Colonial Turn

Clara A.B. Joseph, University of Calgary, Canada

Series: Routledge Studies in Asian Religion and Philosophy

The book analyses texts and contexts to show how communities of Indian Christians predetermined Western expansionist goals and later defined the Western colonial and Indian national imaginary. Combining historical research and literary analysis, the author prompts a re-evaluation of how Indian Christians reacted to colonialism in India and its potential to influence ongoing events of religious intolerance. Through a rethinking of a postcolonial theoretical framework, the book argues that Thomas Christians attempted an anti-colonial turn in the face of ecclesiastical and civic occupation that was colonial at its core.

Conflict, Community, and the State in Late Imperial Sichuan

Making Local Justice

Quinn Javers

Series: Routledge Studies in the Modern History of Asia

The book examines over 350 legal cases that comprise the 'cases of unnatural death' archival file from 1890 to 1900 in Ba County, Sichuan Province. The archive presents an untidy array of death, including homicides, suicides and found bodies. Analysing the muddled and often petty disputes found in these records, the existence of a local system of authority is highlighted, which disciplined and maintained daily life. Often relying on violence, this local justice system occasionally intersected with the state's justice system, but crucially was not dependent on it. As such, this book demonstrates the importance of informal, local authority to our understanding of justice in the late Qing era.

Digital China's Informal Circuits

Platforms, Labour and Governance

Elaine Jing Zhao

Series: Media, Culture and Social Change in Asia

Informal media activities are vibrant in circuits of cultural production, distribution, consumption and labour utilisation in China. They involve multiple actors and challenge polemic views. This book engages with forms of the informal and their interactions with the formal in the broader context of the rise of digital platforms, and evolving roles of users. The book provides an original account of how digital platforms navigate formal and informal boundaries; how enthusiastic fans, aspiring amateurs, "ordinary" users and necessity-driven labourers become integral to the formal/informal interface; and how state and non-state actors intervene in governing the formal/informal dynamics.

Everyday Soviet Utopias

Planning, Design and the Aesthetics of Developed Socialism

Anna Alekseyeva

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of Russia and Eastern Europe

This book explores how Soviet intellectuals of the later Soviet decades sought to bring about the socialist utopian world. It argues that the last two decades of the Soviet Union were not characterised by state withdrawal and malaise, as some scholars have argued. The book considers what these utopian ideas looked like through housing schemes, layouts of districts and cities, design of objects and interiors, and proposals for the organisation of family and social life. Relating developments in the Soviet Union to evolving social theory and postmodernism more broadly, the book draws transnational parallels between the intellectual history of east and west in the late twentieth century.

Modern China

Society, Culture and Literature

Edited by Geeta Kochhar, Assistant Professor, Centre for Chinese and South East Asian Studies, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi, India

This book looks at the transition of modern Chinese society in terms of its culture and literature. China is headed towards becoming an ultra-modern advanced society and a world superpower. Among the pillars of great change are the advances in technology and communication that have reshaped Chinese society. The book discusses China's social structure, aging population, gender stratification, marriages, cultural identity, cosmopolitanism, its history of communism, law, economic reforms, financial institutions, and challenges of the global markets. It sheds light on Chinese literature and media and brings out various facets of social changes across time.

Formatting Religion

Across Politics, Education, Media, and Law

Edited by Marius Timmann Mjaaland

Series: Ethics, Human Rights and Global Political Thought

Over the last two decades, people and institutions have been grappling with the role of religion in socio-cultural and political conflicts worldwide. This volume delves into these complexities and demonstrates the topical need for better understanding of how religion, culture, and law interact, especially in periods of transition. The volume analyse four processes for understanding the dynamics of formatting religion, in interaction with law, culture, and society: juridification, mediatization, politicization, and sacralization. It will be of great interest to scholars and researchers of religious studies, politics, media and culture studies, and sociology.

The Early Transnational Chinese Cinema Industry

Yongchun Fu

Series: Media, Culture and Social Change in Asia

Based on extensive original research including in studio archives, industrial surveys, official records, trade journals, and English and Chinese newspapers, this book explores the role of the American film industry in the development of cinema in China. It examines the Chinese industry's response to the American industry, and the consequences of this response. It also considers the attitudes of Chinese film practitioners towards Hollywood, and the contribution of those figures who acted as intermediaries between the two industries. Overall, the book casts much new light on the early development of the film industry in China and demonstrates the huge influence Hollywood had on this.

The International People's Tribunal for 1965 and the Indonesian Genocide

Edited by Saskia E. Wieringa, University of Amsterdam, The Netherlands, Jess Melvin and Annie Pohlman, University of Queensland, Australia

Series: Routledge Contemporary Southeast Asia Series

This book offers new and previously unpublished insights into the 1965 genocide in Indonesia and how the International People's Tribunal addressed the many forms of violence during this period. It systematically analyses the types of crimes committed during the massacres of 1965–1966 and how these crimes were prosecuted at the International People's Tribunal for 1965, held in The Hague in November 2015, to commemorate fifty years since the killings began. Divided thematically, each chapter analyses a different crime – enslavement, sexual violence, torture – perpetrated during the Indonesian killings.

The Land Question in China

Agrarian Capitalism, Industrious Revolution, and East Asian Development

Shaohua Zhan, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore

Series: Routledge Contemporary China Series

The Land Question in China traces the roots of the industrious revolution in China back to the 18th century, drawing comparisons between contemporary rural development and economic prosperity in the mid-Qing dynasty. In the context of neoliberal restructuring and the transfer of land use rights from peasants to large producers and urban investors, it argues that labour-intensive reforms may offer a solution to precarious urban employment and population pressure. Comparisons with South Africa and the East Asian economies of Japan, South Korea, and Taiwan further illustrate this, and help to develop a new interpretation of the industrious revolution and its contemporary relevance.

The International Politics of the Asia-Pacific

Fourth and Revised Edition

Michael Yahuda, London School of Economics & Political Science, London, UK

Series: Politics in Asia

This fully revised fourth edition brings the subject up-to-date, introducing students to the international politics of the Asia-Pacific region since 1945. As well as assessing the post-cold War uncertainties that challenged balance and power with the region, the book also examines the first two decades of the new millennium, which includes no let up on the 'war on terror', new political administrations and cooperative security between some nations.

Mapping Place Names of India

Anu Kapur, Delhi School of Economics, University of Delhi; Indian Institute of Advanced Study, Shimla; Nehru Memorial Museum & Library, Teen Murti, New Delhi, India

This book is the first of its kind to chart the terrain of contemporary India's many place names. It explores different 'place connections', investigates how places are named and renamed and looks at the forces that are remaking the future place name map of India. Lucid and accessible, this book explores the cultural geography of India and investigates the bonds between names, places and people through a unique amalgamation of toponymy, history, mythology and political studies.

Britain and the Arab Gulf after Empire

Kuwait, Bahrain, Qatar, and the United Arab Emirates, 1971-1981

Simon C. Smith, University of Hull, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Middle Eastern History

Although Britain's formal imperial role in the smaller, oil-rich sheikhdoms of the Arab Gulf – Kuwait, Bahrain, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates – ended in 1971, Britain continued to have a strong interest and continuing presence in the region. This book explores the nature of Britain's role after the formal end of empire. It traces the historical events of the post-imperial years, including the 1973 oil shock, the fall of the Shah in Iran and the beginnings of the Iran-Iraq War, considers the changing positions towards the region of other major world powers, including the United States, and engages with debates on the nature of empire and the end of empire.

Israel in a Turbulent Region

Security and Foreign Policy

Edited by Tore T. Petersen

Series: Routledge Studies in Middle Eastern Politics

Israel in a Turbulent Region examines and deconstructs what Israeli security looks like and how its various security identities have evolved both before the establishment of the state and in the years and decades since 1948. It casts light on how aspects of Israel's foreign relations have been shaped as much by internal politics as by external challenge. Further, not only does it answer the questions surrounding Israel's past, but examines carefully what type of country it has now become.

Patterns of Nationhood and Saving the State in Turkey

Ottomanism, Nationalism and Multiculturalism

Series: Routledge Studies in Middle Eastern Politics

Patterns of Nationhood and Saving the State in Turkey tackles a theoretical puzzle in understanding the state policy changes toward minorities and nationhood. First by placing the state in the historical context of the international system and second by unpacking the state through analyzing intra-elite competition in relation to the counter-discourses by minority groups within the context of Ottoman Empire and Turkey.

The book is an important contribution to studies in ethnicity and nationalism, therefore it is an essential resource for students and scholars interested in the Comparative Politics, Ottoman Empire, Turkey and Middle East Studies.

The Ottoman Empire in the Tanzimat Era

Provincial Perspectives from Ankara to Edirne

Yonca Köksal

Series: SOAS/Routledge Studies on the Middle East

This book is a new history of the Ottoman Empire's Tanzimat reforms in the provinces of Edirne and Ankara. It studies variation across the two provinces and the crucial role of local intermediaries such as notables, tribal leaders and merchants who at times undermined the power of the state but in other times worked hand-in-hand with state officials to build roads, improve infrastructure and provide security.

Modern Iran since 1797

Reform and Revolution

Ali Ansari, University of St Andrews, UK

Modern Iran since 1797 offers a comprehensive analysis of political, social and economic developments in Iran since the beginning of the nineteenth century. The book provides historical context for recent developments in and the complex nature of Iran's international relationships and its internal struggle to reconcile itself and its traditions with the modern world. Updated to incorporate new scholarship and research, as well as a substantive new prequel, and written in a clear, engaging style, the book highlights Iran as a state and society grappling with the realities of the modern age. It remains the perfect guide for all those studying the history of modern Iran.

Charging Steeds or Maidens Performing Good Deeds

In Search of the Original Qur'an

Munther Younes, Cornell University, USA

In Search of the Original Qur'an brings an important contribution to understanding of the development of the Qur'anic corpus. Through a selection of meaningful case studies, the author convincingly argues for a different interpretative approach to the Qur'anic text. It is demonstrated how a critical approach to the text can provide scholars with a better understanding of both the lost meaning of some terms or expressions in the Qur'anic corpus and the process that caused the alteration of the text or the distance between the original meaning and the later interpretative tradition.

Gender Equality and Genocide Prevention in Africa

The Responsibility to Protect

Serena Timmoneri

Examining whether states characterised by lower levels of gender equality are more likely to experience genocide, this book adds gender indicators to the existing early warning assessment for the prevention of genocide. Moreover, the book argues for the formulation of policies directed at the improvement of gender equality not just as a means to improve women's conditions but as a tool to reduce the risk of genocide and mass atrocities. Using case studies from Nigeria, Ethiopia, Angola, Uganda and Burundi, Timmoneri analyses recent atrocities and explores the role of gender equality as an indicator of potential genocide.

Child Rights and International Discrimination Law

Implementing Article 2 of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child

Edited by Marit Skivenes and Karl Harald Søvig

Series: Routledge Research in International Law

Societies and states are at a crossroad in how children are treated and how their rights are respected and protected. Children's new position and their strong rights create tensions and challenge the traditional relationships between family and the state. The United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child was adopted unanimously by the General Assembly of the United Nations in 1989 and came into force in 1990. Article 2 places states under an obligation to accord primacy to the best interests of the child in all actions concerning children and to ensure and regulate child protection.

Corporate Liability for Insider Trading

Edited by Juliette Overland, University of Sydney, Australia

Series: The Law of Financial Crime

Corporate Liability for Insider Trading examines the reasons why there have been no successful criminal prosecutions, or successful contested civil proceedings, against corporations for insider trading, and analyses the various rationales for prohibiting insider trading. It reviews the insider trading regulatory regime and describes its key features, using both national and international examples. The book inspects a variety of criminal and civil models of corporate liability and considers the historical and theoretical basis on which corporations are subject to insider trading laws.

Civil and Political Rights in Japan

A Tribute to Sir Nigel Rodley

Edited by Saul J. Takahashi, Business and Human Rights Resource Centre

Series: Routledge Research in Human Rights Law

At the review of Japan's implementation of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights in 2014, Professor Nigel Rodley, then chair of the UN Human Rights Committee, lamented the lack of true engagement from Japan and its unwillingness to take action on the conclusions of the UN. Equally worrying is the clear trend over recent years of popular publications bashing neighbouring countries and their nationals living in Japan as well as UN human rights bodies. This book addresses the topics with regard to human rights law and Japanese studies and will be of interest to researchers, academics, activists, and students in the fields of international law, comparative law, and Asian law.

Corruption in the Global Era

Causes, Sources and Forms of Manifestation

Edited by Lorenzo Pasculli, Kingston University London, UK and Nicholas Ryder

Series: The Law of Financial Crime

Corruption is a globalising phenomenon. Not only it is rapidly expanding globally, but, more significantly, its causes, its means and forms of perpetration and its effects are more and more rooted in the many developments of globalisation.

Corruption in the Global Era seeks to establish an interdisciplinary dialogue between theory and practice and between different disciplines and to provide a better understanding of the multifaceted aspects of corruption as a global phenomenon.

This book gathers top experts across various fields of both the academic and the professional world to analyse the causes and the forms of manifestation of corruption in the global context and in various sectors.

Criminal Punishment and Human Rights: Convenient Morality

Adnan Sattar

Series: Routledge Research in Human Rights Law

This book examines the relationship between international human rights discourse and the justifications for criminal punishment. It argues that human rights discourse, owing to its theoretical kinship with Kantian philosophy, embodies a paradoxical commitment to human dignity on the one hand, and retributive punishment on the other. Further, it sustains the split between criminal justice and social justice, which results in a sociologically ill-informed understanding of punishment. The underlying priorities, it is argued, have been shaped by a number of historical circumstances from the late nineteenth and early twentieth century.

Ecological Restoration Law

Concepts and Case Studies

Edited by Afshin Akhtar-Khavari, Griffith University, Australia and Benjamin J. Richardson

Series: Law, Justice and Ecology

Focusing on scientific, philosophical and governance perspectives rather than ill-suited doctrinal approaches, this book engages with broader debates about how restoration can reinvigorate environmental law, so that it can play a stronger role in the Anthropocene: critically investigating the philosophical and methodological issues of legal governance for the recovery of damaged ecosystems; and documenting, through a diverse range of case studies, instances of contemporary eco-restoration governance that illustrate these issues.

Extremism, Free Speech and Counter-Terrorism Law and Policy

Edited by Ian Cram

Series: Extremism and Democracy

This book explores the delicate balance between free speech and the censoring of views that either promote hatred or clash with fundamental democratic values. It does this by looking at the perspectives and level of disagreement between those who consider today's counter terrorism and extremism strategies to be a soft and liberal approach, and those who believe these strategies disproportionately impact freedom of expression, association and nonviolent political dissent.

This book will be of great interest to researchers and practitioners with interests in extremism, terrorism, civil rights and freedom of speech.

International 'Criminal' Responsibility

Antinomies

Ottavio Quirico, University of New England, Australia

Series: Routledge Research in International Law

International 'Criminal' Responsibility aims to help shed light on the relationship between the 'criminal' responsibility of individuals and States in international law, via a systemic analysis of relevant regulatory instruments. It provides a fresh perspective on core mechanisms of the international legal system, addressing the regulation of topical problems such as terrorism and war and addresses the topics with regard to international law. It will be of value to researchers, academics, and students in the fields of international criminal law, humanitarian law, and comparative criminal justice.

Law and Responsible Supply Chain Management

Contract and Tort Interplay and Overlap

Edited by Vibe Ulfbeck, University of Copenhagen, Denmark, Alexandra Andhov and Kateřina Mitkidis

Series: Routledge Research in Corporate Law

Corporate Social Responsibility has for long been on the agenda in the business world and recently, it has also become a political agenda in the EU. Focusing on international supply chains and their control based on studies of law in European jurisdictions, this book aims to advance the discussion on the application and enforcement of CSR. Drawing parallels to US and Canadian law, the book explores to what extent private law tools can be used as an enforcement device and it ultimately asks if what we are witnessing is the formation of a new area of law, employing the interplay of contract and tort – a law of "production liability", as a corollary of the concept of "product liability".

Lay and Expert Contributions to Japanese Criminal Justice

Erik Herber

This book examines the increased role and effect of legal 'outsiders' including lay judges, participating victims, forensic psychiatrists and other scientific experts in the Japanese criminal justice system. Against the background of the social and legal developments that have led to outsiders' changing role, the book addresses how their contributions affect the legal decisions taken. It also examines how they impact the roles as traditionally played by the legal insiders: lawyers, prosecutors and judges. The work has important implications for more general, long standing debates on the role of extra-legal knowledge in law in general, and the administration of justice in particular.

Legal Protection of Private Equity Investors in China

Practice, Challenges and Reform

Chi Zhang

Series: China Perspectives

This monograph aims to provide an in-depth analysis of the legal protection of the private equity (PE) investors in China. In an academic sense, this research mainly focuses on the agency problems in the life cycle of PE investment under the business organization law system in China. Briefly speaking, the agency problems of PE investment derive from the two-level separation of ownership and control, one of which is the principal-agent relationship between the PE investors and the fund manager, and the other is the principal-agent relationship between the PE shareholders and the management of investee companies.

Routledge Handbook of Islamic Law

Edited by Khaled Abou El Fadl, University of California Los Angeles (UCLA), USA and Ahmad Atif Ahmad

This book is a detailed reference source comprising of original articles covering the origins, theory and practice of Islamic law. Previous publications on this topic have approached Islamic law from practically every disciplinary and pedagogical perspective except that of the study of law. The real challenge is that there are a number of historical and doctrinal aspects of Islamic jurisprudence that cannot be properly evaluated unless the functions and processes of legal cultures and the patterns of legal thought are also taken into account. This book is an essential resource for students, scholars and readers who are interested in the field of Islamic law.

Local Content Oil and Gas Law in Africa

Lessons from Nigeria and Beyond

Pereowei Subai

Series: Routledge Research in Energy Law and Regulation

Examining local content law and policy in the oil and gas industry, this book uses Nigeria as a primary case study, comparing its approach to countries such as Brazil and Norway which have also adopted local content laws in relation to their gas and oil industries. In considering various aspects of local content law and policy as they apply to the oil and gas industry, the book examines the factors behind the formulation of local content policies by petroleum producing states, and the various strategies they have employed to implement them.

Shareholder Primacy and Global Business

Re-clothing the EU Corporate Law

Lela Mélon, Pompeu Fabra University, Spain

Series: Routledge Research in Corporate Law

This book deals with the issue of shareholder primacy and its externalities in corporate, social, and natural environment, aiming at educating the academic community as well as society at large about the shareholder primacy paradigm, its legal position and its (un)suitability for modern global business. The discussion is not solely legal: it entails legal principles and argumentation, as well as economic theoretic approaches and more importantly, real-life examples, making it an appropriate piece of reading also for individuals outside the academic circles.

Quasi-Constitutionality and Constitutional Statutes

Forms, Functions, Applications

Edited by Richard Albert, The University of Texas at Austin, USA and Joel I. Colón-Ríos

Series: Comparative Constitutional Change

This book examines the space between constitutional convention and a formal constitution in which quasi-constitutionality exists. It is divided into three Parts, each preceded by a critical introduction in which an expert contextualizes the chapters and offers reflections on the themes they develop. Part I addresses questions related to the recognition of constitutional statutes and quasi-constitutional legislation. Part II explores the explanatory power of quasi-constitutionality in different institutional contexts. Part III considers the ways in which constitutional statutes and quasi-constitutionality operate in relation to particular tensions and debates in various jurisdictions.

The 'Ecosystem Approach' in International Environmental Law

Genealogy and Biopolitics

Series: Law, Justice and Ecology

This book addresses whether the ecosystem approach represents a paradigm shift in international environmental law and governance, or whether it is, rather, in a counterproductive conceptual and operative continuity with legal modernity. The ecosystem approach, it is argued here, must be understood as both signalling the potential for a decisive shift in the philosophical orientation of law and the operationalisation of a biopolitical framework of control that is in continuity with, and even intensifies, the eco-destructive tendencies of legal modernity.

The Extraterritoriality of Law

History, Theory, Politics

Edited by Daniel S. Margolies, Umut Özsu, Maia Pal and Ntina Tzouvala

Series: Politics of Transnational Law

Issues of extraterritoriality figure prominently in scholarship on civil and criminal jurisdiction, global legal pluralism, transnational legal studies, international investment law, international human rights law, state responsibility under international law, and a variety of other areas. Yet many scholarly accounts of legal extraterritoriality make little effort to grapple with its thorny conceptual history and shifting theoretical valence. This volume offers an interdisciplinary approach to the legal history and theory of extraterritoriality.

The Patentability of Software

Software as Mathematics

Anton Hughes, Maurice Byers Chambers, Australia

Series: Routledge Research in Intellectual Property

This book explores the question of whether software should be patented. It analyses the ways in which courts in the US, the EU and Australia have attempted to deal with the problems surrounding the patentability of software. Anton Hughes demonstrates that the current approach has failed and that a fresh approach is needed. The book goes on to argue against the patentability of software based on its close relationship to mathematics, and offers a theory of patentable subject matter consistent with Australian, American and European patent law.

Ends and Means in Policing

John Kleinig

Series: Routledge Innovations in Policing

Policing is a highly pragmatic occupation. It is designed to achieve the important social ends of peacekeeping and public safety, and is empowered to do so using means that are ordinarily seen as problematic, that is, the use of force, deception, and invasions of privacy, along with considerable discretion. This book explores, from a philosophical perspective, the relationship between ends and means and the contested history both in moral/practical reasoning and public policy. John Kleinig explores the dialectic of ends and means (whether the ends justify the means or whether the ends never justify the means) and offers a new, sharpened perspective on police ethics.

Series: Routledge Innovations in Corrections

Recalibrating Juvenile Detention chronicles the lessons learned from the 2007–2015 landmark U.S. District Court-ordered reform of the Cook County Juvenile Temporary Detention Center (JTDC) in Illinois, following years of litigation by the ACLU about egregious and unconstitutional conditions of confinement. In addition to explaining the implications of the Court's actions, the book includes an analysis of a major evaluation research report by the University of Chicago Crime Lab, and explains for scholars, practitioners, administrators, policymakers, and advocates how and why this particular reform of conditions achieved successful outcomes when others failed.

The Crimes of Wildlife Trafficking

Issues of Justice, Legality and Morality

Ragnhild Aslaug Sollund

Series: Green Criminology

This book examines trade and trafficking in endangered animal species. While the focus is on illegal trafficking, its wider aim is to discuss the harmful aspects of the trade and trafficking which is taking place in concordance with laws and regulations. Drawing on the findings of empirical research from Norway and Colombia, the study discusses how this global, transnational trend is increasingly putting large numbers of non-human species at risk. It also explores the motives driving the trade, and the consequences in terms of animal abuse and environmental harm. The book discusses whether internationally agreed measures, such as international conventions, actually help prevent the trade.

Corrections in the Community

Edward J. Latessa, University of Cincinnati, USA and Brian Lovins

Corrections in the Community examines the current state of community corrections and proposes an evidence-based approach to making programs more effective. As U.S. prison systems continue to struggle, options like probation, parole, alternative sentencing, and both residential and non-residential programs in the community continue to grow in importance. This text provides a solid foundation and includes the most salient information available on the broad and dynamic subject of community corrections. This book provides students with a thorough understanding of the theoretical and practical aspects of community corrections and prepares them to evaluate and strengthen these crucial programs.

3rd Edition • TEXTBOOK • READER

Crime, Justice and the Media

Ian Marsh, Liverpool Hope University, UK and Gaynor Melville, Liverpool Hope University, UK

Crime, Justice and the Media examines and analyses the relationship between the media and crime, criminals and the criminal justice system. This third edition offers a clear, accessible and comprehensive analysis of theoretical thinking on the relationship between the media, crime and criminal justice and a detailed examination of how crime, criminals and others involved in the criminal justice process are portrayed by the media. With exercises, questions and further reading in every chapter, this book encourages students to engage with and respond to the material presented, thereby developing a deeper understanding of the links between the media and criminality.

Perilous Policing

Criminal Justice in Marginalized Communities

Edited by Thomas Nolan

Perilous Policing provides an interrogatory to law enforcement practices and policies as they continue to evolve during an era of uncertainty and anxiety. Key topics include the police and marginalized populations, the use of technology for surveillance, the Black Lives Matter movement and the erosion of the police narrative, the use of force against people of color, the role of the police in immigration enforcement, the "war on cops," and police militarization. This critique will be of interest to advanced undergraduates and graduates in Policing, Criminology, Justice Studies, and Criminal Justice programs, as well as to researchers, law enforcement professionals,

Intimate Partner Violence

New Perspectives in Research and Practice

Edited by Elizabeth A. Bates, University of Cumbria, UK and Julie C. Taylor, University of Cumbria, UK

Since the 1970s the issue of intimate partner violence (IPV) has been explained through the patriarchal desire of men to control and dominate women, but this gendered perspective limits both our understanding of IPV and its treatment. In this challenging new book, with contributions from both the UK and US, the subject is assessed from a more holistic position.

Providing a nuanced understanding of male violence, as well consideration of male victims, IPV within the LGBTQ+ community, perceptions of perpetrators and victims, and IPV within adolescent populations, it culminates with a series of evidence based recommendations to bridge the divide between academic and practitioner stakeholders.

Progressive Justice in an Age of Repression

Strategies for Challenging the Rise of the Right

Edited by Walter S. DeKeseredy, West Virginia University, USA and Elliott Currie, University of California Irvine, USA

Progressive Justice in an Age of Repression provides a much-needed engagement with questions of justice and reform within the current phase of global capitalism, one that is marked not only by significant social inequality, but also political bifurcation. It offers guidance on progressive strategies for resistance. This is an important read for those who teach and study criminology, deviance and social control, social problems, legal studies, political science, and policy studies. It is also a useful resource for practitioners, community-based activists, and policy makers seeking new ways of thinking critically about crime, law, and social control.

Restorative and Responsive Human Services

Edited by Gale Burford, John Braithwaite and Valerie Braithwaite

In Restorative and Responsive Human Services, Burford, Braithwaite, and Braithwaite bring together material showing that other fields can learn rich lessons from human services about the importance of being relational, healing, and empowering—in other words, through restorative practices. Restorative justice must be strategically integrated with a range of other strategies enabling restorative justice and learning as options of first choice. This requires integration of restorative justice with responsive regulation, a practice that this book shows how to do for challenges that range from sexual misconduct in universities to securing welfare rights and righting the wrongs of Jim Crow laws.

The Rise and Fall of the Rehabilitative Ideal, 1895-1970Edited by Victor Bailey

Drawing on a plethora of source material, such as measures of public opinion, prisoner memoirs, publications of penal reform groups and prison officers, and the research of the first cadre of criminologists, this book comprehensively examines a number of aspects of the British penal system, including judicial sentencing, law-making, and the administration of legal penalties. In doing so, Victor Bailey expertly weaves a complex and nuanced picture of punishment in twentieth-century England and Wales, that goes beyond the treatment of offenders after sentence and will force historians to revise their interpretation of twentieth-century social and penal policy.

Business Ethics After the Global Financial Crisis

Lessons from The Crash

Edited by Christopher Cowton, University of Warwick, UK and Tom Sorell, University of Warwick, UK
Series: Routledge Studies in Business Ethics

This book focuses on business ethics after the GFC; not on the crisis itself, but how we should respond to it. The GFC has focused minds on the proper role of ethics in the understanding and conduct of business activity, but it is essential to look beyond the crisis to address the deeper challenges that it highlights.

Frugal Innovation and the New Product Development Process

Insights from Indonesia

Edited by Stephanie B.M. Cadeddu, Swinburne University of Technology, Australia, Jerome D. Donovan, Swinburne University, Australia, Cheree Topple, Swinburne University of Technology, Australia, Gerrit A. de Waal, RMIT University, Australia and Eryadi K. Masli, Swinburne University of Technology, Australia; Ministry of Planning and Investment, Socialist Republic of Vietnam; Ministry of Planning and Investment, Lao People's Democratic Republic

Series: Routledge Advances in Management and Business Studies

This book looks at frugal innovation from a New Product Development (NPD) approach for the bottom-of-pyramid (BOP) markets in developing economies. It explores how frugal innovators manage the process of developing new products for these markets through a case study in Indonesia. It illustrates how frugal innovation has been critical in the development of a cook stove and water filtration solution for the Indonesian BOP market. The book is a useful reference to those who wish to understand the key management practices in the development of such innovations for BOP markets in developing countries.

Good Dividends

Responsible Leadership of Business Purpose

Edited by Steve Kempster, University of Lancaster, UK, Thomas Maak and Ken Parry

Series: Routledge Studies in Leadership Research

This book seeks to answer the question of 'leadership for what?' We shall outline an answer by focusing on responsible leadership of purpose through an inter-disciplinary perspective. Responsible leadership moves the axis of leadership from leader-followers to leader-stakeholders; away from looking at leadership as person-centric – the qualities, abilities, and effectiveness of the leader, to a focus on the purposes, responsibilities and activities of leadership. Leadership orientation is about realising value for a range of constituencies, not just the shareholders of the business.

Human Resource Management and Digitalization

Edited by Franca Cantoni, Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore, Italy and Gianluigi Mangia, University of Naples Federico II, Italy

Series: Routledge-Giappichelli Studies in Business and Management

This book offers a new way of thinking on the nature of the relationship between HR and technology. It examines the influence of Industry 4.0 and Innovation 4.0, (i.e. the connection between physical and digital processes in industrial production, where human competencies and machine potential are strictly interconnected throughout the entire value chain), from a myriad of viewpoints: namely in terms of structures, practices, influences (learning, training and communication), competencies and roles. A chapter is also dedicated to the understanding of the impact of Innovation 4.0, in European Universities through E-learning Experiences where a multiple-case study analysis is provided.

Institutions and Accounting Practices after the Financial Crisis

International Perspective

Edited by Victoria Krivogorsky

Series: Routledge Studies in Accounting

Institutions and Accounting Practices after the Financial Crisis sets out a framework for the analysis of institutional environments and accounting practices in selected countries around the world during the pre-crisis period, followed by an examination of the impact of the crisis. It scrutinizes the changing roles of debt and equity markets; the shift in accounting practices and capital financing choices due to the economic downturn; and the lessons that can be obtained from the financial crisis, while considering the institutional architecture of international business environments.

Leading in the Age of Innovations

Change of Values and Approaches

Edited by Lenka Theodoulides, Gabriela Kormanová and David Cole

Series: Routledge Studies in Leadership Research

Leading in the Age of Innovations centres on the need for a more complex process-relational oriented approach to leadership. The complexity of leadership has grown significantly during the 21st century where the need to adapt to the escalating changes in our society and workplace forms one of the most important prerequisites to succeed. This book represents the outcomes of the lengthy scientific work that was undertaken for the past 10 years and it is still an ongoing process. This book introduces a new concept of leadership based on the process and relational dimensions which resulted in the development of the Reflective Leadership concept.

Managing Complexity and Creating Innovation through Design

Edited by Satu Miettinen, Stanford University, USA and Melanie Sarantou, University of Lapland, Finland

The book proposes design and design research as a solution to respond to the complexities associated with the intensifying and rapid changes in societies, technological fields and environments. A four-step design process for managing complexities is introduced in the four parts of this book, spanning from design research in the field to practice-based contexts. This publication collates high-level research and the latest scholarship on this topic, while many of the case studies described herein draw on rich experiences and applications in practice.

Older Workforces

Re-imagining Later Life Learning

Domini Bingham

The author considers how an organisation might shift its strategic processes to offer a holistic workforce opportunity of value to both employee and employer, as it is cognitive skills that will be needed in future workforces. Emphasising the area of work agency and the human right to learning, this book turns ageing and learning in workplaces on its head, seeing older workers as vessels of untapped potential. It re-imagines their possibilities in a time of intense demographic and digital change. This book will be a pragmatic guide to academics, researchers and practitioners in the fields of workplace learning, human resource development, social policy and diversity.

Organizational Theory and Aesthetic Philosophies

Antonio Strati

Series: Routledge Studies in Management, Organizations and Society

Organizational Theory and Aesthetic Philosophies will illustrate and discuss this complex phenomenon, and it will be dedicated to highlight the philosophical basis of the study of aesthetics, art and design in organization. The book distinguishes three principal "philosophical sensibilities" amongst these philosophies: aesthetic, hermeneutic and performative philosophical sensibility. Each of them is described and critically assessed through the work of philosophers, art theorists, sociologists and social scientists who represent its main protagonists.

Social Justice and Islamic Economics

Theory, Issues and Practice

Edited by Toseef Azid, Qassim University, College of Business and Economics, Saudi Arabia and Lutfi Sunar, University of Istanbul, Turkey

Series: Islamic Business and Finance Series

Under the rule of the current economic order, social injustice is ever-increasing. Issues such as poverty, inhumane working conditions, inadequate wages, social insecurity and an unhealthy labor market continue to persist. This book uniquely connects social justice and Islamic finance and economics on this topic. Based on the writings of a number of eminent scholars, this book argues that an alternative and more equitable theoretical and practical economic order can be developed within the framework of Islamic principles.

Strategic Corporate Social Responsibility in Malaysia

Edited by Rusnah Muhamad, University of Malaya, Malaysia and Noor Akma Mohd Salleh, University of Malaya, Malaysia

Series: Routledge Research in Sustainability and Business

To fully comprehend corporate social responsibility (CSR), corporations must understand the many-sided nature of CSR. This book provides insight into the theoretical foundation, beliefs, and expectations of the multiple stakeholders; the governance of CSR commitment; and corporations' strategies associated with the design, development, implementation and communication strategies for CSR through the case study on Malaysia. The book also explains why corporations should pursue a dual economic and social function and why it being critical to an organisation's success. It also describes the CSR trends and influences such as sustainability and globalisation on the future of CSR.

Strategic Human Resource Management

A Research Overview

John Storey, Open University, UK, Dave Ulrich, University of Michigan, USA and Patrick M. Wright, University of South Carolina, USA

Series: State of the Art in Business Research

Strategic Human Resource Management: A Research Overview, authored by global research leaders, provides an expert summary of this crucial element of organizational performance. This new shortform book develops the argument that one of the crucial elements of organizational performance is the way work is organized in skill and talent packages both within an organization's boundary and across global competency clusters. Secondly, it focuses on current and emergent challenges.

Trade Unions in the Course of European Integration

The Social Construction of Organized Interests

Martin Seeliger, European University of Flensburg, Germany
Series: Routledge Research in Employment Relations

With its focus on a contested political field, this book contributes to practical and theoretical debates within European trade unionism. As an adequate understanding of European trade unionism in general and collective bargaining requires a twofold perspective on European integration and the role of trade unions in European labor relations, two fields of scholarly interest are being addressed. Moreover, with its focus on European trade unionism as an internationalist project of labor politics, the book will appeal to those interested in the field of Global Labor Studies.

Africapitalism

Sustainable Business and Development in Africa

Edited by Uwafiokun Idemudia, York University, Canada and Kenneth Amaeshi, University of Edinburgh, UK

Using theory, empirical research and case studies, this book explores the changing nature of business in Africa and how businesses can actively contribute to the development of Africa. It uses (and critically analyses) the concept of Africapitalism – a management idea and movement which seeks to blend the best of African values and Western management theories as a basis for sustainable development in Africa – to understand the subtle factors that underpin business decisions in Africa.

Family Practice in the Eastern Mediterranean Region

Universal Health Coverage and Quality Primary Care

Edited by Hassan Salah and Michael Kidd

Series: WONCA Family Medicine

This is the first book to analyze in depth the current causes of shortage of family physicians and the relative weakness of the family practice model in many countries in the Eastern Mediterranean Region. Focusing on engagement with the private health sector in scaling up family practice, the book explores why primary health care can make the difference and how it can be introduced and strengthened. Comparative experiences from around the world put the EMR in context, while the book also highlights where the EMR is special – in particular, the burden for health care of refugees and displaced persons, and the need of public-private partnerships.

Innovation Crisis

Successes, Pitfalls, and Solutions in Japan

Eiichi Yamaguchi

What has gone wrong in Japan that has led to this innovation crisis? This quest spanned 18 years and several academic disciplines, and initially it appeared it had no context. But only after putting all the different pieces together did Prof. Yamaguchi realize that it was actually one story. In this completely new, meaningful, and interesting book, he integrates his research on innovation policy, innovation theory, and trans-science. He begins the book with a detailed story of the innovation of blue LEDs for which three Japanese scientists received Nobel Prize in physics in 2014.

Lean Implementation in Hospital Departments

How to Move from Good to Great Services

A. Heri Iswanto

The book also demonstrates how Lean is the cultural commitment of organizations to implement the scientific method in designing, conducting, and improving work sustainably through teamwork, bringing in better value and satisfaction to the patient. It shortens the time between ordering and service delivery by eliminating waste from the service flow value. The author uses numerous examples of Lean thinking in various hospital departments with the overall goal of taking that department from good to great.

Mobile Marketing Management

Case Studies from Successful Practices

Hongbing Hua

Mobile Marketing Management lays the foundation for the new era with four pillars: service, substance, superuser, space, known as 4S theory for short. In view of the concept of customer-first, it is all about service, and products become productized service concepts. In view of the failure of mass communication, the competition among all services becomes the competition of substance differentiation. Regarding the popularity of self-organization, it becomes a trend to cooperate with people rather than the company to develop the market. In view of the principle of fuzzy market boundary, the enterprises shall optimize their living space and evolve their development space.

Perspectives on Impact

Leading Voices On Making Systemic Change in the Twenty-First Century

Edited by Nina Montgomery

This book offers a snapshot of how the 'impact' industry is tackling the complex, multi-dimensional challenges facing our world. The book's chapters apply a systems thinking lens to (1) dimensionalize various approaches to social change, and (2) call for greater cross-sectoral and interdisciplinary collaboration to create sustainable solutions to today's biggest problems.

Phoenix Rising – Leadership + Innovation in the New Economy

Lessons in Long-Term Thinking from Global Family Enterprises

Florence C. Tsai

Over the years, the authors have been contacted by the founders of numerous Chinese businesses who want to know how to develop the next generation, what types of career paths they should have to be successful, and what roles they should assume in the family enterprise. This book specifically addresses the challenges of China's business families because they face a distinct set of challenges including having only one child, a socialist government with capitalist characteristics, and a hypercompetitive market that changes faster than any other globally. Since Chinese entrepreneurs have not local role models or precedents to follow, they must look beyond its borders for ideas.

Practice Theory in Action

Empirical Studies of Interaction in Innovation and Entrepreneurship

Betsy Campbell, Krause Innovation Studio, Pennsylvania State University, USA

This comprehensive guide explores intra-team interaction in workplace settings devoted to technological breakthroughs and innovative entrepreneurship. It examines the authentic conversations of teams in action rather than the performance language of pitches. This book is intended to serve as an invaluable sourcebook for scholars and students interested in innovation, entrepreneurship, and organizations as well as those focused on applied conversation analysis. The book's insights are presented in a richly detailed manner while remaining accessible to readers who are new to the methodologies and activity contexts.

Public Value

Deepening, Enriching, and Broadening the Theory and Practice of Creating Public Value

Edited by Adam Lindgreen, Mark H Kitchener, John D Brewer, Mark Moore, Timo Meynhardt, University of St. Gallen, Switzerland and Nicole Koenig-Lewis

Over the last 10 years, the concept of value has emerged in business and public life as part of an important process of measuring, benchmarking and assuring the resources we invest and the outcomes we generate from our activities. In the context of public life, value is an important measure on the contribution to business and social good of activities for which strict financial measures are inappropriate or fundamentally unsound. This ground-breaking research anthology explores public value across a range of contextually and culturally diverse examples including public management (leadership, voluntary activity, knowledge management); cultural heritage; education and research.

Quality Beyond Borders

Dantotsu or How to Achieve Best in Business

David Hutchins

David Hutchins explores the cultural basis for the divergence between West and East before he concentrates on the quality related responsibilities of each of the most common organisational roles to be found in industry including that of the top management team and the Chief Executive. He explains how all of the activities covered can be integrated into a company wide programme intended to make that organisation the best in its business; in Japanese terms Dantotsu meaning Number One Thinking. It is a valuable resource for business practitioners, students and academics alike that will enable you to reach beyond your own borders to implement new ideas with significant results.

The Projectification of the Public Sector

Edited by Damian Hodgson, Manchester Business School, UK, Mats Fred, Malmö University, Sweden, Simon Bailey, at Manchester Business School, UK and Patrik Hall, Malmö University, Sweden

Series: Routledge Critical Studies in Public Management

Despite its popularity at the national and supra-national levels, there has been little critical attention directed towards projectification in the public sector within social sciences in general. In this book, we draw together research from a range of academic fields, from organisation theory to social policy, from regional studies and political science to innovation research, to develop a critical and theoretically informed analysis of the causes, nature and consequences of the projectification of the public sector.

Cooperatives, the State, and Corporate Power in African Export Agriculture

The Case of Uganda's Coffee Sector

Karin Wedig, German Society for International Cooperation (GIZ)

Series: New Political Economy

Agriculture still contributes more to Africa's GDP than any other sector, and small farms are the largest food producer and a major source of employment and export earnings. However, productivity remains low and destitution among small producers is widespread. This book explores the strengths and weaknesses of the recently celebrated revival of Africa's cooperatives. Supported by wide-ranging interdisciplinary evidence, including new ethnographic survey and interview data, Wedig shows how cooperatives may be co-opted by the state and corporations in a discourse that ignores structural inequalities and emphasizes poverty reduction over economic and political empowerment.

Co-produced Economies

Capital, Collaboration, Competition

Ray Hudson, University of Durham, UK

In recent decades, many advanced capitalist economies in the Global North have experienced a decline in manufacturing industry and an increase in the service sector. At the same time, there has been a substantial manufacturing growth in a number of countries in the Global South. Why have these change occurred? What have been their economic and ecological consequences? How can we best understand the way the contemporary economy functions? This book explores the answers to these questions, proposing that the contemporary capitalist economy is best understood as a complex socio-spatial system of co-production involving relations between people, things and non-human entities.

Discourse Analysis and Austerity

Critical Studies from Economics and Linguistics

Edited by Kate Power, Tanweer Ali and Eva Lebušková

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

In the immediate aftermath of the global financial crisis of 2008, governments around the developed world coordinated policy moves to stimulate economic activity and avert a depression. In subsequent years, however, cuts to public expenditure, or austerity, have become the dominant narrative in public debate on economic policy.

This unique collaboration between economists and linguists examines manifestations of the discourses of austerity.

Economics of Water Resources

Institutions, Instruments and Policies for Managing Scarcity

Mary E. Renwick

Water is becoming an increasingly scarce commodity in many parts of the world. Population growth plus a growing appetite for larger quantities of cheap water quality as a result of urban, industrial, and agricultural pollution coupled with increasing environmental demands have further reduced usable supplies. This book brings together thirty of the best economic articles addressing water scarcity issues within the US and Mexico. By touching on a number of different issues, this volume clearly articulates the need for improving existing institutional arrangements as well as for developing new arrangements to address growing water scarcity problems.

Internationalization of the RMB

Currency Strategy in the "Belt and Road" Construction

International Monetary Institute of the RUC, Renmin University of China

Series: China Perspectives

Renminbi (RMB) internationalization and the "Belt and Road" initiative are two important development strategies launched by China. From the perspectives of theoretical exploration, historical experience and empirical research, this book discusses how the two strategies interact with each other. Firstly, it studies the current situation of RMB internationalization and the Silk Road. Then it examines the mutually beneficial relationship between the two strategies, emphasizing that pricing and settlement of commodities, infrastructure financing, industry development zone construction, and cross-border e-commerce in the "Belt and Road" countries should be the key to RMB internationalization.

Money, Inflation and Business Cycles

The Cantillon Effect and the Economy

Arkadiusz Sieroń, University of Wrocław

Series: Routledge International Studies in Money and Banking

This book provides the first systematic study of the Cantillon effect and its impact on the economy. The author classifies the various channels through which new money can be injected into the economy and shows that it is not only the increase in money supply that is important, but also the way in which it occurs. Since the increase in money supply does not affect the cash balance of all economic entities in the same proportion and at the same time, a distribution of income and changes in the structure of relative prices and production occur. It is an important contribution to the debate on the role of monetary factors in the economy, and the effects and legitimacy of a loose monetary policy.

Applied Econometrics

A Practical Guide

Chung-ki Min, Hankuk University of Foreign Studies, South Korea

Series: Routledge Advanced Texts in Economics and Finance

Applied Econometrics is an extremely user-friendly and application-focused book to econometrics. Unlike many econometrics textbooks which are heavily theoretical and conceptual, this book is perfect for beginners and promises simplicity and practicality to understanding of econometric models. The book also illustrates the use of computer software EViews, SAS and R for economic estimating and modeling. Its practical applications make the book an instrumental, go-to guide for solid foundation in the fundamentals of econometrics.

Common Factor Analysis for Empirical Researchers

Donggyu Sul, University of Texas at Dallas, USA

Over the last 20 years, econometric theory on panel data analysis has been developing very rapidly but the statistical methods employed by applied researchers across the social sciences have not been kept up-to-date. This book teaches researchers how to use the latest panel estimation methods correctly. The book explains how to model cross-sectional dependence, how to estimate a few key common variables, and how to identify them. It also provides guidance on how to separate out the long run relationship and common dynamic and idiosyncratic dynamic relationships from a set of panel data. A full range of online teaching and learning materials are provided to complement the text.

Reforming Global Economic Governance

An Unsettled Order

Carlo Monticelli, Council of Europe Development Bank

Series: Economics in the Real World

The architecture of global economic and financial governance is undergoing a deep and pervasive transformation with the emerging economies on their way to becoming far more important and influential in both the International Financial Institutions and the more informal groups. So far, all of this happening without an active contribution by Europe but this book contends that Europe should marshal a stronger international position, starting with a more effective representation in International Financial Institutions, which would be beneficial to both Europe and the effectiveness of global governance.

Balkanization and Global Politics

Remaking Cities and Architecture

Edited by Nikolina Bobic, Plymouth University, UK
Series: Routledge Studies in Urbanism and the City

Ever-increasingly countries, states and regions are voicing a desire to be autonomous through a process of balkanization. This book explores the historical emergence, interdisciplinary application and current sociospatial reasons why more places are seeking self-governance around the world. The spatialization of balkanization is particularly addressed in terms of destruction and renewal through a detailed sociopolitical interrogation of architecture and the urban, including their changing symbolic and functional forms. The book will be relevant to academics and students interested in spatial politics and across disciplines such as Geography, Politics, Architecture and Urban Studies.

Hydrophilia Unbounded

Edited by Ronan Foley, Maynooth University, Ireland, Robin Kearns, University of Auckland, New Zealand, Thomas Kistemann, University of Bonn, Germany and Ben Wheeler, University of Exeter, United Kingdom

Series: Geographies of Health Series

Research in health geographies has seen the ongoing development of therapeutic landscapes. Emerging contemporary research explores nature-based health and health-enabling places. This book asks questions about the relationships between water, health and well-being. The interdisciplinary research lens means this book will be extremely valuable to human geographers and cultural geographers. It will also appeal to practitioners and researchers interested in environmental health, leisure and tourism, mental health and swimming.

Culture and Society

Critical Essays in Human Geography

Edited by Nuala C. Johnson

Human geographers have been at the forefront of research that examines the relationships between space, culture and society. This volume contains twenty-one essays, published over the past thirty years, that are iconic instances of this investigative field. With a focus on four broad themes - landscape, identity, colonialism, nature - these essays represent some of the best and most innovative interventions that geographers have made on these topics. From the visual to the corporeal, from rural Ceylon to urban America and from the sixteenth century to the twenty-first, this volume brings together a set of theoretically sophisticated and empirically grounded works.

Events, Places and Societies

Edited by Nicholas Wise, Liverpool John Moores University, UK and John Harris, Glasgow Caledonian University, UK

Events can be synonymous with a particular place, helping shape and promote a location. Given the rise of the global events industry, this book uncovers how events impact upon places and societies, looking at a range of different events and geographical scales. Geographers are concerned with how notions of space and place impact people, communities and identity, and events have played a central role in how places are perceived, consumed and even contested. This international edited collection will appeal to academics across disciplines such as geography, planning and sociology, as well as students on Events management and Events Studies courses.

Tourism and Everyday Life in the Contemporary City

Edited by Thomas Frisch, University of Hamburg, Germany, Christoph Sommer, Humboldt University Berlin, Germany, Luise Stoltenberg, University Hamburg, Germany and Natalie Stors, Trier University, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Urbanism and the City

This book explores the phenomena of the urban every day and new urban tourism. It provides a systematic framework, and draws on a mix of theoretical and empirical work from different perspectives to explore the increasing intermingling of 'tourists' and residents to create, consume and experience everyday life.

Tourism and urban everyday life are deeply connected in a mutually constitutive way. Tourism has become a key momentum of urban development and affects cities beyond its economic dimension. This book will be very useful for students and researchers across fields such as Tourism and Mobility Studies, Urban Studies, Leisure Studies, Tourism Geography and Tourism Sociology.

Image Analysis, Classification and Change Detection in Remote Sensing

With Algorithms for Python, Fourth Edition

Morton John Canty, Juelich Research Center, Germany

This fourth edition is focused on the development and implementation of statistically motivated, data-driven techniques through a tight interweaving of statistical and machine learning theory with algorithms and computer codes. The material is self-contained and illustrated with many programming examples. New in the fourth edition is an in-depth treatment of a recent Wishart distribution-based sequential change detection algorithm for polarimetric SAR image time series, as well as an introduction to deep learning in the context of supervised land-use classification. It includes Python (open source) versions of all of the main image analysis algorithms making it accessible to all readers.

Demobilisation and Reintegration in Colombia

Building State and Citizenship

Francy Carranza-Franco

Series: Routledge Studies in Latin American Development

This book investigates demobilisation, disarmament and reintegration (DDR) in Colombia during the 20th and 21st century. The author analyses the role of DDR programmes in building state and citizenship and details the process of creating and implementing DDR policy, exploring the difficulties, challenges and security dilemmas ex-combatants may face in integrating within a post-conflict society in social, economic and political dimensions. This book will be of interest to scholars and researchers of politics and development in Colombia, and to those with an interest in peace-building, state-building and DDR in other countries and conflicts.

Negotiating Gender Equity in the Global South (Open Access)

The Politics of Domestic Violence Policy

Edited by Sohela Nazneen, Sam Hickey and Eleni Sifaki

Series: Routledge ISS Gender, Sexuality and Development Studies

This book uncovers the multiple political dynamics that influence governments to adopt and implement gender equity policies, pushing the debate beyond simply the role of women's inclusion in influencing policy. It proposes the new concept of 'power domains' as a way to capture how inter-elite bargaining, coalitional politics and social movement activism combine to shape policies that promote gender equity. Negotiating Gender Equity in the Global South will be of interest to students and scholars of gender and development, as well as to activists within governments, political parties, non-governmental organisations, women's movements, and donor agencies.

Urban Poverty in the Wake of Environmental Disaster

Rehabilitation, Resilience and Typhoon Haiyan (Yolanda)

Edited by Maria Ela Atienza, Pauline Eadie and May Tan-Mullins

Series: Routledge Humanitarian Studies

This book investigates the best strategies for poverty alleviation in post-disaster urban environments, and the conditions necessary for the success and scaling up of these strategies. Using the case study of typhoon Yolanda (Haiyan), the strongest typhoon ever to make landfall, the book aims to draw out policy recommendations relevant for other Middle and Lower Income Countries facing similar urban environmental challenges. It has significant implications for disaster risk reduction as it relates to the urban poor and is highly recommended for scholars and practitioners of development studies, environment studies, and disaster relief and risk reduction.

Urban Social Sustainability

Theory, Policy and Practice

Edited by M. Reza Shirazi and Ramin Keivani

Series: Routledge Studies in Sustainability

This ground breaking volume raises radical critiques and proposes innovative solutions for social sustainability in the built environment. Urban Social Sustainability provides an in-depth insight into the discourse and argues that every urban intervention has a social sustainability dimension which needs to be taken into consideration, and incorporated into a comprehensive and cohesive 'urban agenda' that is built on three principles of recognition, integration and monitoring.

Foreign Aid in the Age of Populism

Political Economy Analysis from Washington to Beijing

Viktor Jakupec and Max Kelly

Series: Rethinking Development

The Western dominated international aid system is being challenged by the rise of right-wing populism, the advance of illiberal democracy and the emergence of non-Western donors. This book explores the impact of these challenges on development aid, arguing that there is a need to bring politics and power relations back into the discussion. In particular, the book proposes new frameworks for political economy analysis for us to better understand development aid interventions. This book is perfect for students and researchers of development, politics and international relations, as well as also being useful for practitioners and policy makers within government and aid organizations.

Postdevelopment in Practice

Alternatives, Economies, Ontologies

Edited by Elise Klein and Carlos Eduardo Morreo

Series: Routledge Critical Development Studies

In recent years advocates of postdevelopment and critical development studies have exposed areas where development institutions and practices have in fact served to make the lives of the poor worse. Postdevelopment in Practice looks at how postdevelopment principles actually work in practice, by revealing how actors in and out of development already follow postdevelopment practices, and suggesting alternative future pathways. Students, scholars and practitioners in critical development and postdevelopment studies will find this book an important guide to applying theory to practice.

The Circular Economy and the Global South

Sustainable Lifestyles and Green Industrial Development

Edited by Patrick Schröder, Manisha Anantharaman, Kartika Anggraeni and Timothy J. Foxon

Series: Pathways to Sustainability

This book examines the relevance of the circular economy in the context of developing countries, something which to date is little understood. It illustrates, using case studies including Argentina, Brazil, China, Colombia, India, Indonesia, Kenya, South Africa, and Thailand, how the circular economy can be used as a new lens and possible solution to cross-cutting development issues of pollution and waste, employment, health, urbanisation and green industrialisation. This book is relevant to students and scholars studying sustainability in economics, business studies,

Heart- and Soul-Like Constructs across Languages, Cultures, and Epochs

Edited by Bert Peeters, Honorary Associate Professor in the School of Literature, Languages and Linguistics at Australian National University and Adjunct Associate Professor in the School of Humanities, Languages and Social Science at Griffith University, Australia.

Series: Routledge Studies in Linguistics

All languages and cultures appear to have one or more "mind-like" constructs that supplement the human body. Linguistic evidence suggests they all have a word for someone, and another word for body, but that doesn't mean that whatever else makes up a human being (i.e. someone) apart from the body is the same everywhere. Nonetheless, the (Anglo) minds often reified and thought of in universal terms. This volume adds to the literature that denounces such reification. It looks at Japanese, Longgu (an Oceanic language), Thai and Old Norse/Icelandic, spelling out, in a culturally neutral natural semantic metalanguage (NSM) how their "mind-like" constructs differ from the Anglo mind.

Honour, Mana, and Agency in Polynesian-European Conflict

Annette Wilkes

Series: Anthropology and Cultural History in Asia and the Indo-Pacific

Focusing on the era of 'first encounters' in Polynesia, this book provides a fresh look at some of the early contacts between indigenous people and the captains and crew of European ships. The case studies chosen enable comparison of New Zealand Māori-European transactions with similar Pacific ones. The book examines the conflict situations that arose and the reasons for physical violence, highlighting the roles of honour, mana and agency. Drawing on a range of archival materials, sailor and missionary journals as well as indigenous narratives, Wilkes applies an analytical method typically used for examining much more recent conflict.

On the Emic Gesture

Difference and Ethnography in Roy Wagner

Iracema H. Dulley, University of São Paulo, Brazil

Series: Theorizing Ethnography

The question Dulley asks throughout her engagement with Roy Wagner's main essays is whether it is possible for the emic gesture to account for difference within difference without falling into the closure of totalization. Wagner's work contains this potentiality, but is hindered by its very foundation: the emic gesture, in which difference is circumscribed through a name that others. If this gesture is one of the pillars of anthropology, and one that allows for the inscription of difference, the reflection proposed in this book concerns anthropology as a whole: How can one inscribe difference within difference? Dulley argues that this can only be accomplished through an erasure of the emic.

The Varieties of Historical Experience

Edited by Charles Stewart, University College London, UK and Stephan Palmie

Series: The Anthropology of History

This book considers how history is not just objectively lived but subjectively experienced by people in the process of orienting their present toward the past. It analyses affectivity in historical experience, examines the digital mediation of history, and assesses the current politics of competing historical genres. The contributors explore the diverse ways in which the past may be activated and felt in the here and now, juxtaposing the practices of professional historiography with popular modes of engaging the past, from reenactments, filmmaking/viewing and historical fiction to museum collections and visits to historical sites.

Towards an Anthropology of Wealth

Imagination, Substance, Value

Edited by Theodoros Rakopoulos and Knut Rio

Aiming to redefine the concept of wealth, which has too often been reduced to merely 'accumulated assets', this book views wealth primarily as a question of reproduction, relational flows and life vitality. The authors therefore outline wealth as a triangular phenomenon between capital, the commons, and power. As the first collection in recent decades to address the anthropology of wealth openly in a comparative perspective, this book will spark discussions of the concept in anthropology, not least at the back of a renewed debate over it due to Piketty's legacy. This book was originally published as a special issue of History & Anthropology.

The Anthropology of Latin America and the Caribbean

Harry Sanabria

This comprehensive introduction to the anthropology of Latin America and the Caribbean offers broad coverage of culture and society in the region, taking into account historical developments as well as the roles of power and inequality. The chapters address key topics such as colonialism, globalization, violence, religion, race and ethnicity, gender and sexuality, health, food, and popular culture. The text has been thoroughly updated for the second edition, including fresh case studies and a new chapter on independence and nation states. Students are provided with a solid overview of the major contemporary research trends, issues, and debates in the field.

Balkan Transnationalism at the Time of Neoliberal Catastrophe

Edited by Dušan I. Bjelić

Offering a fresh look at the ways in which neoliberalism has claimed to cure the Balkan region of its ethnic particularities under the pretext of Europeanisation, this book shows how the reconfiguration of the economic, political and cultural landscape of the region has resulted in its functioning as Europe's neo-colony. As it critically interrogates a neo-colonial reconfiguration of the Balkans as a massive social overhaul, which includes at once global integration and local social disintegration, the book will be of interest to those studying the region, as well as post-colonialism in general. This book was originally published as a special issue of Interventions.

Comparative Sociology of Examinations

Edited by Fumiya Onaka, Japan Women's University, Japan

Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology

Comparing countries from across Asia, Europe, North America and the Ancient Near East, this book proposes a fundamental transition of sociological research through an intensive study of examinations. It uses ethnography, interviews, questionnaires, documents, statistics and big-data analysis to make comparisons on very broad scales of time and space. In so doing, it suggests hypotheses encompassing different kinds of societies in human history including those in the Axial Age and the Modern Age.

Contentious Politics and the Welfare State

Squatting in Sweden

Dominika V. Polanska, Södertörn University, Sweden

Series: Cities and Society

This book outlines the history of squatting in Sweden and analyses the conditions under which squatting has intensified and declined in the country between 1968 and 2017. With close attention to the relationship between civil society and the state in the Swedish context, and the manner in which this relationship, together with attendant political, media and movement-based discourses, shapes the possibilities that exist for collective action, the author draws on two key concepts – those of the narrative of consensus and discourse – to present an analysis of squatting as a form of contentious politics.

Imitation, Contagion, Suggestion

On Mimesis and Society

Edited by Christian Borch

Series: CRESC

Imitation, Contagion, Suggestion aims to revive a social theory tradition which argues for the analytical relevance of the concepts of imitation, contagion, and suggestion. Emphasis on these notions was particularly strong across the social sciences at the end of the nineteenth century, but gradually came to be accorded a less important role. In recent years, however, these notions have gained renewed traction, as they enable a rethinking of individuality and the social. The volume examines the history and contemporary relevance of the notions of imitation, contagion, and suggestion from a wide array of disciplinary horizons.

Prostitution, Pornography and Trafficking in Women

Israel's Blood Money

Edited by Esther Hertzog, Levinsky International College of Education, Israel and Erella Shadmi, Beit Berl Academic College, Israel

Series: Routledge Research in Gender and Society

This book examines the sex industry in Israel, using feminist concepts to elaborate on the power of prostitution to shape a world in which women are objects for fulfilling men's desires. A comprehensive collection that examines prostitution, trafficking in women and pornography from divergent disciplinary angles, it reveals the interconnectedness of these three aspects of the sex trade. Showing these practices to be embedded in a capitalist and patriarchal oppressive context that is accommodated by State institutions, this volume rejects the argument that, unlike trafficking in women, it is possible to choose prostitution and that feminist pornography is possible.

In doing so they analyse the particular path that Singapore has taken since

Aging A-Z

Concepts Toward Emancipatory Gerontology

Carroll L. Estes and Nicholas B. DiCarlo

Series: Aging and Society

This book offers an overview of central dilemmas and social problems in critical gerontology and social policy. Crafted in the format of a Glossary of key terms, the authors seek to connect theories of aging to the contemporary period, drawing readers into pivotal debates and issues within and across disciplines.

Succinct descriptions of 100-500 words illustrate the interplay and development of the concepts, both materially and symbolically. Within this framework, A - Z underscores the lens of intersectionality in policy analysis, practice, theory, and social change, and contributes to a richer, theoretically integrated understanding of old age and aging.

Music in American Society

George McCue

This book is the literary legacy of a national music festival in St. Louis, organized to identify as clearly as possible the specifically native character of music originating in the United States of America. The festival—the Bicentennial Horizons of American Music and the Performing Arts (B.H.A.M.)—sponsored more than 250 performances and workshops between Flag Day and Independence Day 1976. It was the only event of the Bicentennial celebration to address itself to a survey and evaluation of the musical development of this country.

Human Fatigue

Evolution, Health and Performance

Edited by Francesco E. Marino, Charles Sturt University, Australia Series: Routledge Research in Sport and Exercise Science

This ground-breaking book outlines the evidence that fatigue is a result of adaptations distinctive to humans. It argues that humans developed adaptations which led to enhanced fatigue resistance compared with other mammals and discusses the implications in the context of exercise, health and performance. Highly illustrated throughout, it covers topics such as defining and measuring fatigue, the emotional aspect of fatigue, how thermoregulation affects the human capacity to resist fatigue, and fatigue in disease. This is essential reading for all exercise scientists as well as graduate and undergraduate students in the broad field of physiology and exercise physiology.

Football, Fandom and Consumption

Edited by Oliver Brooks, University of East Anglia, UK Series: Critical Research in Football

This book argues for a more nuanced understanding of contemporary football culture and the (self-) identity of football fans. Drawing on original ethnographic research conducted with fans at all levels, from international to lower league, the book explores the tensions between fans as consumers and 'traditional' football cultures, arguing that modern football fans are able to negotiate the discourses of capitalism and tradition operating upon them to enact their own power and identity within football culture. Featuring case studies of Norwich City, MK Dons and Chelsea fans, this is fascinating reading for anybody with an interest in sport and society or cultural studies.

Psychological Aspects of Sport-Related Concussions

Edited by Gordon A. Bloom, McGill University, Canada and Jeffrey G. Caron, McGill University, Canada
 Series: Routledge Research in Sport and Exercise Science

Psychological Aspects of Sport-Related Concussions is the first book to set out the psychological effects of the injury and the role of the sport psychologist in concussion prevention and rehabilitation. The book attempts to offer a global understanding of the injury and is crucial reading for any upper-level student, researcher, sport scientist, coach or allied health professional working on sport-related concussion. It is also valuable reading for students and researchers interested in the psychosocial processes that impact injury and recovery or general professional practice in sport psychology.

Genetics and the Psychology of Motor Performance

Edited by Sigal Ben-Zaken, Véronique Richard and Gershon Tenenbaum
 Series: Routledge Research in Sport and Exercise Science

Genetics and the Psychology of Motor Performance is the first book to integrate cutting-edge genetic research into the study of the psychological aspects of motor learning and control. The book investigates the extent to which personality, emotion, self-regulation, motivation, and perceptual-cognitive skills are acquired or inherited, explaining how they affect motor performance and assessing the role genetics plays in the stages of motor development.

This is a crucial resource for any researcher seeking a deeper understanding of motor learning, or anyone studying or working in exercise psychology, motor development, exercise genetics, or exercise physiology more broadly.

Routledge Handbook of Sport and Exercise Systems Genetics

Edited by J. Timothy Lightfoot, Texas A&M University, US, Monica J. Hubal, George Washington University, US and Stephen M. Roth, University of Maryland, US
 Series: Routledge International Handbooks

The Routledge Handbook of Sport and Exercise Systems Genetics is the most authoritative and comprehensive reference in the area, consolidating knowledge and providing a framework for interpreting future findings. Taking an approach which covers single gene variations through to environmental influences, the book discusses state-of-the-art genetic methods, physical activity, exercise endurance, muscle strength, sports performance and ethical considerations.

Made up of contributions from some of the world's leading exercise scientists, this is an important reference for any upper-level student, researcher of practitioner working in the genetics of sport and exercise or exercise physiology.

History, Culture and Politics

Edited by Robert J. Lake, Douglas College, Canada and Carol A. Osborne, Leeds Beckett University, UK

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

This is the first book to undertake a survey of the historical and socio-cultural sweep of tennis, exploring key themes from governance, development and social inclusion to national identity and the role of the media. It is presented in three parts: historical developments; culture and representations; and politics and social issues, and features contributions by leading tennis scholars from North America, Europe, Asia and Australia. The most authoritative book published to date on the history, culture and politics of tennis, this is an essential reference for any course

Youth Sport, Migration and Culture

Two Football Teams and the Changing Face of Ireland

Max Mauro, Southampton Solent University, UK

Series: Routledge Critical Perspectives on Equality and Social Justice in Sport and Leisure

Youth Sport, Migration and Culture emphasises the epistemological and ethical urgency of doing research with rather than on young people. Engaging with the social changes in Irish society through the eyes of children of immigrants growing up in Ireland, the book looks closely at young people's leisure practices in multi-ethnic contexts, and at issues of inclusion in relation to public discourses around 'national identity' and immigration. Offering compelling analysis of how ideas of race and racism are elaborated through sport, this book is fascinating reading for anybody with an interest in the sociology of sport, sport development or youth culture.

Diversity and Inclusion in Sport Organizations

A Multilevel Perspective

George B. Cunningham, Texas A&M University, USA

This is a comprehensive introduction to the ways in which people differ - including race, sex, age, mental and physical ability, appearance, religion, sexual orientation, and social class - and the importance of these differences for sport organizations. It offers strategies for managing diversity in work and sport environments and provides an overview of diversity training that can be implemented in the workplace. Grounded in research and theory and outlining best practice, this new edition includes more international examples and expanded coverage of important topics, as well as useful teaching and learning features in every chapter and additional online resources.

The Constraints-Led Approach

Principles for Sports Coaching and Practice Design

Ian Renshaw, Queensland University of Technology, Australia, Keith Davids, Sheffield Hallam University, UK, Daniel Newcombe, Oxford Brookes University, UK and Will Roberts, Oxford Brookes University, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Constraints-Based Methodologies in Sport

The Constraints Led Approach: Principles for Sports Coaching and Practice Design provides students and practitioners with the theoretical knowledge to implement constraints-led approaches. The book sets an 'environment design framework', including practical tools and guidance for the application of the framework in coaching and skill acquisition settings. It includes constraints-led approaches in coaching children, golf, and hockey, with applied reading for undergraduate and postgraduate students of motor learning, skill acquisition and developing sport expertise. It is a vital pedagogical resource for students and practicing sports coaches, physical education teachers and sport scientists.

Biodiversity and Conservation

Characterization and Utilization of Plants, Microbes and Natural Resources for Sustainable Development and Ecosystem Management

Edited by Jeyabalan Sangeetha, Devarajan Thangadurai, Hong Ching Goh and Saher Islam

This volume provides an enlightening and pragmatic approach to preserving biological diversity by gathering a wide range of peer-reviewed scientific content from biodiversity researchers and conservators from around the world. It brings comprehensive knowledge and information on the present status of conservation of biological diversity including floral, faunal, and microbial diversity. A detailed account of recent trends in conservation and applications under changing climate conditions, focusing mainly on agriculturally and industrially important microbes and their sustainable utilization, is presented as well.

Culture as Renewable Oil

How Territory, Bureaucratic Power and Culture Coalesce in the Venezuelan Petrostate

Penélope Plaza Azuaje, University of Reading, UK

Series: Routledge Research in Place, Space and Politics

This book examines the Venezuelan petro-state from a cultural perspective. It unpacks the complex mediations that take place between a resource-intensive political regime and the work of culture and cultural producers in relation to policy and discourse. It demonstrates how oil is a cultural resource, in addition to a natural resource, implying therefore that struggles over culture implicate oil, and struggles over oil implicate culture. This book explores the entangled cultural and spatial dynamics, drawing on contemporary critical urban theory and the energy humanities, to provide a novel analysis of power in the contested 'petrosocialism' of the Bolivarian Revolution.

Human Rights and the Environment

Key Issues

Sumudu Atapattu, University of Wisconsin, USA and Andrea Schapper

Series: Key Issues in Environment and Sustainability

This book provides a good understanding of both human rights and environmental issues, as well as the limitations of each regime, and explores the ways in which human rights law and institutions can be used to obtain relief for the victims of environmental degradation or of adverse effects of environmental policies. In addition, it will place an emphasis on climate change and climate policies. Combining their specialisms in law and politics, Atapattu and Schapper have developed a truly inter-disciplinary resource that will be essential for students

Water Ethics

A Values Approach to Solving the Water Crisis

David Groenfeldt, Water-Culture Institute, USA

Series: Earthscan Water Text

This book introduces the idea that ethics are an intrinsic dimension of any water policy, program, or practice, and that understanding what ethics are being acted out in water policies is fundamental to an understanding of water resource management. Fully revised and updated, the new edition continues to consolidate the new field of "water ethics" as a recognized dimension of water-related decision-making, and to provide an introduction to this topic for students of environmental ethics and water governance and management.

Micropollutants in Large Lakes

From Potential Pollution Sources to Risk Assessments

Nathalie Chevre, EPFL Press, Lausanne, Switzerland University of Lausanne, Lausanne, Switzerland Swiss Federal Institute of Technology, Lausanne, Switzerland Independent Consultant, Geneva, Switzerland University of Applied Sciences, Geneva, Switzerland

Large lakes exemplify several key challenges for sustainable freshwater management. In particular, increasing population heighten drinking water demands, but also increase the release of pollutants, especially xenobiotics, to aquatic systems. These compounds may be at risk for environmental and human health. In this book, we present insights into the physical, chemical, and ecological dynamics of large lakes that enable proposing recommendations for sustainable lake management regarding chemicals. Lake Geneva, Switzerland, is used as a case study, but the developed methodologies and tools can be useful for lake water quality management in general.

Societal Dimensions of Environmental Science

Global Case Studies of Collaboration and Transformation

Edited by Ricardo D. Lopez, United States Forest Service, Hawaii

This book brings together several key examples of the successes and the challenges that exist for environmental stakeholders trying to strike a balance between science and the societal implications of the issues involved. It provides important methods and approaches necessary for informed decision making and a better understanding of the common threads of learning, collaboration, negotiation, and compromise. It also explains the concepts and skills needed to better understand how specific project goals can be best achieved in the rapidly-changing field of environmental management, by providing practical situations and solutions, across a global

The Water–Food–Energy Nexus

Power, Politics and Justice

Jeremy Allouche, Carl Middleton, Chulalongkorn University, Thailand and Dipak Gyawali, Nepal Water Conservation Foundation (NWCF)

Series: Pathways to Sustainability

This book lays out the managerial-technical definitions of the nexus and challenges these conceptions by bringing to the forefront the politics of the nexus, around two key dimensions – a dynamic understanding and a normative positioning. The authors argue that a shift in nexus governance is required towards approaches where limits to control are acknowledged, and more reflexive/plural strategies adopted. This book will be of interest to academic researchers, policy makers and practitioners in the fields of international development studies, environmental politics, science and technology studies as well as international relations.

Visions of Energy Futures

Imagining and Innovating Low-Carbon Transitions

Benjamin K. Sovacool

Series: Routledge Studies in Energy Transitions

This book seeks to examine the visions, fantasies, expectations, and rhetoric associated with six state-of-the-art energy systems—shale gas, clean coal, nuclear power, hydrogen fuel cells, smart meters, and electric vehicles—playing a key role in current deliberations about low-carbon energy supply and use. Theoretically, the book will test these technological case studies with emerging concepts from various disciplines and draws from these cases to create a synthetic set of dichotomies and frameworks for energy futures in the conclusion.

Marginalisation and Events

Edited by Trudie Walters, University of Otago, Dunedin, New Zealand and Allan Stewart Jepson, University of Hertfordshire, UK

Series: Routledge Advances in Event Research Series

This book is the first to take an in-depth examination of marginalisation and events. Using a range of different theoretical and methodological approaches from a variety of disciplines, the volume applies a critical approach to events as they relate to marginalisation that seeks to address the 'how' and 'why' and to provide a holistic picture of their place and influence in the lives of marginalised individuals and communities. This is essential reading for students and researchers in the fields of critical event studies, anthropology, cultural studies, tourism, sociology and management

Energy Transitions and Social Psychology

A Sociotechnical Perspective

Paul Upham, Paula Bögel and Katinka Johansen

Series: Routledge Studies in Energy Transitions

This book argues for an interdisciplinary approach to studying energy transitions, and presents an integrated socio-technical and psychological perspective. It makes a case for viewing 'sustainable behaviour' in its wider sociotechnical context, addressing both theory and practice and advocating an interdisciplinary research agenda that recognises the value of psychological perspectives when seeking to create new sociotechnical pathways. This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of energy transitions, environmental psychology, sustainable development and innovation studies, as well as environment and energy more generally.

The Architecture of the Child Mind

g, Fs, and the Hierarchical Model of Intelligence

Marc H. Bornstein, National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, Bethesda, MD, USA and Diane L. Putnick

Some theories assert a general (g) factor for intelligence that is universal and enters all mental abilities; other theories that there are many separate domains or faculties (s) of intelligence; and others that the g and s of intelligence coexist in a hierarchical relation. The Architecture of the Child Mind argues for the third option in young children. Through state-of-the-art methodologies in an intensive research program conducted with 4-year-old children, Bornstein and Putnick show that the structure of intelligence in the preschool child is best construed as a hierarchically organized combination of a general intelligence factor (g) and multiple domain-specific faculties (Fs).

Applying Cognitive Principles

Edited by Jason J. Dickinson, Montclair State University, USA, Nadja Schreiber Compo, Florida International University USA, Rolando N. Carol, Auburn University at Montgomery, USA, Bennett L. Schwartz, Florida International University and Michelle McCauley, Middlebury College, USA

This volume reviews the application of cognitive research to investigative interviewing, revealing how principles of cognition, memory and social dynamics may increase the accuracy of eyewitness testimony. It provides evidence-based applications for investigators beyond the forensic domain in areas such as eyewitness identification, detecting deception, and interviewing children. First used by police interviewing adult witnesses, it is now used with many populations in many contexts, including public health, accident reconstruction, and the interrogation of terror suspects. It has a wide audience in psychology, forensics, and disciplines such as epidemiology and gerontology.

Family Narratives and the Development of an Autobiographical Self Social and Cultural Perspectives on Autobiographical Memory

Robyn Fivush

Series: Essays in Developmental Psychology

This volume examines the development of an autobiographical self from social and cultural perspectives, focusing on how families and cultures shape individual narrative identity. Through participating in family reminiscing, in which adults help children learn the forms and functions of talking about the past, young children come to understand and evaluate their experiences, and create a sense of self defined through individual and family stories that provide an anchor for understanding self, others and the world. Based on over 30 years of Robyn Fivush's extensive body of research, the volume moves well beyond a summary to provide a theoretically and empirically based account.

Following Reason

A Theory and Strategy for Rational Leadership

Mark Manolopoulos

Series: Leadership: Research and Practice

This volume uses philosophical reasoning theory to show how leaders can bravely reimagine and reconstruct society. It retraces leadership missteps in history – the egomaniacal leaders, twisted deities, exploitative political economies – and proposes a more "logocentric" theory of leadership built on compelling philosophical axioms and arguments. This book emphasizes the weight of philosophy and cognition in leadership and advocates for a diverse network that can create, uphold and implement a blueprint of a better global society. This book is ideal for undergraduate and graduate levels.

Handbook of Parenting

Volume 3: Being and Becoming a Parent, Third Edition

Edited by Marc H. Bornstein, National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, Bethesda, MD, USA

This third edition of the Handbook of Parenting brings together field-leading experts to understand the diverse aspects of parenting. Volume 3, Being and Becoming a Parent, considers a large cast of characters responsible for parenting and examines their psychological characteristics and social interests. Part I shows how multifaceted is the constellation of caregivers: mothers and fathers, coparents, adolescent parents, grandparents, single, divorced and remarried parents, lesbian and gay parents, and nonparental caregivers. Part II considers the intergenerational transmission of parenting, reproductive technologies, stages of parental development, and parents' well-being and emotions.

Young People's Visions and Worries for the Future of Europe

Findings from the Europe 2038 Project

Edited by Dagmar Strohmeier and Harriet R. Tenenbaum, University of Surrey, UK

This distinctive volume presents the findings of a large-scale research project, conducted in seven European countries, investigating the visions and worries of young people regarding the future of Europe. The book examines young peoples' endorsement of multiculturalism, diversity, European identity, human rights, and political participation, and unpicks the cross-national differences within Albania, Austria, Germany, Italy, Romania, Spain, and the UK. It concludes by formulating effective evidence-based recommendations for policy and practice. It is valuable reading for advanced students and researchers in Psychology, Social Work, Politics, Sociology, Social Policy and Education.

Mental Health and Well-being Interventions in Sport

Research, Theory and Practice

Edited by Gavin Breslin and Gerard Leavy, University of Ulster, UK

Mental health within elite sport has traditionally been ignored, but recent research has shown that competitive sport can seriously undermine mental health and that athletes are exposed to specific stressors that hinder their mental health optimisation.

Written for newcomers and established practitioners alike, the text as an essential read for researchers and practitioners in better understanding the sport setting-based intervention processes through presenting current research, theory and practice, applicable in a variety of sports settings and contexts.

Tackling Sexual Violence at Universities

An International Perspective

Edited by Graham J. Towl, Durham University, UK and Tammi Walker
Series: New Frontiers in Forensic Psychology

This is the only book to offer an international perspective on the incidence, reporting and impact of sexual violence at universities. Drawing on evidence from the UK, North America and Australia, it situates sexual violence in universities within a broader societal context, and argues that university communities are uniquely well placed to prevent sexual violence, as well as support those who report it. Examining both the psychological and structural challenges to reporting sexual violence, the book provides a set of recommendations that move beyond awareness campaigns to call for systems to be put in place whereby reports of sexual assault are handled promptly, fairly, and consistently.

The Significance of High Value in Human Behaviour

Speech of the Suffering Soul

Chris Steed, Southampton University UK

The Significance of High Value in Human Behaviour is an innovative conceptualisation of how the quest for a high self-worth works as a psycho-social dynamic, presenting the idea that feelings of impotence and low self-esteem induce a powerful impetus on negative human action. This book gives an account of what it means to base a whole psychological perspective on high value, which has been an understudied aspect of human action.

The Significance of High Value in Human Behaviour will appeal to academics and post graduate students in the fields of psychology and psychotherapy, and psychotherapists with specialist interests in loneliness and self-worth.

The DSM-5 Alternative Model for Personality Disorders

Integrating Multiple Paradigms of Personality Assessment

Edited by Christopher J. Hopwood, Michigan State University, Abby L Mulay and Mark H Waugh, Oak Ridge National Laboratory

The DSM-5 Alternative Model for Personality Disorders reviews and advances this innovative and increasingly popular scheme for diagnosing and evaluating personality disorders. The authors identify the multiple clinical, theoretical, and research paradigms that co-exist in the Alternative Model for Personality Disorders (AMPD) and show how the model can aid the practicing mental health professional in evaluating and treating patients as well as its importance in stimulating research and theoretical understanding of this domain. It is a go-to reference for experienced professionals and researchers, those who wish to learn this new diagnostic system, and for clinicians in training.

Mindfulness-Based Intervention Research

Characteristics, Approaches, and Developments

Christian U. Krägeloh, Auckland University of Technology, New Zealand, Marcus A. Henning, University of Auckland, New Zealand, Oleg N. Medvedev, Auckland University of Technology, New Zealand, Xuan Joanna Feng, Auckland University of Technology, New Zealand, Fiona Moir, University of Auckland, New Zealand, Rex Billington, Auckland University of Technology, New Zealand and Richard J. Siegert, AUT University, New Zealand

This book provides an outline and critical discussion of the characteristics of mindfulness-based interventions (MBIs) research. It examines the large variety of approaches in which MBIs have been studied, including an outline of the philosophical underpinnings of MBI research, definition and measurement of mindfulness, the use of qualitative and quantitative research methods, research design, and research that addresses cultural and religious factors. The book contributes to increased awareness of the current direction of MBI research and thus seeks to contribute to further methodological refinement and sophistication of the research field.

Single-Session 'One-at-a-Time' Therapy

A Rational Emotive Behaviour Therapy Approach

Windy Dryden, Emeritus Professor of Psychotherapeutic Studies, Goldsmiths, University of London, London

Series: Routledge Focus on Mental Health

This book details a specific approach to single-session therapy known as 'One-At-A-Time' (OAT) therapy, and shows how this can be implemented from a Rational Emotive Behaviour Therapy (REBT) perspective. Windy Dryden argues that OAT therapy is a time-efficient, cost-effective means to providing help according to need. Outlining an innovative and experimental approach to improving mental health, the book will appeal to psychotherapists and counsellors looking for an accessible and authoritative guide to brief therapeutic work.

Art Therapy and Psychology

A Step-by-Step Guide for Practitioners

Robert Gray

This book offers a thorough and well-rounded clinical guide to utilising the depth of the unconsciousness through art when working with clients in psychotherapy. As a psychologist and art therapist, Robert Gray emphasises the clinical relevance of art therapy and highlights its links to ideas around evidence-based practice and cognitive behavioural therapy. He suggests specific ways of engaging with clients and images, and explores empirically how artists and psychotherapists can make a transformational difference. Applied, hands-on, and filled with supportive study tools, this book contains targeted art therapy techniques, and numerous case illustrations.

Coaching for Professional Development

Using literature to support success

Christine A. Eastman

Coaching has emerged as one of the most significant aids in developing managers and executives in the professional world. Yet there is a degree of dissatisfaction with performance coaching models, and a desire to connect more with creativity and the imagination. In Coaching for Professional Development: Using Literature to Support Success, Christine Eastman suggests that literary works have a part to play in bringing about a change in coaching culture. Using a series of examples from key literary texts, she argues that literature can help coaches enhance their skills, find solutions to workplace problems and better articulate their own ideas through innovation and imagination.

Beyond Best Practice

How Mental Health Services Can Be Better

Birgit Valla and David S. Prescott

Beyond Best Practice explores a practitioner's work at self-development. It tells the story of discovering the many ways that the service user's voice can inform and improve services at all levels. In particular it tracks the history of Feedback-Informed Treatment (FIT), with its emphasis on ongoing, typically solitary deliberate practice.

While other projects examine elements of FIT in brief, this book examines each element in detail through the eyes of a therapist and her agency. Any therapist who has ever tried to get better at their work will find ideas in these pages.

Coaching Stories

Flowing and Falling of Being a Coach

Karen Dean and Sam Humphrey

Dean and Humphrey chart the progressive stages of becoming an increasingly competent coach, following the twelve stages of Dean's 'Exceptional Achievement' model. Each author presents specific examples from their work, reflecting on their development and learning at each point. The chapters explore stories on each theme: one story where coaching is delivered with style and substance and one where the coach is falling short. Each also includes short answers by the authors to the statements 'What I wish they'd told me' and 'What I wish I'd asked'. The book concludes with a discussion of relevant psychological theory and suggestions for further study.

Dreaming, Healing and Imaginative Arts Practice

Kathleen Anne Connellan

Bringing dream theory together with art practice and art psychotherapy, this book demonstrates how releasing the imagination can open up processes of healing. Focusing on nocturnal dreams, day dreams, memory and reverie, Kathleen Connellan explores how to access, depict and use these dream images as a basis for self-expression and self-knowledge. Theoretically grounded yet practically focused, this book includes clear tasks and exercises and covers key themes including archetypes, place, movement, sensory triggers, crisis, and time.

Psychoanalytic and Buddhist Reflections on Gentleness

Sensitivity, Fear and the Drive Towards Truth

Michal Barnea-Astrog

Inspired by Buddhist teachings and psychoanalytic thought, this book explores gentleness as a way of being and a developmental achievement. Examining the perceptual-sensory-conscious discrepancy that often exists between a gentle person and their surroundings, it follows the intricate relationship between sensitivity and fear, the need for self-holding, and the possibility of letting go.

Offering a unique perspective on a topic rarely discussed, the book has broad appeal for both students and practitioners of psychoanalysis and psychotherapy, as well as Buddhist practitioners and scholars.

Supervision in Clinical Practice

A Practitioner's Guide

Joyce Scaife

This fully updated edition of Supervision in Clinical Practice: A Practitioner's Guide is packed with practical examples from personal and professional experience, countering the idea of supervision as a constraint and challenging some of the thinking associated with 'evidence-based' practice when this focuses on what can be easily measured rather than what matters.

Supervision in Clinical Practice remains an indispensable text for supervisors and supervisees who practice clinically in a range of professions, including applied psychology, counselling, psychotherapy, psychiatry, nursing, and social work.

Yoga for Trauma Recovery

Theory, Philosophy, and Practice

Lisa Danylchuk, private practice, California, USA

Yoga for Trauma Recovery outlines best practices for the growing body of professionals trained in both yoga and psychotherapy and addresses the theoretical foundations that tie the two fields. Chapters show how understanding the safe and effective integration of trauma-informed yoga and somatic psychotherapy is essential to providing informed, effective treatment. Uniting recent developments in our understanding of trauma recovery with ancient tenets of yoga philosophy and practice, this foundational text is a must read for those interested in the healing capacities of each modality.

The Performing Art of Therapy

Acting Insights and Techniques for Clinicians

Mark O'Connell, private practice, New York, USA

The Performing Art of Therapy explores the myriad ways in which acting techniques can enhance the craft of psychotherapy. The book shows how clinicians can supplement their theoretical approach with techniques that fine-tune the ways their bodies, voices, and imaginations engage with and influence their clients. Broken up into accessible chapters focused on specific attributes of performance, and including an appendix of step-by-step exercises for practitioners, this is an essential guidebook for therapists looking to integrate their theoretical training into who they are as individuals, find joy in their work, increase self-care, and inspire clients to perform their own lives.

Trauma and Primitive Mental States

An Object Relations Perspective

Judy K. Eekhoff

Focusing on patients with early infantile trauma, who appear to be suffering from post-autistic and post-psychotic states, this important new book challenges the idea that this group is unreachable, providing instead a theoretically informed, object relational perspective for working. Written by a clinician with over 30 years' experience, the book includes vignettes outlining how to work with patients who are suffering from preverbal or non-verbal trauma, and who struggle to represent their experiences. Engagingly empathetic, this will be essential reading for any therapist engaging in such challenging but important work.

A Comparison of Eastern and Western Parenting

Programmes, Policies and Approaches

Low Yiu Tsang Andrew, City University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong

Series: Routledge Studies in Asian Behavioural Sciences

This book provides a comparison of East and West parenting approaches and parenting programmes to show how vital a culturally sensitive approach is to the positive development of the parent-adolescent relationship. It offers a comprehensive overview of current theories and research on parenting adolescents. It focuses on comparing the differences in parenting style and practice between Chinese parents and their Western counterparts and the policy context in Chinese culture with that in the West. It also offers guidance on how to conduct an evaluation of parenting programmes and how to adapt them for the right cultural setting.

Beyond the Primal Addiction

Food, Sex, Gambling, Internet, Shopping, and Work

Edited by Nina Savelle-Rocklin and Salman Akhtar

For many, "addiction" evokes images of alcoholics unable to stay sober or junkies with needles in their arms. In reality, many addictions are behavioral in nature. Addictions are among the most misunderstood ailments in our society. Popular treatment options often fail to address the underlying emotions and conflicts that facilitate the addictive behavior. This book examines the nature of addictions in the areas of food, sex, gambling, internet, shopping and work. It focuses on etiology and treatment, helping clinicians and the public alike recognize unconscious forces that lead to addictive behaviors and offers strategies for change. It will be helpful to clinicians and patients alike.

Creative States of Mind

Psychoanalysis and the Artist's Process

Patricia Townsend

Drawing on interviews with professional artists, this book takes the reader inside the creative process. The author, an artist and a psychotherapist, uses psychoanalytic theory to shed light on fundamental questions such as the origin of new ideas and the artist's state of mind while working. Creative States of Mind: Psychoanalysis and the Artist's Process fills an important gap in the psychoanalytic theory of art by offering a full account of the artist's process based on artists own evidence. It will be useful to artists who want to understand more about their own processes, to psychoanalysts and psychotherapists in their clinical work, and to anyone who studies the creative process.

On Freud's The Question of Lay Analysis

Contemporary Freudian Turning Points and Critical Issues

Edited by Paulo Cesar Sandler and Gley Pacheco Costa

Series: The International Psychoanalytical Association Contemporary Freud Turning Points and Critical Issues Series

The editors of this book put forth a hypothesis: is there an underlying, still unrecognized, but heartrending factor underlying the century old quarrel between "lay analysts" and what might be described as medically or psychiatrically trained analysts? They then brought together a selection of major contemporary psychoanalytic thinkers from around the world to attempt to bridge the seemingly unbridgeable gap between medical and non-medical analysis, using The Question of Lay Analysis as a central pivot. The work of the key figure, in social and historic terms, on this issue, Theodor Reik, is also duly honoured.

Bion, the Field and the Viscera of the Mind

Antonino Ferro, private practice, Pavia, Italy

Dreams and Psychoanalysis explores some of the cornerstones of Antonino Ferro's theoretical model but also attempts to extend the dreamlike boundaries of the model. Based on the Bion's theory of alpha function and the analytic field, Ferro has developed his own original theorization of transformations in dreams and of work in the analytic session as a waking dream. This book is written for practicing and training psychoanalysts, psychotherapists and psychiatrists and will be helpful in everyday psychoanalytic and psychotherapeutic work.

Psychoanalytic Approaches to Problems in Living

Addressing Life's Challenges in Clinical Practice

Sandra Buechler, William Alanson White Institute, New York, USA

Psychoanalytic Approaches to Problems in Living examines how psychoanalysts can draw on their training, reading and clinical experience to help their patients address some of the recurrent challenges of everyday life. Sandra Buechler offers clinicians poetic, psychoanalytic, and experiential approaches to problems, drawing on her personal and clinical experience, as well as ideas from her reading, to confront challenges familiar to us all. With a final section designed to improve training in the light of her practical findings, Psychoanalytic Approaches to Problems in Living is an essential book for all practicing psychoanalysts and psychoanalytic psychotherapists.

Reflections on Long-Term Relational Psychotherapy and Psychoanalysis

Relational Analysis Interminable

Edited by Susan A. Lord, Social Work Department, University of New Hampshire, Durham, NH

Reflections on Long-Term Relational Psychotherapy and Psychoanalysis explores how relational analysts think about and pursue long-term therapeutic relationships in their practices. Most therapists will work intensively with several of their clients over many years, but more examination and exploration are needed into what is taking place inside of these mutual long-term relationships. Each contributor offers theoretical material, case examples, and some discussion about their views and experiences with long-term work.

The Soul of Narcissism

Christian Fierens

This book proceeds by examining Freud's introduction of narcissism in its historical context as a movement of reflexion on the clinical practice of psychoanalysis, advancing a close reading of Freud's writings that led up to his seminal paper "On Narcissism: An Introduction". Against the trend of current perceptions, it re-establishes narcissism as a methodology of reflexion upon clinical practice and theory, whose very motor is the unconscious.

In this way narcissism is restored to its fundamental place in psychoanalysis. This reinvigorated notion of narcissism will be of interest to students and practitioners of psychoanalysis, as well as all who draw upon Freud's study of narcissism.

2nd Edition • NEW EDITION

The Unconscious at Work

A Tavistock Approach to Making Sense of Organizational Life

Edited by Anton Obholzer and Vega Zagier Roberts

The Unconscious at Work, 2nd Edition draws on a body of thinking and practice which has developed over the past 60 years, often referred to as 'the Tavistock approach' or 'systems-psychodynamics'. All the contributors are practicing consultants who draw on this framework; bringing it alive and making it useful to any reader- manager, leader or consultant, regardless of whether they have any prior familiarity with the underlying concepts, who is curious about what might be driving the puzzling or stressful situations they find in their workplace.

Taboo, Personal and Collective Representations

Origin and Positioning within Cultural Complexes

Elizabeth Brodersen, C. G. Jung Institute, Switzerland

Taboo, Personal and Collective Representations examines the symbolic nature of taboo, asking what is the purpose of a taboo and how does it vary cross-culturally? The book focuses on the concept of taboo as an in-between, organizing principle which separates and differentiates stages through a ritual process of separation of order as clean/blessed and disorder as polluted/disassociated.

Taboo, Personal and Collective Representations will be of great interest to researchers, academics and post-graduate students in the fields of anthropology, ethnology, origins of religion, race, gender, and depth psychology.

The Lower Limbs in Jungian Psychology

The Girl with Her Big Toe in Her Mouth

Inácio Cunha

Cunha explores the motif of lower limbs from the perspective of Jungian analysis, where there are frequent references to and questions about images of feet and legs, whether in dreams, as part of complexes, fantasies and fetishes, or via the description of physical marks, spots and injuries. The book explores the symbolism of feet and legs both generally and with specific relation to the recurring image of an ancient sculpture of a woman who appears to be sucking her big toe, using prehistoric Brazilian culture as a starting point for investigating the significance of these ideas to ancient civilisations. It includes case examples and exploration of myths, legends and symbols throughout.

Gaia, Psyche and Deep Ecology

Navigating Climate Change in the Anthropocene

Andrew Fellows

Andrew Fellows proposes an innovative long-term worldview, informed by depth psychology, which radically contradicts the prevailing shibboleths of unlimited economic growth, dominion over outer nature and negation of our inner nature. Fellows first introduces the Anthropocene and Western zeitgeist before exploring relationships between mind and matter and going on to look at congruencies between the structure and dynamics of the natural world and the psyche. Including a ground-breaking synthesis of Gaia theory, analytical psychology and deep ecology, he reveals synergies which demonstrate how and why we must re-vision our view of the world in order to live harmoniously and sustainably.

The Search for Meaning in Psychotherapy

Spiritual Practice, the Apophatic Way and Bion

Judith Pickering

If, when a patient enters therapy, there is an underlying yearning to discover a deeper sense of meaning or purpose, how might the therapist rise to such a challenge? As both Carl Jung and Wilfred Bion observed, the patient may be asking something of the therapist that is intrinsically spiritual as well as psychotherapeutic. Presented in two parts, The Search for Meaning in Psychotherapy is a profound inquiry into the contemplative, mystical and apophatic dimensions of psychoanalysis.

The Lost Child Complex in Australian Film

Jung, Story and Playing Beneath the Past

Terrie Waddell, La Trobe University, Australia

The mythologizing of lost and abandoned children has a significant influence on Australian storytelling. Terrie Waddell explores Australia's traumatic history through a Jungian analysis of film and television representations. Iconic characters and events including Ned Kelly, the Stolen Generations and the Gallipoli Campaign and films such as A Cry in the Dark, Rabbit-Proof Fence and Picnic at Hanging Rock are explored in the context of analytical psychology and the Lost Child complex. The book will also include an examination of the complex around the world, including in media reporting of child abuse scandals in the USA and UK.

Learning and Connecting in School Playgrounds

Using the Playground as a Curriculum Resource

Edited by Llyween Couper, University of Canterbury, New Zealand and Dean Sutherland, University of Canterbury, New Zealand

An inclusive approach to education is not confined to the classroom. The school playground is where the real test for diversity and difference occurs, and a focus on play during break times is needed for the health, well-being and learning of all students. This book explores pre-school, primary and secondary school play environments as well as transitions between them, and foregrounds the impact of physical environments and adult involvement on choices for play. Grounded in both practical experience and theory, it includes discussion questions, case studies, breakout boxes and a 'Playground Audit' that can be used to plan for change and build positive playground experiences for all students.

Systemically Treating Autism

A Clinician's Guide for Empowering Families

Edited by Brie Turns, Julie Ramisch and Jason B. Whiting

Systemically Treating Autism provides a unique resource for family therapists and other mental health professionals who want to increase their understanding of families with children with autism spectrum disorder (ASD). Through a combination of research, practical interventions, and case vignettes, this text covers the diagnosis of ASD and how it impacts the family, spirituality and cultural dynamics, and collaboration with other professionals. Providing a systemic framework for conceptualizing a diagnosis that is typically discussed from an individual perspective, this book guides mental health clinicians toward a better understanding of how they can help the entire family unit.

Trauma and Play Therapy

Helping Children Heal

Paris Goodyear-Brown, Nurture House, Tennessee, USA

Trauma and Play Therapy synthesizes new developments in the study of children's trauma recovery to assist clinicians in combining play therapy with other powerful ways of addressing the needs of hurt children. The TraumaPlay<sup>SM</sup> model, formerly known as Flexibly Sequential Play Therapy, equips practitioners to manage and adapt aspects of the play therapy place and process in order to help children tell their stories while draining the emotional toxicity from traumatic experiences. Enriched by a tapestry of illustrative case examples and tools for therapists, this is a vital new book for clinicians working at the intersection of play and children's trauma.

Introducing Pharmacology

For Nursing and Healthcare

Roger McFadden, Birmingham City University, UK

This third edition of Introducing Pharmacology provides an accessible and engaging introduction to the subject of pharmacology for nursing and healthcare students - and anyone needing to refresh their knowledge of this important area.

This edition recognises that many nursing and healthcare courses are now requiring students to engage with the subject of pharmacology at a higher level. Accordingly, this edition has been reinforced with more advanced pharmacology that will help these students, but without losing the clarity and accessibility of earlier editions.

Incarcerating Motherhood

The Enduring Harms of First Short Periods of Imprisonment on Mothers

Isla Masson

This book investigates how even an initial short period in prison negatively impacts mothers and their children. Based on original research and first-hand interviews with mothers during and post-custody, it covers various aspects of their lives including housing, employment, mental health and debt assessing both material concerns as well as the physical and emotional consequences of short-term imprisonment. It provides a platform for readers to hear how a 'short sharp shock' can cause on-going harm to an already vulnerable group in society and how even short term imprisonment have much longer multi-dimensional consequences.

Global Health Governance and Policy

An Introduction

Eduardo Missoni, Bocconi University, Italy, Guglielmo

Pacileo, Bocconi University, Italy and Fabrizio Tediosi, Swiss Tropical and Public Health Institute, Switzerland

This textbook outlines the fundamentals of global health, introducing it as a key element of sustainable development.

Taking an interdisciplinary approach, it examines the relationship between globalization and the determinants of health; describes the functioning and role of health systems in relation to global health; analyses the actors and forces that transnationally shape global policies and actions with an impact on peoples' health; and outlines the essentials of global health measurements, data and trends. This book is ideal for students and professionals with an interest in global health and health governance.

Systems Leadership in Health and Social Care

John Edmonstone

Most leadership development activity in health and social care has been intra-organisational or confined to a particular sector. However, there is increasing recognition of the need to move beyond simple collaboration and partnership and work towards different models of care which involve addressing the whole health and social care system. This is particularly important when addressing complex and "wicked" problems in a time of resource scarcity. Combining theory with practice, this book will be essential reading for those studying on courses in public service, public policy, health and social care, as well as policymakers and professionals interested in honing best practice.

Motherhood, Spirituality and Culture

Noelia Molina, Waterford Institute of Technology; Spirituality Institute for Research & Education

Series: Routledge Research in Nursing and Midwifery

Motherhood, Spirituality and Culture designs a unique framework for qualitative studies of spirituality within motherhood research. The study comprises rich, qualitative data gathered from eleven mothers' interviews. Results are analysed in two forms: by writing seven unique maternal narratives that elucidate and give voice to the mothers in their transition, and by elucidating six main themes emerging from the analysis: desire/expectations/illusions for mothering; spiritual embodied experiences; instinctual knowing; identity/crisis; connections; and change/transformation.

Trauma and Resilience in the Lives of Contemporary Native Americans

Reclaiming our Balance, Restoring our Wellbeing

Hilary N. Weaver, University at Buffalo, SUNY, NY, USA

This book uses a trauma-informed lens to examine Native American issues with the understanding that even when not specifically seeking to address trauma directly, it is useful to understand that trauma is a common experience that can shape many aspects of life. Scholarship on trauma and trauma-informed care is integrated with scholarship on historical trauma, providing a framework for examining contemporary issues for Native American populations.

The Thermal Human Body

A Practical Guide to Thermal Imaging

Kurt Ammer and Francis Ring

This book is a guide for the constantly growing community of the users of medical thermal imaging. It describes where and how an infrared equipment can be used in a strictly standardised way and how one can ultimately comprehensively report the findings. Due to their insight into the complex mechanisms behind the distribution of surface temperature, future users of medical thermal imaging should be able to provide careful, and cautious, interpretations of infrared thermograms, thus avoiding the pitfalls of the past.

Systemic Sclerosis

An Illustrated Guide to Manifestation and Management in Asian Skin

Edited by Arun C Inamadur and Aparna Palit

This book would help the students, teachers and professionals in identification of the cutaneous features of systemic sclerosis, followed by its subsequent treatment and management at an early stage. It presents a wide variety of cutaneous features under one cover as such manifestations are often the first to appear and help in diagnosing this condition early.

Venous Access Made Easy

James Michael Forsyth, Ahmed Shalan and Andrew Roger Thompson

This book provides simple and practical instructions on how to perform safe and easy venous cannulation, and how to insert midlines and PICC lines using ultrasound. It aids understanding of the relevant anatomy, shows how to use the ultrasound machine, and how to insert lines using ultrasound guidance. Readers will feel confident and well prepared to deal with patients with difficult venous access. This book demonstrates simple solutions that can be learned very quickly. These skills will be beneficial for patients and healthcare institutions alike.

The Exceptional Potential of General Practice

Making a Difference in Primary Care

Edited by Graham Watt

This innovative book draws on pioneering precedents, basic principles, current examples and international experience to capture the narratives, examples and ideas that underlie and demonstrate the exceptional potential of general practice. Written for family doctors looking to develop and strengthen local collaborations, it brings together for the first time the key components of a well-functioning health system including information, clinical governance, financing, manpower, drugs and technologies, service delivery.

TEXTBOOK • READER

Engineering-Medicine

Principles and Applications of Engineering in Medicine

Edited by Lawrence S. Chan, University of Illinois, Chicago, Illinois, USA and William C. Tang, University of California, Irvine, Biomedical Engineering Department, Irvine, California, USA

This textbook discusses the principles of engineering as applied to medicine and guides students and physicians to solve medical problems by engineering principle and methodology. It contains a variety of teaching techniques including class lectures, small group discussions, individual and group projects with the goal of not just helping students and professionals to understand the principles and methods discussed, but also to develop real-life solutions. This book offers general guidance and specific examples of applying these principles to implement solution-oriented methodology in healthcare encounters and to help improve the overall quality and efficiency of healthcare delivery outcomes.

Musculoskeletal Injections and Alternative Options

A practical guide to 'what, when and how?'

Edited by Maneesh Bhatia, University Hospitals Leicester, Leicester, UK

Musculoskeletal injections for joint or tendon problems are performed commonly and their use, which can result in a marked improvement in acute symptoms as well as delay or postpone surgery, is on the rise. This accessible guide helps doctors from various disciplines including orthopaedics, sports medicine, rheumatology, radiology and primary care as well as allied health care professionals understand the indications and local anatomy to safely perform injections with complication avoidance. In addition, the book provides useful information regarding other alternatives including physiotherapy and novel modalities. The content is supported by current evidence, guidelines and companion videos.

A Mathematical Primer of Molecular Phylogenetics

Xuhua Xia

This volume, A Mathematical Primer of Molecular Phylogenetics, offers a unique perspective on a number of phylogenetic issues that have not been covered in detail in previous publications. The volume provides sufficient mathematical background for young mathematicians and computational scientists, as well as mathematically inclined biology students, to make a smooth entry into the expanding field of molecular phylogenetics. The book will also provide sufficient details for researchers in phylogenetics to understand the workings of existing software packages used.

A New Era for Collaborative Forest Management

Policy and Practice insights from the Collaborative Forest Landscape Restoration Program

Edited by William H. Butler, Florida State University, USA and Courtney A. Schultz, Colorado State University, USA Series: The Earthscan Forest Library

The Collaborative Forest Landscape Restoration Program (CFLRP), which began in 2009, was a bold experiment in public land management in the US and has become a model for a new approach to collaborative environmental governance and management. Bringing together social and political scientists involved in CFLRP, this book addresses what has been learnt through this new way of managing national forests. It will be of interest to researchers in natural resource management, environmental planning and forestry, as well as practitioners and policy makers involved in forest and ecosystem restoration work and collaborative natural resource management more broadly.

Asymmetry in Plants

Biology of Handedness

Edited by Bir Bahadur, Kaktiya University, Warangal, Telangana, India, K. V. Krishnamurthy, Consultant, Research & Development, Sami Labs Limited, Bangalore, Karnataka, India, Monoranjan Ghose, Former Professor, Indian Statistical Institute, Kolkata, West Bengal, India and S. John Adams, Scientist, Research and Development, Sami Labs Limited, Bangalore, Karnataka, India

Plants exhibit forms of asymmetry analogous to "handedness" in bilaterally symmetrical animals. This book explores the evolutionary significance and development of asymmetry. Examples of genetic control include the direction of tendrils or stem coiling of many climbing plants; the so-called spiral phyllotaxy and floral tax; and contorted petal arrangement is another kind of left-right symmetry in plants; the direction of contortion is fixed in some but not in other plants. The book will underscore the all phenomena related to handedness start during embryogenesis itself, with the occurrence of embryo rotation.

Behavior of Lizards

Evolutionary and Mechanistic Perspectives

Edited by Vincent Bels, Sorbonne Université, Muséum national d'Histoire Naturelle, Institut de Systématique Evolution Biodiversité, France and Anthony Russell

Lizards serve as focal organisms for many of biological questions related to evolution, ecology, physiology, and morphology. They are studied at multiple spatial and temporal scales, from the individual to the community level. This book, authored by expert contributors from around the globe, explores behaviors underlying the evolution and adaptation of these organisms. It covers conceptual, empirical, and methodological approaches to understanding the role that natural and sexual selection play in molding the behavioral traits of lizards.

Designing for Safe Use

100 Principles for Making Products Safer

Michael Wiklund, UL-Wiklund, Concord, Massachusetts, USA, Jonathan Kandler, UL-Wiklund, Concord, Massachusetts, USA, Jon Tilliss, UL LLC, Massachusetts, USA, Cory Costantino, UL LLC, Massachusetts, USA, Kimmy Ansems, Valerie Ng, UL International, Utrecht, Netherlands, Ruben Post, Brenda van Geel, UL International, Utrecht, Netherlands, Rachel Aronchick, UL, Massachusetts, USA and Alix Dorfman

This work details 100 examples of how to design a user interface that guards against potentially harmful use errors. The examples cover myriad features concerning hardware, software, and documents with emphasis placed on medical devices. This analysis is timely considering the intense focus within multiple worldwide industries to increase the safety of products, tools, machines and systems, including those used by professionals and laypersons. This intense focus arises from the revelation that preventable error is among the leading causes of death, in the same magnitude of heart disease and cancer. Each of the 100 examples will include a concise design guideline.

Enzymatic Technologies for Marine Polysaccharides

Edited by Antonio Trincone, Istituto di Chimica Biomolecolare, Consiglio Nazionale delle Ricerche, Pozzuoli, Napoli, Italy

This book will provide an overview of recent advances in research and technologies related to marine oligosaccharides and polysaccharides in that these molecules have important applications in biotherapeutics, foods, cosmetics, environmental protection and wastewater management. These are found in seaweed, microalgae, bacteria, and animal fish (shellfish, mollusks, etc.) It will also closely examine all sources and extraction techniques now commonly used and forthcoming within biotechnology and biopharmaceutical enzymatic production. The latest techniques in biocatalysis of marine enzymes will be discussed.

Ethnomedicinal Plants with Therapeutic Properties

Edited by V.R. Mohan, A. Doss and P.S. Tresina

This volume provides detailed information on locally important medicinal plants, discusses the pharmacological properties of selected medicinal plants, and looks at the phytodrug aspects of selected plants. In 24 important chapters, the volume covers ethnomedicine, pharmacology, and pharmacognosy of selected plants. This volume highlights recent scientific evidence of therapeutic properties of traditionally used medicinal plants in relation to clinical outcomes and remedies for promotion of human well-being. The authors have endeavored to convey the therapeutic knowledge of ethnomedicinal plants clearly and concisely.

Epigenetic Processes and Evolution of Life

Jana Švorcová, Department of Philosophy and History of Sciences, Faculty of Science, Charles University, Prague, Czech Republic and Anton Markoš, Charles University, Faculty of Science, Praha, Czech Republic

Epigenetic Processes and Evolution of Life covers the possible story of emergence of life and its subsequent evolution, emphasizing the necessary evolutionary step – negotiation of a common “language set” which kept all inhabitants in biosphere together, ensuring a basic level of understanding among them. The book focuses on “protocols of communication” (both genetic and epigenetic) representing norms shared and understood across the whole biosphere, enabling a plethora of holobiotic relationships.

Mangroves for Building Resilience to Climate Change

R.N. Mandal and R. Bar

This book provides a comprehensive volume on mangroves, with information accessible to both botany professionals and students. It provides an easy method to identify mangroves and to distinguish different species. What is a mangrove and what are the criteria needed for mangroves are explained, along with explanations of distinctions among major mangroves, mangrove associates, mangrove halophytes, and back mangals. Over 150 photos and illustrations are provided. The volume also covers a range of other topics, including habitats and climatic conditions, morphological and reproductive features, how climate change is affecting mangroves and methods of mitigation and conservation.

Marine Extremes

Ocean Safety, Marine Health and the Blue Economy

Edited by Erika Techera, The University of Western Australia and Gundula Winter, The University of Western Australia Series: Earthscan Oceans

Marine extremes, including climate and pollution, are having noticeable impacts on the world's oceans, coastlines and the people dependent on them. Drawing upon principles from the natural and social sciences, this book provides an interdisciplinary overview of Marine Extremes, assessing the impacts of them on communities, infrastructure and ecosystems. It also reviews forecasting methods to predict marine extremes, monitoring options and management and engineering measures to mitigate the impacts. It will be of interest to researchers of marine science, ocean law and governance and economics.

Microbes for Plant Stress Management

Edited by D.J. Bagyaraj and Jamaluddin

It is predicted that the world population will reach about 9.7 billion by the year 2050 and to feed this population the food production has to be increased proportionately. Further, climate which in turn results in abiotic stresses like drought, salinity, etc. seriously affect crop productivity. The present book brings out the role of different groups of microorganisms in alleviating abiotic stress in crop plants. ; Please note: This book is Co-published with New India Publishing Agency, New Delhi. ## Microbes for Restoration of Degraded Ecosystems

Edited by D.J. Bagyaraj and Jamaluddin
Remediation of contaminants caused by growing human civilization and industrialization is a serious environmental issue. Recent research has shown that soil microorganisms play an important role in remediating and improving disturbed ecosystems. This approach is eco-friendly and relatively less expensive. The present book covers the investigations carried out using microbes for restoration of degraded eco-systems. ; Please note: This volume is Co-published with New India Publishing Agency, New Delhi. Taylor & Francis does not sell or distribute the Hardback in India, Pakistan, Nepal, Bhutan, Bangladesh and Sri Lanka

Microbial Biosurfactants and their Environmental and Industrial Applications

Edited by Ibrahim M. Banat, School of Biomedical Science, University of Ulster, Northern Ireland, UK and Rengathavasi Thavasi, Jeneil Biotech Inc., Saukville, Wisconsin, USA Microbial biosurfactants are green molecules with high application potential in environmental and industrial sectors. Chemical diversity of biosurfactants allows versatility for chemical surfactants without compromising performance and economic viability. Biosurfactants are used as emulsifiers, dispersants, wetting agents, oil recovery agents, biopesticides, stabilizers, solubilizers, and bioremediation agents (pesticide, heavy metals and oil spill cleanup). This comprehensive book on biosurfactants and their environmental and industrial applications offers a broad spectrum of information on potential applications of biosurfactants in various fields and related technological developments.

Theoretical Physics for Biological Systems

Paola Lecca, Department of Mathematics, University of Trento and Angela Re, Center for Sustainable Future Technologies, Istituto Tecnologico Italiano Quantum physics provides the concepts and their mathematical formalization that lend themselves to describe important properties of biological networks topology, such as vulnerability to external stress and their dynamic response to changing physiological conditions. A theory of networks enhanced with mathematical concepts and tools of quantum physics opens a new area of biological physics, the one of systems biological physics.

New Generation Formulations of Agrochemicals

Current Trends and Future Priorities

Edited by Tatiana G. Volova, Ekaterina I. Shishatskaya, Natalia O. Zhila, Svetlana V. Prudnikova and Anatoly N. Boyandin

This important volume provides new research on the design and application of ecologically safe formulations for protecting cultivated crops against pathogen-causing diseases and weeds—that also provide nitrogen fertilizers at the same time. The authors make a significant contribution to the development and agricultural use of environmentally safe and biodegradable new-generation pesticides with targeted and controlled release of active ingredients. They discuss the problems associated with the use and accumulation of xenobiotics in the biosphere and present highlights of modern trends in the design of new-generation formulations.

Phytochemistry

Volume 1: Fundamentals, Modern Techniques, and Applications

Edited by Chukwuebuka Egbuna, Jonathan Chinenye Ifemeje, Stanley Chidi Udedi and Shashank Kumar

Phytochemistry, Volume 1: Fundamentals, Modern Techniques, and Applications, the first of this three-volume set, provides comprehensive coverage of a wide range to topics in phytochemistry. With chapters from professional specialists from key institutions around the world, the volume starts with an introduction to phytochemistry and details the fundamentals. Part II discusses the state-of-the-art modern methods and techniques in phytochemical research, while Part III provides an informative overview of computational phytochemistry and its applications. Part IV presents novel research findings in the discovery of drugs that will be effective in the treatment of diseases.

Edited by Chukwuebuka Egbuna, Jonathan Chinenye Ifemeje, Shashank Kumar and Nadia Sharif

Phytochemistry, Volume 3: Marine, Industrial, and Advances is part of the three-volume set on phytochemistry that presents chapters that discuss secondary metabolites of marine origin, the industrial applications of phytochemicals, and recent advances in phytochemical research. The volume includes chapters that illustrate the industrial applications of phytochemicals, such as the production of secondary metabolites and accumulations through in vitro cultures. It also reviews the effects of natural products as biopesticides and as eco-friendly corrosion inhibitors.

Phytochemistry

Volume 2: Pharmacognosy, Nanomedicine, and Contemporary Issues

Edited by Chukwuebuka Egbuna, Shashank Kumar, Jonathan Chinenye Ifemeje and Jaya Vikas Kurhekar

This book is part of the three-volume set on phytochemistry that presents new developments in pharmacognosy, ethnobotany, ethnomedicine, herbal medicine, complementary and alternative medicine, nanomedicine, nanopharmacology, and ethnoveterinary practices. This new volume provides chapters that comprehensively review a selection of important recent advances in ethnopharmacology and alternative and complementary medicines. It also presents many chapters on the medicinal potential of phytochemicals in the treatment and management of various diseases, such as cancer, diabetes, diabetic nephropathy, autoimmune diseases, neurological disorders, male infertility, etc.

Plant Secondary Metabolites for Human Health

Extraction of Bioactive Compounds

Edited by Megh R. Goyal, P. P. Joy and Hafiz Ansar Rasul Suleria

This new volume deals with recent research in the medical and nutrition sciences, natural products, and health-promoting foods that work to reduce the risk of diseases while enhancing overall well-being. Plant-based functional foods are known to contain compounds (also referred to as phytochemicals) in the leaves, stems, flowers, and fruits that help to promote human health. The volume explores extraction of bioactive compounds from plants, plant-based drugs, and innovative use of plant based drugs for human health.

Tropical Bioproductivity

Origins and Distribution in a Globalized World

David Hammond, NWFA Consultancy

Series: Earthscan Studies in Natural Resource Management

This book investigates the fundamental role that tropical bioproductivity - or more specifically Net Primary Productivity - has played in shaping the global geographies of food, finance, governance and people. Tropical Bioproductivity cuts across vast geographies, topics and histories to deliver a readable narrative that links people, places and events with the environmental mechanics of our planet. It will be of interest to students and researchers in the areas of environmental studies, economics, history, agriculture, anthropology and geography.

Type Specimens of Fossil Fishes

Catalogue of the University of Alberta Laboratory for Vertebrate Paleontology

John Clay Bruner, Uni. of Alberta Laboratory for Vertebrate

Paleontology Dept. of Biological Sciences, Uni. of Alberta

The Laboratory for Vertebrate Paleontology at the University of Alberta houses type specimens of fossil fishes. This book is a catalogue of these specimens. Included for each entry is taxonomy, detailed collection locality information, the citation wherein the species was originally described, and a list of individual type specimens. This is the first list ever compiled of the fossil fish types deposited in the collections of the University of Alberta Laboratory for Vertebrate Paleontology (UALVP). This collection contains 88 fish holotypes, 966 fish paratypes, 55 casts of fish holotypes from other museums, and 20 casts of fish paratypes from other museums.

Unmanned Aerial Vehicle Systems in Crop Production

A Compendium

K. R. Krishna

This volume provides useful detailed reviews of 250 UAVs that examine their usefulness in enhancing profitability, yield, and quality of crop production. The volume goes into great detail about the specifications of each of 250 agricultural drone models covered. These include fixed-wing drones, fixed-wing (hybrid) VTOL helicopters, multi-copters, tilted-wing drones, etc. The reviews compare activities among the UAVs, such as aerial imagery of crops, ability to provide spectral analyses to collect useful data about a crop's growth patterns, and how they can be used to gauge crop canopy temperature (i.e. water stress index), determine grain maturity, and much more.

Wild Edible Underutilized Plants

Nutritional, Antinutritional, and Nutraceutical Aspects

V. R. Mohan, P. S. Tresina and A. Doss

This volume explores the role of wild plants in human nutrition. It emphasizes the importance of these plants and explores their relevance to sustainable agriculture, biodiversity, and public health in different agro-ecological regions. It discusses the nutritional aspects of wild edible plants to explore their value as a source of vitamins, antioxidants, fiber, minerals, and other nutrients and elaborates on the anti-nutritional elements of these plants, providing a comprehensive overview of their utility.

Agricultural Landscapes

Seeing Rural Through Design

Dewey Thorbeck, University of Minnesota, USA

The book shows how these unique land use systems and landscapes illustrate models for connecting humans, animals and environments for a more sustainable and prosperous rural and urban future. It includes practical examples of working places where growing food, raising animals, or harvesting from the sea has been the primary economy for centuries to exhibit a clear and sustainable local relationship between humans, animals, buildings, climate and place. Aimed at students, instructors and professionals, this book investigates how design thinking can be used as a tool to integrate rural and urban sites to shape land use for more sustainable futures.

Biology of Aging

Roger B. McDonald, University of California at Davis, USA

Biology of Aging, Second Edition revises and updated the original text to reflect the new approach to aging research that has had a significant impact on how disciplines such as gerontology and geriatrics view the aging process. The rate of aging and the incidence of disease are now considered highly modifiable, especially as biogerontologists and geriatricians are now accepting that time-related functional loss and disease are more closely related to environmental factors than to an intrinsic process. This book discusses the science behind the discovery that the rate of aging can be slowed and that many diseases can be prevented.

Quantitative Understanding of Biosystems

An Introduction to Biophysics, Second Edition

Thomas M. Nordlund, University of Alabama at Birmingham and Peter M. Hoffmann, Wayne State University

Series: Foundations of Biochemistry and Biophysics

This new edition provides a complete update to the most accessible yet thorough introduction to the physical and quantitative aspects of biological systems and processes involving macromolecules, subcellular structures, and whole cells. It includes two brand new chapters covering experimental techniques, especially atomic force microscopy, complementing the updated coverage of mathematical and computational tools. The authors have also incorporated additions to the multimedia component of video clips and animations, as well as interactive diagrams and graphs.

The Human Genome in Health and Disease

A Story of Four Letters

Tore Samuelsson, University of Gothenburg, Sweden

The Human Genome in Health and Disease examines the human genome, a linear sequence of roughly 3 billion bases. The intimate link between this information and biological function is systematically explored and is illustrated with inherited disorders and cancer. A range of sequence-based functional units of the human genome are thereby covered.

The book is motivated by the wealth of human sequence data currently accumulating and aids in understanding this information. It also discusses significant medical applications of human genome sequencing and genetic variation, such as the identification of causative variants in rare genetic disorders and a variety of current methods in gene therapy.

A Beginner's Guide to Using Open Access Data

Saif Aldeen Saleh AlRyalat, Professor at University of Jordan and Shafer Momani, Professor at The University of Jordan
Series: Pocket Guides to Biomedical Sciences

Open Access Data is emerging as a source for cutting edge scholarship. This concise book provides guidance from generating a research idea to publishing results. Both young researchers and well-established scholars can use this book to upgrade their skills with respect to emerging data sources, analysis, and even post-publishing promotion. At the end of each chapter, a tutorial simulates a real example, allowing readers to apply what they learned about accessing open data, and analyzing this data to reach the results. This book can be of use by established researchers analyzing data, publishing, and actively promoting ongoing and research.

Beneficial Insects

David V. Alford, Formerly Regional Entomologist and Head of Entomology, Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, Cambridge, UK

The beneficial role of insects is often overlooked or misunderstood, and in farming circles their very presence on crops is often seen to be unwelcome. In reality, however, many insects are genuinely beneficial, as in the case of parasitic and predacious species. The use of chemical pesticides to control crop pests is becoming more tightly regulated and environmentally undesirable, and low-input farming, in which natural enemies of pests are encouraged to survive or increase, is becoming far more prevalent. Accordingly, Integrated Pest Management (IPM) and Integrated Pest Management (ICM) strategies are increasingly being developed, advocated and adopted.

Fundamentals of Fluorescence Imaging

Edited by Guy Cox

Fluorescence imaging, at macro, micro and sub-micro scales, has revolutionized biological science in the past 30 years. Immuno-labeling has provided the precise targeting of molecules in the fixed tissue, while fluorescent proteins have enabled localization in living tissues. Fluorescent indicators enable the imaging of dynamic changes in cell metabolism. This book covers for the first time imaging at all scales, from macro to sub-micro (super-resolution). All the contributors are at the cutting edge of their field.

Handbook of Dynein (Second Edition)

Edited by Keiko Hirose, National Institute of Advanced Industrial Science & Technology, Ibaraki, Japan

Dyneins are molecular motors that are involved in various cellular processes, such as cilia and flagella motility, vesicular transport, and mitosis. Since the first edition of this book was published in 2012, there has been a significant breakthrough: the crystal structures of the motor domains of cytoplasmic dynein have been solved and the previously unknown details of this huge and complex molecule have been unveiled. This new edition contains 14 chapters written by researchers in the US, Europe, and Asia, including 3 new chapters that incorporate new fields. The other chapters have also been substantially updated.

Invitation to Protein Sequence Analysis Through Probability and Information

Daniel J. Graham, Loyola University, Chicago, Illinois, USA

This book explores the remarkable information correspondences and probability structures of proteins. Correspondences are pervasive in biochemistry and bioinformatics: proteins share homologies, folding patterns, and mechanisms. Probability structures are just as paramount: folded state graphics reflect Angstrom-scale maps of electron density. The author explores protein sequences (primary structures), both individually and in sets (systems) with the help of probability and information tools. This perspective will enhance the reader's knowledge of how an important class of molecules is designed and put to task in natural systems, and how we can approach class members in hands-on ways.

Oilfield Microbiology

Edited by Torben Lund Skovhus, VIA University College, Denmark and Corinne Whitby

There is an increasing need for the oil industry to monitor microbial communities to address issues and benefits of these microbes. This book offers fundamental insight into how molecular microbiological methods have enabled researchers in the field to analyze and quantify in-situ microbial communities and their activities in response to changing environmental conditions. Such information is fundamental to the oil industry to employ more directed, cost-effective strategies to prevent the major problems associated with deleterious microbial activities (e.g., souring and biocorrosion), as well as to encourage beneficial microbe activity.

The Charnoly Body

A Novel Biomarker of Mitochondrial Bioenergetics

Sushil Sharma

This book highlights Charnoly body (CB) prevention/inhibition, chernolophagy induction, and chernosome stabilization, as targets for safe and effective treatment of chronic intractable diseases (CIDs) including: Fetal Alcohol Syndrome, Zika Virus Disease, Alzheimer's Disease, Cardiovascular Diseases, Major Depression, and Multi-Drug-Resistant Malignancies. Emerging glycomics, genomics, and epigenomics are described to further elucidate diversified chernopathies. In addition, ROS scavenging antioxidant loaded nanoparticles are proposed to enhance drug delivery and chernolophagy for intracellular detoxification.

Fuel Processing and Energy Utilization

Edited by Sonil Nanda, Prakash Kumar Sarangi and Dai-Viet N. Vo

This book provides different aspects on fuel processing and refinery for energy generation. It provides most up-to-date information that addresses solutions for clean fuel, energy security, reduced greenhouse gas emissions and climate change mitigation. It also discusses applications of technologies such as synthetic crude processing, conversion technologies (biomass-to-liquid, biomass-to-gas and gas-to-liquid), Fischer-Tropsch synthesis, dry reforming and bi-reforming of biogas for sustainable processing of conventional oils and biofuels.

Volatile Organic Compound Analysis in Biomedical Diagnosis Applications

Edited by Raquel Cumeras and Xavier Correig

This volume presents a thought-provoking state-of-the-art picture of how volatile compounds are used in metabolomics, currently a hot topic in the metabolomics field. It provides a thorough description of what are volatile organic compounds (VOCs), why are they important in biomedicine, and what are the analytical platforms used. It also looks at multivariate analysis and databases needs. The book explains why volatiles are important compounds in biomedical diagnosis and how researchers detect and analyze them.

Microbial Infections and Cancer Therapy

Edited by Ananda M. Chakrabarty and Arsénio M. Fialho

This book deals with the emerging concept that certain pathogenic bacteria and viruses, when infecting people with cancer, actively fight tumors, allowing their regression. It is composed of 12 chapters written by pioneers in microbial, biotech, and cancer research and covers the emerging roles of various microorganisms and their products in cancer therapy. The book highlights the benefits of using conventional cancer treatments with microbial-based therapies.

Alginates

Versatile Polymers in Biomedical Applications and Therapeutics

Edited by Md Saquib Hasnain and Amit Kumar Nayak

This new volume explores the latest research on the use of alginate as a biopolymer in various biomedical applications and therapeutics. The biomedical and therapeutic uses of alginates and modified alginates discussed in this book include tissue regeneration, encapsulation and delivery of drugs, nucleic acid materials, proteins and peptides, genes, herbal therapeutic agents, nutraceuticals, and more. This book also describes the synthesis and characterizations of various alginate and modified alginate systems, such as hydrogels, gels, composites, nanoparticles, scaffolds, etc., used for the biomedical applications and therapeutics.

Edited by Heather A.E. Benson, Curtin University of Technology, Perth, Australia, Michael S. Roberts, University of South Australia, Bedford Park, Vania Rodrigues Leite-Silva, Federal University of Sao Paulo, Brazil and Kenneth Walters

Cosmetics are the most widely applied products to the skin and include creams, lotions, gels, and sprays. Their formulation, design, and manufacturing ranges from large cosmetic houses to small private companies. This book covers the current science in the formulations of cosmetics applied to the skin. It includes basic formulation, skin science, advanced formulation, and cosmetic product development, including both descriptive and mechanistic content with an emphasis on practical aspects.

Ewing's Analytical Instrumentation Handbook, Fourth Edition

Edited by Nelu Grinberg and Sonia Rodriguez, Boehringer Ingelheim Pharmaceuticals Inc., Ridgefield, Connecticut, USA

This handbook is a guide for workers in analytical chemistry who need a starting place for information about a specific instrumental technique. It gives a basic introduction to the techniques and provides leading references on the theory and methodology for an instrumental technique. This edition thoroughly expands and updates the chapters to include concepts, applications, and key references from recent literature. It also contains a new chapter on process analytical technology.

Terpenoids Against Human Diseases

Edited by Dijendra Nath Roy

Terpenoids are a group of metabolites showing functional diversity in treatment of human diseases. This book highlights how terpenoids act as biological messenger and can be used as medicine against human diseases like liver disease, neurodegenerative disease, cancer, infectious disease, cardiovascular disease, and inflammatory diseases focusing on in vitro, in vivo and clinical trials. Metabolic engineering approach of terpenoids production along with toxicity of terpenoids will also be emphasized in this book. It also provides details of different types of sources and classes of terpenoids.

Principles and Practice of Botanicals as an Integrative Therapy

Edited by Anne Hume, University of Rhode Island, Kingston, USA and Katherine Kelly Orr, University of Rhode Island, Kingston, USA

Series: Clinical Pharmacognosy Series

The purpose of this book is to focus on major considerations in the clinical use of botanicals and on the best evidence with botanical therapies as an integrated approach to health care globally. The editors here cover the key areas, ensure a global focus and include epidemiological studies. There are relevant sections on the chemical constituents of the various botanicals to round out the pharmacognosy aspects of the book. Finally, a summary on the editors' perspective of "challenges and opportunities" is provided, which discusses the practice of botanicals as integrative therapies and where they are heading in the future.

TEXTBOOK • READER

Fundamentals and Operations in Food Process Engineering

Susanta Kumar Das, Indian Institute of Technology, Kharagpur, India and Madhusweta Das, Indian Institute of Technology, Kharagpur, India

'Fundamentals and Operations in Food Process Engineering' deals with basic engineering principles and transport processes applied to food processing, followed by specific unit operations with large number of worked out examples and problems for practice in each chapter. This book is divided into four sections namely, fundamentals in food process engineering, mechanical operations in food processing, thermal operations in food processing and mass transfer operations in food processing. This volume aims at students pursuing courses on food science and food technology including broader section of scientific personnel working in food processing and related industries.

Essentials and Applications of Food Engineering

C. Anandharamkrishnan, Director, Indian Institute of Food Processing Technology and S. Padma Ishwarya, CSIR-Central Food Technological Research Institute (CFTRI), Mysore, India

Food Engineers are often responsible for plant operations and manufacturing of high quality food products. Thus they need sound technical knowledge of the various unit operations. This textbook presents the fundamentals of various aspects of food engineering in a reader-friendly approach. In 15 chapters, the relevant industrial applications of each concept / unit operation are presented in the form of general descriptions and case studies. The topics included explain the applications of engineering concepts, right from the measurement of quantities and transport processes to the processing and preservation methods intended for fresh produce. A solutions manual will accompany the textbook.

Edited by Shabir Ahmad Mir, Department of Food Technology, Islamic University of Science & Technology, Annamalai Manickavasagan and Manzoor Ahmad Shah

Whole grains play an important role in healthy diets, due to their potential role in minimizing the risk factors for several diseases. Thus the need for a comprehensive work that addresses all aspects of whole grain technology including processing, product development and nutrition values. This book covers the technological, nutritional and product development aspects of all whole grains including wheat, rice, barley, rye, sorghum, millet, maize, and oats among others. The book will review and summarize current knowledge in whole grains with the intent of being helpful to the food industry in the development of high-quality whole grain products.

Drawing Parallels

Knowledge Production in Axonometric, Isometric and Oblique Drawings

Ray Lucas

Drawing Parallels expands our understanding of the workings of architects by looking at their work from a different perspective. Lucas argues that by retracing the marks made by architects, we can begin to engage more directly with their practice as it is only by redrawing the work that aspects of it are revealed. Marks such as drawing, diagramming, and notation offer different insights, not easily accessible through discourse analysis, critical theory or observation. Including 60 images, this book would be an essential read for academics and students of architecture, with a particular interest in further understanding the workings or architects when creating pieces.

Migrant Housing

Architecture, Dwelling, Migration

Mirjana Lozanovska, Senior Lecturer, Deakin University, Australia

Series: Routledge Research in Architecture

Migrant Housing examines the house as the architectural construct in the processes of migration. Houses are pivotal to any migration story, with studies showing that migrant communities' participation in the adaptation, extension or building of houses provides symbolic materiality of belonging. It draws on data studies from Australia, Macedonia, Canada, Sweden and Germany, to uncover the effects of unprivileged post-war migration in the late twentieth century on the house as architectural and normative model, and from this perspective negotiates the disciplinary boundaries of architecture.

Curve

possibilities and problems with deviating from the straight in architecture

Simon Unwin, University of Dundee, UK

Series: Analysing Architecture Notebooks

Each of these Analysing Architecture Notebooks is devoted to a particular theme in understanding the rich and varied workings of architecture. Curve is a divisive issue in architecture. Some see curves as expensive and decadent; others as an expression of transcendence – a way that the human mind can express its freedom from quotidian constraints. Yet others use curves to emulate some of the most beautiful forms in nature. This Notebook considers the various authorities to which architects look for the generation of their curves. It also considers the aspirations curves manifest in architectural form.

Drawing (...) City (...) Body, Dwelling on Earth

Imagined-Architectures: Architectural Graphic Representation and Other Images

Edited by Pedro António Janeiro, CIAUD - Research Centre for Architecture, Urbanism and Design, University of Lisbon, Portugal

This international seminar had the objective to discuss 1 How Drawing in/of the City and the elements that identify it are represented and identified through the presence and/or action of the body, in the form of gestures, movements, interventions, displacements or permanence. 2 To problematise the association between Drawing and City from the starting point of the perception of the Body, assuming this mediation as a condition for the particular construction of that relationship, and 3 To identify the presence of the Body in the Representations/Drawings of the City, submitting this event or phenomenon to analysis, aiming for cognitive production.

Metaphor

an exploration of the metaphorical dimensions and potential of architecture

Series: Analysing Architecture Notebooks

Metaphor is the most powerful component of the poetry of architecture. It has been a significant factor in architecture since the earliest periods of human history, when people were finding ways to give order and meaning to the world in which we live. It is arguable that architecture began with the realisation of metaphor in physical form, and that subsequent movements – from Greek to Gothic, Renaissance to Modern, Victorian to Vernacular... – have all been driven by the emergence or rediscovery of different metaphors by which architecture might be generated.

Twentieth Century Town Halls

Architecture of Democracy

John Stewart, Architect and writer, UK

This is the first book to examine the development of the Town Hall during the twentieth century. Following an overview of the history of the Town Hall as a building type, it examines the key themes, variations and lessons which emerged during the twentieth century. This is followed by 20 case studies from around the world which include plans, sections and full colour illustrations. Each of the case studies, examines the town hall's procurement, the selection of its architect, the building design and critically analyses its success and contribution to the type's development. The case studies include: Copenhagen Town Hall, Kurashiki Town Hall, Casa del Fascio, City Hall Boston and many more.

Erik Champion, Curtin University, Australia

Organic Design in Twentieth-Century Nordic Architecture presents a communicable and useful definition of organic architecture that reaches beyond constraints. The book focuses on the works and writings of architects in Nordic Countries, such as Sigurd Lewerentz, Jørn Utzon, Sverre Fehn, and the Aaltoa (Aino, Elissa and Alvar), among others.

The Changing Shape of Architecture

Further Cases of Integrating Research and Design in Practice

Edited by Michael U. Hensel, Oslo School of Architecture and Design, Norway and Fredrik Nilsson, Chalmers University of Technology, Sweden

This new volume provides a handbook of examples for practices that wish to integrate more research into their work and a reference book for students that seek to prepare themselves for the changing shape of practice in architecture. As well as addressing the increasing integration of research undertaken in architectural practices of different sizes ranging from small to very large practices from the UK, USA, Europe and Asia, the book also focuses on two new elements: the comparative analysis of modes and modalities of conducting research in practice, and cross-practice discussions of specific aspects and themes that impact upon, shape and co-evolve research and practice.

Greening Affordable Housing

An Interactive Approach

Edited by Abdullateef Olanrewaju, Zalina Shari and Zhonghua Gou

Global sustainability goals have led to increased development of the green building movement. However, books specifically dealing with greening affordable housing that also guide housing stakeholders at different life cycles, are limited. This book intends to fill that gap. Affordability and sustainability in greening are generally considered incompatible; hence, it is of paramount importance to demonstrate that much can still be achieved despite the constraints and negative perceptions. This book also presents theories and principles with practical methods, strategies and processes not only to make affordable housing green but also to support economic stability and social equity.

International Housing Market Experience and Implications for China

Edited by Rebecca L. H. Chiu, The University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong SAR, Zhi Liu, Peking University, China and Bertrand Renaud, Homer Hoyt Institute, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in International Real Estate

This book examines the impact of China's ever-expanding housing market on the general population, as well as aspiring homeowners and developers. The contributors look at the effect on the widening of wealth gaps, stagnated economic growth, and threats political and social stability. Though focusing on China, the editors present discussions of specific policy design challenges encountered in Australia, Japan, Korea, The Netherlands, the Nordic Countries, Singapore, Taiwan, the UK, and the US. This book would be of interest to housing policy makers as well as academics who are studying the social and political effects of the Chinese housing market.

The City in Geography

Renaturing the Built Environment

Benedict Anderson, University of Technology Sydney, Australia

Series: Routledge Research in Planning and Urban Design

Monumental in scale and epic in development, cities have become the most visible and significant symbol of human progress. The geography on and around which they are constructed, however, has come to be viewed merely in terms of its resources and is often laid to waste once its assets have been stripped. The City in Geography is an urban exploration through this phenomenon, from settlement to city through physical geography, which reveals an incremental progression of removing terrain, topography and geography from the built environment, ushering in and advancing global destruction and instability.

The Metaphysical City

Six Ways of Understanding the Urban Milieu

Rob Sullivan

Series: Routledge Research in Planning and Urban Design

Case studies of New York, Paris, Cairo, Mumbai, Tokyo and Los Angeles explore a metaphor specific to each city. This multidisciplinary analysis uses philosophical treatises, geographical analysis and comparative literature to uncover how each city corresponds to the metaphor. As such, it allows the reader to understand the city from six differing points of view: the city as a creature, a human, a jail cell, a thing, a home and finally a spectacle. This book would be beneficial to students and academics of urban planning, geography and comparative literature, in particular, those with an interest in a metaphysical examination of cities.

Managing Diversity and Inclusion in the Real Estate Sector

Amanda Clack, CBRE Ltd and Judith Gabler, Director of Operations in Europe, RICS

This book is the first to place diversity and inclusion at the centre of successful real estate organisations. It provides guidance to professionals in the sector who want to make it an inherent part of the culture of their organisation. It has been written to bring the sector up to speed with what D&I is all about and how a strategy can be implemented to secure future success. It presents a practical and easy to read guide that can help companies and their leaders engage with and apply this agenda to win the war for talent in real estate and construction. This book is essential reading for all leaders and professionals working in the built environment sector.

Public Space Design and Social Cohesion

Edited by Patricia Aelbrecht and Quentin Stevens, RMIT University, Melbourne, Australia

This book brings together scholarly knowledge at the intersection of public space design and social cohesion. It is based on original scholarly research and a depth of urban design practice, and analyses case studies from a variety of cities and cultures across the Global North and Global South. Its interdisciplinary, cross-cultural analysis will be of interest to academics, students, policymakers and practitioners engaged with a range of subject areas, including urban design, urban planning, architecture, landscape, cultural studies, human geography, social policy, sociology, and anthropology. It will also have appeal to a wider non-academic readership, given its topical subject matter.

Spatial Planning and Fiscal Impact Analysis

A Toolkit for Existing and Proposed Land Use

Linda Tomaselli

This book is an innovative approach to measure fiscal impact and project the future costs of a proposed development, recognizing that all revenues and expenditures are spatially related. It will provide readers with guidance as to how to conduct the Spatial Method in their own cities. The book will provide an overview of the history of fiscal analysis, and demonstrate the advantages of the Spatial Method to other methods, taking the reader step by step through the process, from analysing city financial reports, determining and developing the factors that are needed to model the flows of revenues and expenditures, and then estimating fiscal impact at the parcel level.

The Meanings of Landscape

Essays on Place, Space, Environment and Justice

Kenneth R. Olwig

This book positions landscape as an international concept shaped through the centuries, evolving from place to place to provide nuanced interpretations of landscape meaning. The essays are woven together to gather an international approach to understanding the past and present importance of landscape as place and polity, as designed space, as nature and as an influential factor in the shaping of ideas in a just social and physical environment. Aimed at students, scholars and researchers in landscape and beyond, this illustrated volume traces the idea of landscape from ancient theatre through to the present day.

Concrete Recycling

Research and Practice

Edited by Francois de Larrard, LCR - LafargeHolcim, France and Horacio Colina, ATIHL (French Technical Association of Hydraulic Binders Industries)

The concrete industry consumes thirty billion tons of aggregate annually, almost all from unsustainable natural sources. Demolition produces a growing amount of materials which are legally usable and readily available. If not used locally they must be transported and landfilled.

This book encompasses all aspects of concrete reuse, drawing on the Recybéton project, which lasted more than 5 years and gathered about 50 partners from both academia and industry.

Design of Reinforced Concrete Buildings for Seismic Performance

Practical Deterministic and Probabilistic Approaches

Mark Aschheim, Santa Clara University, California, USA, Enrique Hernández-Montes, Universidad de Granada, Spain and Dimitrios Vamvatsikos, National Technical University of Athens, Greece

An elegant, simple, and theoretically coherent design framework. Detailing is given to both ACI 318 and Eurocode 8, and the required strength is determined on the basis of estimated yield displacement and the desired limits of system ductility and drift demands. Students users will benefit from the coverage of seismology, structural dynamics, reinforced concrete members, and capacity design approaches, which allows the book to be used as a foundation text in earthquake engineering.

Wastewater Reuse and Watershed Management

Engineering Implications for Agriculture, Industry, and the Environment

Edited by Ajai Singh

The editor states that more than 75-80% of the wastewater we produce goes back to nature without being properly treated, leading to pollution and all sorts of negative health and productivity consequences. Topics cover a wide selection of research, including molluscs as a tool for river health assessment, flood risk modeling, biological removal of toxins from groundwater, saline water intrusion into coastal areas, urban drainage simulations, rainwater harvesting, irrigation topics, and more.

Qin Zhang, Washington State University, Prosser, USA

Basics of Hydraulic Systems, Second Edition provides students and professionals in both engineering and technology management fields a basic book to assist in their study of fluid power systems technology. This edition is expanded to include new chapters on system modeling and hydraulic systems controls. The text covers subjects essential to understanding operating principles, configuration features, functionalities, applications of composing elements, and controls of hydraulic systems. It presents them in a systematic, accessible way, following the course of energy transmission in hydraulic power generation, distribution, deployment, modeling, and control in

A Strategic Approach to the UK Construction Industry

Stephen Gruneberg, University of Westminster, UK

This new book stands in stark contrast to recent UK government reports and presents the relevant theoretical aspects of construction economics, discusses the theory and data relating to the output of firms in relation to the type of firm, the market and how these firms behave as a result. It advocates the measures needed to create the kind of industry that must be fostered to ensure the quality of its output, sustainability and the fair terms and conditions of employment for its workforce. Essential reading for anyone wishing to understand the economic forces that determine industry outcomes and who have a stake in the success of the UK construction sector.

Construction Project Management

An Integrated Approach

Peter Fewings, University of the West of England, UK and Christian Henjewele, Anglia Ruskin University, UK

This book combines best practice in construction with the theories underpinning project management and presents a wealth of practical case studies – many new. It focuses on all construction disciplines who may manage projects. The book is uniquely valuable for those in the later years of undergraduate courses, specialist postgraduate courses in project management and for practitioners of all disciplines and clients who have experienced the frustration of the fragmentation of construction projects.

Accounting for Construction

Frameworks, Productivity, Cost and Performance

Edited by Rick Best, Bond University, Australia and Jim Meikle, University College London, UK

Accounting for Construction presents international examples from the UK, Australia, Africa and New Zealand and from both academic and professional contributors. The book is divided into three parts discussing hitherto little examined issues under the headings accounting for construction, aspects of construction productivity, and construction cost and performance. This book is essential reading for all researchers and professionals interested in construction economics, construction management, and anyone interested in how the construction industry affects the global economy in ways previously unexplored.

Construction Equipment Management

John E. Schaufelberger, University of Washington, USA and Giovanni C. Migliaccio, University of Washington, USA

This revised and updated edition integrates both conceptual and hands-on quantitative knowledge on construction equipment into a process that facilitates student learning. The book can be used on numerous courses at different levels to prepare graduates to apply skills on construction equipment when planning for a new project, estimating its costs, and monitoring field operations. Organized around the major categories of construction equipment, including both commercial and heavy civil examples and case studies. A companion website provides an instructor manual, solutions, additional examples, lecture slides, figures and diagrams.

Narratives of Low-Carbon Transitions (Open Access)

Understanding Risks and Uncertainties

Edited by Susanne Hanger-Kopp, Jenny Lieu and Alexandros Nikas

Series: Routledge Studies in Energy Transitions

The narratives in this book present empirical evidence reflecting the complex challenges and potential consequences of low-carbon pathways. Together they enable us to draw valuable lessons on the risks and uncertainties we face in choosing these pathways, as well as ways to manage them and ultimately enable their sustainable and lasting social and environmental effects. This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of environmental and energy policy, energy transitions, renewable energy, climate change, and sustainability in general.

Total Safety and the Productivity Challenge

Edited by Maria Chiara Leva, Tom Kontogiannis, Technical University of Crete, Chania, Crete, Greece, Marko Gerbec and Olga Aneziris

This book describes approaches that can be used alone or jointly to improve safety management in any organisation. The methods are based on academic best practice and have been developed by leading experts, but are presented here in a practical way for application in industry by non-experts. The book outlines a professional approach to risk and safety management, which requires goal setting, planning and the measurement of performance, and encourages a safety management system that is woven holistically into the fabric of an organization becomes part of the culture, the way people do their jobs, and helps ensure that issues are correctly prioritized and managed as they emerge.

Improving Aviation Performance through Applying Engineering Psychology

Advances in Aviation Psychology, Volume 3

Edited by Michael A. Vidulich, Air Force Research Laboratory and Pamela S. Tsang

Aviation is one of the most active and challenging domains for human factors and applied psychology. Since 1981 the biennial International Symposium on Aviation Psychology has convened to present the latest research on human performance problems within aviation systems, provide design solutions that best utilize human capabilities for safe and efficient systems, and bringing together scientists, researcher, and operators to bridge the gap between research and application. This new volume will include the best ideas from the 19th International Symposium held in Dayton, Ohio in 2017. It will also communicate concepts, methodologies, findings, and debates to the aviation community globally.

Human Resources and Change Management for Safety Professionals

Thomas D. Schneid, Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond, USA and Shelby L. Schneid, Smucker, Inc., Richmond, Kentucky, USA

Series: Occupational Safety & Health Guide Series

The goal of this book is to prepare safety and health professionals to recognize and address human resource issues, applicable laws and regulations, as well as change management techniques used to change the safety culture within their operations. This book will provide awareness to avoid or address HR related policies/issues/laws which can result in costly litigation, grievances, and other negative implications. The book will address the "pitfalls" for safety professionals to avoid as well as provide the methodology to achieve the cultural change necessary to achieve and maintain safety performance.

An Introduction to Radiation Protection

Alan Martin, Sam Harbison, Health & Safety Consultant, Kent, UK, Karen Beach and Peter Cole

This highly-readable account of the nature of the hazards presented by ionizing radiation and the methods of protection is an ideal introductory text for those new to the field, and for the non-specialist. The seventh edition continues to cover the technical principles underlying the control of radiation hazards, radiation detection and measurement and the biological effects of radiation, followed by a consideration of industry-specific radiation protection issues. Further specialised topics include risk assessment, waste management and decommissioning, radiological emergencies, relevant legislation and organizational issues and, new to this edition, environmental radiation protection.

Human Body

A Wearable Product Designer's Guide

Karen L. LaBat, University of Minnesota, College of Design, St. Paul, USA and Karen S. Ryan, University of Minnesota, College of Design, St. Paul, USA

This book is written to provide designers with realistic, reliable knowledge of human anatomy from a design perspective. It provides professionals with engineering and focused medical expertise, with a design perspective on fitting products to the individual. There are many anatomy books, but those are intended for artists by providing a visual guide to drawing the human body. There are no books that present human anatomy in an easy-to-understand format with specific applications to the interactions between the human body and wearable products. This book will provide not only an everyday resource for wearable product designers, but also a resource for students designing wearable products.

Agronomic Rice Practices and Postharvest Processing

Production and Quality Improvement

Edited by Deepak Kumar Verma, Prem Prakash Srivastav and Altafhusain B. Nadaf

This volume addresses three important agricultural aspects of rice: physical characteristics, physico-chemical characteristics of rice, and the organoleptic aspects of rice. Divided into four parts, the book first looks at recent trends and advances for higher production and quality improvement of rice, which covers climate-resilient agricultural practices. The book looks at climatic effects, relative performance, and constraints in direct seeded versus transplanted rice of Asia, constraints in temperate rice culture, and interventions to mitigate the challenges, along with recent advances and trends in system of rice intensification (SRI).

Sustainable Energy and Environment

An Earth System Approach

Edited by Sandeep Narayan Kundu and Muhammad Nawaz

Sustainable Energy and Environment: An Earth System Approach provides a holistic understanding of earth, energy, and the environment through a careful selection of invited chapters. The book looks at Earth from the perspective of a livable planet and elaborates on surface and subsurface processes and the various energy cycles where energy is transformed and stored in the various spheres. The chapters discuss the interactions between the different parts of Earth—how energy is exchanged between the atmosphere, hydrosphere, biosphere, and geosphere, and how impacts it the environment in which we live.

Topical Issues of Rational Use of Natural Resources

Proceedings of the International Forum-Contest of Young Researchers, April 18-20, 2018, St. Petersburg, Russia

Edited by Vladimir Litvinenko, Saint-Petersburg Mining University, St. Petersburg, Russia

Topical Issues of Rational Use of Natural Resources contains the contributions presented at International Forum-Contest of Young Researchers 2018 (St. Petersburg Mining University, Russia, 18-20 April 2018). The Forum-Contest is an excellent opportunity for young researchers to present their work to the scientific community involved in the extraction and processing of natural resources. Topical Issues of Rational Use of Natural Resources collects the best reports presented at the Forum-Contest, and will be of interest to academics and professionals involved in the extraction and processing of natural resources.

Acousto-Optical Laser Systems for the Formation of Television Images

Yu V. Gulyaev, Institute of Radio Engineering and Electronics, Russian Academy of Sciences, M. A. Kazaryan, Russian Academy of Sciences, Moscow, M. Mokrushnin, Scientific Research Institute of of Electrophysical Apparatus, St. Petersburg, Russia and O.V. Shatkin, State University of Aerospace Instrumentation, St Petersburg

The book addresses various approaches to television projection imaging on large screens using lasers. Results of theoretical and experimental studies of an acousto-optic projection system operating on the principle of projecting an image of an entire amplitude-modulated television line in a single laser pulse are presented. Characteristic features of image formation and requirements for individual components are discussed. Particular attention is paid to nonlinear distortions of the image signal, which show up most severely at low modulation signal frequencies. The feasibility of improving the process efficiency and image quality using acousto-optic modulators and pulsed lasers is studied.

Global Occupational Safety and Health Management Handbook

Edited by Thomas P. Fuller, Illinois State University, Normal, IL, USA

There are numerous books on International Environmental Management, International Marketing, and Global Business Management. There are also books on Occupational Safety and Health Management. But there are no books on global or international health and safety topics. This represents a vacuum of knowledge in this important area. With the growing need for occupational health and safety professionals in general, and the expansion of organization operations globally in particular, detailed information on international issues is essential. This handbook will provide much needed guidance to health and safety professionals just beginning projects abroad.

Membrane Technology for CO2 Sequestration

Edited by Zeinab Abbas Jawad

Membrane Technology for CO2 Sequestration discusses the key aspects of membrane gas separation, which has attracted the attention of both engineers and researchers in recent years. This book is a comprehensive guide of the state-of-the-art geological media chosen for CO2 sequestration. With topics ranging from capturing and storage processes to leakage due to the loss of integrity, this book is a good source of information for CO2 long-term storage in subsurface layers and the synthesis process of polymeric, organic, and mixed matrix membranes for CO2 separation. Additionally, it addresses the challenges of modeling, simulation, and optimization of membrane separation.

Edited by Vanesa Calvino-Casilda, Antonio José López-Peinado, Rosa María Martín-Aranda and Elena Pérez Mayoral

Synthesis and design of new nanocatalysts is an important area of research that aims to introduce multiple types of useful applications in a greener market. The necessity of nanostructuring the active sites have emerged as the key point in a successful design of the catalysts. This book covers the progress achieved in this area of research over the last ten years and includes the classification of catalysts and structure of active sites at the nanoscale. Examples are provided to present the concept and evolution of nanocatalysts from the perspective of chemistry of materials and their applications.

Nanostructured Semiconductors in Porous Alumina Matrices

Modeling, Synthesis, and Properties

Edited by Rishat G. Valeev, Alexander V. Vakhruшев, Aleksey Yu. Fedotov and Dmitrii I. Petukhov

Explores new developments in the modeling, synthesis, and properties of functional semiconductor nanostructures in porous anodic alumina matrices. The book focuses on luminescent nanoparticles in organic and inorganic dielectric matrices, specifically in porous alumina films, as these are most relevant due to their capacity for particle division and ability to provide environmental protection. With a particular emphasis on experimental and theoretical studies of the synthesis processes, the book informs readers about these nanostructures through rigorous investigation of their properties.

Nonlinear Grid-based Estimation and Its Applications

Bin Jia and Ming Xin, University of Missouri

Featuring a unified framework to derive different grid-based nonlinear estimation algorithms from a numerical integration perspective, this book discusses the fundamental concepts of many widely used nonlinear estimation techniques. These grid-based estimation techniques are shown to outperform the traditional Kalman filtering based estimation in highly nonlinear and uncertain dynamic systems. Step-by-step instructions and pseudo-code for each method are provided, and diverse engineering applications, such as uncertainty propagation, target tracking, guidance, navigation, and control, are presented to illustrate the performance of different grid-based estimation techniques.

Alexander Nerukh, Kharkov National University of Radioelectronics, Ukraine and Trevor Benson, University of Nottingham, UK

This book is devoted to the investigations of non-stationary electromagnetic processes. The investigations are undertaken analytically mainly using the integral Volterra equation approach. The book contains a systematic statement of the Volterra integral equation method for the investigations of electrodynamics phenomena in the time domain and new results and applications in microwave techniques and photonics. Particular consideration is given to electromagnetic transients in time-varying media and their potential applications.

Optics for Materials Scientists

Myeongkyu Lee

This volume is intended to help materials scientists and engineers fully comprehend the principles of optics and optical phenomena and effectively utilize them for the design and fabrication of optical materials and devices. Materials science is an interdisciplinary field at the intersection of various fields, such as metallurgy, ceramics, solid-state physics, chemistry, chemical engineering, and mechanical engineering. Thus, many physicists, chemists, and engineers also work in materials science. Many materials scientists generally do not have a strong background in optics, and this book aims to fill that gap.

Optimizing Small Multi-Rotor Unmanned Aircraft

A Practical Design Guide

Stephen D. Prior, University of Southampton, United Kingdom

This design guide was written to capture the author's practical experience of designing, building and testing multi-rotor drone systems over the past decade. The lack of one single source of useful information meant that the past 10 years has been a steep learning curve, a lot of self-tuition and many trial and error tests. Lessons learnt the hard way are not always the best way to learn. This book will be useful for the amateur drone pilot who wants to build their own system from first principles, as well as the academic researcher investigating novel design concepts and future drone applications.

Phenomenological Creep Models of Composites and Nanomaterials

Deterministic and Probabilistic Approach

Leo Razdolsky

The introduction of new engineering materials in the aerospace and space industry are usually determined by the requirements of bearing capacity of structural elements and systems, improving the performance of specific applications, reducing structural weight and cost-effectiveness. Application of the crystalline composites and nanomaterials at design lightweight structural elements is caused by the fact that such materials combine high stiffness, strength and low density. In this paper, the effect of high temperature creep on structural system response is investigated. The new phenomenological creep models of composites and nanomaterials are presented and analyzed.

Polymer and Ceramic Composite Materials

Emergent Properties and Applications

Nouredine Ramdani, Harbin Engineering University, China

This book summarizes recent advances in the fabrication methods, properties, and applications of various ceramic-filled reinforced polymer matrix composites. The surface-modification methods and the chemical functionalization of the ceramic fillers have been explored in details. The outstanding thermal and mechanical properties of the polymer-ceramic composites, the modeling of some of their thermal and mechanical parameters, and their major potential applications are discussed along with detailed examples. It summarizes a huge number of references in the polymer-ceramic field that can help readers easily advance their research.

Processing and Characterization of Multicomponent Polymer Systems

New Insights

Edited by Jose James, Sabu Thomas, Nandakumar Kalarikkal, Yang Weimin and Kaushik Pal

This volume highlights some of the latest innovations and principles of nanostructured polymeric materials and polymer nanocomposites. It is devoted to novel architectures at the nano-level with an emphasis on new synthesis and characterization methods. Organized into several sections, the chapters cover a selection of topics on Biocomposites and nanocomposites; Interpenetrating polymeric networks and nanostructured materials; Theoretical protocols for polymers and clusters; Special topics in polymer; and processing and polymer coating.

Security in IoT-Enabled Spaces

Edited by Fadi Al-Turjman

Security and smart spaces are among the most significant topics in IoT nowadays. The implementation of secured smart spaces is at the heart of this concept, and its development is a key issue in the next generation IoT. This book addresses major security aspects and challenges in realizing smart spaces and sensing platforms in critical Cloud and IoT applications. The book focuses on both the design and implementation aspects of security models and strategies in smart that are enabled by wireless sensor networks and RFID systems. It mainly examines seamless data access approaches and encryption and decryption aspects in reliable IoT systems.

Superalloys

Analysis and Control of Failure Process

Nataliya V. Kazantseva, Institute of Metal physics, Ural Branch of Russian Academy of Sciences, Natalia N.

Stepanova, Institute of Metal Physics, Ural Branch of Russian Academy of Science Professor of the Ural Federal University and Mikhail B. Rigmant, Institute of Metal Physics, Ural Branch of Russian Academy of Science

Superalloys have a wide variety of applications, especially as the parts of aircraft gas turbines and electric power stations. They form the class of the structural materials that are used for high temperature application. This book presents the results of the scientific studies on the three types of superalloys (Ni3Al-based, Iron-based, and Co3(Al,W)-based) and reviews the new intermetallic cobalt superalloys. This book is useful for specialists in material science, first-year graduate students studying material

Wide-Range Antennas

Boris Levin, Holon Inst. of Technology, Israel

The book reviews the issues in enhancing antenna frequency range. The author offers solutions that are based on the development of new theoretical methods for analyzing and synthesizing antennas. This book also shows that concentrated capacitive loads connected along linear and V-antennas provide a high level of matching with a cable over a wide frequency range and improves directional characteristics of antennas, i.e. increases the communication distance. Additionally, it describes new versions of transparent antennas, antennas for cellular communication, antennas with nonlinear elements, and much more.

Elementary Concepts of Power Electronic Drives

K Sundareswaran, Department of Electrical and Electronics Engineering, National Institute of Technology, Trichirappalli, Tamil Nadu, INDIA

"Elementary Concepts of Power Electronic Drives" aims to facilitate a smooth transition from basic knowledge of electric machines and power electronics to the world of power electronics. This book emphasizes only on relevant principles of electric motors and power electronics and then integrates such facts to bring the principle power electronic control of electric motors. Salient features of motors and power converter operations are crisply mentioned at appropriate places. Different case studies and solved numerical examples are provided in large numbers including illustrations through commonly seen electric drives.

Physics of Semiconductors and Nanostructures

Jyoti Prasad Banerjee, Institute of Radio Physics and Electronics, University of Calcutta, Kolkata, West Bengal and Suranjana Banerjee, West Bengal University of Technology, Hooghly, India

This book covers the physics of semiconductor materials, basic concepts of quantum mechanics and nanoelectronics, band theory of solids, and transport phenomena in semiconductors, along with the physics of low-dimensional quantum nanostructures, heterojunctions, and superlattices. It supplies a solid foundation for understanding the principles of operation and application of different types of microelectronic, optoelectronic, and quantum-effect devices based on semiconductor materials and nanostructures. Complete with exercises, the text is intended for junior- and senior-level undergraduate students of electrical and electronics engineering, physics, and materials science.

2nd Edition

Advances in Thin-Film Solar Cells

I. M. Dharmadasa, Sheffield Hallam University, UK

This book concentrates on the latest developments and attempts to improve our understanding of solid-state device physics. The material presented is mainly experimental and based on CdTe thin-film solar cells. The author extends these new findings to CIGS thin-film solar cells and presents a new device design based on graded bandgap multi-layer solar cells. This design has been experimentally tested using the well-researched GaAs/AlGaAs system, and initial devices have shown impressive device parameters. These devices are capable of absorbing all radiation (UV, visible and infra-red) within the solar spectrum and combine "impact ionisation" and "impurity photovoltaic" effects.

Composite Media with Weak Spatial Dispersion

Constantin Simovski, Department of Electronics and Nanoengineering, School of Electrical Engineering, Aalto University, Finland

This book presents a modern theory of so-called weak spatial dispersion (WSD) in composite media of optically small inclusions without natural magnetism and optical nonlinearity. The theory of this book is applicable to natural media with WSD such as chiral materials. However, emphasis is given to artificial media, too, which allows us to engineer needed electromagnetic properties. The book will hopefully improve the understanding of WSD and help readers correctly describe and characterize metamaterials.

Compressed Sensing for Engineers

Angshul Majumdar, Indraprastha Institute of Information Technology, Delhi, India

Series: Devices, Circuits, and Systems

Compressed Sensing (CS) in theory deals with the problem of recovering a sparse signal from an under-determined system of linear equations. The topic is of immense practical significance since all naturally occurring signals can be sparsely represented in some domain. In the recent past, CS has helped reduce scan time in Magnetic Resonance Imaging (making scans more feasible for pediatric and geriatric subjects) and reduce the health hazard in X-Ray Computed CT. The book will be suitable for an engineering student in signal processing and requires a basic understanding of signal processing and linear algebra.

Energy Harvesting Systems for IoT Applications

Generation, Storage, and Power Management

Yen Kheng Tan, Singapore University of Technology and Design (SUTD), Established In Collaboration with MIT and Mark Wong, Applied Res & Technology Center for Infocomm, Singapore

This book reviews the concepts, existing technologies, and design principles necessary for energy harvesting (EH) to be applicable in creating perpetual and infinitely operating wireless sensor nodes (WSN) and sensing devices. The book describes how energy harvesting can complement the limitations of legacy batteries in emerging applications. The various sources of energy that can be harnessed, and the integration of cutting-edge energy generation, storage technologies, and power management techniques, are discussed in basic terms.

Additionally, the book discusses how these optimized EH-WSN systems can be successfully integrated into real-life deployments/applications.

Engineered Repairs of Composite Structures

Rikard Benton Heslehurst, University of New South Wales, Canberra, Australia

Engineered Repairs of Composite Structures provides a detailed discussion, analysis, and procedures for effective and efficient repair design of advanced composite structures. It discusses the identification of damage types and the effect on structural integrity in composite structures, leading to the design of a repair scheme that focusses on the restoration of the structural integrity and damage tolerance.

Aimed at materials engineers, mechanical engineers, aerospace engineers, and civil engineers, this practical work is a must have for any industry professional working with composite structures.

Extended Non-Equilibrium Thermodynamics

From Principles to Applications in Nanosystems

Hatim Machrafi

This book provides an introduction to extended irreversible thermodynamics (EIT) within classical thermodynamics and the fundamentals of this theory. It provides a systematic presentation of EIT in nanosystems for students and researchers, and industrial professionals. EIT provides powerful tools departing not from empirical or statistical considerations but from fundamental thermodynamic laws, proposing final solutions that are readily usable and recognizable for students, researchers and industry. The book also deals with how physical properties of systems behave as a function of their size.

Frontier Research and Innovation in Optoelectronics Technology and Industry

Proceedings of the 11th International Symposium on Photonics and Optoelectronics (SOPO 2018), August 18-20, 2018, Kunming, China

Edited by Khaled Habib, International Engineering and Technology Institute (IETI), Hong Kong and Elfed Lewis, University of Limerick, Department of Electronic and Computer Engineering, Ireland

This book provides an overview of research achievements by industry experts and academic scientists in the subject area of Optoelectronics Technology and Industry. It covers a broad field ranging from Laser Technology and Applications, Optical Communications, Optoelectronic Devices and Integration, Energy Harvesting, to Medical and Biological Applications. This comprehensive collection of papers offers insight into innovative technologies, recent advances and future trends needed to develop effective research and manage projects. Researchers will benefit considerably when applying the technical information covered in this book.

Graphene Nanostructures

Modeling, Simulation, and Applications in Electronics and Photonics

Yaser M. Banadaki and Safura Sharifi

This book compiles and details cutting-edge research in graphene nanostructures and provides circuit designers with recent progress on graphene transistors for nanoscale circuits. The transistors in integrated circuits are approaching atomic scales. This will soon result in the creation of a growing knowledge gap between the underlying technology and state-of-the-art electronic device modeling and simulations. To bridge this gap, the book provides the computational analysis and mathematical circuit model of a novel transistor with an alternative graphene channel.

4th Edition • NEW EDITION

Handbook of Conducting Polymers, Fourth Edition - 2 Volume Set

Edited by John R. Reynolds, Barry C. Thompson, University of Southern California, Department of Chemistry, USA and Terje A. Skotheim, Intex, Tucson, Arizona, USA

Series: Handbook of Conducting Polymers, Fourth Edition

In the last 10 years there have been major advances in fundamental understanding and applications and a vast portfolio of new polymer structures with unique and tailored properties was developed. Work moved from a chemical repeat unit structure to one more based on structural control, new polymerization methodologies, properties, processing, and applications. The 4th Edition takes this into account and will be completely rewritten and reorganized, focusing on spin coating, spray coating, blade/slot die coating, layer-by-layer assembly, and fiber spinning methods; property characterizations of redox, interfacial, electrical, and optical phenomena; and commercial applications.

Industrial Biomimetics

Edited by Akihiro Miyauchi and Matsatsugu Shimomura

Biomimetics is an innovative paradigm shift based on biodiversity for sustainability. Biodiversity is not only the result of evolutionary adaption but also the optimized solution of "an epic combinatorial chemistry" for sustainability, because the diversity has been acquired by "biological processes and technology," including "production processes," "operating principles," and "control systems," all of which differ from "human technology."

The book also discusses the various aspects of marine polysaccharides from the point of view of chemistry and related applications. It is an important reference for marine biotechnologists, natural product scientists, students, researchers and academicians working in the area of materials science, marine science and polymer chemistry.

Nanomaterials and Neoplasms

Towards Clinical Applications

Edited by Valerio Voliani

This book comprises hot papers on (i) the main behaviors of nanomaterials, (ii) key features needed for clinical translation, and (iii) market analysis of nanomaterials on the bedside. The main aim of this book is to offer a more industrial/clinical point of view to students and researchers, together with the knowledge of regulatory agencies. It is a great reference for advanced undergraduate- and graduate-level students of nanotechnology and researchers in materials science, nanotechnology, chemistry, biology, and medicine, especially those with an interest in cancer therapeutics.

Optical remote sensing is one of the main technologies used in sea surface monitoring. This book provides extensive knowledge of physical principles and capabilities of optical remote sensing techniques for detailed exploration of the ocean surface, specifically focuses on optical observations of the oceans at high spatial resolution, 1–4m, and on the observations of surface wave hydrodynamic processes. It describes the implementation of spectral-statistical and fusion algorithms for analyses of multispectral optical databases and establishes physics-based criteria for detection of complex wave phenomena and hydrodynamic disturbances including assessment and management of optical databases.

Nanoimprinting and its Applications

Edited by Akihiro Miyauchi

This book explains the fundamentals of nanoimprinting in terms of materials, processes, and machines. The applications of nanoimprinting in optics, biology, energy, and electronics are also described. As many practical examples of nanoimprinting as possible are included in the book. The fundamentals will help advanced undergraduate and graduate students understand nanoimprinting. The examples will be useful for both researchers working in nanoimprinting for the first time and engineers involved in research and development of various devices using nanostructures.

Physical Plant Equipment Fundamentals

Kenneth L. Petrocelly

Physical Plant Equipment Fundamentals un-complicates the care and repair of common plant equipment—providing direction to mechanics and electricians, furthering their base understanding through referenced examples. It addresses many of the knowledge gaps of the untrained and/or inexperienced maintenance mechanic, but both fledgling and journeyman level repair personnel can benefit from the instruction and advice it offers. The book is organized into four sections: Essential Plant Systems and Equipment; Associated Accessories and Mechanisms; Operations and Maintenance Support, and Plant Engineering Principles and Norms.

Soft Matters for Catalysts

Edited by Qingman Ji and Harald Fuchs

This book emphasizes and summarizes the novel design of soft matters (molecules, polymers, assembled motifs, etc.) for nanocatalysts or supports for nanocatalysts. The diversity or specialty of soft matters offers a new perspective and great promise for the development of new nanocatalytic systems for future requirements. Soft matters can provide a simple and well-defined space for the discovery of new catalysts. At present, no other book summarizes catalysts from soft matters.

Solar Power and Energy Storage Systems

Hee-Je Kim

The best ESS is one with high power and high energy density. This book introduces the basic concepts of an ESS. Solar energy is considered the best source of renewable energy because it is clean and unlimited. Solar radiation can be harnessed and converted into different forms of energy that does not pollute the environment. In order to transform solar radiation, we need collectors of sunlight, such as solar cells. The main challenges are energy security, the increasing prices of carbon-based energy sources, and minimizing global warming. We cannot use sunlight during the night, so an energy storage system (ESS) is necessary.

Systems Engineering Models

Theory, Methods, and Applications

Adedeji B. Badiru, Air Force Institute of Technology, Dayton, Ohio, USA

Series: Systems Innovation Book Series

The application and recognition of systems engineering is spreading rapidly, however there is no book that addresses the availability and usability of systems engineering models. Notable among the models to be included are the V-Model, DEJ Model, and Waterfall Model. There are other models developed for specific organizational needs, which will be identified and presented in a practical template so that other organizations can learn and use them. A better understanding of the models, through a comprehensive book, will make these models more visible, embraced, and applied across the spectrum.

Additive Manufacturing (AM) has altered manufacturing as we know it, by shortened development time, increased performance, and reduced product costs. Executive management in industry are bombarded by marketing from their competitors showcasing design solutions leveraged through AM. Therefore, executive management ask their project management teams to figure out how to utilize AM within their own company. Clueless on how to approach the problem, managers start learning about AM from experts and become overwhelmed at the highly technical information. Unlike other AM books that focus on the technical output of AM technology, this new book will focus solely on the managerial implementation.

Reality, Perception, and Your Company's Workplace Culture

Creating a New Normal for Problem Solving and Change Management

Daniel Bloom, Daniel Bloom & Associates, Inc., Largo, Florida, USA

The book presents the view of a fictional 100-year old company called Acme Gyroscope, which is a family owned and run business, and the reader sees how the operation was ruled with an iron hand by the outgoing CEO. When the son of this current CEO assumes the role, he finds that the processes and culture within the organization are not quite as rosy as he thought they were. The new CEO finds that there is a wide divide between what is believed and what is real.

The Grammar of Pattern

Michael Hann, School of Design, University of Leeds, UK

Series: Textile Institute Professional Publications

The Grammar of Pattern includes original black-and-white line drawings and color images. The modular nature of patterns is explored, and attention is focused on the vast diversity of pattern types which can emerge from a small inventory of components. The book features material that is easily accessible with obvious mathematical content kept to a minimum and offers fresh perspectives on the nature of tessellating and other all-over patterns.

Combinatorial Inference in Geometric Data Analysis

Brigitte Le Roux, MAP5 - Université Paris Descartes, France, Solène Benaïse, Coheris Spad, Suresnes, France and Jean-Luc Durand, Université Paris 13, Villetaneuse, France Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Computer Science & Data Analysis
 Geometric Data Analysis designates the approach of Multivariate Statistics that conceptualizes the set of observations as a Euclidean cloud of points. Combinatorial Inference in Geometric Data Analysis gives an overview of multidimensional statistical inference methods applicable to clouds of points that make no assumption on the process of generating data or distributions, and that are not based on random modelling but on permutation procedures recasting in a combinatorial framework.

Engineering Systems Optimization

Ossama Abdelkhalik

Focuses on system architecture optimization. The numerical algorithms are the core of the book with a brief review for fundamental mathematical concepts. The first two parts include a concise presentation for classical optimization methods. Part three presents details of recent advances in systems architecture optimization. Part four presents detailed engineering applications. The first two parts are suitable for undergraduate engineering students. The whole book is suitable for graduate engineering students and engineers. The numerical algorithms as well as the applications are the core of the book with only a brief review for fundamental mathematical concepts.

Hormones as Tokens of Selection

Qualitative Dynamics of Homeostasis and Regulation in Organismal Biology

Hugo van den Berg

Hormones as Tokens of Selection addresses deep questions in biology: How are biological systems controlled? How can one formulate general theories of homeostasis and control and instantiate such theories in mathematical models? How can one use evolutionary arguments to guide our answers to these questions, recognising that the control mechanisms themselves are a product of evolution? Biological systems are exceptionally varied and extremely difficult to understand, because they are complex and experimentation remains limited relative to the challenges at hand. Moreover, biological phenomena occur at a wide range of temporal and spatial scales.

Time Series Clustering and Classification

Elizabeth Ann Maharaj, Pierpaolo D'Urso and Jorge Caiado, Centre for Applied Mathematics and Economics and ISEG, University of Lisbon, Portugal

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Computer Science & Data Analysis

The beginning of the age of artificial intelligence and machine learning has created new challenges and opportunities for data analysts, statisticians, mathematicians, econometricians, computer scientists and many others. At the root of these techniques are algorithms and methods for clustering and classifying different types of large datasets, including time series data. This book includes relevant developments on observation-based, feature-based and model-based traditional and fuzzy clustering methods, feature-based and model-based classification methods, and machine learning methods. It presents a broad and self-contained overview of techniques for both researchers and students.

Exploring Linear Algebra

Labs and Projects with MATLAB®

Crista Arangala, Elon University, North Carolina, USA

Series: Textbooks in Mathematics

This text is meant to be a hands-on lab manual that can be used in class everyday to guide the exploration of the theory and applications of linear algebra. For the most part, labs can be used individually or in a sequence. Each lab consists of an explanation of material with integrated exercises. Some labs are split into multiple subsections and thus exercises are separated by those subsections. The exercise sections integrate problems using Mathematica demonstrations (an online tool that can be used with a browser with java capabilities) and Matlab coding. This allows students to discover the theory and applications of linear algebra in a meaningful and memorable way

Quantum Mechanics

A Fundamental Approach

Kong Wan

Quantum mechanics is presented in six groups of postulates. A chapter is devoted to each group of postulates with a detailed discussion. Systems with superselection rules, and some conceptual issues such as quantum paradoxes and measurement, are also discussed. The book concludes with several illustrative applications, which include harmonic and isotropic oscillators, charged particle in external magnetic fields and the Aharonov-Bohm effect.

Statistical Computing with R, Second Edition

Maria L. Rizzo, Bowling Green State University, Ohio, USA

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC The R Series

Computational statistics and statistical computing are two areas that employ computational, graphical, and numerical approaches to solve statistical problems, making the versatile R language an ideal computing environment for these fields. This second edition continues to encompass the traditional core material of computational statistics, with an emphasis on using the R language via an examples-based approach. It includes R code for all examples and R notes to help explain the R programming concepts. This edition also features a new chapter on nonparametric regression and smoothing.

Advanced Spatial Modeling with Stochastic Partial Differential Equations Using R and INLA

Elias T. Krainski, Universidade Federal do Paraná, Curitiba, Brazil, Virgilio Gómez-Rubio, Universidad de Castilla-La Mancha, Albacete, Spain, Haakon Bakka, Amanda Lenzi, Daniela Castro-Camilo, Daniel Simpson, Finn Lindgren, The University of Edinburgh and Håvard Rue

The Integrated Nested Laplace Approximation is a popular method for approximate Bayesian inference. INLA is an alternative to other methods for Bayesian inference, such as Markov Chain Monte Carlo, that are more computationally demanding. In addition, the R-INLA package for the R statistical software provides a way to fit such models in practice. The aim of this book is to provide an introduction and a tutorial to spatial modeling with INLA using the SPDE approach which is a novel method to model continuous spatial processes with important computational advantages. The book will be filled with reproducible examples in R.

Bayesian Cost-Effectiveness Analysis of Medical Treatments

Elias Moreno, University of Granada, Francisco Jose Vazquez-Polo, Dept of Quantitative Methods, University of Las Palmas de Gran Canaria Campus de Tafira and Miguel Angel Negrín-Hernández, University of Las Palmas de Gran Canaria Campus de Tafira

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Biostatistics Series

This book deals with the statistical analysis of the cost-effectiveness of medical treatments. The aim of the book is to formulate the cost-effectiveness analysis as a statistical decision problem, to identify the sources of uncertainty of the problem, and to give an overview of the frequentist and Bayesian statistical approaches for estimating these uncertainties. Basic notions on decision theory such as space of decisions, space of nature, utility function of a decision and optimal decisions, will be explained in detail using easy to read mathematics.

Statistics and Health Care Fraud

How to Save Billions

Tahir Ekin, Texas State University, San Marcos, TX, USA

Series: ASA-CRC Series on Statistical Reasoning in Science and Society

This book will educate the general public about statistical methods to improve medical fraud assessment by more accurate overpayment estimation, representative sampling and use of data mining methods for fraud detection. In the United States, total health care related spending reached 2.9 trillion USD and $9255 per person in 2013. It is estimated that up to 10 percent of annual health care spending is lost to fraudulent transactions. In addition to the direct cost implications to the government and to the taxpayers, medical fraud also diminishes the ability of the medical systems to provide quality care to the deserving patients.

Entrepreneurial Complexity

Methods and Applications

Edited by Matthias Dehmer, Frank Emmert-Streib, Queen's University Belfast, UK and Herbert Jodlbauer, FH-STEYR

This book deals with theoretical and practical results of Entrepreneurial Sciences and Management (ESM), emphasising quantitative methods. ESM has been a modern and exciting research field in which methods from various disciplines have been applied. However, the existing body of literature lacks the proper use of mathematical and formal models; individuals who perform research in this broad interdisciplinary area have been trained differently. In particular, they are not used to solving business-oriented problems mathematically. In this book, we utilize formal and mathematical techniques in ESM as an advantage for developing theories and models which are falsifiable.

Textual Statistics with R

Mónica Bécue-Bertaut, Universitat Politècnica de Catalunya

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Computer Science & Data Analysis

Textual Statistics with R comprehensively covers the main multidimensional methods in textual statistics supported by a specially-written package in R. Methods discussed include correspondence analysis, clustering, and multiple factor analysis for contingency tables. Each method is illuminated by applications. The book is aimed at researchers and students in statistics, social sciences, history, literature and linguistics. The book will be of interest to anyone from practitioners needing to extract information from texts to students in the field of massive data, where the ability to process textual data is becoming essential.

Biometrics, Surveillance and the Law

Societies of Restricted Access, Discipline and Control

Sara M. Smyth

Series: Routledge Research in the Law of Emerging Technologies

This book explores the most complex issues relating to biometric identification systems. It provides an in-depth examination of the implementation of the world's largest biometric database, Aadhaar. It discusses the legal and ethical debates surrounding their use with regards to the war on terror and the current refugee crisis; violations of international human rights law; mobility rights and privacy rights. It then turns to the collection, use and disclosure of personal information by private-sector entities and government use of these tools to profile individuals.

Business Process Reengineering

An ICT Approach

Heru Susanto, Fang-Yie Leu and Chin Kang Chen

This volume shows how ICT (information and communications technology) can play the role of a driver of business process reengineering (BPR). ICT can aid in enabling improvement in BPR activity cycles as it provides many components that enhance performance that can lead to competitive advantages. IT can interface with BPR to can help to improve main business processes in terms of communication, inventory management, data management, management information systems, customer relationship management (CRM), computer-aided design (CAD), computer-aided manufacturing (CAM), and computer-aided engineering (CAE). This volume explores these issues in depth.

Effective Methods for Presenting Results

Edited by Subhashish Samaddar and Satish Nargundkar

Series: Data Analytics Applications

Effective presentation of analytical results is the key to close a project successfully. With the meteoric rise in the popularity of data science and analytics, business executives focus on analytics' strategic interpretation and managerial implications, as well as value creation from analytics. One of the major challenges faced by analytics specialists is to be able to present and communicate the results of their analyses in business terms. With this book, readers learn the strategies of effectively communicating and presenting quantitative analytical results to their clients and senior management.

Handbook of IoT and Big Data

Edited by Vijender Kumar Solanki, Vicente García Díaz, Associate Professor, Dept. of Computer Science, University of Oviedo, Spain and J. Paulo Davim, Professor, Department of Mechanical Engineering, University of Aveiro, Portugal
Series: Science, Technology, and Management

This multi-contributed handbook will focus on the latest workings of IoT (internet of Things) and Big Data. As the resources are limited, it's the endeavor of the authors to support and bring the information into one resource. The book will be divided into 4 sections that will cover IoT and technologies, the future of Big Data, algorithms, and case studies showing IoT and Big Data in various fields such as health care, manufacturing and automation.

Infinite Animation

The Life and Work of Adam Beckett

Pamela Taylor Turner

Series: Focus Animation

This book is about the life and work of the late Adam K. Beckett. Beckett made six award-winning animations between the years 1972-1975; ground-breaking films that continue to influence artists today. He was also a unique and compelling character, a shooting star at a time of change. Looking at his life and work illuminates significant social and cultural changes of that time: the emerging independent animation movement of the 1970s in the United States; the rebirth of the visual effects industry; the intersection of animation with newly developed video imaging and computer graphics; and the intense Cultural Revolution that occurred in the 1960s.

Machine Learning for Computer and Cyber Security

Principle, Algorithms, and Practices

Edited by Brij B. Gupta, National Institute of Technology Kurukshetra (Institute of National Importance (INI)), India and Quan Z. Sheng, Department of Computing, Macquarie University, Sydney, Australia

This book comprises an extensive collection of up-to-date computer and cyber security issues, along with an analysis of existing machine learning and data mining-based solutions. Readers will learn better protection techniques to mitigate the attacks by using machine learning based approaches to understand the motivation of attackers. Moreover, readers will be acquainted with the principles, algorithms, and best practices for implementing these approaches. The comprehensive, refreshing, informative, and easy-to-follow content of this book will help in holding readers' interest.

Modeling and Control of AC Machine using MATLAB®/SIMULINK

Mourad Boufadene

This book introduces electrical machine modeling and control for electrical engineering and science to graduate, undergraduate students as well as researchers who are working on modeling and control of electrical machines. It targets electrical engineering students who have no time to derive electrical equations for machines like induction machine and doubly fed induction machines especially for those that are working on renewable energy where the dynamical model of doubly fed induction machine is crucial.

Power, Thermal, Noise, and Signal Integrity Issues on Substrate/Interconnects Entanglement

Yue Ma, INSA and Christian Gontrand, INSA

As demand for on-chip functionalities and requirements for low power operation continue to increase as a result of the emergence in mobile, wearable and internet-of-things (IoT) products, 3D/2.5D have been identified as an inevitable path moving forward. As circuits become more and more complex, especially three-dimensional ones, new insights have to be developed in many domains, including electrical, thermal, noise, interconnects, and parasites. It is the entanglement of such domains that begins the very key challenge as we enter in 3D nano-electronics. This book aims to develop this new paradigm, going to a synthesis beginning between many technical aspects.

A Computational Approach to Statistical Learning

Taylor Arnold, University of Richmond Richmond, VA, Michael Kane, Yale University, New Haven, Connecticut, USA and Bryan W. Lewis

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Texts in Statistical Science

This book synthesizes those techniques from numerical analysis, algorithms, data structures, and optimization theory most commonly employed in statistics and machine learning. We provide concrete applications of these methods by giving complete reference implementations for a large set of the most commonly used statistical estimators. The goal is to provide a self-contained textbook explaining the inner algorithmic workings of statistical estimators.

Essential Computer Graphics Techniques for Modeling, Animating, and Rendering Biomolecules and Cells

A Guide for the Scientist and Artist

Giorgio Luciano

The book helps readers develop fundamental skills in the field of biomedical illustrations with a training approach based on step-by-step tutorials with a practical approach.

Medical/scientific illustration mainly belongs to professionals in the art field or scientists trying to create artistic visualization. There is not a merging between the two, even if the demand is high. This leads to accurate scientific images with no appeal (or trivial mistakes), or appealing CSI-like images with huge scientific mistakes. This gives the fundamentals to the scientist so they can apply CG techniques that give a more scientific approach creating mistake-free images.

How to Build a Cyber-Resilient Organization

Dan Shoemaker, University of Detroit Mercy, Michigan, USA, Anne Kohnke, Lawrence Technological University, Southfield, Michigan, USA and Ken Sigler, Oakland Community College, Auburn Hills, Michigan, USA

Series: Internal Audit and IT Audit

This book presents a standard methodology approach to cyber-resilience. Readers will learn how to design a cyber-resilient architecture for a given organization as well as how to maintain a state of cyber-resilience in its day-to-day operation. Readers will know how to establish a state of systematic cyber-resilience within this structure and how to evolve the protection to correctly address the threat environment. This revolves around the steps to perform strategic cyber-resilience planning, implementation and evolution. Readers will know how to perform the necessary activities to identify, prioritize and deploy targeted controls and maintain a persistent and reliable reporting system.

Procedural Storytelling in Game Design

Edited by Tanya X. Short and Tarn Adams

This book is an edited collection of chapters, each covering an aspect of video game development called procedural generation. This approach to development means that the games themselves create their play areas, objects and stories based on a set of rules, rather than relying on the developer to handcraft each element individually. The reader will learn to create randomized maps, weave accidental plotlines, and manage complex systems that are prone to unpredictable behavior. Examines content and system creation. Designers from a variety of studios provide concrete examples from their games to illustrate the many facets of this emerging sub-discipline.

Alternative Fusion Fuels and Systems

Edited by Sergei V. Ryzhkov, Bauman Moscow State Technical University, Moscow, Russia and Alexei Yu. Chirkov, Bauman Moscow State Technical University, Moscow, Russia

Explores the systems of magnetic confinement of high-temperature plasma with closed and open magnetic field lines which relate to alternative compact devices of controlled thermonuclear fusion. Energy balance schemes of thermonuclear plasmas and main reactor characteristics are presented as the authors compare conceptual projects based on classical tokamak and stellarator, spherical tokamak and compact torus. They explore the questions and problems of new promising nuclear and thermonuclear power plants that source thermonuclear neutrons on a mixture of deuterium and tritium, and a

Analysis of Pesticides in Food and Environmental Samples, Second Edition

Edited by Jose L. Tadeo, INIA, Madrid, Spain

This book provides a critical overview of analytical methods used for the determination of pesticide residues and other contaminants in food and environmental samples by modern instrumental analysis. It contains up-to-date material including recent trends in sample preparation, general methods used for pesticide analysis and quality assurance aspects, and chromatographic and immunoassay methods. The rest of the book describes particular analytical methods used for the determination of pesticides in food and soil, water and air. In addition, the levels of these chemicals found in food, their regulatory aspects and the monitoring of pesticides in the environment are described.

From Atoms to Higgs Bosons

Voyages in Quasi Space-Time

Edited by Chary Rangacharyulu and Christopher J. A. Polachic

This book is an assessment of this cost and critiques the modern orthodoxy that the ever-evolving models of particle physics are leading us towards a truer understanding of the real world. The authors propose that the ancient reductionist quest has been unintentionally side-lined by quasirealism, a philosophical approach to interpreting reductionist scientific models that finds reality hiding in places where it might not actually be.

Fullerene Nanowhiskers

Edited by Kun'ichi Miyazawa, Yuichi Ochiai, Masaru Tachibana, Tokushi Kizuka and Shigeo Nakamura

This book contains studies on the synthesis of fullerene nanowhiskers (FNWs), fullerene nanotubes (FNTs), and fullerene nanosheets, and the structural, mechanical, semiconducting, and thermal properties of FNWs and related fullerene nanomaterials as well as new chapters containing FNW superconductors, field electron emission application of FNWs, bio-related application of FNWs, and solar energy application of FNWs and fullerene hybrid nanomaterials. This book provides detailed state-of-the-art knowledge about FNWs and related low-dimensional fullerene nanomaterials.

Handbook of Biopolymers

Advances and Multifaceted Applications

Edited by Shakeel Ahmed, Suvardhan Kanchi and Gopalakrishnan Kumar

This book presents key topics on biopolymers, including their synthesis, characterization, and physicochemical properties, and discusses their applications in key areas such as biomedicine, agriculture, and environment engineering. It will serve as an in-depth reference for the biopolymer industry—material suppliers and processors, producers, and fabricators—and engineers and scientists who are designing biopolymers or evaluating options for switching from traditional plastics to biopolymers.

Low-Energy Electrons

Fundamentals and Applications

Edited by Oddur Ingólfsson

Low-energy electrons are ubiquitous in nature and play an important role in natural phenomena as well as many potential and current industrial processes. Authored by 16 active researchers, this book describes the fundamental characteristics of low-energy electron–molecule interactions and their role in different fields of science and technology.

Mobile Microspies

Particles for Sensing and Communication

Michael Köhler

This book clarifies that signal-transducing particles should be regarded as functional elements, as part of a system, not simply as special materials. It introduces concepts of bead-base sensing and "mobile spies" at the micro- and nanoscale and gives a representative overview of the variety of particle-based sensing.

Problems and Solutions in Medical Physics

Nuclear Medicine Physics

Kwan-Hoong Ng, University of Malaya, Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, Chai Hong Yeong and Alan Perkins, University of Nottingham, UK

Series: Series in Medical Physics and Biomedical Engineering

The second in a three-volume set exploring Problems and Solutions in Medical Physics, this volume explores common questions and their solutions in Nuclear Medicine. This invaluable study guide should be used in conjunction with other key textbooks in the field to provide additional learning opportunities.

Topics include radioactivity and nuclear transformation, radionuclide production and radiopharmaceuticals, instrumentation for gamma imaging, SPECT and PET/CT, radionuclide therapy, internal radiation dosimetry, and quality control and radiation protection in nuclear medicine. Each chapter provides examples, notes, and references for further reading to enhance understanding.

Survimeter

Fundamentals, Devices, and Applications

Edited by Man Singh and Sunita Singh

This book presents a novel device, the survimeter, an invention that widely covers and determines the properties of functional molecules and measures the thermodynamic and kinetic stabilities of nanoemulsions. It discusses some new models of molecular sciences that can be applied in the formulation of functional molecules and in studying their activities by using their physicochemical properties resulting from their nonideal behavior due to changes in their structures. It introduces a new conceptual property of molecules termed as friccohesity, which is an excellent substitute to viscosity and surface tension used in experimental measurements and which does not need density measurements.

Templated DNA Nanotechnology

Functional DNA Nanoarchitectonics

Edited by Thimmaiah Govindaraju

DNA nanoarchitectonics is the molecular architectonics of small "designer" molecules and short DNA sequences through complementary binding interaction, resulting in well-defined functional nanoarchitectures with realistic applications in areas ranging from biology to materials science. This book covers novel approaches adapted by leading researchers and active practitioners from around the world to create functional nucleic acid molecular systems and nanoarchitectures. Chapters provide fundamental and advanced knowledge and include numerous illustrations, historical perspectives, case studies and practical examples, critical discussions, and future prospects.

Angélica Rada Ariza, IHE Institute for Water Education, Delft, The Netherlands

Series: IHE Delft PhD Thesis Series

This book focuses on a novel bio-treatment called Photo-activated sludge system (PAS). This novel bio-treatment is based on the symbiosis between microalgae, nitrifiers and heterotrophic bacteria (microalgal-bacterial consortia).

Furthermore, it presents itself as a sustainable treatment option for ammonium rich wastewaters, providing clean effluents and opening reuse options for the biomass (microalgae and bacteria).

Furthermore, the PAS systems can reduce the area requirements by half in comparison with algal systems and likely have a positive energy balance, since the sun is one of the main sources of energy.

Environmental Arsenic in a Changing World

Proceedings of the 7th International Congress and Exhibition on Arsenic in the Environment (AS 2018), July 1-6, 2018, Beijing, P.R. China

Edited by Yongguan Zhu, Huaming Guo, Prosun Bhattacharya, Royal Institute of Technology, Stockholm, Sweden, Arslan Ahmad, KWR Water Cycle Research Institute, The Netherlands, Jochen Bundschuh, University of Southern Queensland, Toowoomba, Queensland, Australia and Ravi Naidu

Series: Arsenic in the Environment - Proceedings

Arsenic has been an issue of major concern in last decades because of the serious impact on human health coming from drinking water and certain food with low-medium levels of arsenic for prolonged periods of time. Globally, more than 100 million people are at risk. Since 2006, 6 events of International Congress on "Arsenic in the Environment" have been held in different areas of the world: Mexico 2006, Spain 2008, Taiwan 2010, Australia 2012, Argentina 2014, and Sweden 2016. Arsenic in drinking water (mainly groundwater) has emerged as a global health concern. During last decade, the presence of arsenic in rice, possibly also other food of plant origins, has attained increasing attention.

Ariosto, Shakespeare and Corneille

Benedetto Croce and Douglas Ainslie

Series: Collected Works

Originally published in 1921 this volume consists of the first of Croce's literary criticisms to be published in English and as well as a section on Shakespeare, it contains unique essays on Ariosto and Corneille which together inaugurated a new era in literary criticism. The essays are based on Croce's Theory of Aesthetic - a theory which to many is the only one that completely explains the problem of poetry and the fine arts - and as a result are profound and suggestive.

Croce, the King and the Allies

Extracts from a diary by Benedetto Croce, July 1943 - June 1944

Benedetto Croce

Series: Collected Works

Originally published in English in 1950 this is one of the most revealing works by one of Italy's foremost philosophers of the 20th century, who was also a courageous and effective opponent of Fascism. Following the Allied landing at Salerno, Croce was called upon by kings, princes, generals and politicians and asked to decide question of vital importance to Italy. This book documents the notes Croce made on political matters in 1943 and 1944.

Freedom

Its Meaning

Edited by Ruth Nanda Anshen

Series: Collected Works

Originally published in 1942 this book brings together contribution from some of the finest thinkers and philosophers of the 20th century such as Boas, Croce, Einstein, Haldane, Mann, and Russell. The volume discusses the problem of Freedom from diverse points of view and offers a synthesis of issues and conclusions relating to freedom as a basis for action with a view to try and fill the gaps existent in the study of the nature of Man.

Goethe

Benedetto Croce and Emily Anderson

Series: Collected Works

Croce admired Goethe partly because the latter possessed a knowledge of human nature in all its aspects but nonetheless kept his mind above and beyond political sympathies and the quarrels of nations. In this volume originally published in English in 1923, Croce distils his critical ideas about Goethe with the aim of helping readers to better understand the German poet's work.

History of Europe in the Nineteenth Century

Benedetto Croce

Series: Collected Works

One of Croce's most famous books, originally published in 1934, this volume covers the history of Europe from the end of the Napoleonic Wars until the end of the First World War. Based on a series of lectures delivered in 1931 the book discusses, among other things, religious freedoms, the concept of liberty, liberalism and nationalism and the rise of the German state.

My Philosophy

Essays on the Moral and Political Problems of our Time

Benedetto Croce and E. F. Carritt

Series: Collected Works

Originally published in 1949, Croce's essays on political, philosophic and aesthetic subjects, selected from both his earlier and later writings possess a remarkable underlying unity. The political essays which form a major part of this volume display a criticism, either direct or implied of the mass creeds and movements that subordinate the individual to history. They combine a passionate belief in liberty with critical and historical judgment.

Changing Aims in Religious Education

Edwin Cox

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Education and Religion

First published in 1966. The author examines the problems which face the teacher of Religious Education at the time of widespread doubt. He reviews studies of the formation of religious beliefs and attitudes in the young, and suggest a new strategy for the subject, whereby at each stage of education the teacher has a definite but limited aim, appropriate to the children with whom they have to teach.

Foundation Subjects and Religious Education in the Primary School

Edited by Peter D. Pumfrey and Gajendra K. Verma

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Education and Religion

First published in 1993. This volume brings together writings of specialists in the key components of both the whole and the basic curriculum. It sets out to describe and discuss cultural diversity and the whole curriculum from a variety of perspectives and to consider how the concerns of ethnic groups may be addressed within the framework of the national curriculum. To this end, specialists in areas of the curriculum consider some of the challenges and describe promising practices in the secondary school.

Jewish Education and Learning

Published in Honour of Dr. David Patterson on the Occasion of His Seventieth Birthday

Edited by Glenda Abramson and Tudor Parfitt

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Education and Religion

First published in 1994. This volume, dedicated to Dr David Patterson, founding President of the Oxford Centre for Postgraduate Hebrew Studies, takes as its theme Jewish education and learning throughout the ages. For almost three thousand years centres of Jewish learning have flourished in many parts of the world. This volume discusses these institutions from biblical times to the present. The essays explore the nature and function of the 'Jewish Academies' in the broadest sense, the leading personalities associated with them and their social, cultural and moral effect on the Jewish communities of their day.

New Directions in Religious Education

Edited by John Hull

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Education and Religion

First published in 1982. This book brings together some of the most influential articles which had moulded British religious education. The articles are divided into specialised sections dealing with various aspects of the subject so that the main developments are clearly indicated. The book provides, both the general reader, the student teacher and the specialist religious education teacher, an easily accessible collection of many of the materials which had created British religious education.

Religious Education 1944-1984

Edited by A. G. Wedderspoon

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Education and Religion

First published in 1966. Under the 1944 Act, the only compulsory school subject was Religious Instruction. Books and research findings revealed a critical situation, and many educationalists, churchmen and parents believed a review of the problem was vital.

This book presents the considered views of a group of distinguished educationalists who met in London in April 1965 under the auspices of the Institute of Education. It also includes the comments by members of Parliament, church leaders, university and school teachers who were present and the whole contains a frank and valuable expression of expert opinion upon a very controversial subject.

Readiness for Religion

A Basis for Developmental Religious Education

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Education and Religion

First published in 1965. In this study the author explores the implications of research for an alternative approach to religious education. The book deals with the psychological bases of religious development, reviewing the natural limitations as well as the basic needs of the young, and how religious education should be affected by educational theory and practice.

The author also examines what content and methods of teaching are consistent with the healthy development of children and adolescents. Teachers in schools and students in training will welcome the book as an important aid to the task of rethinking syllabuses and the need for more child-centred methods of teaching.

Studies in Religion and Education

John M. Hull

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Education and Religion

First published in 1984. John M. Hull was a leading figure in the controversies which had surrounded religious education since the late 1960s. This book brings together in one volume 21 of his published papers and articles, which had previously appeared in journals, conferences, reports and books in Belgium, Australia, Canada, the United States, as well as the United Kingdom. This book is essential reading for all teachers, clergy, parents and students seriously concerned with the issues confronting religious education and Christian upbringing in our secular and pluralist world.

Religious Education 5-12

Derek Bastide

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Education and Religion

First published in 1987. The book is intended for class teachers (and trainee teachers) in primary schools who wish to teach religious education well but are unclear as to how they might. The book maps out the changes that had taken place with regard to changing aims and objectives in the subject. It investigates ways in which the teacher can approach religion in the classroom. It also recognizes that many teachers are not confident themselves in the world of religion and attempts to provide information and understanding at the teacher's own level. Overall the book sets out to be a straightforward, practical guide to the primary classroom teacher.

Teaching Morality and Religion

Alan Harris

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Education and Religion

First published in 1976. It can be argued that both moral and religious education are undervalued in schools. The author, Alan Harris, believes that too many people think of them as indoctrinatory subjects with moral educators' telling people what they ought to do and religious educators telling them what they ought to believe. By a combination of practical examples of both good and bad teaching from the classroom and clear, analytical examination of what is meant by moral and religious education, the author shows that the object of both subjects should be to help pupils form their own judgements.

World Faiths in Education

Edited by W. Owen Cole

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Education and Religion

First published in 1978. The world religions movement gave way to a new form of religious education which was wide ranging in content and open in approach. This book is devoted to examining the place of world faiths in education by members of a variety of faiths. It will help students and teachers to think their way through the many challenges facing RE today. The contributors hope that they have provided a sign-post pointing to a future in which all who are concerned that children should grow up with an understanding of the ultimate meaning of life, whatever their own faiths, may be able to work together to make the subject vital and worthwhile.

Homosexuality

A History (From Ancient Greece to Gay Liberation)

Vern L. Bullough

Series: Routledge Library Editions: History of Sexuality

Originally published in 1979. This is at once a look at the realities of homosexuality in history and an examination of the myths that have grown up around it. The record of practices and prejudices moves from biblical and classical through early and medieval Christian, Renaissance, and Victorian times, to our own era of dramatic changes. It looks at prominent figures who were homosexuals, the theories that have flourished and faded, the differing attitudes toward male and female homosexuality, persecution, and contemporary changes. This classic work is a fascinating historical perspective of all the factors that have shaped and changed our attitudes from ancient times to the present.

Series: Routledge Library Editions: History of Sexuality

Originally published in 1990. Well-annotated bibliographical entries cover works on history, religion, medicine, philosophy, law and literature in western Europe from about the third century A.D. through the end of the medieval period. The primary sources are organised thematically, and separately from secondary sources. Languages covered include English, Spanish, Portuguese, French, German, Italian, and Latin. The focus is on sexuality and sexual attitudes, not on the related topics of marriage and family. Detailed indexes are also included.

Edited by Lal Coveney, Margaret Jackson, Sheila Jeffreys, University of Melbourne, Australia, Leslie Kay and Pat Mahony

Series: Routledge Library Editions: History of Sexuality

Originally published in 1984. The history of sex in the last 100 years has usually been written as a story of progress from repression to sexual liberation. This book argues that the reverse is true, demonstrating that the 'sexual revolution' came as a backlash to a women's movement which challenged men's sexual abuse and tried to reconstruct male sexuality in women's interest. At first it looks at those groups at the turn of the twentieth century who campaigned to challenge prevailing ideas about sexual behaviour. It moves on to review the work of the most influential sexologists Ellis, Kinsey, Masters and

Johnson, and then presents a critical analysis of the sex magazine Forum

Sexual Moralities in France, 1780-1980

New Ideas on the Family, Divorce, and Homosexuality: An Essay on Moral Change

Antony Copley

Series: Routledge Library Editions: History of Sexuality

Originally published in 1989. This is the first history of modern France to explore the long-term origins of the libertarian revolt. It traces the moral history from the eighteenth century to the 1960s, examining the questions of divorce, homosexuality and sexual morality. The result is an enlightening and provocative account which will be of interest to students of modern French history and the history of sexual morality.

Sin, Sickness and Sanity

A History of Sexual Attitudes

Vern L. Bullough and Bonnie Bullough

Series: Routledge Library Editions: History of Sexuality

Originally published in 1977. For centuries myth, misinformation and taboo have distorted our vision of our sexual nature. This book examines such cultural phenomena: from Greek dualistic thought to Buddhist philosophy; from the attempt of early Christian sects to promote total chastity to homosexual practices among the Arabs. It explains Victorian theories about masturbation and madness, sexist dogmas limiting feminine potential, social attitudes towards abortion over time; and much more. Extensively researched, this fascinating classic work is a comprehensive summary of our knowledge of past sexual attitudes as well as an appraisal of the causes and direction of sexual revolution.

Wanton Wenches and Wayward Wives

Peasants and Illicit Sex in Early Seventeenth Century England

G. R. Quaipe

Series: Routledge Library Editions: History of Sexuality

Originally published in 1979. This detailed study of illicit sex amongst the peasantry of Somerset between 1601 and 1660 based on the depositions presented to the courts during this period sheds as much light on prevailing village attitudes as on the specific discussion matter. Outlining the existence of the peasant and the supervision of sexual morality, the book looks at pre-marital sex, prostitution, masturbation, contraception, rape, homosexuality and incest along with the prevailing punishments of the time. Combining both demographic and literary-based analyses, with analytical and anecdotal approaches to the subject, this book presents a rich source of social history.

Approaches to Personality Theory

David Peck and David Whitlow

Series: Psychology Library Editions: Personality

Originally published in 1975, this book reviews the major personality theories influential at the time, including those of Freud, Kelly, Cattell, and Eysenck, and presents the main assessment techniques associated with them. It also discusses their application in such fields as abnormal psychology, diagnosis, psychotherapy, education and criminology. The authors find none of the theories completely satisfactory, but pinpoint important successes and suggest a promising new approach.

The Construction of Personality

An Introduction (Second Edition)

Sarah E. Hampson

Series: Psychology Library Editions: Personality

First published in 1988, this title has been substantially revised and updated. The author provides an introduction to current theory and research in the psychology of personality at the time and examines this work from the perspective of constructivism. As a consequence of this constructivist approach, the book covers topics from social psychology (e.g. person perception, impression formation) as well as more conventional areas of personality. In this new edition the constructivist perspective is emphasized by the addition of a new chapter in which the constructivist approach to personality is presented, and the chapters on the lay and self perspectives have been extensively re-written.

Culture and Cognition

Readings in Cross-Cultural Psychology

Edited by J. W. Berry and P. R. Dasen

Series: Psychology Library Editions: Personality

First published in 1974, studies of cultural influences on cognition, carried out from a variety of theoretical and methodological stances, were collected for the first time in this volume. The editors placed particular emphasis on selecting material by authors from many countries who had been working with people from a wide range of cultures. In a general introduction they provide an historical overview of the major issues, and draw together the most recent attempts to bring methodological sophistication to this difficult area of enquiry. A comprehensive bibliography with over 600 entries is included in the volume.

Inquiring Man

The Psychology of Personal Constructs (3rd Edition)

Don Bannister and Fay Fransella

Series: Psychology Library Editions: Personality

Originally published in 1986, this was a new and completely updated edition of the book which, since 1970 had introduced a whole generation in English psychology to Kelly's theory of personal constructs. By setting out a broadly designed and experimentally illustrated view of people as self-inventing explorers and interpreters of their world it challenged the 'mechanical man' of orthodox psychology. It proved a source of radically new ideas in psychotherapy, education and industry. This revised edition shows how the theory's professional applications have spread ever wider, while many have realised that personal construct psychology contains, for them, the core of a personal philosophy.

Humans as Self-Constructing Living Systems

A Developmental Perspective on Behavior and Personality

Series: Psychology Library Editions: Personality

Originally published in 1987, the purpose of this title was to develop a conceptual framework for understanding individual humans as complex, functional entities. It was felt that a sound developmental theory of human personality and behaviour would help synthesize existing scientific and clinical information into a coherent representation of a person as a functional unit, guide future research, and facilitate the work of the health and human services professions. The volume is aimed at a multidisciplinary-multiprofessional audience.

Interaction Concepts of Personality

Robert C. Carson

Series: Psychology Library Editions: Personality

"Personality" is an intimidatingly complex area of human behaviour, where empirically valid generalizations are not easily established or formulated, and where investigators at the time were themselves a long way from the development of a commonly shared language and conceptual system. Originally published in 1969, Dr Carson's book provided, for the first time, an empirically grounded, systematic framework to analyse, describe, and to some extent explain the transactions that occur between people from a standpoint of a personologist. It brings together, within an integrating framework, diverse trends from modern behaviour theory, personality, social psychology, and behaviour disorder.

Humans as Self-Constructing Living Systems

Putting the Framework to Work

Edited by Martin E. Ford and Donald H. Ford

Series: Psychology Library Editions: Personality

Originally published in 1987, the purpose of this companion volume was to illustrate the potential utility of the Living Systems Framework (LSF) for stimulating new theoretical advances, for guiding research on human behavior and development, and for facilitating the work of the health and human service professions. Although not exactly a "how to" manual, it does provide many concrete examples of how and when the framework can be used to guide scholarly and professional activities. It also provides a concise overview of the framework itself that can help in understanding the basic concepts of the LSF and in deciding whether and how the framework might be useful to them.

An Introduction to Personality Study

Raymond B. Cattell

Series: Psychology Library Editions: Personality

Originally published in 1950, the need for a small standard text on basic principles of personality structure and development had been very apparent to teachers of psychology for some time. There were many books illustrating specialized or applied aspects of the psychology of personality, but lacking was a treatment of personality study as pure psychology, concentrating on the fundamentals. The aim of this title was therefore to bring the general problems of personality description and development, normal and abnormal, into a single perspective and to integrate the principle fields of observation in clear cut generalizations.

Macrostructures

An Interdisciplinary Study of Global Structures in Discourse, Interaction, and Cognition

Teun A. van Dijk

Series: Psychology Library Editions: Personality

Macrostructures are higher-level semantic or conceptual structures that organize the 'local' microstructures of discourse, interaction, and their cognitive processing. They are distinguished from other global structures of a more schematic nature, which we call superstructures. Originally published in 1980, the theory of macrostructures outlined in this book is the result of research carried out during the previous 10 years in the domains of literary theory, text grammar, the general theory of discourse, pragmatics, and the cognitive psychology of discourse processing. The presentation of the theory is systematic but informal and at this stage was not intended to be fully formalized.

Margins of the Mind

Frank Musgrove

Series: Psychology Library Editions: Personality

Originally published in 1977, the author examines change in adults principally in terms of a modification of consciousness through the experience of marginality. With the help of interviews, he discusses seven groups in contemporary Britain at the time, found in the 'margins' of society. Three of the selected groups are involuntary and stigmatized: men and women who have gone blind as adults; handicapped people in a home for the incurably disabled; and homosexuals. The other four groups enjoy high-status and voluntary marginality: late-entrants to the Anglican ministry; self-employed artists; a Sufi commune of Islamic mystics; and a Hare Krishna commune.

The Meaning of Behaviour

Series: Psychology Library Editions: Personality

Originally published in 1983, this title is a determined attack on personality theories current at the time. It critically examines their basic motivational constructs and rejects any that invoke goal-seeking as being inescapably teleological and therefore unacceptable as natural science. Dr Mazi argues the necessity for an unqualified determinism in psychology, yet one that incorporates the role of cognitive processes in the formation of behaviour. The book will be of interest to all those seriously concerned with the springs and meanings of human behaviour, whether they be psychologists, psychoanalysts, philosophers or those generally interested in social and ethical theory.

The Nature of Human Personality

G. N. M. Tyrrell

Series: Psychology Library Editions: Personality

For over thirty years G. N. M. Tyrrell devoted himself to the study of psychical phenomena. Originally published in 1954, in his last book, written just before his death, he probes as deeply as possible into the meaning of the results of psychical research. He believes that paranormal phenomena are not isolated occurrences due to the exceptional gifts of a few unusual persons but the result of capacities which all human beings possess, though in widely varying degrees. The book includes a general criticism of current attitudes towards the subject at the time. The book ends arguing that the normal and paranormal are one and suggesting a pathway to religion.

The Optimal Personality

An Empirical and Theoretical Analysis

Richard W. Coan

Series: Psychology Library Editions: Personality

The terms mental health, maturity, personality integration, self-actualization have been used by psychologists to represent the realm of the ideal or optimal personality. First published in 1974, the author here describes a method of analysing this domain, and examines the important theoretical implications of his findings. He developed instruments to measure various characteristics, including personal consistency, the experience of control and openness to experience, which are associated with current concepts of sound psychological functioning. A battery containing these instruments was administered to several hundred subjects and analysed. The results, reported here, are enlightening.

Personality Disorders

New Symptom-Focused Drug Therapy

S. Joseph

Series: Psychology Library Editions: Personality

Originally published in 1997, using 50 pharmacological case studies, this title illustrates how chronic and difficult psychiatric disorders ranging from paranoid to obsessive-compulsive personality disorder can be responsive to treatment. Readers are first taught to translate DSM-IV diagnostic criteria to identifiable and treatable symptom correlates which are then targeted for treatment using rationally chosen medications or combinations of medication along with psychotherapy. Since medications rapidly control dysfunctional symptoms, psychotherapy becomes much more effective, enabling psychotherapists and patients to focus on underlying psychosocial issues and conflicts.

Prophecy, Behaviour and Change

An Examination of Self-fulfilling Prophecies in Helping Relationships

Gerald G. Smale

Series: Psychology Library Editions: Personality

Professional helpers may harm their clients instead of helping them. This is one of the important implications – for the selection, training and practice of members of the helping professions – of the evidence reviewed in this book. Originally published in 1977, Gerald Smale argues that the expectations of the professional helper, whether social worker, doctor, psychiatrist, psychoanalyst, psychotherapist or counsellor, can act as self-fulfilling prophecies on his or her clients, for better or worse. The book demonstrates that it is the behaviour of the worker towards the client which is of crucial importance.

Theories of Personality

A Systems Approach

David Lester

Series: Psychology Library Editions: Personality

Designed as a text for both graduate and undergraduate students, this book, originally published in 1995, presents an intrapsychic explanation of human behaviour – concepts based on psychological processes and 'structures' within the mind. In this context, a unique treatment of personality theory is introduced. It focuses on Freud, Kelly and Angyal: Freud's psychoanalytic theory of personality based on desires, Kelly's personal construct theory for thinking, and Angyal's holistic concepts of personality.

The Causes of Industrial Disorder

A Comparison of a British and a German Factory

Ian Maitland

Series: Routledge Library Editions: The German Economy

Originally published in 1983, this comparative study of day-to-day industrial relations in two closely matched factories in Britain and Germany, the author examines the causes of the disorder in British manufacturing industry. The book describes how, in the absence of government in the British factory, workers took the law into their own hands in order to redress grievances over pay and to protect their position in the factory's earnings hierarchy. In the German workplace, management and works council successfully administer orderly and equitable pay structures.

Revival: Thought and Reality - Hegelianism and Advaita (1937)

Poolla Tirupati Raju

This work is a contribution to certain aspects of idealistic philosophy. It is a comparative study, yet it is not a comparison for the sake of comparison.

This book examines the supra-rational Absolutism of the West developed under the Hegelian influence, and in the light of the criticisms shows the peculiar character of the Advaita Vedanta of Sankara. It is therefore not a mere exposition, but a criticism and construction. The discussions are not cosmological, but epistemological and metaphysical, approached from the side of logic.

4 Volume Set

Rantanen: Globalization and the Media (4-vol. set)

Edited by Terhi Rantanen, London School of Economics, UK and Cesar Jimenez-Martinez

Series: Critical Concepts in Media and Cultural Studies

As serious academic work on and around globalization and the media continues to flourish as never before, this new title meets the need for an authoritative reference work to make sense of a rapidly growing and ever more complex corpus of literature, and to provide a map of the area as it has emerged and developed. It is a landmark collection of foundational and the best cutting-edge scholarship in the field and is organized in four volumes.

Post-war Dilemmas of Sri Lanka

Democracy and Reconciliation

S. I. Keethapongalan

Series: Europa Perspectives in Transitional Justice

This book examines whether democracy, compared to authoritarianism, is conducive to post-war reconciliation. The research concludes that the Sri Lankan case indicated that post-war reconciliation is more contingent on the readiness of the former enemies to come together. The end of the war profoundly impacted post-war governance and ethnic relations in Sri Lanka. The volume provides an analysis of the factors that led to the government and military victory in 2009 and a comprehensive analysis of the nature of relations between the Muslims, the Tamils and Sinhalese, as well as the nature and causes of post-war anti-Muslim riots.

Africa's Critical Choices

A Call for a Pan-African Roadmap

Edited by Dunod Editeur

Series: Europa Regional Perspectives

This volume examines contemporary Africa confronted by a number of issues, including the environment and climate change, demographics, trade issues, internal and external migration, education, economic issues, governance, and the influence of other countries. Written by former Prime Minister of Niger and current Chief Executive Officer of the Secretariat of the New Partnership for Africa's Development (NEPAD), Dr Ibrahim Assane Mayaki, this book offers an overview of Africa, and looks to the next generation of leaders in the continent, aiming to offer a manifesto for future change.

Globalizing the Library

Librarians and Development Work, 1945–1970

Edited by Amanda Laugesen, Australian National University

Series: Routledge Studies in Library and Information Science

Globalizing the Library focuses on the globalization of information and the library in the period following the Second World War. Providing an examination of the ideas and aspirations surrounding information and the library, as well as the actual practices and actions of information professionals from the United States, Britain, and those working with organizations such as UNESCO to develop library services, it tells an important story about international history that also provides insight into the history of information, globalization, and cultural relations.

Communist Parties in the Middle East

100 Years of History

Edited by Laura Feliu and Ferran Izquierdo Brichs, Autonomous University of Barcelona, Spain

Series: Europa Regional Perspectives

One hundred years since the Russian Revolution, Communist parties have undergone great changes, in an evolution that has affected the entire Left and the social movements. The impact of Communist parties and their evolution in the Middle East is a topic that has not been widely researched. This book aims to cover a century in the lives of these parties, from the moment the Communist ideology first reached the region in the early 20th century, right up to the upheaval caused by the dissolution of the USSR and, more recently, the Arab Spring. It has been designed to offer a unique, updated and comprehensive study of Communist parties in the Middle East.

Terrorism and Insurgency in Asia

A contemporary examination of terrorist and separatist movements

Edited by Benjamin Schreer, Macquarie University, Australia and Andrew T. H. Tan, University of New South Wales, Australia

Series: Europa Regional Perspectives

The rise of Islamic State since 2014 has led to the re-emergence of terrorism as a serious security threat in Asia. Coupled with the ongoing terrorism and insurgency challenges from radical religious extremists and ethno-nationalist insurgencies, some parts of Asia remain mired in armed rebellion despite decades of nation-building.

The Psychology of Everything

Know the psychology. Understand your world.
See your life in a new way.

The Psychology of Everything is a series of books which debunk the popular myths and pseudo-science surrounding some of life's biggest questions. The series explores the hidden psychological factors that drive us, from our subconscious desires and aversions, to our natural social instincts. Absorbing, informative, and always intriguing, each book is written by an expert in the field, examining how research-based knowledge compares with popular wisdom, and showing how psychology can truly enrich our understanding of modern life.
