Routledge Handbook of Africa–Asia Relations

Edited by Pedro Amakasu Raposo, University of Lusíada, Portugal, David Arase, Pomona College, USA and Scarlett Cornelissen, University of Stellenbosch, South Africa

Taking a thematic approach, chapters cover the increasing diplomatic, trade and investment ties between Asia and Africa. Other chapters move beyond political, diplomatic and economic issues to look at society-level interactions and Africa's and Asian historical processes to understand earlier connections between the two regions, and how they stand in the current international system. Grappling with major intellectual questions, defining current research, and projecting future research agendas in the field this is essential reading for students and scholars interested in Africa—Asia relations.

Routledge Handbook of Asia in World Politics

Edited by Teh-Kuang Chang, Ball State University, USA and Angelin Chang

This handbook provides a comprehensive overview of Asia's role in World politics, focusing on how developments in Asia have influenced global politics and how the region has responded in the modern era.

Part I gives an overview of early encounters between Asia and the West and the political, economic and military development of Modern Asia.

Part II looks at Asia's place in the global system, looking at regional powers, alliances and the involvement of Asian states in global organisations.

Part IV moves on to look at Asia's relations with key global players.

Finally, Part VI focuses on modern conflicts between Asia and other world powers and international interventions in Asian conflicts.

Routledge Handbook of Asian Borderlands

Edited by Alexander Horstmann, Martin Saxer, Ludwig Maximilian University of Munich, Germany and Alessandro Rippa, Ludwig Maximilian University of Munich, Germany

In Asia, where authoritarian-developmental states have proliferated, statehood and social control are heavily contested in borderland spaces. The contributors to the handbook highlight some of the processes taking place at the edge or fringe of the state and showcase how centering the margins may contribute to our understanding of central categories in our scholarly thinking, such as territory, sovereignty, state and economy. The topics of the reconfigurations of the economy and the state in the borderlands are dealt with from a point of view of agency, practices, milieu, enclaves, identity and belonging. They articulate many other topics of experience, such as violence, memory and mobility.

Routledge Handbook of Asian Demography

Edited by Zhongwei Zhao and Adrian C. Hayes, Australia National University

Asia is the largest and most populous continent in the world. It is an extremely diverse continent with people living in hugely varied natural environments, representing a striking array of demographic characteristics and stages of demographic transition. This Handbook provides a comprehensive study of population changes in Asia and related theoretical issues through systematically examining demographic transitions in the region and their relationships with a wide range of social, economic, political and cultural factors. The book will provide a key reference about Asian demography for academics, students, policy makers and anyone who is interested in population changes in Asia.

Routledge Handbook of Contemporary Hong Kong

Edited by Tai-Lok Lui, Chinese University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong, Stephen Wing-Kai Chiu and Ray Yep

This handbook introduces readers to social, economic, and political development in Hong Kong. The contributions allow the readers to identify the key features of Hong Kong society prior to its return to China and to grapple with changes in different domains of social life in the SAR since 1997. This will be most relevant to students and researchers who are studying Hong Kong but it will also be of interest to those who are working on China's political development (particularly in the areas of nation building and unification) as well as those who are observing future political change in Taiwan.

Routledge Handbook of Japanese Foreign Policy

Edited by Mary M McCarthy, Drake University, USA

Japanese foreign policy is undergoing profound developments in response to changes in the country's international environment as well as transformations in the way in which foreign policy is conducted. The volume begins by exploring how Japan's external and internal landscapes have changed – examining issues ranging from a rising China and a nuclear North Korea, to new laws that will expand the role of the Self-Defense Forces overseas and the ability for the Japanese government and military to cooperate more closely with their American counterparts, to the new opportunities and imperatives for foreign policymaking in an age of globalization.

Routledge Handbook of Japanese Sociolinguistics

Edited by Patrick Heinrich

Japanese sociolinguistics is an immensely popular discipline in Japan, and it has contributed a great deal to our understanding of how language and society are interrelated on an international level. Japanese sociolinguistics is taught in a number of Japanese Studies Programs around the world but there exists at present no single book which can serve as a general reference source for Japanese sociolinguistics written in English. The Handbook fills a long-standing gap in the literature and provides a much-needed comprehensive outline of Japanese sociolinguistics, which can be presented to an international readership.

NEW IN PAPERBACK

Routledge Handbook of the Chinese Diaspora

Edited by Chee-Beng Tan

With around 40 million people worldwide, the ethnic Chinese form the largest diaspora in the world. The economic reform of China in the late 1970s marked a huge phase of migration from China, and the new migrants, many of whom were well educated, have had a major impact on the local societies and on China. This handbook brings together specialists from a number of disciplines and covers the major areas of the study of Chinese overseas. It is therefore a valuable reference work for students, scholars and policy makers worldwide wishing to understand the global phenomena of Chinese migration, transnational connections and their cultural and identity transformation.

Routledge Handbook of Urbanization in Southeast Asia

Edited by Rita Padawangi, National University of Singapore

The study of urbanization in Southeast Asia has been a growing field of research over the past decades. The Routledge Handbook of Urbanization in Southeast Asia opens a new perspective on urban life in the region. It offers a collection of the major streams and themes in the studies of the cities in the region. A focus on the urbanization process rather than the city as an object opens the topic more broadly to bring together different perspectives.

Routledge International Handbook of Self-Control in Health and Well-Being

Edited by Denise de Ridder, Utrecht University, the Netherlands, Marieke Adriaanse, University of Utrecht, the Netherlands and Kentaro Fujita, Ohio State University, USA
Series: Routledge International Handbooks

The ability to prioritise long-term goals above short-term gratifications is crucial to living a healthy and happy life. We are bombarded with temptations, whether from fast-food or faster technologies; the psychological capacity to manage our lives within such a challenging environment has far-reaching implications for the well-being not only of the individual, but also society as a whole. This is the first handbook to map this burgeoning area of research by applying it to health outcomes.

Including contributions from leading scholars worldwide, the book incorporates new research findings that suggest that simply inhibiting our immediate impulses isn't the whole story.

The Routledge Handbook of Classics and Cognitive Theory

Edited by Peter Meineck

This interdisciplinary volume examines the application of cognitive theory to the study of the classical world, across several interrelated areas including literary theory, archaeology, art history, religious studies, linguistics, historiography, drama and philosophy. Each of the 8 parts explains and evaluates cognitive approaches to a particular area of classical study, and is concluded by a response from an expert in each field considering the potential for wider applications. This ground-breaking work is the first to organize the field, allowing both scholars and students access to the methodologies, bibliographies and techniques of the cognitive sciences as they relate to classics.

The Routledge Handbook of Institutions and Planning in Action

Edited by Willem Salet

This handbook contains chapters prepared by specialized international scholars of urban planning and urban studies focusing on the question of how institutions innovate in practices of action. The contributors share expertise on institutional innovation and philosophical pragmatism. They discuss the different facets of these two conceptual frameworks and explore the alternative combinations through which they can be approached. The relevance of these conceptual lines of thought will be exemplified in exploring the contemporary practices of sustainable urban transition. The handbook aims to give a boost to the turn of institutional analysis in the context

Routledge Handbook on Capital Punishment

Edited by Robert M. Bohm, University of Central Florida, Orlando, USA and Gavin Lee, University of West Georgia

Capital punishment is one of the more controversial subjects in the social sciences. The current trend suggests the eventual demise of capital punishment in all but a few states and countries; a fresh look at capital punishment in the U.S. and worldwide is warranted. This handbook examines capital punishment from a variety of perspectives. An introductory chapter from experts Bohm and Lee presents a contextual framework, and chapters present state-of-the-art analyses of a range of aspects of capital punishment. This is a key collection for students taking courses in prisons, criminal justice,

Routledge Handbook on Immigration and Crime

Edited by Holly Ventura Miller, University of North Florida and Anthony Peguero, Virginia Tech

The perception of the immigrant as criminal or deviant has a long history in the U.S., with many groups having been associated with perceived increases in crime and other social problems, although data suggest this is not necessarily the case. This text examines the relationship between immigration and crime by presenting key issues from both historical and current perspectives, including the links between immigration rates and crime rates, nativity and crime, and the social construction of the criminal immigrant. It is a key collection for students in immigration courses, scholars and researchers in diverse disciplines, and policy-makers dealing with immigration and border security.

Routledge Handbook on Offenders with Special Needs

Edited by Kimberly D. Dodson, Western Illinois University

The Handbook of Offenders with Special Needs is an in-depth examination of offenders with special needs, including learning-challenged, developmentally disabled, and mentally ill offenders, as well as substance abusers, sex offenders, women, juveniles, and chronically and terminally ill offenders. Areas that previously have been unexamined (or examined in a limited way) are thoroughly explored. This is a key collection for students taking courses in prisons, penology, criminal justice, criminology, and related subjects, and is also an essential reference for academics and practitioners working in correctional services or related agencies.

Routledge Handbook of Development Ethics

Edited by Jay Drydyk and Lori Keleher, New Mexico State University, USA

This book provides readers with an insight into the central questions of development ethics, the main approaches to answering them and discusses areas for future research. Over the past seventy years, it has been argued and widely accepted that worthwhile development cannot be reduced to economic growth. Rather, a number of other goals must be realised; Enhancement of people's well-being; equitable sharing in benefits of development; empowerment to participate freely in development; promotion of human rights; promotion of cultural freedom, consistent with human rights; promotion of integrity over corruption.

Routledge Handbook of Organizational Change in Africa

Edited by Franca Ovadje, Lagos Business School, Nigeria and Samuel Aryee, King's College London, UK

A defining feature of the extensive discourse on organizational change is its predominant focus on change efforts of organizations in the West. However, over the past two decades or so, many previously underperforming economies of sub-Saharan Africa have been experiencing an economic renaissance with some of these countries averaging annual growth rates in the region of 6%. This handbook aims to address the gap in the change management literature in Africa, bringing together expert analysis from some of the key thinkers in the field. The handbook will be a useful guide for academics, researchers and advanced students of change management, development studies and African studies.

Routledge Handbook of Marx's Capital

A Global History of Translation, Dissemination and Reception

Edited by Marcello Musto, York University, Canada and Babak Amini, York University, Toronto, Canada

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

This Handbook provides an extensive survey of the dissemination and reception of Marx's Capital throughout the world. The cast of international experts explore, and critically reconsider, the history of the dissemination of Marx's Capital in all the languages in which the book was entirely translated. Each chapter focuses on a particular country or language and provides a short history of the penetration of Marxism in that country; tells the story of the different translations of Capital; explores the reception of Capital from both a political and a theoretical perspective; highlights the most influential interpretations of Capital and how they influenced the overall interpretation of Marx.

Routledge Handbook of the History of Women's Economic Thought

Edited by Kirsten Madden, Millersville University, Pennsylvania, USA

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

The marginalization of women in economics has a history as long as the discipline itself. Throughout the history of economics, women have contributed substantial novel ideas, methods of inquiry, and analytical insights, but much of this has been discounted, ignored, or shifted into alternative disciplines and writing outlets.

This new handbook presents a much needed thematic overview of women's contributions to the history of economic thought from the 1770s through to the mid-20th century. The book opens with an overview of the barriers that women have historically faced in their attempts to contribute to the discipline, before going on to examine women's economic contributions in depth. Coverage is international, spanning both Western and non-Western contributions.

The Routledge Handbook of Economic Theology

Edited by Stefan Schwarzkopf

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

Despite widespread assumptions about an increasing trend towards secularization in Western societies, recent years have seen the development of a loosely structured 'theological turn' within the social sciences, social philosophy and the humanities.

This Handbook is a state-of-the-art reference work that offers students, researchers and policy makers an introduction to current scholarship, significant debates, and emerging research themes in Economic Theology, which is the study of the theological nature of particular economic concepts and the religious underpinnings of mundane practices in the world of organization studies, management and economics. The Handbook brings together leading international scholars from across several disciplines to present short entries, focussing around particular keywords. It will provide the point of entry for readers into this new and evolving field, and will also offer pointers for the direction of future research.

Routledge Handbook of Agricultural Biodiversity

Edited by Danny Hunter, Bioversity International, Rome, Italy, Luigi Guarino, Global Crop Diversity Trust, Bonn, Germany, Charles Spillane, National University of Ireland, Galway, Ireland and Peter C. McKeown, National University of Ireland Galway, Ireland

Recent decades have brought an increased appreciation of the risk to food security and quality that the world's reliance on very few crop and animal species poses. This handbook presents a comprehensive overview of our current knowledge of agricultural biodiversity. It draws on multiple disciplines including genetics, ecology and nutrition, as well as social science subjects which explore the socio-economic, cultural, institutional, legal and policy aspects of agricultural biodiversity. It provides an indispensable reference textbook for a wide range of courses in agriculture, biodiversity conservation and environmental studies.

Routledge Handbook of Food as a Commons

Edited by Jose Luis Vivero Pol, Tomaso Ferrando, Olivier de Schutter and Ugo Mattei

From the industrial revolution to the present day, food has been progressively transformed into a private, transnational, mono-dimensional commodity of mass consumption in a global market. But over the last decade there has been an increased recognition that this can be challenged and reconceptualized if food is regarded and enacted as a commons. It provides the first comprehensive review and synthesis of knowledge and new thinking on how key contemporary themes such as the right to adequate food, food and nutrition security and food sovereignty can be reinterpreted and create a paradigm shift through the lens of common property.

Routledge Handbook of National and Regional Ocean Policies

Edited by Biliana Cicin-Sain, University of Delaware, USA, David Vanderzwaag and Miriam C. Balgos

This comprehensive handbook, prepared by leading academics and practitioners from around the world, presents in-depth analyses of the experiences of fifteen developed and developing nations and four key regions of the world that have taken concrete steps toward cross-cutting and integrated national and regional ocean policy. All chapters follow a common framework for policy analysis. The book highlights the serious conflicts of use in most national ocean zones and the prescriptions articulated in both the Law of the Sea and in the Earth Summit. Overall, the book provides a definitive state-of-the-art review and analysis of national and regional ocean policies around the world.

Routledge Handbook of the Resource Nexus

Edited by Raimund Bleischwitz, University College London, UK, Holger Hoff, Catalina Spataru, University College London, UK, Ester van der Voet, Universiteit Leiden, Netherlands and Stacy D. VanDeveer

In recent years the concept of the resource "nexus" has been hotly debated and now widely adopted in research and policy circles as a powerful new way of understanding the relationships between multiple resources and their sustainable management. These include particularly water, food and energy. This comprehensive Handbook presents a detailed international review of current knowledge and thinking on the resource nexus from an inter-disciplinary perspective. It will serve as an essential

Routledge Handbook of the Study of the Commons

Edited by Blake Hudson, Jonathan Rosenbloom and Daniel H Cole

The study of the commons has expanded dramatically since the late 1960s and the subsequent work of Ostrom popularized the dilemma faced by users of common pool resources. This comprehensive Handbook serves as a unique synthesis and resource for understanding how analytical frameworks developed within the literature assist in understanding the nature and management of commons resources. It is inter-disciplinary and will appeal to a wide range of advanced students in environmental studies, natural resources, law, economics, politics, geography and sociology.

The Routledge Handbook of the Global Sixties

Between Protest and Nation-Building

Edited by Chen Jian, Cornell University, USA, Martin Klimke, New York University Abu Dhabi, Masha Kirasirova, New York University Abu Dhabi, Mary Nolan, New York University, USA, Marilyn Young, New York University, USA and Joanna Waley-Cohen, New York University Shanghai, China

As the fiftieth anniversary of 1968 approaches, this book reassesses the global causes, themes, forms, and legacies of that tumultuous period. While existing scholarship continues to largely concentrate on the US and Western Europe, this volume will focus on Asia, Africa, the Middle East, and Eastern Europe. International scholars from diverse disciplinary backgrounds explore the global sixties through the prism of topics that range from the economy, decolonization, and higher education, to forms of protest, transnational relations, and the politics of memory.

The Routledge Handbook of Transregional Studies

Volume 1

Edited by Matthias Middell

Series: Routledge History Handbooks

This Handbook brings together fields within which transregional phenomena are analysed and presents the potential of these for understanding global developments. Volume 1 looks at the roots of transregional studies, the methodological challenge it presents, how postcolonialism impacts transregional studies, as well as economic entanglements and transregional ties within international organizations. Volume 2 addresses migration across regional borders, religions and cultures as transregional phenomena and the impact of transregionalism on knowledge production. It concludes by asking how interest in transregional studies relates to grand narratives about a globalizing world.

The Routledge Handbook of the History of Race and the American Military

Edited by Geoffrey Jensen, Embry Riddle Aeronautical University, USA

Series: Routledge History Handbooks

The Routledge Handbook of the History of Race and the American Military provides an important overview of the themes surrounding race in the American military establishment from the French and Indian War to the present day. By incorporating the latest research on race and ethnicity into the field of military history, the book explores the advances that have taken place in the past decades at the intersection of these two fields. The discussion goes beyond the study of battles and generals to look at the other peoples who were involved in American military campaigns and analyzes how African Americans, Native Americans, Asian Americans, and Chicanos helped shape the course of American History.

Routledge Handbook of Arabic Translation

Edited by Sameh Hanna, Hanem El-Farahaty, University of Leeds, UK and Abdel-Wahab Khalifa

Translation-related activities from and into Arabic have significantly increased in the last few years, in both scope and scale. The launch of a number of national translation projects, policies and awards in a number of Arab countries, together with the increasing translation from Arabic in a wide range of subject areas outside the Arab World have complicated and diversified the dynamics of the translation industry involving Arabic. This handbook seeks to explicate Arabic translation practice, pedagogy and scholarship, aiming to produce a state of the art reference book that maps out these areas and meets the pedagogical and research needs of both advanced students and active researchers.

The Routledge Handbook of Syntax

Edited by Andrew Carnie, University of Arizona, USA, Dan Siddiqi, Carleton University, Canada and Yosuke Sato, National University of Singapore

Series: Routledge Handbooks in Linguistics

The study of syntax over the last half century has seen a remarkable expansion of the boundaries of human knowledge about the structure of natural language. The Routledge Handbook of Syntax presents a comprehensive survey of the major theoretical and empirical advances in the dynamically evolving field of syntax from a variety of perspectives, both within the dominant generative paradigm and between syntacticians working within generative grammar and those working in functionalist and related approaches. Providing a balanced yet comprehensive overview of the field, The Routledge Handbook of Syntax is essential reading for researchers and postgraduate students working in syntactic theory.

The Routledge Handbook to the Ghost Story

Edited by Scott Brewster, University of Lincoln, UK and Luke Thurston, Aberystwyth University, UK

Series: Routledge Literature Handbooks

The Handbook to the Ghost Story sets surveys and extends a new field of criticism which has been taking shape in recent years, centering on the ghost story and bringing together a vast range of interpretive methods and theoretical perspectives. The main task of the volume is to situate the genre within historical and contemporary literary cultures across the globe, and to explore its significance within wider literary contexts as well as those of the supernatural. The Handbook offers a significant contribution to this new critical field to date, assembling some of its leading scholars to examine the key contexts and issues in understanding the emergence and development of the ghost story.

The Routledge Handbook of Digital Writing and Rhetoric

Edited by Jonathan Alexander, University of California Irvine, USA and Jacqueline Rhodes, California State University San Bernardino, USA

Series: Routledge Handbooks in Communication Studies

This companion brings together scholars from around the globe who contribute to our understanding of digital rhetoric changing the written landscape. Increasingly, all of us must navigate networks of information, and understand the changing dynamics of authoring, writing, reading, and publishing in a world of rich and complex texts. Given such changes, we need to consider how the very act of writing itself is undergoing potentially fundamental changes. These changes are increasingly being addressed by the emerging field of digital rhetoric, which attempts to understand the rhetorical possibilities and affordances of writing, broadly defined, in a wide array of digital environments.

The Routledge Handbook of Positive Communication

Edited by José Antonio Muñoz Velázquez, Loyola Andalucía University, Spain and Cristina Pulido, University of Barcelona, Spain

The Routledge Handbook of Positive Communication forms a comprehensive reference point for cross-disciplinary approaches to understanding the central role of communication in the construction of hedonic and eudemonic happiness, or subjective and psychological well-being. Including contributions from internationally recognized authors in their respective fields, this reference uses as its focus five main scenarios where communication affects the life of individuals: mass and digital media, advertising and marketing communication, external and internal communication in companies and organizations, communication in education, and communication in daily life interactions.

The Routledge Handbook to Museum Communication

Edited by Kirsten Drotner, University of Southern Denmark, Denmark, Vincent Dziekan, Ross Parry and Kim Christian Schrøder, Roskilde University, Denmark

Series: Routledge Companions

The Routledge Companion to Museum Communication reframes mediated museum communication as a resource for an inclusive understanding of current museum developments. Bringing together diverse strands within a single volume, chapters explore processes of communication that are shaped and shared through the application of technologies such as print, radio, film, mobiles, computers and the internet. This inclusive aim highlights the importance of mediated communication for the very notion of museums and the practices of communication in relation to museum work and stresses the huge intellectual, educational and practical benefits to be obtained from approaching the diversity of research strands within museum studies from the perspective of mediated communication.

Routledge Handbook of Middle East Minorities

Edited by Paul S Rowe

This Handbook gathers a diverse team of international scholars, each of whom provides their unique expertise into the status and prospects of minority populations in the region. Since the Arab Spring, the status of these populations has assumed centre stage. The overturn of various long-term autocratic governments in states such as Tunisia, Egypt, Libya, and Yemen, and the ongoing threat to government stability in Syria, Iraq, and Lebanon have all contributed to a new assertion of majoritarian politics amid demands for democratization and regime change. In the midst of the dramatic changes and latent armed conflict, minority populations have been targeted, marginalized, and victimized.

The Routledge Handbook of Consciousness

Edited by Rocco J. Gennaro, University of Southern Indiana, USA

Series: Routledge Handbooks in Philosophy

There has been an explosion of work on consciousness in the last thirty to forty years from philosophers, psychologists, and neurologists. Thus, there is a need for an interdisciplinary, comprehensive volume in the field that brings together contributions from a wide range of experts on fundamental and cutting-edge topics. The Routledge Handbook of Consciousness fills this need and makes each chapter's importance understandable to students and researchers from a variety of backgrounds. Designed to complement and better explain primary sources, this volume is a valuable "first-stop" publication for undergraduate or graduate students enrolled in any course on "Consciousness," "Philosophy of Mind," or "Philosophy of Psychology," as well as a valuable handbook for researchers in these fields who want a useful reference close at hand.

The Routledge Handbook of the Philosophy of Evil

Edited by Thomas Nys, University of Amsterdam, The Netherlands

Series: Routledge Handbooks in Philosophy

Ever since the 9-11 terrorist attacks and George W. Bush's usage of the term 'Axis of Evil', the topic of evil has returned to the intellectual agenda with an increased momentum. The concept of 'evil' is relevant to the moral and political climate of society today with people confronted by what constitutes 'evil' in the world around them. Philosophy has tried to come to terms with the prevalence of evil, its nature, and its remedies throughout history and there is the need for a handbook that not only seeks to provide a philosophical overview of this hot topic but also an in-depth discussion of the most important positions in this long-standing debate.

Routledge Handbook of Critical International Relations

Edited by Jenny Edkins, University of Aberystwyth, UK

Critical international relations is both firmly established and rapidly expanding. This Handbook offers a wide-ranging survey of contemporary research in critical international politics spanning feminism, poststructuralism, interpretative approaches, postcolonialism, psychoanalysis, and aesthetics. An international group of expert scholars provide chapters designed to facilitate teaching at advanced undergraduate and postgraduate level, inspire new generations of researchers in the field, and promote collaboration, cross-fertilisation and inspiration across sub-fields often treated separately, such as feminism, postcolonialism and poststructuralism.

Routledge Handbook of Judicial Behavior

Edited by Robert M. Howard, Georgia State University, USA and Kirk A. Randazzo, University of South Carolina, USA.

Interest in social science and empirical analyses of law, courts and specifically the politics of judges has never been higher or more salient. Consequently, there is a strong need for theoretical work on the research that focuses on courts, judges and the judicial process. The Routledge Handbook of Judicial Behavior provides the most up to date examination of scholarship across the entire spectrum of judicial politics and behavior, written by a combination of currently prominent scholars and the emergent next generation of researchers. Unlike almost all other volumes, this Handbook examines judicial behavior from both an American and Comparative perspective.

Routledge Handbook of Postcolonial Politics

Edited by Olivia U. Rutazibwa, University of Portsmouth, UK and Robbie Shilliam, Queen Mary University of London, UK.

This Handbook will provide a solid reference point for understanding and analysing global politics from a perspective sensitive to the multiple legacies of colonialism and colonial rule. It will introduce and develop cutting-edge analytical frameworks that extend but also problematize the postcolonial critique. Alongside empirical issue areas, the book will introduce new issue areas wherein the mutating structures of colonial rule are no longer enacted solely or directly by European or Western agents. Providing a consolidated understanding of the field as it is, and setting an expansive and dynamic research agenda for the future, it is essential reading for students and scholars.

Routledge Handbook of Primary Elections

Edited by Robert G. Boatright, Clark University, USA

Primaries are often criticized for increasing the cost of elections, for producing ideologically extreme candidates, and for denying voters the opportunity to choose candidates whose appeal transcends partisanship. This innovative Handbook evaluates many of the claims, positive and negative, that have been made about primaries. It is organized into six sections. The Routledge Handbook of Primary Elections is an important research tool for scholars, a resource guide for students, and a source of ideas for those who seek to modify the electoral process.

The Routledge Handbook to Referendums and Direct Democracy

Edited by Laurence Morel, University of Lille and Matt Qvortrup, Professor, Coventry University

Over the last 30 years referendums have played an increasingly vital role in determining government policy. Recent high profile referendums in Scotland, Catalonia and Ukraine have continued the movement towards independence referendums following decolonization and the end of the Cold War. The Greek Bailout referendum and Britain's vote on membership of the EU reflect a tradition of European states giving their people a direct say in the transfer of sovereign powers to the EU. This Routledge Handbook covers key aspects and issues of direct democracy and referendums throughout the world and acts as an indispensable guide to referendums and the workings of modern democracy.

The Routledge Handbook to the Governance of Migration and Diversity in Cities

Edited by Tiziana Caponio, University of Turin, Italy, Peter Scholten, Erasmus University, Rotterdam and Ricard Zapata-Barrero, University of Pompeu Fabra, Barcelona

The Routledge Handbook to the Governance of Migration and Diversity in Cities focuses on the ways migration and diversity have transformed cities, and how cities have responded to the challenges and opportunities offered. While grounded in the European debate on 'the local turn' in the study of migration policy, as opposed to the more traditional focus on the nation-state, this handbook brings together contributions from North America, South America, Asia and the Middle East and contributors from various disciplinary perspectives, including politics, governance, urban studies and geography and sociology.

Edited by Andrea Press and Tasha Oren, University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee, USA

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

The Routledge Handbook of Contemporary Feminism examines the strange confluence between academic feminism, and feminism's other life as a concrete, global political movement. Over 50 original essays address the sociopolitical and the interdisciplinary academic dimensions of contemporary feminism, pointing to new ways its various components can be thought of in collaboration and co-dependence. The Handbook provides an innovative set of categories that cross-cut traditional modes of organizing, thinking and writing about feminist theory and activism: modes of knowledge and disciplinaryity; modes of experience; feminist codes and tools; mediation and entertainment.

The Routledge Handbook of Social Care Work Around the World

Karen Christensen, Kings College London, UK and Doria Pilling, City University London, UK

The Routledge Handbook of Social Care Work Around the World provides both a comprehensive and authoritative state of the art review of the current research in this subject. Each of the 22 specially commissioned chapters develops and summarises key issues and debates around care work in a specific country. They look at perspectives of care work from the macro level- the structural conditions for long-term care, including demographic challenges and the long-term care policy, the meso level- the level of provider organizations and intermediaries, and the micro level- views of care workers, as well as their managers, care users, and unpaid informal carers.

Routledge Handbook of Global Sport

Edited by John Nauright, University of Brighton, UK and Sarah Zipp, University of Stirling, UK

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

The story of global sport is the story of expansion from local development to globalised industry, from recreational to marketised activity. Alongside that, each sport has its own distinctive history, sub-cultures, practices and structures. This ambitious new volume offers state-of-the-art overviews of the development of every major sport or classification of sport, introducing their history, socio-cultural significance, political economy, and suggesting directions for future research. By putting sport itself in the foreground, this book represents the ideal companion to any social scientific course in sport studies, and the perfect jumping-off point for further study or research.

Routledge Handbook of Halal Hospitality and Islamic Tourism

Edited by C. Michael Hall, University of Canterbury, New Zealand and Girish Prayag Islamic tourism has become a major market targeted by Muslim and non-Muslim majority countries alike. This handbook provides a greater understanding of Islamic tourism and halal hospitality in the context of businesses, communities, destinations and the wider socio-political context. The book emphasises that the market is not monolithic and not only outlines the significant differences between countries with respect to regulating and commodifying halal measures, but also the different demands within the market. The book therefore sheds light on one of the most important international travel markets in the world and the role of religion in contemporary hospitality and tourism.

The Routledge Companion on Architecture, Literature and The City

Jonathan Charley

Fully illustrated, this book opens up a creative dialogue between image and text and explores how visual and textual narratives can be creatively combined. Each chapter maps out territories and weaves narratives that connect general historical and political themes with discussions of literary genres, building and spatial typologies. The book illustrates not only how literary works often feature detailed representations of buildings and cities, but how the architectural and space-time dimensions of a literary work are utterly indispensable to its narrative, and how certain novels can be read as de facto alternative urban histories.

The Routledge Companion to Global Business

Edited by Teresa da Silva Lopes, Christina Lubinski and Heidi J.S. Tworek

Series: Routledge Companions in Business, Management and Accounting

Research on global business and international entrepreneurship has flourished, but significant gaps remain in our understanding of its evolution and the many and varied institutions that comprise the field. This comprehensive volume provides the definitive reference work to understand the full spectrum of current scholarship on this topic.

Chapters analyse the emergence of institutions and actors alongside key contextual factors for global business development. In treating modern global business as a key actor in globalization, contributors explore the makers of the disciplines, covering types of entrepreneurs, organizational forms and key industrial sectors.

The Routledge Companion to Management Buyouts

Edited by Mike Wright, Imperial College London, UK, Kevin Amess, University of Nottingham, UK, Nick Bacon, City University London, UK and Donald Siegel, University at Albany, State University of New York, USA

This comprehensive reference book provides a unique source of reference to scholars on the current state of research and future developments on management buyouts. Although recent attention has focused on private equity (PE) backed buyouts, these are only a subset of the total MBO market. This book takes a broader definition, incorporating PE and non-PE backed buyouts, as well as management buy-ins and management-employee buyouts. Going beyond the purely financial perspective, it explores the links to strategy, organizational change, and HRM and will be the "go to" reference source for scholars of MBOS as well as the broader areas of corporate restructuring and ownership change.

Routledge Companion to Women, Sex, and Gender in the Early British Colonial World

Edited by Kimberley Anne Coles and Eve Keller

Over the past three decades women's and gender studies have evolved into disciplines that have energized and transformed the study of the early modern period. But the study of women and gender is not the same. As a discipline, feminism begins with the assumption that the sexed body changes the interaction of the subject in political space, regardless of other considerations of subject position. How these other social categories inflect the position of woman as a social actor and political subject does in many ways define the discipline of feminist inquiry, but the sex of the body, irrespective of gender identification, has always informed feminist analysis, which concerns primarily the political uses to which the body is put: in its labor; its social position; its religious identity; its cultural participation. Gender studies, by contrast, typically elides biological sex, inquiring into how gender identity and identification crucially alter social and political engagement.

The Routledge Companion to Transnational American Studies

Edited by Nina Morgan, Alfred Hornung and Takayuki Tatsumi

Series: Routledge Literature Companions

The Routledge Companion to Transnational American Studies provides an introduction and overview to the recent transnational turn in American Studies. Divided into 10 parts and including over 35 essays the handbook covers the following essential topics: foundations; remapping geographies; transnational spaces; identities; visual culture; ecocriticism and theory. Some of the essays follow traditional structures of comparison while others are more challenging in terms of questioning the assumptions in the field. Therefore, while the collection seeks to provide foundational resources, it also allows for more experimental and forward-leaning approaches to Transnational American Studies.

Routledge Companion to American Literary Journalism

Edited by William E. Dow, American University of Paris, France and Roberta Maguire, University of Wisconsin - Oshkosh, USA

Series: Routledge Media and Cultural Studies Companions

From the work of Frederick Douglass and Walt Whitman to that of Joan Didion and Dorothy Parker, literary journalism is a genre that both reveals and shapes American history and identity. Taking a thematic approach, this new companion provides an interdisciplinary, cross-cultural, and international study of American literary journalism, engaging with the work of disciplines such as Sociology, Anthropology, African American Studies, Gender Studies, Visual Studies, Media Studies, and American Studies, in addition to Journalism and Literary Studies. The volume not only calls attention to literary journalism as a distinctive genre but also provides a critical foundation for future scholarship.

NEW IN PAPERBACK

The Routledge Companion to British Media History

Edited by Martin Conboy, University of Sheffield, UK and John Steel, University of Sheffield, UK

Series: Routledge Media and Cultural Studies Companions

This Companion explores the historical development of various media formats and traditions, reflecting how different media have evolved within social, regional and national contexts. The book is comprised of three thematic chapters reflecting broadly on historiography, providing historical context for discussions of the power of the media and their social importance, five separate sections focused on different media formats and a final chapter, which explores various approaches to historicizing media futures. This will be an invaluable reference tool for researchers and students of media, journalism and communication studies.

The Routledge Companion to Media Fandom

Edited by Melissa A. Click and Suzanne Scott, University of Texas, Austin, USA

Series: Routledge Media and Cultural Studies Companions

Media fandom is the focus of this new companion, which brings together an international and interdisciplinary group of contributors to reflect on the state of fan studies and to point to new research directions. Touching on a diversity of media texts and formats and incorporating a variety of methodologies, the collection is organized into six main sections: methods and ethics, technologies and practices, identities, transcultural fandom, industry, and futures. Although the field of fan studies has seen exponential growth in recent years, there is no collection that comprehensively engages and defines the contours of the field—this collection will fill that gap.

The Routledge Companion to Media Technology and Obsolescence

Edited by Mark J.P. Wolf, Concordia University Wisconsin, USA

Series: Routledge Media and Cultural Studies Companions

While so many books on technology look at new advances and digital technologies, the Routledge Companion to Obsolete and Vanishing Media Technology looks back at analog technologies that are disappearing, considering their demise and what it says about media history, pop culture, and the nature of nostalgia. From card catalogs and typewriters to stock tickers and cathode ray tubes, contributors examine the legacy of analog technologies, including those, like vinyl records, that may be experiencing a resurgence. Each essay includes a brief history of the technology leading up to its peak, an analysis of the reasons for its decline, and a discussion of its influence on newer technologies.

The Routledge Companion to New Cinema History

Edited by Daniel Biltereyst, Richard Maltby, Flinders University, Australia and Philippe Meers, Antwerp Universiteit, Belgium

Series: Routledge Media and Cultural Studies Companions

The Routledge Companion to New Cinema History is conceived as a showcase of, as well as a reflection upon, recently emerging trends in investigating the history of cinema as a significant social and cultural institution. In its assessment of the wider historical conditions of the cinematic experience, the Companion argues that, alongside the study of film production, distribution and exhibition, a more serious understanding and specific research on film exhibition and reception are required. It brings together newly written essays by leading scholars from around the world addressing some of the most urgent theoretical and methodological issues for researching and studying film history.

The Routledge Companion to Photography and Visual Culture

Edited by Moritz Neumüller

Series: Routledge Art History and Visual Studies Companions

The Routledge Companion to Photography and Visual Culture is a seminal reference source for the ever-changing field of photography. Comprising an impressive range of essays written by experts and scholars from across the globe, this book examines the medium's history, its central issues and emerging trends, and its much-discussed future. The essays explore the current debates surrounding the photograph as object, art, document, propaganda, truth, selling tool, and universal language; the perception of photography archives as burdens, rather than treasures; the continual technological development reshaping the field; photography as a tool of representation and control, and more.

The Routledge Companion to Popular Music Analysis

Expanding Approaches

Edited by Ciro Scotto, Ohio University, USA, Kenneth M. Smith, University of Liverpool, UK and John Brackett, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, USA

The Routledge Companion to Popular Music Analysis: Expanding Approaches attempts to widen the scope of analytical approaches for popular music by incorporating methods developed for analyzing contemporary art music. Based on the premise that popular and classical music is structured within the common practice tonal language, this study endeavors to create a new analytical paradigm for examining popular music from the perspective of developments in contemporary art music. These essays investigate a variety of analytical, theoretical, historical, and aesthetic commonalities popular music shares with 20th and 21st century art music within a time frame that extends from the 1930s to present day.

Edited by Sarah Baker, Griffith University, Australia, Catherine Strong, RMIT University, Australia, Lauren Istvandy, Griffith University, Australia and Zelmarie Cantillon

Series: Routledge Media and Cultural Studies Companions

The Routledge Companion to Popular Music History and Heritage examines the social, cultural, political and economic value of popular music as history and heritage. The focus of the collection is on the relationship between popular music and the past, exploring how the changing nature of the past in post-industrial societies plays out in the field of popular music, for example through an increased emphasis on nostalgia, old music and old formats. It also examines questions of representation, inclusion and the way that power relations in broader society influence our understanding of the past.

The Routledge Companion to the Study of Local Musicking

Edited by Suzel A. Reily, Universidade Estadual de Campinas, Brazil and Katherine Brucher, DePaul University, USA

Series: Routledge Companions

The Routledge Companion to the Study of Local Musicking provides a reference to HOW, cross-culturally, musicking constructs locality and how it is constructed by the musicking that takes place within it – how people engage ideas of community and place through music. This book highlights the ways in which musical practices and discourses interact with people's everyday experiences and understandings of their immediate environment, their connections and commitment to that locality, and the people within it. By viewing musicking from the perspective of where it takes place, the contributions engage with debates on the processes of musicking, identity construction, community-building and network formation, local-global dynamics among other themes.

The Routledge Companion to Bioethics

Edited by John D. Arras, University of Virginia, Elizabeth Fenton, University of Virginia, USA and Rebecca Kukla, University of South Florida

Series: Routledge Philosophy Companions

The Routledge Companion to Bioethics is a comprehensive guide to contemporary concerns in bioethics. The volume orients the reader in a changing landscape shaped by globalization, health disparities, and rapidly advancing technologies. Bioethics has begun a turn toward a systematic concern with social justice, population health, and public policy. This volume's 44 commissioned chapters, authored by leading researchers in the field, capture this shift and foreshadow the resulting developments in bioethics, highlighting emerging issues such as climate change, transgender, and medical tourism, and reexamining enduring topics, such as autonomy, end-of-life care, and resource allocation.

Edited by Aaron Garrett, Boston University, USA

Series: Routledge Philosophy Companions

The Routledge Companion to Eighteenth Century Philosophy is an authoritative survey and assessment of this momentous period. It is divided into six parts: Context; Metaphysics and Religion; Mind, Knowledge and Feelings; Morals, Politics and Aesthetics; Philosophy and the Arts and Sciences; and Major figures and Movements.

A strong line up of international contributors provide students of philosophy and related disciplines with an outstanding and accessible guide to one of the most important periods in the history of philosophy. Additional features include annotated further reading at the end of each chapter, glossary and biographical entries on the most important philosophers.

The Routledge Companion to Environmental Ethics

Edited by Benjamin Hale and Andrew Light

Series: Routledge Philosophy Companions

The Routledge Companion to Environmental Ethics is comprised of sixty original essays, which focus on how ethical questions intersect with real and pressing policy issues. Rather than over-viewing abstract conceptual categories, the authors focus on specific controversies involving the environment. Clearly written contributions on Fossil Fuels, Urban Sustainability, Novel Ecosystems, and many other subjects make accessible these issues' empirical and political dimensions as well as their theoretical underpinnings. Written to be accessible for undergraduates and general readers, but comprehensive enough to be a useful reference work for researchers in a variety of related fields, it promises to be an invaluable resource for better understanding the ethical landscape of our environmental world.

The Routledge Companion to Hermeneutics

Edited by Jeff Malpas and Hans-Helmuth Gander, Albert-Ludwigs-Universität Freiburg, Germany

Series: Routledge Philosophy Companions

Hermeneutics is a major form of intellectual enquiry, central to disciplines in the humanities and social sciences. It is also one of the twentieth century's most important philosophical movements, and includes major thinkers such as Heidegger, Gadamer and Ricoeur.

Comprising fifty-five chapters by international contributors, this Companion is an outstanding guide and reference source to the key philosophers, topics and themes in this exciting subject and is the first volume of its kind.

The Routledge Companion to Islamic Philosophy

Edited by Richard C. Taylor, Marquette University, USA and Luis Xavier López-Farjeat, Universidad Panamericana, Mexico

Series: Routledge Philosophy Companions

Recent publications focused on Arabic/Islamic philosophy have traditionally considered this under the history of ideas and Oriental or Islamic studies. There is a need for a comprehensive collection of essays that treats Islamic philosophy as philosophy, and not merely as a conduit of intellectual history for delivering ideas from the ancient Greeks to medieval Christians. With this aim, The Routledge Companion to Islamic Philosophy is conceived as a well-structured and wide-ranging thematic approach, accessible for a broad spectrum of readers, from students to scholars interested in Islamic thought, philosophy, theology, and religious studies.

The Routledge Companion to Medieval Philosophy

Edited by JT Paasch and Richard Cross, University of Notre Dame, USA

Series: Routledge Philosophy Companions

The Routledge Companion to Medieval Philosophy provides outstanding coverage of this period. With over fifty contributions by leading scholars, the companion examines the central themes and concepts in: Language and Logic, Metaphysics, Cosmology and Physics, Philosophy of Mind and Cognitive Psychology, Ethics and Moral Psychology, Political Philosophy, and Philosophical Theology. With its emphasis on clear and accessible language and its coverage of the variations in basic concepts and theories in medieval scholasticism, The Routledge Companion to Medieval Philosophy is the first point of reference for beginning and expert researchers alike.

The Routledge Companion to Shakespeare and Philosophy

Edited by Craig Bourne and Emily Caddick Bourne, University of Cambridge, UK

Series: Routledge Philosophy Companions

It is widely acknowledged that Shakespeare's work poses major philosophical questions. The Routledge Companion to Shakespeare and Philosophy is the first major collection of its kind and examines the following important topics;

The metaphysics of Shakespeare's worlds in his major plays, Shakespeare's views on perception, knowledge and scepticism, particularly in play such as Hamlet and The Merchant of Venice, Issues of trust, deception, testimony and epistemic responsibility in Shakespeare's plays, Themes of equality, justice and virtue in Shakespeare's plays, The extent to which Shakespeare's work is motivated by Platonistic, Aristotelian, and Epicurean philosophy.

The Routledge Companion to the Philosophy of Race

Edited by Paul C Taylor, Linda Martin Alcoff and Luvelt Anderson

Series: Routledge Philosophy Companions

The Routledge Companion to Philosophy of Race offers a comprehensive collection of 50 new articles written by leading scholars on the history of philosophy and race, and on how race might be investigated in the usual frameworks of contemporary philosophy. The volume concludes with a section on philosophical approaches to some topics with broad interest outside of philosophy, like Affirmative Action, Race and Disability, and Post-Racialism. By clearly explaining and carefully organizing the leading philosophical thinking on race, this timely work will help define the subject and bring renewed understanding of race to students and researchers in the humanities, social science, and sciences.

The Routledge Companion to Virtue Ethics

Edited by Lorraine L Besser, Middlebury College, USA and Michael Slote, University of Miami, USA

Series: Routledge Philosophy Companions

Most work in virtue ethics and most anthologies devoted to virtue ethics focus mainly on ancient Western philosophy and its influence on contemporary thought. This volume sees the history and contemporary relevance of virtue ethics more broadly. Unlike other recent compendium volumes, it offers, in addition to thorough discussion of the ancient Western tradition and its contemporary influence, quite a few articles on virtue ethics in ancient and contemporary Eastern philosophy and in the ancient and continuing traditions of religious thought. These discussions, plus a section devoted to the applications of virtue ethics, makes it a comprehensive treatment of all aspects of virtue ethics.

The Routledge Companion to Theatre of the Oppressed

Edited by JULIAN BOAL, Kelly Howe and Jose Soeiro

This is the first fully comprehensive companion to past and current theory and practice of Theatre of the Oppressed (TO), theatrical forms created by Brazilian theorist and director Augusto Boal. The practice and scholarship of TO has proliferated around the world and is engaged by practitioners, scholars, students, and activists alike. The Routledge Companion to Theatre of the Oppressed is essential reading for anyone interested in performance, applied theatre, activism, and cultural politics.

The Routledge Companion to Adaptation

Edited by Dennis Cutchins, Katja Krebs and Eckart Voigts

The Routledge Companion to Adaptation offers a wide-ranging perspective on current scholarship in the area of adaptation. While providing a basis in source oriented studies such as novel-to-stage and stage-to-film adaptations, it also brings to the fore the new and innovative elements currently being witnessed in this field. An emphasis on adaptation as a form of practice seeks to establish methods of investigating the topic that go beyond a purely comparative, case study model. Divided into five sections – Geography, Historiography, Identity, Technology and Reception – this is an essential resource that maps the field of adaptation across genres and disciplines.

The Routledge Companion to Digital Humanities in Theatre and Performance

Edited by Nic Leonhardt

Digital Humanities has emerged in recent years as a new paradigm within theatre and performance studies. This is the first volume to compile scholarly and best practice knowledge from around the globe, and to address both the history and future of this new field. Contributors examine a range of projects documenting, reconstructing and visualizing theatre and performance practices both past and present; discuss a new methodology for theatre scholarship, and for archiving and preserving works; and consider the impact of the Digital Humanities on higher education in theatre and performance studies.

The Routledge Companion to Scenography

Edited by Arnold Aronson

The Routledge Companion to Scenography is the largest and most comprehensive collection of original essays to survey the historical, conceptual, critical and theoretical aspects of this increasingly important aspect of theatre and performance studies.

Editor and leading scholar Arnold Aronson brings together a uniquely valuable anthology of texts especially commissioned from across the discipline of theatre and performance studies.

Establishing a stable terminology for a deeply contested term for the first time, this volume looks at scenography as the totality of all the visual, spatial, and sensory aspects of performance.

The Routledge Companion to Stanislavsky

Edited by R. Andrew White, Valparaiso University, USA

2013 saw the 150th anniversary of Stanislavsky's birth, along with the first major international celebrations and symposia to focus on his work and legacy since the mid-1970s. To coincide with this important occasion, The Routledge Companion to Stanislavsky brings together a dazzling selection of original scholarship to offer the first overview of the field for the 21st century. Contributors include:

Anatoly Smeliansky, Sharon Carnicke, Katya Kamotskaia, W.B. Worthen, Maria Ignatieva and Austin Pendleton.
