The Routledge Handbook of Historical Archaeology
Edited by Charles E. Orser, Jr., Vanderbilt University, USA, Susan Lawrence, James Symonds and ANDRES ZARANKIN

The Routledge Handbook of Global Historical Archaeology is designed to offer readers an up-to-date introduction to the rapidly growing, worldwide field of historical archaeology. Whereas the field was once restricted to the United States (largely as an anthropological pursuit) and Great Britain (generally as a historical endeavor called ‘post-medieval archaeology’), today’s historical archaeologists live and conduct important research in places only dreamt of twenty years ago. Given the ever-developing nature of the discipline, the contributors to this handbook will concentrate most of their discussions on archaeological achievements made since about 2006.

The Routledge Handbook of Sensory Archaeology
Edited by Robin Skeates, University of Durham, UK and Jo Day

The Routledge Handbook of Sensory Archaeology consolidates the developing field of ‘sensory archaeology’, summanizing and critically reflecting upon progress made in this field during the early years of the twenty-first century. Looking to the future of this growing area, the volume moves beyond reflection on sensory archaeology to highlight how it is challenging and transforming mainstream archaeology by exploring a wide variety of thought-provoking research questions and innovative methodologies for disseminating results. Providing a platform for further research and study, no other book offers such a broad look at this important topic.

Routledge Handbook of Food in Asia
Edited by Cecilia Leong-Salobir
Throwing new light on how colonisation and globalization have affected the food practices of different communities in Asia, the Routledge Handbook of Food in Asia explores the changes and variations in the region’s dishes, meals and ways of eating. By illustrating the different methodologies and theoretical approaches employed by scholars, the contributions discuss everyday food practices in the Asian home and provide a fascinating coverage of less common phenomenon, such as the practice of wood eating and the evolution of pufferfish eating in Japan.

Routledge Handbook of Indigenous Wellbeing

Edited by Christopher Fleming, Griffith University, Australia and Matthew Manning, The Australian National University, Australia

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

The Routledge Handbook of Indigenous Wellbeing consists of 5 themes, namely, physical, social and emotional, economic, cultural and spiritual, and subjective wellbeing. It fills a substantial gap in the current literature on the wellbeing of indigenous people and communities around the world. This handbook sheds new light on understanding indigenous wellbeing and its determinants, and aids in the development and implementation of more appropriate policies, as better evidence-informed policy making will lead to better outcomes for indigenous populations.

Routledge Handbook of the Belt and Road

Edited by Cai Fang, Chinese Academy of Social Sciences, China and Peter Nolan

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

Chinese President Xi Jinping announced “Belt and Road Initiative” (BRI) in 2013, a development strategy involving infrastructure development and investments in countries in Europe, Asia and Africa. As one of the most frequently mentioned concepts in the official media, the influence is huge, and controversy is not unexpected. This is an initial review of the theory and practice of BRI, and is the first handbook of its kind. A total of 117 entries related to the BRI have been included, aiming to reflect the original intentions, history and current situation, basic knowledge and latest studies. It is an essential guide for researchers and practitioners involved in the BRI construction.

Routledge Handbook of Ecocriticism and Environmental Communication

Edited by Scott Slovic, Swarnalatha Rangarajan and Vidya Sarveswaran

Ecocriticism and environmental communication studies have for many years co-existed as parallel disciplines, occasionally crossing paths but typically operating in separate academic spheres. These fields are now rapidly converging, and this handbook aims to reinforce the common concerns and methodologies of the sibling disciplines. It will be an essential reference for teachers, students, and practitioners of environmental literature, film, journalism, communication, and rhetoric and well as the broader meta-discipline of environmental humanities.

Routledge Handbook of Islamic Law

Edited by Khaled Abou El Fadl, University of California Los Angeles (UCLA), USA and Ahmad Atif Ahmad

This book is a detailed reference source comprising of original articles covering the origins, theory and practice of Islamic law. Previous publications on this topic have approached Islamic law from practically every disciplinary and pedagogical perspective except that of the study of law. The real challenge is that there are a number of historical and doctrinal aspects of Islamic jurisprudence that cannot be properly evaluated unless the functions and processes of legal cultures and the patterns of legal thought are also taken into account. This book is an essential resource for students, scholars and readers who are interested in the field of Islamic law.

The Routledge Handbook of the Philosophy of Evil
Edited by Thomas Nys, University of Amsterdam, The Netherlands and Stephen De Wijze
Series: Routledge Handbooks in Philosophy
Evil is an elusive and politically charged concept which critics argue has no explanatory power and is a relic of a superstitious and primitive religious past, yet its widespread use persists today. This Handbook brings together an international team of scholars working on the concept of evil. Its twenty-seven chapters cover the crucial arguments, both historical and contemporary, that are needed to properly understand the historical development and complexity of the concept of evil.

The Routledge Handbook of Trust and Philosophy

Edited by Judith Simon

Series: Routledge Handbooks in Philosophy

Trust is pervasive in our lives, from our simplest to our most complex actions. Yet, only in the last few decades has trust started to receive focused attention from philosophers. The Routledge Handbook of Trust and Philosophy brings together XX never before published essays, accessible for both students and researchers, created to cover the most salient topics in the various theories of trust. It is divided into four sections: (1) foundational and conceptual issues; (2) when is trust warranted?; (3) the epistemology of trust; (4) trust, science, and technology. Each section has a short introduction, and each chapter includes a bibliography and cross-references to other entries.

The Routledge Handbook of Contemporary Feminism

Edited by Tasha Oren and Andrea Press

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

What is feminism now? How do scholars and activists employ contemporary feminism? What feminist traditions endure? In this interdisciplinary collection, scholars reflect on how contemporary feminism has shaped their thinking and their field as they interrogate its uses, limits, and reinventions. Organized as a set of questions over definition, everyday life, critical intervention and political activism, the Handbook takes on a broad set of issues and points of view to consider what feminism is today and what current forces shape its future development. It also includes an extended conversation among major feminist thinkers about the future of feminist scholarship and activism.

Series: Routledge Companions
The Routledge Companion to Theatre and Politics is a volume of critical essays, provocations, and interventions on the most important questions faced by today’s writers, critics, audiences, theatre and performance makers. Featuring texts written by scholars and artists who are diversely situated, its multiple perspectives broadly address the question “How can we be political now?” Suitable for academics, performance makers, and students, this Companion explores questions of how to be political in the early twenty-first century, by exploring how theatre and performance might provoke, unsettle, reinforce, or productively destabilise the status quo.

The Routledge Companion to Theatre of the Oppressed
Edited by Kelly Howe, Julian Boal and José Soeiro
Series: Routledge Companions
This dynamic book offers a comprehensive companion to the theory and practice of Theatre of the Oppressed. Developed by Brazilian director and theorist Augusto Boal, these theatrical forms invite people to mobilize their knowledge and rehearse struggles against oppression. Featuring a diverse array of voices (many of them as yet unheard in the academic world), the book hosts dialogues on the creation of Theatre of the Oppressed, how it evolved and spread, and where it fits in today’s world. Broad in scope yet rich in detail, The Routledge Companion to Theatre of the Oppressed contains practical and critical content relevant to artists, activists, teachers, students, and researchers.
