Maritime Clusters and the Ocean Economy

An Integrated Approach to Managing Coastal and Marine Space

Peter B. Myles, Tournet Africa, South Africa

Series: Earthscan Oceans

Clustering has become a central concept for analyzing the competitiveness of nations, industries and firms. This book shows how the cluster concept can be applied to the study of maritime activities. These include shipping, shipbuilding and port and maritime services, all clearly geographically concentrated in a number of maritime clusters. However, these are having to compete with other uses of the coasts and oceans including fisheries, marine aquaculture, offshore energy and tourism, requiring new modes of governance and integrated planning.

Ports and the Environment

Maritime Policy and Management

Edited by Meifeng Luo and Tsz Leung Yip, The Hong Kong Polytechnic University, Hong Kong

Port communities are increasingly concerned about the local environmental problems associated with air pollution from increased port activities. Efforts are increasingly being made into the reduction of human-induced changes to the global environment, and one of the target areas is to reduce air emissions from international shipping. By examining contemporary environmental concerns from the perspectives of maritime policy, port management, and industrial efficiency, this book will provide important reference for future research and policy-making in this area. This book was originally published as a special issue of Maritime Policy & Management.

Edited by Cesar Ducruet, University of Paris I Panthéon-Sorbonne, France
