SPSS Demystified

A Simple Guide and Reference

Ronald D Yockey

Without question, statistics is one of the most challenging courses for students in the social and behavioral sciences. Enrolling in their first statistics course, students are often apprehensive or extremely anxious toward the subject matter. And while SPSS is one of the more easy-to-use statistical software programs available, for anxious students who realize they not only have to learn statistics but also new software, the task can seem insurmountable. Keenly aware of students' anxiety with statistics (and the fact that this anxiety can affect performance), Ronald Yockey has written SPSS Demystified: A Step-by-Step Guide to Successful Data Analysis, now in its third edition. Through a comprehensive, step-by-step approach, this text is consistently and specifically designed to both alleviate anxiety toward the subject matter and build a successful experience analyzing data in SPSS.

Success at Statistics

A Worktext with Humor

Fred Pyrczak

Divided into 67 short sections, this text allows instructors to assign only those sections needed to meet the goals of the course. Humorous riddles allow students to check their work without providing the answers; if the answer to a riddle makes sense, then students know they have answered all questions in an exercise correctly. All major statistics typically introduced in a first-semester course are covered. Contains material on effect size, which provides technical solutions to issues raised earlier in the book (such as the limitations of inferential statistics).

Multiple Regression and Beyond

An Introduction to Multiple Regression and Structural Equation Modeling

Timothy Z. Keith, University of Texas, Austin, USA

Multiple Regression and Beyond offers a conceptually oriented introduction to multiple regression (MR) analysis and structural equation modeling (SEM), along with analyses that flow naturally from those methods. By focusing on the concepts and purposes of MR and related methods, rather than the derivation and calculation of formulae, this book introduces material to students more clearly, and in a less threatening way. In addition to illuminating content necessary for coursework, the accessibility of this approach means students are more likely to be able to conduct research using MR or SEM—and more likely to use the methods wisely.

Essentials of Qualitatively-Driven Mixed-Method Designs

Janice M. Morse, University of Utah, USA

In a mixed-method tradition that privileges the quantitative, leading qualitative researcher Janice Morse breaks new ground by arguing the importance of research designs for which the primary component is qualitative, and contains either a quantitative or a qualitative supplemental strategy. Using a variety of examples and visual prompts, Morse convincingly demonstrates that such designs allow novice researchers to obtain answers more quickly and with more certainty.

Embodiment in Qualitative Research

Laura L. Ellingson, Santa Clara University

Embodiment in Qualitative Research connects critical, interdisciplinary theorizing of embodiment with creative, practical strategies for engaging in embodied qualitative research. Ellingson equips qualitative researchers not only to resist the mind-body split in principle but to infuse their research with the vitality that comes from embracing knowledge production as deeply embedded in sensory experience. Each chapter offers flexible starting points for doing embodiment at every stage of qualitative research and provides strategies that relate to a variety of methodologies. The writing style will appeal to researchers seeking to bridge abstract theorizing and pragmatic strategies, and critical scholars who want to integrate embodied ways of knowing.

This book captures the history and development of mixed methods research in a narrative of personal discovery, growth, and experience. Distinguished ethnographer and methodologist Pertti Peltó establishes a direct line between the earliest examples of ethnographic research and the on-going mixed method dialogues occurring in academic institutions throughout the world. By bringing together such distinct historical perspectives with his own reflections on mixed methods research, Peltó offers a rare and endlessly enriching account that will satisfy the ever-growing need for better quality of practical data-gathering and give researchers a foundation for promoting mixed methods in the future.

Modes of Thinking for Qualitative Data Analysis

Melissa Freeman, University of Georgia, USA.

Modes of Thinking for Qualitative Data Analysis argues for engagement with the conceptual underpinnings of five prominent analytical strategies used by qualitative researchers. By presenting such disparate modes of research in the space of a single text, Freeman not only draws attention to the distinct methodological and theoretical contributions of each, she also establishes a platform for choosing among particular research strategies by virtue of their strengths and limitations. Experienced qualitative researchers, novices, and graduate students from many disciplines will gain new insight from the theory-practice relationship of analysis advanced in this text.

Qualitative Ethics in Practice

Martin Tolich

Series: Developing Qualitative Inquiry

Neither ethics committees nor qualitative researchers can predict the types of ethical dilemmas that will happen in the field, only that they will routinely occur. In Qualitative Ethics in Practice, a team of fifteen top researchers from various disciplines and nationalities offer ethical strategies unique to qualitative researchers for those "big ethical moments" beyond what can be predicted by ethics committees. Ideally structured for qualitative classes that tackle ethics issues, this book calls for an ethical code unique to the practice of qualitative research and highlights some relevant models and programs being developed that may lead to solutions.

The Responsible Methodologist

Inquiry, Truth-Telling, and Social Justice

Aaron M. Kuntz

Aaron Kuntz challenges qualitative researchers to reconceptualize methodological work away from the technocratic toward an intervention for progressive social change. Inviting creativity and vision, and featuring studies that have incorporated these characteristics, he insists that the responsible methodologist become a force akin to parrhesia, Foucault's risky truth-tellers.

Autobiography of a Disease

Patrick Anderson, University of California, San Diego

Series: Writing Lives: Ethnographic Narratives

Blending a history of the Methicillin-Resistant Staphylococcus Aureus (MRSA) bacterium with auto-ethnographic writing, Autobiography of a Disease documents, in experimental form, the experience of extended life-threatening illness in contemporary US hospitals and clinics. The narrative is based primarily on the author's sudden and catastrophic collapse into a coma, and long hospitalization, thirteen years ago; but it has also been crafted from twelve years of research on the history of microbiology, literary representations of illness and medical treatment, cultural analysis of MRSA in the popular press, and extended auto-ethnographic work on medicalization.

Autoethnography and the Other

Unsettling Power through Utopian Performatives

Tami Spry

Series: Qualitative Inquiry and Social Justice

Challenging the critique of autoethnography as overly focused on the self, Tami Spry calls for a performative autoethnography that both unsettles the "I" and represents the Other with equal commitment. Expanding on her popular book Body, Paper, Stage, Spry uses a variety of examples, literary forms, and theoretical traditions to reframe this research method as transgressive, liberatory, and decolonizing for both self and Other.

Race and Identity in Rural America

Encountering the Sublime Through Images

Erika Goble

Series: Phenomenology of Practice

This volume brings together personal narrative, human research methodology, and an extensive knowledge of aesthetic discourse to redefine the sublime in terms of direct and immediate experience. Erika Goble first traces the concept's origin and development in Western philosophy, revealing how efforts to theorize aesthetic quality in axiomatic or objective frameworks fail to account for the variety of experiential paradoxes that can be evoked by a single image. She then examines several first-person descriptions of encounters with the sublime in order to reflect on a series of questions that have escaped aesthetic philosophy so far.

The Craft of Political ResearchW. Phillips Shively, University of Minnesota, USA

The Craft of Political Research is a non-technical introduction to research design and analysis in political science, emphasizing the choices we make when we design a research project and analyze its results. The book's approach centers on asking an interesting research question, and then designing inquiry into the question so as to eliminate as many alternative explanations as possible. Emphasizing the internal logic of research methods and the collaborative nature of the research process, the greatest strength of the book is its clarity and the large range of political science examples it provides.

Action Research Communities

Professional Learning, Empowerment, and Improvement Through Collaborative Action Research

Craig A. Mertler

Action Research Communities presents a new perspective on two current and proven educational practices: classroom-/school-based action research and professional learning communities. Implementation of one or the other of these practices often results in a variety of possible benefits for the teaching-learning process, for student achievement, and for overall school improvement. While these might seem to be separate, isolated practices, the author has taken the beneficial aspects of each practice and merged them into a cohesive and potentially powerful concept, coined "action research communities."
