Transportation and Strategic Asset Management
A Sustainable Approach to Maintain Critical Infrastructure
Erik Stromberg and Thomas H. Wakeman III
Long-term financial planning and sound governance is essential for maintaining transportation infrastructure and assets. Public-private sector partnerships and cooperation are vital. This book looks at the current state of our infrastructure and ways to better maintain it with environmentally friendly solutions and long-term sustainability and capital planning. It examines transportation modalities and provides case examples and best practices from cities around the world where long-term asset management and local cooperation has worked to maintain and improve critical infrastructure. The authors provide creative solutions that can be implemented now for maintenance, stability, and growth.

Gendering Military Sacrifice
A Feminist Comparative Analysis

Edited by Cecilia Åse, Stockholm University, Sweden and Maria Wendt, Stockholm University, Sweden
Series: Routledge Studies in Gender and Security

This book offers a feminist analysis of military sacrifice and reveals the importance of a gender perspective in understanding the idea of honourable death.

Security and Risk Assessment for Chemical and Petrochemical Facilities

Daniel Patrick O’Brien, San Antonio Water Systems, Texas, USA

The domestic and global risk to chemical and petrochemical facilities is enormous in breadth and can be catastrophic in nature. Facilities must be keenly aware of the risk involved and the necessary security measures and regulations. Building from a historical perspective, this book demonstrates how prior catastrophes have affected current regulations, best practices, and mitigation opportunities. It details how to identify your organization’s security risks and offers tools for improving security and overall resiliency.

Managing Energy Security
An All Hazards Approach to Critical Infrastructure

Maria G. Burns, University of Houston, Texas, USA

This interdisciplinary book is written for government and industry professionals who need a comprehensive, accessible guide to modern energy security. Introducing the ten predominant energy types, both renewable and non-renewable, the book illustrates the modern energy landscape from a geopolitical, commercial, economic and technological perspective. Energy is presented as the powerhouse of global economic activities. One of the key strengths of the book is its ability effectively to cover various scientific disciplines, and several energy types, while remaining comprehensible.

Acoustic Technologies for Port and Border Protection

Alexander Sutin, Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken, New Jersey, USA and Hady Salloum, Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken, New Jersey, USA

The first acoustic systems for aircraft and submarine detection were built during World War I. Over the last few years and with the advance of computing, memory storage efficiency, and programming, signal processing techniques have advanced significantly. As a result, acoustic capabilities have become more attractive in maritime and border security. They can now be applied to detect targets of interest at longer distances at low false alarm rates, better classification, and tracking. This book describes the principles of acoustic waves, signal processing techniques, and current and future applications of acoustic technology for port and border protection.

Developing Intelligence Theory

Edited by Peter Gill, University of Leicester, UK, Stephen Marrin, James Madison University, USA and Mark Phythian, University of Leicester, UK

Developing Intelligence Theory analyses the current state of intelligence theorisation, provides a guide to a range of approaches and perspectives, and points towards future research agendas in this field. Key questions discussed include: the role of intelligence theory in organising the study of intelligence; how (and how far) explanations of intelligence have progressed in the last decade; and how intelligence theory should develop from here.

The Rise and Fall of Network-Centric Warfare
Manabruta Guha, University of Bath, UK
Series: Cass Military Studies

This book is an account of how an ambitious theory of war emerged at the dawn of the 21st Century, and how it fared on the battlefield (principally in Afghanistan and Iraq). Simultaneously, it is also an account of how revolutionary military concepts emerge, the difficulties that they face when attempts are made to reinterpret them in specific ways and to apply them in haste in active battlefields, and the insights that they yield into how the problematic of future war is addressed. The work consists of two narrative themes that run simultaneously and which are inextricably bound to each other.

Security, Transportation, and the Supply Chain
Mitigating Threats and Facilitating the Flow of Commerce
Luke Ritter
The goal of security within the supply chain and transportation infrastructure is to effectively mitigate risks while facilitating commerce. Security and business protection measures are at the core of how to maintain consistent and strategic business operations. These expenses are assets that promote reliability to customers, but also serve as valuable ROI to further enhance the business. Focusing on economic and business objectives, this book examines the transportation infrastructure. Chapters cover the supply chain, logistics, transportation security issues, and specific transportation modalities as well as the legal and regulatory frameworks that encompass them.

Cultures of Counterterrorism

French and Italian Responses to Terrorism after 9/11

Silvia D’AMATO, University of Florence, Italy
Series: Contemporary Security Studies

This book investigates counterterrorism responses from a strategic-culturalist perspective, focusing on France and Italy in the post-9/11 era. This work provides an original contribution to the understanding of counterterrorism by asking how values, norms and a shared sense of identity matter in policy dynamics. It explores and assesses which cultural elements are relevant for the fight against terrorism and investigates the impact which these elements can have on practical approaches to terrorism. This book will be of much interest to students of terrorism studies, discourse analysis, European politics, security studies and International Relations in general.

Expanding Perspectives on Human Rights in Africa
Edited by M. Raymond Izarali, Wilfrid Laurier University, Canada, Oliver Masakure, Wilfrid Laurier University, Canada and Bonny Ibhawoh, McMaster University, Canada

Series: The International Political Economy of New Regionalisms Series

This book draws attention to emerging issues around the rights of minorities, marginalized groups and persons in Africa and shows that although international human rights principles have been embraced in the continent, various minority groups and marginalized persons are denied such rights through criminalization and persecution. This volume is geared toward scholars, students, human rights groups, policy makers, social workers, international organizations, and policy makers in the fields of criminology, security studies, development studies, political science, sociology, children studies, social psychology, international relations, postcolonial studies and African Studies.

Rethinking Statehood in the Middle East and North Africa
Security, Sovereignty and New Political Orders
Edited by Abel Polese, Dublin City University, Ireland and Ruth Hanau Santini, Università L’Orientale, Italy

Alternative forms of government and statehood exist in the Middle East and North African regions. The chapters in this volume demonstrate this and explore the notion of power from a non-statist perspective, highlighting the limits of states and their governance.

This book is intended to prompt a critical reflection on the meaning of governance. It will illuminate informal structures which deserve attention when studying governance and power dynamics within a state or a region. This book was originally published as a special issue of Small Wars & Insurgencies.

Transforming Rwanda
Challenges on the Road to Reconstruction
Jean-Paul Kimonyo

Since the end of its genocidal civil war in 1994, Rwanda has embarked on an ambitious, and often controversial, process of reconstruction. The author comprehensively analyzes that process in the political, military, socioeconomic, and cultural arenas. Kimonyo combines the objectivity of a scholar with the front-row perspective of a participant to provide an unparalleled analysis of the ups and downs of Rwanda’s transformation. Drawing extensively on primary sources and grounding his study in historical context, he traces and analyzes the stages of reconstruction as they have continued to unfold since the election of Paul Kagame to the presidency.

A Crisis of Civility?
Political Discourse and its Discontents
Edited by Robert G. Boatright, Clark University, USA, Timothy J. Shaffer, Kansas State University, USA, Sarah Sobieraj, Tufts University, USA, and Dannanagol Goldthwaite Young, University of Delaware, USA

In the 2016 election and since, reasoned public discourse has suffered at the hands of rising polarization and disrespectful disagreement. This book promotes a coherent, civil conversation between divergent contemporary perspectives in political science, communications, history, sociology, and philosophy to reflect on challenges to civil discourse, define civility, and identify its consequences for democratic life in a digital age. In this accessible text, an all-star cast of contributors tills the earth in which future discussion on civility will be planted.

Aging Policy and Politics in the Trump Era
Implications for Older Americans
Edited by Edward Alan Miller, University of Massachusetts Boston, USA, Pamela Nadash, University of Massachusetts Boston, USA and Michael K. Gusmano, Institute for Health, Health Care and Aging Research, Rutgers University, USA

This book explores how Trump administration policies are likely to significantly undermine the social safety net for older Americans, with respect to long-term care, housing, healthcare, and retirement. It also explores how the Trump administration might shape politics and political behavior through policy changes made. The response of older voters to efforts by the Trump administration and its Republican allies in Congress to draw back on the federal government’s commitment to programs and policies affecting them, will shape the direction of aging policy and politics for years to come. This book was first published as a special issue of the Journal of Aging & Social Policy.

American Hegemony in the 21st Century
A Neo Neo-Gramscian Perspective
Jonathan Pass
Series: Routledge Advances in International Relations and Global Politics

Jonathan Pass presents a highly sophisticated historical materialist theoretical framework—a Neo-neo Gramscian (NGN) approach—to analyse the complex interplay of internal and external social forces responsible for the establishment, crisis, restructuring and evolving nature of American hegemony, and its effect on world order. To explain the significance of the rise of China its inter-relation with, and effect on, American hegemony, Pass investigates: a) how its domestic and international social forces interact within a single global capitalist system (as part of a “passive revolution”); and b) how said interactions affect the dynamic of Sino-American relations.

American Government
Political Development and Institutional Change
Cal Jillson

How politics in America works today, how it got that way, and how it’s likely to change through reform—these are the themes that pervade every chapter of Cal Jillson’s highly lauded American Government: Political Development and Institutional Change. Even in the midst of current challenges, America’s past is present in all aspects of the contemporary political system. Jillson uses political development and the dynamics of change as a thematic tool to help students understand how politics works now—and how institutions, participation, and policies have evolved over time. In addition, Jillson helps students think critically about how American democracy might evolve further.

Analyzing American Democracy
Politics and Political Science
3rd Edition
Jon R. Bond and Kevin B. Smith, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, USA

This is an introductory American politics text covering the constitutional framework of American government, political behavior and informal institutions, the formal institutions of American government, and a concluding chapter on public policy. Every chapter highlights the most current thinking in political science research and discusses related public policy. This text teaches students to think analytically by presenting current political science theories and research in answering the engaging, big questions facing American politics today. It serves as an introduction to the discipline by reflecting the theoretical developments and types of empirical inquiry conducted by researchers.

Comparative Politics

Exploring Concepts and Institutions Across Nations

George S. Mahler

Among the many tools available for teaching comparative politics, the author’s text stands out for its unique exploration of concepts, structures, and illustrative cases. The first part of the book, after setting the stage with a discussion of comparison as a method of inquiry, focuses on the core institutions that affect politics within nations, as well as on political behavior and civil society. In Part 2, those same topics are systematically revisited as they interact in the context of nine detailed, up-to-date (through 2018) country studies.

Depolicing

When Police Officers Disengage

Willard M. Oliver

Depolicing—the withdrawal from proactive law enforcement by officers on the line—has become an increasing concern within both police departments and the communities that they serve. The author, a former policeman himself, draws on extensive interviews with officers in a variety of jurisdictions to explore how prevalent depolicing has become, why officers engage in it, and what can be done to minimize it. With officer behaviour more and more intense scrutiny, depolicing is a uniquely important contribution to ongoing debates.

Ideologies of American Foreign Policy

John Callaghan, Brendon O’Connor, US Studies Centre, University of Sydney, Australia, and Mark Phythian, University of Leicester, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in US Foreign Policy

A comprehensive account of ideology and its role in the foreign policy of the USA, this book investigates the way US foreign policy has been understood, debated and explained in the period since the US emerged as a world power, on its way to becoming the world power. Starting from the premise that ideologies provide explanatory patterns or frameworks from which meaning can be derived, the authors study the relationship between ideology and foreign policy, demonstrating the important role ideas have played.

Mediation and Governance in Fragile Contexts

Small Steps to Peace

Dekha Ibrahim Abdi and Simon J. A. Mason

The result of a long collaboration between a Kenyan-Somali mediator and a Swiss scholar-practitioner, Mediation and Governance in Fragile Contexts introduces an innovative, practical approach to resolving an enduring issue: How can conflicts be resolved in polarized societies? This approach breaks out of the insider/outsider dichotomy to develop a framework that unites outsider perspectives on mediation methodology with the rich experiences and reflections that only local peace practitioners can provide.

Security in Asia Pacific
The Dynamics of Alignment
Thomas S. Wilkins
The complex security dynamics of the pivotal Asia Pacific region, involving disparate and contentious power blocs, clearly have implications far beyond the region itself. The author sheds new light on these dynamics, providing a rich framework for better understanding the nature of security alignments in Asia Pacific, as well as a re-examination of the dominant forces at play: the US alliance system, ASEAN, and the Shanghai Cooperation Organisation.

Spying
Assessing US Domestic Intelligence Since 9/11
Darren E. Tromblay
Initiated in the aftermath of the September 11 terrorist attacks, have the reforms of the US intelligence enterprise served their purpose? What have been the results of the creation of the Department of Homeland Security, the Office of the Director of National Intelligence, and a reorganized FBI? Have they helped to reduce blind spots and redundancies in resources and responsibilities...and to prevent misuses of intelligence and law enforcement? How did a disaster like the Snowden scandal happen? The author answers these questions in his thorough, often provocative, assessment of post-9/11 US domestic intelligence activities in the pursuit of national security.

The Ku Klux Klan and Freemasonry in 1920s America
Fighting Fraternities

Miguel Hernandez

Series: Routledge Studies in Fascism and the Far Right

The Second Ku Klux Klan’s success in the 1920s remains one of the order’s most enduring mysteries. Emerging first as a brotherhood dedicated to paying tribute to the Southern organization of the Reconstruction period, the Second Invisible Empire developed into a mass movement with millions of members that influenced politics and culture throughout the early 1920s. This study explores the nature of fraternities and the overlap between the Klan and Freemasonry. Drawing on many previously untouched archival resources, it presents a detailed analysis of the development and later decline of the Klan and the complex nature of its relationship with the traditions of American fraternalism.

The Stigmatization of Conspiracy Theory since the 1950s

A Plot to Make us Look Foolish

Katharina Thalmann

Series: Conspiracy Theories

This ground-breaking study challenges some of the widely shared assessments in the scholarship about a perceived mainstreaming of conspiracy theory. Providing an in-depth analysis of academic and media discourses, Katharina Thalmann is the first scholar to systematically trace the history and process of the delegitimization of conspiracy theory. By reading a wide range of conspiracist accounts about three central events in American history Thalmann shows that a veritable conspiracist subculture emerged in the 1970s as conspiracy theories were pushed out of the legitimate marketplace of ideas and conspiracy theory became a commodity.

U.S. Foreign Policy Towards Syria
Perceiving Syria

Ahed Alhouis, The University of Aleppo, Syria

Series: Routledge Studies in US Foreign Policy

Since the war started in Syria, the Obama administration has been reluctant to intervene militarily but unhesitating in adopting an antagonistic attitude towards the Assad regime. In fact, for decades the U.S. foreign policy towards Syria has been characterised as confrontational, antagonistic and ambivalent. Taking the current debate over the nature and origins of U.S. policy towards the conflict in Syria at a starting point, this book explains the Obama administration’s policy towards Syria by analysing the impact of image.

Why Vote?
Essential Questions About the Future of Elections in America

Daniel M. Shea
For nearly 200 years, Americans have pinned the democratic character of their system on elections. We have become an election-crazed nation, ever-hoping that the next grand contest or fresh candidate will save the day. But the system is being contorted by a novel brand of partisan polarization, voter access limits, out-of-control social media, declining objectivity, outside interferences, a hyper-partisan press, and more. We’ve reached a precarious moment in the history of our democracy and it is no stretch to say the future of the republic is at stake. This lively, accessible book tees up a new way of thinking about the future of elections—and beyond—in America.
The Geopolitics of Energy in East Asia
Regional and Global Implications of Security and Governance
Caterina García Segura and Pablo Pareja Alcaraz
Series: Global Security in a Changing World
The past three decades have witnessed a spectacular and unsustainable increase in the global demand for energy. This trend acquires a special significance in East Asia as a result of the region's economic growth dependency on heavy industrialization, its fragile security architecture and the traditional rejection of regional States to delegating power to supranational entities. In spite of the latter, the constitutional structures and institutions of East Asia's regional order have undergone a process of gradual reinforcement since the early nineties. This book analyzes the impact of the region's energy needs on both regional and global security and governance.

On East Asian Regional Cooperation II
Ideality and Reality
Yunling Zhang
Series: China Perspectives
Instead of the East Asian Community, various functional mechanisms have come into being in the development of East Asian cooperation because of complicated historical and economic relations among the countries. This book examines the roles played by ASEAN (Association of Southeast Asian Nations), Japan, U.S., and China in the cooperation respectively. More importantly, China's strategic orientation in regional cooperation is studied in the last chapter. It observes that China, as a rising power, is re-establishing regional relations and order with the geographically neighbouring countries as the basis.

On East Asian Regional Cooperation I
Ideality and Reality
Yunling Zhang
Series: China Perspectives
The year of 1997 saw the Asian Financial Crisis which turned out to be a disaster, but also opened up an opportunity for East Asia to establish cooperation mechanism. Starting with the crisis, this book examines the origin and development of the East Asian cooperation movement. More importantly, it investigates the obstacles and resistance, and provides insights into the cooperation within East Asia in the context of unstable political environment. Specifically, it expounds on East Asian Free Trade Area, monetary cooperation, as well as the cooperation within Northeast Asian and Asia-Pacific regions.

The International Political Economy of the BRICS
Edited by Li Xing, Aalborg University, Denmark
Series: The International Political Economy of New Regionalisms
Exploring to what extent the BRICS group is a significant actor challenging the global order, this book focuses on the degree and consequence of their emergence and explores how important cooperation is to individual BRICS members’ foreign policy strategies and potential relevance as leaders in regional and global governance. The comprehensive theoretical and empirical coverage of this timely volume will be especially useful to students, researchers and professionals interested in ongoing academic debates around the IPE of emerging powers, and those researching global governance and globalization.

Democracy in Scotland
Freedom, Equality and Control Since Devolution
Thomas Carl Lundberg, University of Glasgow, UK
Series: Routledge Studies in British Politics
Democracy in Scotland analyses post-devolution Scotland’s democratic quality using a framework that conceptualises democracy in terms of its levels of freedom, equality and control, with special attention paid to the distinction between maximalist and minimalist conceptualisations of equality.

Bob Dylan and the British Sixties
A Cultural History
Tudor Jones, Coventry University, UK
Britain played a key role in Bob Dylan’s career in the 1960s, yet this period in Dylan’s artistic development is still under-represented in the vast library of books on Dylan. Tudor Jones rectifies that with this deeply researched, yet highly readable account of Dylan and the British 1960s. He explores the impact of Dylan on British rock stars as well as his intense relationship with his UK fan base. He also provides much interesting social and political context to give the reader a far greater understanding of a core part of Dylan’s hugely varied career. This is essential reading for all Dylan fans, as well as for readers interested in the tumultuous social and cultural history of the 1960s.

Rethinking Britain's Far-Right
Nigel Copsey, University of Teesside, UK
Series: Routledge Studies in Fascism and the Far Right
The book provides an innovative new approach to understanding the far-right in Britain. Rather than looking at the biographies of the leaders or the historical evolution of the organisations or the number of elected representatives, it concentrates instead on the broader impact of the far-right on areas such as the mainstream political parties, governmental policy, local and community politics, the public sphere, culture and transnational forms of right-wing extremism.

Re-thinking Contemporary Political Behaviour
The Difference that Agency Makes
Sadiya Akram, Queen Mary University of London, UK
Series: Routledge Studies in Anti-Politics and Democratic Crisis
Proposing a novel approach to understanding the contemporary political landscape, Akram draws on the work of Pierre Bourdieu and Margaret Archer on agency and argues the need for an in-depth engagement with concepts of agency to improve the reach and scope of political analysis. Making a case for the role of self-expression in politics, this book will be of use for graduates and scholars interested in British Politics, Political Theory, Social Theory, Political Sociology, the theory and practice of political engagement and political behaviour.

Rise and Fall of the British National Party
Stephen Ashe, University of Manchester
Series: Routledge Studies in Fascism and the Far Right
This book offers a Gramscian sociological analysis of the electoral rise and ‘fall’ of the British National Party (BNP) in the Outer-East London Borough of Barking and Dagenham. Through a critical evaluation of the political-scientific theories that have so far dominated attempts to explain the electoral performance of far-right parties, this book will assess the significance of the relationship between political parties and wider civil society.

Themes and Flux in British Politics
Evolution, Change and Turbulence

Duncan McTavish, Glasgow Caledonian University, UK

This book provides readers with an engaging and informative overview of the development, change and turbulence in British politics today. It explores the extent to which the ‘old approaches’ to politics and policy are becoming less relevant in the contemporary and emerging UK environment and makes sense of the most significant aspects of the moment: political and electoral alignment, referenda, Brexit and the EU, relationship between UK and devolved governments, and key impact related developments internationally.

Nature, Liberty and Dystopia
On the Moral Significance of Nature for Human Freedom
Piers H.G. Stephens, University of Georgia, USA
Series: Environmental Politics
This new fascinating study is grounded in the history of modern political ideas to illuminate how nature may be regarded as a touchstone of liberty in political thought. Piers Stephens skilfully argues that the genre of utopias and dystopias is the key modern example of popular literary forms in which major human hopes and fears about technological society are inscribed.

Environment and Sustainability in a Globalizing World
Edited by Andrea Nightingale, Swedish University for Agricultural Sciences (SLU)
Series: Foundations in Global Studies
From the Foundations in Global Studies series, this approachable text introduces students to the globalizing processes relating to the environment and sustainability. Students are guided through a brief history of environmental sustainability in the modern era, the key concepts, key thinkers, and relevant international agencies and treaties. Special emphasis is given to how theory meets reality in models for measuring sustainability, the range of environmental domains at play, and important controversies. Case studies are used to examine theory and practice at work.

Environmental Policymaking in an Era of Climate Change
Matthew Nowlin, College of Charleston, USA
A mix of existing political theory and original analysis, this book applies recent policy scholarship to questions of environmental governance, with a particular focus on climate change. It examines how competing political actors influence policies within and across institutions, focusing on both a macro-level, where formal bodies set the agenda, and a meso-level, where issues are contained within policy subsystems. This book will help students enrolled in environmental studies courses—as well as all those interested in the impacts of policy on climate change—to understand what is, and will likely continue to be, one of the most pressing policy issues of our time.

Anti-fascism in the Nordic Countries
New Perspectives, Comparisons and Transnational Connections
Edited by Kasper Braskén, Nigel Copsey, University of Teesside, UK and Johan A. Lundin
Series: Routledge Studies in Fascism and the Far Right
This book offers the first comprehensive history of anti-fascism in the Nordic Countries. Through a number of case studies on anti-fascism in Sweden, Finland, Norway, Denmark and Iceland the book makes a significant contribution to the history of contentious politics in the Nordic Countries and to our broader knowledge of European fascism and anti-fascism. The case studies concentrate on the different manifestations of resistance to fascism and nazism in the interwar era as well as some of the postwar variants. The book will be of considerable interest to scholars of anti-fascism as well as researchers of Nordic and Scandinavian history and politics.

Anti-System Parties
From Parliamentary Breakthrough to Government
Mattia Zulianello
Series: Extremism and Democracy
This book adopts an innovative conceptualization and analytical framework to the study of anti-system parties, and represents the first monograph ever published on the topic. It features empirical research using original data and combining large-N QCA analyses with a wide range of in-depth case studies from 18 Western European countries. The author examines in particular the interplay between crucial elements of the internal supply-side of anti-system parties such as their organizational and ideological features, and the political opportunity structure. Anti-System Parties is a major contribution to the literature on populism, anti-establishment parties and comparative political parties.

Aurel Kolnai’s ‘War Against the West’ Reconsidered
Wolfgang Bialas
Series: Routledge Studies in Fascism and the Far Right
Aurel Kolnai’s ‘The War against the West’ remains one of the most insightful analyses of Nazi thought ever written. In 1938 it was a revelation. Quite different in tone and approach from most other analyses of Nazism available in English, it was remarkable for the thoroughness with which it discussed the writings of Nazi thinkers and for the seriousness with which it took their views. In this edited collection published 80 years after the original book, a team of distinguished scholars reasses this classic text and also consider its continued relevance to contemporary politics.

Citizen Discontent in the European Union
Axel Hülsmeyer and Mebs Kanji
Series: The International Political Economy of New Regionalisms Series
European integration has become the paradigmatic case for other regional organizations, which implicitly or explicitly utilize it as a blueprint. Its central feature is the, simultaneous geographical ‘widering’ (from six to 27 countries) and institutional ‘deepening’ (from a customs union to a political union) of the same scheme. Both processes traditionally driven by political elites, they take the support of their citizens for granted, better known as ‘permissive consensus’. However recent failed Treaty referenda are high-profile instances that cast doubt on the tacit citizen support. This book is a valuable contribution to research on citizen attitudes, exploring citizen discontent across the European Union and its particular grievance not to further deepening, but to widening. Conceptualized for students of comparative politics and/or regional integration in general, and the European Union in particular.

Complaining to the Authorities in Russia: Tradition and Modernization

Elena Bogdanova, Research Fellow at the Centre for Independent Social Research, Russia
Series: Studies in Contemporary Russia

Utilizing extensive original research, in-depth interviews, archival materials, original texts, and examples of methods of complaint in soviet and contemporary Russia this book demonstrates the transformation of the bureaucracy of complaint from the late soviet period to today. It highlights the problem of the complaints mechanism coexisting with legitimate and successfully functioning legal institutions and its influence on legal modernization and the force of law and demonstrates more general contradictions generated by the model of justice restoration through direct appeals to the authorities.

Decentring European Governance

Edited by Mark Bevir, University of California, Berkeley, USA and Ryan Phillips, Connecticut College, USA
Series: Routledge Studies on Government and the European Union

The book offers an analysis of the formation and transformation of the EU as an example of governance above the nation-state and is framed by the recognition that the construction of the EU has resulted in variegated and decentred forms of governance. The chapters look at distinct aspects of EU governance to bring to light the influence of elite narratives, scientific rationalities, local traditions and meaningful practices in the making and remaking of European governance.

EU Democracy Promotion and Governmentality

Turkey and Beyond

Hanna L. Muelenhoff, University of Amsterdam, The Netherlands

Series: Interventions

This volume draws on a Foucauldian understanding of governmentality to explore how EU civil society funding policies depoliticise civil society organisations. It questions whether international civil society funding always depoliticises civil society organisations, as the literature on governmentality and international civil society policies argues.

Unpacking liberal and neo-liberal governmentality in EU democracy promotion and civil society funding, this insightful contribution to the literature will be of interest to scholars of International Relations, Middle East Studies, European Studies and democracy promotion.

Extreme Right in Australia

Immunisation or Contamination

Aurelien Mondon, La Trobe University, Australia and Andy Fleming

Series: Extremism and Democracy

This book provides a comprehensive history of the Australian extreme right from the early 20th Century until the present day.

The book offers an insightful and innovative account of Australian history, as well as a compelling argument as to the development of the Australian ethos and national identity. It is not only a historical account of the development of the extreme right, it is also an analysis of its impact on contemporary politics. As such, it fills a gap in the existing literature and also adds to the debate regarding the present state of politics in Australia.

Free Movement and Non-discrimination in an Unequal Union

Edited by Susanne K. Schmidt, University of Bremen, Germany, Michael Blauberger, University of Salzburg, Austria and Dorte Sindbjerg Martinsen, University of Copenhagen, Denmark

Series: Journal of European Public Policy Series

The EU’s fundamental principles on free movement and non-discrimination have long challenged the traditional closure of the welfare state. Whereas EU-wide free movement and national welfare appeared largely unproblematic before Eastern enlargement, the increased differences among EU member states in economic development and welfare provision have resulted in fears about potential welfare migration. This book shows the normative limits of a strict non-discriminatory approach to EU citizens’ access to national welfare, and analyses how the European Court of Justice developed its jurisprudence. It was first published as a special issue of the Journal of European Public Policy.

Series: Party Families in Europe

This book investigates how liberal parties have evolved over time as a party family, in a comparative perspective. Through a discussion of the applicability of the concept of party family to liberal parties, it gives a better picture of the development, challenges and opportunities for liberal parties in Europe. Primarily aimed at scholars and students in comparative politics, this book should especially appeal to scholars in the fields of political parties and party systems, representation and elections, voting behavior and public opinion.

Linguistic Claims and Political Conflicts
Spanish Labyrinths in Language and Identity in the European Context
Andrea Bianculli, Universitat Pompeu Fabra, Spain, Jacint Jordana, Universitat Pompeu Fabra, Spain, Mónica Ferrín Pereira, Collegio Carlo Alberto, Italy and Siresa Lopez, University of Leicester
Series: Routledge Advances in European Politics
This book looks into the multiple levels at which linguistic policies can be challenged, devised and enacted, i.e. sub-national, national and supranational, and the variety of state and non-state actors involved. More specifically, it disentangles the political dilemmas and multifaceted claims regarding linguistic policies in Spain, being this a rather complex and subtle policy area in which multiple layers of national identity; social conflict and value formation converge.

Militant Democracy
The Limits of Democratic Tolerance
Bastiaan Rijkema
Series: Extremism and Democracy
This book examines a variety of theories from a range of philosophers, scholars and politicians through history such as George van den Bergh, Karl Popper, Carl Schmitt and Hans Kelsen. It compares their interpretations of democracy and militant democracy, questions how helpful these referential systems are and addresses contemporary alternatives and criticisms of them. Militant Democracy combines political philosophy, democratic theory, comparative politics and comparative and constitutional law seamlessly to build a comprehensive theory of militant democracy.

National Identities, the Russian Other and Foreign Policy in the European Union
Marco Siddi
Series: Routledge Studies in European Foreign Policy
This book examines the relationship between national identity construction and current foreign policy discourses on Russia in selected European Union member states. It studies over time the relationship between identity and foreign policy to show that divergent national discourses on Russia derive from the different ways in which the country was constructed in national identity.

Parliaments in EU Economic Governance
Powers, Potential and Practice
Edited by Diane Fromage, Maastricht University, the Netherlands and Ton van den Brink, Utrecht University, the Netherlands
This book considers national parliaments’ and the European Parliament’s role in European Union (EU) economic governance. It examines the recent strengthening of parliamentary involvement, limitations to improvements, and where and how democratic deficits still exist. It also provides the basis for some reflections concerning possible future evolutions and improvements to EU economic governance. This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of European Integration.

Perceptions of the European Union’s Identity in International Relations
Edited by Anna Skolimowska, Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski University (UKSW), Poland.
Series: Critical European Studies
This book examines the perception of European Union’s identity by the main actors in international relations. Analysing issues related to public discourse in third countries as demonstrated by, amongst others, their political elites, civil society, and think-tanks, the book highlights a ‘normative gap’ with regards to the European Union’s self-definition/perception and its perception in the international environment.

Romania and the Quest for European Identity
Philo-Germanism without Germans
Cristian Cercel
Series: Southeast European Studies
Exploring the largely positive representations of Romanian Germans predominating in post-1989 Romanian society, this book shows that the underlying reasons for German prestige are strongly connected with Romania’s endeavours to become European. This fresh and insightful approach will interest postgraduates and scholars interested in Central, Eastern and Southeastern Europe and in German minorities outside Germany. It should also appeal to scholars of memory studies and for those interested in the study of otherness in general.

Secrecy in European Politics
Edited by Berthold Rittberger, University of Munich, Germany and Klaus H. Goetz, University of Munich, Germany
Series: West European Politics
This book examines secrecy in European politics across a range of EU and national settings and policy domains, exploring the technological, social and political developments which appear to signal the end of privacy and the rapid expansion of political secrecy in European multi-level settings. The tensions between democratic accountability, with its transparency requirements, and political secrecy, typically justified on grounds of effectiveness of state action, have become more marked and more politicised. This book will interest students, researchers and professionals of political science and law. It was first published as a special issue of West European Politics.

Social Mobilization Beyond Ethnicity
The Case of Bosnia Herzegovina
Chiara Milan, Scuola Normale Superiore, Italy
Series: Southeast European Studies
This book offers an in-depth investigation of the emergence and spread of social mobilizations that transcend ethnicity. Using Bosnia Herzegovina, a country in which representation is granted on an ethnic base, as a case study it explores episodes of mobilization which have superseded ethno-nationalist cleavages. Exploring the variation in spatial and social scale of contention, the book investigates movements’ formation, their organisational structures and networking strategies and advances research on divided societies and social movements.

Social Standards in EU and US Trade Agreements
Evgeny Postnikov, University of Melbourne, Australia
Series: The International Political Economy of New Regionalisms Series
Preferential trade agreements (PTAs) are pursued by both developed and developing countries and increasingly used to address trade liberalisation measures and trade-related issues, such as national regulations, this is especially the case with agreements signed by the European Union and the United States. Although both include social standards in their PTAs thus making trade preferences conditional on respecting workers’ rights and environmental protection, the design of social standards varies widely between the US and EU. Using principal-agent theory to explain the domestic politics behind social provisions in PTAs this book examines the causes and consequences of this variation.

Spain, the EU and the Mediterranean
From 1985 to the Arab Spring
Ivan Ureta
How did Spain develop its diplomatic strategies and mechanisms in the Mediterranean to gain diplomatic influence, international recognition and power? How successful were the country’s leaders in balancing the desire to exert independent regional influence with maintaining working relationships with the EU and its member states? Using first-hand interviews with officials and observers directly involved in setting up Spain’s Mediterranean policies Ivan Ureta illustrates how history, geopolitical interests and domestic politics all played their part in the diplomatic process. The author utilizes a wide range of methodological tools to help explain the political, diplomatic and socio-economic trends, mechanisms and processes involved in Spain’s approach to the region and shows how Spain and her European partners failed to commit to the right objectives leading to a range of ambiguous, unproductive policies that paved the way for the Arab Spring and its aftermath.

The Dynamics of Emerging De-Facto States
Eastern Ukraine in the Post-Soviet Space
Tetyana Malyarenko and Stefan Wolff. University of Birmingham, UK
What are the causes and consequences of the crisis in Ukraine, and what has been the nature of local, national, and external actors’ involvement in it? These are the questions that the authors examine in this comprehensive analysis of the situation in Ukraine. As an in-depth case study of the complex dynamics of the conflict at local, national, regional, and global levels of analysis, the book complements and advances existing scholarship on civil war and international crisis management and also provides insights for the policy community and the wider interested public.

The EU and its Eastern Neighbours
Challenging Borders in the Wider Europe
Kerry Longhurst
The EU and its member states have an intrinsic interest in ensuring that the countries on their borders become stable democracies and “good neighbours”. At the same time an expanding EU with new member states has had to introduce and adopt all the EU’s rules and regulations relating to the bordersless “Schengen Zone”. These developments have meant that the new members of the EU have had to impose harsh visa regimes for non-EU citizens in order to adapt to the rigorous EU-standards for the management of the outer borders, and the relationships between these neighbours have not always been harmonious. Developing relationships within Eastern Europe has become one of the most important foreign policy challenges confronting the European Union in recent times. This book aims to highlight and analyse the ongoing consequences and implications of the areas of dispute between the members of the EU and their neighbours over border control, migratory pressures and security.

The European Union, the World Bank and the Policymaking of Aid
Cooperation among Developers
Eugenia Baroncelli, Università degli Studi di Bologna
The book offers an in-depth exploration of the EU-World Bank relations, conceptualized as hybrid delegation, and advances an innovative theoretical framework to assess the EU-WB joint institutional and field policy performances. Augmented PA models of delegation, role theory and performance analyses are engaged, and selectively recombined, to investigate the nature, evolution and impact of the interactions of the two organisations, both in their everyday and constituent politics. Hybrid delegation-in-motion is reconstructed to unveil the changing division of labour between the two largest development multilateral of the new global context.

The Informal Construction of Europe
Edited by Lennaert van Heumen, Radboud University, The Netherlands, and Mechthild Roos, Université du Luxembourg, Luxembourg
Series: Routledge/UACES Contemporary European Studies
Including case studies that discuss both successful and failed examples of informal action in European integration, this book assembles cutting-edge research by both early-career and more experienced scholars from all over Europe to fill this lacuna. The chapters of this volume offer a guide to the study of informality and show how informality has impacted European integration history and the functioning of the EC/EU as well as other European organisations in a variety of ways.

Transnational Extreme Right Networks
Edited by Graham Macklin, University of Teesside, UK and Fabian Virchow, University of Applied Sciences, Dusseldorf
Series: Routledge Studies in Fascism and the Far Right
This book provides a nuanced understanding of the nature and importance of transnational networks within the political and cultural milieu of the European extreme right-wing. It explores a range of ‘formal’ political networks and ‘informal’ counter-cultural networks that have emerged since the end of the Second World War from the immediate post-war SS veterans to neo-Nazis using social media in the 21st Century. This is an original and much-needed contribution to our understanding of the contemporary extreme right and will be required reading for all students and scholars of extremism, fascism and terrorism.

The Politics of Poverty in Contemporary Russia
Ann-Mari Sätre, Uppsala University, Sweden
Series: Studies in Contemporary Russia
This book provides an overview of poverty and well-being in Russia. Increasing poverty rates during the 1990s were followed by greater attention to social policies in the 2000s and increased efforts to engage people in socially oriented NGOs and ‘encourage’ them to contribute to the fulfillment of social aims. What impact did these developments have on the prevalence of poverty in contemporary Russian society? A timely book that will be of interest to students of contemporary Russian politics as well as those engaged in social policy issues.

The Populist Radical Left in Europe
Edited by Giorgos Katsambekis, Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, Greece and Alexandros Klioupiolis, Aristotle University of Thessaloniki, Greece
Series: Routledge Advances in European Politics
Building on a comprehensive theoretical framework that draws on discursive and ideational approaches to populism, this volume offers a comparative mapping of the Populist Radical Left in contemporary Europe. It explores the novel discursive, political and organisational features of several political actors, as well as the conditions of their emergence and success, while being alert to the role of relevant social movements. This book fills a crucial gap in the literature on radical left politics and populism in Europe, contributing to the rapidly burgeoning field of populism studies.
Data Politics
Worlds, Subjects, Rights
Edited by Didier Bigo, Sciences-Po, France, Engin F. Isin, Queen Mary University of London (QMUL), UK and Evelyn Ruppert, Goldsmiths, University of London, UK
Series: Routledge Studies in International Political Sociology
Data has become a social and political issue because of its capacity to reconfigure relationships between states, subjects, and citizens. This book explores how data has acquired such an important capacity and examines how critical interventions in its uses in both theory and practice are possible. Aimed at academics and postgraduate students interested in political aspects of data, this volume will also be of interest to experts in the fields of internet studies, international studies, Big Data, digital social sciences and humanities.

Soft Balancing in the Indo-Asia-Pacific
From ASEAN to the Shanghai Cooperation Organization
Alica Kizekova
Series: Rethinking Asia and International Relations
Alica Kizekova investigates the use of regional organizations and soft balancing by great and middle powers in the Indo-Asia-Pacific. To test the validity of soft-balancing behaviour, the case of the Shanghai Cooperation Organization (SCO) is compared to the soft-balancing cooperation within the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) when dealing with a re-emerging China of the early 1990s. China’s regional policies with respect to disputed claims in the South China Sea alarmed the ASEAN member states prompting fears about potential Chinese aggression and arguing that soft balancing in the form of ASEAN-led government-to-government and non-official multilateral structures ‘socialize’ China towards regionally responsible behaviour and a commitment to shared norms. This book finds that soft balancing has thus been a strategy of critical significance for both ASEAN and SCO, deserving an enhanced level of recognition for its role in coordinating regional relations.

A League of Democracies
Cosmopolitanism, Consolidation Arguments, and Global Public Goods
John J. Davenport, Fordham University, USA
Series: Global Institutions
This work defends a cosmopolitan approach to global justice by arguing for new ways to combine the strengths of democratic nations in order to prevent mass atrocities and to secure other global public goods (GPGs). While protecting cultural pluralism, Davenport argues that a Democratic League would provide a legal order capable of unifying the strength and inspiring moral vision of democratic nations to improve international security, stop mass atrocities, assist developing nations in overcoming corruption and poverty, and, in time, potentially address other global challenges in finance, environmental sustainability, stable food supplies, immigration, and so on.

Accessing and Implementing Human Rights and Justice
Edited by Kurt Mills, University of Dundee, UK and Melissa Labonte
Series: Global Institutions
Accessing human rights and justice mechanisms is a pressing issue in global politics. Although an understanding of justice is inherent in broad human rights discourses, there is no clear consensus on how to develop adequate means of accessing them in order to make a difference to people’s lives. Further, expansions of the boundaries of both human rights and justice make any clear and settled understanding of the relation difficult to ascertain.

Coping with Nuclear Weapons
Issues and Global Institutions
W. Pal Sidhu, EastWest Institute
Series: Global Institutions
In the recent past there have been several high-profile unilateral, bilateral and multilateral declarations calling for a world free of nuclear weapons, further efforts to prevent proliferation and initiatives to secure nuclear material from falling into the hands of non-state actors, particularly terrorists groups. This work seeks to provide a concise and comprehensive analysis of the role of global institutions in this campaign.

Global Energy and Climate Governance
Towards an Integrated Architecture
Harald Heubaum
Series: Global Institutions
This book provides an in-depth analysis of global governance integration and institutional innovation. The volume argues that for global GHG emissions to be stabilized and reduced in line with targets global energy and climate governance need to align and integrate more closely, avoiding the compartmentalization between them that has thwarted progress for too long.

International Organizations in Practice
The United Nations, Peacebuilding and Praxiography
Christian Bueger, Cardiff University, UK
Series: New International Relations
This book challenges traditional models of International Organization to demonstrate IOs as sites that host practice. Drawing on theorizing from the ‘practice turn’ in IR theory, organizational studies and science and technology studies, it provides a detailed case study on the United Nations peacebuilding to demonstrate the value of practice based theorizing and methodology.

Mercy and Mercenaries
Humanitarian Agencies and Private Security Companies
Peter J. Hoffman, The New School, USA
Series: Global Institutions
Despite the growth and significance of the interaction between humanitarian agencies and private security contractors there has been little analysis of the phenomenon and its accompanying tradeoffs. This work seeks to examine why the principles and practices of humanitarian agencies changed from the conventional practice of refusing to engage accompanying tradeoffs. This work seeks to examine why the principles and practices of humanitarian agencies changed from the conventional practice of refusing to engage.
Multinational Rapid Response Mechanisms
From Institutional Proliferation to Institutional Exploitation
Edited by John Karlsrud, Norwegian Institute of International Affairs, Norway and Yf Reykers, Ku Leuven, Belgium
Series: Global Institutions
The track record of military rapid response mechanisms, troops on standby, ready to be deployed to a crisis within a short time frame by intergovernmental organizations, remains disappointing. Yet, many of the obstacles to multinational actors launching a rapid and effective military response in times of crises are largely similar. This book is the first comprehensive and comparative contribution to explore and identify the key factors that hamper and enable the development and deployment of multinational rapid response mechanisms. This work will be of interest to scholars and students of peacebuilding, peacekeeping, legitimacy and international relations.

The IMF, the WTO & the Politics of Economic Surveillance
Martin Edwards, Seton Hall University, USA
Series: Global Institutions
The world is paying increasing attention to issues of transparency and accountability, questioning whether these organizations are in part responsible for the global economic crisis, as well as assessing their responsiveness to the crisis. This comparative analysis of surveillance at the IMF and WTO fills a significant gap in the existing literature, drawing together a large range of empirical data and offering an extended critical analysis of this key issue. This work will be of great interest to students and scholars of international organizations, international political economy and global governance.

3rd Edition
The United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR)
The Politics and Practice of Refugee Protection
Alexander Betts, University of Oxford, UK, Gil Loescher, University of Oxford, UK and James Milner, Carleton University, Canada
Series: Global Institutions
This concise, comprehensive introduction to refugees and the United Nations agency that assists them, examines the relationship between global politics and the work of the Office of the UNHCR. It explores how the organization has adapted to the changing circumstances of world politics and the changing nature of forced displacement since its creation over 60 years ago, and offers insights into how it may navigate present and future challenges. This third edition has been fully updated to account for recent developments within UNHCR and the global dynamics of forced migration, and aims to expand our understanding of the political context within which UNHCR functions.

Understanding the Humanitarian World
Daniel G Maxwell and Kirsten Gelsdorf
Series: Global Institutions
Conflict and disaster have been part of human history for as long as it has been recorded. Today a large and complex global humanitarian response system made up of a multitude of local, national, and international actors carries out a wide variety of responses. Understanding this intricate system, and the forces that shape it are the core focus of this book. This book serves as a valuable introductory text to the way humanitarian action operates in the 21st century. It will be essential reading for students and practitioners or anyone with an interest in humanitarian action, international humanitarian and human rights law, disaster management and international relations.

Political Candidate Selection
Explaining who wins, who loses, and under-representation
Jeanette Ashe, Douglas College, Canada
Series: Routledge Studies on Political Parties and Party Systems
This text explains why some aspirant candidates are successful while others fail in political selection processes by proposing and applying a universally applicable multistage approach to discovering the relationship between selection rules, selectors’ biases, aspirants’ attributes, and selection outcomes. As such, it provides much needed fresh look at party selection processes and draws new conclusions as to why political underrepresentation occurs and should inform policies to remedy it.

Emotions, Protest, Democracy
Collective Identities in Contemporary Spain
Emmy Eklundh, Kings College London, UK
Series: Routledge Advances in Democratic Theory
Using radical theories of democracy, Emmy Eklundh masterfully constructs an analytical framework based on concept of visceral ties, which sees emotions and affect as constitutive of any collective identity. She later demonstrates empirically, using both ethnographic method and social media analysis, how the movement Indignados has stronger visceral ties than Podemos. This shows the importance of emotions and affect for collective identities, and how representation and signification are reliant upon affective investment, which has vast implications for any creation of political subjectivity.

Conspiracy Theories, Power, and Truth
Todor Hristov Dechev
Series: Conspiracy Theories
Critical theory has developed tools able to conceive truth beyond knowledge and power, and hence to make sense of conspiracy theories. This book will try to organize them into a toolbox, which will enable students and researchers to analyze conspiracy theories as practices of the self geared at self-empowerment, a sort of political self-help.

Justice and World Order
Reassessing Richard Falk’s Scholarship and Advocacy
Edited by George Andreopoulos, City University of New York, USA and Henry F. Carey, Georgia State University, USA
This volume seeks to critically assess the work of Richard A. Falk. In numerous books, articles and opinion pieces, he has addressed key issues at the intersections of international law and relations. His life’s work has concentrated on such world order issues as conflict prevention, economic well-being, sociopolitical justice, or environmental protection. Consistent with the critical spirit that has informed Richard’s work, this book will reflect a multiplicity of perspectives and approaches in the analysis and assessment of these selected themes.

Michael Paul Rogen
Derangement and Liberalism
Edited by Alyson Cole, CUNY, USA and George Shulman
Series: Routledge Innovations in Political Theory
Michael Paul Rogen’s scholarship profoundly altered the scope, content, and disposition of political theory. This book focuses on three categories of substantive innovation within his work: demonology and countersubversion; the psychic life of liberal society; and political mediation: institutions and culture. A useful anthology for political theorists and political scientists, especially those working on American politics and current political thought.

The Intellectual Origins of Modernity
David Ohana
Series: Routledge Studies in Social and Political Thought
The Intellectual Origins of Modernity explores the long and winding road of modernity from Rousseau to Foucault, and its roots, which are not to be found in a desire for enlightenment or in the idea of progress but in the Prometheusian passion of Western man. Modernity is the Prometheusian passion, the passion of man to be his own master, to use his insight to make a world different from the one that he found, and to liberate himself from his immemorial chains. This passion created the political ideologies of the nineteenth century and made its imprint on the totalitarian regimes which arose in their wake in the twentieth.

Weber, Elias and Political Charisma
Erik Jentges

Research on the concepts of charisma and charismatic leadership tend to cite Max Weber as the authority on the subject. A fundamental reassessment of Weber’s theoretical perspective contextualising his work is missing from the literature but one of Europe’s most influential sociologists, Norbert Elias, has already provided exactly that. By broadening the field of study to include the wider societal context Elias offers an innovative and far-reaching revision in which charisma and disgrace are embedded in cultural contexts and shaped by social dynamics. Central aspects of Elias’s critique and views can only be accessed in the German literature archive, and the author utilises these unpublished resources to explore the highly original contribution to the debate that Elias makes. Creating an interdisciplinary synthesis on charisma and leadership this book develops a theoretical perspective offering many new and exciting options for empirical research.

Demobilisation and Reintegration in Colombia
Building State and Citizenship

Francy Carranza-Franco
Series: Routledge Studies in Latin American Development
This book investigates demobilisation, disarmament and reintegration (DDR) in Colombia during the 20th and 21st century. The author analyses the role of DDR programmes in building state and citizenship and details the process of creating and implementing DDR policy, exploring the difficulties, challenges and security dilemmas that ex-combatants may face in integrating within a post-conflict society in social, economic and political dimensions. This book will be of interest to scholars and researchers of politics and development in Colombia, and to those with an interest in peace-building, state-building and DDR in other countries and conflicts.

Foreign Aid in the Age of Populism

Viktor Jakpec and Max Kelly
Series: Rethinking Development
The Western dominated international aid system is being challenged by the rise of right-wing populism, the advance of illiberal democracy and the emergence of non-Western donors. This book explores the impact of these challenges on development aid, arguing that there is a need to bring politics and power relations back into the discussion. In particular, the book proposes new frameworks for political economy analysis for us to better understand development aid interventions. This book is perfect for students and researchers of development, politics and international relations, as well as being useful for practitioners and policy makers within government and aid organizations.

Hybridity in Peacebuilding and Development
A Critical and Reflective Approach

Edited by Lia Kent, The Australian National University, Australia, Miranda Forsyth, The Australian National University, Australia, Sinclair Dinnen, Australian National University, Canberra, Australia, Joanne Wallis, Australian National University, Australia and Srinjoy Bose, University of New South Wales, Australia
Series: ThirdWorlds
The concept of hybridity highlights complex processes of interaction and transformation between different institutional and social forms, and normative systems. This book examines whether the value of hybridity as a concept can continue to be harmonised, and how its shortcomings might be mitigated or overcome. It does so in an interdisciplinary way, as hybridity has been used as a benchmark across multiple disciplines and areas of practical engagement over the past decade – including peacebuilding, state-building, justice reform, security, development studies, anthropology, and economics. This book was originally published as an online special issue of the journal Third World Thematics.

Innovations in 'Sport for Development and Peace'
Research

Edited by Megan Chawansky, Otterbein University, USA, Lyndsay Hayhurst, York University, Toronto, Canada, Mary G. McDonald, Georgia Institute of Technology, USA and Cathy van Ingen, Brock University, Canada
Series: ThirdWorlds
Transnational organizations and practitioners who use sport for international development often position sport as a unique option for tackling development challenges. While sport can be a tool for social change, the authors in this collection bring a critical eye to this assumption and offer new perspectives on the use of sport for development and peace (SDP) in local and global contexts. The book seeks to generate new dialogues and explore linkages for development and SDP researchers through considerations of sport’s potential to challenge and/or perpetuate key global issues and problems. This book was originally published as a special issue of the online journal Third World Thematics.

Refugee Governance, State and Politics in the Middle East

Zeynep Şahin Mencütek

Series: Routledge Global Cooperation Series

This book examines the patterns of legal, political and institutional responses to large-scale Syrian forced migration. It analyses the motivations behind neighbouring countries’ policy responses, how their responses change over time and how they have an impact on regional and global cooperation. Looking in particular at Turkey, Lebanon and Jordan, three of the world’s top refugee-hosting countries, this book explores how refugee governance differs across countries and why they diverge. Scholars and students of Comparative Politics, International Relations, Refugee Studies, Global Governance and Middle Eastern Studies will find this book a useful contribution to their fields.

Democracy, Participation and Dissent in a Global Context

Edited by John Michael Roberts, Brunel University, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Radical History and Politics

This collection, along with its accompanying volume (Ibrahim and Roberts 2019), examines the emergence of, and the connections between, new types of left-wing democracy and participation. Through an array of examples from different countries, it explains why left-wing activism arises in new and innovative spaces in society and how this joins up with conventional left-wing politics, including parliamentary politics. It demonstrates how these new forms of politics can resonate with the real life experiences of ordinary people and thereby win support for left-wing agendas.

Evolution, Politics and Charisma

Why do Populists Win?

Elesa Zehndorfer, University of Greenwich Business School, UK

Readers wishing to make sense of the populist juggernauts of Trump and Brexit and of the cyclical and formulaic nature of the rise and fall of charismatic populism will find this book particularly appealing. Elesa Zehndorfer begins by presenting an applied explanation of the critical importance of political physiology, physiology theory, neuroscience and evolutionary biology in populist charismatic politics. She later eloquently explains how manipulation of physiological variables (such as heightened testosterone and dopamine) renders the political rally one of the most powerful weapons in a populist leaders’ campaign.

Extremism, Free Speech and Counter-Terrorism Law and Policy
Edited by Ian Cram
Series: Extremism and Democracy
This book explores the delicate balance between free speech and the censoring of views that either promote hatred or clash with fundamental democratic values. It does this by looking at the perspectives and level of disagreement between those who consider today's counter-terrorism and extremism strategies to be a soft and liberal approach, and those who believe these strategies disproportionately impact freedom of expression, association and nonviolent political dissent.

Global Injustice and Obligations to Take Political Action
Elizabeth Kahn
Series: Routledge Innovations in Political Theory
This work supplements current understandings of the obligations individual persons have in relation to global social injustice by proposing an additional moral obligation. Utilising a practical ethics approach, this work introduces structural understandings of social injustice and recommends a collective action solution, whilst maintaining the individual as its primary addressee.

Fundamental Feminism
Contesting the Core Concepts of Feminist Theory
Judith Grant
In Fundamental Feminism, Judith Grant explores the evolution of feminist theory as well as the state of today's feminist thought. Pointing to the main problems within feminism, Grant calls for a substantial revision of the core concepts responsible for shaping today's feminist theory. Grant identifies and critiques three core concepts in feminist theory—“woman,” “experience,” and “personal politics”—from their origins in pamphlets and writings in the early women's liberation movement to their current construction in feminist thought.

Gender Identity, Sexual Orientation, and Sexual Assault
Challenging the Myths
Corina Schulze, Sarah Koon-Magnin and Valerie Bryan
The underlying argument of this ground-breaking study is this: Sexual orientation and gender identity influence how sexual assault is experienced, how it is perceived, and ultimately, how victims (and perpetrators) are treated by the criminal justice system. Focusing much of their work on the queer community—a community with a disproportionately high risk of sexual assault—the authors introduce the Identity Inclusive Sexual Assault Myth Scale (IISAMS) to explore the unique aspects of sexual assault and the process of disclosure as experienced by queer victims.

Global Politics
Edited by Jenny Edkins, University of Aberystwyth, UK and Maja Zehfuss, University of Manchester, UK
The 3rd edition of Global Politics: A New Introduction continues to provide a completely original way of teaching and learning about world politics. Completely revised and updated throughout, it includes a host of new illustrative examples which focus on the most pressing issues in global politics, offering new material on a range of topics. Drawing on theoretical perspectives from a broad range of disciplines including international relations, political theory, postcolonial studies, sociology, geography, peace studies and development this innovative textbook is essential reading for all students of global politics and international relations.

Globalizing Governmentality
Sites of Neoliberal Assemblage in the Americas
Jason Weidner, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, USA
Series: Interventions
Seeking to push governmentality studies further in the direction of an engagement with political economy and demonstrating how neoliberal globalization is shaping contemporary social and political reality, this work will be of great interest to students and scholars of international relations theory, global governance, and international political economy.
Good Media, Bad Media
The Benefits and Consequences of a Negative, Emotional, and Biased News Media
Michael W. Wagner, University of Wisconsin-Madison, USA and Mike Gruszczynski
Series: Controversies in Electoral Democracy and Representation
Counter to popular belief, negative, emotional, and even biased political news coverage has benefits for the American people—influencing their ability to perceive a clear choice between the major parties, increasing willingness to participate in politics, focusing attention on important issues, improving political knowledge, and building their own feelings of political efficacy. On the other hand, the media negatively affect trust in government and political compromise, vital elements in a flourishing democracy. Shedding needed light on a complicated issue, this text is an essential tool for students of the media to develop a critical eye on widely-held views.

Hamas, the EU and the Palestinian Elections
A Performance in Politics
Catherine Charrett
Series: Interventions
This book offers a detailed exploration of EU-Hamas engagement around the Palestinian elections in order to investigate opportunities for the EU to have developed an alternative response to Hamas’ political compromise, vital elements in a flourishing democracy. Shedding needed light on a complicated issue, this text is an essential tool for students of the media to develop a critical eye on widely-held views.

Hybrid Media Activism
Ecologies, Imaginaries, Algorithms
Emiliano Tréré
Series: Routledge Studies in Radical History and Politics
This book is an extensive investigation of the complexities, pitfalls and shortcomings of contemporary digital activism. Drawing on extensive fieldwork completed by the author on social movements, collectives and political parties in Spain, Italy and Mexico, this book explores the multifaceted tapestry of issues that plague today’s acts of digital dissent. Assessing whether digital activism can generate and sustain long-term processes of social and political change, this book will be of interest to students and scholars researching radical politics, social movements, activism and current affairs more generally.

Irregular Citizenship, Immigration, and Deportation
Peter Nyers, McMaster University, Canada
Series: Interventions
Deportation has again taken a prominent place within the immigration policies of nation-states. Irregular Citizenship, Immigration, and Deportation addresses the social responses to deportation, in particular the growing movements against deportation and detention, and for freedom of movement and the regularization of status. The book brings deportation and anti-deportation together with the aim of understanding the political subjects that emerge in this contested field of governance and control, freedom and struggle. This book will be of interest to students and scholars of citizenship, migration and security studies.

International Relations Then and Now
Origins and Trends in Interpretation
A.J.R. Groom
The new edition of this classic history of International Relations has been completely revised and updated throughout and remains a major guide to the intellectual lineage and development of the field. International Relations Then and Now is an indispensable text for students and scholars interested in the history of the development of International Relations.
Liberalism

Never Again
Rock Against Racism and the Anti-Nazi League 1976-1982

David Renton
Series: Routledge Studies in Fascism and the Far Right
By 1976, the National Front had become the fourth largest party in Britain. In a context of national decline, racism, and social unrest, the Front won 19% of the vote in elections in Leicester and 100,000 votes in London. An anti-fascist campaign was born, which combined mass action to deprive the NF of public platforms with a mass cultural movement. Rock Against Racism used punk and reggae music as a weapon. Hundreds of thousands of people painted out racist graffiti, distributed leaflets, persuaded those around them to vote against the right. It was one of the biggest mass movements Britain has ever seen.

People and Their Opinions
Thinking Critically About Public Opinion

Eric B. Shiraev, George Mason University, USA and Richard Sobel, Richard Sobel, Harvard University, USA
Utilizing both a critical thinking approach and a comparative perspective, Sobel and Shiraev provide comprehensive coverage of public opinion while also teaching students the basic skills necessary for measurement, understanding, and interpretation. Written in an accessible and engaging manner, this text provides a unique and practical introduction to the field of public opinion. The book trains readers in critical thinking and how to apply those techniques as they encounter the concepts of public opinion. The text also employs a comparative perspective, demonstrating the effect and nature of public opinion in other countries while also placing American public opinion in context.

Political and Economic Foundation in Global Studies

Edited by Michael R. Anderson and Stephanie S. Holmsten, University of Texas at Austin, USA
Series: Foundations in Global Studies
Political and Economic Foundations in Global Studies provides an innovative introductory examination of the global forces shaping the world today, seen through political and economic lenses. Along with its companion, Social and Cultural Foundations in Global Studies, the book exposes students to the historical contours of, and the key concepts and processes that underlie, the interconnections among individuals, societies, organizations, and governments. As in the rest of Routledge’s Global Studies series, the Foundations books employ a two-part strategy: conceptual underpinnings explored in the first part are enlivened by case studies in the second.

Political Fraternity

Democracy beyond Freedom and Equality

Angel Puyol, Autonomous University of Barcelona, Spain

Fraternity is a feeling, and a moral quality, but fraternity is also a political concept. The French Revolution proclaimed an ethical and political ideal with its three principles: liberty, equality and fraternity. Since then, western political philosophy has gone to great lengths to analyze the former two principles of liberty and equality, but has ignored, and even disdained, the third part of the revolutionary triad: fraternity. In this book, Angel Puyol examines the theoretical and normative challenges of the idea of fraternity; its history and meanings, its role in contemporary political philosophy, and its relation to justice and democracy in modern day politics.

Racialization, Islamophobia and Mistaken Identity

The Sikh Experience

Jagbir Jhutti-Johal, University of Birmingham, UK and Hardeep Singh, Press Officer, The Network of Sikh Organisations

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion and Politics

Terrorist attacks globally and nationally have had a significant impact on the public debate on race hate crime and discrimination, but there has been little attention given to the impact of race hate laws and policy, but also incidences of race hatred or ‘Islamophobia’ directed at the Sikhs. This book is the first to look exclusively at the backlash that Sikhs in the UK have faced since 9/11, providing a theological and historical backdrop to Sikh identity in the global context, before critically analysing the incidences of Islamophobia since 9/11, 7/7 and most recently post-Brexit, and how British Sikhs and the British government have responded and reacted to these incidences.

Rethinking Borders

Globalization, Bordering, Connectivity

Anthony Cooper, Queens University Belfast, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Global and Transnational Politics

The recent acceleration of transnationalising tendencies has brought about an increasing degree of institutional interest in borders. In this work, Cooper argues that border studies lacks a general approach to border theory and seeks to put forward a new and more productive framework within which borders can be approached and subsequently studied, shifting the terms of the debate and focusing on logics and processes of connection rather than just the construction, destruction and mobility of the borders themselves.

Social Closure and International Society

Tristen Naylor, London School of Economics, UK

Series: Global Governance

Laying the foundations of a theory of 'international social closure' this book examines how actors compete for a seat at the table in the management of international society and how that competition stratifies the international domain. This book is of interest to IR scholars interested in the ‘expansion’ and globalisation of international society, the history of international summits, and transformations in international order, as well as to those examining concepts including stratification, hierarchy, and networked governance. With its emphasis on non-state actors in global governance, scholars and practitioners alike working on/for civil society will also find this research of great value.

Science, Technology, and Art in International Relations

Edited by J P Singh, Madeline Carr and Renée Marlin-Bennett

This volume brings together two dozen original chapters that provide a unique examination of the issues of science, technology, and art in international relations. The book links global politics with human interventions in the world. We cannot disconnect how humans act on the world through science, technology, and artistic endeavors from the engagements and practices that together constitute IR. There is science, technology, and even artistry in the conduct of war—and in the conduct of peace as well. Scholars and students of international relations are beginning to explore these connections, and the authors of the chapters in this volume are at the forefront.

The Agency of the Governed in the Global South

Normative and Institutional Change

Edited by Anke Draude, Freie Universitat Berlin, Germany

Series: ThirdWorlds

Research on global norm diffusion and institutional transfer has often neglected the agency of the governed. This collection argues that areas of limited statehood – the lack of state capacities in most parts of the global South – provides opportunities for the governed to raise their voices and be listened to. Thus, local people in the global South on the receiving end of development cooperation, state building, or security interventions can significantly shape global dynamics of normative and institutional change. This book was originally published as an online special issue of the journal Third World Thematics.

The Lucid Vigil
Deconstruction, Desire and the Politics of Critique
Stella Gaon, Saint Mary’s University, Canada

Series: Psychoanalytic Political Theory
Provides the first fully philosophical account of the critical nature of deconstruction, and she does so by turning in an original way to psychoanalysis. Drawing on close readings of Freud and Laplanche, Gaon argues that Derridean deconstruction is driven by a normative investment in reason’s psychological force. Her argument is borne out in the cases of Kantian deontology, Deweyan pragmatism, progressive pedagogy, Habermasian moral theory, Levinasian ethics, and others. What emerges is the ground-breaking demonstration that deconstruction is impelled by a quasi-ethical critical drive.

The Politics of Global Tax Governance
Henning Schmidtk, Technical University of Munich, Germany

Series: Global Governance
This book offers an integrated theory of the politization of international institutions and a detailed account of how the institutional design and policy output of tax governance by the EU and OECD have developed over time. Exploring why and how international institutions have become increasingly contested in the twenty-first century, it will be of particular interest to the scholars of the transfer of authority from the nation state to international institutions, and the societal repercussions and political struggles that connect these processes. Researchers in political science, international relations, sociology, and political communication will also find it useful and insightful.

The Production of Secrecy
States of Opacity
Edited by William Walters
Series: Interventions
Secrecy is everywhere. The recent spate of revelations concerning foreign policy and national security secrets confirm that secrecy remains a complex and irreducible feature in the political life and organization of liberal democracies. This text will put questions of the making and unmaking of secrecy at the centre of political sociology, political science and security studies, offering a sustained theoretical reflection and empirical analysis of the production of secrecy.

The Radical Left and Social Transformation
Strategies of Augmentation and Reorganization
Edited by Robert Latham, York University, Toronto, Canada, Karen Bridget Murray, York University, Toronto, Canada, Julian von Bargen, York University, Toronto, Canada and A.T. Kingsmith, York University, Toronto, Canada

This book draws upon and re-engages with a long history of Marxian-anchored thought to analyse the potential for social transformation through a reinvigorated radical Left, all within the context of the ascendance of an increasingly ethno-nationalist, patriarchal and authoritarian far Right worldwide. The authors identify and reflect on strategies, tactics and possibilities for analysing, and intervening in advanced capitalist societies by increasing and deepening popular participation and support on the far Left. The Transformation of Targeted Killing and International Order
Edited by Martin Senn, University of Innsbruck, Austria and Jodok Troy, University of Innsbruck, Austria

This comprehensive volume addresses the important question of whether and how the current transformation of targeted killing is transforming the global international order. The age-old practice of targeted killing has undergone a profound transformation since the turn of the millennium. States resort to it more frequently, especially in the context of counter-terrorism operations. The rapid development of surveillance and drone technologies facilitates targeted-killing missions, and states are starting to slowly abandon their policies of secrecy and denial with regard to this form of violence. This book was originally published as a special issue of the online journal Actors and Themes in International Affairs.

Contested Holy Cities
The Urban Dimension of Religious Conflicts
Edited by Michael Dumper
Series: Routledge Studies in Religion and Politics

Examining contestation and conflict management within holy cities, this book provides both an overview of this phenomenon and a range of possible options and responses. This volume draws together a series of case studies focussing on cities, the kinds of religious conflicts occurring and the international structures and mechanisms that have emerged to address such conflict. Combining expertise from both academics and practitioners in the policy and military world, this interdisciplinary collection will be of particular relevance to scholars and students researching politics and religion, regional studies, geography and urban studies. It should also prove useful to policy-makers in the military and other international organisations.

Transatlantic Relations in Times of Uncertainty
Crisis and EU-US Relations
Edited by Marianne Riddervold, Inland Norway University of Applied Sciences, Norway and Akasemi Newsome, University of California, Berkeley

Ties between the United States (US) and the European Union (EU) rival those between any other pair of international actors. This comprehensive volume makes conceptual progress and empirical contributions in accounting for how EU-US relations have been impacted by a context of multiple EU crises alongside a parallel change in US policies. The authors find strong evidence to suggest that the transatlantic relationship is weakening, due to increasingly diverging perspectives and positions on international issues, institutions, norms and indeed the value of the transatlantic relationship. This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of European Integration.

Trumping Democracy in the United States
From Ronald Reagan to Alt-Right
Chip Berlet, Political Research Associates, USA
Series: Routledge Studies in Fascism and the Far Right

This book will place Donald Trump and Dylann Roof in the context of the backlash against the presidency of Barack Obama and the resulting 2016 campaign for the presidency in which Donald Trump became ascendant. It will explain how there is a dynamic relationship between the Republican Party, various right-wing populist movements, and the extreme right. It will argue that unfair hierarchies of race, gender, and class are not abational in America, but the fracturing bedrock of a nation in which being White, male, Christian and straight no longer ensures a stable floor for power, status, or privilege.

Videogames, Popular Culture and World Politics
Nick Robinson, University of Leeds, UK
Series: Popular Culture and World Politics
Videogames matter and they matter for world politics. The aim of this book is to demonstrate the way in which games contribute to the evolution of global politics and to show how global politics contributes to the development of games. Robinson seeks to achieve this in two ways. First, he offers a 'macro-approach' which explores the political economy of videogames, their role in the militarisation of society and politics, and their soft power role as a source of both cultural attraction and repulsion.

White Racial Nationalism in Britain
A History
Graham Macklin, University of Teesside, UK
Series: Routledge Studies in Fascism and the Far Right
The book provides a comprehensive history of the ideas and ideologues associated with the racial fascist tradition in Britain. It charts the evolution of white racial nationalism in Britain as a political manifestation, from its origins to the margins of the mainstream reached by the British National Party (BNP) at the peak of its powers in 2009.
Drawing on extensive archival research and often obscure primary texts and propaganda as well as the official records of the British government and its security services, this is the definitive account of fascism in Britain and will be essential reading for all students and scholars of race relations, extremism and fascism.

Alliance Decision-Making in the South China Sea
Between Allied and Alone

Joseph A. Gagliano, U.S. National Security Council’s Director for Defense Policy and Strategy at the White House
Series: Routledge Studies in US Foreign Policy
Examine why five states engaged in territorial disputes with China in the South China Sea, this book explores what factors have influenced state decisions to form security relationships with the United States and how the evolution of these factors might affect future security relationships in the South China Sea. This book contributes to the fields of security studies, foreign policy and international relations and expands beyond traditional concepts of defense alliances to explore security cooperation along a spectrum from allied to aligned to non-aligned.

International Non-Governmental Organisations as Peacebuilders
Geetanjali Chopra
Series: Non-State Actors in International Law, Politics and Governance Series
Originally viewed with immense optimism and hailed as a panacea for overcoming violent conflict, peacebuilding today has emerged as one of the biggest development challenges facing the world. As a concept and strategy, peacebuilding has found positive resonance among INGOs and there is evidence of increasing peace building involvement of these organisations in post-conflict societies from Afghanistan to Angola, Sierra Leone to Iraq. This book explores the potential and viability of INGOs as sustainable peacebuilders, by examining and analysing the involvement of three organisations; International Alert, Conciliation Resources and World Vision in specific peacebuilding activities. On the basis of this analysis a model for effective INGO participation in the field of post-conflict peacebuilding is constructed which, if implemented, has the potential to ensure the meaningful and effective engagement of INGOs in peacebuilding activities.

Interpreting Nuclear India and Pakistan
Strategic Culture, Identity and (in)Security in International Politics
Runa Das
Series: Rethinking Asia and International Relations
India and Pakistan’s strategic thinking has unfolded hence shifting re-constructions of India-Pakistan’s nationalist identities, (in)securitie and their nuclear policy choices. Through a blend of materialism and constructivism, this study not only recasts the dynamics of India-Pakistan’s nuclear politics from a more non-traditional angle, but also contains policy implications by drawing attention to how ideological underpinnings of policy makers - who interpret and construct their world of strategic thinking - impact inter-state nuclear security affairs.

4th Edition
Global Terrorism

James Lutz, Indiana University, USA and Brenda Lutz, Indiana University, USA
Global Terrorism, 4th edition continues to provide students with the most comprehensive introduction to terrorism as a global phenomenon. It introduces students to history, politics, ideologies, and strategies of both contemporary and earlier terrorist groups. Written in a clear and accessible style, each chapter explains a distinctive aspect of terrorism and discusses a wide variety of detailed case studies from around the world. The unique combination of a genuinely historical focus and truly global coverage makes this an ideal introductory textbook for anyone interested in the study of terrorism.

2nd Edition
Multinational Military Intervention
NATO Policy, Strategy and Burden Sharing
Stephen J. Cimbala, Stephen J. Cimbala, Peter Kent Forster and Peter K. Forster
Much has changed since the publication of the first edition in 2010 with respect to the geopolitical and military context for NATO decision making. Vladimir Putin’s return to the Russian presidency in 2012, and Russia’s annexation of Crimea in 2014, ended a long post-Cold War period of quiescence in Europe with respect to security issues. NATO found itself in 2014 – 2015 not only heavily engaged in ‘out of the area’ operations in Afghanistan, but also having to reinvigorate its original mission of deterrence and defense in Europe. The shifting constellations of diplomatic-strategic behavior, as between NATO and Russia under Putin II, could be understood from many perspectives. One perspective is that which was introduced in the earlier work and this perspective is still valid, as a frame of reference for interpreting some important aspects of the division of labor among NATO allies, and in understanding their perceptions of their responsibilities to one another.

The Morality of Military Occupation
Jason Hill

Series: Justice, International Law and Global Security
This book presents an original and authoritative account of how and why the United States, with the help of its Western allies, under strictly defined principled conditions may be authorized to exercise temporary military occupation of certain countries in order to achieve geo-political global order and lasting peace. A principled policy of military occupation of incorrigible rogue states can put a halt to the anarchical state of the global commons. Key features include: - Understanding what a contemporary moral enforcer of human rights looks like - Learning how and why military occupation becomes a human rights obligation - Gaining a deep understanding of the role ordinary citizens can play in enforcing human rights.

Understanding and Combating Terrorist Financing
Edited by Amit Kumar, John Jay College of Criminal Justice, New York, NY, USA and Dennis M. Lormel, DML Associates, LLC, Lansdowne, Virginia, USA

Series: Public Administration and Public Policy
In an increasingly open society and global economy, the issue of terrorist financing is demanding increased attention from diverse financial institutions and charitable organizations across the public and private spectrum. Even inadvertent association can result in a host of negative consequences from organizational disrepute to catastrophic destruction. This book recognizes that identifying and shutting down the sources and conduits that finance terrorist activities, is the best way to prevent them. It helps readers navigate this increasingly sophisticated and complex issue and provides comprehensive strategies.

The Globalisation of Urban Governance

Edited by Helmut Philipp Aust, Humboldt University Berlin, Germany and Anél du Plessis, North-West University, South Africa

Series: Cities and Global Governance

The Globalization of Urban Governance makes an important scholarly contribution by linking the narrative on globalization of good urban governance in various social sciences with the legal discourse. It deliberates global governance and connects the existing debate about cities and their place in global governance with some of the most pertinent questions that lawyers face today.
