Financial Regulation in China

Edited by Jing Bian, School of African and Oriental Studies, University of London, UK

Series: Critical Concepts in Finance

China's financial system and its legal reform have drawn a great deal of attention from around the world. This fast development is motivated by political, social, and economic factors. In addition, the continuing calls for establishing economic justice have contributed to further reforms of this system. Nevertheless, despite these rapid developments, the challenges and constraints are many; eg, the mismatch between the legal framework and financial development, inefficiency of the legal regime, difficulties in enforcing the law, and financial crimes. This collection uncovers the motivation, strength and strategy of these reforms, and examines their real impact in China.

Routledge Library Editions: South Africa

Various Authors

Series: Routledge Library Editions: South Africa

Originally published between 1931 and 1994 these books cover the turbulent racial history and politics of South Africa as well as economic and social aspects. Their authors include one of the premier historians of British imperial policy and African history, as well as many who were active in the political fight to end the apartheid system, some of whom were imprisoned or exiled for their beliefs. The volumes discuss the complexities of the relationships between peoples of different racial origins and the widely differing economic and cultural standards within one country – inequalities which continue to exist today.

Edited by Monica Wilson and Leonard Thompson

Series: Routledge Library Editions: South Africa

Originally published in 1982 and based on the 1969 Oxford History of South Africa, this book discusses some of the trends in the historiography of South Africa before the beginning of large-scale mining operations in Kimberley in 1870. A deliberate attempt was made to look at the roots of South African society and to take due account of all its peoples.

John Selby

Series: Routledge Library Editions: South Africa

Originally published in 1973, this book begins with the arrival of the Europeans in South Africa. It examines the part played by the Dutch, British and Afrikaners, as well as the diverse ethnic groups including the Xhosa and Zulus. The complicated period of the Difqane or 'Forced Migrations' is clearly discussed as is the genesis and evolution of Apartheid. Other major events which are discussed include the advent of the 1820 Settlers, the Great Trek, the discovery of diamonds, the Jameson Raid, the occupation of land which became Zimbabwe, the Anglo-Boer Wars and the two World Wars.

A Documentary Study of Modern South Africa

Edgar H. Brookes

Series: Routledge Library Editions: South Africa

Originally published in 1968, this volume traces the history and growth of Apartheid in South Africa. The acts which enforced Apartheid – the Group Areas Act, Population and Registration Act are given in full. The book also includes documents which reflected reaction to these measures: Parliamentary debates, newspaper reports and policy statements by the leading political parties and religious denominations. The documents are headed by a full historical and analytical introduction.

Economics and Politics of Dependence in a South African Homeland

Edited by Nancy Charton

Series: Routledge Library Editions: South Africa

Originally published in 1980, this book examines the 'self-government' constitution, administrative and party system of The Ciskei which was one of the black 'homelands' created by the government of the Republic of South Africa in its pursuit of 'separate development'. (It has since been reintegrated into South Africa, becoming part of the Eastern Cape Province). The book discusses how, because poverty was endemic and agricultural resources poorly developed the region was dependent on the encapsulating white area for jobs, capital, entrepreneurial skills and markets.

A Study of Class Relations and Racial Discrimination in South Africa

Frederick A Johnstone

Series: Routledge Library Editions: South Africa

Originally published in 1976, this book is a sociological and historical study of class and race relations in a crucial sector of South Africa – the gold mining industry, during and following the First World War. The author develops a Marxist structuralist explanation of the system of racial discrimination, and then goes in to examine the significant historical events of this formative period, notably those surrounding the strike and uprising of the white workers in 1922.

Homelands, Harlem and Hollywood

South African Culture and the World Beyond

Rob Nixon

Series: Routledge Library Editions: South Africa

Originally published in 1994, Homelands, Harlem & Hollywood examines the anti-colonialist struggle against apartheid, and the ways in which American and South African culture have been fascinated with and influenced by one another. Rob Nixon's wide-ranging analysis looks at Hollywood representations of the struggle for liberation, the impact of the Harlem Renaissance on the Sophiatown writers, the banning and censorship of television under apartheid, Mandela and messianic politics, the sports and cultural boycotts, ethnic nationalism, and the culture of violence.

Pursuing Justice and Peace in South Africa

Hendrik W. van der Merwe

Series: Routledge Library Editions: South Africa

Originally published in 1989 and written by a long-time peacemaker who commanded respect from most political camps in South Africa, this book advocated constructive intervention in the South African conflict. It showed the growing element of pragmatic flexibility in the white leadership and argued that this more rational approach, combined with moral reform among the white population, promised reasonable prospects for the constructive accommodation of conflict in South Africa. In 1984 the author arranged the first meetings between government supporters and the ANC in exile in Lusaka, breaking a 24-year deadlock and significantly influencing public opinion in South Africa.

South Africa

Monica Cole

Series: Routledge Library Editions: South Africa

Originally published in 1961, this book was the first comprehensive work on South African geography that also presented a balanced account of all facets of the economic life. It was written to provide background information on South Africa – the nature of the country, its resources and deficiencies, its historic settlement by peoples of different races and of the progress made and the difficulties encountered in the major areas of economic activity: agriculture, mining, manufacturing and trade.

South Africa

A Short History

Arthur Keppel-Jones

Series: Routledge Library Editions: South Africa

Originally published in 1949 but here reissuing the 5th edition of 1975 this is a vivid history of South Africa up to the mid 1970s. Tracing the development of Afrikaner nationalism and the conflict of black and white races in relation to economic, political and geographical factors, the author makes a clear and often critical analysis of the crisis in the first half of the 20th Century in the light of historical perspective.

South Africa

An Historical Introduction

Freda Troup

Series: Routledge Library Editions: South Africa

Originally published in 1972, this book covers South African history from the earliest times up to 1968. After portraying the land itself, its people and their migrations, it describes what early travellers found and the arrival of the first white settlers in 1652 under the aegis of the Dutch East India Company. The arrival of the British in 1795, the period of expansion, Wars of Dispossession, the founding of the Boer republics, discovery of gold and diamonds, the Anglo-Boer war and Union are all discussed.

The Price of Magnanimity

Nicholas Mansergh

Series: Routledge Library Editions: South Africa

Originally published in 1961 this book provides a brief historical and political analysis of the very complex but little changing problems which have confronted British and Commonwealth statesmen in their relations with South Africa from the time of the restoration of self-government to the defeated Boer republics of 1907-7 and the inauguration of the Union on May 31, 1910 to the secession of the Republic of South Africa from the Commonwealth on May 31, 1961.

State, Resistance and Change in South Africa

Edited by Philip Frankel, Noam Pines and Mark Swilling, University of Stellenbosch, South Africa

Series: Routledge Library Editions: South Africa

Originally published in 1988, this book describes and analyses the factors that were operative in South Africa during the 1980s, at a time when Apartheid was under intense pressure. It focuses not only on the central arenas of political action, but also on the non-institutional arenas which were increasingly the central forums of political action.

The Foundations of the South African Cheap Labour System

Norman Levy

Series: Routledge Library Editions: South Africa

Originally published in 1982, this was the first in-depth study of the labour system of the South African gold mining industry during the crucial years 1886 to 1906. It provided an insight into the early period but was relevant for much longer, as many of the policies decided upon in the formative years of the industry persisted. The book traces the growth of deep-level mining and covers the conflicts between miners and mine-owners. It discusses the effects on the gold mining industry of the Anglo-Boer War, and the role of the mine-owners in that conflict.

The Imperial Factor in South Africa

A Study in Politics and Economics

Cornelis W. de Kiewiet

Series: Routledge Library Editions: South Africa

Originally published in 1937 and written by de Kiewiet who in his lifetime was recognized as one of the premier historians of British imperial policy and African history, this book covers the years 1871-1885 in South Africa's history, discussing racial, social and economic issues. These cover the initiation and collapse of Lord Carnarvon's confederation policy, the annexation and the retrocession of the Transvaal, the Sekukuni, Zulu and Cape-Bastuto wars, the last of the nine Kaffir wars on the Eastern frontier of the Cape, the creation of the (then) Basutoland Protectorate and the development of the Kimberley diamond mines.

The Liberal Dilemma in South Africa

P. L. van den Berghe

Series: Routledge Library Editions: South Africa

Originally published in 1979, The Liberal Dilemma in South Africa discusses the dilemma of how to overthrow an oppressive social order maintained through violence in a non-violent manner. The contributors to this volume were all established social scientists and academics, with extensive experience of living and doing research in South Africa. They analyse various aspects of that dilemma and of the social order which creates it, particularly emphasizing the role of students, academics and other intellectuals in South African society.

The Political Economy of Modern South Africa

Alf Stadler

Series: Routledge Library Editions: South Africa

Originally published in 1987 this book argues that South African politics reflect the changing ways in which the region has been incorporated into the world economy. It traces the effects of a process of industrialisation under the dominance of mining on the other sectors of the economy, and on the evolution of the class structure. It shows how a coercive labour system influenced the definition of political and social rights in racial terms and profoundly influenced the development of authoritarian controls over blacks in the urban and rural areas from the 1920s onwards.

Why South Africa Will Survive

A Historical Analysis

L. H. Gann and Peter Duignan

Series: Routledge Library Editions: South Africa

Originally published in 1981, this book took a position which was unpopular within the academic establishment at the time of its publication. It argued that the extraordinary social and economic changes that came over South Africa in the 20th Century gave the country great stability. The authors believed that change would come from within the ruling white oligarchy rather than from Liberation Movements and that the greatest solvent of apartheid was to be found in the working of a free market economy. The book provided novel data for sociological, political and strategic reassessment of South Africa.

South Africa in Crisis

Edited by Jesmond Blumenfeld

Series: Routledge Library Editions: South Africa

Originally published in 1987, this book documents the perceptions and policies of the major interest groups in South Africa during the 1980s when the long-running struggle for ultimate political power entered a new phase. It analyses their responses to the state of ferment and vicious circle of political and economic decline which ensued in the anti-apartheid struggle and examines the developing pressures both from within and outside the country. Of particular importance for the process was the relationship between internal reactions to the crisis and the diverse and unprecedented set of political, military and economic pressures which were interjected from abroad.

South Africa's Rule of Violence

Patrick Duncan

Series: Routledge Library Editions: South Africa

Originally published in 1967, South Africa's Rule of Violence is a record of aggression and violence against the black population of South Africa during the Apartheid era. The author, who was active in the political fight to end the apartheid system, collected many of these records from a 15-year period, and many are reproduced in the book. Mainly based on press reports, and illustrated with black and white press photos, the book brings to life the tragic cruelty of the Apartheid years and compares South African racism to that in Nazi Germany.

Race and Suicide in South Africa

Fatima Meer

Series: Routledge Library Editions: South Africa

Originally published in 1976 Race and Suicide in South Africa synthesises the two dimensions of suicide: the personal and the social phenomenon. Its approach is Durkheimian in the use of court records, and phenomenological in the examination of actual cases. About 1500 cases of suicide in Durban from 1940-70 are analysed in terms of race, sex, occupation, marital status, economic status, family type and size, residential area, time and method used. What emerges is a revealing picture of suicide in South African ethnic groups.

An Economic History of South Africa

D. M. Goodfellow

Series: Routledge Library Editions: South Africa

Originally published in 1931, A Modern Economic History of South Africa describes the state of Southern Africa in its early days. Its early expansion, the agriculture of the Trek Boers, the difficulties of communication over vast stretches of uncultivated land are woven by the author into a concrete picture of the economic life of the then undeveloped country. The development of the gold and diamond mining industries is discussed, as is their effect on the economy, and the development of infrastructure which followed such as the railways.

John Gloag on Industrial DesignJohn Gloag

John Gloag was a leading modernist commentator. He was well known as an author of almost 60 books on architecture, social history and industrial design. Gloag was a member of an elite design culture that was highly visible throughout the 1930s and 40s. Although an ardent reformist with links to a number of prestigious institutions, Gloag's contribution to design reform and to an understanding of a national design tradition, has attracted little scholarly interest. This set addresses that by re-issuing 10 of his most well-received books, many of them amply and beautifully illustrated.

Originally published in 1948, A History of Cast Iron in Architecture is a comprehensive history of the part that has been played by cast iron in architecture and the allied arts in Britain. Any history of the rise and development of the iron-founding industry becomes virtually a history of the First Industrial Revolution. Examining the use of cast iron by builders and architects from late medieval times to the middle of the 20th Century the authors have also recorded a miniature history of British Industry.

Originally published in 1946, this book is based on a series of broadcast talks on design. Led by an engineer, an artist and critic of architecture and industrial design, the discussions focussed on the problems that were involved by a general application of design to the environment of contemporary life. It surveys the possibilities of design in modern life and the talks have been rewritten, amplified and revised for the purposes of the book.

Originally published in 1958, A Guide to Western Architecture charts the origins of the system of architectural design that was perfected in Greece, follows its development under the Roman Empire and describes the achievements of the Byzantine architects. Passing through Romanesque to Gothic, the contributions made by Mediaeval builders to structure and design are recorded, and then the impact of the Renaissance on architecture, and its characteristic development in the different European countries. The transplanting of Renaissance ideas to the New World is covered, and finally the origins and nature of the new Western architecture occupy the last section of the book.

The Missing Technician in Industrial Production

John Gloag

Series: John Gloag on Industrial Design

Originally published in 1944, The Missing Technician shows how Industrial Design must begin at the very first stages of planning a product. The procedure of a design research committee is outlined – a type of practical co-ordination of the work of industrial designers and production technicians which proved highly effective. The value of materials like aluminium and plastic are emphasized, but equally the importance of glass and cast iron is stressed, especially when handled in new ways that 20th Century techniques made possible.

Plastics and Industrial Design

John Gloag

Series: John Gloag on Industrial Design

Originally published in 1945, Plastics and Industrial Design is a non-technical work of reference for manufacturers and designers who, after the Second World War were beginning to realize the possibilities that manufacturing with Plastics could bring. The different types of plastics and their uses is discussed, as is their impact on the design of manufactured articles. Whilst the extensive use of plastic may have fallen out of favour in recent years due to environmental concerns, this book reminds us that in their infancy they offered exciting manufacturing possibilities.

The Place of Glass in Building

Edited by John Gloag

Series: John Gloag on Industrial Design

Originally published in 1943, The Place of Glass in Building gives the facts about the physical properties, the possibilities and the limitations of the glass in common use. It also deals with the attributes of specialised and decorative glass. Intended for architectural students it may also be of interest to architects, for it is a condensed survey of the progress that has been made in this structural and decorative material.

The Englishman's Chair

Origins, Design and Social History of Seat Furniture in England

John Gloag

Series: John Gloag on Industrial Design

Originally published in 1964, The Englishman's Chair is a history of English chairs, written as a continuous story from the 15th to the 20th Century and because of the revealing powers inherent in chair-making and design, it is also an unconventional footnote to English social history. The changes in taste, and fashion, the increase of skill, the introduction of new materials and the long battle between dignity and comfort are discussed, as is the impact that modern industrial designers have had on chair design.

Babies Growing Up

Their Progress From Before Birth Right Through the Nursery Years
Nurse McKay

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Early Years

Originally published in 1956, Babies Growing Up aims to compress in to a brief yet readable form, the essentials of successful parentcraft at the time, bearing in mind the four elements of developing a new life – physical, mental, emotional and spiritual. It seeks to sum up the essence of the mothercraft advice given over the years through the pages of Woman's Pictorial and Mother and Home, where some material had appeared previously. It is a comprehensive guide through a baby's life from birth through the early years and today can be enjoyed as a historical look at parenting and child development in the 1950s.

Educating Young Children

A Structural Approach
Helen McAuley and Peter Jackson

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Early Years

In its discussion of the three levels of teaching and learning – whole school philosophy, classroom policy and specific teaching frameworks – Educating Young Children, originally published in 1992, addresses the twin themes of teacher ethics and pedagogic theory. In developing their argument the writers draw on both empirical classroom research and philosophical analysis, as well as the work developed within the Roehampton Institute MA programme in which they were both tutors at the time.

First Episodes*Pupil Careers in the Early Years of SchoolStephen R. WaterhouseSeries: Routledge Library Editions: Early Years*

Originally published in 1991, this title is based on a four-year longitudinal study of pupils from two different catchment areas from the first days of their entry to primary school. Using qualitative methodologies of depth interviewing and 'naturalistic' observation, it attempts to examine the social construction of pupil careers in the dynamics of classroom life. Particular attention has been given to the longitudinal and continuing process in the formation of pupils over the first four years of schooling, especially in looking at the moment-by-moment processes of formulation as episode follows episode in the rapid flow of classroom life.

A pioneer of nursery education in inner-city areas, Margaret McMillan changed the course of British educational history. While many are aware of the various social reforms she initiated, few are familiar with the life of the woman herself. Originally published in 1989, working from her own fresh collection of Margaret McMillan's letters and newspaper articles, Dr Bradburn tells in full the inspiring story of a cultured woman who found a new motivation. Born in America into a middle-class family in 1860, Margaret McMillan spent most of her life in Britain struggling to improve the lot of the poor and needy.

Mathematics for Young Children*An Active Thinking ApproachMarion H. BirdSeries: Routledge Library Editions: Early Years*

First published in 1991, this book shows how children as young as 4 and 5 of all abilities can be encouraged to carry out their own mathematical explorations whilst covering the content of a prescribed curriculum. It includes a selection of case studies from the author's own work with young children and a wide range of examples of children's work. The role of the teacher, too, is examined carefully in order to identify those parts of a teacher's repertoire which seems to be particularly fruitful in encouraging young children's active mathematical thinking. Throughout, readers are encouraged to apply and amend the ideas it contains to suit their own particular circumstances.

Number in the Nursery and Infant School

Evelyn E. Kenrick

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Early Years

Originally published in 1937, Number in the Nursery and Infant School surveys the teachings of Froebel, Montessori and Dewey, the prevalent theories in education at the time, and takes elements from each in order to outline a new method. The author was closely associated with infant-school work over a number of years. She also trained teachers for that purpose, carefully observing the results of different methods of teaching. The method described was in full accord with modern psychological theory of the time, today it can be read and enjoyed in its historical context.

Play, Exploration and Learning

A Natural History of the Pre-school

S. John Hutt, Stephen Tyler, Corinne Hutt and Helen Christopherson

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Early Years

Originally published in 1989, Play, Exploration and Learning is a 'natural history' of the development of under-fives in a pre-school learning environment. It compares four types of nursery provision: nursery schools, nursery classes, playgroups and day nurseries. These are all busy environments under the guidance of caring adults, but they vary enormously in terms of staffing levels, training and material provision. The authors examine the language of play, that of both children and adults, and they look in detail at the emphasis placed by adults on fantasy work. Also covered is the transition from nursery to primary school.

Testing Children's Development from Birth to School Age

Charlotte Buehler and Hildegard Hetzer

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Early Years

First published in 1935, this title highlighted the greatly increased interest in measuring the development of pre-school children by other means than the inadequate "intelligence tests". In the early part of the 20th century the work done at the Psychological Institute in Vienna under the direction of Karl Buehler had become favourably known throughout Europe and the US. This was also true of the studies in child psychology directed by authors Charlotte Buehler and her assistant, Hildegard Hetzer. The book contains developmental tests for the first 6 years of life; techniques for testing small children; information on the construction of tests and the evaluation their results.

Parents and Playgroups

A Study by the Pre-school Playgroups Association

Pre-school Playgroups Association

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Early Years

Originally published in 1981 to mark the twentieth anniversary of the birth of the Pre-school Playgroups Association, Parents and Playgroups brings together three wide-ranging reports which examine the role of the playgroup movement, its underlying philosophy and the contribution made by both playgroups and Mother and Toddler groups to the lives of thousands of mothers and children throughout Britain at the time. Some questions explored and debated include: What do parents contribute to playgroups – and what do playgroups and Mother and Toddler groups offer in return? How do playgroups compare with nursery schools?

The English Nursery School

Phoebe E. Cusden

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Early Years

First published in 1938, there were indications that the progress of nursery education in England would proceed rapidly in the next few years. This title was written in response to the need, from people with a duty or interest in the area, for a single volume bringing together information relating to the growth, organization and function of the nursery school and nursery class as an integral part of our educational system. The author's interest in the nursery school movement was developed by her personal association with pioneers such as Margaret McMillan and Grace Owen who were still involved with shaping the course of future developments in the field, which can still be felt today.

The Role of Subject Knowledge in the Early Years of Schooling

Edited by Carol Aubrey

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Early Years

Originally published in 1994, the aim of the authors was to provide a comprehensive introduction to recent advances in research which had been made in learning and teaching in the early years of schooling at the time. The whole thrust of the book challenges the conventional early years ideology with its emphasis on child-centred, concrete and empirical approaches to learning, with a view of teaching which is concerned with making sense of children's understanding, and allowing their active construction of knowledge and information-processing to develop expertise in context.

Toys, Play and Discipline in Childhood

Beatrix Tudor-Hart

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Early Years

Originally published in 1955, Toys, Play and Discipline in Childhood examines the areas of toys, play and discipline in a child's life from babyhood, up to school-age children. The author had spent 25 years teaching children between the ages of 2 and 12 years and had come to realize how closely linked play and discipline are in the development of young children. At the time there were very few books that dealt with play, and parents needed advice and help in catering for their children's needs. Written at a time where nursery education was still a relatively new concept, this book would have been an invaluable resource for both parents and nursery teachers.

The Story of the Nursery

Magdalen King-Hall

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Early Years

Originally published in 1958, this reconstruction of the lives of young children of nursery age is an excursion into the past, from the Middle Ages to the opening years of the twentieth century. It tells of the methods, often extraordinary to our ideas, by which they were brought up from babyhood to about seven years old, their clothes, diet, the fearsome remedies that were inflicted on them in illness, their toys, games, books and first steps in education. It shows how the pristine simplicity of the child's nature, which hardly alters throughout the centuries, was moulded by the pressure of the adult society around them into some semblance of the accepted contemporary type.

The Verbal Games of Pre-school Children

Susan Grohs Iwamura

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Early Years

Originally published in 1980 The Verbal Games of Pre-school Children states that in the course of acquiring language, every child recognizes that verbal interaction is a powerful tool which can be used to interpret and manipulate the world. This study is based on extensive and detailed observation of the verbal interaction of two pre-school children, and as such offers far-reaching ideas and conclusions concerning the manner in which all children determine the role of language in their lives, whilst simultaneously learning how to piece it together.

Women, Work and Caring

Edited by Janet Finch and Dulcie Groves

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women and Work

What are the realities of 'community care' – the unpaid care given by hundreds of thousands of women, for children and adults who are handicapped or chronically sick, or for frail elderly people? First published in 1983, this book explores the experiences of such women and the dilemmas which 'caring' posed for them. At a time when most women needed to earn money from a paid job, how did 'carers' manage to juggle their caring and other domestic responsibilities, and what happened if they had to give up work? Against a background of government policies which favour care 'by' the community, this book raised crucial issues for social and economic policy at the time.

Edited by Rosalie Silverstone and Audrey Ward

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women and Work

First published in 1980, women in the UK exhibited a pattern of work which was notably different from that in other countries of the EEC at the time. Its distinguishing feature was the high proportion of women who returned to work by the time they were forty years of age, having temporarily retired to care for young families. Although this pattern was of fairly recent origin, it was thought likely to be sustained. The skills required in many occupations traditionally entered by women are either learnt on the job or by means of relatively short formal training courses. This book, however, examines in some depth seven careers which require a minimum of three years' training.

Women's Employment and the Family in Calcutta

Hilary Standing

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women and Work

Does increased employment for women in Third World signify their greater emancipation? With an increased 'female' workforce, the traditional cultural belief that a woman's place is in the home has been strongly challenged, effecting considerable changes to the social position of Third World women. Originally published in 1991 and based on extensive fieldwork within Bengali households, this title examines the question of whether economic independence is a precondition for women's emancipation. This book is a re-issue first published in 1991. The language used is a reflection of its era and no offence is meant by the Publishers to any reader by this re-publication.

Sigrid B. Gustafson and David Magnusson, University of Stockholm

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women and Work

Originally published in 1991, this volume represents the first systematic attempt to apply a pattern approach to a comprehensive longitudinal investigation. It focuses on individual differences in female career development, from early adolescence through young adulthood. Rather than constructing a general model of career development, the authors use the interplay between theory and observation to build networks of patterns demonstrating the long-term consequences for adult women's career involvement, their educational levels, their family commitments, and their social networks.

Women in a Traditional Male Profession

Clara Greed

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women and Work

What is it like to be a female surveyor? How do women surveyors fit in to the male subculture of the profession? In what ways can women change the surveying profession for the future? Encouraged by the enterprise culture of the 1980s, more and more women were entering the traditional male professions, such as surveying, accountancy, and law. Originally published in 1991, this title investigates the position of women in surveying education and practice, using an ethnographic research approach, and a strong theoretical base, in order to demonstrate the relationships between gender and class within the surveying subculture, and their implications for the built environment.

The Incorporated Wife

Edited by Hilary Callan and Shirley Ardener

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women and Work

Originally published in 1984, this book touches the private lives and professional responsibilities of men and women, as it illustrates the comic as well as serious effects of the 'incorporation' of wives into some important State and commercial institutions. Beyond their domestic functions, wives have, in particular ways, been valuable props to many a husband's career and many an employer's and the nation's interests. Yet the nature of the relationship of these 'incorporated' wives to the objectives of such institutions has, until recently, been largely unregistered in practice, unrecorded in social and historical accounts and unstudied by analysts.

This Working-Day World

Women's Lives and Culture(s) in Britain 1914–1945

Edited by Sybil Oldfield

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women and Work

Originally published in 1994, This Working-Day World is lively collection of essays presenting a social, political and cultural view of British women's lives in the period 1914–45. The volume describes women's activities in many different areas, ranging from the weekly wash to the rescue of child refugees. Each essay, from an international list of contributors, is based on new research which will complement existing studies in a range of disciplines by adding information on, among other topics, women's teacher training colleges, and women in the BBC, in medical laboratories and in Art schools.

Woman's Worth

Sexual Economics and the World of Women

Lisa Leghorn and Katherine Parker

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women and Work

First published in 1981, Woman's Worth takes up the challenge to the male preserve of economics – which was raised nearly a century ago by Charlotte Perkins Gilman in her classic work Women and Economics. Patriarchal economic systems – socialist as well as capitalist – are founded upon women's unpaid labour. On this premise, Lisa Leghorn and Katherine Parker base their exploration of the economic basis of women's culture across cultures: from the USA to South America, the Middle East, socialist countries, Africa and Europe. This title is accessible and informative to those who have been intimidated by the term 'international economics'.

Women and the Labour Market

Teresa Rees

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women and Work

Is the employment position of women changing? Originally published in 1992, Women and the Labour Market analyses the reproduction of gender inequalities in the workplace and addresses crucial policy issues concerning the impact of gender in recruitment, training and work organisation. Teresa Rees demonstrates how women's access to labour opportunities and to training is limited by barriers such as the traditional ideology of the family, material reality and the exclusionary mechanisms still operated by men. Her book has clear implications for the policies that can affect continuing gender inequality at work.

Women Assemble

Women Workers and the New Industries in Inter-War Britain

Miriam Glucksmann

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women and Work

Why did working-class women become the central labour force on assembly lines in the new consumer goods' industries of the inter-war period? What was the long-term significance of this for the pattern of women's work, both in paid employment and in the home? Originally published in 1990, Women Assemble fills a major gap in the history of women and work, and develops a theory of women's class relations, and of course gender and class more generally, by means of an original case-study. Taken from a wide variety of sources, it uses a multidisciplinary approach and is brought to life by interviews with people who worked in assembly-line industries during the inter-war period.

Women in Social Work

Ronald G. Walton

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women and Work

Women have always played an important, and dominant, role in social work. Originally published in 1975, their special contribution to the profession is the theme of this book, in which demographic data, biographical material and records of social work organizations are skilfully used to show how women shaped the development of social work from 1860 to the 1970s, often in the face of strong male resistance. Covering the earlier years of the period, Dr Walton examines the links with the general movement for women's rights as well as differences in the attitudes of women social workers to those of the suffrage movement.

Women Working: Prostitution Now

Eileen McLeod, EILEEN.MCLEOD@WARWICK.AC - undeliverable Oct 20. Case 01678701

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women and Work

Originally published in 1982 and drawing on her involvement with PROS (Programme for Reform of the Law on Soliciting), one of the Street Prostitutes' Campaigns in Britain, and on interviews with prostitutes and their clients, the author examines how the financial benefits are offset by the attitudes prostitutes encounter from men. It is shown that while, in some ways, the role of client reflects men's advantageous social position, male clients are often trying to compensate for failure in their marriage, or an inability to conform to the accepted masculine role. What the clients want and the conditions in which prostitutes work are discussed in separate chapters.

Women, Work and Family in Britain and Germany

Edited by T. Scarlett Epstein, Kate Crehan, Annemarie Gerzer and Jurgen Sass

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women and Work

Many working women have to face a serious conflict between the demands of their work and the demands of family life. Changing perceptions about the role of women are making this conflict even more complicated. Originally published in 1986, this book, based on extensive original research, examines how working women manage the 'balancing act' between family and work. It considers their attitudes to work, to their families and to their managers and fellow workers and it explores the role of trade unions, employers and the state. By drawing on data gathered in different countries and in different 'styles' of working environment it contrasts differing responses to the same basic conflict.

Women's Work and Wages in the Soviet Union

Alastair McAuley

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women and Work

Originally published in 1981, this study is concerned with the extent to which the goal of sexual equality in employment, as set out, for example, in the Soviet constitutions of 1936 or 1977, had been realised in the USSR at the time. The main focus is on the nature and extent of economic inequality in the Soviet Union; the subject has wider implications, not only for our understanding of the USSR but also for our perceptions of the way that labour markets operate in a more general setting. The book should be of interest to feminists and labour economists as well as those with a professional interest in the Soviet Union.

Work, Women and the Labour Market

Edited by Jackie West

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women and Work

Originally published in 1982, this title presents through original articles a coherent overall picture of women's employment in contemporary British capitalism. For the first time it brings together concrete studies which show graphically how women's unequal position at work is shaped by the capital-labour relation and by women's place as housewives and mothers. The book illuminates the differences and similarities in women's and men's experience in the labour market and as members of the working class. It is about how and why women come to be in jobs typically regarded as semi or unskilled, about the causes of low pay, and about women workers' consciousness as workers and as women.

Workers' Dilemmas

Recruitment, Reliability and Repeated Exchange: An Analysis of Urban Social Networks and Labour Circulation

Margaret Grieco

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women and Work

Originally published in 1996, Workers' Dilemmas analyses the management skills of those with least resources, the women of the urban poor, and finds that there is an abundance of evidence on the high levels of managerial competence within this group. It is information which has largely been hidden from history. This study of poor women's involvement in the world of work corrects this missing record. The book provides a fresh look at how work patterns, family structure and community networks interrelate and in the process challenges accepted ideas in the wider fields of anthropology and the sociology of work.

Working for Victory?

Images of Women in the First World War, 1914–18

Diana Condell and Jean Liddiard

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women and Work

Women 'kept the home fires burning' while their men went off to war. This is the usual image of the part played by women in the First World War, reinforced through countless posters, government exhortations and even popular songs. It is very far from the truth. As this remarkable book shows, originally published in 1987, the truth was that women showed themselves capable of undertaking many roles hitherto the sole prerogative of men, a position accepted during the emergency of war but quickly 'righted' once peace was restored: the women who had helped to win the war were displaced by the returning heroes from the Front.

Ambitious Heights

Writing, Friendship, Love – The Jewsbury Sisters, Felicia Hemans, and Jane Welsh Carlyle

Norma Clarke

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women and Writing

At the heart of this book, originally published in 1990, is a friendship between two women: Jane Carlyle and the novelist Geraldine Jewsbury. But it was a difficult friendship, and in its difficulty lies much that is illuminating: about nineteenth-century domestic ideology; about writing for a market, and female fame; and about the complex ambivalences between women. Examining aspects of their lives, writing, and relationships, alongside those of two other writers – Felicia Hemans and Geraldine's sister, Maria Jane – Norma Clarke provides a subtle and illuminating discussion of the possibilities that were open to women in the Victorian age.

Impudent Voices

Subversive Strategies in Contemporary Women's Poetry

Liz Yorke

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women and Writing

How do women's poetic voices disrupt cultural forms? What is the relationship between female desire and the structures of poetry? Is 'writing the body' essentialist? Originally published in 1991, this title explores these questions in a sensitive and challenging study of female poetic strategies. Looking closely at the intricate and disturbing poetry of some of the twentieth century's greatest poets – Sylvia Plath, Adrienne Rich, H. D., Audre Lorde – Liz Yorke uses the theories of Irigaray, Cixous and Kristeva to illuminate her own clear and original analyses of the ways in which feminist understandings have been produced within poetic and cultural forms.

Protest and Reform

The British Social Narrative by Women 1827–1867

Joseph Kestner

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women and Writing

The social novel in nineteenth-century Britain has been considered the effort of a predominantly male canon of writers. In this ground-breaking study, originally published in 1985, Joseph Kestner challenges that assumption, arguing that it was a succession of female writers – women often meriting only a footnote in literary history – who initiated and advanced the tradition of using narrative fiction to register protest, expose abuses, and promote reform. Kestner's book encourages a reappraisal of women writers and their role in Victorian Britain and advances a long-needed reassessment of the traditional canon of nineteenth-century literature.

Reflecting on The Well of Loneliness

Rebecca O'Rourke

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women and Writing

Originally published in 1899, herself a novelist, critic, and lesbian, Rebecca O'Rourke examines what makes the figure of Stephen Gordon, hero of The Well of Loneliness, both infuriating and inspiring to lesbian and non-lesbian readers alike. She details the novel's fascinating publishing history through an analysis of the motives and preoccupations of previous critics and biographers, many of whom mistakenly saw in the novel a fictional account of Radclyffe Hall's own life. The novel's status as the 'bible of lesbianism' has been a mixed blessing, often confirming the worst stereotypes of lesbianism, while at the same time ensuring its visibility.

White Woman Speaks with Forked Tongue

Criticism as Autobiography

Nicole Ward Jouve

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women and Writing

How 'creative' is feminist criticism? What is the relationship between criticism and autobiography? Originally published in 1991, the style of Nicole Ward Jouve's startlingly original appraisals of women's writing suggests a new direction for feminist criticism, pointing up the shortcomings of much prevailing feminist analysis, and presenting viable alternatives. Purposefully avoiding the 'totalizing' effect of much academic discourse, the author finds a new format and a new methodology for her insights and observations on a range of authors, from Doris Lessing to Hélène Cixous, creating rich links and resonances between the many and varied strands of women's writing.

The Female Imagination

A Literary and Psychological Investigation of Women's Writing

Patricia Meyer Spacks

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women and Writing

Is there such a thing as a female literary imagination – a special brand of insight and intuition that characterises women's writing? Do the subject matter, form and style that women choose throw light on the way they think and feel? In this brilliant and highly readable book, originally published in 1976, Patricia Spacks analyses the female view of the world. Juxtaposing – sometimes in startlingly original combination some eighty books written between the 17th century and the 20th century she uses both literary and psychological analysis to explore patterns that recur again and again in the stories women tell – whether about their own lives or the lives of their fictional characters.

The Name of the Mother

Writing Illegitimacy

Marie Maclean

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Women and Writing

First published in 1994, the author studies the writings of social rebels and explores the relationship between their personal narratives and illegitimacy. The case studies fall into 4 groups, which: stress alternative family structures and 'female genealogies'; pair female illegitimacy and revolution; question the deliberate refusal of the name of the father by the legitimate; study the revenge of genius on the society which excludes it. Skilfully interweaving feminist theory, French literary criticism, social and cultural history, deconstruction and psychoanalytic theory, Maclean traces the place of these personal narratives of illegitimacy in history and their use in theory.

Nationalism, Independence and Partition

Series: Nicholas Mansergh on Ireland: Nationalism, Independence and Partition

The 3 volumes in this set, originally published between 1934 and 1975 are written by one of Ireland's most respected historians. In the light of problems in recent years with the devolved power-sharing Agreement in Northern Ireland and the suspension of the Northern Ireland Assembly, these volumes have an enduring relevance. They discuss the implications of

Anglo-Irish relations in the wider context of nationalist-imperial conflicts; the (historical) practical operation of devolution in Northern Ireland and provide critical analysis of government in the Irish Free State.

A Study in Devolution

Series: Nicholas Mansergh on Ireland: Nationalism, Independence and Partition

Originally published in 1936, The Government of Northern Ireland examines the practical operation of devolution which was granted to Northern Ireland in 1920. The later phases of the Ulster Question, interacting with a theoretic conception of devolution, provide the historical background in the light of which early 20th Century government in Ireland is analysed. The political, administrative and financial relations between the (then Imperial and subordinate Parliament, the powers and personnel of the local legislature and the character of the local government are all discussed.

Nicholas Mansergh

Originally published in 1940 but here reissuing the revised third edition of 1975, this book analyses the Irish Question. The study is not a narrative history. While the problems with which it deals have been suggested by the period it covers, it is with the problems and not the period that it is focussed on. Those problems are: the interrelation of economic and social with political forces; the impact of Irish discontent on the Liberal conversion to Home Rule; the character of the political, cultural and social forces behind revolutionary Irish nationalism; and the changing nature of the concept itself.

Jonathan Derrick

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Slavery

Africa's Slaves Today, first published in 1975, examines the question of the persistence of slavery in modern Africa. It concludes that slavery is by no means dead in certain regions, but that at the same time clear-cut definitions of 'slave' and 'free' are often impossible to establish. In the Sahara centuries of tradition involving slavery have ensured a persistence of the status quo. Instances of Africans sold into slavery in Arabia are discussed, together with a detailed survey of slavery throughout North Africa and Ethiopia. At what stage forced labour becomes slavery is examined in the white South.

Cape of Torments

Slavery and Resistance in South Africa

Robert Ross

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Slavery

Cape of Torments, first published in 1983, is a detailed examination of slavery in the Colony of the Cape of Good Hope. It describes the reactions of the slaves to their conditions, the aspects of their lives which their masters considered criminal, and the large numbers of occasions when slaves ran away in an attempt to start a new life elsewhere. The book examines Cape society and slave organization; the complex relations between slaves and the other population groups; major uprisings and rebellions. It also examines the extent to which the Cape slaves were able to build a culture of their own, and the legacy of slavery to their descendants in modern South Africa.

Children Enslaved

Roger Sawyer

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Slavery

Children Enslaved, first published in 1988, reveals the full extent of child slavery throughout the world. By personal investigation in regions where slavery still prevails, and with extensive research into documentation provided by international organizations defending children's rights, the author gives the most comprehensive assessment available of contemporary child slavery. He describes both persisting traditional forms of child exploitation and modern abuses and deprivations of freedom, including child migrant workers and those involved in the manufacturing industry, and the desolate world of child pornography and sexual exploitation.

Forced Migration

The Impact of the Export Slave Trade on African Societies

Edited by J.E. Inikori

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Slavery

Forced Migration, first published in 1982, examines the impact of the slave trade on Africa. There has been much debate about the effect of the Atlantic slave trade on Africa, with some claiming that the huge figures involved set back Africa's development for many years. Other historians reach lower estimates of the figures involved in the Atlantic trade, and argue that the effects on the political economy of Africa were more limited. Dr Inikori has done much original research into records, and here has made and introduced a selection of key papers. He has added elucidating editorial comments that place each paper in its context and link it to the other contributions.

Out of Slavery

Abolition and After

Edited by Jack Hayward

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Slavery

Out of Slavery, first published in 1985, is a series of articles commissioned on the 150 year anniversary of William Wilberforce's death and the Act of Parliament abolishing British slavery in 1833. With the background from which the history of slavery was viewed being radically changed, with decolonisation, the advancement of Human Rights, the economic and social consequences of what was done, and left undone, by the Abolitionists and Emancipators and of the situations which they faced. This book offers a broad reappraisal on slavery, and of the contribution and personality of the Abolitionists, particularly of their leader and spokesman William Wilberforce.

Out of the House of Bondage

Runaways, Resistance and Marronage in Africa and the New World

Edited by Gad Heuman

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Slavery

Out of the House of Bondage, first published in 1986, focuses not on slave rebellions, which were of crucial importance but not common occurrences, but on the day-to-day patterns of resistance that directly affected the lives of slaves. It examines acts of resistance in both the Americas and Africa, and widens the study of runaways and resistance and uses runaways as a means to further analyse slavery and the wider slave population.

Slavery

C.W.W. Greenidge

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Slavery

Slavery, first published in 1958, examines four main types of modern slavery: chattel slavery; the sale of women into marriage; the sale of children into work and prostitution; serfdom. Mr Greenidge, a Director of the Anti-Slavery Society, marshals an astonishing array of findings into modern slavery, and outlines the history of the anti-slavery movement.

The African Link

The African Link: British Attitudes in the Era of the Atlantic Slave Trade, 1550–1807

Anthony J. Barker

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Slavery

The African Link, first published in 1978, analyses 17th and 18th century social and scientific theories to fill a considerable gap in the history of racial attitudes. The picture of Black Africa that emerges from a vast array of scholarly, educational, popular and polemical writing is scarcely favourable – yet through the hostility of traders and moralising editors appear glimpses of respect and admiration for African humanity, skills and artefacts. The crudest generalisations about Black Africa are revealed as the inventions of credulous medieval geographers and of the late 18th century pro-slavery lobby.

The Royal Navy and the Slave Trade

Raymond C. Howell

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Slavery

The Royal Navy and the Slave Trade, first published in 1987, offers a detailed analysis of the Royal Navy's slave trade suppression on the East Coast of Africa – an area often neglected in studies of the campaigns against the slavers. It traces the naval impact on the Arab slave trade from Zanzibar dominions and the political implications of that involvement. The naval contribution to the broader 'Imperial' debate is also considered. It breaks new ground by dealing with naval operations off East Africa and by presenting an analysis of the interaction of the various Imperial officials in the region, and the subsequent development of British policy.

Slavery in the Twentieth Century

Roger Sawyer

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Slavery

Slavery in the Twentieth Century, first published in 1986, draws together all the forms of slavery in their modern guises – in the far recesses of Africa and Arabia, in the industrial towns of Italy, the factories and mines of South America, and in the prison farms of the United States. It shows that the definition of slavery is changing in the modern world, as it accommodates new forms of servitude and exploitation.

The Royal Navy and the Slavers

The Suppression of the Atlantic Slave Trade

W.E.F. Ward

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Slavery

The Royal Navy and the Slavers, first published in 1969, examines not only the Royal Navy's 60-year campaign to eradicate slavery, but also the British Government's diplomatic pressure on other countries to discontinue the slave trade. It analyses Captain's logs and despatches, and their evidence at trials of the men they captured, as well as looking at the messages from British ambassadors and consuls around the world.

Colonial Immigrants in a British City

A Class Analysis

John Rex, see the windows account, Margaret A/C853421, Sally Tomlinson, David Hearnden and Peter Ratcliffe

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Immigration and Migration

Colonial Immigrants in a British City (1979) analyses the relationship between West Indian and Asian immigrants and the class structure of a British city. Based on a four-year research project in the Handsworth area of Birmingham, the book is a study of race and community relations – political, social, economic and personal – in a major centre of immigrant settlement. It considers the relationship between housing class and class formations and consciousness in other sectors of allocation, such as employment and education. It includes a consideration of the changing political climate on race relations between 1950 and 1976.

A Land of Dreams

A Study of Jewish and Caribbean Migrant Communities in England

Simon Taylor

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Immigration and Migration

A Land of Dreams, first published in 1993, explores the settlement of East European Jews in the East End of London, and the growth of an African-Caribbean community in Birmingham. It is an ethnographic study of two first-generation migrant communities, built upon the experiences of the migrants themselves. It focuses on the stories of their migration and their early days in England, and in particular, upon the stories of their working lives and their everyday struggles in their new land. Placing two studies side by side exposes the quite different social and economic conditions which confronted the two groups of migrants upon arrival in England.

Crossing Cultural Borders

Education for Immigrant Families in America

Concha Delgado-Gaitan and Henry Trueba

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Immigration and Migration

Crossing Cultural Borders (1991) examines the day-to-day interaction of immigrant children with adults, siblings and peers in the home, school and community at large as these families demonstrate their skill in using their culture to survive in a new society. Children of Mexican and Central American immigrant families in Secoya crossed a national border, and continue to cross linguistic, social and cultural borders that separate the home, school and outside world.

Asia's Population Problems

With a Discussion of Population and Immigration in Australia

Edited by S. Chandrasekhar

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Immigration and Migration

Asia's Population Problems (1967) features papers written by specialists – demographers, economists and sociologists – examining the various population issues facing different Asian countries in the decades following the Second World War. A proper understanding of demographic trends is key, and this volume aims to supply significant population facts and figures, and also provides the general national, economic and political framework of each country against which certain international demographic attitudes, approaches and policies may be understood.

Geography & Ethnic Pluralism

Edited by Colin Clarke, David Ley and Ceri Peach

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Immigration and Migration

Geography & Ethnic Pluralism (1984) examines the debate around pluralism – the segmentation of population by race and culture – as a social and state issue, and explores this issue in Third World and metropolitan contexts. The field is opened up by a re-examination of the seminal work of J.S. Furnivall and M.G. Smith and by exploring the significance of racial and cultural diversity in colonial, post-colonial and metropolitan situations. Case studies written by specialists are presented in each chapter; they represent a wide range of locales, indicating the global nature of the theme and emphasising the variable significance of ethnicity in different situations.

Healing Multicultural America

Mexican Immigrants Rise to Power in Rural California

Henry T. Trueba, Cirenio Rodriguez, Yali Zou and José Cintrón

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Immigration and Migration

Healing Multicultural America (1993) looks at a group of Mexican immigrants who managed to understand and use the US democratic system to gain access to the 'American Dream'. The book aims to assist its readers to understand the significance of the politics of education for ethnic minorities. The authors point up the gravity of the problems experienced by minority groups worldwide which cannot be underestimated: problems such as inter-ethnic conflict, cultural tensions, poverty, alienation, violence and self-rejection.

Jamaican Migrant

Wallace Collins

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Immigration and Migration

Jamaican Migrant (1965) is the honest and moving recollection of a Jamaican cabinet-maker who emigrated to a new life in Britain. This is the book of a man who has been through the whole story in his own life – childhood in a large and humble Jamaican family, apprenticeship there, the journey to Britain as a stowaway, years in London as a Jamaican immigrant. The author takes us from Jamaica's coast, the drug-idlers and orators on the beach, the hurricanes, his father's wartime jazz band, to the problems and sophistication of girls and jobs and solitude in a London winter.

Labouring Children

British Immigrant Apprentices to Canada, 1869–1924

Joy Parr

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Immigration and Migration

Labouring Children (1980) is a study of child immigrants, based on numerous original sources, and presents new views on childhood, social work and Canadian rural communities. Between 1868 and 1925 eighty thousand British boys and girls, mostly under fourteen, were apprenticed as agricultural labourers and domestic servants in rural Canada. Incorporating much rich documentation from numerous case records, and presenting a new quantitative use of some of those records, this book sheds light on a dark corner of the Canadian migrant experience.

Migrant Labour in Europe, 1600–1900

The Drift to the North Sea

Jan Lucassen

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Immigration and Migration

Migrant Labour in Europe (1987) examines the movement of workers from less prosperous parts of Europe to areas with demand for their services. The author identifies and analyses seven major systems of migrant labour: the North Sea System (mainly Westphalian workers heading for the German and Dutch North Sea Coast and Walloon/French workers bound for the Belgian and Zeeland coasts); the area between London and the Humber; the Paris Basin; Provence, Languedoc and Catalonia; Castile; Piedmont; and central Italy with Corsica.

One Way Ticket

Migration and Female Labour

Edited by Annie Phizacklea

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Immigration and Migration

One Way Ticket (1983) examines the 'hidden armies' of migrant women workers who have since the 1950s fulfilled a demand for low-skilled, low paid and insecure work in both the formal and informal economies of Western Europe. It presents a new focus for the examination of labour migration and of the specific character of female employment. It looks at the relationship between motherhood, waged work and ethnicity; the position of a second generation of black women workers; and the oppression and exploitation of migrant women by their male counterparts through the creation of 'ethnic' economies.

Minorities in the Open Society

Prisoners of Ambivalence

Geoff Dench

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Immigration and Migration

Minorities in the Open Society (1986) challenges optimistic assumptions regarding race relations in western nations, namely that social justice will prevail without much effort. It examines the interests behind public affirmations of commitment to integration, and presents a range of contemporary and historical material which illustrate the double-binds created for minorities by the dominant communities, who offer equality with one hand while obstructing it with the other. Individual members of minorities may be given the opportunity to achieve social prominence – but only to carry out special jobs on behalf of the majority.

The Absorption of Immigrants

A Comparative Study Based Mainly on the Jewish community in Palestine and the State of Israel

S.N. Eisenstadt

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Immigration and Migration

The Absorption of Immigrants (1954) examines the assimilation of immigrants in the Yishuv (the Jewish Community in Palestine) and in the State of Israel. It provides a historical analysis of the social structure of the Yishuv and of the development of the new Israeli society. The book also applies the general framework to the analysis of some main types of modern migrations and a series of tentative conclusions is given which may serve as detailed hypotheses for subsequent inquiries. In this way a comparative study of different types of migrations and absorption of immigrants is built up.

The Americanization Syndrome

A Quest for Conformity

Robert A. Carlson

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Immigration and Migration

The Americanization Syndrome (1987) examines the historical role of education in the process of 'Americanization'. It argues that the pattern of American education has been not the promotion of a blend of different cultures but the indoctrination of norms of belief of religion, politics and economics and an explicit discouragement of cultural variety. It traces the political role of education at key junctures of American history. The author focuses on the period 1900–1925 when new waves of immigrants from southern and eastern Europe led to a new drive for orthodoxy.

The Development of British Immigration Law

Vaughan Bevan

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Immigration and Migration

The Development of British Immigration Law (1986) examines the policies and laws of immigration law in the UK. It is argued that the laws and practices of immigration are unnecessarily rigid and racist, both in design and in effect; that the record of the UK is a sorry chapter in the field of human rights but one which is consistent with international state practice; that immigration is an ideal model to illustrate the UK's general treatment of civil liberties. Particular aspects of the subject are examined in depth to illustrate the attitudes of government, the courts and civil servants.

Ugandan Asians in Great Britain

Forced Migration and Social Absorption

William G. Kuepper, G. Lynne Lackey and E. Nelson Swinerton

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Immigration and Migration

Ugandan Asians in Great Britain (1975) examines the impact of the 1972 immigration of 28,000 Asians expelled from Uganda, looking at the impact on both the immigrants themselves and the British host community. It is an attempt to understand some of the dynamics of forced migrant transition from one society and culture to another. The study was largely carried out in Wandsworth and Slough and shows how these communities – not without social problems before this influx of immigrants – adapted to the new arrivals. The sensitivity and effectiveness of the community relations organisations and the welfare agencies in these areas is revealed.

Economic Transformation in Sub-Saharan Africa

The Way Forward

Donald L. Sparks

Series: Europa Introduction to...

This volume begins by examining recent economic developments and trends. It then looks at the major economic constraints the region has faced in recent years, breaking down those constraints as either 'external' (e.g. terms of trade) over which the individual countries have but limited control, or 'internal' (e.g. governance and economic policy), over which there is more control. The book concludes by arguing that, despite the notable challenges cited above, sub-Saharan Africa is poised for a transformation, based on closer regional economic co-operation, a growing middle class, increased demand for locally produced goods and services, and a young population.

Unravelling Dollarization Persistence

The Case of Georgia

Ia Eradze

Series: Europa Economic Perspectives

A political economic analysis of dollarization in Georgia, structured around three themes: the genesis of dollarization (1991–2003), the persistence of dollarization (2003–12) and the politicization of dollarization (2012–19). The case of Georgia is especially representative of the post-socialist transition states, but also has wider applicability. It will be of interest to postgraduate students in global/comparative political economy, development economics or transition economies, researchers in monetary sovereignty, central banking, exchange rate policies, currency hierarchy, money, financialization, and policy makers in dollarized countries and global institutions.

Handbook of Regional Conflict Resolution Initiatives in the Global South

Edited by Jerónimo Delgado-Caicedo

Series: Europa International Perspectives

This book explores the relation between a country's involvement in conflict resolution initiatives and its positioning in the international system using the perspective of academics and practitioners from countries of the Global South, particularly from states that have strengthened—or sometimes weakened—their position in the international hierarchy of power through a leading role in regional conflict resolution initiatives.

The Unknown War

Anti-Soviet armed resistance in Lithuania and its legacies

Edited by Arūnas Streikus

Series: Europa Country Perspectives

The armed anti-Soviet resistance movement which arose in 1944 in Lithuania, as Soviet forces began to reoccupy the Baltic countries and Galicia, sparking a nearly decade-long fierce military conflict, has yet to become established in the common narrative of contemporary European history. However, controversy regarding this "war after the war" and its legacies constitutes one of the core elements in contemporary information warfare waged by Russia against its neighbouring countries. Responding to the growing need for unbiased historical research, six scholars from Vilnius University address the diverse aspects of this phenomenon as well as its role in memory culture and politics.

Electoral Politics in Sri Lanka

Presidential Elections, Manipulation and Democracy

S. I. Keethaponcalan
Series: Europa Country Perspectives

This volume analyses the manipulation of electoral politics in Sri Lanka. Primary and secondary data formed the basis of the analysis, examining eight presidential elections. Through an examination of recent presidential elections, research discovered that elections are often associated with violence; presidential elections are a majoritarian affair where minority communities play a marginal role; there is a significant gender imbalance, as women's participation in the electoral process is limited; in spite of the presence of a large number of candidates contesting the election, it always remains a two-way race; and amidst extensive manipulation, voter participation tends to be high.

External Powers in Latin America

Geopolitics between Neo-extractivism and South-South Cooperation

Edited by Gian Luca Gardini
Series: Europa Regional Perspectives

This book examines the role of external powers in Latin America in the 21st century. Non-traditional partners have significantly increased their political and economic engagement with the continent. The volume examines five key questions: why has this surge taken place, when has it happened, in which regions and sectors is it mostly felt, what is the Latin American perspective, and what are the actual results through an analysis of 16 case studies and places them in context and proposes a more multifaceted approach, stressing a combination of systemic factors and internal dynamics both in Latin America and in the external partner countries.

The Blue Economy in Sub-Saharan Africa

Working for a Sustainable Future

Edited by DONALD L. SPARKS
Series: Europa Regional Perspectives

The blue economy offers vast benefits for sub-Saharan Africa, with 32 being coastal states; 13 million square km of maritime zones; more than 90% of the region's exports and imports coming via sea; and the African Union hailing the blue economy as the 'new frontier of African renaissance'. This book provides a study of the constraints and opportunities the blue economy offers for sub-Saharan Africa. It includes sectoral analyses (including tourism, fisheries, mineral resources, culture, shipping and maritime safety); country case studies; and analyses of regional and international efforts towards better coastal zone and marine management.
