Our history

Over two centuries ago, the foundations of the company were laid in pioneering fashion when in 1798 Richard Taylor launched the Philosophical Magazine, one of the first scientific journals produced by an independent company. It was the start of much close collaboration with scholarly societies. Dr William Francis, a chemist, joined Richard Taylor in 1852 and continued the tradition of the close links between the academic community and the company.

Today, we continue to be fully committed to the publication of academic and scholarly information of the highest quality and this remains our primary goal.

Taylor & Francis has grown rapidly to become a leading international, academic publisher. With offices across the globe, the Taylor & Francis Group now publishes more than 2,200 journals and over 5,200 new books each year; with a books backlist in excess of 110,000 specialist titles.

Prices featured are correct at time of going to press but are subject to change without notice.

Book orders should be addressed to the Taylor & Francis Customer Services Department at Bookpoint, or the appropriate overseas agent.

NEW IN PAPERBACK

Being and Nothingness

An essay in phenomenological ontology

Jean-Paul Sartre and Sarah Richmond, University College London, UK

First published in French in 1943 Jean-Paul Sartre's L'Être et le Néant is one of the greatest philosophical works of the twentieth century. In it, Sartre offers nothing less than a brilliant and radical account of the human condition. The English philosopher and novelist Iris Murdoch wrote to a friend of "the excitement – I remember nothing like it since the days of discovering Keats and Shelley and Coleridge".

This new translation, the first for over sixty years, makes this classic work of philosophy available to a new generation of readers. It includes a helpful Translator's Introduction, a comprehensive index, and a foreword by Richard Moran.

Creating Future People

The Ethics of Genetic Enhancement

Jonathan Anomaly

A fast-paced primer on how new genetic technologies will enable parents to influence the traits of children. Jonathan Anomaly deftly explains the science of gene editing and embryo selection, and motivates the moral questions it raises with colorful language and a brisk style. The author takes seriously the diversity of preferences parents have, and the limits policymakers face in regulating what may be a global market for reproductive technology.

Derek Parfit's Reasons and Persons

An Introduction and Critical Inquiry

Edited by Andrea Sauchelli, Lingnan University, Hong Kong

Derek Parfit (1942 - 2017) is widely considered to be one of the most important moral philosophers of the Twentieth Century. Reasons and Persons is arguably the most influential of the two books published in his lifetime and hailed as a classic work of ethics and personal identity.

This outstanding introduction to and assessment of Parfit's book - by leading scholars of ethics, metaphysics and of Parfit's work - is ideal for students of ethics, metaethics, metaphysics and anyone interested in Derek Parfit's philosophy.

Empathy

Heidi Maibom, University of Cincinnati, USA

Series: New Problems of Philosophy

Empathy is one of the most talked about and widely studied concepts of recent years. Some argue it can help create a more just society, improve medical care and even avert global catastrophe. Others object that it is morally problematic. Who is right? And what is empathy anyway?

In this thorough and clearly-written introduction to the philosophy of empathy Heidi Maibom explores these questions and more. It is essential reading for students of philosophy of mind and psychology, psychology, and cognitive science, as well as for those in related subjects such as art, literature and politics.

Theories of Distributive Justice

Who Gets What and Why

Jeppe von Platz

This book provides a thorough introduction to the main theories of distributive justice and reveals the underlying sources of our disagreements about economic policy. It argues that the universe of theories of distributive justice is simple, yet complicated. It is simple in that there are just four main theories of distributive justice; yet complicated in that it is possible to spin innumerable new theories from the elements of the four main theories.

Understanding Digital Ethics

Cases and Contexts

Jonathan Beever, Rudy McDaniel and Nancy A. Stanlick,

University of Central Florida, USA

Rapid changes in technology and the growing use of electronic media signals a need for understanding both clear and subtle ethical and social implications of the digital, and of specific digital technologies. Understanding Digital Ethics: Cases and Contexts is the first book to offer a philosophically grounded examination of digital ethics and its moral implications. Essential reading for students and scholars of philosophical ethics, those working on topics related to digital technology and digital/moral literacy, and practitioners in related fields.

Core Questions in Philosophy

Elliott Sober

Writing in an engaging lecture-style format, Elliott Sober shows students how philosophy is best used to evaluate many different kinds of arguments and to construct sound theories. Well known arguments and problems from the history of philosophy are discussed and analyzed, not as a means to honor the dead or merely to discuss what various philosophers have thought, but to engage with, criticize, and even improve ideas from the past. In addition—because philosophy cannot function apart from its engagement with the wider society—traditional and contemporary philosophical problems are brought into dialogue with the physical, biological, and social sciences.

Michelle Ciurria, University of Missouri-St. Louis, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Ethics and Moral Theory

This book develops an intersectional feminist approach to moral responsibility. It accomplishes four main goals. First, it outlines a concise list of the main principles of intersectional feminism. Second, it uses these principles to critique prevailing philosophical theories of moral responsibility. Third, it offers an account of moral responsibility that is compatible with the ethos of intersectional feminism. And fourth, it uses intersectional feminist principles to critique culturally normative responsibility practices.

Edited by Scott M. Williams, University of North Carolina Asheville, USA

This book uses the tools of analytic philosophy and close readings of medieval Christian philosophical and theological texts in order to survey what these thinkers said about disability. It surveys disability across a range of medieval Christian writers from Augustine up to Francisco Suarez. The essays also compare what these medieval authors say with modern and contemporary philosophers and theologians. This dual approach enriches our understanding of the history of disability in medieval Christian philosophy and theology and opens up new avenues of research for contemporary scholars working on disability.

Edited by Michael Klenk, Delft University of Technology, The Netherlands

Series: Routledge Studies in Epistemology

This book offers a systematic look at current challenges in moral epistemology through the lens of research on higher-order evidence. Fueled by recent advances in empirical research, higher-order evidence has generated a wealth of insights about the genealogy of moral beliefs. This volume explores how these insights have an impact on the epistemic status of moral beliefs. It will be of interest to researchers and advanced graduate students working in epistemology and metaethics.

Inference and Consciousness

Edited by Timothy Chan, University of Oslo, Norway and Anders Nes, University of Oslo, Norway
Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy
 Inference has long been a central concern in epistemology, as well as a key notion in influential psychological accounts of mental capacities. Consciousness, on the other hand, has arguably been the defining interest of philosophy of mind over recent decades. Comparatively little attention, however, has been devoted to the significance of consciousness for the proper understanding of the character and role of inference. This book brings together original essays that showcase how several current debates in epistemology, philosophy of psychology, and philosophy of mind can benefit from more reflection on these and related questions about the significance of consciousness for inference.

Kant and the Continental Tradition

Sensibility, Nature, and Religion

Edited by Sorin Baiasu, Keele University, UK and Alberto Vanzo, University of Warwick, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Eighteenth-Century Philosophy

This book features original essays on three central themes in Kantian and post-Kantian philosophy: sensibility, nature, and religion. Half of the essays aim to disentangle complex exegetical knots that emerge in the interpretation of Kant's own views of the character of sensibility, the unity of nature, and the constitution of symbolic representation in religion. The other chapters explore the interactions that arise, in these three thematic areas, between Kant and prominent Continental philosophers such as Hannah Arendt, Jacques Derrida, Luce Irigaray, and Jean-François Lyotard.

The Aesthetics of Science

Beauty, Imagination and Understanding

Edited by Milena Ivanova, University of Cambridge, UK and Steven French, University of Leeds, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in the Philosophy of Science

This volume builds on two recent developments in philosophy on the relationship between art and science: the notion of representation and the role of values in theory choice and the development of scientific theories. Its aim is to address questions regarding scientific creativity and imagination, the status of scientific performances—such as thought experiments and visual aids—and the role of aesthetic considerations in the context of discovery and justification of scientific theories. It will be of interest to researchers and advanced students in philosophy of science and aesthetics, as well as other subdisciplines such as epistemology and philosophy of mathematics.

The Complex Reality of Pain

Edited by Jennifer Corns, University of Glasgow, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This book employs contemporary philosophy, scientific research, and clinical reports to argue that pain, though real, is not an appropriate object of scientific generalisations or medical intervention. Each pain experience is complex and idiosyncratic in a way which undermines scientific utility. In addition to contributing novel arguments and developing a new position on the nature of pain, the book provides an interdisciplinary overview of dominant models of pain. The author lays the needed groundwork for improved models and targeted treatments at a time when pain science, pain medicine, and philosophy are explicitly searching for both and failing to find them.

Well-Founded Belief

New Essays on the Epistemic Basing Relation

Edited by J. Adam Carter, University of Glasgow, UK and Patrick Bondy, Brandon University, Canada

Series: Routledge Studies in Epistemology

Epistemological theories of knowledge and justification draw a crucial distinction between one's simply having good reasons for some belief, and one's actually basing one's belief on good reasons. This book brings together leading epistemologists to explore the epistemic basing relation. Section I covers the nature of this relation and articulates defensible accounts of what it takes to believe on the basis of a reason. Section II explores the kind of things that can be reasons on the basis of which we hold beliefs.

TEXTBOOK • READER

Christian Ethics: The Basics

Robin Gill

Series: The Basics

Christian Ethics: The Basics sets out clearly and critically the different ways that Augustine, Aquinas and Luther continue to shape ethics today within and across Christian denominations. It assumes no previous knowledge of the subject and can be read by religious believers and non-believers alike. Readers are introduced to Christian ethics from the ground up before being invited to consider some of the most controversial but important questions facing people across the world today.

Concise, readable and authoritative, this is the ideal primer for anyone interested in the study of religious ethics and Christianity.

A historical, experimental, comparative and analytic perspective

Jaco Gericke, North West Univeristy, S. Africa

Series: Routledge Interdisciplinary Perspectives on Biblical Criticism

This book sets out an approach to something that has been generally considered impossible: a philosophical theology of the Old Testament. Focusing on the nature of Yahweh in the Old Testament, it argues that there is an implicit underlying philosophical framework to belief in God in the Hebrew Bible which is amenable to analytic treatment. This new vision of Biblical and philosophical theology brings them closer together in order that we might understand both more broadly and deeply. As such, it will be vital reading for scholars of Theology, Biblical Studies and Philosophy.

Points of View in Buddhist, Jaina, and Advaita Vedānta Traditions

Karl-Stéphan Bouthillette

Series: Dialogues in South Asian Traditions: Religion, Philosophy, Literature and History

This is the first book fully dedicated to Indian philosophical doxography. It looks at Indian doxography both as a witness of inter and intra sectarian dialogues, and as a religious phenomenon. This the first time that the genre has been taken beyond its literary format and equally considered in its performative dimension, as a spiritual exercise. It will, therefore, be vital reading for academics working in Religious Studies, Hindu Studies, Indology and South Asian History.

Exploring Youth Ministry and Disability

Edited by Wesley W. Ellis and Michael D. Langford

Embodying Youth: Exploring Youth Ministry and Disability seeks to help close the gap between disability theology and youth ministry education.

In this book, scholars and youth workers seek to attend to the questions of youth ministry by putting the experience of disability at the forefront, with hope not only that the church might include young people with disabilities but also that our very understanding of what youth ministry is, and who youth ministry is for might be transformed, for the sake of the gospel. This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Disability & Religion.

The Development of Secularity and Non-Religion

Edited by Tomáš Bubík, Palacký University Olomouc, Czech Republic, Atko Remmel, Palacký University Olomouc, Czech Republic and David Václavík, Masaryk University, Czech Republic

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

This book provides the first comprehensive overview of atheism, secularity and non-religion in Central and Eastern Europe in the twentieth and twenty-first centuries. In contrast to scholarship that has focused on the 'decline of religion' and secularization theory, the book builds upon recent trends to focus on the 'rise of non-religion' itself. Offering an important geographical perspective to the study of freethought, atheism, secularity and non-religion, this wide-ranging book will be of significant interest to scholars of twentieth-century social and intellectual history, sociology of religion and non-religion, cultural and religious studies, philosophy and theology.

Politics, Sacrality, And Diversity

David Tollerton, University of Exeter, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

This book provides the first substantial discussion of the interface between public Holocaust memory in contemporary Britain and the nation's changing religious-secular landscape. In the first half of the book attention will be given to the varied meanings of Holocaust memory for Jewish, Muslim, Christian, and post-Christian communities. In its second half, the focus will turn to the ways in which public Holocaust remembrance activities are intertwined with perceptions of sacrality. As such, it will be of keen interest to scholars of Religious Studies, Jewish studies and Holocaust Studies, as well as the Sociology of Religion, Material Religion and Secularism.

Media and the Science-Religion Conflict

Mass Persuasion in the Evolution Wars

Thomas Aechtner

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

This book examines why the religion-science skirmishes known as the Evolution Wars have persisted into the 21st century. It does so by considering the influences of mass media in relation to decision-making research and the Elaboration Likelihood Model, one of the most authoritative persuasion theories. Contending that persuasive mass media is a decisive component of science-religion controversies, this book will be of keen interest to scholars of Religion, Science and Religion interactions, as well as researchers of Media and Communication Studies more generally.

Racism and the Weakness of Christian Identity

Religious Autoimmunity

David Kline, University of Tennessee, USA

Series: Routledge New Critical Thinking in Religion, Theology and Biblical Studies

Through a systems theoretical and deconstructive account of religion and the political theology of St. Paul, this book traces how the racism and violence of modern Western Christianity is a symptom of its failure to secure its own myth of sovereignty within a complex world of plurality. This wide-ranging and interdisciplinary view of Christianity's relationship to racism will be of keen interest to scholars of Religious Studies, Theological Studies, Cultural Studies, Critical Race Studies, American Studies, and Critical Theory.

Paradoxical Virtue

Reinhold Niebuhr and the Virtue Ethics Tradition

Edited by Kevin Carnahan, Central Methodist University, USA and David True, Wilson College, USA

Series: Routledge New Critical Thinking in Religion, Theology and Biblical Studies

The central thesis of this book is that reading Reinhold Niebuhr in the context of virtue ethics is still a profitable undertaking. This is developed by an international panel of contributors over several distinct Parts. These parts cover the Niebuhrian construction of virtue; key virtues related to Niebuhr's work; Niebuhr and the Classical theological virtues; virtues appropriate to the different social roles in Niebuhr's thought; and finally reading Niebuhr in relation the church and broader political society. This volume will be of great interest to scholars of Niebuhr and Virtue Ethics as well as those working in Philosophy and the Philosophy of Religion more generally.

Unlocking Orthodoxies for Inclusive Theologies

Queer Alternatives

Edited by Robert E. Shore-Goss and Joseph N. Goh, Monash University Malaysia

Series: Gender, Theology and Spirituality

This book enters a new liminal space between the LGBTQ and denominational Christian communities. It simultaneously explores how those who identify as queer can find a home in church and how those leading welcoming, or indeed unwelcoming, congregations can better serve both communities.

This is a forward-looking and positive vision of a more inclusive theology and ecclesiology. It will, therefore, appeal to scholars of Queer Theology and Religious Studies as well as practitioners seeking a fresh perspective on church and the LGBTQ community.

Theology and Evolutionary Anthropology

Dialogues in Wisdom, Humility and Grace

Edited by Celia Deane-Drummond and Agustín Fuentes, University of Notre Dame, USA

Series: Routledge New Critical Thinking in Religion, Theology and Biblical Studies

This book sets out some of the latest scientific findings around the evolutionary development of religion and faith and then explores their theological implications.

This is a cutting-edge volume that refuses to commit the errors of either too easy a synthesis or too facile a separation between science and religion. As such, it will be of interest to scholars of religious studies and theology – especially those who interact with scientific fields – as well as academics working in anthropology of religion.

The Color Line

A Short Introduction

David Lyons

The Color Line provides a concise history of the role of race and ethnicity in the US, from the early colonial period to the present, to reveal the public policies and private actions that have enabled racial subordination and the actors who have fought against it. Focusing on Native Americans, African Americans, Asian Americans, and Latino Americans, it explores how racial subordination developed in the region, how it has been resisted and opposed. Theodore Roosevelt

A Manly President's Gendered Personal and Political Transformations

Neil H. Cogan

Series: Routledge Historical Americans

Theodore Roosevelt explores the personal and political life of the 26th President of the U.S.A. It considers among other things his 'manliness', a gendered framework of traits for the Gilded Age and Progressive Period guiding him and other men in business, politics and war, and shows how the development of these traits transformed Roosevelt's personal and political decisions. Supported by a series of intriguing primary source documents, this book is essential reading for understanding Roosevelt, his era, and his manliness. It is an accessible tool for students and instructors teaching courses on the Gilded Age and Progressive Period in American History.

History and Economic Life

A Student's Guide to Approaching Economic and Social History Sources

Edited by Georg Christ, University of Manchester, UK and Philipp R. Rössner, University of Manchester, UK

Series: Routledge Guides to Using Historical Sources

This book offers students a wide-ranging introduction to both quantitative and qualitative approaches to interpreting economic history sources from the Middle Ages to the Twentieth Century. Divided into two parts, it both equips students with a toolbox to approach economic history sources and includes case studies that examine how economic historians use such sources. Introducing sources often avoided in culturally-minded history or statistically minded economic history courses respectively and advocating a combined quantitative and qualitative approach, it is an essential resource for students undertaking

A Brief History of the Subordination of African Americans in the U.S.

Of Handcuffs and Bootstraps

Alexander Polikoff, BPI, USA and Elizabeth Lassar, BPI, USA

Series: Routledge Advances in American History

Presenting the essential story of racial subordination in our country, this book explains how white racism has caused and continues to cause today's huge black-white disparities. It includes an in-depth treatment of residential segregation – a central problem of our time – and a response to the view that racial inequality is due largely to African Americans' own moral and cultural failures. Comprehensive but brief, Bootstraps is written for the general reader but includes extensive endnotes that will make it useful to scholars and students. Its narration of our history of white racism also addresses a serious omission in both the general literature and in high school textbooks.

Alcohol Flows across Cultures

Drinking Cultures in Transnational and Comparative Perspective

Edited by Waltraud Ernst, Oxford Brookes University, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern History

This book maps changing patterns of drinking. Emphasis is laid on the connected histories of different regions and populations across the globe regarding consumption patterns, government policies, economics and representations of alcohol and drinking. With a wide geographic range, the book explores plural drinking cultures within any one region, their association with specific social groups, and their continuities and changes in the wake of wider global, colonial and postcolonial economic, political and social constraints and exchanges.

Ancestor Worship and the Elite in Late Iron Age Scandinavia

A Grave Matter

Triin Laidoner

Series: Studies in Medieval History and Culture

Ancestor worship is often assumed by contemporary European audiences to be an outdated and primitive tradition with little relevance to our societies, past and present. This book questions that assumption and seeks to determine whether ancestor ideology was an integral part of religion in Viking age and early medieval Scandinavia. The concept is examined from a broad socio-anthropological perspective, which is used to structure a set of case studies which analyse the cults of specific individuals in Old Norse literature.

Baybars' Successors

Ibn al-Furāt on Qalāwūn and al-Ashraf

David Cook, Rice University, USA

Series: Crusade Texts in Translation

Ibn al-Furat (d. 1405) is an understudied Mamluk historian, whose materials for the period of the later Crusades is unique. While sections of his history for the period prior to 1277 have been translated, later sections have not. His text provides both an overview and a critique of earlier historians, and supplies us with a large number of unique documents, treaties, and intimate discussions that are not to be found elsewhere. This translation provides a continuous narrative from 1277 until the assassination of al-Malik al-Ashraf in 1293, with selections from Ibn al-Furat's later entries concerning the Crusades until 1365.

Christians and Muslims in Early Medieval Italy

Perceptions, Encounters, and Clashes

Luigi Andrea Bertó

Series: Studies in Medieval History and Culture

In the early Middle Ages Italy became the target of Muslim expansionist campaigns. The Muslims conquered Sicily, ruling there for more than two centuries, and conducted many raids against the Italian Peninsula. During this period, however, Christians and Muslims were not always at war – trade flourished and travel to the territories of the 'other' was not uncommon. By examining how Muslims and Christians perceived each other and how they communicated, this book brings the relationship between Muslims and Christians in early medieval Italy into clearer focus.

Chronicles of Qalāwūn and his son al-Ashraf Khalil

David Cook

This volume provides translations of texts on the Mamluk Sultan Qalāwūn (1279-90) and his son al-Malik al-Ashraf (1290-93), which cover the end of the Crusader interlude in the Syrian Levant.

Translated from the original Arabic, these chronicles detail the Mamluk perception of the Crusaders, the Mongol menace, how this menace was confronted, and a wealth of materials about the Mediterranean basin in the late thirteenth century. Treaties, battles, sieges and embassies are all revealed in these chronicles, most of which have not been translated previously.

Cultural Organizations, Networks and Mediators in Contemporary Ibero-America

Edited by Diana Roig-Sanz, Universitat Oberta de Catalunya, Barcelona, Spain and Jaume Subirana, Pompeu Fabra University, Barcelona, Spain

Series: Routledge Studies in Cultural History

This book proposes an innovative conceptual framework to explore cultural organizations and cultural mediators as key figures in cultural and institutionalization processes. Specifically, it reappraises the role of Iberoamerica in international cultural relations through two institutional networks: PEN (the non-governmental writer's association), and the International Institute of Intellectual Cooperation (predecessor to UNESCO). The book will appeal to scholars from International Relations, Global and Cultural History, Sociology, World and Comparative Literature and New Hispanisms.

Deviant Maternity

Illegitimacy in Wales, c. 1680–1800

Angela Joy Muir, University of Leicester, UK

Series: Routledge Research in Gender and History

This is the first-ever book to explore illegitimacy in Wales during the eighteenth century. Drawing on previously-overlooked archival sources, it examines the scope and context of Welsh illegitimacy, and the link between illegitimacy, courtship and economic precarity. It also goes beyond courtship to consider the different identities and relationships of the mothers and fathers of illegitimate children in Wales, and the lived experience of conception, pregnancy and childbirth for unmarried mothers. This book reframes the study of illegitimacy by combining demographic, social and cultural history approaches to emphasize the diversity of experiences, contexts and consequences.

Empire, Political Economy, and the Diffusion of Chocolate in the Atlantic World

Irene Fattacciu, University of La Tuscia, Italy

Series: Early Modern Iberian History in Global Contexts

This book analyzes chocolate's transition from an exotic curiosity to an Atlantic commodity in the 18th century. It focuses on the one hand how the boomerang effects produced by the interaction of local, inter-regional, Atlantic markets and imperial political economies of consumption intertwined with the resilience of local artisanal production to allow the partial democratization of chocolate consumption; on the other if and how it acted as a forerunner in promoting the secularization and democratization of forms of consumption, as well as economic growth. It will be of interest to scholars of Global History, Atlantic History, Consumer Culture and Economic History.

Europe between Migrations, Decolonization and Integration (1945-1992)

Edited by Giuliana Laschi, University of Bologna, Italy, Valeria Deplano, University of Cagliari, Italy and Alessandro Pes, University of Cagliari, Italy

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern European History

This monograph addresses mobility and migrations as contributing phenomena in shaping contemporary Europe after 1945, in connection with decolonisation and the creation of the European Community. The disappearing of the colonial empires caused a large movement of people (former colonizers as well as formerly colonized people) from the extra-European countries to the "Old continent"; while the European integration project encouraged the movement of the citizens within the Community. The book retraces how, in both cases, migrations and mobility impacted the way national communities, as well as the European one, have been defining themselves and their real and imaginary boundaries.

F.D. Ascoli: A Revenue History of the Sundarbans

From 1870 to 1920

Edited by Ananda Bhattacharya

Frank David Ascoli's Revenue History of Sundarbans during the Period 1870-1920 looks at the area bounded on the north by the limits of Permanent Settlement in 24-Parganas, Khulna and Bakarganj districts and on the south by the sea face stretching from the Hughli estuary to the mouth of the Meghna River. The revenue history of the Sundarbans is distinct from that of the rest of the district that presents several peculiar features, so that a separate account of it is necessary.

Free Trade and Social Welfare in Europe

Explorations in the Long 20th Century

Edited by Lucia Coppolaro, University of Padua, Italy and Lorenzo Mechi, University of Padua, Italy

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern European History

This book deals with the historical relationship between international trade liberalisation – one of the backbones of globalisation – and the development of social welfare. In Europe the issue has regularly been at the centre of the political debate for at least two centuries, and still nowadays it continues to inspire decisions of the highest order, as in the recent case of Brexit. Analysing a number of particularly meaningful episodes and moments, the eight chapters of this edited volume provide an overview of the multiple ways in which the liberalisation/welfare nexus has been addressed in Europe since the end of the 19th century.

Immigrants and Foreigners in Central and Eastern Europe during the Twentieth Century

Edited by Włodzimierz Borodziej, Warsaw University, Poland and Joachim von Puttkamer, Imre Kertész Kolleg, Friedrich Schiller University, Jena, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern European History

Immigrants and Foreigners in Central and Eastern Europe during the Twentieth Century challenges widespread conceptions of Central and Eastern European countries as merely countries of origin. It sheds light on their experience of immigration and the establishment of refugee regimes at different stages in the history of the region. Presenting the challenges within the history of immigration in Eastern Europe and considering both immigration to the region and emigration from it, the book provides a new perspective on, and contribution to, this ongoing subject of debate.

In Praise of Historical Anthropology

Perspectives, Methods, and Applications to the Study of Power and Colonialism

Alexandre Coello de la Rosa, Universitat Pompeu Fabra, Catalonia and Josep Lluís Mateo Dieste, Universitat Autònoma de Barcelona, Catalonia

Series: Routledge Approaches to History

This book is based on a fundamental conviction: the study of society cannot be undertaken without considering the weight of history and separations between disciplines in academics need to be bridged for the benefit of knowledge. It describes the complex attempts to transcend this separation, presenting perspectives, methodologies, and direct applications for the study of power relations and systems of social classification, paying special attention to the reconstruction of colonial situations.

Information and Power in History

Towards a Global Approach

Edited by Ida Nijenhuis, Huygens Institute, the Netherlands, Marijke van Faassen, Huygens Institute, the Netherlands, Ronald Sluiter, Huygens Institute, the Netherlands, Joris Gijsenbergh, Radboud University, The Netherlands and Wim de Jong, Utrecht University, the Netherlands

Series: Routledge Approaches to History

The relationship between information and power is a relevant subject for all times. Today's perceived 'information revolution' has caused information to become a separate object of study during the last two decades for several disciplines. As the contemporary perspective is dominant, information history as a discipline of its own has not yet crystallized. In bringing together studies around a new research agenda on the relationship between information and power across time and space, presenting various governance regimes, media, materials, and modes of communication, this book forces us to rethink the prospects and challenges for such a new discipline

Lifestyle and Medicine in the Enlightenment

The Six Non-Naturals in the Long Eighteenth Century

Edited by James Kennaway, Newcastle University, UK and Rina Knoeff, University of Groningen, the Netherlands

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of Science, Technology and Medicine

Enlightenment advice on healthy lifestyle was often still discussed in terms of the six non-naturals - airs and places, food and drink, exercise, excretion and retention, and sleep and emotions. This volume examines what it meant to live healthily in the Enlightenment in the context of those non-naturals, showing both the profound continuities from Antiquity and the impact of newer conceptions of the body.

Monarchy, Print Culture, and Reverence in Early Modern England

Picturing Royal Subjects

Stephanie E. Koscak, Wake Forest University, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Eighteenth-Century Cultures and Societies

This highly illustrated study examines how the emergent public sphere and the expansion of visual and textual print impacted the monarchy and loyalism in England between the execution of Charles I and the accession of George II. Utilizing a contextualized and interdisciplinary analysis of visual and material objects and new approaches to textual materiality, Koscak argues that the endurance and popular appeal of the crown is in part explained by its sophisticated incorporation within cultures of commerce and print that materialized affective bonds between sovereigns and subjects and provided a shared language for political discussion.

Intellectuals in the Latin Space during the Era of Fascism

Crossing Borders

Edited by Valeria Galimi, University of Florence, Italy and Annarita Gori, University of Lisbon, Portugal

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern History

This volume investigates a galaxy of diverse networks and intellectual actors who engaged in a wide political environment, from conservatism to the most radical right, between the World Wars. Looking beyond simply Fascism, it considers the less-investigated domain of the 'Latin space', encompassing countries of both Southern Europe and Latin America. A wider and intricate analytical framework emerges, exploring right-wing intellectual agents and their networks, their travels and the circulation of ideas, during the interwar period and on a transatlantic scale, offering an original contribution to the debate on interwar authoritarian regimes and opening new possibilities for research.

Origins of the Hussite Uprising

The Chronicle of Laurence of Březová (1414–1421)

Thomas A. Fudge

Series: Routledge Medieval Translations

The 'Hussite Chronicle' is the most important single source for the events of the early Hussite movement. The author is Laurence of Březová (c.1370-c.1437), a member of the Czech lower nobility and a supporter of the Hussite creed. Church and empire attempted to suppress the movement and raised five crusades against the dissenters. The chronicle offers to history and scholarship a nuanced understanding of what can be regarded as an essential component for a proper understanding of late medieval religion. It is also a considered account of aspects of the later crusades. This is the first English-language translation of the chronicle.

Protestant Resistance in Counterreformation Austria

Peter Thaler, University of Southern Denmark

Series: Routledge Research in Early Modern History

This book examines Austrian Protestants who actively resisted the Habsburg Counterreformation in the early seventeenth century. While a determined few decided early on that only military means could combat the growing pressure to conform, many more did not reach that conclusion until they had been forced into exile. Since the climax of their activism coincided with the Swedish intervention in the Thirty Years' War, the study also analyzes contemporary Swedish policy and the resulting Austro-Swedish interrelationship.

Religious Tolerance from Renaissance to Enlightenment

Atheist's Progress

Eric MacPhail, Indiana University, USA

Series: Routledge Research in Early Modern History

This book examines the relationship of atheism to religious tolerance from the Renaissance to the Enlightenment in a broad array of literary texts and political and religious controversies written in Latin and the vernacular primarily in France, the Netherlands, and Switzerland. The main authors featured are Desiderius Erasmus, Sebastian Castellio, Jean Bodin, Michel de Montaigne, Dirck Coornhert, Justus Lipsius, Gisbertus Voetius, the anonymous Theophrastus redivivus, and Pierre Bayle. Integrating the history of tolerance in the history of atheism, the work should prove stimulating to historians of philosophy as well as literary specialists and students of Reformation history.

Rethinking Medieval Margins and Marginality

Edited by Ann E. Zimo, Tiffany D. Vann Sprecher, Kathryn Reyerson and Debra Blumenthal

Series: Studies in Medieval History and Culture

Modern scholars have considered a seemingly innumerable list of people to have been marginalized in the European Middle Ages. The present volume explores the concept of marginality, to whom the moniker has been applied, to whom it might usefully be applied, and how we might more meaningfully define marginality based on historical sources rather than modern assumptions. Although the volume's geographic focus is Europe, the chapters look further afield to North Africa, the Sahara, and the Levant acknowledging that at no time, and certainly not in the Middle Ages, was Europe cut off from other parts of the globe.

Soldiers and Their Horses

Sense, Sentimentality and the Soldier-Horse Relationship in The Great War

Jane Flynn

Series: Routledge Studies in Cultural History

The soldier-horse relationship was nurtured by The British Army because it made the soldier and his horse into an effective fighting unit. This book explores a complex relationship forged between horses and humans in extreme conditions. As both a social history of Britain in the early 20th century and a history of the British Army, the book reconciles the hard pragmatism of war with the imaginative and emotional. By carefully overlapping the civilian and the military, by juxtaposing "sense" and "sentimentality," and by considering institutional policy alongside individual experience, the soldier and his horse are re-instated as co-participants in The Great War.

Steamship Nationalism

Ocean Liners and National Identity in Imperial Germany and Atlantic World

Mark Russell, Concordia University, Canada

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern European History

Steamship Nationalism is a cultural, social, and political history of German ocean liners, focusing their cultural construction in a variety of contemporaneous media on either side of the Atlantic. At home, they were presented as symbolic of the nation's ambitions in ways that emphasize the complex nature of German national identity at the time. Abroad, they were construed as floating national monuments that facilitated important encounters with Germany, both virtual and real, British and American populations. Their overseas reception highlights the multi-faceted image of the European superpower that was constructed in the Anglo-American world in these years.

The Co-opting of Education by Extremist Factions

Professing Hate

Sarah Gendron, Marquette University, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern History

This monograph is a study of the ways in which various extremist groups have appropriated education for social manipulation in order to gain political power, and in some cases, to incite violence. It is a detailed exploration of case studies representing both a wide range of situational differences (time, place, and political orientation) and experiential similarities. To examine a broad scope of circumstances, this book explores various types of rule (from National Socialism to Communism to Capitalism) from around the world (Europe, Asia, Africa, and North America) and spans time periods from the mid-twentieth century to the beginning of the twenty-first century.

The Global Perspective of Urban Labor in Mexico City, 1910–1929

El Mundo al Revés

Stephan Fender, University College Dublin, Ireland

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of the Americas

This book examines the global entanglement of the Mexican labor movement during the Mexican Revolution. It describes how global influences made their entry into labor culture, and explores how the movement constituted its discourse and invented its tradition. The local conditions constitute the framework for the examination of Mexican labor's engagement with events of global significance. This approach allows new perspectives on the role of a neglected revolutionary actor and on the influence of global developments. It shows the way global ideas were brought to life in the framework of Mexico City – providing new insights into the grand-narratives of Globalization and Revolution.

The Last Year of President Kennedy and the "Multiple Path" Policy Toward Cuba

Håkan Karlsson, University of Gothenburg, Sweden and

Tomás Díez Acosta, Instituto de Historia de Cuba

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of the Americas

This book presents new aspects of the U.S. "multiple path" policy toward Cuba that was designed and adopted after the Missile Crisis (October 1962) until the assassination of President Kennedy on November 22, 1963, from a Cuban perspective. The policy was characterized by its contradictory profile, since simultaneously as aggressions were directed at Cuba, channels of communication were established with the Cuban government. The book also analyzes the Cuban–Soviet dispute during the same period. The Cuban experiences have still not been sufficiently discussed, and the aspects offered will enrich the knowledge of the U.S.–Cuban relationship during the mentioned period.

The Magic Lantern at Work

Witnessing, Persuading, Experiencing and Connecting

Edited by Martyn Jolly, Australian National University, Australia and Elisa deCourcy, Australian National University, Australia

Series: Routledge Studies in Cultural History

Historians, curators and artists around the world are now giving the magic lantern the attention it deserves. Through the "magic" of colourful images projected in sequence, accompanied by music and speech, audiences sitting together in darkened rooms became witnesses to remote events, were visually persuaded by new knowledge, felt connected to distant places, and collectively experienced uncanny phenomena. Through a set of very different but equally fascinating case studies, a team of international scholars analyze the emerging power of the lantern show in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries within politics, religion, travel, science, health, marketing and entertainment.

The Monroe Doctrine in a Contemporary Perspective

Denneth M. Modeste

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of the Americas

This book surveys the impact of the Monroe Doctrine on United States relations with Latin America, with a particular focus on the Caribbean Basin, since its proclamation in 1823. It posits the proposition that the Monroe Doctrine remains the philosophic premise of United States policy in the American hemisphere. This is an invaluable resource for academics, policymakers, students, as well as an informed general readership interested in American diplomatic history, international affairs and inter-American relations.

Warfare and the Making of Early Medieval Italy (568–652)

Eduardo Fabbro

Series: Studies in Medieval History and Culture

Moving past traditional narratives of barbarians and battles, this book re-evaluates the impact of war in creating early medieval Italy. Fabbro brings to the fore a complex picture that includes not only invading barbarians but also rebelling soldiers, disgruntled farmers, vexed commanders, and cunning adventurers trying to make the best of a bad situation. Through a complete reassessment of contemporary and later sources, Warfare and the Making of Early Medieval Italy rewrites the history of the first decades of Lombard rule and shows that warfare's impact went far beyond battles and invasions; it rewired the social and political links that bound the region.

Women Photographers of the Pacific World, 1857–1930

Anne Maxwell

Series: Routledge Studies in Cultural History

This book examines the lives and works of 12 women photographers working in the Pacific Rim settler territories from 1857–1930. It addresses both early 20th-century artistic and ethnographic photography in the region and 19th-century commercial photography. In addition to asking how they responded to the challenge of being women in a male-dominated profession, what was new about the techniques and methods they deployed and the kinds of artistic visions they brought to bear on their subjects, it also explores how they portrayed the region's indigenous peoples and the landscape as white settlement and capitalism became evermore entrenched.

Contemporary Museum Architecture and Design

Theory and Practice of Place

Edited by Georgia Lindsay, University of Colorado Boulder, USA

This book showcases eighteen diverse essays written by people who design, work in, and study museums, offering a variety of perspectives on this complex building type. Throughout, the authors emphasize new kinds of experiences that museum architecture helps create, connecting ideas about design at various levels of analysis, from thinking about how the building sits in the city to exploring the details of technology.

Written by an international range of museum administrators, architects, and researchers this collection is an essential resource for understanding the social impacts of museum architecture and design for professionals, students, and museum-lovers alike.

Eckweek, Peasedown-St-John, Somerset

Survey and Excavations at a Shrunken Medieval Hamlet 1988-1990

Society for Medieval Archaeology

Series: Society for Medieval Archaeology Monographs

This volume presents the results of archaeological survey and excavation at Eckweek, Somerset, which yielded one of the most important medieval rural settlement sequences yet excavated from south-west England. At the centre of the narrative is a succession of well-preserved buildings spanning the late 10th to the 14th centuries A.D. forming the nucleus of a Domesday manor and its Late Saxon precursor. Anyone with an interest in the dynamics and regional complexity of medieval rural communities will find this a stimulating and enlightening read.

The Digital Future of Museums

Conversations and Provocations

Edited by Keir Winesmith, San Francisco Museum of Modern Art, USA and Susan Anderson, George Washington University, USA

The Digital Future of Museums: Provocations and Conversations argues that museums today can neither ignore the importance of digital technologies when engaging their communities, nor fail to address the broader social, economic, and cultural changes that shape their digital offerings. This book is essential reading for museum studies students and those who teach or write about the museum sector. It will also be of interest to those who work in, for, and with museums, as well as practitioners working in galleries, archives and libraries.

Working with Young Children in Museums

Weaving Theory and Practice

Edited by Abigail Hackett, Manchester Metropolitan University, Rachel Holmes, Manchester Metropolitan University and Christina MacRae

Young Children in Museums makes a major contribution to the small body of extant research on young children in museums, galleries and heritage sites. Bridging theory and practice, the book introduces theoretical concepts in a clear and concise manner, whilst also providing practical and inspirational insights into everyday programming in museums. It should be of equal interest to researchers and students engaged in the study of museum learning, early childhood education and children's experiences in museums.

A History of Participation in Museums and Archives

Traversing Citizen Science and Citizen Humanities

Edited by Per Hetland, University of Oslo, Norway, Palmyre Pierroux, University of Oslo, Norway and Line Esborg, University of Oslo, Norway

Traversing disciplines, A History of Participation in Museums and Archives provides a framework for understanding how participatory modes in natural, cultural and scientific heritage institutions intersect with practices in Citizen Science and Citizen Humanities.

It should be essential reading for a broad academic audience, including scholars and students in museum and heritage studies, digital humanities and the public communication of science and technology. It should also be of great interest to museum professionals working to foster public engagement through collaboration with networks and local community groups.

Monarchs and Hydrarchs

The Conceptual Development of Viking Activity across the Frankish Realm (c. 750–940)

Christian Coojmans, University of Liverpool, United Kingdom

Series: Routledge Archaeologies of the Viking World

As the politico-economic exploits of vikings in and around the Frankish realm remain, to a considerable extent, obscured by the constraints of a fragmentary and biased corpus of (near-)contemporary evidence, this volume approaches the available interdisciplinary data on a cumulative and conceptual level, allowing overall spatiotemporal patterns of viking activity to be detected and defined – and thereby challenging the notion that these movements were capricious, haphazard, and gratuitous in character.

Monarchs and Hydrarchs will appeal to students and specialists of the Viking Age.

A Representation of Nationhood in the Museum

Sang-hoon Jang, National Museum of Korea

Series: Routledge Research on Museums and Heritage in Asia

A Representation of Nationhood in the Museum examines how the National Museum of Korea, as a national repository of material culture and the state's premier exhibition facility, has shaped and been shaped by Korean nationalism. Exploring the processes by which the museum has discovered and interpreted material culture using concepts of ethnic nationalism in the historical and political contexts of South Korean society, the book analyses how this nationalist interpretation has regulated the South Koreans' understanding of their material culture.

Narrative Theory in Conservation

Change and Living Buildings

Nigel Walter, University of York, UK

Narrative Theory in Conservation engages with conservation, heritage studies and architecture approaches to historic buildings, offering a synthesis of the best of each, and demonstrating that conservation is capable of developing a complementary, but distinct, theoretical position of its own. The book articulates a coherent theoretical position for conservation that addresses the urgent question of how historic buildings that remain in use should respond to change. As such, the book should be of great interest to academics, researchers and postgraduate students from the fields of conservation, heritage studies and architecture.

Rome, Parthia, and the Politics of Peace

The Origins of War in the Ancient Middle East

Jason M. Schlude
 Series: Routledge Studies in Ancient History
 This volume offers an informed survey of the problematic relationship between the ancient empires of Rome and Parthia from c.96/95 BCE to 224 CE. Schlude explores the rhythms of this relationship and invites its readers to reconsider the past and our relationship with it. Rome, Parthia, and the Politics of Peace is a fascinating new study of these two superpowers that will be of interest not only students of Rome and the Near East, but also to anyone with an interest in diplomatic relations and conflict in the ancient world, and today.

The Art of Elam ca. 4200 – 525 BC

Javier Álvarez-Mon Sánchez, Macquarie University, Australia
The Art of Elam ca. 4200-525 BC offers a view of, and a critical reflection on, the art history of one of the world's first and least-known civilizations, illuminating a significant chapter of our human past.
 Such a magisterial study of Elamite art has never been written making The Art of Elam ca. 4200-525 BC a ground-breaking publication essential to all students of ancient art and to our current understanding of the civilizations of the ancient Near East.

Theodosius and the Limits of Empire

Mark Hebblewhite

The emperor Theodosius I (AD 379-395) was one of the most remarkable figures of the Fourth Century AD. In the face of religious schism, political turmoil, and barbarian threats he managed to maintain imperial power and forge a political dynasty that would dominate both East and West for over half a century. This study, the first English language biography in over twenty years, traces his rise to power and tumultuous reign, and examines his indelible impact on a rapidly changing empire.

Underworld Gods in Ancient Greek Religion

Death and Reciprocity

Ellie Mackin Roberts

Series: Routledge Monographs in Classical Studies

This volume presents a case for how and why people in archaic and classical Greece worshipped Underworld gods.

These gods are often portrayed as malevolent and transgressive, giving an impression that ancient worshippers derived little or no benefits from developing ongoing relationships with them. In this book, the first book-length study that focuses on Underworld gods as an integral part of the religious landscape of the period, Mackin Roberts challenges this view and shows that Underworld gods are, in many cases, approached and 'befriended' in the same way as any other kind of god.

This volume will be of interest to anyone working on ancient Greek religion and cult.

Architecture and Sacrament

A Critical Theory

David Wang, Washington State University, Pullman, USA

David Wang's Architecture and Sacrament considers contemporary architecture theory from a Christian theological perspective. Wang explains the social and cultural reasons why the theological literature tends to be separate from current literature in architecture theory. This book bridges the divide by showing, for example, how the loss of sacramental outlooks, which guided centuries of art and architecture in the West, can shed light on the plight of "big box stores," the environmental crisis and the loss of a sense of community.

Democratic Vernaculars

Rhetorics of Reading, Writing, Speaking, and Criticism since the Enlightenment

J Michael Sproule

Democratic Vernaculars is a comprehensive, culturally inclusive, and thematically unified history of the communicative, audience-centered rhetorical vernacular that occupies the "middle range" of English, bounded on the one side by expressive structure (grammar and linguistics) and on the other by aesthetics (literature). By considering a vast collection of vernacular resources, from elementary readers to rhetorical treatises, it tells the story of the emergence of everyday English idioms. Essential reading for scholars in rhetoric and the histories of language and education, it can serve as a text for upper-division undergraduate and graduate courses in rhetoric.

Branding Diversity

New Advertising and Cultural Strategies

Susie Khamis

Series: Routledge Critical Advertising Studies

Branding Diversity considers how brands both reflect and affect contemporary discussions of cultural diversity. Advancing an innovative, critical perspective on advertising, the book challenges the latent assumption that advertisers are inherently conservative, reluctant to represent anything other than popularly agreeable scripts and narratives. On the contrary, advertising is now replete with progressive messaging. Through Budweiser, Gillette, Vogue and Patagonia, Susie Khamis demonstrates that such forays into the political realm are not just shrewd appraisals of popular causes, but also inevitable outcomes of contemporary media and politics.

Cultural Representations of Femicidio at the US-Mexico Border

Series: Global Gender

Since the early 1990s murders of women from Ciudad Juárez have become something of a global cause célèbre. Indeed the city has come to represent a kind of 'ground zero' for femicidio and, as such, is the classic case study for a phenomenon that is now demanding global recognition and action. Cultural Representations of Femicidio at the US Mexican Border scrutinizes the range of cultural responses about Ciudad Juárez's feminicidal wave to explore how art, performance, poetry, film, fiction and music engage with the violence and trauma. Finnegan argues that the cultural expressions provide a lens through which structural and historic patterns of violence can be understood and challenged.

Form and Meaning in Avant-Garde Collage and Montage

Magda Dragu, Indiana University Bloomington

Series: Routledge Research in Art History

Magda Dragu distinguishes between the concepts of collage and montage, as defined across several media (fine arts, literature, music, film, photography), based on the type of artistic meaning they generate, rather than the mechanical procedures involved. The book applies theories of intermediality to collage and montage, which is crucial for understanding collage as a form of cultural production. Throughout, the author considers the political implications, as collages and montages were often used for propagandistic purposes.

Gender and Digital Culture

Between Irreconcilability and the Datalogical

Helen Thornham

Gender and Digital Culture is a unique contribution to the theoretical and methodological understandings of digital technology as always-already and inherently gendered. Utilizing original empirical data from three methodologically innovative research projects, and concentrating on recent digital phenomena, it offers a radical critique of the central assumptions made about the transformative power of technology. Focusing on the lived and routine elements of digital technologies, Helen Thornham asks about the many convolutions that are held together through everyday use, and the implications of this for how gender and technology are approached, discussed and theorised.

Graphic Novels and Visual Cultures in South Asia

Edited by E. Dawson Varughese and Rajinder Dudrah
Graphic Novels and Visual Cultures in South Asia explores the shifting landscapes of the graphic narratives and related visual cultures scene in South Asia today.

Through its inclusion of articles, visual essays and in-conversation pieces, this collection offers insight into the ways in which this narrative is unfolding, the kind of stories which are being told and how, in telling these stories, South Asian society is called upon to engage and crucially, to react to what we see, how and why we see it. This book was originally published as a special issue of the South Asian Popular Culture journal.

Hacking Gender and Technology in Journalism

 Series: Disruptions

Hacking Gender and Technology in Journalism addresses the question of whether journalism's new digital spaces suffer from the same gendered structures as traditional media organisations or whether they go beyond such bias. The book offers insights into the challenges that women journalists face in relation to technological innovation as well as the potential for developing strategies for empowerment that it offers. More specifically, there is a focus on the gendering of digital skills, the construction of gender in new digital spheres of journalism, and how these changes can lead to the disruption of gender inequalities in journalism.

Hot Art, Cold War – Western and Northern European Writing on American Art 1945-1990

Edited by Claudia Hopkins, University of Edinburgh and Iain Boyd Whyte, University of Edinburgh

This is a major, two-volume anthology of primary source texts on postwar American art between 1945 and 1989, translated from a wide range of European languages into English for the first time and augmented by scholarly essays. This book will be the first full-scale account of the reception of American art across the entirety of Europe, greatly enriching the field of American art studies. Postwar American art triggered varied – positive and negative – responses across Europe. There was no single European discourse, as the responses were inflected by a range of issues (political, social, artistic, etc.) that varied in the different national contexts across Europe.

Crossing Boundaries in Game Design, Player Identities and Play Spaces

Edited by Adriana de Souza e Silva and Ragan Glover-Rijkse Series: Routledge Advances in Game Studies

This book explores hybrid play as a site of interdisciplinary activity—one that is capable of generating new forms of mobility, communication, subjects, and artistic expression as well as new ways of interacting with and understanding the world.

The chapters in this collection explore hybrid making, hybrid subjects, and hybrid spaces, generating interesting conversations about the past, current and future nature of hybrid play.

Together, the authors offer important insights into how place and space are co-constructed through play; how, when, and for what reasons people occupy hybrid spaces; and how cultural practices shape elements of play and vice versa.

Intercultural Communication, Identity, and Social Movements in the Digital Age

Edited by Margaret U. D'Silva, University of Louisville, USA and Ahmet Atay, The College of Wooster, USA

Series: Routledge Research in Communication Studies

This book examines the complex and multidimensional relationship between culture and social media, and its specific impact on issues of identity and social movements, in a globalized world.

Social media becomes a space for mediated cultural information transfer which can either facilitate a vibrant public sphere or create cultural and social cleavages. Contributors of the book come from diverse cultural backgrounds to provide a comprehensive analysis of how these social media exchanges allow members of traditionally oppressed groups find their voices, cultivate communities, and construct their cultural identities in multiple ways.

Journalism, Citizenship and Surveillance Society

Edited by Karin Wahl-Jorgensen

This book shows how surveillance society shapes and interacts with journalistic practices and discourses. It illustrates not only how surveillance debates play out in and through mediated discourses, but also how practices of surveillance inform the stories, everyday work and the ethics of journalists. The book raises fundamental questions around the role of journalism in creating the conditions for digital citizenship. The chapters in this book were originally published in a special issue of the journal, Digital Journalism.

Labor and Creativity in New York's Global Fashion Industry

Christina H. Moon

Series: Routledge Research in Design Studies

This book tells the story of the emergence of fashion's new working class in New York: fashion workers engaged in the labor of design and the material making of fashion in the early twenty-first century.

Christina Moon offers an illuminating ethnography into the various sites and practices that make up fashion labor in the New York industry, from sample rooms, design studios, runways, factories, to design schools. By exploring the work practices, social worlds, and aspirations of fashion workers, this book is a unique revelatory look into the meaning of labor and creativity in twenty-first century global fashion.

Liberalism, Nationalism and Design Reform in the Habsburg Empire

Museums of Design, Industry and the Applied Arts

Edited by Matthew Rampley, University of Birmingham, Markian Prokopovych, University of Durham and Nóra Veszprémi, University of Birmingham

Series: Routledge Research in Art Museums and Exhibitions

Museums of design and applied arts were created to further liberal ideas of free trade, social and economic modernisation and aesthetic reform. This book considers the concrete ways in which the socio-political visions of liberalism translated into museum practice, as well as the manner in which museums reflected liberalism's blind spots and critical weaknesses. The Museum for Art and Industry in Vienna (now the Museum of Applied Arts) occupies a prominent place in the study, but as a study of Austria-Hungary as a whole, the book also examines museums across the Empire, from Cracow to Zagreb, and Budapest to Prague.

Mannerism, Spirituality and Cognition

The Art Of Enargeia

Lynette M. F. Bosch

Series: Visual Culture in Early Modernity

This book employs a new approach to the art of sixteenth-century Europe by incorporating rhetoric and theory to enable a reinterpretation of the origin of Mannerism as being grounded in sixteenth-century spirituality. Lynette M. F. Bosch examines the conceptual vocabulary found in sixteenth-century treatises on art from Giorgio Vasari to Federico Zuccari, which analyzes how language and spirituality complement the visual styles of Mannerism. By exploring the way in which writers from Leone Ebreo to Gabriele Paleotti describe the interaction between art and spirituality, Bosch establishes a religious base for the language of art in sixteenth-century Europe.

Migration, Identity, and Belonging

Defining Borders and Boundaries of the Homeland

Edited by Kumari Sinha, University of North Carolina Chapel Hill, USA and Margaret E. Franz, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, USA

Series: Routledge Research in Cultural and Media Studies

This volume responds to a seemingly simple question: How do you know when you belong to a country? The boundaries and borders defining who belongs and who does not proliferate in the age of globalization. Contributors to this collection engage with how these boundaries are made and sustained. The authors' diverse methodologies, ranging from archival research, oral histories, literary criticism, and ethnography attend to these contradictions by studying how the practices of migration and identification, procured and produced through global exchanges of bodies and goods that cross borders, foreclose those borders to (re)produce, and (re)imagine the homeland and its boundaries.

Mongol Court Dress, Identity Formation, and Global Exchange

Eiren L. Shea, Grinnell College

Series: Routledge Research in Art History

The wide-ranging international exchange that occurred during the Mongol period is most apparent visually through the inclusion of Mongol motifs in textile, paintings, ceramics, and metalwork, among other media. Eiren Shea investigates how a group of newly-confederated tribes from the steppe conquered the most sophisticated societies in existence in less than a century, creating a courtly idiom that permanently changed the aesthetics of China and whose echoes were felt across Central Asia, the Middle East, and even Europe.

Mural Painting in Britain 1630-1730

Experiencing Histories

Lydia Hamlett, University of Cambridge

Series: Routledge Research in Art History

This book illuminates the original meanings of seventeenth and early eighteenth-century mural paintings in Britain. At the time, these were called 'histories'. Throughout the eighteenth century, though, the term became directly associated with easel painting and, as 'history painting' achieved the status of a sublime genre, any link with painted architectural interiors was lost. Whilst both genres contained historical figures and narratives, it was the ways of viewing them that differed. Lydia Hamlett emphasises the way that mural paintings were experienced by spectators within their architectural settings.

Nationalism and Popular Culture

Series: Popular Culture and World Politics

Comprised of chapters covering a wide range of cases from both the Global North and Global South (including Argentina, Australia, Canada, Europe, Israel, Pakistan, and the United States), the text unpacks the connections between nationalism and film, television, music, and other facets of everyday culture. In doing so, it demonstrates that popular culture can help us understand why and how nationhood has become so deeply entrenched in modern society.

This book will be of interest to scholars of political science, nationalism, sociology, history, media studies, and cultural studies.

Radio Modernisms

Features, Cultures and the BBC

Edited by Aasiya Lodhi, University of Westminster, UK and Amanda Wrigley, University of Reading, UK

This collection interrogates and stimulates deep, cross-disciplinary engagement with the various understandings and interplays of 'radio modernisms' from the early decades of the twentieth century through to the 1950s. In examining the myriad ways in which radio gave shape to new modernities and both evolved and constituted new forms of modernism, the collection offers fresh perspectives on the interconnected significance of 'radio modernisms' within the socio-cultural, literary, and political landscapes of twentieth century Britain. Representations of Working-Class Masculinities in Post-War British Culture

Series: Interdisciplinary Research in Gender

This book presents an analysis of representations of white, heterosexual, working-class masculinities in British culture in the latter half of the 20th century. As the period which saw the establishment of the Welfare State, and the construction and breakdown of the post-war consensus in British politics, this is a period of great significance in the formation and maintenance of working-class masculinities and their correspondent representations. Using the analysis of representations of working-class masculinities as a lens the author examines a range of historical and cultural moments including films (Alfie), Plays (Don't Look Back in Anger) and Music (The Beatles).

Re-scheduling Television in the Digital Era

Hanne Bruun

Series: Routledge Focus on Television Studies

This book explores how the television industry is adapting its production culture and professional practises of scheduling to an increasingly non-linear television paradigm. Based on four case studies the book argues that a third television paradigm is being produced from within the multiplatform television organisations themselves in order to adapt to changing viewer habits and the tensions between digital and broadcast television. Situated at the intersection of the humanities and sociology within media production studies, this book will be of interest to scholars and students of television studies, media production studies and cultural studies.

Television and the Embodied Viewer

Affect and Meaning in the Digital Age

Marsha F. Cassidy, University of Illinois at Chicago, USA

Series: Routledge Advances in Television Studies

Presenting a fresh approach to television studies, the book illustrates how TV's multisensory appeal builds viewer empathy and animates meaning.

The book examines a range of provocative television works, notably The Americans, Mad Men, Little Women: LA, and Six Feet Under, with emphasis on the dramatization of gender, disability, sex, childbearing, and death.

At a time when questions of embodiment and affect are crossing disciplines, this book will appeal to scholars and students working in the fields of television, film, and media studies, both in the humanities and cognitive traditions.

Sacred Rhetorical Education in 19th Century America

Austin Phelps at Andover Theological Seminary

Michael-John DePalma

Series: Routledge Studies in Rhetoric and Communication

This book offers new insight into the ways rhetorical educators' religious motives influenced the shape of nineteenth-century rhetorical education.

The author studies the rhetorical pedagogy of Austin Phelps, the prominent preacher and professor of sacred rhetoric at Andover Theological Seminary, and his theologically-motivated adaptation of rhetorical education to fit the exigencies of preachers at the first graduate seminary in the United States.

This book will be essential reading for scholars and students of rhetoric, education, American history, religious education, and

The Embodied Imagination in Antebellum American Art and Culture

Catherine Holochwost, La Salle University

Series: Routledge Research in Art History

This book reveals a new history of the imagination told through its engagement with the body. American audiences avidly consumed a transatlantic visual culture picturing a preindustrial—and largely imaginary—European past. By examining both the artistic production and critical and popular reception of these works, the book analyzes their similarities with other forms of mass culture, including gift books, theatrical performances and spectacles such as blackface minstrelsy, Romantic ballet, and burlesque opera. The book will be of interest to scholars of art history, literary and cultural history, critical race studies, performance studies, and media studies.

The Legend of Veronica in Early Modern Art

Katherine T. Brown, Walsh University Series: Routledge Research in Art and Religion

This book explores the apocryphal character of Veronica and the history of the "true image" relic as factors in the Franciscans' placement of her character into the Via Crucis (Way of the Cross) as the Sixth Station around the turn of the fifteenth century. Brown examines how the Franciscans adopted and adapted the legend of Veronica to meet their own evangelical goals by intervening in the fabric of Jerusalem to incorporate her narrative—which is not found in the Gospels—into an urban path constructed for pilgrims, as well as in similar participatory installations in church yards and naves across Western Europe.

Theodore Gericault, Painting Black Bodies

Confrontations and Contradictions

Albert Alhadeff, University of Colorado, Boulder

Series: Routledge Research in Art and Race

This book examines Théodore Géricault's images of black men, women and children who suffered slavery's trans-Atlantic passage in the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries, including his 1819 painting Raft of the Medusa. The book focuses on Géricault's depiction of black people, his approach towards slavery, and the voices that advanced or denigrated them. By turning to documents, essays and critiques, both before and after Waterloo (1815), and, most importantly Géricault's own oeuvre, this study explores the fetters of slavery that Géricault challenged – overtly or covertly, deliberately or with reticence – alongside a growing number of abolitionist peers.

Wayfinding, Consumption, and Air Terminal Design

Menno Hubregtse

Series: Routledge Research in Design Studies

This book investigates how international air terminals organize passenger movement and generate spending. It offers a new understanding of how their architecture and artworks operate visually to guide people through the space and affect their behaviour.

Menno Hubregtse's research draws upon numerous airport visits and interviews with architects and planners as well as documents and articles that address these terminals' development, construction, and renovations. The book establishes the main concerns of architects with respect to wayfinding strategies and analyzes how air terminal architecture, artworks, and interior design contribute to the airport's operations.

Why We Remake

The Politics, Economics and Emotions of Film and TV Remakes

Lauren Rosewarne

Series: Routledge Advances in Film Studies

Each chapter provides insight into the business of Hollywood, the motivations of filmmakers and also the pleasures for audiences, and offers a separate explanation for the whys of remaking.

Utilizing an interdisciplinary approach, the author draws from existing literature, close readings of films and a dataset of hundreds of film reviews, to provide a taxonomy and deep-dive into six unique rationales for remaking premade titles: the better remake, the economic remake, the nostalgic remake, the Americanized remake, the creative remake, the fashionable remake.

Women's Patronage and Gendered Cultural Networks in Early Modern Europe

Vittoria della Rovere, Grand Duchess of Tuscany

Adelina Modesti, Latrobe University

Series: Visual Culture in Early Modernity

This book examines the socio-cultural networks between the courts of early modern Italy and Europe, focusing on the Florentine Medici court, and the cultural patronage and international gendered networks developed by Grand Duchess of Tuscany, Vittoria della Rovere. By using Grand Duchess Vittoria as an exemplar of pan-European matronage, this study proposes a new matrilineal model of patronage in the early modern period, one in which women become not only the mediators but also the architects of public taste and the transmitters of cultural capital. The book will be the first comprehensive monographic study of this important cultural figure.

WPA Posters in an Aesthetic, Social, and Political Context

A New Deal for Design

Cory Pillen, Fort Lewis College

Series: Routledge Research in Art and Politics

This book examines posters produced by the Works Progress Administration (WPA), a federal relief program designed to create jobs in the United States during the Great Depression. Cory Pillen focuses on several issues addressed repeatedly in the roughly 2,200 extant WPA posters created between 1935 and 1943: recreation and leisure, conservation, health and disease, and public housing. As the book shows, the posters promote specific forms of knowledge and literacy as solutions to contemporary social concerns.

Literature and Social Media

Bronwen Thomas

Series: Literature and Contemporary Thought

Reading social media in relation to literature, but also as a literary form in its own right, this lively guide demonstrates that social media platforms have produced their own unique forms of creative expression. Thomas takes a unique approach examining how authors interact with readers, but also how social media is used to create an ongoing collaborative discourse. This approach to the study of contemporary literary practices, cultures and communities will provide a timely account of the state of art, while also exploring the implications for traditional literary forms and practices and interrogating the rhetoric that so often accompanies discussion of the 'new' in this context

Albert Camus

The Unheroic Hero of Our Time

Ramin Jahanbegloo, Cultural Research Bureau, Tehran, Iran

This book interprets the ideas and concepts that characterize the works of Albert Camus for our contemporary times. It investigates Camus's 'revolted compassion' as an outsider and a philosopher-writer who in his own words believed in 'creating dangerously'. Bringing together latest scholarship with an acute analysis of Albert Camus's philosophy, this sourcebook throws a powerful light on the intellectual foundations of the twentieth century and its relevance for the twenty-first. The book will be of interest to scholars of literature, philosophy and African Studies.

Charles Simic and the Poetics of Uncertainty

Donovan McAbee

McAbee addresses uncertainty regarding the national character of Simic's poetry and how this is complicated by Simic's identity as a Yugoslavian refugee to the United States. The book assesses the theological and linguistic uncertainties of Simic's poetry and explores the ways that Simic articulates the aesthetic space created by poems, as a safe place of encounter for the reader. The book argues for the role of humor as a primary mode that holds together the uncertainties of Simic's poetry, and finally, it articulates the way that within these uncertainties, Simic develops a deeply humane political poetry of survival.

Empty Nurseries, Queer Occupants

Reproduction and the Future in Ibsen's Late Plays

Olivia Noble Gunn

Series: Studies in Childhood, 1700 to the Present

Who is the proper occupant of the nursery? The obvious answer is the child, and not an archive, a seductive troll-princess, or poor fosterlings. Nevertheless, characters in Hedda Gabler, The Master Builder, and Little Eyolf intend to host these improper occupants in their children's rooms. Dr. Gunn calls these dramas 'the empty nursery plays' because they all describe rooms intended for offspring, as well as characters' plans for refilling that space. Empty Nurseries, Queer Occupants intervenes in scholarly debates in child studies by arguing that the empty bourgeois nursery is a better symbol for innocence than the child.

Contemporary Rewritings of Liminal Women

Echoes of the Past

Miriam Borham-Puyal

Series: Among the Victorians and Modernists

By underlining the dialogue between past and present this monograph contributes to contemporary debates on the representation of women and the construction of femininity as opposed to hegemonic masculinity which are informed by previous attitudes and beliefs. It exposes the line of thought that has brought us to the present moment, hence, challenging assumed stereotypes and narratives. By using popular narratives and media, the present work highlights the value of literature, films or alternative forms of storytelling to understand how women's place in society, their voice, and their presence have been and are still negotiated in spaces of visibility, agency and power.

Geography and the Literary Imagination in Victorian Fictions of Empire

The Poetics of Imperial Space

Jean Fernandez

Series: Routledge Studies in Nineteenth Century Literature

In this pioneering study, Dr. Fernandez explores how the rise of institutional geography in Victorian England impacted imperial fiction's emergence as a genre characterized by a preoccupation with space and place. This volume argues that the alliance between institutional geography and the British empire which commenced with the founding of the Royal Geographical Society in 1830, shaped the spatial imagination of Victorians, with profound consequences for the novel of empire.

Poetry and Uselessness

From Coleridge to Ashbery

Robert Archambeau

Series: Among the Victorians and Modernists

W.H. Auden famously claimed "poetry makes nothing happen." That may or may not be the case, but the idea that poetry makes nothing happen has, itself, been extremely influential, and has made a great deal happen in the world. This book examines several of the main currents in literary history as that influential idea flows through poetry and into the wider world. Through chapters on figures from Coleridge and Tennyson to Yeats, Eliot, Auden, Gertrude Stein and John Ashbery, we see how maintaining that poetry has no use in the world has been and remains a very powerful—and useful—idea.

Promiscuity in Western Literature

Peter Stoneley, University of Reading, UK

Series: Literary Criticism and Cultural Theory

Promiscuity in Western Literature capitalises on the fact that literature gives us deep and varied resources for reflecting on this controversial aspect of human behaviour. Drawing on authors from Homer to Margaret Atwood, it shows how the idea of promiscuity has been a source of anxiety and fantasy, and a means of control.

The Arctic in Literature for Children and Young Adults

Edited by Heidi Hansson, Maria Lindgren Leavenworth and Anka Ryall

Series: Children's Literature and Culture

As a setting for juvenile literature, the Arctic has traditionally been a space for adventure, the exotic and the fantastic. More recent works have used the Arctic setting to explore a dystopian future, often related to climate change. The aim of the present volume is to examine themes in Arctic juvenile fiction from the early nineteenth century until today. The deceptive image of the Arctic as geographically uniform seems to promise a cultural coherence, but the collection illustrates the diversity of Arctic literature by critically discussing and comparing works written by visitors and settlers as well as by indigenous peoples.

Trauma, Gender and Ethics in the Works of E.L. Doctorow

María Ferrández San Miguel

Series: Routledge Research in American Literature and Culture

This project approaches four of Doctorow's novels—Welcome to Hard Times (1960), The Book of Daniel (1971), Ragtime (1975), and City of God (2000)—from the perspectives of feminist criticism and trauma theory. The study springs from the assumption that Doctorow's literary project is eminently ethical and has an underlying social and political scope.

The Ethical Vision of George Eliot

Thomas Albrecht

Series: Among the Victorians and Modernists

Through meticulous close readings of Eliot's fiction, essays, and letters, The Ethical Vision of George Eliot presents an original, complex definition of her ethical vision as she developed it over the course of her career. It examines major novels like Adam Bede, Middlemarch, and Daniel Deronda; many of Eliot's most significant essays; and devotes two entire chapters to Eliot's final book Impressions of Theophrastus Such, an idiosyncratic collection of character sketches that Eliot scholars have heretofore generally overlooked or ignored.

The Dark Side of Translation

Edited by Federico Italiano

Propaganda, misinformation, narratives of trauma and imagery of the enemy show patterns of communication in which translation either functions as a weapon or constitutes a space of conflict. Ground-breaking in its theoretical conception and pioneering in its thematic approach, this book unites international scholars from a range of disciplines. With examples that illustrate complex theoretical and philosophical issues, this book also has a major focus on the translational dimension of ecology and climate change. Transdisciplinary and topical, this book is key reading for researchers, scholars and advanced students of translation studies, literature and related areas.

Local Language Testing

Design, Implementation, and Development

Slobodanka Dimova, April Ginther, Purdue University, USA and Xun Yan

This much-needed book describes the language testing practice that exists in the intermediate space between large-scale standardized testing and classroom assessment, an area that is rarely addressed in the literature. Covering both theory and practice, the book focuses on the advantages of local tests, fosters and encourages their use, and provides suggested ideas for their development and maintenance. The authors include examples of operational tests with well-proven track records. This book constitutes essential reading for language program directors, graduate students, and researchers involved in language program development and evaluation.

History of English

A Resource Book for Students

Dan McIntyre, University of Huddersfield, UK

Series: Routledge English Language Introductions

History of English provides students with the historical and contextual background to the study of English and answers the questions of why and how the English language has come to be written and spoken as it is today. This book provides a fresh perspective and innovative insight into an area that is often dealt with in a prosaic and dry manner. Structured to reflect the chronological development of the English language, it describes and explains the changes in the language over a span of 1500 years, covering all aspects from phonology and grammar, to the register and discourse.

Researching Discourse

A Student Guide

Edited by Christopher Hart, Lancaster University, UK

This is a 'how to' guide to conducting research in discourse analysis. Readers are taken step by step through the research process, working within different approaches to discourse analysis and with different types of discourse data. Each chapter follows a consistent format including: identifying research questions; data collection; ethics; data analysis; interpreting data; and presenting results. Highly student-friendly with pop-out boxes, tasks to check understanding and suggestions for further reading, this is the ideal companion for any student undertaking research in discourse analysis within English language, linguistics, applied linguistics and communication studies.

Theories in Second Language Acquisition

An Introduction

Edited by Bill VanPatten, Michigan State University, USA, Gregory D. Keating, San Diego State University, USA and Stefanie Wulff

Series: Second Language Acquisition Research Series

The third edition of this best-selling book surveys the major theories currently used in second language acquisition (SLA) research, serving as an ideal introductory text for undergraduate and graduate students in SLA and language teaching. Each chapter is written by leading scholars in the field and focuses on a single theory; each incorporating a basic foundational description of the theory, relevant data or research models used with this theory, common misunderstandings, and a sample study from the field to show the theory in practice. New to this edition is a chapter addressing social theory, and a chapter on the implications of SLA research for teaching.

A Conversation Analysis Approach to French L2 Learning

Introducing and Closing Topics in Everyday Interactions

Clelia König

Series: Routledge Advances in Second Language Studies

This book offers a critical examination of second language (L2) learning outside institutional contexts, with a focus on the way second language learners introduce, close, and manage conversational topics in everyday settings. König adopts a Conversation Analysis for Second Language Acquisition (CA-SLA) approach in analyzing oral data from a longitudinal study of L2 learners of French, au pairs in Swiss families, over several years. This volume contributes toward a greater understanding of L2 learning "in the wild," making this key reading for students and researchers in second language acquisition, applied linguistics, and French language learning and teaching.

Analysing Scientific Discourse from A Systemic Functional Linguistic Perspective

A Framework for Exploring Knowledge Building in Biology

Jing Hao

Series: Routledge Studies in Linguistics

This book puts forth a new description of ideational discourse semantics, arguing that a trinocular approach – that is, one that considers meaning simultaneously in grammar, in discourse in context, and in scientific register – is critical to our understanding of how meaning is constructed at different levels in scientific discourse. The volume outlines this framework for analysing disciplinary knowledge through language and applies it to text analysis, illustrated through examples from scientific discourse from undergraduate biology courses, including research articles, pedagogic materials, and student reports.

Chinese–English Interpreting and Intercultural Communication

Jim Hlavac, Monash University, Australia and Zhichang Xu, Monash University, Australia

Series: Routledge Advances in Translation and Interpreting Studies

This book provides a contemporary conceptualisation of intercultural communication with an application to one of the most common and yet overlooked types of interactions between Chinese- and English-speakers: communication mediated through an interpreter. It provides a discussion of intercultural communication resting on a contemporary analysis of discourse that looks at not only the discourse-pragmatic features that speakers bring with them to an interaction, but how discourse-pragmatic features are enacted and negotiated within interactions. Spoken, pragmatic and paralinguistic features are analysed within a theoretical framework that comprises five major areas of theories.

Crosslinguistic Influence in Singapore English

Linguistic and Social Aspects

Ming Chew Teo, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Sociolinguistics

This book aims to give a complete picture of how various social and linguistic factors interact with crosslinguistic influence in a multilingual setting. In a setting in which speakers with different heritage languages interact extensively, a major source of variation in Colloquial Singapore English comes from the complex interplay between crosslinguistic influences and social and linguistic factors. The author examines three grammatical features – past tense marking, the aspect marker 'already' and the discourse particle 'lor' to determine the affects and the extent of crosslinguistic influence.

Global Perspectives on Project-Based Language Learning, Teaching, and Assessment

Key Approaches, Technology Tools, and Frameworks

Edited by Gulbahar Beckett, Iowa State University, USA and Tammy Slater, Iowa State University, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Applied Linguistics

This volume provides a comprehensive account of project-based language learning (PBL) which showcases key theoretical approaches, empirical research, technological tools, and research-based frameworks to help further PBL implementation and research. Taking its cue from the conclusions drawn from project-based learning more broadly, which point to the impact of project-based work on learning and development, discourse socialization, subject engagement, and collaborative skills, the book highlights how these discussions might be extended and enhanced within the context of language learning.

Interdisciplinary Research Discourse

Corpus Investigations into Environment Journals

Paul Thompson, University of Birmingham, UK and Susan Hunston, University of Birmingham, UK

Series: Routledge Applied Corpus Linguistics

Interdisciplinary research is highly valued in national and international contexts but the nature of communication in interdisciplinary research domains is little understood. This book takes a corpus-based approach to the analysis of research articles that have been written for an interdisciplinary audience and provide cutting-edge and original insights on this topic.

Addressing key questions that surround writing for an interdisciplinary audience, Thompson and Hunston apply a range of corpus linguistic approaches to the analysis of research articles written for interdisciplinary audiences and is essential reading for researchers working in related areas.

Linguistic Mitigation in English and Spanish

How Speakers Attenuate Expressions

Nydia Flores-Ferrán

Series: Routledge Studies in Sociolinguistics

This volume offers a comprehensive examination of mitigation in speech in English and Spanish, exploring how it is defined and theorized and the various linguistic features employed to soften or downgrade the impact of a particular message across a range of settings. The volume explores examples from a variety of discursive contexts, including institutions, courts, and classrooms, to unpack mitigation as it occurs in spontaneous speech from both the micro level, at the actual discourse level, and at the macro level, at differences across dialects.

Prosodic Phonology of the Fuzhou Dialect

Domains and Rule Application

Shuxiang You

Series: Routledge Studies in Chinese Linguistics

Prosodic Phonology of the Fuzhou Dialect is the first attempt to conduct a comprehensive analysis of the Fuzhou phonological system from the perspective of prosodic phonology.

It addresses the following issues: What prosodic constituents exist in the Fuzhou dialect and what kinds of roles they play in the Fuzhou phonological system; how to define the domain formation of these prosodic constituents in the Fuzhou dialect; what kinds of Fuzhou phonological phenomena make crucial reference to these prosodic constituents as the domain of application; and what implications does the study of the Fuzhou phonological system have for the prosodic phonology theory.

Referring in a Second Language

Studies on Reference to Person in a Multilingual World

Edited by Jonathon Ryan, University of Waikato, New Zealand and Peter Crosthwaite, University of Queensland, Australia

Series: Routledge Studies in Applied Linguistics

The introduction and tracking of individuals over extended discourse, known as referential movement, is a central feature of coherence, and accounts for 'about every third word of discourse'. Located at the intersection of pragmatics and grammar, reference is now proving a rich and enduring source of insight into second language development. This volume focuses on how L2 learners meet the challenges of reference, bringing together both eminent and up-and-coming researchers in the field of L2 acquisition and looking at the L2 acquisition of English, French, Japanese, Korean, and Spanish and cover a diverse range of situational contexts.

The Discourse of Food Blogs

Multidisciplinary Perspectives

Daniela Cesiri

Series: Routledge Research in Language and Communication

This volume adopts a multidisciplinary perspective in analyzing and understanding the rich communicative resources and dynamics at work in the genre. Drawing on data from a small corpus of food blogs, the book implements a range of theoretical frameworks and methodological approaches to unpack the complexity of food blogs as a genre of computer-mediated communication. This wide-ranging framework allows for food blogs' many layered components, including recipes, photographs, narration in posts, and social media tie-ins, to be unpacked and understood at the structural, visual, verbal, and discourse level in a unified way.

Thematic Structure and Para-Syntax: Arabic as a Case Study

James Dickins

Series: Routledge Studies in Arabic Linguistics

Thematic Structure and Para-Syntax: Arabic as a Case Study presents a structural analysis of Arabic, providing an alternative to the traditional notions of theme and rheme.

Taking Arabic as a case-study, this book claims that approaches to thematic structure propounded in universalist linguistic theories, of which Hallidayan systemic functional linguistics is taken as an illustrative example, are profoundly wrong. The book initially focuses on Sudanese Arabic, because this allows for a beautifully clear exposition of general principles, before applying these principles to Modern Standard Arabic, and some other

Arabic varieties.

American Accent Drills for British and Australian Speakers

Amanda Quaid

American Accent Drills for British and Australian Speakers provides a comprehensive guide to learning a General American Accent, made specifically for native English speakers.

Unlike most American accent guides, which are geared toward ESL learners, this handbook covers only the shifts that English speakers need to make – nothing more, nothing less. This is an excellent resource for students of Speech and Dialects courses, actors from the UK, Australia, and New Zealand, and advanced ESL learners who need to use an American accent on screen or on stage. It also includes access to downloadable audio files of the practice drills featured in the book.

Rodgers and Hammerstein's The Sound of Music

Julian Woolford

Series: The Fourth Wall

Often dismissed as kitsch sentimentalism, The Sound of Music has proven an enduringly popular and surprisingly influential cultural icon. This book examines how the musical heralded the end of an era on Broadway; its reinvention of history and biography; how the film has influenced future stage productions; the ways in which it put child performers centre stage; and how, nearly 60 years after its stage debut, the musical still has a direct impact on the modern world, from the United States to the Middle East. Julian Woolford re-examines the musical from seven different perspectives, revealing the ways in which it continues to impact the twenty first century.

Exercises for Embodied Actors

Tools for Physical Actioning

Scott Illingworth

Exercises for Embodied Actors builds on the vocabulary of simple action verbs to generate an entire set of practical tools from first read to performance that harnesses modern knowledge about the integration of the mind and the rest of the body.

Including over 50 innovative exercises, this book leads actors through a rigorous examination of their own habits, links those discoveries to creating characters, and offers dozens of exercises to explore in classrooms and with ensembles. This step-by-step guide can be used by actors working individually or by teachers crafting the arc of a course.

Minstrel Traditions

Mediated Blackface in the Jazz Age

Kevin James Byrne

Minstrel Traditions: Mediated Blackface in the Jazz Age takes us through the late work of Bert Williams, Aunt Jemima advertising, amateur minstrel performances, vaudeville touring circuits, and African American Broadway musicals. All reflecting, and sometimes incorporating, the mass-culture technologies of the time, either in their subject matter or method of distribution. The book oscillates between two different types of performances, the live and the mediated, and will be of great interest to scholars and researchers in theatre studies, communication studies, race and media, and musical scholarship.

Performing Home

Stuart Andrews

Series: Routledge Advances in Theatre & Performance Studies

Performing Home is the first sustained study of the ways in which artists create artworks in, and in response to, domestic dwellings. In the context of growing interest in ideas and practices that cross between architecture, arts practice and performance, it is valuable to understand what happens when artists make work in and about specific buildings. The book focuses on a range of recent artistic projects to identify and investigate critical ways by which artists practise domestic dwellings, and will be of particular relevance to scholars, students and practitioners in architecture, art and performance, and to anyone seeking to make sense of the place in which they live.

Shakespeare in Singapore

Performance, Education, and Culture

Philip Smith

Series: Routledge Advances in Theatre & Performance Studies

Shakespeare in Singapore provides the first detailed and sustained study of the role of Shakespeare in Singaporean theatre, education, and culture. By uniting the critical interest in Singaporean theatre with the substantial body of scholarship that concerns global Shakespeare, the author offers a broad, yet in-depth, exploration of the ways in which Singaporean approaches to Shakespeare have been shaped by, and respond to, cultural work going on elsewhere in Asia. A vital read for all students and scholars of Shakespeare, this book offers a unique examination of the cultural impact of Shakespeare, beyond its usual footing in the Western world.

Recording Analysis

How the Record Shapes the Song

William Moylan

This book identifies and explains how the sounds imparted by recording processes enhance the artistry and expression of recorded songs. Moylan investigates how the process of recording a song transforms it into a richer experience and articulates how the unique elements of recorded sound provide essential substance and expression to recorded music. Evaluating the music, lyrics, social context, literary content and meaning, it offers detailed analyses of recording elements as they appear in a wide variety of tracks. Accompanied by a range of online resources, this is an essential read for students, academics and practitioners in record production, song-writing and popular music.

Electronic and Experimental Music

Technology, Music, and Culture

Thom Holmes

Electronic and Experimental Music: Technology, Music, and Culture, Sixth Edition, presents an extensive history of electronic music—from its historical beginnings in the late nineteenth century to its everchanging present—recounting the musical ideas that arose in parallel with technological progress. In four parts, the author details the fundamentals of electronic music, its history, the major synthesizer innovators, and contemporary practices. This examination of the music's experimental roots covers the key composers, genres, and techniques used in analog and digital synthesis, including both art and popular music, Western and non-Western.

A Cognitive Approach

Stein Helge Solstad, Volda University College, Norway

Series: SEMPRE Studies in The Psychology of Music

Expertise in Jazz Guitar Improvisation is an examination of musical interplay, and the ways implicit (sub-conscious) and explicit (conscious) knowledge appears during improvisation. By explaining the cognitive and musical foundations for expertise in jazz guitar improvisation, this book illuminates how jazz guitarists' strategies are crucially dependent on context, style, and type of interplay. With accompanying video provided as an e-resource, this material will be of interest to anyone fascinated in Jazz and Psychology of Music.

Lives in Music

Mobility and Change in a Global Context

Edited by Sara Le Menestrel

Series: Routledge Studies in Ethnomusicology

Lives in Music analyses interwoven patterns of mobility, change, and power in music and dance practices. It challenges some commonly accepted conceptual tools that are ubiquitous in anthropology today, including cultural hybridity, transnational networks, and globalization. Based on seven "itineraries" that are the result of extensive ethnographic long-term field research efforts, the processes of geographic and social mobility, transformation, and power relative to music and dance practices are explored in different parts of the world. Seven writers provide "itineraries" constructed through ethnographic techniques and life histories and supported by a deep knowledge of local customs.

The Operatic Archive

American Opera as History

Colleen Renihan, Queen's University at Kingston, Canada

Series: Ashgate Interdisciplinary Studies in Opera

American Opera as History extends the growing interdisciplinary dialogue in opera studies by drawing on ideas from performance studies and the philosophy of history. Moving beyond traditional conceptions of opera as purely aesthetic, this book argues for opera's powerful potential for historical impact and engagement in late twentieth-century works by American composers. Building on the work of performance scholars such as Joseph Roach, Rebecca Schneider, and Diana Taylor, this will be of interest to a wide range of scholars and researchers, particularly those working in the areas of Opera Studies and Performance Studies.

Performing Faith

Christian Music, Identity and Inculturation in Indonesia

Marzanna Poplawska

Series: SOAS Studies in Music Series

This book is a study in music inculturation in Indonesia. It shows how religious expression can be made relevant in an indigenous context and how grassroots Christianity is being realized by means of music. Through discussion of indigenous expressions of Christianity, the book presents multiple ways in which Indonesians reiterate their identity through music by creatively forging Christian and indigenous elements. This study moves beyond the discussion (and charge) of syncretism, showing that the inclusion of local cultural manifestations is an answer to creating a truly indigenous Christian expression.

The Routledge Companion to Interdisciplinary Studies in Singing, Volume II: Education

Edited by Helga R. Gudmundsdottir, Carol Beynon, Western University, Ontario, Canada, Karen Ludke and Annabel J. Cohen

Series: The Routledge Companion to Interdisciplinary Studies in Singing

The Routledge Companion to Interdisciplinary Studies in Singing, Volume II: Education examines the many methods and motivations for vocal pedagogy, promoting the act of singing not just as an art form but as a means of communication with social, psychological, and didactic functions. Presenting research from myriad fields of study beyond music—including psychology, education, sociology, computer science, linguistics, physiology, and neuroscience—the contributors address the role teaching plays in the act of singing, an invaluable resource for anyone who identifies as a singer, works with singers, or is interested in the application of singing for the purposes of education.

Children's Empowerment in Play

Participation, Voice and Ownership

Natalie Canning, The Open University, UK

Series: TACTYC

Play is vital in the development of empowerment for young children. Focusing on three themes: participation, voice and ownership, this book explores innovative ways of thinking about children's play and the ways in which it can be promoted in practice. It offers a framework for understanding empowerment in play and how this impacts on development. It aims to help practitioners analyse children's play patterns and recognise their agendas and motivations in play so they can naturally support their empowerment. Including case study examples of children's play in a variety of contexts, this book will transform how you understand and engage with children's experiences and learning.

Culturally Responsive Self-Care Practices for Early Childhood Educators

Julie Nicholson, Mills College, USA, Priya Shimpi Driscoll, Julie Kurtz, Doménica Márquez and LaWanda Wesley

The first self-care book designed specifically for the early childhood field, this guide is filled with helpful strategies and tools that you can implement immediately. Recognizing that self-care is not one-size-fits-all, the authors present culturally responsive strategies drawn from diverse early childhood staff working in a range of roles across communities and contexts. Through key research findings, effective strategies and personal anecdotes, this accessible guide helps readers understand and engage with the critical role self-care and wellness-oriented practices play in creating strong foundations for high quality early learning programs.

Creating an Anti-Racist Culture in the Early Years

An Essential Guide for Practitioners

Sandra Smidt

Written to help early years practitioners tackle fundamental issues of diversity in their settings, this unique book shows them how to encourage children to form and maintain relationships with peers by accepting and understanding difference. Offering a clear and accessible framework, Smidt examines what racism is and why it is so destructive; she discusses young children's cognitive development and ability to understand complex issues like right and wrong; just or unjust, and helps practitioners to understand what is acceptable and what is not. She also shows how to create an anti-racist curriculum and culture through inclusion, multiculturalism, literature, art and drama.

Understanding Gender and Early Childhood

An Introduction to the Key Debates

Jo Josephidou, Canterbury Christchurch University, UK and Polly Bolshaw, Canterbury Christchurch University, UK

This book introduces students to some of the main issues around gender and encourages them to question their own and others' practices as they engage with key theories and research. Divided into three parts, it examines how gender impacts on children, the workforce and society covering topics such as children's play, learning and achievement, the gender imbalance in settings and whether parents engage with children in gendered ways. It also looks at the long-term implications of these issues on children's aspirations and outcomes. Including case studies, reflective questions and checklists, this is an essential text for Early Years and Early Childhood courses.

Assessment Rubrics Decoded

An Educator's Guide

Kelvin Heng Kiat Tan

Series: Assessment in Schools: Principles in Practice

Assessment Rubrics Decoded offers insights into a myriad of issues that affect, and are affected by, the construction of merit in students' learning and the articulation of (underlying) educational ideologies in the assessment of student achievement. Designed for both students and teachers, this book covers the problematic issues of assessment in schools at the same time as offering readers practical solutions for navigating the ensuing tensions and dilemmas. The notion that rubrics may hinder assessment transparency is also discussed, with examples, to warn against uncritical use of rubrics that may discipline rather than help learners.

Foundations for Teaching Chemistry

Chemical Knowledge for Teaching

Keith S. Taber, University of Cambridge, UK

Chemistry is a subject that has the power to engage and enthuse students, but also to mystify and compound them. Effective chemistry teaching requires a strong foundation of subject knowledge and the ability to transform this into teachable content which is meaningful for students. Drawing on pedagogical principles and research into the difficulties that many students have when studying chemical concepts, this essential text presents the core ideas of chemistry to support new and trainee chemistry teachers, including non-specialists.

No Outsiders: Everyone Different, Everyone Welcome

Preparing Children for Life in Modern Britain

Andrew Moffat, MBE, Assistant Head Teacher

Series: No Outsiders

The No Outsiders programme promotes an ethos of inclusion and intolerance, and aims to prepare children for life in modern Britain. Expanding the scheme published in the 2015 book, No Outsiders in Our Schools, this book is designed to further support educators as they make the No Outsiders ethos part of their school culture at a time when messages of fear and division are rife. Written by a practising teacher whose work to promote equality has been globally celebrated, this book provides lesson plans for use in classes from EYFS to year 6. This is a vital resource for all teachers and trainee teachers as they prepare children for a life where diversity is embraced.

Developing Critical Cultural Awareness in Modern Languages

A Comparative Study of Higher Education in North America and the United Kingdom

Elinor Parks

Series: Routledge Research in Language Education

Drawing on a comparative empirical study conducted at UK and US universities, this text explores the relationship between language and culture whilst considering its implications for the teaching of Modern Foreign Languages in higher education. Illustrating the need for a curriculum which fosters the development of intercultural competence and criticality, Parks reconceptualizes established models of Criticality (Barnett) and Intercultural Communicative Competence (Byram). Scholars interested in Intercultural Communication, Language Education and Applied Linguistics will be able to discuss the ways in which Modern Language programmes in higher education can be

Enquiry-based Science Education

Series: Global Science Education

Students often think of science as disconnected pieces of information rather than a narrative that challenges their thinking, requires them to develop evidence-based explanations for the phenomena under investigation, and communicate their ideas in discipline-specific language as to why certain solutions to a problem work. The author provides teachers in primary and junior secondary school with different evidence-based strategies they can use to teach inquiry science in their classrooms.

Graduate Research Supervision in the Developing World

Policies, Pedagogies, and Practices

Edited by Erik Blair, Danielle Watson and Shikha Raturi

Series: Routledge Research in Higher Education

Recognising that graduate supervisory practice is not an abstracted academic pursuit, but an activity that is subjectively bounded by content and context, impacted by the experiences and beliefs of supervisee and supervisor, this text explores the unique dynamics of graduate supervision in the Global South, as perceived and experienced by students and academics within those same contexts. This text will be of great interest to graduate supervisors and their supervisees as well as scholars in the fields of continuing professional development and higher education, in international and comparative education and Sociology of Education.

Belonging for People with Profound Intellectual and Multiple Disabilities

Pushing the Boundaries of Inclusion

Edited by Melanie Nind and Iva Strnadova

This book pushes boundaries in the way we approach people with profound intellectual and multiple disabilities, and in how we work with them in education and research. While it is grounded in diverse theoretical frameworks and disciplines, the book coheres around a commitment to seeing people with profound intellectual and multiple disabilities as equal citizens who belong in our classrooms and community, showing this in action. Each section covers policy contexts, key ideas, and most critically, recent research. The chapters challenge traditional thinking about the lives of people with PMLD and ensure debates about belonging are inclusive of them.

Developing Decision-making with Children and Young People with SEN

A Practical Guide For Education and Associated Professionals

Jane L. Sinson

Being able to make decisions is an important life-skill, which can have a positive impact on well-being. However, many children and young people with SEN will need direct teaching and guidance to develop this ability. This essential guide for education professionals provides practical guidance on how to support children and young people with SEN as they make decisions in relation to their education. It presents both a practical decision-making framework and a decision-making syllabus, from which education professionals can create their own curriculum. There is reference throughout the book as to the ways in which education professionals can work in partnership with parents.

On Educational Inclusion

Meanings, History, Issues and International Perspectives

Edited by James M. Kauffman

Series: Connecting Research with Practice in Special and Inclusive Education

Professor Kauffman examines the various meanings of inclusion and related terms, the history of the issue in education and how educational exceptionalities are different from other forms of diversity. He also examines the problems experienced for various populations and in various areas of instruction and in several nations, and the international implications of the UN's Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities. With accessible clarity, he also speaks to the particular problems of effective instruction for different levels and types of disabilities and giftedness, and in his conclusion, reflects on how the probable legacies of the inclusion movement are assessed.

Tackling Disadvantage and Underachievement in Schools

A Practical Guide for Teachers

Diane Montgomery, Middlesex University, London, UK

This practical resource shows what teachers can do to combat underachievement and disadvantage in their pupils, as well as highlight which effective strategies can be used to help them achieve their full potential. Montgomery presents an analysis of the internal and external factors involved in underachievement and by teasing out the different barriers to learning, she shows how it's possible to establish appropriate and effective teaching methods that satisfy different learning needs. She also details strategies in subject teaching across age ranges, defining the nature of effective learning and showing what strategies, with examples, can be used to meet these criteria.

University Challenge

Critical Issues for Teaching and Learning

Tony Harland

This book provides practical advice and develops new theory to offer university educators a realistic approach for dealing with challenges they face in daily practice. The book does this by examining eight common challenges in university teaching including, teaching to meet all students' needs; assessment and grading; learning to teach; and space and time in academic life. Drawing on an international study and a conceptual re-evaluation of current practices and theories, this book will appeal to university teachers who wish to develop their work through scholarly inquiry and will be a resource to inform policy and management around teaching and curriculum.

Developing and Utilizing Employability Capitals

Graduates' Strategies across Labour Markets

Tran Le Huu Nghia, Monash University, Victoria, Australia, Thanh Pham, Monash University, Australia, Michael Tomlinson, University of Southampton, UK, Karen Medica, Monash University, Australia and Christopher Thompson, Monash University, Australia

Series: Routledge Research in Higher Education

Graduate employability is a significant concern for most higher education institutions worldwide. During the last two decades, universities have attempted to implement their employability agendas to support their students to enhance employment outcomes. However, within today's globalized labour markets, employability has gone far beyond the notion of obtaining stable and permanent employment. This book explores graduates' experiences in developing and utilizing employability capitals for career development and success in different labour markets.

Digital Agency in Higher Education

Transforming Teaching and Learning

Toril Aagaard and Andreas Lund

Essential reading for teachers in higher education and educational researchers with an interest in how technologies impact learning and teaching, this book uses cutting edge research to bridge the gap between theoretical perspectives and practice. Examining the impact of technologies and digitalization in higher education, it addresses fundamental assumptions about what this means for learning and teaching and how teacher education has needed to and needs to continue to develop. It explores how digital resources are being used to improve educational quality and engage students in learning and what this means for the future.

Edward Said and Education

Zeus Leonardo, University of California, Berkeley, University of California, Berkeley, USA

Series: Routledge Key Ideas in Education

This volume offers a deep interpretation of Edward Said's literary thought toward the development of educational criticism. The book draws from four main themes of Said's work – knowledge construction as part of empire, representations and reconstruction of the intellectual, the exile condition, and contrapuntal analysis. These themes cohere in providing the elements of educational criticism and placing them in the wider context of a rapidly changing sociality and educational system. Edward Said and Education is a valuable teaching resource for undergraduate and postgraduate students of education studies, postcolonial studies, and ethnic studies.

This book examines the practices and effects of emerging international curriculum programs established by Chinese elite public high schools and supported by China's New Curriculum Reform and the Chinese-Foreign Cooperation in Running Schools (CFCRS) policy. Drawing on critical theory, the book applies sociological and anthropological approaches to the study of the educational practices of such curriculum programs and the rising Chinese elite class, as well as educational policy globally.

Reforming or Re-inventing Schools?

Key Issues in School and System Reform

John MacBeath, Maurice Galton and John Bangs

Reforming or Re-inventing Schools revisits some of the key issues in school and system reform with a reflection on the relationship of international developments to those in the English education system. Drawing on interviews with a group of policy makers on British and international stages, this book brings an insightful review and critique of education principles and their relationship to school practice. It compares and contrasts the situation in the UK with innovatory development taking place elsewhere in Europe and Asia, making it an essential read for anyone interested in school and country performance.

Validity

An Integrated Approach to Test Score Meaning and Use

Gregory J. Cizek

Validity is a clear, substantive introduction to the two most fundamental aspects of defensible testing practice: understanding test score meaning and justifying test score use. Driven by evidence-based and consensus-grounded measurement theory, principles, and terminology, this book addresses the most common questions of applied validation, the quality of test information, and the usefulness of test results. Concise yet comprehensive, this volume's comprehensive framework is ideal for graduate courses on assessment, testing, psychometrics, and research methods.

Theory and Praxis

Reflections on the Colonization of Knowledge

Edited by Murzban Jal, Indian Institute of Education, India and Jyoti Bawane, Indian Institute of Education, Pune

This book proposes a New Enlightenment—a new way of looking at the non-Western world. The essays chart a course beyond Eurocentric discourses (which completely ignore the contributions of Asia, Africa and Latin-America) and forms of nativism (which are usually ethnocentric discourses). The volume focuses on the historical aspects of knowledge-production and its colonization. It enlarges the scope of multilineal historicism whereby Asia, Europe, Africa and the Americas are drawn in a new humanistic knowledge system. This book will be of great interest to scholars and researchers of social theory, education, politics and public policy.

Diversity, Transformative Knowledge, and Civic Education

Selected Essays

James A. Banks

This book aims to unpack the "citizenship-education dilemma," whereby education programs strive to teach students democratic ideals and values within social, economic, political, and educational contexts that contradict justice, equality, and human rights. Drawn from Banks' formidable canon, this collection highlights the conceptual, curricular, and pedagogical issues related to this dilemma, and signals a fundamental shift towards transformative citizenship education. Students, scholars and educators across numerous fields of education, will find this book to be a valuable resource for discussion and discovery.

Teaching Toward a Decolonizing Pedagogy

Critical Reflections Inside and Outside the Classroom

Victoria F. Trinder

This book outlines educational practitioner development toward decolonizing practices and pedagogies for anti-racist, justice-based urban classrooms. From this personal exploration, emergent and practicing teachers can extract curricula, practices, and dispositions toward advocacy for those students most underserved and marginalized by public education. As an exemplar of decolonizing work both in classroom practices and in methodologies for educational research, this book presents tensions and complexities in school-based theorizing into practice, and in teacher implementations of anti-racist pedagogies in colonial schooling.

Democracy and Teacher Education

Dilemmas, Challenges and Possibilities

Silvia Edling and Geraldine Mooney Simmie

This book connects the dilemmas educators experience in daily practice with key theories, research and policy about democracy, ethics, and equity in education. The authors explore the complex nature of the problems that face practicing teachers and how they can be understood in order to address them in a more elaborated manner. The volume is a fantastic resource for students on teacher education programmes, as well as teacher educators, who are looking to develop critical understanding of the choices made within the education field in a more thoughtful and sensitive manner.

Sociology for Education Studies

Connecting Theory, Settings and Everyday Experiences

Edited by Catherine A. Simon, Bath Spa University, UK and Graham Downes, Bath Spa University, UK

Series: The Routledge Education Studies Series

Sociology for Education Studies provides a fresh look at the sociology of education, focussing on themes such as habitus, hegemony and intersectionality. It supports students in applying sociological theory to their own educational experiences and developing an understanding of why social orders appear to be predetermined, why the state continues to create education policy in certain forms and, crucially, how to make it better.

Series: Routledge Critical Studies in Gender and Sexuality in Education

About harmful effects of so-called "lad culture" in British universities, and related "bro" and "frat" cultures in US colleges, this book is the first to explore and analyse the perspectives of university staff on these cultures, which students suggest foster the normalisation of sexism, homophobia, racism, sexual harassment and violence. This timely and accessible volume will be of great interest to anyone looking to understand and tackle sexism, sexual harassment and violence in and beyond university contexts and to researchers, undergraduate and postgraduate students, academics and policy makers in the fields of gender and sexuality in education, higher education.

The Global Education Effect and Japan

Constructing New Borders and Identification Practices

Edited by Neriko Musha Doerr, Ramapo College of New Jersey, USA

Series: Politics of Education in Asia

This volume investigates the "global education effect"—the impact of global education initiatives on institutional and individual practices and perceptions—with a special focus on the dynamics of border-construction, recognition, subversion, and erasure regarding "Japan". The Japanese government's push for global education has taken shape mainly in the form of English-Medium Instruction programs and bringing in international students who actually serve as a foreign workforce to fill the declining labour force.

Trust and Schooling

Edited by Bruce Haynes

Series: Educational Philosophy and Theory

Unlike many current approaches, this book looks at trust relations in order to understand schooling and other social practices. Trust relations include both what an individual is prepared to trust in the circumstances, and what a competent practitioner in an evolving tradition should trust. It is therefore considered whether trust relations are more fundamental in society than those of truth or power.

This book presents the initial investigations of a number of authors who collaborated on this project and was originally published as a special issue of the journal, Educational Philosophy and Theory.

Wittgenstein, Anti-foundationalism, Technoscience and Philosophy of Education

An Educational Philosophy and Theory Reader Volume VIII

Edited by Michael A. Peters, Professor of Education, University of Waikato, New Zealand

Series: Educational Philosophy and Theory: Editor's Choice

This book is a collection of essays curated by Michael Peters and motivated by a 'cultural' reading of Wittgenstein. Peters offers a distinctive view on the ethics of reading Wittgenstein and the ethics of suicide that shaped him as well as the reception and engagement with Wittgenstein's work in French philosophy with a chapter on post-analytic philosophy of education as a choice between Richard Rorty and Jean-Francois Lyotard. Peters examines Wittgenstein's academic life at Cambridge University and his involvement in the Moral Sciences Club. Finally, the book provides an understanding of Wittgenstein styles of reasoning and the concept of worldview.

Developing Rural School Leaders

Building Capacity through Transformative Leadership Coaching

Hans W. Klar, Clemson University, USA and Kristin Shawn Huggins, Washington State University, USA

Developing Rural School Leaders combines a focus on rural education and school leadership development to illustrate how the teaching and learning conditions in rural schools can be enhanced through transformative leadership coaching. By unpacking literature related to rural school leadership development and using case studies to authentically illustrate the complexities involved in rural school leadership development, this book explores how leaders can develop their abilities to increase data-informed instructional decision making, create a culture that supports teaching and learning, and develop other leaders.

Social Theory and Health Education

Forging New Insights in Research

Edited by Deana Leahy, Monash University, Australia, Katie Fitzpatrick, University of Auckland, New Zealand and Jan Wright

Series: Critical Studies in Health and Education

The 'healthiness' of young people and communities dominates news and entertainment media in many countries. It is also increasingly at the centre of sociological, social psychological, critical, and pedagogical research in the fields of health education, health promotion and wellbeing. Social Theory, Health and Education brings together major new work in health and education that utilises social theory and provides students and established scholars with examples of how to apply these theories to their research and teaching. It also comments on the viability of various theories, and outlines how they can help generate new questions and approaches to research.

Developing Writers Across the Primary and Secondary Years

Growing into Writing

Honglin Chen, Debra Myhill and Helen Lewis

This book addresses how children become writers and how teachers teach writing effectively across the compulsory schooling years. The book is structured according to three key stages of writing development: early, primary and secondary years. Each section addresses two broader themes: becoming a writer with a child-oriented focus and writing pedagogy with a teacher-oriented focus. The work brings together rigorous research and deep professional understanding of the writing classroom from leading researchers in Australia and the UK. This book will help increase confidence in the teaching of writing and enable teachers to create communities of writers in which children can thrive.

Translingual Identities and Transnational Realities in the U.S. College Classroom

Heather Robinson, Jonathan Hall and Nela Navarro

Exploring the roles of students' plurilistic linguistic and transnational identities at the university level, this book offers a novel approach to translanguaging by highlighting students' perspectives, voices, and agency as integral to the subject. Demonstrating that students are the experts of their own language practices, experiences, and identities, the authors argue that a proactive translingual pedagogy is more than just being open to students' spontaneous language variations; a proactive approach requires students to think about their holistic communicative repertoire, and how it relates to their writing.

At the Forefront of Political Psychology

Essays in Honor of John L. Sullivan

Edited by Eugene Borgida, University of Minnesota, Christopher M. Federico, University of Minnesota, USA and Joanne M. Miller

At the Forefront of Political Psychology pays tribute to John L. Sullivan, one of the most influential political psychologists of his generation. This volume, compiled by three of Sullivan's long-time colleagues and collaborators, includes cutting-edge contributions from scholars in political science and psychology. The book is divided into three sections; the first two focus on how Sullivan's work on political tolerance and belief systems influenced generations of political psychologists. The final section offers a more personal look at Sullivan's influence as a mentor to young scholars, many of whom are now intellectual leaders in political psychology.

Latin American Guerrilla Movements

Origins, Evolution, Outcomes

Edited by Dirk Kruijt, Utrecht University, The Netherlands, Eduardo Rey Tristán, University of Santiago de Compostela, Spain, and Alberto Martín Álvarez, Instituto de Investigaciones Dr. José María Luis Mora, Mexico.

Organized around single country studies embedded in key historical moments, this book introduces students to the shifting, and varied guerrilla history of Latin America from the late 1950s to the present. Divided into four thematic parts, with introductory and concluding chapters, it brings together academics and those directly involved in aspects of the guerrilla movement, to understand each country's experience with guerrilla warfare and revolutionary activism. Superbly accessible, while retaining the complexity of Latin American politics, Latin American Guerrilla Movements represents the best historical account of revolutionary movements in the region.

Legislative Decline in the 21st Century

Edited by Irina Khmelko, Frederick Stapenhurst, World Bank, USA; McGill University, Canada and Michael Mezey

Irina Khmelko, Frederick Stapenhurst, and Michael L. Mezey have assembled an authoritative guide to the declining institutional capacities of legislatures around the world. These Case studies represent a diverse sample of countries, ranging from newer democracies emerging from the post-communist world to more established but at times fragile democracies in Asia. The cases, although different from one another, identify several factors that have explained the erosion of legislative power, including historical legacies, institutional design, economic factors, external factors, political polarization, personalization of politics, and the rise of populism.

Piracy and Intellectual Property in Latin America

Rethinking Creativity and the Common Good

Edited by Victor Goldgel-Carballo and Juan Poblete, University of California-Santa Cruz, USA

Piracy and Intellectual Property in Latin America is the first sustained effort to present an alternative framework for understanding piracy and contemporary challenges to global discourses on intellectual property in the Americas. From a perspective informed by contemporary scenarios in Mexico, Brazil, Chile, Argentina, Peru, Guatemala, and the United States, they engage in a discussion of alternatives that—predicated on the importance of protecting culture—allow for other ways of conceiving prosperity at local, national, regional, and global levels. Examples discussed include video games, clothing, trinkets, music, film, TV, and books.

Living under Post-Democracy

Citizenship in Fleeting Democratic Times

Caleb R. Miller

Series: Routledge Advances in Democratic Theory

When money equates to power and the system is rigged in favor of wealthy elites, why do we still pretend we are living in a democracy? In Living under Post-Democracy, Caleb R. Miller challenges us to admit what we already know: that most of us are effectively powerless over the political decisions that govern our lives. Offering a new framework for conceptualizing contemporary citizenship, Miller explores how a post-democratic perspective can help us begin to reorient ourselves in our paradoxical, fractured political landscape. This model of citizenship opens the possibility for a distinctly post-democratic approach to both political participation and political philosophy.

Strategic Policy Design

A Practitioner's Guide to Statecraft

Jack C. Chow, Carnegie Mellon University, Pennsylvania, USA

The power culture in Washington, D.C., is notoriously competitive, where rivals pounce on any sign of naïveté or ineffectiveness. Based on years of the author's invaluable experience, this book presents a reliable and systematic method for conceptualizing, structuring, and arguing a strategic policy course at the regional, national, international, and multilateral levels. The book frames the key principles of effectiveness into a sophisticated and accessible architecture of elements that will benefit any policymaker.

Nationalism, Referendums and Democracy

Voting on Ethnic Issues and Independence

Edited by Matt Qvortrup, Professor, Coventry University

Series: Democratization Studies

This revised and expanded edition analyses the factors conducive to holding independence and secession referendums, to winning these votes and to their status in domestic and international law. Taking into account the votes in Catalonia and Scotland, the book shows that votes on secession and independence are not a passing phenomenon but an important part of international politics. This book will be of interest to all scholars and students of political science, law and even philosophy.

The Future of U.S. Empire in the Americas

The Trump Administration and Beyond

Edited by Timothy M. Gill, University of North Carolina Wilmington, USA

Drawing on the expertise of a panel of contributors and guided by Michael Mann's Weberian model of power, this book critically interrogates the future of U.S. global power and provides insights on what we might expect from the U.S. Empire under Trump. Recognizing that U.S. imperial power involves an array of sources of power, the contributors analyze the Trump Administration's approach towards nine countries in the Western Hemisphere, and five sets of global policies, including drugs, trade, environment, immigration and regional security.

The International Alt-Right

Fascism for the 21st Century?

Patrick Hermansson, David Lawrence, Joe Mulhall and Simon Murdoch

Series: Routledge Studies in Fascism and the Far Right

The alt-right has been the most important new far right grouping to appear in decades. Written by researchers from the anti-racist advocacy group Hope not Hate, this book provides a thorough, ground-breaking and accessible overview of this dangerous new phenomenon. It explains where the alt-right came from, its history so far, what it believes, how it organises and operates, and its future trajectory.

This will be essential reading for scholars and activists alike with an interest in race relations, fascism, extremism and social movements.

A Citizen's Guide to the Political Psychology of Voting

David P. Redlawsk and Michael W. Habegger

Series: Citizen Guides to Politics and Public Affairs

This book offers a way of thinking about how voters make decisions that provides both hope and concern. Can voters do a "good enough" job of processing vast amounts of election information even if they fail to account for everything during the campaign? Here, Redlawsk and Habegger portray a wide variety of voter styles and approaches in vignettes that connect the long tradition of voter survey research to real life voting challenges. They explore how voters search for political information and make use of it in evaluating candidates and their positions. For citizen voters, students and scholars, their results should encourage regular turnout for elections now and in the future.

Islam and Politics (3rd edition)

Peter Mandaville, George Mason University, USA

This book is an accessible and comprehensive account of political Islam in the contemporary world. Providing a broad introduction to all major aspects of the interface of Islam and politics, it combines an accessible style with sufficient depth for the academic classroom. Drawing on insights from comparative politics and Islamic studies, this book explains the complex interaction between Islam, society, the state, and processes of globalization. These updates ensure the book remains the single best introduction to the topic of political Islam for students and scholars, foreign policy professionals and the general reader.

Presidential Leadership in Crisis

Defining Moments of the Modern Presidents from Franklin Roosevelt to Donald Trump

Kenneth T. Walsh

Crises pose a challenge to leaders as no other tests they confront. In this comprehensive and timely book, veteran journalist Kenneth T. Walsh offers a probing look at how presidents from FDR to Trump dealt with crises they faced. Including domestic as well as international issues, this book stands apart from other accounts of presidents in crisis. Walsh is in search of lessons we can learn, and his findings focus on the presidential attributes and skills that matter most in trying times. This expertly crafted, elegantly written book is appropriate for a variety of college courses and will find its way onto the reading lists of ambitious politicians and interested citizens alike.

Race and Public Administration

Edited by Amanda Rutherford and Kenneth J. Meier

Issues of race permeate virtually every corner of policy creation and implementation in the United States, yet theoretically driven research on interactions of policy, race, and ethnicity rarely offers practical tools that can be readily applied by current and future civil servants, private contractors, or nonprofit boards. Arguing that scholarship can and should inform practice to address issues of equity in public affairs, rather than overlook, ignore, or deny them, Race and Public Administration offers a much-needed and accessible exploration of current and cutting-edge research on race and policy.

Rebellion in America

Citizen Uprisings, the News Media, and the Politics of Plutocracy

Anthony DiMaggio

This book looks at the progression of modern social uprisings in the post-2008 period, including the Tea Party, Occupy Wall Street, Black Lives Matter, the Bernie Sanders "Revolution," Trump's populism, the anti-Trump revolt, and #MeToo. A key theme is that populism and mass anger at the political-economic status quo take different forms depending on whether the protests are progressive-left or right-wing in orientation. Employing theories of elite politics and pluralism, and using a mixed-methods approach, this text is aimed at courses on social movements wherever they're taught, and also offers general readers insight into contemporary politics and protest.

The Routledge Guidebook to Paine's Rights of Man

Frances A. Chiu, New School, New York, USA

Series: The Routledge Guides to the Great Books

Upon publication in 1791-92 Thomas Paine's Rights of Man proved to be both immensely popular and highly controversial. An immediate bestseller, it not only defended the French revolution but also challenged current laws, customs, and government.

The Routledge Guidebook to Paine's Rights of Man provides the first comprehensive introduction to this foundational text in the history of modern political thought, addressing its central themes, reception, and influence. Essential reading for students of eighteenth-century American and British history, politics and philosophy, and anyone approaching Paine's work for the first

Conflict and Cooperation in the Indo-Pacific

New Geopolitical Realities

Edited by Ash Rossiter and Brendon J. Cannon

Series: Routledge Studies on Think Asia

Examining emerging policies of cooperation and conflict adopted by Indo-Pacific states in response to a rising China, the book offers insights into the evolving Indo-Pacific visions and strategies being developed in Japan, India, Australia and the US in reaction to shifting geopolitical realities. The book provides evidence of geopolitical advances in what some see as a spatially coherent maritime zone stretching from the eastern Pacific to the western Indian Ocean, including small island states and countries that line its littoral. It also analyzes the development and operationalization of Indo-Pacific policies and strategies of various key nations.

Globalizing IR Theory

Critical Engagement

Edited by Yaqing Qin, China Foreign Affairs University, China
Series: IR Theory and Practice in Asia

This book explores the challenges of constructing an alternative, with a dialogue between global and local approaches. Drawing on scholars with backgrounds in the US, Europe, Asia and South America, this volume attempts to critically engage with and reflect upon existing traditions of IR theory, to produce a deeply pluralist approach. Traditions, cultures, histories and practices from around the world influence their respective theoretical understanding and in turn explain why the Western tradition of IR is insufficient. This book provides great insight for scholars of International Relations from around the world, looking for more diversity in IR theory.

Edited by Agnès Alexandre-Collier, Université de Bourgogne Franche-Comté, France, Alexandra Goujon, Université de Bourgogne, France and Guillaume Gourgues, University of Franche-Comté, France

Series: Democratization Studies

This volume focuses on the issue of change in democratic politics in terms of experimental or actual innovations introduced either within political parties or outside the party system, involving citizen participation and mobilization. Including a wide and diverse range of alternatives in the organization of groups, campaigning, conducting initiatives and enhancing practices, they not only question the relevance of traditional institutions in representing citizens' values and interests, but also share a common goal which is precisely – and perhaps paradoxically – to reshape and invigorate representative democracy

Going beyond Parochialism and Fragmentation in the Study of International Relations

Edited by Yong-Soo Eun, Hanyang University, Republic of Korea

Series: IR Theory and Practice in Asia

The main intellectual concerns of this edited volume are problematising Western parochialism in IR; giving theoretical and epistemological substance to pluralism in the field of IR based on both Western and non-Western thoughts and experiences; and working out ways to move the discipline of IR one step closer to a dialogic community. A key issue that cuts across all contributions in the volume is to go beyond both parochialism and fragmentation in international studies. In order to address the manifold and contested implications of pluralism in the field of IR, the volume draws on the wealth of experience and research of prominent and emerging IR scholars.

International Relations as Politics among People

Hermeneutic Encounters and Global Governance

Hannes Hansen-Magnusson, Cardiff University, UK

Series: Routledge Advances in International Relations and Global Politics

This is the first monograph that makes Hans-Georg Gadamer's and Paul Ricoeur's hermeneutic philosophy relevant for global politics research. Drawing on the concept of 'horizon' as the element that captures the dynamics of understanding in social interaction in order to analyse processes of international politics, this book shows that what is required is the embeddedness of meanings and ideas in human action and reflection.

This book will be of interest to scholars interested in Global Governance, the work of Hans-Georg Gadamer, Paul Ricoeur and hermeneutic philosophy, the UN, humanitarian interventions and foreign policy analysts.

Humanitarian Negotiations with Armed Groups

The Frontlines of Diplomacy

Ashley Jonathan Clements

Series: Global Institutions

This book explores the unique and under-researched field of humanitarian negotiation. It details the challenges faced by humanitarians negotiating with armed groups in Yemen, Myanmar, and elsewhere, arguing that humanitarians typically negotiate from a position of weakness. It also explores some of the tactics and strategies they use to overcome this power asymmetry to reach more favorable agreements.

This book will be of interest to scholars concerned with conflict resolution, negotiation, and mediation, as well as to humanitarian practitioners themselves.

Islamic State's Online Activity and Responses

Edited by Maura Conway, Dublin City University, Ireland and Stuart Macdonald, Swansea University, UK

This volume provides a unique examination of Islamic State's online activity at the peak of its 'golden age' between 2014 and 2017 and evaluates some of the principal responses to this phenomenon. It examines a variety of aspects of IS's online activity, including their strategic objectives, the content and nature of their magazines and videos, and their online targeting of females and depiction of children. It also analyses responses to IS's online activity and explores the possible impact of technological developments going forward. Platforms discussed include dedicated jihadi forums, Facebook, Twitter, and YouTube, and Twister.

Me Too Political Science

Edited by Nadia Brown, Perdue University, USA
Me Too Political Science explores the multiple manifestations and implications of gendered biases in Political Science by "connecting the dots" between the sexual harassment described in the recent Report on 2017 APSA Survey on Sexual Harassment at Annual Meetings and other problematic issues. The essays in this book, and the authors' scholarly activism, harnessed a collective power to dispel the shame, embarrassment and secrecy that surrounds these issues. It will be of great importance not only to scholars interested in Gender and Women's Studies, but all those working in the Political Science discipline – and even beyond, to academia as a whole.

Ontological Security and Status-Seeking

Thailand's Proactive Behaviours during the Second World War

Peera Charoenvattananukul, Thammasat University, Thailand

Series: IR Theory and Practice in Asia

Putting ontological security theory into dialogue with status seeking approaches, Charoenvattananukul uses a case study of Thailand in the early 1940s to interrogate the dynamics and logic of a small state foreign policy. During this period, Thailand's foreign policy can appear to be surprising, if viewed through a lens of survival imperatives which would assume that passivity towards more powerful states is the optimal policy. As the majority of states are small- and medium-sized it is very important to understand the imperatives that drive such states, especially in their interactions with great powers.

Relations between Immigration and Integration Policies in Europe (Open Access)

Challenges, Opportunities and Perspectives in Selected EU Member States

Edited by Maciej Duszczak, University of Warsaw, Marta Pachocka, University of Warsaw, Poland and Dominika Pszczołkowska, University of Warsaw

Series: Routledge Advances in European Politics

Written from a pan-European perspective, this book examines the decision-making processes in immigration and integration policies in Europe across decades focusing in on several key moments of Europe's post-war history. This book contributes to the theoretical and practical debate regarding immigration and integration policies by arguing that – contrary to assumptions – immigration policy should not be treated as having precedence before integration policy. It also reflects on the growing anti-immigration sentiments as well as securitization and criminalization of migration issues that are fuelled by right-wing politics.

Rising Powers and State Transformation

Edited by Shahar Hameiri, University of Queensland, Australia, Lee Jones, Queen Mary University of London, UK and John Heathershaw, University of Exeter, UK

Series: ThirdWorlds

Rising Powers and State Transformation advances the concept of 'state transformation' as a useful lens through which to examine rising power states' foreign policymaking and implementation, with chapters dedicated to China, Russia, India, Brazil, Indonesia, and Saudi Arabia. The volume breaks with the prevalent tendency in IR scholarship to treat rising powers as unitary actors in international politics, and demonstrates the significance of state transformation processes for explaining some of these states' most important foreign policy agendas, and outlines the implications for the wider field in IR.

The Technocratic Challenge to Democracy

Edited by Eri Bertsou, University of Zurich, Switzerland and Daniele Caramani, University of Zurich, Switzerland

Series: Routledge Research on Social and Political Elites

This book represents the first comprehensive study of how technocracy currently challenges representative democracy and asks how technocratic politics undermines democratic legitimacy and how strong is its challenge to democratic institutions. It offers a solid theory and conceptualization of technocratic politics and the technocratic challenge is analyzed empirically at all levels of the national and supra-national institutions and actors, such as cabinets, parties, the EU, independent bodies, central banks and direct democratic campaigns in a comparative and policy perspective.

Intelligence on the Frontier Between State and Civil Society

Edited by Karen Lund Petersen, University of Copenhagen, Denmark and Kira Vrist Rønne, University of Copenhagen, Denmark

This volume shows how today's intelligence practices constantly contest the frontiers between normal politics and security politics, and between civil society and the state. It provides different perspectives: One is at the level of managerial practices of intelligence collection and communication; another is in the increased use of new forms of data; and a third is the expansion of intelligence practices into new areas of concern, e.g. cybersecurity and the policing of (mis-) information. This book addresses exactly these three levels and all chapters shine more light on the in- and exclusion of civil society in the secret world of intelligence.

Military Strategy in the 21st Century

Edited by Kersti Larsdotter, Swedish Defence University, Sweden

Military Strategy in the 21st Century explores military strategy and the new challenges facing Western democracies in the twenty-first century, including strategy in cyber operations and peacekeeping, challenges for civil-military relations, as well as the strategic choices of great powers and small states. It does so through exploring strategy from three perspectives. First, the study of strategy, and how our understanding of strategy has changed over time. Second, new areas for strategic theory, such as peacekeeping and cyberspace. Third, the makers of strategy, and why states choose suboptimal strategies.

Nuclear Modernization in the 21st Century

Edited by Aiden Warren, RMIT University, Australia and Philip M. Baxter, Middlebury Institute of International Studies at Monterey, USA

Series: Modern Security Studies

This book examines the global strategic and policy implications of the modernization efforts of the nuclear weapons powers and considers the effects modernization could have on the relations between these nuclear weapon powers and the larger impact upon efforts to curb nuclear weapons, both in terms of horizontal and vertical proliferation. The chapters have been arranged so as to inform a variety of stakeholders, from academics to policy-makers, by connecting analytical and normative insights from developments within the nuclear weapons arena, and thereby, advancing debates pertaining to where nuclear modernization sits as a point of global security consternation in the 21st Century.

Cross-Strait Relations Since 2016

The End of the Illusion

J. Michael Cole

Series: Routledge Research on Taiwan Series

This book examines the situation in the Taiwan Strait since the election of Tsai Ing-wen of the Democratic Progressive Party in the January 2016 general elections. Tracking the pragmatic approach taken by the Tsai administration, it positions the recent developments within a changing geopolitical context and analyzes Beijing's reactions to an environment which has become increasingly skeptical of its intentions. The first English language book to provide a full assessment of the four years of DPP rule since 2016, it will be useful to students and scholars of Asian Studies and Taiwan Studies, as well as Security Studies, Politics and International Relations.

Gandhi and the Contemporary World

Edited by Sanjeev Kumar, Zakir Husain Delhi College, University of Delhi, India

This book develops a critical understanding of Mahatma Gandhi's philosophy and practice in the context of contemporary challenges and engages with some of his key work and ideas. It highlights the relevance of Gandhi's legacy in the quest towards peace-building, equity and global justice. Bringing together expert analyses and reflections, the essays here emphasise the philosophical and practical urgency of Gandhi's thought and action. They explore the significance of his concepts of truth and nonviolence to address moral, spiritual and ethical issues, growing intolerance, conflict and violence, poverty and hunger, and environmental crisis for the present world.

Japan's New Ruralities

Coping with Decline in the Periphery

Edited by Wolfram Manzenreiter, University of Vienna, Austria, Ralph Lützelzer and Sebastian Polak-Rottmann

Series: Nissan Institute/Routledge Japanese Studies

Seeking to challenge negative perceptions within Japanese media and politics on the future of the countryside, this book presents a counter-argument to the inevitable demise of rural society. Including many fieldwork-based case studies, the chapters discuss topics such as corporate farming, local energy systems and public health-care, examining the constraints and possibilities of rural self-determination under the centripetal impact of forces located both in and outside of the country.

Focusing on asymmetries of power to explore regional autonomy and heteronomy, it also examines 'peripheralization' and the 'global countryside', two recent theoretical contributions to the field.

Soft Power With Chinese Characteristics

China's Campaign for Hearts and Minds

Edited by Kingsley Edney, University of Leeds, UK, Stanley Rosen and Ying Zhu, City University of New York, USA

This book examines the Chinese Communist Party's attempts to improve China's image around the world, thereby increasing its "soft power." This soft, attractive form of power is crucial if China is to avoid provoking an international backlash against its growing military and economic might. The volume focuses on the period since 2012, when Xi Jinping came to power and is global in scope, examining the impact of Chinese policies from Hong Kong and Taiwan to Africa and South America. It will be invaluable to students and scholars of Chinese politics and Chinese media, as well as international relations and world politics more generally.

Latin America in the World

An Introduction

Edited by Antonia Garcia-Rodriguez, Pace University, USA and Daniel J. Greenberg, Pace University, USA Series: Foundations in Global Studies

This text offers a fresh, comprehensive, multidisciplinary entry point to Latin America. After a brief introduction to the region, the early chapters survey the essentials of Latin American history; important historical narratives; and the region's languages, religions, and global connections. The second half of the book features interdisciplinary case studies, each of which focuses on a specific country or region and a particular issue. Readers will come away from this book with an understanding of the larger historical, political, and cultural frameworks that shaped Latin America as we know it today, and of current issues that have relevance in Latin America and beyond.

Reading Russian Sources

A Student's Guide to Text and Visual Sources from Russian History

Edited by George Gilbert, University of Southampton, UK
 Series: Routledge Guides to Using Historical Sources

This is an accessible and comprehensive guide that introduces students to the wide range of sources that can be used to engage with Russian history from the early medieval to the late Soviet periods. The book begins by considering approaches that can be taken towards the study of Russian history using primary sources. It then moves on to assess such sources as memoirs, autobiographies, journals, newspapers, art, maps, film and TV. Chronologically wide-ranging and supported by further reading, as well as suggestions to help students guide their own enquiries, it is the ideal resource for any student undertaking research on Russian history.

Vu Le Thao Chi, Keio University, Japan

Series: Routledge Contemporary Southeast Asia Series

Vietnamese farmers are sophisticated decision-makers capable of navigating the changes threatening to disrupt their lives over multiple generations. Vu's research pays particular attention to those farmers whose families have suffered from direct and indirect exposure to the toxic herbicides popularly known as Agent Orange. She demonstrates that their priority has tended to be the protection of their existing assets, rather than pursuing the promise of new riches, and that this tendency has helped them maintain stability in a turbulent economic environment.

Danzaemon and the Edo Outcaste Order

Timothy Amos, National University of Singapore, Singapore

Series: Routledge Studies in the Modern History of Asia

Amos analyses the evolution of the so-called 'Danzaemon' outcaste order. This order was a 17th century caste configuration produced as a consequence of early modern Tokugawa rulers' decisions to engage in a state-building project rooted in military logic and built on the back of existing manorial and tribal-class arrangements. Reinterpreting Japan as a caste society, this book propels us to engage in fuller comparisons of how outcaste communities' histories and challenges have diverged and converged over time and space, and to consider how better to eradicate discrimination based on caste logic.

Folk Theatres of North India

Contestation, Amalgamation and Transference

Karan Singh, Associate Professor, Department of English, Government College for Women, Mahendergarh, Haryana

This book examines folk theatres of North India as a unique performative structure, a counter stream to the postulations of Sanskrit and Western realistic theatre. In focusing on their historical, social and cultural imprints, it explores how these theatres challenge the linearity of cultural history and subvert cultural hegemony. It discusses the genesis, history and the independent trajectory of folk theatres; folk theatre and Sanskrit dramaturgy; cinematic legacy; and theatrical space as performance besides investigating causes, inter-relations within socio-cultural factors, and the performance principles underlying them.

German Nationalism and Indian Political Thought

The Influence of Ancient Indian Philosophy on the German Romantics

Alexei Pimenov

The book demonstrates how the German Romantic fascination with India resulted in the adoption of Indian models of identity and otherness and ultimately shaped German Romantic nationalism. The author illustrates how Indian influence renovated the scholarly design of German nationalism and, at the same time, became central to pre-modern and pre-nationalist models of identity, which later shaped the Aryan myth.

Lineage and Community in China, 1100–1500

Genealogical Innovation in Jiangxi

Series: The Historical Anthropology of Chinese Society Series

This book, based on extensive original research, provides evidence that the practice originated much earlier than previously understood. It shows that in the eleventh century, in southern China under the Song dynasty, the method of compiling a genealogy in the form a table, that is to say a family tree, replaced its statement as a textual paragraph and that this allowed the tracking of multi-line descent in ways that had previously been impossible.

Negotiating Cultural Diversity in Afghanistan

Omar Sadr, American University of Afghanistan, Kabul, Afghanistan

This book analyses multiculturalism and state-building in contemporary Afghanistan. It explores how modern state construction in twentieth-century Afghanistan led to forced assimilation, expulsion and multiple forms of discriminations and how Afghan nationalism was manufactured as an ideology to reinforce the process of Afghanisation. The book elaborates the challenge of intra-group diversity and problem of accommodating individual choice and freedom while recognising group rights. It further explains the shifts in the state's policies and societal responses to different forms of governance of cultural diversity.

Popular Cinema in Bengal

Genre, Stars, Public Cultures

Edited by Madhuja Mukherjee, Jadavpur University, India and Kaustav Bakshi, Jadavpur University, India

Series: Routledge South Asian History and Culture Series

This comprehensive volume marks a decisive turn in studies of Bengali language cinema by shifting the focus from auteur and text-based studies to exhaustive readings of the film industry. The authors raise pertinent questions regarding "regional" cinema as a category, in relation to "national" cinema models, and trace the non-linear journey of the popular via multiple (media) trajectories. They address subjects of physicality, sexuality and its representations, industrial change, spaces of consumption, and cinema's meandering directions through global circuits and low-end networks. The chapters were originally published in the journal South Asian History and Culture.

Opportunities and Challenges for the Greater Mekong Subregion

Building a Shared Vision of Our River

Edited by Charles S. Johnston and Xin Chen, University of Auckland, New Zealand

Series: Routledge Studies on the Asia-Pacific Region

The Mekong river is a vital resource for the 6 states through which it flows, but with significant asymmetry of power between those states there is a real risk that some might exploit it to the detriment of others. How effectively has closer interdependence of the Mekong countries accommodated the development of a political-social-cultural space conducive for the growth of a regional "we-ness" among not only political elites, but also the general public? The contributors to this volume approach this question from a range of directions, including the impacts of tourism, regional development programs, the Mekong Power

Grid, and Sino-US rivalry.

Post-Conflict Social and Economic Recovery in Timor-Leste

Redemptive Legacies

Andrew McWilliam

Series: The Modern Anthropology of Southeast Asia

Based on extensive comparative literature and field-based empirical research, the book explores the protracted process of cultural and economic revival following a generation-long period of military repression and a sustained struggle for national independence. With a focus on the experiences of Fataluku ethno-linguistic communities in Timor-Leste, the study offers nuanced perspectives on the legacies of conflict and local forms of governance, the revitalisation of customary exchange and ancestral religion.

Parliaments in South Asia

India, Pakistan and Bangladesh

Nizam Ahmed, University of Chittagong, Bangladesh

Series: Routledge Studies in South Asian Politics

By analysing the nature of memberships, processes of legislation, and oversight of the executive, the book assesses the impact of Indian, Pakistani and Bangladeshi parliaments. In addition to identifying the ways in which different institutional actors, particularly the parliament and the judiciary, define their roles and relationships, the book investigates the role of committees and the significance and effect of female legislators.

Practices of Traditionalization in Central Asia

Edited by Judith Beyer, University of Konstanz, Germany and Peter Finke, University of Zurich, Switzerland

Series: Central Asian Studies

This volume focuses on the 'everydayification' (Veralltäglichung) of tradition in Central Asia, ranging from political demonstrations, industrial workers' gatherings, to institutions of religious education, minority communities, weddings, and the Internet. It regards tradition not as an object of fixed history, but as a practice that needs to be explored in its institutional and interactional context at a particular time: tradition can only be judged from the present. Contributors ask when does tradition emerge as a line of argumentation, and how is it being (materially) manifested? Where and around which issues invocations of and discussions about tradition arise?

Russian Orthodoxy, Nationalism and the Soviet State during the Gorbachev Years, 1985-91

Sophie Kotzer

Series: Routledge Religion, Society and Government in Eastern Europe and the Former Soviet States

This book examines how the Russian Orthodox Church developed during the period of Gorbachev's rule in the Soviet Union, a period characterised by perestroika (reform) and glasnost (openness). It charts how official Soviet policy towards religion in general and the Russian Orthodox Church changed, with the Church enjoying significantly improved status.

Russian Practices of Governance in Eurasia

Frontier Power Dynamics, 16–19th Century

Gulnar T. Kendirbai, Columbia University, USA

Series: Central Asian Studies

Demonstrating that the mobility factor strongly shaped the system of protectorate that the Russian and Qing monarchs imposed on their nomadic counterparts, the book argues that it operated as a flexible institutional framework, which enabled all sides to derive maximum benefits from a given political situation. The author demonstrates that interactions of Russian authorities with their Kalmyk and Qazaq counterparts during the mid-16th to the mid-19th centuries were strongly informed by the power dynamics of the Inner Asian frontier.

Spaces and Places in Western India

Formations and Delineations

Edited by Bina Sengar, Assistant Professor, Department of History and Ancient Indian Culture, Dr. Babasaheb Ambedkar Marathwada University, Aurangabad, India and Laurie Hovell McMillin, Oberlin College, USA

This book studies places and spaces in western India both as geographical locations and as imagined constructs. It uncovers the rich history of the region from the perspective of places of pilgrimage, commerce, community, expression and indigeneity. The rich examples explored in this volume include sites of Bhakti and Sufi literature, the Maharashtrian-Sikh identity, Mahanubhav pilgrimage, monetary practices of the Peshwas, and the internet as an emancipatory space for the Dalit youth in Maharashtra. The chapters in the book establish and affirm the forever evolving cultural topography of western India.

Tagore, Nationalism and Cosmopolitanism

Perceptions, Contestations and Contemporary Relevance

Edited by Mohammad A. Quayum

This book is a fresh examination of Rabindranath Tagore's ideas on nationalism and his rhetoric of cosmopolitanism. It critically analyses the poetics and the politics of his works and specifically responds to Tagore's three lectures on nationalism delivered during the early years of the twentieth century, and later compiled in his book Nationalism (1917). A key study on the relevance of Tagore's political philosophy in the contemporary world with contributions from eminent Tagore scholars in South Asia as well as the West, this book will be of great interest to readers and researchers in the fields of literature, political science, cultural studies, philosophy and Asian studies.

The Crafts and Capitalism

Handloom Weaving Industry in Colonial India

Tirthankar Roy, London School of Economics and Political Science, UK

This book presents a comprehensive history of handloom weaving industry in India to challenge and revise the view that competition from machine-produced textiles destroyed the country's handicrafts as claimed by historians until recently. It shows that skill-intensive handmade textiles survived the competition on a large scale, and that handmade goods and high-quality manual labour played a positive role in the making of modern India.

The Liberal Democratic Party of Japan

The Realities of 'Power'

Kōji Nakakita and Stephen Johnson

Series: Nissan Institute/Routledge Japanese Studies

This book provides a thorough analysis of the Liberal Democratic Party of Japan (LDP), from a variety of perspectives including its factions, party presidential elections, the distribution of posts, national elections, local organisations, the policy making process and partner organisations. Drawing on comprehensive data, as well as a large number of interviews and internal party documents, it explains the machinery of the Japanese government and ruling party, exploring how policies are made. Demonstrating how the LDP has changed significantly over recent years, this book will be extremely useful to students and scholars of Japanese and Asian politics.

Trans-Himalayan Buddhism

Reconnecting Spaces, Sharing Concerns

Edited by Suchandana Chatterjee

Trans-Himalayan Buddhism is not simply a cultural spectacle across spaces north and south, east and west of the Himalayas. It is also a subject of interactive behaviour among Buddhist communities who have been dispersed over the Kunlun mountains or the Kashgar markets that have been the meeting points of pilgrims, traders, merchants, envoys, military men, artists and scholar travelers. The northern reach of Buddhism is incomprehensible without reflections on shared histories and common concerns which the book tries to focus on.; Please note: Taylor & Francis does not sell or distribute the Hardback in India, Pakistan, Nepal, Bhutan, Bangladesh and Sri Lanka

Law and the Arab–Israeli Conflict

The Trials of Palestine

Steven E. Zipperstein

Series: UCLA Center for Middle East Development (CMED) series

During the British Mandate for Palestine (1922–1948), Arabs and Jews repeatedly used the law to gain leverage and influence international opinion, especially in three dramatic and largely forgotten trials involving two issues: the interplay between conflicting British promises to the Arabs and Jews during World War I, and the parties' rights and claims to the Wailing Wall.

This study explores the origins of many of the fundamental legal arguments in the Arab-Israeli conflict that prevail to this day.

Filling a gap in research, this is a key text to scholars and students interested in the Arab-Israeli conflict, Lawfare and the Middle

Sufism and the Perfect Human

From Ibn 'Arabī to al-Jīlī

Fitzroy Morrissey

Series: Routledge Sufi Series

Studying the history of the notion of the 'Perfect Human' (al-insān al-kāmil), this book investigates a key idea in the history of Sufism. First discussed by Ibn 'Arabī and later treated in greater depth by al-Jīlī, the idea left its mark on later Islamic mystical, metaphysical, and political thought, from North Africa to Southeast Asia, up until modern times.

Introducing readers to the key Sufi idea of the Perfect Human (al-insān al-kāmil), this volume will be of interest to scholars and students interested in Sufism, Islam, religion and philosophy.

The Iraqi Kurds and the Cold War

Regional Politics, 1958-1975

Hawraman Ali

Series: Routledge Studies in Middle Eastern Politics

Examining the effects of the Cold War and regional politics on the Iraqi Kurds between 1958-1975, this study demonstrates how regional and international powers sought to exploit the Iraqi Kurds in their quest for statehood. The research draws on a plethora of British and American archival documents, select Soviet and Iranian sources integrated with Kurdish authoritative and eyewitness accounts.

Complementing the existing literature, this volume builds a chronological narrative through historical analysis. It is a key resource for students, scholars, policymakers and regional experts interested in Kurdish history, foreign policy, politics and security in the Middle East.

Women's Empowerment in Turkey and Beyond

Edited by Kursat Cinar, Middle East Technical University, Turkey

This volume offers a methodologically, theoretically, and empirically rich analysis of women's empowerment in male-dominated societies, juxtaposing the Turkish case in comparative perspective. It explores institutional and societal obstacles against women's empowerment in patriarchal communities, how women cope and bargain with patriarchy, and try to achieve better living standards for themselves and their families. The volume also pinpoints areas for improvement in women's empowerment via institutional and societal change in the areas of education, economics, politics, and social life. Contributors offer in-depth fieldwork analyses as well as rigorous

Broadening the Debate on EU–Africa Relations

Towards Reciprocal Approaches

Edited by Frank Mattheis and John Kotsopoulos, Centre for the Study of Governance Innovation, South Africa

This book is designed to broaden the scope of our understanding of the multi-layered relationship between the European Union and African political actors in order to shape both the academic and policy level discourse. The focus on chapters highlighting an African perspective offers an opportunity to redress an imbalance in scholarship, and also represents an effort to reinvigorate the EU-Africa discourse. The contributors scrutinise hitherto underexplored areas, from agricultural cooperation to sanctions to scientific collaboration, as new insights linger in the less visible margins of the relationship.

Post-Election Violence in Africa

The Impact of Judicial Independence

Meshack Simati, California State University San Marcos, USA.

Series: African Governance

Using case studies and cross-national analysis, the book shows that variation in levels of judicial independence from a non-independent judiciary to a quasi-independent judiciary or from a fully independent judiciary to quasi-independent judiciary increases the likelihood of strategic use of post-election violence by non-state actors. However, the likelihood of post-election violence is significantly reduced in non-independent judiciaries or once countries' judiciaries become fully independent.

Urban Planning in Rapidly Growing Cities

Developing Addis Ababa

Mintesnot G. Woldeamanuel, California State University, Northridge

Series: Routledge Contemporary Africa

Just like other developing cities, Addis Ababa is undergoing numerous natural and policy-driven changes. This book analyses the effect of these changes on urban management to allow better understanding of the conceptual frameworks that define the everyday functions of rapidly growing cities. It demonstrates that rapid urban growth has simultaneously created opportunities for economic development in the developing world as well as social, environmental and cultural challenges causing a mismatch between demand and the supply of services.

Accountability, International Business Operations and the Law

Providing Justice for Corporate Human Rights Violations in Global Value Chains

Edited by Liesbeth Enneking, Ivo Giesen, Anne-Jetske Schaap, Cedric Ryngaert, Francois Kristen and Lucas Roorda

Series: Globalization: Law and Policy

This volume inquires how regulatory tools stemming from international law, public law, and private law may or may not be used for transnational corporate accountability purposes. Attention is devoted to applicable standards of liability, institutional and jurisdictional issues, and practical challenges, with a focus on ways to improve the existing legal status quo. The book combines legal-doctrinal approaches with comparative, interdisciplinary and policy insights with the dual aim of furthering the legal scholarly debate and enabling higher quality decision-making by policymakers seeking to implement regulatory measures that enhance corporate accountability in this context.

Corporate Takeover Law and Management Discipline

Francis A Okanigbuan Jnr

Series: Routledge Research in Corporate Law

The dominant ideologies of corporate takeovers include synergistic gains and its managerial disciplinary role. These dominant themes are being undermined by the challenges of costly acquisitions. The UK Takeover Code is a regulatory response to the role of managers of target companies only. Also, the regulatory framework for takeovers in the United States is largely focused on target companies. The book demonstrates that managements can influence the role of takeovers, thereby undermining its synergistic and disciplinary values.

Domestic Judicial Treatment of European Court of Human Rights Case Law

Beyond Compliance

David Kosař, Hubert Smekal, Katarína Šipulová, Ladislav Vyhnaněk, Jozef Janovský and Jan Petrov

Series: Routledge Research in Human Rights Law

This book brings unique empirical findings on how often, how and with what consequences domestic judges work with the ECtHR's case law. It moves beyond the narrow concept of compliance and develops a new three-level methodology for analysing the role played by domestic courts in the implementation of ECtHR case law. Using the example of Czechia it shifts the attention from Western countries to a more volatile Central and Eastern European region.

The work will be essential for students, academics and policy-makers working in the areas of Constitutional law, Politics and Human Rights law.

Federalism and the Courts in Africa

Design and Impact in Comparative Perspective

Edited by Yonatan Fessha and Karl Kössler

Recent developments indicate that the previously stymied idea of federalism is now being revived in the constitutional arrangements of several African countries. This edited volume brings together contributions that first discuss questions of design by focusing, in particular, on the organisation of the judiciary and the appointment of judges in African federal systems. They then examine whether courts have had a rather centralizing or decentralizing impact on the operation of African federal systems.

The book will be of interest to researchers and policy-makers in the areas of comparative constitutional law and comparative politics.

Feeling Queer Jurisprudence

Injury, Intimacy, Identity

Senthorun Sunil Raj

Series: Social Justice

Scholars, activists, lawyers, and judges concerned with eliminating violence and discrimination against LGBT people have generated passionate conversations about pursuing law reform to make LGBT injuries, intimacies, and identities visible, while some challenge the ways legal systems marginalise queer minorities. Senthorun Sunil Raj contributes to these ongoing conversations by using emotion as an analytic frame to reflect on the ways case law seeks to "progress" the intimacies and identities of LGBT people from positions of injury.

International Law and Violence Against Women

Europe and the Istanbul Convention

Edited by Johanna Niemi, Lourdes Peroni and Vladislava Stoyanova

Series: Routledge Research in Human Rights Law

This book offers an in-depth and critical analysis of the Istanbul Convention, along with discussions on its impact and implications.

It highlights the place of the Convention in the landscape of international law and policies on violence against women and equality. The authors argue that the Convention has an important role in promoting equality, but also note the debates on 'genderism' that the Convention has triggered in some member states.

It provides a valuable guide for policy makers, students and academics in international human rights law, criminal and social law, social policy, social work and gender studies.

Hong Kong Constitutionalism

The British Legacy and the Chinese Future

Richard Cullen

Series: The Rule of Law in China and Comparative Perspectives

This book adopts a fresh approach in examining the evolution of Hong Kong's political-legal experience. It establishes that prominent governance achievements were built on particular British constitutional foundations forged over many centuries. It shows how 'Diceyan Constitutionalism' was fundamental within the pivotal context of 'Chinese Familism' in shaping the development of governance institutions and operational procedures within the new British Colony.

; It also analyzes Hong Kong-Beijing relations and the long-term prospects for the HKSAR within the PRC based on a balanced contemporary assessment of China's exceptional One Party State.

Housing and Financial Stability

Mortgage Lending and Macroprudential Policy in the UK and US

Alan Brener

Series: Routledge Research in Finance and Banking Law

The book addresses the relationship between housing policy, credit and financial instability in light of the recent global financial crisis, and proposes both short and long-term solutions. Although it is not known where the next crisis will come from, history suggests that it will have credit and property at its source. Thus, it is important that the UK and other countries look more broadly at what should be done in terms of policies, institutions and tools to make the housing market and mortgage lenders more resilient against a future crisis. This book sets out a number of workable proposals.

Member State Interests and European Union Law

Revisiting The Foundations Of Member State Obligations

Marton Varju

Series: Routledge Research in EU Law

The central objective of this book is to re-examine the law governing the obligations of the Member States in the European Union. This is carried out from the analytical perspective offered by the interests formulated and pursued by national governments in the EU. The book starts by analysing how diversity among the Member States, which arises from different local interests, institutional frameworks and socio-economic arrangements, is assessed and sustained in EU legislation and in the jurisprudence of the Court of Justice. It then examines the impact of EU obligations on Member State territorial authority and territoriality.

Men, Masculinities and Honour-Based Abuse

Edited by Mohammad Mazher Idriss

This book explores the largely neglected relationship between men, masculinities and honour-based abuse (HBA). There is a common misconception that HBA – whether physical violence, emotional abuse or so-called ‘honour’ killings – occurs only against women. With contributions from an international and interdisciplinary range of both academics and professionals, the book examines HBA and forced marriages specifically from male-victim perspectives, both in the UK and internationally. This book is essential reading for students, academics, and practitioners alike.

Owned, An Ethological Jurisprudence of Property

From the Cave to the Commons

Johanna Gibson

This book draws upon domestication science to undertake a radical reappraisal of the jurisprudence of property and intellectual property.

Bringing together animal studies and legal philosophy, it articulates a critique of dominant property models and relationships from the perspective of cognitive ethology, domestication science and animal behaviour. In doing so, a radical new picture of property emerges.

Regulation of Extractive Industries

Community Engagement in the Arctic

Edited by Rachael Lorna Johnstone and Anne Merrild Hansen

Series: Routledge Research in Polar Law

The extent of extractive industries varies widely around the Arctic as do governmental and social attitudes towards resource development. Whilst most Arctic communities are united in seeking investment to fund education, healthcare, housing, transport and other essential services, as well as wanting to benefit from improved employment and business opportunities, they have different views as to the role that extractive industries should play in this. Within each community, there are multiple perspectives and the goal of public participation is to draw out these perspectives and seek consensus.

Private Law, Nudging and Behavioural Economic Analysis

The Mandated-Choice Model

Antonios Karampatzos

Series: Markets and the Law

It suggests that the dilemma between inefficient opt-in rules and autonomy restricting opt-out schemes fails to realistically capture the span of options available to the policy maker. There is a third path, namely the ‘mandated-choice model’. The book is dedicated to presenting this model and exploring its great potential. Contract law, consumer protection, products safety and regulatory problems such as organ donation or excessive borrowing are the setting for the discussion.

Same-Sex Relationships, Law and Social Change

Edited by Frances Hamilton and Guido Noto La Diega

Twenty-eight jurisdictions worldwide have now legalised same-sex marriage and many others some level of civil partnership. In contrast other jurisdictions refuse to recognise or even criminalise same-sex relationships. At a Council of Europe level, there is no requirement for contracting states to legalise same-sex marriage. Whilst the Court of Justice of the European Union now requires contracting states to recognise same-sex marriages for the purpose of free movement and residency rights, unlike the US Supreme Court, it does not require EU Member States to legalise same-sex marriage.

Big Data

Edited by Benoit Leclerc, Griffith University, Australia and Jesse Cale, University of New South Wales, Australia

Series: Criminology at the Edge

Big Data entails a major disruption in the ways we think about and do things, which certainly applies to most organisations including those operating in the criminology and criminal justice fields. Big Data is currently disrupting processes in most organisations – how different organisations collaborate with one another, how organisations develop products or services, how organisations can identify, recruit and evaluate talent, how organisations can make better decisions based on empirical evidence rather than intuition, and how organisations can quickly implement any transformation plan, to name a few.

Honour Killings and Criminal Justice

Social and Legal Challenges in Turkey

Ferya Taş-Çifçi

This book analyses the motives behind honour-based violence in Turkey and examines the criminal justice system's approach to this type of crime. The work takes a socio-legal approach to explore the concept of honour, patriarchy and hierarchy, along with the role of culture and traditions. It also examines how the legal system deals with this phenomenon, focusing on the decisions of the criminal courts in honour killing cases and drawing on prisoner interviews. The analyses show to what extent the State follows the patriarchal approach when dealing with honour killings and inform recommendations to improve the legal and criminal justice system so as to deter crimes of this nature.

Counting the Costs

Edited by Sandra Walklate, University of Liverpool, UK, Kate Fitz-Gibbon, Monash University, Australia, Jude McCulloch, Monash University, Australia and JaneMaree Maher, Monash University, Australia

Series: Criminology in Focus

While there are global indices for deaths that relate to public violence, such as terrorism, there is to date no systematic global count of killings of women by their intimate partners. It considers the possibilities and challenges that arise in counting intimate femicide. It argues that such an exercise needs to avoid narrow empiricism and instead be part of a broader feminist political project aimed at ending violence against women.

Routledge Handbook of Public Criminologies

Edited by Kathryn Henne, University of Waterloo and Rita Shah, Eastern Michigan University

In an era of fake news, misguided rhetoric about immigrants and refugees, and efforts to toughen criminal laws, criminologists seeking to engage in public conversations around crime and policy arguably face an uphill battle. This book offers a comprehensive resource that addresses these challenges. It outlines the foundations of and developments in public criminology, underscoring the need to not only understand earlier ideas and debates, but also how scholars pursue public-facing work through a range of different approaches. The first of its kind, this collection captures diverse and critical perspectives on the practices and challenges of actually doing public criminology.

Anarchism, Organization and Management

Critical Perspectives for Students

Edited by Martin Parker, Konstantin Stoborod, University of Leicester, UK and Thomas Swann, Loughborough University, UK

The reader of this book will learn how anarchist ideas are relevant to today's management problems. In a series of student friendly short chapters on contemporary topics, the authors challenge the common sense that has allowed particular forms of organization and market to become globally dominant. Do we always need leaders? Is technological change always a good thing? Are markets the best way to arrange forms of exchange? This challenging book is essential for anyone who wants to understand what is wrong with business school theory, and what we might do about it.

Continuous and Embedded Learning for Organizations

Jon M. Quigley, Co-Founder, Value Transformation, LLC, Texas, USA and Shawn Quigley

There is considerable connection between growth of the personnel in the organization and the ability for the company to compete over time. Looking outside for help training may be required but looking within for opportunities for enhanced training; growth, will foster a continually improving and growing organization. This book examines the opportunities for learning, within the organization and its' activities, along with the connection to motivation. Additionally, it provides information on the characteristics of organizations that are able to quickly disseminate, along with approaches for improving this distribution of that learning throughout the organization.

Deep Data Analytics for New Product Development

Walter R. Paczkowski

This book presents and develops the deep data analytics for providing the information needed for successful new product development. Deep Data Analytics for New Product Development has a simple theme: information about what customers need and want must be extracted from data to effectively guide new product decisions regarding concept development, design, pricing, and marketing. The stages of new product development and the supporting deep data analytics at each stage are not presented in isolation of each other, but are presented as a synergistic whole.

Enterprise Risk Management

Advances on its Foundation and Practice

Terje Aven, University of Stavanger, Norway and Shital Thekdi

Enterprise Risk Management: Advances on its Foundation and Practice relates the fundamental enterprise risk management (ERM) concepts and current generic risk assessment and management principles that have been influential in redefining the risk field over the last decade. It defines ERM with a particular focus on understanding the nexus between risk, uncertainty, knowledge and performance. The book is primarily intended for risk professionals, researchers and graduate students in the fields of engineering and business. The book should also be of interest to executive managers and policy makers with some background in quantitative methods such as statistics.

Global Oligopoly

A Key Idea for Business and Society

Chris Carr

Series: Key Ideas in Business and Management

The era of globalization brought waves of consolidation in business ownership alongside leviathan-like state actors. Digital disruption likewise leaves market power in a relatively small number of hands. This book focuses on global oligopolies, starting with a comparative analysis of the diversity of approaches to global strategic decisions worldwide, before moving on to illuminate the geographical spread and global strategic orientation choices and performance outcomes of global oligopoly. Contemporary cooperation modes, such as cross-border M&As and strategic alliances, are analysed in detail to move the reader toward understanding likely future directions for the field.

Reinventing the C-Suite

Evolving Your Executive Team to Meet Today's Challenges

Terry White

There is a fundamental mismatch between the way we organise our senior management teams and the way modern commerce has evolved. Wrapping finesse, technology, rules, bureaucracy, and "science" around our C-suite conventions is not nearly enough to meet the challenges of modern business environments and practices. Executives and aspiring executives will find new challenges for organizations and ways to deal with them. Forward-thinking business students will find startling ideas and practical tools for viewing business and its activities. What is the next evolution of the executive function in organizations? This book explores how we can predict it, shape it, and succeed in it.

The Arab Business Code

Judith Hornok

The Gulf Cooperation Council countries are some of the richest and most dynamic emerging markets in the world. But international companies must think seriously if they want to do business there – the barriers can be numerous and difficult, but the opportunities phenomenal and rewarding. The key to success is to plan and take the right steps. This book shows how to do this by decoding, using case studies, and suggesting relevant solutions. In this structured, compact book, Judith Hornok presents the insights of her studies by decoding the behaviour of Arab business people in the Gulf using innovative techniques and new approaches, which can be easily implemented by the reader.

The Resilient Healthcare Organization

How to Reduce Physician and Healthcare worker Burnout

George Mayzell, MD, MBA

The Resilient Healthcare Organization engages readers with personal anecdotes from physicians and healthcare professionals and their experiences and how they overcame a loss of enthusiasm for work, feelings of cynicism and a low sense of personal accomplishment. The feelings of emotional exhaustion characterized by depersonalization and perceived ineffectiveness. These are the cardinal features that define "burnout" and affect almost 50% of physicians and 30%-70% of nurses.

Visualising Business Transformation

Pictures, Diagrams and the Pursuit of Shared Meaning

Jonathan Whelan and Stephen Whittle

Business transformation typically involves a wide range of visualisation techniques, from the templates and diagrams used by managers to make better strategic choices, to the experience maps used by designers to understand customer needs, the technical models used by architects to propose possible solutions, and the pictorial representations used by change managers to engage stakeholder groups in dialogue. Visualising Business Transformation draws these approaches together for the first time into a coherent whole, so that readers from any background can expand their repertoire and understand the context and rationale for each technique across the transformation lifecycle.

Alleviating Poverty Through Profitable Partnerships

Globalization, Markets, and Economic Well-Being

Patricia H. Werhane, University of Virginia, USA, Lisa H. Newton and Regina Wolfe

Alleviating Poverty Through Profitable Partnerships (second edition) begins with the strong and positive call to action that global poverty can be, and in some areas has been, reduced and therefore could be eradicated altogether. Global companies can alleviate poverty by seizing market opportunities at the Base of the economic Pyramid (BoP). Written by leading Business Ethics and Base of the Pyramid researchers, Patricia Werhane, Lisa Newton and Regina Wolfe this second edition builds on the first by introducing a rich set of new cases plus online materials for use in the classroom and for inspiration in practice of how global poverty has been, and can continue to be, reduced.

Strategic Information Management

Edited by Robert D. Galliers, Bentley University, USA, Dorothy E. Leidner, Baylor University, USA and Boyka Simeonova, Loughborough University, UK

Today, there are few in senior management positions who can afford to ignore modern information technology, and few individuals who would prefer to be without it. Modern IT is key to organizational performance; yet we often assume the benefits will occur without forethought or effort. As managerial tasks become more complex, so the nature of the required information systems changes – from structured, routine support to ad hoc, unstructured, complex enquiries at the highest levels of management. Designed for MBA, Master's level students, and advanced undergraduate students taking courses in information systems management, it it will also be useful for researchers.

ERP Systems for Manufacturing Supply Chains

Applications, Configuration, and Performance

Odd Jøran Sagegg and Erlend Alfnes

This book provides insight into the basic architecture, modules, and process support of an ERP-system within a manufacturing supply chain. It looks at such areas as warehousing, sales, production, purchasing and master planning. The book explains how an ERP-system can be configured to achieve logistics performance in different manufacturing environments, such as process-, discrete- and project based manufacturing. Examples using Microsoft Dynamics 365 Finance and Operations (D365FO) provide guidelines for how to configure an ERP system for increased performance in any kind of manufacturing supply chain.

Exploring Public-Private Partnerships in Singapore

The Success-Failure Continuum

Soojin Kim, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore and Kai Xiang Kwa, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore

Series: Routledge Focus on Public Governance in Asia

This book looks at what drives effective management of public-private partnerships (PPP) by examining widely cited Singapore success and failure PPP cases. The book covers diverse areas of public service including water, educational, trade and logistical data, residential, research and development, and sport services, as well as infrastructure and acquisition and maintenance of military systems. The case studies offer grounds for discussion of the lessons learnt and more feasible strategies and conditions that can contribute towards successful collaborative governance between public agencies and private counterparts for the new century.

Green Human Resource Management in Chinese Enterprises

Jie Shen, Shenzhen University, China, Jenny Dumont, University of South Australia, Australia and Xin Deng, University of South Australia, Australia

Series: Routledge Advances in Management and Business Studies

This book looks at green human resource management (HRM) and how it may enable effective implementation of organizational green initiatives. The book provides insight into green HRM practices adopted by firms, why firms adopt them and how green HRM influences workplace green and non-green behaviours. It does so through a combination of research methods, both qualitative and quantitative techniques. The book also uses supply-value fit theory to analyse and suggest the two indirect mediation relationships are moderated by individual green value and perceived organizational support (POS).

Multinational Enterprises and Transparent Tax Reporting

Alexandra Middleton, Oulu Business School, Oulu University, Finland and Jenni Muttonen, Oulu Business School, Oulu University, Finland

Series: Routledge Studies in Accounting

This book addresses the phenomenon of tax transparency by multinational enterprises, setting it apart from tax avoidance and tax evasion. In this book, tax transparency is placed in a historical background and is contextualized by investigating the possible drivers and hindering factors to tax transparency. It is discussed in the light of theoretical frameworks such as legitimacy, signaling and information overload. The book provides examples of tax transparency development of the biggest multinational enterprises in five countries (France, Germany, UK, Finland and USA) in the three years (2013-2015) preceding legislative movement in OECD and the EU.

Public Relations as Public Diplomacy

The Royal Bank of Canada's Monthly Letter, 1943-2003

Sandra L. Braun, Mount Royal University, Canada

Series: Routledge Insights in Public Relations Research

This is a study of the Royal Bank of Canada's Monthly Letter, which was initially created in 1920 as a traditional economic newsletter and later evolved quite serendipitously into a publication marvel when, in 1943, it came under the influence of John Heron, journalist and publicist, gaining mass appeal both domestically and abroad. The contents of this work provide a broad overview of the fields of public diplomacy and public relations that could serve as an introduction and discussion point for students and scholars in both fields and offers a specific case study around which lively discussion and additional study can ensue.

The Corporate State

Technopoly, Privatization and Corporate Predation

Robert M. Orange

This book examines the big US-based tech firms (eg Facebook, Google, Apple, and Amazon), highlighting numerous tensions and contradictions between their highly cultivated, flattering, yet unwarranted, public images and the reality of how they operate as extremely competitive, at times deceptive, profit-seeking entities. Through the use of clear cases that bring the theory to life for students, the book is ideal as a supplementary text for advanced undergraduate and graduate students in a range of coursework in the fields of organizational theory and behaviour, leadership in organizations, and management responsibility and business ethics.

Cooperation Networks and Economic Development

Cuba's High-Tech Potential

Andrés Cárdenas O'Farrill, University of Bremen, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Development Economics

For most Western audiences, Cuba is a touristic paradise stuck in time and virtually detached from world technology networks by the US embargo – anything but a hub of industrial innovation and high value-added biotechnology.

However, a closer look reveals more subtle but equally powerful stories that challenge the homogenizing assumptions of conventional economics and open up scope for more sophisticated reflections on Cuban economy and industry. From this kind of enquiry emerges the case of the internationally respected Cuban biotech industry as the most successful case of science and technology policy in the country's economic history.

Economic Analysis of Property Law Cases

Boudewijn R. A. Bouckaert, University of Ghent, Belgium

Series: The Economics of Legal Relationships

This book examines the economic problems which are dealt with in property law cases and evaluates the courts' decisions in those cases from an economic angle. The author aims to bridge the gap between the academic and professional literature by demonstrating the real-world benefits of the economic analysis of individual property rights cases to all those who are interested in law and economics.

Hayek, Economics, and the Epistemology of Politics

Scott Scheall, Arizona State University Polytechnic Campus, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of Economics

F. A. Hayek and the Epistemology of Politics is an exploration of an important problem that has largely been ignored: the problem of policymaker ignorance, and the limits of political epistemology. Scott Scheall explores Hayek's attitude to the philosophy of science and political philosophy, arguing that Hayek's political philosophy established the potential dangers of misapplying scientific methods and results to matters of public policy. The book offers an explanation for why policymaking often fails and why constituents, whatever their political affiliations, are so often disappointed with political leaders.

Perceiving Truth and Ceasing Doubts

What Can We Learn from 40 Years of China's Reform and Opening-Up?

Cai Fang, Chinese Academy of Social Sciences, China and Yanwen Sun

Series: China Perspectives

China has experienced tremendous developmental success since its reform and opening up policy in 1978. This book briefly narrates the history of China's successful development and explains why it has boosted high-speed growth of China economy. Recognizing the change in the stage of economic development, the author reveals the emerging challenges facing China when transitioning to high-income country and proposes that the country should transit from the demographic dividend to reform dividend to sustain the long-term development.

This book would attract scholars and students in economics and China studies, as well as readers interested in the development of Chinese economy.

The End of Individualism and the Economy

Emerging Paradigms of Connection and Community

Ann E. Davis, Marist College, USA

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

Individualism has been one of the driving forces in the rise of modern capitalism, and methodological individualism has been dominant in social science for many years. The End of Individualism and the Economy traces the origins of "the individual" in history, philosophy, economics and social science. The text looks forward and embraces the new paradigms and alternative forms of governance, economics, and science which can be developed based on collectives and communities, with new values, frameworks, and world views. This book is suitable for academics, students, scholars, and researchers with an interest in economic and social collectives and methodological individualism.

The Nature and Method of Economic Sciences

Evidence, Causality, and Ends

Ricardo F. Crespo, Universidad Austral, Argentina

Series: Routledge INEM Advances in Economic Methodology

The Nature and Method of Economic Sciences: Evidence, Causality, and Ends argues that economic phenomena can be examined from five analytical levels: a statistical descriptive approach, a causal explanatory approach, a teleological explicative approach, a normative approach, and the level of application. These viewpoints are undertaken by different economic sciences, including statistics and economic history, positive economics, normative economics, and the 'art of political economy'. This book attempts to discern the nature of economic phenomena, providing a valuable resource for students and scholars of the social sciences, philosophy, and the philosophy of economics.

What Made Korea's Rapid Growth Possible?

Jungho Yoo, KDI School of Public Policy and Management, South Korea

Series: Routledge Studies in the Modern World Economy

Korea's experience of rapid growth represents both hope and challenge to many developing countries. Korean government pursued highly interventionist trade and industrial policies, and many hold the view the government policies had made this growth possible. However, this book advances a counterargument that the rapid growth was achieved not because of the interventionist policies and also explicitly considers the influence of the world market size on the pace of industrialization.

The Political Economy of Prosperity

Successful Societies and Productive Cultures

Peter Murphy, La Trobe University, Australia

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

Why do some nations and cities attain high levels of economic and social prosperity? What makes them so successful? Efficient markets, effective industries and functional factors largely explain why nations improve their economic and social performance but not why a small group out-perform the rest. This book argues that three further factors are key: paradoxes, patterns, and portals. These factors facilitate large-scale interactions between strangers and thereby energize markets, industries, cities and publics. It is only by integrating these additional philosophical, ethical, religious and geographic elements that we can truly understand the successes of prosperous economies.

Using Fiscal Policy and Public Financial Management to Promote Gender Equality

International Perspectives

Janet G. Stotsky

Series: Routledge Studies in Gender and Economics

This book examines how fiscal policy and management can promote gender equality in developing as well as developed countries. Providing an international look at gender budgeting, it draws on countries at different levels of development, with an emphasis on low-income developing countries. It introduces the reader to the main trends in gender equality, the key ideas and rationale of gender budgeting from a fiscal policy perspective and where gender budgeting fits into public financial management.

Unmanned Aerial Remote Sensing

UAS for Environmental Applications

Edited by David R. Green, University of Aberdeen, Scotland, United Kingdom

In response to the rapidly evolving technology and applications of UAS technology, this book discusses both UAV and similar systems' platforms and their environmental applications. The platforms and sensors provide the setting while the applications chapters are focused on the environment from monitoring to mapping. The book also addresses the constraints placed on the use of the technology in some circumstances, e.g. safety, invasion of privacy, etc. The book provides a comprehensive overview on a rapidly developing area of technology.

Towards Cohesion Policy 4.0

Structural Transformation and Inclusive Growth

John Bachtler, Joaquim Oliveira Martins, Peter Wostner and Piotr Zuber

Series: Regional Studies Policy Impact Books

This book makes the case for a new approach to structural transformation, growth and cohesion in the EU. It explores both the opportunities and challenges from globalisation and technological change, and the need for a new policy framework capable of delivering inclusive growth.

The Regional Studies Association's Policy Impact Books form a series of punchy, policy facing books addressing issues of contemporary concern. There is a consistent focus on the impact of policy research both in terms of its reach to policy, academic and practitioner communities and also in its significance, to show how evidence can inform policy change within regional and urban studies.

Urban Neighbourhood Formations

Boundaries, Narrations and Intimacies

Edited by Hilal Alkan, Leibniz Zentrum Moderner Orient, Germany and Nazan Maksudyun, Leibniz Zentrum Moderner Orient, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Urbanism and the City

This book examines the formation of urban neighbourhoods in the Middle East, Africa, and South Asia. It departs from 'neighbourhoods' to consider identity, coexistence, solidarity, and violence in relations to a place.

This book offers insights into neighbourhood formations in an age of constant mobility and helps us understand the grassroots-level dynamics of xenophobia and hostility, as much as welcoming and openness. It would be of interest for both academics and more general audiences, as well as for students of undergraduate and postgraduate courses in Urban Studies and Anthropology.

STUDENT REFERENCE

Adventures in the Aid Trade

Forty Years Practicing Development in Forty Countries

Richard Holloway

Adventures in the Aid Trade takes us on a fascinating journey through 40 years of work at the coal face of international development. Drawing on his experiences from long periods in the field, the author reflects on what has worked, what has not and why, and considers how these experiences relate to students and practitioners today. Whether you are a current development practitioner, or a student just starting out in your understanding of the development and humanitarian sectors, this book provides an invaluable snapshot of the world of civil society organisations, governance, the voluntary sector, and the lived lives of ordinary people in extraordinary times.

Sabrina Ching Yuen Luk, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore

Series: Routledge Studies in the Modern World Economy

This book uses a revised version of Kingdon's multiple-streams framework to examine health financing reforms in China, Hong Kong, Taiwan and the Republic of Korea (ROK) as well as long-term care insurance (LTCI) reforms in Japan and Singapore. It shows that the explanatory power of the multiple-streams framework can be strengthened through enriching the concepts of policy entrepreneurs, ideas and windows of opportunity in the original framework as well as bringing the theoretical lens of historical institutionalism into the framework.

Sacred Waters

A Cross-Cultural Compendium of Hallowed Springs and Holy Wells

Edited by Celeste Ray

Describing sacred waters and their associated traditions in over thirty countries and across multiple time periods, this book identifies patterns in panhuman hydrolatry. Addressing themes that will shape future water research, this volume examines cultural perceptions of water's sacrality that can be employed to foster resilient human-environmental relationships in the growing water crises of the twenty-first century. The work combines perspectives from anthropology, religious studies, sociology, geography, archaeology, history and folklore.

Amerindian Socio-Cosmologies between the Andes, Amazonia and Mesoamerica

Toward an Anthropological Understanding of the Isthmo-Colombian Area

Edited by Ernst Halbmayer, University of Vienna, Austria

Series: Routledge Studies in Anthropology

This book offers a new anthropological understanding of the socio-cosmological and ontological characteristics of the Isthmo-Colombian Area, beyond established theories for Amazonia, the Andes and Mesoamerica. It focuses on a core region that has been largely neglected by comparative anthropology in recent decades.

Centering on relations between Chibchan groups and their neighbors, the contributions consider prevailing socio-cosmological principles and their relationship to Amazonian animism and Mesoamerican and Andean analogism

Denotified Tribes of India

Discrimination, Development and Change

Edited by Malli Gandhi and Kompalli H.S.S. Sundar

Social stigmatization is a virtual curse imposed on certain Indian social sections by the colonial government as part of their contextual political strategies by late nineteenth century. The so-called denotified tribes (formerly known as ex-criminal tribes) in Indian society occupy this state-made category. The work tries to present a narrative detailing the conditions of denotified tribes during colonial and post-colonial India and doing so to seek the attention of those in policy-making and decision-making bodies under the Indian government.

Mambila Divination

Framing Questions, Constructing Answers

David Zeitlyn

Series: Routledge Studies in Anthropology

This book offers a major contribution to the study and analysis of divination, based on continuing fieldwork with the Mambila in Cameroon. It seeks to return attention to the details of divinatory practice, using the questions asked, and life histories to help understand the perspective of the clients rather than that of the diviners. A detailed case study is examined, and analysed using conversational analytic principles.

The book will interest specialists and scholars concerned with religion, rationality and decision making, from disciplines including anthropology, African studies and philosophy.

Suckling

Kinship More Fluid

Fadwa El Guindi, UCLA, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Anthropology

A ground-breaking ethnographic study of suckling in the Arabian Gulf, this book reenergises the study of kinship. It analyses the misunderstood and marginalized phenomenon of suckling drawing on ethnographic fieldwork in Qatar over a seven-year period.

The volume takes kinship study beyond origins, nature-culture debates, and social nurturing and relatedness, and challenges claims of deterministic, reductionist formulas. This book is valuable for anthropologists, Middle East scholars and others with an interest in breastfeeding, family and social organisation, and religion.

Surfaces

Transformations of Body, Materials and Earth

Edited by Mike Anusas, University of Edinburgh, Edinburgh and Cristián Simonetti, Pontificia Universidad Católica de Chile, Chile

Series: Routledge Studies in Anthropology

In attending to surfaces, as they wrap, layer and grow within sentient bodies, material formations and cosmological sites, this volume presents a series of ten anthropological studies stretching across five continents and in observation of earthly practices of making, knowing, living and dying.

The book principally invites readers from anthropology, the creative arts and environmental studies, but also across the wider humanities and social sciences as well as those in neighbouring scientific fields of archeology, biology, geography, geoscience, material science, neurology and psychology interested in the intersections of mind, body, materials and world.

Behavioural Science and Housing Decision Making

A Case Study Approach

Helen X. H. Bao, University of Cambridge, UK

This book takes a behavioural approach to examine six important housing questions: tenure decision making, neighbourhood decision making, housing prices, housing cycles, housing wealth effects, and housing satisfaction. The first part of the book introduces the questions and provides a behavioural science toolbox before the second part adopts a real-world case study approach with cases from the UK, USA, Hong Kong, and China. This book is ideal supplementary reading on a variety of courses such as housing studies, economics, real estate, research methods and for students and academics who are interested in the application of behavioural science in housing decisions.

On Guilt

The Force Shaping Character, History, and Culture

John Carroll, La Trobe University, Australia

Series: Morality, Society and Culture

This book explores the nature of guilt, shedding light on how the modern West came increasingly to understand it as 'the most terrible sickness'. It traces the psychological origins of guilt in each person's family, and demonstrates the historical rise of guilt in parallel with civilization. It examines the modern predicament: the difficulty of finding explanations for guilt in a secular, post-church society - and the possibility of relief from its curse, while channeling it into a fulfilling life. As such it will appeal to those with interests in sociology, psychology, psychiatry, cultural studies, cultural history, and anthropology.

Critical Theory and Social Transformation

Crises of the Present and Future Possibilities

Gerard Delanty

This book provides an exploration of the major themes in critical social theory of recent years. Delanty argues that a critical theory perspective can offer much needed insights into the pressing socio-political challenges of our time. He engages with the key topics facing critical social theorists: capitalism, cosmopolitanism, modernity, the Anthropocene, and Europe. The notions of critique, crisis and social transformation are central to the book. The book will appeal to those working in sociology, political sociology, politics and international studies, and to anyone with an interest in any of the chapter specific topics, such as public space, memory, and neo-authoritarianism.

On Social Evolution

Phenomenon and Paradigm

Shing Tang

Tang provides a coherent and systematic exploration of social evolution as a phenomenon and as a paradigm. He critically builds on existing discussions on social evolution, while drawing from a wide range of disciplines, including archaeology, evolutionary anthropology, sociology, economics, political science, the philosophy of social sciences, and evolutionary biology. Clarifying the relationship between biological evolution and social evolution, Tang lays bare the ontological and epistemological principles of the Social Evolutionary Paradigm. He also presents operational principles and tools for deploying this paradigm to understand empirical puzzles about human society.

Love Across Borders

Asian Americans and the Politics of Intermarriage and Family-Making

Kelly H. Chong, University of Kansas, USA

Through the lens of intermarriage, Love Across Borders offers critical insights into the often invisible racial struggles of this racially in-between "model minority" group -- particularly its ambivalent negotiations with whiteness and white privilege -- and on the group's social incorporation process and its implications for the redrawing of color boundaries in the US.

Comparing two types of Asian-American intermarriage, interracial and interethnic, Chong shows that both types of intermarriages, in differing ways, are sites of complex struggles around racial/ethnic identity and cultural formations that reveal the salience of race in the lives of Asian-Americans.

Paying for Sex in a Digital Age

US and UK Perspectives

Teela Sanders, University of Leicester, UK, Barbara G. Brents, University of Nevada, USA and Chris Wakefield, University of Nevada, USA

With data drawn from two large surveys of sex workers' clients in the US and UK, this book presents cross cultural examinations of the dynamic market for sexual services over the internet and beyond, making clear that the situational as well as individual factors affect the willingness and ability to purchase sexual services. The emergent evidence based view shatters stereotypes and generalizations on which much policy is based, and demonstrates the complexities surrounding who pays for sex and the contours of sexual consumption in consumer culture.

Autoethnographic Reflections on Life and Work

Carolyn Ellis

Series: Routledge Education Classic Edition

Carolyn Ellis is the leading writer in the move toward personal, autobiographical writing as a strategy for academic research. In addition to her landmark books Final Negotiations, Second Edition and The Ethnographic I, she has authored numerous stories that demonstrate the emotional power and academic value of autoethnography. This volume collects a dozen of Ellis's stories—about the loss of her husband, brother and mother; of growing up in small town Virginia; about the work of the ethnographer; about emotionally charged life issues such as abortion, caregiving, and love. Atop these captivating stories, she adds the component of meta-autoethnography—a layering

The Black Circuit

Race, Performance, and Spectatorship in Black Popular Theatre

Rashida Z. Shaw McMahon

Series: Sociology Re-Wired

The Black Circuit presents the first book-length study of "Chitlin Circuit" theatre, the most popular and controversial form of black theatre to exist outside the purview of Broadway since the 1980s. Through historical, performance, and sociological research, Rashida Z. Shaw McMahon presents a critical examination of how these alienated African American musical events complicate our contemporary understanding of performance and spectatorship within African American theatre, with specific attention to the theatre of Je' Caryous Johnson and Gary Guidry, David Talbert, Tyler Perry, and the mid-century musicals of Langston Hughes.

Economic Sociology

An Introduction

Jeffrey K. Hass, University of Richmond, USA

Economic Sociology, 2nd edition, shows how economies are more than supply-and-demand curves, individual profit motives, and efficient performance: they are forms of power and structure, grounded in institutions and culture. The volume addresses crucially important economic issues that touch our well-being and justice: the rise and structuring of capitalism; relations between states and economies; economic policies; economies and inequality; and organizations and corporations. Written in a clear and direct style, this textbook will appeal to students and scholars in economic sociology, sociology of work, economics, social policy, political economy and comparative sociology

Introduction to Sociology

Frank van Tubergen, Utrecht University, Netherlands

This textbook presents in a highly accessible and engaging way key knowledge in sociology, introducing students to core concepts, theories, perspectives, methods and findings. Furthermore, it helps students learning to think like a sociologist. It offers students a 'sociological toolkit', a set of useful insights, tools and principles, which will enable them to do research like a sociologist themselves. Being able to think like a sociologist helps students to analyze any sociological topic and any contemporary social problem - even those with which one is yet unfamiliar.

Statelessness and Contemporary Enslavement

Jane Anna Gordon

Why have statelessness and contemporary enslavement become endemic since the 1990s? What is it about global political economic policies, protracted warfare, and migration rules and patterns, that have increased these extreme forms of vulnerability?

While the centuries-long practice has taken on a new guise necessary to its profitability in the current global economy, what and who it involves has remained remarkably consistent. This book argues that statelessness and enslavement are not aberrations or radical exceptions. They have been and are endemic to Euromodern state systems.

Contemporary European Emigration

Situating Integration in New Destinations

Edited by Brigitte Suter and Lisa Åkesson

Series: Routledge Studies in Development, Mobilities and Migration

At a time when European unity is politically challenged by the question of immigration, it is easy to forget that many Europeans are in fact leaving the continent. Drawing on the experiences of contemporary European emigrants from a range of countries, this book sheds light on how global economic, political and social transformations spur new forms of migration and mobility experiences. Delving into accounts of social integration and transnational and local connectivity, the book provides exciting insights into how Europeans see themselves in the world. Defending Qualitative Research

Design, Analysis and Textualization

Mario Cardano, University of Turin, Italy

Series: Routledge Advances in Research Methods

Focusing on the phases of qualitative research which precede and follow fieldwork - design, analysis, and textualization - this book offers new theoretical tools to tackle one of the most common criticisms advanced against qualitative research: its presumed lack of rigour. Rejecting the notion of 'rigour' as formulated in quantitative research and based on the theory of probability, it proposes a theoretical frame that allows combining the goals of rigour and that of creativity through the reference to theory of argumentation. As such, it will appeal to scholars and students across the social sciences with interests in qualitative research methods.

Everyday Fears of Legal Immigrants with Undocumented Spouses

Under U.S. Immigration Policy

Nina Michalikova, University of Central Oklahoma, USA

Series: Solving Social Problems

The first study to systematically analyse the ways in which legal immigrants are affected by federal and state policies that target their undocumented spouses, this book explores the structural limitations faced by legal immigrants with undocumented spouses in their private, social and professional lives, as well as in regard to their finances, and health. Based on auto-ethnographic work and drawing on qualitative research and quantitative data, it reveals that regardless of their immigration status, all members of mixed-status families are directly or indirectly subjected to the same intrusive and punitive laws.

Gender Verification and the Making of the Female Body in Sport

A History of the Present

Sonja Erikainen, University of Edinburgh, UK

Series: Routledge Advances in Critical Diversities

Tracing gender verification policies and practices in sport since the 1930s till the present, the book shows how and why medical "sex tests" have been used to "verify" women athletes' femaleness, in ways that both reflect and have shaped broader social and scientific ideas about femaleness in the process. By mapping the social, historical, and material instability of sex and gender, it shows why so much investment has been placed in distinguishing femaleness from maleness in sport and beyond.

Series: Routledge Research in Gender and Society

This book aims to begin an eco-centered, eco-feminist informed discussion about the ways in which our relationship to "nature" is bound up with gender, patriarchy and violence. A portion of this book is devoted to exploring the ways in which patriarchy is foregrounded by another hierarchy - human domination over "nature". Thus, gender violence stems from a logic of domination that is built on the domination of nature and the domination of the Other "as nature." As this oppression repeats itself where there are vectors of difference, the chapters ultimately connect them by showing the inextricable bind of violence against humans and the more-than-human-life-world.

Heterotopia and Globalisation in the Twenty-First Century

Edited by Simon Ferdinand, University of Amsterdam, The Netherlands, Irina Souch, University of Amsterdam, The Netherlands and Daan Wesselman, University of Amsterdam, The Netherlands

Can heterotopia help us make sense of globalisation? Against simplistic visions that the world is becoming one, Heterotopia and Globalisation in the Twenty-First Century shows how contemporary globalising processes are riven by heterotopian tension and complexities.

This volume will be of interest to scholars across disciplines who are engaged with questions of spatial difference, globalising processes, and the ways they are imagined and represented.

Later Life

Exploring Aging through Literature

Barbara A. Misztal, University of Leicester, UK

Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology

Later Life views older age as a valuable stage of life and argues for the centrality of self-making to the quality of later life. Aiming to enrich an understanding of ageing as the unfolding process in which people try to negotiate vulnerabilities of their bodies and manage mortality, it explores the conditions for pursuing the search for knowledge of oneself in later life.

The book's focus on the experiences of later life will appeal to the reader interested in understanding the complexities of ageing and in enhancing the quality of later life, while its reliance on literary illustrations will be appreciated by lovers of literature.

Magical Realist Sociologies of Belonging and Becoming

The Explorer

Rodanthe Tzanelli, University of Leeds, UK

Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology

Inspired by fusions of cultural pragmatics, phenomenology, phanerology, the morphogenetic approach, feminist posthumanism and especially postcolonial theories of magical realism, this study examines interconnected variations of identity and subjectivity in contexts of contemporary mobility (digital and embodied travel/tourism). As a study of cultural emergism, the book will be of interest to students and scholars in critical theory, cultural, postcolonial and decolonial studies, and tourism/pilgrimage theory.

Metropolis, Money and Markets

Brazilian Urban Financialization in Times of Re-emerging Global Finance

Jeroen Klink, Universidade Federal do ABC, Brazil

Series: Global Urban Studies

This book explores the impact of finance on urban spaces as well as cities' role in the social constitution and dissemination of financial logics and techniques. It brings together literatures from different disciplinary areas to increase our understanding of financialization.

This makes the text relevant for academics and scholars of urban studies and planning theory, geography, development studies and political economy, as well as scholars in the US and Europe interested in understanding Brazilian patterns of financialization.

Negotiating Thinness Online

The Cultural Politics of Pro-anorexia

Gemma Cobb, University of Sussex, UK

Series: Gender, Bodies and Transformation

This book interrogates the thin ideal in pro-anorexia online spaces and the way in which it operates on a continuum with everyday discourses around thinness. Situating 'pro-ana' online spaces in relation to the mainstream construction of thinness, promulgated by, for instance, women's magazines, the author argues that in spite of the media's insistence that pro-ana attitudes are pathological, dangerous and must be censored, they hold the potential to critique that which has long been considered normal: the culture of compulsory thinness.

Nostalgia Now

Cross-Disciplinary Perspectives on the Past in the Present

Edited by Michael Hviid Jacobsen, Aalborg University, Denmark

Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology

This volume explores the nature of nostalgia as an important emotion in contemporary society and social theory. Situated between the 'sociology of emotions' and 'nostalgia studies', it considers the reasons for which nostalgia appears to be becoming an increasingly significant and debated emotion in late-modern culture. Thematically organised and examining the role of nostalgia on an individual level as well as analysing its function on a more historical social level as a collective and culturally shared emotion Nostalgia Now brings together the latest empirical and theoretical work on an important contemporary emotion and proposes new agendas for research.

On the Genealogy of Critique

Or How We Have Become Decadently Indignant

Diana Stypinska, Liverpool Hope University, UK

Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology

On the Genealogy of Critique intervenes into both the contemporary academic debates on critique and today's mainstream criticism by reflecting upon the relationship between criticality and social change in the age of post-politics.

It presents a counter-history of criticism, demonstrating how the modern notion of critical subjectivity embodies an imperative to the securitisation of the status quo. This book is of relevance to anyone concerned with social change. Particularly, it will be of use to academics, postgraduates and advanced undergraduate students working in the areas of Sociology, Politics, Philosophy and Cultural Studies.

Routledge International Handbook of Contemporary Racisms

Edited by John Solomos, University of Warwick, UK

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

The study of contemporary forms of racism has expanded greatly over the past four decades. Although it has been a focus for scholarship and research for the past three centuries, it is perhaps over this more recent period that we have seen important transformations in the analytical frames and methods to explore the changing patterns of contemporary racisms. Written in a clear and direct style, and from a conceptual, multidisciplinary and international perspective, this Handbook will provide students, scholars and practitioners with an overview of the most pressing issues of Racisms in our time.

Post-Sixties Narratives as Cultural Criticism

Seeking Radical Change in America

Lin Xiang, Sichuan Normal University, China

With a focus on essays in Dissent magazine, as well books on American culture by Daniel Bell, and Russell Jacoby, this book examines the cultural criticism led by New York intellectuals from the 1960s onwards, considering the influence of such critique on American collective memory and contemporary public culture. A study of the ways in which narratives can move beyond story-telling to have interpretative and ideological functions as a form of criticism, this book will appeal to scholars of cultural studies and sociology, as well as those working in the fields of linguistics and literary theory.

The Appeal of Art in Modernity

Michael Symonds

Series: Classical and Contemporary Social Theory

This book explores the place of art in the modern world. Engaging with a broad range of theory, the author draws on the thought of Max Weber to offer an account of art's widespread appeal in terms of its constituting a self-contained value-sphere of meaning, which provides a feeling of tremendous salvation from the senseless routines of modern life. The book recasts major theories on aesthetics in philosophy and sociology and gives fresh answers to fundamental questions concerning the relation of art to politics and ethics, while showing how art came to be regarded as one of the last bastions of freedom and the highest human achievement.

The Portable Community

Place and Displacement in Bluegrass Festival Life

Robert Owen Gardner, Linfield College, USA

Series: Interactionist Currents

This book explores the various ways in which individuals use music and culture to understand and respond to changes in their natural and built environments. Drawing on over fifteen years of ethnographic fieldwork, interviews and participant observation, the author develops the thesis that the relationships, networks, and intimate forms of social interaction in the 'portable' community cultivated at bluegrass festival events are significant cultural formations that shape participants' relationships to their localities. This volume will appeal to scholars of sociology with interests in symbolic interactionism, the sociology of music, culture and the sociology of disaster.

Urban Change and Citizenship in Times of Crisis

Volume 1: Concepts and Theory

Edited by Bryan Turner, Australian Catholic University, Australia, Hannah Wolf, Gregor Fitz, Bielefeld University, Germany and Juergen Mackert, University of Potsdam, Germany

Series: Citizenship and Modern Society

Composed around the question whether there can be such a thing as a 'successful city', this volume addresses issues of urban political subjectivities by considering the city's role in historical processes of emancipation, the fight for citizenship rights, and today's challenges and opportunities with regard to promoting social justice, integration, and diversity. Consequentially, theory-driven empirical analyses offer new insight into ways of solving problems in urban contexts and a genuine approach to analyse the Social Quality in cities.

Urban Change and Citizenship in Times of Crisis

Volume 2: Changing Cities and Citizens' Action

Edited by Bryan Turner, Australian Catholic University, Australia, Hannah Wolf, Gregor Fitz, Bielefeld University, Germany and Juergen Mackert, University of Potsdam, Germany

Series: Citizenship and Modern Society

The contributions to Urban Neo-liberalisation bring together critical analyses of the dynamics and processes neo-liberalism has facilitated in urban contexts. Against the backdrop of recent austerity politics and a marketisation of cities, this volume discusses processes of urban neo-liberalisation with regard to democracy and citizenship, inclusion and exclusion, opportunities and life chances. It addresses pressing issues of commodification of housing and home, activation of civil society, vulnerability and the right to the city.

Urban Change and Citizenship in Times of Crisis

Volume 3: Citizenship, Human Rights and Religion

Edited by Bryan Turner, Australian Catholic University, Australia, Hannah Wolf, Gregor Fitz, Bielefeld University, Germany and Juergen Mackert, University of Potsdam, Germany

Series: Citizenship and Modern Society

The contributions gathered in this volume shed light on the clash between the perspectives of restructuring and re-ordering urban environments in the interest of investors and the manifold and innovative agencies of resistance that claim and stand up for the rights of urban citizenship. The case-studies of the volume comparatively show the different and sometimes contradictory patterns of these conflicts in Berlin, Sydney, Belfast, Jerusalem, Amsterdam and Istanbul as well as in metropolises of Latin America and China. Innovative resistance agencies emerge that paint possible paths for the re-establishment of the right to the city as the core of urban citizenship.

This handbook represents the first comprehensive and evidence-based review of theory, research, and practice in the field of adapted physical education (APE). Exploring philosophical and foundational aspects of APE, the book outlines the main conceptual frameworks informing research and teaching in this area and presents important material that will help shape best practice and future research. Offering an unprecedented wealth of material, this is an essential reference for advanced students, researchers and scholars working in APE, and useful reading for anybody with an interest in disability, physical education, sports coaching, movement science or youth sport.

Edited by Nils Asle Bergsgard, Solfrid Bratland-Sanda, University of South-Eastern Norway, Richard Giulianotti, Loughborough University, UK and Jan Ove Tangen, University of South-Eastern Norway

Series: Sport in the Global Society – Contemporary Perspectives

Sport, Outdoor Life and the Nordic World explores the Nordic model of sport and outdoor life with respect to such issues as sport facilities, mountain guiding, women and ethnic minorities, urban planning, anti-doping, health, elite sport coaching and leadership, and the globalization of sport. The aims of the volume are twofold. First, it advances knowledge of Nordic sport and outdoor life, as important fields of social activity in their own rights. Second, it enhances the understanding of the 'Nordic model' of society, and the ways in which this is constructed, explored and challenged within and through sport and outdoor life activities.

Australian Climate Policy and Diplomacy

Government-Industry Discourses

Ben L. Parr

Series: Routledge Focus on Environment and Sustainability

This book delivers an up-to-date explanation for Australia's weak response to climate change. It contends the dominant 'greenhouse mafia' theory, which argues that Australia's weak policy response to climate change is the result of a menacing domestic fossil fuel lobby. Instead, this book argues that the shared government-industry discourse about protecting Australia's industrial competitiveness has had a more decisive influence in shaping and legitimising Australian climate policy than the direct lobbying tactics of the fossil fuel industry.

Brent, International Institute of Social Studies, Erasmus University Rotterdam, The Netherlands
Series: ThirdWorlds

This book argues that the multiple contemporary converging crises have significantly altered the context for and object of political contestations around agrarian, climate, environmental and food justice issues. The majority of the discussions in this volume are dedicated to the issue of responses to the crises both by capitalist forces and those adversely affected by the crises, and the implications of these for academic research and political activist work. Anthropocene Ecologies

Entanglements of Tourism, Nature and Imagination

Edited by Mary Mostafanezhad, University of Hawai'i at Manoa, USA and Roger Norum, University of Oulu, Finland

This book examines anthropogenic imaginaries across several critical themes in social science studies of tourism such as gender, health, conservation, agriculture, climate change, disaster and coastal marine management. Individually, each chapter theoretically and empirically integrates linkages between tourism practice, the tourism industry and political ecological responses to tourism through the lens of the Anthropocene. Collectively, it reflects a range of geographic case studies from tourism-focused scholars that investigate the thought, politics and practices that drive imaginaries of the Anthropocene.

Pilgrimage beyond the Officially Sacred

Understanding the Geographies of Religion and Spirituality in Sacred Travel

Edited by Michael A. Di Giovine, West Chester University, USA and Jaeyeon Choe, Bournemouth University, UK

This volume examines the ways in which pilgrimage engages with sacredness, delving beyond the officially recognized pilgrimage sites. Separating the social category of "religion" from the "sacred," it brings together scholars employing perspectives from anthropology, geography, sociology, religious studies, theology and interdisciplinary tourism studies to theorize sacredness, its variability, and the ways in which it is officially recognized or condemned by power brokers. It is rich in case studies from sacred centers throughout the world.

Attachment in Religion and Spirituality

A Wider View

Pehr Granqvist, Department of Psychology, Stockholm University, Sweden

Synthesizing diverse strands of theory and research, this compelling book explores the psychology of religion and spirituality through an innovative attachment lens. Pehr Granqvist examines the connections between early caregiving experiences, attachment patterns, and individual differences in religious cognition, experience, and behavior. The function of a deity as an attachment figure is analyzed, as are ways in which attachment facilitates the intergenerational transmission of religion.

Bullying in Youth Sports Training

New perspectives and practical strategies

Miguel Nery, Carlos Neto, António Rosado, Universidade de Lisboa and Peter K. Smith, Goldsmiths University of London, UK

This book explores how often bullying occurs, how long it lasts, where and when bullying takes place, the coping strategies used by victims, and the roles of bystanders and bullies. It provides new insights into theories of youth sport bullying and highlights the particular characteristics specific to bullying in sport. The book features both theoretical and practical approaches to bullying in youth sport training, providing anti-bullying guidelines based on the results of the research. It is essential reading for scholars and students in child development and sport sciences as well as sports coaches and professionals in mental health, education and social work.

Children as Agents in Their Worlds

A Critical, Psychosocial Perspective

Sheila Greene, Trinity College Dublin, Ireland and Elizabeth Nixon, Trinity College Dublin, Ireland

This book approaches the topic of children's agency from a fresh perspective, emphasising what psychological and developmental science can bring to a debate which has been dominated by sociology and anthropology. It reviews research on agency from family, school and wider society domains, pinpointing both strengths and weaknesses and drawing out ways in which theory and practice in relation to children as agents in their own lives might be developed. Combining a psychosocial approach with perspectives from sociology, anthropology and education it offers a stronger theoretical base for research and policy and will be essential reading for students and professionals in these fields.

Educational Neuroscience

Development Across the Life Span

Edited by Michael S. C. Thomas, Birkbeck, University of London, UK, Denis Mareschal, Birkbeck, University of London, UK and Iroise Dumontheil, Birkbeck, University of London, UK

Series: Frontiers of Developmental Science

While there is a great thirst from educators for neuroscience findings that can be translated to classroom practices, there are risks of premature adoption of 'brain-based' methods that do not have a solid scientific foundation. This new volume surveys what neuroscience findings are available to begin the complex process of translation and what progress has been made in this process. The volume covers life-span perspectives on learning, factors influencing individual differences in educational achievement, and methods to enhance plasticity.

Family Experience of Brain Injury

Surviving, Coping, Adjusting

Jo Clark-Wilson and Mark Holloway

Series: After Brain Injury: Survivor Stories

This important book gives a voice to family members of people with a brain injury, who can also be severely impacted by the experience. Changes to behaviour, to personality and to functioning may render the injured person entirely different and the involved relative is left loving a stranger, often with very little specialist help. Combining expert commentary with the stories of family members, this book points towards sources of support, normalises their experience and provides a context for their grief and loss.

Handbook of Integrative Developmental Science

Essays in Honor of Kurt W. Fischer

Edited by Michael F. Mascolo, Merrimack College, Andover, Massachusetts, USA and Thomas R. Bidell

The Handbook of Integrative Developmental Science explores how dynamic skill theory can be employed to further advance theory and research in developmental science. Few models today speak so systematically to both the invariant organization and dynamic variability of development, and none rival dynamic skill theory's unique juxtaposition of breadth and precision at the theoretical, methodological, and analytical levels. This handbook brings together a diverse collection of essays that not only illustrate the comprehensive scope of dynamic skill theory, but also forge new research directions for the field.

Language Development and Social Interaction in Blind Children

Miguel Perez-Pereira and Gina Conti-Ramsden

Series: Psychology Press & Routledge Classic Editions

With a new introduction outlining the current context and latest research, this classic text offers a survey of research into blind children's developing communicative abilities. It bridges the study of typically developing children and the development of children who are blind, to provide insights and explanations of why development might differ. With emphasis on social cognition and language acquisition from infancy to early school age, it explores theory of mind and perspective taking in language learning, making the case of blind children crucial to our understanding of aspects of psychological functioning.

Leadership and the Ethics of Influence

Terry L. Price, University of Richmond, USA

Series: Leadership: Research and Practice

This book examines the ethics of leader influence. Leaders' exercise of influence over individuals and groups involves getting followers to engage in behaviors that align with particular interests and goals. Leadership resides conceptually between forcing someone do something and the basic independence that characterizes letting people act on whatever motivations they happen to have. Negotiating the territory between force and independence is the distinctive moral challenge of leadership. Grounded in moral theory and rigorous research, this book also offers practical applications to the distinctive ethical challenges of leadership.

Life and Suicide Following Brain Injury

A Personal and Professional Account

Alyson Norman

Series: After Brain Injury: Survivor Stories

Tom acquired a traumatic brain injury (TBI) aged 22 and took his own life 20 years later. In telling Tom's story, the author—a professional who works with suicidal clients, and also Tom's sister—identifies the multiple suicide risk factors, the lack of understanding and inadequate service provision for people with complex needs following TBI. Tom's story serves as a harrowing example of what can go wrong when timely intervention and support is not forthcoming, providing insight to professionals and academics across health and social care in the risks of suicide associated with TBI. It also provides support for those who have experienced the grief of losing a survivor to suicide.

Psychological Therapy for Paediatric Acquired Brain Injury

Innovations for Children, Young People and Families

Edited by Jenny Jim, Deputy Programme Director (Clinical), Professional Doctorate in Clinical Psychology, University of East London, UK and Consultant Clinical Psychologist, The Children's Trust, and Esther Cole, Clinical Psychologist, private practice, UK

Series: The Brain Injuries Series

This pioneering book is the first to address how clinicians can work therapeutically with children and young people with an acquired brain injury. Beginning with an overview of paediatric neuropsychology, and drawing on paediatric neuro-rehabilitation, it uses narrative, systemic and integrative models of therapy, taking the reader through the process of assessment and psychological formulation towards multiple interventions. Written by frontline innovators in the field, and richly illustrated by case examples exploring the psychotherapeutic, rehabilitative and adjustment processes of patients and families, this is a vital resource for any clinician working in this field.

Psychology, Humour and Class

A Critique of Contemporary Psychology

Babak Fozooni

Series: Concepts for Critical Psychology

This book critically examines three forms of contemporary psychology through analogy with humour associated with three different class perspectives: mainstream psychology; critical psychology; post psychology. The author provides an alternative narrative of psychology and suggests that whilst all three forms of psychology have contributed to our self-comprehension, it is only post psychology that possesses the attributes for a global remaking of humanity. By fusing the best of the three psychologies with political and cultural critiques, Fozooni hopes to demonstrate a new way of 'doing' psychology. This is fascinating reading for students and academics interested in psychology.

When Leaders Face Personal Crisis

The Human Side of Leadership

Gill Robinson Hickman and Laura E Knouse

Series: Leadership: Research and Practice

This book examines a relatively unexplored area of leadership research by considering the impact of leaders navigating their own personal crises on their relationships with teams, peers, and supervisors. Through original research as well as an integrative review of the literature, Hickman and Knouse focus on the leader-as-person in crisis, including the real-life personal crises and experiences of leaders. This volume offers a detailed description of factors that contribute to the ways in which leaders experience and cope with personal crisis. This book also offers current and prospective leaders advice and direction on effectively navigating personal crisis.

An Introduction to Theories of Learning

Matthew H. Olson, Hamline University, USA and Julio J. Ramirez

This text defines learning and shows how the learning process is studied, places learning theory in historical perspective, and presents essential features of the major theories of learning with implications for educational practices. The authors retained the best features of earlier editions and incorporated current research, including coverage of active learning and the testing effect, data showing the neurobiological basis of the cognitive map and spatial learning, new research on brain plasticity and its role in learning as well as the impact of poverty on brain and cognitive development, and new evidence that challenges the notion of learning styles.

Series: Extending Knowledge and Skills

Written by an experienced Psychology teacher and Assistant Principal Examiner for Paper 3 of the AQA A Level Psychology specification, this book focuses the optional topic Relationships on Paper 3. Presenting a clear and concise approach which maps to the specification, each chapter is divided into three sections: knowledge (AO1), application (AO2) and evaluation (AO3) and demonstrates how to apply this knowledge in an exam. Boasting material far beyond what the average A Level textbook offers, this book contains both contemporary and classic research studies alongside practice questions. It is an excellent resource for students aiming high and striving to improve their grades.

A Humanities Approach to the Psychology of Personhood

Edited by Jeff Sugarman and Jack Martin

Series: Advances in Theoretical and Philosophical Psychology

In this insightful set of essays, the concept of the psychological humanities is defined and explored. A clear rationale is provided for its necessity in the study and understanding of the individual and identity in a discipline that is largely occupied by empirical studies that report aggregated data and its analysis.

This book is aimed at upper level undergraduate and postgraduate students and scholars of psychology, particularly theoretical psychology, philosophy of the mind, and those from a humanities background interested in exploring the concept of the psychological humanities.

The Routledge Handbook of Collective Responsibility

Edited by Saba Bazargan-Forward and Deborah Tollefsen

Series: Routledge Handbooks in Philosophy

The Routledge Handbook of Collective Responsibility comprehensively addresses questions about who is responsible and how blame or praise should be attributed when human agents act together. Such questions include: Do individuals share responsibility for the outcome or are individuals responsible only for their contribution to the act? Are individuals responsible for actions done by their group even when they don't contribute to the outcome? Can a corporation or institution be held morally responsible apart from the responsibility of its members?

Malignant Narcissism and Power

A Psychodynamic Exploration of Madness and Leadership

Charles Zeiders and Peter Devlin

This book looks at the Malignant Narcissist Leader (MNL) as a diagnostic label, identifying the key character traits of charisma, grandiosity, sadism and paranoia, and how this singular pathology encourages these dangerous individuals to see themselves as 'spiritual' leaders. First identified in the aftermath of the second world war, the MNL has the potential to become a toxic presence in religious, business and political institutions, and the book features the case study of a fictionalised example within a church community, as well as clinical examples from other arenas. It will prove fascinating reading for a range of psychoanalysts, as well as anyone interested in cults.

The Temporal Dimension in Counselling and Psychotherapy

A Journey in Time

Sue Wright

Time is that intangible phenomena, culturally created, historically framed but only individually understood. It moves at different speeds, and our awareness varies at different moments of our lives. This far-reaching book examines our relationship to time, what it means to us in terms of our mortality, as well as the issues which affect our daily lives. Integrating historical, cultural and psychotherapeutic perspectives, it shines a light on our experience of time from our current identity to past trauma, both in the consulting room and beyond it, and will be fascinating reading for counsellors and therapists, as well as anyone interested in the impact of time on lived experience.

The Touch Taboo in Psychotherapy and Everyday Life

Tamar Swade

Touch has been a taboo in mainstream Western talking therapies since their inception. This book examines the effects on us of touch, and of touch deprivation – what we feel when we are touched, what it means to us, and the fact that some individuals and cultures are more tactile than others. The author traces the development and perpetuation of the touch taboo, puts forward counterarguments to it, outlines criteria for the safe and effective use of touch in therapy, and suggests ways of dismantling the touch taboo should we wish to do so.

High-Conflict Parenting Post-Separation

The Making and Breaking of Family Ties

Eia Asen and Emma Morris

Series: The Anna Freud National Centre for Children and Families High-Conflict Parenting Post-Separation: The Making and Breaking of Family Ties describes an innovative approach for families where children are caught up in their parents' acrimonious relationship - before, during and after formal legal proceedings have been initiated and concluded. It is written for professionals who work with high-conflict families and should also be of considerable interest for parents who struggle with post-separation issues that involve their children.

Magnificent Sex

Lessons from Extraordinary Lovers

Peggy J. Kleinplatz and A. Dana Ménard

Magnificent Sex is based on the largest study ever conducted with people who are having extraordinary sex. Looking at factors including individual and relational qualities, empathic communication, and the myths and realities of magnificent sex, this book offers accessible and evidence-based guidance for lovers and therapists alike. With frank and often humorous interviews from straight and LGBTQ individuals and couples, those who are 'vanilla' and 'kinky', monogamous and consensually non-monogamous, and healthy and chronically ill, this illuminating book explores the findings to develop a model that effectively tackles the common problems of low desire and frequency.

Sexual Attraction in Therapy

Managing Feelings of Desire in Clinical Practice

Michael Shelton

This accessible book offers effective protocol for engaging in better sexual decision-making in clinical practice. It demonstrates that damaging sexual behaviors are often the result of a much longer process, in which a clinician gradually and imperceptibly progresses towards the crossing of a client-clinician boundary. Chapters provide guidance on how to recognize personal risk factors, manage arousal, monitor progress along the 'sexual decision cycle', and to use self-talk to exit sexual situations.

What to Say to Kids When Nothing Seems to Work

A Practical Guide for Parents and Caregivers

Adele Lafrance, Laurentian University, California, USA and Ashley P. Miller

What to Say to Kids When Nothing Seems to Work offers parents a step-by-step guide to some of the most common struggles for kids aged 5-12. Written by mental health professionals with over 30 years' experience listening to kids' thoughts and feelings, this book provides a framework to explore new ways of responding to your child that will help them calm down faster and boost their resilience to stress. Suitable for parents, grandparents and other caregivers of children and pre-teens, as well as professionals working closely with families, this book is a resource for efficiently navigating the twists, turns, and sometimes total chaos of life with kids.

A for Adoption

An Exploration of the Adoption Experience for Families and Professionals

Alison Roy

Series: Tavistock Clinic Series

The experience of adoption, both adopting and being adopted, can stir up deep emotional pain, often related to loss and early trauma. A for Adoption provides insight and support to those families and individuals facing these complex processes and challenges.

Uniquely, this book addresses the experiences of, and provides support for, both adoptive professionals and families. It focuses on understanding, rather than apportioning blame, and responds to a plea from parents who requested "... a book to help me understand my child better..."

Bion and Thoughts Too Deep for Words

Psychoanalysis, Suggestion, and the Language of the Unconscious

Robert Caper, University of California at Los Angeles, USA

Series: The Routledge Wilfred R. Bion Studies Book Series

This book addresses a range of fundamental questions around the nature of Psychoanalysis. It distinguishes how Psychoanalysis differs from other forms of therapy, explores the ways in which insights into the unconscious can be used to support and help people, and asks questions around any claim for scientific validity. Exploring the relationship between unconscious communication, group dynamics, containment and psychological development in a highly original way, it will be of great interest to psychotherapists, psychologists and psychoanalysts who are interested in the relationship between psychoanalysis and suggestion.

Bion in Buenos Aires

Seminars, Case Presentation and Supervision

Wilfred R. Bion

These newly discovered clinical seminars of Wilfred Bion, which include supervisions, personal case presentations, and lectures on psychoanalytic theory, represent his initial foray into many years of work that have inspired South American analysts for nearly a half a century. The clinical and theoretical work of Bion arguably ranks rather high in the current psychoanalytic firmament-as national and international conferences convene regularly to continue discussing the contemporary relevance of his work.

Dark Fantasy

Regressive Movements and the Search for Meaning in Politics

David P. Levine

This book explores the emotional meaning of regressive movements in contemporary politics with special reference to Trump and his supporters. Its main hypothesis is that the primary goal of these movements is not to restore a lost world of safety and wellbeing as they claim it is, but to make their members' experience of the destruction and loss of that world universal.

Empathy and the Historical Understanding of the Human Past

Thomas A. Kohut

Empathy and the Historical Understanding of the Human Past seeks to raise the consciousness of historians about empathy, by introducing them to the history of the concept and to its status in fields outside of history. Thomas A. Kohut distinguishes between the external and the empathic observational position, the position of the historical subject. He argues that historians need to be aware of their observational position, of when they are empathizing and when they are not. Indeed, Kohut advocates for the deliberate, self-reflective use of empathy as a legitimate and important mode of historical inquiry.

From Anxiety to Zoolander

Notes on Psychoanalysis

Anouchka Grose

From Anxiety to Zoolander is a collection of writings on psychoanalytic themes. Each text was originally delivered as a talk, and the book aims to retain the informality and directness of the spoken word. While many of the chapters focus on clinical questions, they also speak about art, comedy, fashion, fame and fiction. Freudian and Lacanian theories are central, but the book as a whole is far from doctrinaire, with all areas of psychoanalytic thinking being up for discussion.

Engaging Infants

Embodied Communication in Short-Term Infant-Parent Therapy

Frances Thomson-Salo

The book begins by describing, within a psychodynamic approach, some traits an infant may bring to an intervention, followed by descriptions of interventions in several specialised perinatal settings. Several chapters focus on parent-infant families who have experienced considerable anxiety and depression, and those who have experienced trauma and lived borderline experiences or of mental illness. An innovative intervention which successfully engaged young parents and their infants so that most of them felt they could understand and relate to their newborn infant is next outlined.

Essential Readings from the Melanie Klein Archives

Original Papers and Critical Reflections

Edited by Jane Milton, The Melanie Klein Trust, London, UK

From the Melanie Klein Archives: Essential Readings brings together a selection of previously unpublished material by Melanie Klein, one of the key architects of child psychoanalysis, and sets that in the context of the contemporary understanding of her work, with contributions by a range of leading Klein scholars.

Melanie Klein was a pioneering and sometimes controversial figure within psychoanalysis, whose new approach to child analysis and new understanding of our inner world were revolutionary. From the Melanie Klein Archives will be of great interest to Klein scholars, as well as to researchers and readers in the wider history and development of psychoanalysis.

Intersectionality and Relational Psychoanalysis

New Perspectives on Race, Gender, and Sexuality

Edited by Max Belkin and Cleonie White

Series: Psychoanalysis in a New Key Book Series

Intersectionality and Relational Psychoanalysis: New Perspectives on Race, Gender, and Sexuality examines the links between race, gender, and sexuality through the dual perspectives of relational psychoanalysis and the theory of intersectionality. Combining intersectional theory with relational psychoanalytic thought, the authors introduce a number of thought-provoking clinical vignettes to suggest how adopting an intersectional approach can help us navigate the space between pathology and difference in psychotherapy.

Lost Goddesses

A Kaleidoscope on Porn

Giorgio Tricarico

Despite its pervasive ubiquity in the internet and in the lives of many, porn is apparently the ultimate taboo in the consulting room: in fact, very rarely does a patient mention something detailed about his or her use of porn. In parallel with its growing presence, the last forty years have witnessed a significant growth of publications about porn. The present work aims at deepening some aspects of internet porn from the perspective of Analytical Psychology, seeing it as symbol of the complexity of the human psyche, emerged in a specific moment of the history of consciousness.

Object Relations and Intersubjective Theories in the Practice of Psychotherapy

Bruce Brodie

The evolution of psychoanalytic psychotherapy has been marked by an increasing disconnect between theory and technique. This book re-establishes a bridge between them. In presenting a clear explanation of modern psychodynamic theory and concepts, and many clinical illustrations, Brodie shows how every aspect of psychodynamic therapy is determined by current psychodynamic theory.

This book will appeal to graduate students in psychology and psychotherapy, medical residents in psychiatry, and young, practicing psychotherapists who wish to fully explore why psychotherapists do what they do, and the dialectic relationship between theory and technique which informs their work.

Psychoanalytic Perspectives on Gaze, Body Image, Shame, Judgment and Maternal Function

Being and Belonging

Lia A. Roth

Have you ever been praised or criticized about your body or any part of it? With this question, participants of a research study were invited to share their experiences of body judgment. As participants described, the body is a carrier of messages and the source of judgmental experiences.

This book will be of great interest to psychoanalysts and psychotherapists, as well as scholars of culture and religion. Giving a brief introduction to psychoanalytic concepts, with a full glossary, it will also appeal to the non-psychoanalytic reader, interested in body image and how related perceptions and judgements can affect our own sense of Being and Belonging.

Relational Psychoanalysis at the Heart of Teaching and Learning

Lissa D'Amour

This book explores how relational psychoanalysis and theories of education can be used together to shed new light on best practice in learning and training. Its rudimentary framework serves to anchor teaching practice while checking any tendency to separate physical bodies, emotional meaning, and rational thought. Echoing calls for inclusivity, the book stands against admonishing anyone on the right way to be a person and weds a psychoanalysis of relationships with understandings of embodied cognition, non-linear dynamic systems, the nature of sense-making and awareness, elements of human development and transgenerational patterns of attachment.

Staying Attached

Fathers and Children in Troubled Times

Gill Gorell Barnes

This book is about the changing social contexts for fathering in the United Kingdom since the end of the Second World War, and the social moves from patriarchal fatherhood to multiple ways of doing 'dad'. The book questions why fathers have been marginalised by therapists working with children and families. It proposes that theories of psychotherapy, including attachment theory, have failed to take father love for their children, and the reality of changing social fatherhoods, sufficiently into account, consequently affecting related practice. Different contemporary family structures and multiple variations of relationship between fathers and children are considered.

The Psychoanalytic Zero

A Decolonizing Study of Therapeutic Dialogues

Koichi Togashi, Konan University, Kobe, Japan.

Series: Psychoanalytic Inquiry Book Series

This book is written from the unique perspective of a Western-trained Asian psychoanalyst and applies principles of Eastern philosophy to understand the psychoanalytic relationship, psychoanalytic processes, and their uses – and limitations – for alleviating human suffering.

The Psychoanalytic Zero will enrich an analyst's sensitivity to the appearance of the moment without context – the psychoanalytic zero – which opens infinite opportunities for continued growth in a psychoanalytic relationship. It will be of great appeal to psychoanalysts and psychoanalytic psychotherapists interested in self-psychological, intersubjective, and relational theories.

Traumatic Experiences of Normal Development

An Intersubjective, Object Relations Approach to Self, Attachment, Trauma, and Reality

Carl H. Shubs

Traditionally, trauma has been defined as negatively impacting external events, with resulting damage. This book puts forth an entirely different thesis: trauma is universal, occurring under even the best of circumstances and unavoidably sculpting the very building blocks of character structure.

Though targeted to mental-health professionals, this book will help enable therapists and sophisticated lay readers alike to recognize the impact of relational encounters, providing new tools to understand the traumas we have experienced and to minimize the hold they have on us.

Toward a Social Psychoanalysis

Culture, Character, and Normative Unconscious Processes

Lynne Layton, Harvard Medical School, USA and Marianna Leavy-Sperounis

Series: Relational Perspectives Book Series

For over thirty years, Lynne Layton has heeded the call for a social psychoanalysis and produced a body of work that examines unconscious process as it operates both in the social world and in the clinic.

Clinicians, academics, and activists alike will find here a deeper understanding of the power of unconscious process, and are called on to envision and enact a progressive future in which vulnerability and interdependency are honored and systemic inequalities dismantled.

Work Matters

Consulting to leaders and organizations in the Tavistock tradition

Francesca Cardona

Work is complicated: It can be fulfilling and exciting, or disappointing and disruptive. We spend most of our adult lives at work; it shapes our identities and provides a context for our creativity and talents. It can be the source of great pleasure – and of profound distress.

Whether you are a business leader, manager, consultant or student, or simply interested in how your work affects you, Work Matters offers essential insights into an area that occupies so much of our lives.

Archetype, Culture, and the Individual in Education

The Three Pedagogical Narratives

Clifford Mayes

Mayes presents a unique approach to understanding how Jungian principles can inform pedagogical theory and practice, putting forward a possible approach to archetypally-oriented curricula and teaching. Mayes explores the role of transference and countertransference in the classroom, the prevalence of 'the shadow' in educational processes, the significance of symbols, as opposed to signs, in educational theory and practice, and positive and negative aspects of the anima and animus in teaching and learning. The book concludes by examining the transcendent function as a prime educational modality, and looking to the future of archetypal education.

Feminine Leadership

Personal Development Beyond Polarities

Karin Ironet

Ironet explores the nature of female leadership and illustrates how women may seek to renew the notion of leadership through their own personal development. Offering a psycho-spiritual examination of Dante's journey through Purgatory and the seven sins and virtues, this book discusses the process of overcoming the tension between inner motivations and outer expectations through personal development in order to achieve true leadership. This edition contains updates throughout as well as an entirely new chapter which situates the book in current socio-political context and addresses questions about how leadership is defined, exercised and communicated in contemporary society.

Four Novels in Jung's 1925 Seminar

Literary Discussion and Analytical Psychology

Matthew A Fike

C. G. Jung believed that popular fiction often conveyed unvarnished psychological truths. In this volume, Matthew A. Fike skillfully analyzes the novels under consideration in Jung's 1925 seminar on analytical psychology, critiques the discussion, corrects Jung's ill-informed perspectives, and sheds light on a neglected area of Jungian literary studies.

Holism

Possibilities and Problems

Edited by Christian McMillan, Roderick Main, Director, Centre for Psychoanalytic Studies at Essex, UK and David Henderson

Series: Philosophy and Psychoanalysis

Holism: Possibilities and Problems brings together leading contributors in a ground-breaking discussion of holism. The terms 'holism' and 'holistic' arouse strong emotional responses in contemporary culture, whether this be negative or positive, and the essays in this interdisciplinary collection probe, each in its own way, the possibilities and problems inherent in thinking holistically.

Jungian Reflections On Grandiosity

From Destructive Fantasies to Passions and Purpose

Francesco Belviso

Belviso presents a new perspective on grandiosity, examining both what it is and whether it can be a positive force in our lives and in the world. The book explores many aspects of grandiosity, including how grandiose fantasies can also help us discover our passions and how we can discern problematic narcissism from our true callings. Taking a Jungian perspective, Belviso explores the power of personal narratives, character development, inner dialogues and dreams to help us identify and engage with our callings. It also includes examples from the author's clinical practice, mythology, poetry, heroic lives and our everyday decisions about finances, relationships and work.

Psyche and the Sacred

Spirituality Beyond Religion

Lionel Corbett

Using the language and insights of depth psychology, Corbett outlines the intimate relationship between spiritual experience and the psychology of the individual, unveiling the seamless continuity between the personal and transpersonal dimensions of the psyche. Drawing upon his psychotherapeutic practice as well as on the experiences of characters from our religious heritage, Corbett explores the various portals through which the sacred presents itself to us: dreams, visions, nature, the body, relationships, psychopathology, and creative work. For those seeking alternative forms of spirituality beyond the Judeo-Christian tradition, this volume will be a useful guide on the journey.

Psychology's Dream of the Courtroom

Greg Mogenson

What contribution has "the law" made to the practice of psychotherapy? And what insights may be drawn from putting psychology itself on trial? In this ground-breaking book, the use of legal metaphors and the courtroom analogy by Freud and Jung are examined in a manner that shows analytical psychology and psychoanalysis in fresh perspective as disciplines of truth in the spirit of a court proceeding.

The Therapeutic Relationship in Analytical Psychology

Claus Braun

The book examines the crucial steps of the psychotherapeutic process, illustrated with a detailed case study that presents the personal development of an analysand through a series of dreams and drawings. Braun connects key concepts in analytical psychology, such as complexes, symbols, archetypes and amplification, with conscious and unconscious processes and the development of the therapeutic relationship during the analytic process. The book also examines why C. G. Jung put such a special emphasis on the therapeutic relationship and explores the ethical demands and social responsibilities of the analyst.

Jungian Metaphor in Modernist Literature

Exploring Individuation, Alchemy and Symbolism

Roula-Maria Dib

Series: Research in Analytical Psychology and Jungian Studies

Jungian Metaphor in Modernist Literature argues for the centrality of Carl Jung's theory of individuation and alchemy in modernist poetics. Through analysis of the uses of a mythic method in modernist literary works, the book develops a related alchemical model which serves to expand understanding of modernist uses of language.

This book will be of great interest for academics, researchers and post-graduate students in the fields of literature, modernism, psychoanalysis, gender studies, Jungian psychology, depth psychology, literary theory, and cultural studies.

Evaluating Educational Interventions

Single-Case Design for Measuring Response to Intervention

T. Chris Riley-Tillman, University of Missouri–Columbia, USA, Matthew K Burns, University of Missouri–Columbia and Stephen P. Kilgus, University of Wisconsin–Madison

Series: Guilford Practical Intervention in the Schools

This innovative guide is now in a revised and expanded second edition with an even stronger applied focus. It helps educators harness the potential of single-case design (SCD) as a critical element of data-based decision making in a multi-tiered system of support (MTSS). The authors present simple and complex SCDs and demonstrate their use to defensibly document the effects of academic or behavioral interventions. In a large-size format with lay-flat binding for easy photocopying, the book includes reproducible graphs and other tools; appendices provide guides to analyzing and presenting data in Microsoft Excel.

Reflections of a Cynical Clinical Psychologist

Max Heinrich

In real time accounts from the 'front line', this book gives the reader a participant experience of the daily ups and downs of the mental health professional, calling attention to the human realities of the system's dysfunction. Illustrated by anecdotes based on the author's 40 years' experience and observations in the field, the book focuses on 'the system' as the problem, identifying the limitations in the current mental health policy, governed by political priorities and controlled by money, with the emphasis misplaced onto profit rather than optimal patient care. This is important reading for mental health professionals, policy makers and those interested in humanizing social policy.

Listening to Women After Childbirth

Alison Brodrick, Sheffield Teaching Hospitals, UK and Emma Williamson, Sheffield Teaching Hospitals, UK

It is vital that healthcare practitioners understand the psychological impact of childbirth when caring for women. This book outlines how clinicians can offer practical support to women after birth, including looking at adaptations to motherhood, causes and manifestations of PTSD following childbirth, setting up postnatal pathways for women, developing communication skills, using women's voices to inform future practice and emphasising the importance of clinical supervision. Drawing together theoretical knowledge, evidence, practical skills and women's narratives, it is of significant value to all healthcare practitioners engaged in maternity services.

Nursing and Humanities

Graham McCaffrey

Series: Routledge Research in Nursing and Midwifery

The book starts with a survey of the history of humanities in nursing, in comparison with medical humanities and in the context of the emergence of interdisciplinary health humanities. A central section offers an argument for placing the humanities firmly within a mixed model of nursing knowledge that is based upon embodied cognition. Final chapters explore these ideas through a series of essays on topics of humanities as a form of intervention, prose and poetry in relation to nursing, and applications of the Buddhist concept of interdependence. Nursing and Humanities is intended primarily for nurse academics and graduate students.

Parent Education for the Critical 1000 Days

Mary L. Nolan

As research in neuroscience increasingly points to the unparalleled influence of the first 1000 days of life from conception to two years of age in determining the baby's life trajectory, the need for high quality early parenting education delivered by knowledgeable and dedicated professionals becomes ever more apparent.

All practitioners providing early parenting programmes – midwives, health visitors, family link workers, Children's Centre staff and voluntary sector teachers – will gain new ideas for their practice in this book. Students taking midwifery and early childhood courses will find much to support their studies.

Monitoring the Health of Populations by Tracking Disease Outbreaks

Saving Humanity from the Next Plague

Steven E Rigdon and Ronald D. Fricker, Jr., Virginia Tech

Series: ASA-CRC Series on Statistical Reasoning in Science and Society

Today the citizens of developed countries have never experienced a large-scale disease outbreak. One reason is the success of the public health community, including epidemiologists and biostatisticians, in tracking and identifying disease outbreaks. Monitoring the Health of Populations by Tracking Disease Outbreaks: Saving Humanity from the Next Plague is the story of the application of statistics for disease detection and tracking. The work of public health officials often critically depends on the use of statistical methods to help discern whether an outbreak may be occurring and, if there is sufficient evidence of an outbreak, then to locate and track it

Raw Veganism

The Philosophy of The Human Diet

Carlo Alvaro

Series: Routledge Studies in Food, Society and the Environment

Human beings are getting fatter and sicker. As we question what we eat and why we eat it, this book argues that living well involves consuming a raw vegan diet. With eating healthfully and eating ethically being simpler said than done, this book argues that the best solution to health, environmental, and ethical problems concerning animals is raw veganism—the human diet. Exploring the scientific and philosophical aspects of raw veganism, this novel book is essential reading for all interested in promoting ethical, healthful, and sustainable diets.

Critical Disability Studies and the Disabled Child

Unsettling Distinctions

Harriet Cooper

Series: Interdisciplinary Disability Studies

This book examines the relationship between contemporary cultural representations of disabled children on the one hand, and disability as a personal experience of internalised oppression on the other.

Posing new questions for disability studies and for identity politics about the relationships between lived experiences, cultural representations and dominant discourses – and demonstrating a new approach to the concept of ‘internalised oppression’ – this book will be of interest to scholars and students of disability studies, medical humanities, sociology and psychosocial studies, as well as to those with an interest in identity politics more generally.

Educating Doctors' Senses Through the Medical Humanities

"How Do I Look?"

Alan Bleakley, Plymouth University, UK

Series: Routledge Advances in the Medical Humanities

Educating Doctors' Senses Through the Medical Humanities: "How Do I Look?" uses the medical diagnostic method to identify a chronic symptom in medical culture: the unintentional production of insensibility through compulsory mis-education. This book identifies the symptom and its origins and offers an intervention: deliberate and planned education of sensibility through the introduction of medical humanities to the core undergraduate medicine and surgery curriculum.

The book will be of interest to all medical educators and clinicians, including those health and social care professionals outside of medicine who work with doctors.

Governance Ethics in Healthcare Organizations

Gerard Magill and Lawrence Prybil

Series: Routledge Studies in Health and Social Welfare

Drawing on the findings of a series of empirical studies undertaken with boards of directors and CEOs in the United States, this groundbreaking book develops a new paradigm to provide a structured analysis of ethical healthcare governance. It begins by presenting a clear framework for ethical analysis, designed around basic features of ethics – who we are, how we function, and what we do – before discussing the paradigm in relation to clinical, organizational and professional ethics. It goes on to apply this framework in areas that are pivotal for effective governance in healthcare.

Insane Society: A Sociology of Mental Health

Peter Morrall, University of Leeds, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in the Sociology of Health and Illness

This book critiques the connection between Western society and madness. Outlining and analysing ideas from biology and psychology, and incorporating the perspectives of those regarded by themselves or others as mad, this text synthesises a range of sociological and anthropological thinking that, where madness is concerned, society matters. Looking beyond the affected individual to their social, political, economic, ecological, and cultural context, it examines whether or not society itself, and its institutions, divisions, practices, and values, is mad. It is an important read for students and scholars of sociology, anthropology, social policy, criminology, health, and mental health.

Risk and Substance Use

Framing Dangerous People and Dangerous Places

Edited by Susanne MacGregor, London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine, UK and Betsy Thom, Middlesex University, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in the Sociology of Health and Illness

This interdisciplinary collection examines the role that alcohol, tobacco and other drugs have played in framing certain groups and spaces as 'dangerous' and in influencing the nature of formal responses to the perceived threat.

Bringing together a range of case studies drawn from different countries and across different periods of time, the chapters collected here illustrate issues of marginalisation, stigmatisation, human rights and social expectations. It is of interest to a diverse audience of historians, philosophers, human geographers, anthropologists, sociologists and criminologists interested in substance use and misuse, deviance, risk and power among other topics.

Edited by Sonia M. Tascón, University of the Sunshine Coast, Australia. and Jim Ife

Focussing on the epistemic: the way in which knowledge is understood, constructed, transmitted and used, this book shows the way social work knowledge has been constructed from within a white western paradigm, and the need for a critique of whiteness within social work at this epistemic level. Social work, emerging from the western Enlightenment world, has privileged white western knowledge, in ways that have been, until recently, largely unexamined within its professional discourse. This imposition of white western ways of knowing, has led to a corresponding marginalisation of other forms of knowledge.

Images, Ideas and Identities

Martin Robb

Sharing the care of children in families is increasingly becoming the norm in modern day society as more mothers enter paid work and government campaigns endeavour to increase the number of men working in childcare. However, there has been mounting anxiety from the media and public about the risks of child abuse, often perceived as being mostly perpetrated by men. Bringing together theory and up-to-date research, this book asks whether men's care for children, both as fathers and practitioners, actually differs from the care provided by mothers and female carers and highlights the implications of this for future policy and practice.

Cancer and the Search for Selective Biochemical Inhibitors

E.J. Hoffman

Elucidating the underlying biochemical principles for alternative cancer therapies, this second edition of a bestseller discusses complementary, alternative, and integrative treatments in comparison to chemotherapy. It examines the link between concepts and practices of alternative and conventional medicine. The author analyzes the activity of anticancer plant substances and other alternatives such as Vitamin C, essiac tea, shark cartilage, and cat's claw. The text also addresses the problem of determining selective and non-toxic enzyme inhibitors for cancer cell metabolic pathways, an area of research in which new developments have given renewed hope to cancer patients.

Cardio-Obstetrics

A Practical Guide to Care for Pregnant Cardiac Patients

Edited by Afshan B. Hameed, University of California, Irvine, CA, USA and Diana Wolfe, Einstein/Montefiore Medical Center, NY, USA

Cardiac disease is one of the leading causes of maternal morbidity and mortality. Catastrophic outcomes typically encountered are due to gaps in knowledge and communication between health care providers. There is a great need for a standardized approach for care of this very high-risk group of pregnant women.

The book encompasses detailed obstetrics and cardiology perspectives that are crucial in the management of the commonly encountered cardiac conditions in pregnancy. This text aims to provide guidance to obstetricians, maternal-fetal medicine, hospitalists, cardiologists, obstetric anaesthesiologists, emergency physicians, primary care providers and nurses.

Endometriosis

An Enigma

Edited by Seema Chopra

Endometriosis is a complex gynecological disorder with multifactorial etiology. It is a benign, estrogen-dependent disorder that occurs in 6-10% of women in the general population and in 35-50% of women with pain and/or infertility. This book aims to discuss different aspects of the disease from basic to advanced levels, in turn exploring this benign but chronic disease. With the help of illustrations, it explores the management possibilities, both medical and surgical, which will be useful for postgraduates and professionals in their practice.

Pulmonary Rehabilitation

Edited by Claudio Donner, Mult & Rehab Outpatient Clinic, Borgomanero, Italy, Nicolino Ambrosino and Roger S. Goldstein, University of Toronto West Park Healthcare, Ontario, Canada

Pulmonary rehabilitation programmes are a fundamental part of the clinical management of patients with chronic respiratory diseases. This comprehensive reference book places pulmonary rehabilitation within the wider framework of respiratory disease. Now in six parts, it includes new sections on the development of PR as a discipline, global perspectives on quality control, new chapters on early PR post exacerbation and personalized rehabilitation, innovative approaches to exercise, PR in interstitial lung disease and lung transplantation, and the latest research into the application of music, dance and yoga.

Recurrent Pregnancy Loss

Causes, Controversies and Treatment

Edited by Howard Carp, Dept. Obstetrics & Gynecology, Sheba Medical Center, Israel

Series: Series in Maternal-Fetal Medicine

Recurrent pregnancy loss presents a vexing clinical problem for medical professionals treating patients both in reproductive medicine and in maternal-fetal medicine. However, with its numerous causes and various suggested treatment options, the problem is more multidisciplinary in nature, involving gynecology, genetics, endocrinology, immunology, pediatrics, and internal medicine. Exploring basic science and clinical applications, the third edition of this bestselling text provides an authoritative and comprehensive update on advances in the understanding and management of this troubling phenomenon.

Recurrent Pregnancy Loss and Adverse Natal Outcomes

Edited by Minakshi Rohilla

Recurrent Pregnancy Loss (RPL) constitutes 1- 5% of infertile couples trying to conceive and 12-15 % of all pregnancies. It includes variable clinical conditions like recurrent first, second trimester abortions and recurrent preterm delivery, second or third trimester intrauterine fetal death, intrapartum stillbirth and early neonatal death. Every clinical condition has a different approach and management as per the anticipated cause. This book includes protocols for case scenarios of early and late pregnancy loss and also covers other instances of poor obstetric history. It will serve as a useful handbook for postgraduates, obstetricians and gynaecologists who deal in reproductive medicine.

Nutraceuticals and Dietary Supplements

Applications in Health Improvement and Disease Management

Edited by Raj K. Keservan, Anil K. Sharma and Rajesh K. Kesharwani

Nutraceuticals and Dietary Supplements: Advances and Applications begins with an introduction, the nomenclature, and characteristics of nutraceuticals and goes on to discuss in-depth applications for specific health issues, including cancer, diabetes, Alzheimer's disease, alcoholism, and more. It also looks at the pros and cons as well as the analytical techniques used for the production of nutraceuticals. Chapters cover market size, regulatory perspectives, manufacturing, and in silico drug design.

Bayesian Methods in Pharmaceutical Research

Edited by Emmanuel Lesaffre, Biostatistical Centre, Leuven, Belgium, Gianluca Baio, Department of Statistical Science, University College London, UK and Bruno Boulanger, Arlenda S.A

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Biostatistics Series

Bayesian methods have emerged in recent years as the driving force behind methodological developments in pharmaceutical research, notably drug development. This edited book provides broad coverage of Bayesian methods in pharmaceutical research. It is divided into 28 chapters across four major themes: clinical development, post-marketing, product development, and additional topics. Each chapter provides an overview of a topic, including historical background, methodology, applications and software implementation. The book includes contributions from some of the leading researchers in the field, and has been carefully edited to ensure consistency with respect to level and style.

Surgical and Medical Treatment of Osteoporosis

Principles and Practice

Edited by Peter V. Giannoudis, Professor of Orthopedic Surgery, New York University, New York, USA and Thomas A. Einhorn, MD, Professor of Orthopedic Surgery, New York University, New York, USA

Osteoporosis is the most common bone disease and is associated with pathological fractures that can lead to significant morbidity. It represents an economic burden to the health care system, directly linked to an ageing population. Guidelines on osteoporosis prevention have been published but these do not provide the required specialised knowledge for the treating physician. This book 'fills the gap' and focuses on the principles of surgical and medical treatment of osteoporosis. It aims to improve education and provide answers based on current evidence, helping doctors follow best practice, improve patient care and outcomes, and minimise the complications of medical and surgical management.

Biomarker Analysis in Clinical Trials with R

Nusrat Rabbee, Covance, Inc. - Princeton, NJ

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Biostatistics Series

Biomarker Analysis in Clinical Trials with R offers practical guidance to statisticians in the pharmaceutical industry on how to incorporate biomarker data analysis in clinical trial studies. The book discusses the appropriate statistical methods for evaluating pharmacodynamic, predictive and surrogate biomarkers for delivering increased value in the drug development process. The topic of combining multiple biomarkers to predict drug response using machine learning is covered. Featuring copious reproducible code and examples in R, the book helps students, researchers and biostatisticians get started in tackling the hard problems of designing and analyzing trials with biomarkers.

Disturbance Ecology and Biological Diversity

Scale, Context, and Nature

Edited by Erik A. Beever, USGS Northern Rocky Mountain Science Center, Bozeman, Montana, USA, Suzanne Prange, Ohio Division of Wildlife, Athens, USA and Dominick A. DellaSala, Geos Institute, Ashland, Oregon, USA

This book may be used in a seminar course, as a compendium for disturbance ecology curricula that are at the interface of conceptual and applied ecology, and in other circumstances to illustrate how different authors have handled the various pragmatic challenges that arise in studies that ask broader questions. In an era of unprecedented global change, this book constitutes a valuable source for researchers, students, natural resource managers, and other conservation practitioners interested in delving deeper into disturbance ecology.

Modern Land Drainage

Planning, Design and Management of Agricultural Drainage Systems

Willem F. Vlotman, Consultant, SKM, Tatura, Australia, David W. Rycroft, Consulting Engineer, Winchester, UK and Lambert K. Smedema, Consultant, Arnhem, the Netherlands

Modern Land Drainage 2nd edition is a fully revised and updated version of the 2004 classic. The work describes traditional drainage methods (Hooghoudt, Kirkham, Donnan, Ernst, Glover-Dumm) for rainfed agriculture in the humid temperature zone. The book covers all aspects needed for sustainable drainage. This work is intended for use both as a university level textbook and as a professional handbook; it is of particular value to professionals engaged in drainage development in the context of integrated water resources and river basin management, civil and agricultural engineers, government officials, university students and libraries.

Personalized Nutrition as Medical Therapy for High-Risk Diseases

Edited by Nilanjana Maulik, University of Connecticut Health Center, Farmington, USA

The personalized nutrition theory is the idea that our diet can affect us on a genetic level as nutrients interact with our biology. This has strong implications for diseases that are present or suppressed in our genetic makeup. Implementing personalized nutrition plans for those who have certain diseases or in danger of developing them could help control the onset and severity of the conditions. This book presents beneficial aspects of personalized nutrition and how it can be used to target major diseases and health conditions. It highlights research on implementing personalized nutrition care for cardiovascular diseases, hypertension, hypercholesterolemia, diabetes, and obesity.

TEXTBOOK

Bacterial Genetics and Genomics

Lori Snyder

Our understanding of bacterial genetics has progressed as the genomics field has advanced. Genetics and genomics complement and influence each other; they are inseparable. Under the novel insights from genetics and genomics, once-believed borders in biology start to fade: biological knowledge of the bacterial world is being viewed under a new light and concepts are being redefined. This text assumes readers have some knowledge of genetics and microbiology but acknowledges that it can be varied. Therefore, the book includes all of the information that readers need to know in order to understand the more advanced material in the book.

Atlas of Terrestrial Mammal Limbs

Anthony Herrel, Christine Bohmer, UMR 7179 CNRS/MNHN, Paris, France, Anne-Claire Fabre and Jean-Christophe Theil

This book is an atlas of limbs in terrestrial mammals. Diversity is highlighted with comprehensive phylogenetic coverage of front and hind limbs. Ecological diversity is also targeted with different locomotor ecologies (aquatic, terrestrial, arboreal). Standardized views of the limb musculature include external, internal, and isolated elements as well as in connection to the rest of the body, and at different stages of dissection. Illustrations with the origins and insertions of muscles will use standardized color code. A summary/discussion highlighting differences between phylogenetic groups and animals with different locomotor ecologies appears at the end.

Biotechnologies Applied to Animal Reproduction

Current Trends and Practical Applications for Reproductive Management

Edited by Juan Carlos Gardón and Katy Satué

This comprehensive volume focuses on recent trends and new technologies used in the management of reproduction in major farm animals, focusing on both males and females of bovine, equine, and porcine species. With chapters written by scientists who specialize in their respective topics, the volume presents a selection of different technologies that have been developed to assure reproductive success by improving reproductive efficiency, generating germplasm banks, and maintaining genetic diversity in cattle, horses, and pigs.

Cellular Processes in Segmentation

Edited by Ariel Chipman

Series: Evolutionary Cell Biology

The evolution of segmentation is one of the central questions in evolutionary developmental biology. Indeed, it is one of the best case-studies of the role of changes in development in the evolution of body plans. Segmented body plans are believed to have appeared several times in animal evolution, and to have contributed significantly to the evolutionary success of the taxa in which they are present. Because of the centrality of the subject, and the continuing interest in understanding segmentation, the book will prove an invaluable reference for students of evolutionary developmental biology at all levels – not only those interested specifically in segmentation – for years to come.

Clinical Biochemistry and Drug Development

From Fundamentals to Output

Edited by Shashank Kumar

This book, Clinical Biochemistry and Drug Development: From Fundamentals to Output, focuses on clinical biochemistry fundamentals, cell culture techniques, and drug discovery and development concepts. It deals with three different fields of clinical research: cell culture, clinical biochemistry, and drug discovery and development. The book introduces cell animal and bacterial culture techniques and their potential uses as well as cell culture techniques. The biochemistry aspect of the book covers the principles of clinical biochemistry and biochemical analysis, biochemical aids to clinical diagnosis, measurement, and quality control.

Environmental Plant Physiology

Botanical Strategies for a Climate Smart Planet

Vir Singh

Environmental Plant Physiology: Botanical Strategies for a Climate Smart Planet attempts to assimilate a relatively new subject that helps us understand the very phenomenon of life that persists in the planet's environment and influenced by a specific set of operating environmental factors. It is the subject that helps us understand adaptation mechanisms within a variety of habitats as well as the implications of the alterations of environmental factors on the inhabiting organisms. Further, this book can also be of vital importance for policy makers and organizations dealing with climate related issues and committed to the cause of the Earth.

Single-stranded RNA phages

From molecular biology to nanotechnology

Paul Pumpens, University of Latvia

This is a comprehensive guide to single-stranded RNA phages (family Leviviridae), first discovered in 1961. These phages played a unique role in early studies of molecular biology, the genetic code, translation, replication, suppression of mutations. Special attention will be devoted to modern applications of the RNA phages and their products in nanotechnology, vaccinology, gene discovery, evolutionary and environmental studies. This overview of the generation of novel vaccines, gene therapy vectors, drug delivery and diagnostic tools will also explore the role of RNA phage-derived products in the revolutionary progress of the protein tethering and bioimaging protocols will be outlined.

Controlled Drug Delivery Systems

Edited by Emmanuel C. Opara

This book will describe current research on drug delivery systems that encompass four broad categories, namely: routes of delivery, delivery vehicles, payload, and targeting strategies. Where appropriate delivery vehicles and relevant release of specific agents in any of these categories in clinical application will be discussed. All chapters will highlight the translational aspects of the various technologies discussed and will provide insights into the advantages of such delivery systems over current ones in clinical or research use. Each technology reviewed in this book will have significant potential to improve patients' lives by enhancing the therapeutic efficacy of drugs.

Pearl Millet

Properties, Functionality and its Applications

Edited by Sneh Punia, Department of Food Science and technology, Chaudhary Devi Lal University, Sirsa, India, Anil Kumar Siroha, Kawaljit Singh Sandhu, Suresh Kumar Gahlawat and Maninder Kaur

Pearl millet is mainly used for animal and poultry feed. It is the principal source of energy, protein, vitamins, minerals and contains many phenolic compounds which are good source of natural antioxidants. Pearl millet is rich source of bioactive compounds and contains phytates and polyphenols. Due to good nutritional and phytochemical properties it has gained considerable attention as a botanical dietary supplement in many functional foods. This book covers all recent research about the pearl millet and provides information to improve the property and shelf life of flour and their uses in various food products.

Edited by K. Saravanan, Chukwuebuka Egbuna, Horne Iona Averal, S. Kannan, S. Elavarasi and Bir Bahadur

Drug Development for Cancer and Diabetes: A Path to 2030 focuses on new developments in the discovery of drugs for the treatment of cancer and diabetes. This new book presents important recent advances, emerging trends, and novel innovations for these two world-leading diseases. It is structured in two parts. Part I consists of chapters that explore cancer cell cycle checkpoints, cancer biomarkers, essential drug properties, stages in anti-cancer drug development, and various bioactives that are effective against cancer. Part II presents a complete coverage of important advances and research discoveries in antidiabetic drugs.

Forensic Engineering:

The Art and Craft of A Failure Detective

Colin Gagg

Forensic Engineering: The Art and Craft of a Failure Detective synthesizes academic knowledge and advances in current process and techniques developed in the last several years, to bring forensic materials and engineering analysis into the 21st century. But this is not an academic treatise. These techniques are applied to the myriad of both private and criminal cases that the forensic engineer and investigator may face including patent and intellectual property disputes, building and product failures, faulty design, air and rail disasters, automobile recalls, and civil and criminal cases in the case of serious injury or even death.

Forensic Gait Analysis

Ivan Birch, Michael Nirenberg, Wesley Vernon and Maria Birch

Forensic Gait Analysis provides a systematic understanding of the relevant science that underpins gait analysis, how this science can be applied appropriately to its use in the forensic context, the development of standardised methodologies for analysis and comparison, and how to report the findings. The book draws on the multiprofessional expertise that exists in gait analysis to provide a definitive guide to professional practice and a standard text book for education and training in the use of gait analysis as evidence.

Functional Foods and Biotechnology

Biotransformation and Analysis of Functional Foods and Ingredients

Edited by Kalidas Shetty and Dipayan Sarkar

Series: Food Biotechnology Series

Functional Foods and Biotechnology: Biotransformation and Analysis of Functional Foods and Ingredients highlights two important and interrelated themes: biotransformation innovations and novel bio-based analytical tools for understanding and advancing functional foods and food ingredients for health-focused food and nutritional security solutions. The first section of this book provides novel examples of innovative biotransformation strategies while the second section of the book focuses on novel host response based analytical tools and screening strategies to investigate and validate the benefits of functional foods and food ingredients.

Handbook of Food Preservation

Edited by M. Shafiur Rahman, Sultan Qaboos University, Muscat, Oman

The ever-increasing number of food products and preservation techniques creates a great demand for an up to date handbook that will facilitate understanding of the methods, technology, and science involved in the manipulation of these conventional and sophisticated preservation methods. Extensively revised, reorganized, and expanded from 43 to 66 chapters, the Handbook of Food Preservation, Third Edition, remains the definitive resource on food preservation. An entirely new section is devoted to issues related to and that impact food preservation, including biotechnology, food security and sustainability, food labeling and food laws and regulations.

Age-friendly Housing

Julia Park and Jeremy Porteous

This book embeds the principles of how we should approach the design of future housing for an ageing population, reminding us that this is not about 'other people', but about each of us. This book focuses on anticipating the needs and aspirations of the next generation of older people, and touches on what this implies for our communities, our towns and our cities, as well as for our living spaces. It will look at how well-designed buildings can facilitate the provision of care, support independence and wellbeing while providing companionship and stimulation.

Future Healthcare Design

Sumita Singha

This book describes how architects can design better healthcare buildings for a rapidly changing context and climate. Innovation in the design of healthcare estates is essential to the sustainability of our health services. Design thinking in this field is being influenced by a range of factors, such as economic constraints, an ageing demographic, complex health conditions (co-morbidities), and climate change. There is an opportunity for architects and designers to be innovators in the future of healthcare through the design of buildings and cities that offer wellbeing and healing.

Urban Schools

RIBA # Publishing

Designing for High Density

Helen Taylor and Sharon Wright

When space is tight how can a city provide the best education experience for children? Is a multi-storey school really a poor option? Can high-quality play opportunities be provided without playgrounds? This book explores the design of schools in urban settings, the increased challenges in meeting the typical expectations of school design, and what the successful new typology of a school in a city might be. A practical guide as well as a theoretical exploration of ideas, this book outlines successful international contemporary and historical case studies, providing much-needed guidance for architects and others working in education design in dense urban environments.

Blurred Transparencies in Contemporary Glass Architecture

Material, Culture, and Technology

Aki Ishida

This book brings to light complex readings of transparent glass through close observations of six pivotal works of architecture. Written from the perspectives of a practitioner, the six essays challenge assumptions about fragility and visual transparency of glass. Connecting material glass to broader cultural and social contexts, Blurred Transparencies in Contemporary Glass Architecture enlightens students and practitioners of architecture as well as the general public with interest in design. The author demonstrates how glass is rarely crystal clear but is blurred both materially and metaphysically, revealing complex readings of ideas for which glass continues to stand.

Doors

History, Repair and Conservation

Edited by Michael Tutton and James W.P. Campbell, University of Cambridge, UK

In Doors: History, Repair and Conservation, readers are guided through the function, history, development, care, repair and conservation of doors by chapter authors who are experts in their field. This book offers depth and range of detail from dating and archaeology right through to the surveying, recording, engineering and curation of the door, its furniture and the part of the building into which it is set.

Iteration

Episodes in the Mediation of Art and Architecture

Edited by Robin Schuldenfrei, Courtauld Institute of Art, UK

This edited volume considers the ways in which multiple stages, phases, or periods in an artistic or design process have served to arrive at the final artifact, with a focus on the meaning and use of the iteration. To contextualize iteration within artistic and architectural production, this collection of essays presents a range of close studies in art, architectural and design history, using archival and historiographical research, media theory, photography, material studies, and critical theory. This volume asks how a closer look at iteration reveals new perspectives into the production of objects and the production of thought alike.

Place Meaning and Attachment

Authenticity, Heritage and Preservation

Edited by Dak Kopec and AnnaMarie Bliss

This edited volume will explore the different meanings and forms of place attachment and meaning based on our histories and conceptualization of material artifacts. Each chapter examines a varied relationship between a given society and the meaning formed through myth, symbols, and ideologies manifested through diverse forms of material artifacts. Topics of consideration examine place attachment at many scales including at the level of the artifact, human being, building, urban context, and region.

Covering a broad range of international perspectives on place meaning, this book is an essential read for students, academics and professionals alike.

The Architecture of Full-Scale Mock-Ups

From Representation to Reality

Nick Gelpi, Florida International University, Miami, Florida, USA

The Architecture of Full-Scale Mock-Ups looks at the theory and contemporary practice of creating full-scale architectural mock-ups. Investigating unique case studies to answer how and when full-scale mock-ups occur today, this book is ideal for students of architecture studying structures, materials, design-build, and professional practice.

Architecture and the Language Debate

Artistic and Linguistic Exchanges in Early Modern Italy

Nicholas Temple

Series: Routledge Research in Architectural History

This book examines the creative exchanges between architects, artists and intellectuals, from the Early Renaissance to the beginning of the Enlightenment, in the forging of relationships between architecture and emerging concepts of language in early modern Italy. Drawing upon a wealth of primary source material, such as humanist tracts, philosophical works, architectural/antiquarian treatises, epigraphic/philological studies, religious sermons and grammaticae, the book traces key periods when the emerging field of linguistics in early modern Italy impacted on the theory, design and symbolism of buildings.

Designed to Sell

The Evolution of Modern Merchandising and Display

Alessandra Wood, University of San Francisco, USA

Series: Routledge Research in Interior Design

Designed to Sell presents an engaging account of mid-twentieth century department store design and display in America from the 1930s to the 1960s. It traces the development of post-war philosophies of retail design that embodied aesthetics and function and new modes of merchandise display, resulting in the emergence of a new type of industrial designer.

Ethical Design Intelligence

The Virtuous Designer

Philippe d'Anjou, Florida Atlantic University, USA

Series: Routledge Research in Architecture

This book explores the deep significance of philosophy and ethics to the practice of design. It offers designers from disciplines such as architecture, planning, landscape, interiors and industrial design an epistemological framework to expand their thinking about their practice.

D'Anjou dissects articulations from different philosophical thinkers from antiquity to our contemporary time to reveal that ethics is fundamental to everything affected by design.

Countering well-established modes of postmodern relativism in design, which has led to what the author calls unsustainability and defuturing, ethical realism is presented as an alternative solution.

The Architect as Magician

Albert C. Smith, Ryerson University, Toronto, Ontario, Canada and Kendra Schank Smith, Ryerson University, Toronto, Ontario, Canada

Series: Routledge Research in Architecture

The Architect as Magician explores the connection between magic and architecture. There is a belief that a greater understanding of the traditional meaning of magic provides insights about architecture and architects' design process.

Architects influence the effects of nature through the making of their buildings. In an analogous condition, magicians perform rituals in an attempt to influence the forces of nature. This book argues that architects could gain much by incorporating ideas from magic into their design process.

The Architect as Magician helps readers discover the ambiguous and spiritual elements in their design process.

Small-Scale Urban Greening

Creating Places of Health, Creativity, and Ecological Sustainability

Angela Loder, University of Denver, Colorado

Small-scale urban greening projects are changing the urban landscape, shifting our experience and understanding of green spaces in our cities. This book argues that including power dynamics, symbolism, and aesthetics in our understanding of the human relationship to urban nature can help us create places that nurture ecological and human health and promote successful and equitable urban communities. Arguing that wildness, emotion, and sense of place are key components of our human-nature relationship, this book will be of interest to designers, academics and policy makers.

Culture, Community, and Development

Edited by Rhonda Phillips and Mark A. Brennan, Pennsylvania State University, USA

Series: Community Development Research and Practice Series

This book explores the intersection of culture and community as a basis for locally and regionally based development by focusing on three core bodies of literature: theory, research, and practice. The first section, theory, uncovers some of the more relevant historical arguments, as well as more contemporary examinations. Continuing, the research section sheds light on some of the key concepts, variables, and relationships present in the limited study of culture in community development.

Finally, the practice section brings together research and theory into applied examples from on the ground efforts.

Thinking the Sculpture Garden

Art, Plant, Landscape

Edited by Penny Florence, The Slade School of Fine Art, University College London, UK

This innovative book poses two, deceptively simple, questions: what is a sculpture garden, and what happens when you give equal weight to the main elements of landscape, planting and artwork? Richly illustrated with over 100 images, including a colour plate section, the book will primarily appeal to those engaged in professional or academic research, along with sculpture garden visitors, who will find new and surprising ways of experiencing plants and art in natural and urban settings.

Community Development for Social Change

Edited by Dave Beck and Rod Purcell
Community Development for Social Change begins with an exploration of the broad global social and economic contexts within which community development takes place. The underpinning argument is that Community Development is a social change global activity that takes place in a local context. Although, the nature and priorities of practice vary across local contexts, they are all shaped by global economic and social forces. Effective practice in the 21st Century comes from learning and applying best practice from across the globe.

Cultural Mega-Events

Opportunities and Risks for Heritage Cities

Edited by Zachary Jones
 Series: Routledge Research in Planning and Urban Design
 Mega-events have long been used by cities as a strategy to secure global recognition and attract future economic investment. While cultural mega-events have become increasingly popular, cities have begun questioning the traditional model of other events such as the Olympic Games with many candidate cities cancelling bids in recent years. The book highlights this growing trend and positions them within a broader discussion of mega-events, through an examination of three World Heritage cities, Genoa, Liverpool and Istanbul that have hosted the European Capital of Culture.

Kuala Lumpur

Community, Infrastructure and Urban Inclusivity

Edited by Marek Kozłowski, Asma Mehan and Krzysztof Nawrotek Series: Built Environment City Studies
 This book argues that elements of urban infrastructure could work as an essential mediator 'beyond community', allowing inclusive social structures to be built, despite cultural and religious tensions existing within the city. It builds on the premise of an empirical study which explores the ways in which different communities use the same spaces, and supports the findings through the implementation of a theoretical framework which looks at both Western and Islamic conceptualisations of the notion of community. Through the analysis of Kuala Lumpur, this book contributes towards the creation of more inclusive places in multi-ethnic communities.

The Routledge Companion to Planning in the Global South

Edited by Gautam Bhan, Smita Srinivas and Vanessa Watson, University of Cape Town, South Africa
 There has been a growing recognition that planning ideas emerging from the industrialised economies of the 'Global North' are not necessarily appropriate in regions of the world with very different social, political and economic contexts. This book seeks to respond to this set of challenges by showcasing the planning ideas from, and of, the parts of the world usually at the margins of planning knowledge production. It does so to begin to build an epistemic project in thinking from "here" which gives us new concepts, emphases or approaches that emerge from cities and urban regions. It does so in close conversation with actually existing practices of institutional and professional planning.

Fatigue Life of Riveted Steel Bridges

Björn Åkesson

Many old riveted railway bridges are replaced too soon due to a general lack of knowledge about the expected life span, which indicates the need for more information on fatigue and brittle fracture. This book presents extensive research on riveted bridges' fatigue life and shows how to take fatigue into account when deciding about the future service life of a riveted railway bridge. It deals with the expected fatigue life, stress ranges by traffic, effect of temperature and aging, loading histories, crack detection, loose rivets, other defects, repair and strengthening, instructions and more. For structural, bridge and steel construction engineers.

Proceedings of the 14th International Congress on Rock Mechanics and Rock Engineering (ISRM 2019), September 13-18, 2019, Foz do Iguaçu, Brazil

Edited by Sérgio A. B. da Fontoura, PUC-Rio, Brazil, Ricardo Jose Rocca, Universidad Nacional de Córdoba, Argentina and José Pavón Mendoza, Jose Pavon & Associates, Paraguay

Series: Proceedings in Earth and Geosciences

Contains the Invited and Keynote Lectures and the prestigious ISRM Award Lectures (the Leopold Muller Award Lecture by Prof. Peter K Kaiser and the Manuel Rocha Award Lecture by Dr Quinghua Lei) from ISRM 2019. This volume covers topics such as fundamental research in rock mechanics, laboratory and experimental field studies, petroleum, mining and civil engineering applications. A must-read for academics, engineers and students of rock mechanics and engineering

Structural Restoration of Masonry Monuments

Arches, Domes and Walls

George G. Penelis, Penelis Consulting Engineers SA, Greece and Gregory G. Penelis, Penelis Consulting Engineers SA, Greece

This guide to structural assessment and restoration of masonry monuments and historical buildings outlines the techniques, materials and design procedures used in line with international guidance and standards. Particularly considering earthquake loading, it presents principles and practice with case studies. Assessment addresses building materials and construction techniques, the mechanics of masonry and structural behaviour. Retrofitting considers techniques and materials available for restoration, in situ investigation and laboratory tests of materials, structural analysis and design, and planning the restoration or any emergency protective measures.

Damage Models and Algorithms for Assessment of Structures under Operating Conditions

Structures and Infrastructures Book Series, Vol. 5

Siu-Seong Law, Hong Kong Polytechnic University, Hong Kong and Xin-Qun Zhu, University of Western Sydney, Australia

Series: Structures and Infrastructures

Exceptionally useful in monitoring structuring health, Assessment of Structures Under Operating Conditions: provides the suitable algorithms to convert collected data in order to gain knowledge of the condition of an infrastructure for maintenance scheduling purposes. It addresses developments in time response series and its derivatives including the wavelet-based impulse response function and also discusses loads on the structure (vehicular load, the ground micro tremor and ambient random excitation from the supports) in the conditions assessment. The treatment of uncertainties and the study of their propagation in the inverse problem of structural condition assessment are also discussed.

Durability of Reinforced Concrete Structures

Paul Chess, Corrosion Mitigation Limited, UK and Warren Green, Vinsi Partners, NSW, Australia

Reinforced concrete structures tend to corrode as they age, but why are some more durable than others? How can corrosion engineering be used to improve future projects? Several different examples of reinforced concrete structures with corrosion problems are described and the various life enhancement solutions are discussed. It includes a chapter on the effectiveness of corrosion monitoring techniques and questions why the reality is at odds with current theory and standards. Specialist contractors, consultants and owners of corrosion damaged structures will find this an extremely useful resource. It will also be a valuable reference for students at postgraduate level.

Selective Licensing

The Basis for a Collaborative Approach to Addressing Health Inequalities

Paul Oatt

Series: Routledge Focus on Environmental Health

In recent years the private rented sector has overtaken social housing to become the main housing provider with some of the worse housing conditions that are linked to preventable health inequalities. This book seeks to expand upon previous research in the area with a focus on selective licensing and enforcement, using a case study to illustrate changes in working practices that have been bought about through new powers being made available to local authorities to issue civil financial penalties upon criminal landlords.

Clerk of Works and Site Inspector Handbook

RIBA # Publishing

2018 Edition

The Institute of Clerks of Works and Construction Inspectorate

This new edition of the popular handbook is a practical companion for Clerks of Works, Site Inspectors and anyone with the responsibility of managing construction works on site. Clerk of Works and Site Inspector Handbook, 2018 edition the book explains the traditional site inspector/clerk of works role and their liabilities, as well as duties and responsibilities linked to a more contemporary construction setting. It explores the relationship between inspectors, architects and other construction professionals, whilst providing valuable insight into reporting and what to look for, check and test every step of the way.

Lean Construction

Core Concepts and New Frontiers

Edited by Patricia Tzortzopoulos, University of Huddersfield, UK, Michail Kagioglou, University of Huddersfield, UK and Lauri Koskela, University of Huddersfield, UK

This book collates the main research developments around Lean Construction over the past 25 years with contributions from many seminal authors in the field. Highlighting the key contemporary developments and using global case study material the chapters demonstrate good practice but also help introduce new thinking to both lay readers and experienced practitioners alike. Essential reading for undergraduate and postgraduate students, researchers and practitioners with an interest in Lean Construction and construction management, providing a general understanding of the area, current state of the art knowledge as well as providing an insight to areas for future research.

Modern Earth Structures for Transport Engineering

Engineering and Sustainability Aspects

Ivan Vaniček, Czech Technical University in Prague, Czech Republic, Daniel Jirásko, Czech Technical University, Prague and Martin Vaniček, GEOSYNTETIKA, Ltd., Prague, Czech Republic

Technical demands have to be adequately related to the risk with which the design and execution are connected. Soil used for the construction, together with subsoil, are natural materials with a high degree of inhomogeneity. Therefore, the risk when constructing with such materials is much higher than for structures utilizing man-made materials. This book will be of interest to specialists responsible for transport infrastructure planning, investors (project owners) of motorways and railways and environmental engineers, responsible for geotechnical investigations, earth structures design and on contractors of such structures.

Gary Prost, G.L. Prost GeoConsulting, El Cerrito, CA

Series: Geologic Tours of the World

Millions of Americans and international travelers go on road trips through the United States every year. Although many travel through these areas, most have little to no understanding of the geology or how the landscape came to be. Written by a career geologist with decades of experience in the field, North America's Natural Wonders provides everything the reader needs to understand the landscape. It guides readers through the most iconic geologically-significant scenery in North America, points out features of interest, explains what they are seeing, and describes how these features came to be.

Management of Hydrological Systems

Analysis and perspective of the contingent valuation of water for mountain basins

Holger Manuel Benavides Muñoz, Jorge Eugenio Arias Zari, Universidad Nacional de Rosario, Rosario, Argentina, Andreas Erwin Fries, José Sánchez-Paladines, Antonio Jesús Gallegos Reina, Universidad de Málaga, Department of Geography, Málaga, Spain, Raquel Verónica Hernández Ocampo, Universidad Nacional de Loja, Ciudad Universitaria Guillermo Falconí, Loja, Ecuador and Pablo Ochoa Cueva

Management of Hydrological Systems aims for sustainable water management, through contingent water valuation, showing the procedure to follow in mountain basins. It offers a complete characterization of the main problems affecting this type of basin, as well as the detailed procedure of the contingent valuation of water, which directly involves users. This work offers practical guidance demanded by society (SDGs), and is based on practical examples, rather than theoretical constructions, from places where these issues have not been widely addressed. The text is recommended for water resource managers and decision- and policymakers but also for students and teachers.

Digital Signal Processing

A Primer With MATLAB®

Samir I. Abood, Prairie View A&M University, Texas, USA

Digital Signal Processing: A Primer with MATLAB provides an excellent cover of discrete-time signals and systems. At the beginning of each chapter, an abstract that states the chapter objectives. All principles presented in a lucid, logical, step-by-step approach. As much as possible, the authors avoid wordiness and detail overload that could hide concepts and impede understanding.

In recognition of requirements by the Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology (ABET) on integrating computer tools, the use of MATLAB is encouraged in a student-friendly manner.

Human-Systems Integration

From Virtual to Tangible

Guy Andre Boy, Professor, CentraleSupelec & ESTIA

This book improves knowledge on and the applicability of the autonomy concept not only regarding new technologies currently being developed, but also and foremost regarding people and organizations that are or will be using them with the central issues of coordination of autonomous agents. More specifically, this book focuses on human-centered design for operations tangibility in increasingly-autonomous complex systems. The book will be of interest to industry, academia, those involved with systems engineering, human factors and the broader public.

Hyperspectral Satellites and System Design

Shen-En Qian

Hyperspectral Satellites and System Design is the first book on this subject. It provides a systematic analysis and detailed design of the entire development process of hyperspectral satellites. Derived from the author's 25-year firsthand experience as a technical lead of space missions at the Canadian Space Agency, the book offers engineers, scientists and decision-makers detailed knowledge, know-how and guidelines on hyperspectral satellite system design, trade-offs, performance modeling and simulation, optimization from component to system level, subsystem design and implementation strategies.

Internal Combustion Engines and Powertrain Systems for Future Transport 2019

Proceedings of the International Conference on Internal Combustion Engines and Powertrain Systems for Future Transport, (ICEPSFT 2019), December 11-12, 2019, Birmingham, UK

Edited by IMECHE, IMECHE, Institute of Mechanical Engineers, London, UK

Internal Combustion Engines and Powertrain Systems for Future Transport 2019 provides a forum for IC engine, fuels and powertrain experts, and looks closely at developments in powertrain technology required to meet the demands of the low carbon economy and global competition in all sectors of the transportation, off-highway and stationary power industries.

Microfluidics and BioMEMS

Devices and Applications

Edited by Tuhin Subhra Santra

This book compiles cutting-edge research on cell manipulation, separation, and analysis using microfluidics and bio-MEMS. It illustrates the use of micro-robots for biomedical applications, vascularized microfluidic organs-on-a-chip and their applications, as well as DNA gene microarray biochips and their applications. It also elaborates on neuronal cell activity in microfluidic compartments, microvasculature and microarray gene patterning, different physical methods for drug delivery and analysis, micro-/nanoparticle preparation and separation in a micro-/nanofluidic environment, and the potential biomedical applications of micro-/nanoparticles.

Nonimaging Optics

Solar and Illumination System Methods, Design, and Performance

Roland Winston, University of Merced, California, USA, Lun Jiang and Vladimir Olikier

Series: Optical Sciences and Applications of Light

This book provides a comprehensive look at the science, methods, designs, and limitations of nonimaging optics. It begins with an in-depth discussion on thermodynamically efficient optical designs and how they improve the performance and cost effectiveness of solar concentrating and illumination systems. It then moves into limits to concentration, imaging devices and their limitations, and the theory of furnaces and its applications to optical design. Numerous design methods are discussed in detail followed by chapters of estimating the performance of a nonimaging design and pushing their limits of concentration. Exercises and worked examples are included throughout.

Process Integration Approaches to Planning Carbon Management Networks

Dominic C. Y. Foo, University of Nottingham Malaysia Campus, Semenyih, Malaysia and Raymond R. Tan, De La Salle University, Manila, Philippines

Series: Green Chemistry and Chemical Engineering

This book provides a comprehensive treatment of carbon emissions pinch analysis (CEPA), covering the fundamentals as well as more advanced variants based on mathematical programming. A significant portion of the book is dedicated to case studies that provide a range of examples to demonstrate how CEPA can be applied to practical energy planning problems. Selected chapters also include electronic supplements (e.g., spreadsheet templates and software code) to aid the reader in applying these methods to new sets of data. This book is ideal for academic researchers and graduate students interested in carbon-constrained energy planning models and applications.

Safety Professional's Reference and Study Guide, Third Edition

W. David Yates, EHF Manager, MacLean Power Systems, Pelham, Alabama

This is a single source reference for candidates preparing to take the Board of Certified Safety Professional (BCSP) exam. It serves as both a reference guide for the experienced professional and as a preparation source for those desiring certifications, thereby reducing the need for an expensive library of reference materials.

This reference aids the prospective exam candidate and the practicing safety professional, by showing step-by-step how to solve each question/formula listed on the BCSP exam and provides examples on how and when to utilize them. Changes to the new edition include five new chapters and twelve chapters modified

Unmanned and Autonomous Ships

An Overview of MASS

R. Glenn Wright, Consulting Engineering, USA

Unmanned ships and autonomous ships are quickly becoming a reality, making shipping safer and more efficient. Automated shipping is explored in terms of economics, technology, safety and the environment under the broad themes of ship design and engineering, command and control, navigation, communications, security, regulatory issues, and training. This book is primarily for maritime professionals, regulatory authorities, insurers, and environmental groups. It also suits undergraduate students involved in deck officer training, and graduate students and academics involved in research in ship design, operations and management.

Advanced Engineering Mathematics with Mathematica

Edward B. Magrab

Advanced Engineering Mathematics with Mathematica presents advanced analytical solution methods that are used to solve boundary value problems in engineering and integrates these methods with over 200 Mathematica programs. It emphasizes the Sturm-Liouville system and the generation and application of orthogonal functions, which are used by the separation of the variables method to solve partial differential equations.

Automotive Powertrain Science and Technology

Allan Bonnick

A motor vehicle's powertrain consists of the components which generate power and enable it to move – its engine, exhaust system, transmission, drive shaft, suspension and wheels. Any automotive engineering student going beyond basic mechanics will need a sound knowledge of the mathematics and scientific principles, particularly calculus and algebra, which underpin powertrain technology.

This textbook supports a series of courses, for instance BTEC unit 28 "Further Mathematics for Engineering Technicians", and BTEC higher unit 25 "Engine and Vehicle Design and Performance", without giving full coverage of automotive technology.

Conformations

Connecting the Chemical Structures and Material Behaviors of Polymers

Alan E. Tonelli and Jialong Shen, North Carolina State University, Raleigh, North Carolina

The authors provide both the polymer/materials science student and practicing materials engineer a means of understanding the differences in behaviors/properties of materials made from chemically distinct polymers. This knowledge can assist them in designing polymers with chemical structures that lead to their desired material behaviors and properties. The reader will learn how the detailed chemical structures of polymers can be characterized, how their microstructural dependent conformational preferences can be evaluated, and how these conformational preferences can be connected to the behaviors and properties of their materials.

Engineering Writing by Design

Creating Formal Documents of Lasting Value, Second Edition

Edward J. Rothwell and Michael J. Cloud

This book shows how effective writing can be achieved by thinking like an engineer. Based on the authors' combined experience as engineering educators, the book presents a novel approach to technical writing, positioning formal writing tasks as engineering design problems with requirements, constraints, protocols, standards, and customers (readers) to satisfy. Featuring illustrative examples, chapter summaries and exercises, quick-reference tables, and recommendations for further reading, this book is packed with valuable tips and information practicing and aspiring engineers need to become effective writers.

Experimental Physics

Principles and Practice for the Laboratory

Edited by Walter F. Smith

This textbook provides the underlying knowledge and skills needed to understand and utilize the most common and important experimental and data analysis techniques in physics. The reader is presented with the tools to design, assemble, and debug experimental apparatus, and to use it to take meaningful data. The contents start with an introduction to key topics such as troubleshooting, statistical methods, and the scientific method, then progressing through a sequence of experiments that encompass each major subfield of physics. Experiments lay out background theory, procedures and equipment, conceptual questions, safety instructions, examples, and troubleshooting exercises.

21st Century Nanoscience

A Handbook (Ten-Volume Set)

Edited by Klaus D. Sattler, University of Hawaii, Honolulu, USA

Series: 21st Century Nanoscience

This up-to-date reference is the most comprehensive summary of the field of nanoscience and its applications. It begins with fundamental properties at the nanoscale and then goes well beyond into the practical aspects of the design, synthesis, and use of nanomaterials in various industries. It emphasizes the vast strides made in the field over the past decade – the chapters focus on new, promising directions as well as emerging theoretical and experimental methods. Advanced Optimization for Motion Control Systems

Jun Ma, Xiacong Li and Kok Kiong Tan, National University of Singapore

The book is organized into two parts: Part I focuses on the model-based approaches, and Part II presents the data-based approaches. To illustrate the practical appeal of the proposed optimization techniques, theoretical results are verified with practical examples in each chapter. As the methodologies have extensive applicability in many control engineering problems, the research results in the field of optimization can be applied to full-fledged industrial processes, filling in the gap between research and application to achieve a technology frontier increment.

Biomass and Carbon Fuels in Metallurgy

Jaroslav Legemza, Technical University of Košice, Košice, Slovakia, Mária Fröhlichová, Technical University of Košice, Košice, Slovakia and Róbert Findorák, Technical University of Košice, Košice, Slovakia

Offers contemporary and new insights into the use of carbonaceous (Biomass) fuels in the metallurgical sector. These fuels are deficient as raw materials currently and actively researched to find their optimal use. The authors describe application of these fuels in different technological processes to produce pig iron, steel and ferroalloys. Emphasis is placed on biomass and its metallurgical utilization. Coverage includes the specification of fuels, their classification and the characteristics of their basic properties. The use of carbonaceous fuels in the production of various kinds of agglomerates (ferriferrous, manganese and metalized) is also covered.

Best Practices and Research Directions

Edited by Miguel A. Esteso, Ana Cristina Faria Ribeiro and A. K. Haghi

The world faces significant challenges as population and consumption continue to grow while non-renewable fossil fuels and other raw materials are depleted at ever-increasing rates. Chemistry and Chemical Engineering for Sustainable Development: Best Practices and Research Directions is a technical approach that addresses these issues using green design and analysis. It brings together innovative research, new concepts, and novel developments in the application of new tools for chemical and materials engineers.

Chitin- and Chitosan-Based Biocomposites for Food Packaging Applications

Edited by Jissy Jacob, Mahatma Gandhi University, Kerala, India, Sravanthi Loganathan, Central Electro Chemical Research Institute (CECRI), Tamil Nadu, India and Sabu Thomas, School of Chemical Sciences, Mahatma Gandhi University, Kottayam, Kerala, India

Chitin is one of the most important biopolymers, synthesized by an enormous number of living organisms and is a promising bioactive polymer for food packaging applications due to its functional properties. This book focuses on composition, properties, characterization, and theoretical approach of chitin and chitosan bio-composites. It describes the most recent studies concerning chitin and chitosan-based films and gives an overview about future trends regarding the industrial applications of chitin and chitosan for food packaging purposes.

This book is especially useful for researchers in the fields of bionanocomposites, especially those with an interest in packaging applications.

Convective Heat Transfer in Porous Media

Edited by Yasser Mahmoudi, School of Mechanical and Aerospace Engineering, Queens University Belfast, UK, Kamel Hooman, The University of Queensland, Brisbane, Australia and Kambiz Vafai, University of California, Riverside, USA

Series: Energy Systems

The book focusses on recent advances in heat transfer in porous media at micro/macro scales. It covers topics such as two-phase flow, nanofluids, wicking and convection in bi-disperse porous media, pore-scale analysis and Lattice-Boltzmann methods are introduced with related engineering applications.

Deep Learning in Computer Vision

Principles and Applications

Edited by Mahmoud Hassaballah, South Valley University, Luxor, Egypt and Ali Ismail Awad, Luleå University of Technology, Luleå, Sweden

Series: Digital Imaging and Computer Vision

The book covers a broad scope of topics in deep learning concepts and applications such as accelerating the convolutional neural network inference on field-programmable gate arrays, fire detection in surveillance applications, face recognition, action and activity recognition, aerial imagery registration, robot vision, tumor detection, and skin lesion segmentation as well as skin melanoma classification. The book is useful for researchers, postgraduate and possibly senior undergraduate students who are taking an advanced course in related topics, and for those who are interested in deep learning with applications in computer vision, image processing, and pattern recognition.

Designing an Innovative Pedagogy for Sustainable Development in Higher Education

Edited by Vasiliki Brinia, Scientific Director | Head of Teacher Education Program, Athens University of Economics and Business, Greece and J. Paulo Davim, Professor, Department of Mechanical Engineering, University of Aveiro, Portugal

Series: Higher Education and Sustainability

The aim of this book is to develop a "green pedagogy" and a mindset in Higher Education by using approaches based on innovative design thinking, arts-based practices, digital transformation, and entrepreneurship for sustainable development. Design thinking in higher education will lead students through an artful and experimental way of thinking and in doing so, will make them much more creative and innovative, as well as more responsible by allowing them to take ownership of the creation process.

Emerging Green Technologies

Matthew N. O. Sadiku, Prairie View A&M University, Texas, USA

This book provides researchers, students, and professionals a comprehensive introduction, applications, benefits, and challenges for fifteen emerging green technologies. It presents the impact of these cutting-edge technologies on our global economy and its future. The book will help a beginner to have an introductory knowledge about these emerging technologies. The main objective of the author is to provide a concise treatment that is easily digestible. It is a must-read for graduate students or scholars considering researching green technologies. It can also serve as a valuable resource for those business professionals who seek ways to green their processes.

Extreme Engineering Applications

Edited by Anindya Kanti De

Engineering designs are challenging during extreme operating conditions in terms of pressure and temperature. Recent innovations helped mankind reach regions, which were once inaccessible. Innovations in material, model, sensors and designs have helped mankind create robust and reliable wonders that work almost anywhere. This book pays tribute to such innovation and highlights the engineering development that made it possible. This book describes how engineering systems behave in various conditions by using examples ranging from oil and application to jet engines, and cryogenic cooling for space applications to plasma deposition. It also covers innovations and advancements in these fields.

Handbook of Humidity Measurement

Methods, Materials and Technologies, Three-Volume Set

Ghenadii Korotcenkov

Methods and types of devices used for measuring humidity use different measurement principles, materials and varying configurations, making it difficult to compare capabilities. The first volume focuses on devices based on optical principles of measurement, the second volume focuses on electronic and electrical devices. The second volume is entirely devoted to the consideration of different types of solid-state devices developed for humidity measurement. The third volume offers an analysis on various humidity sensitive materials and sensor technologies used in the fabrication of humidity sensors and methods acceptable for their testing.

Innovative Wind Turbine

An Illustrated Guidebook

Vaughn Nelson, West Texas A&M University, Canyon, USA

Innovative Wind Turbines is a tribute to the inventors, entrepreneurs, researchers, and companies that through their efforts have envisioned, designed, and constructed models and prototypes for wind energy devices. There are numerous concepts and ideas on ways to convert wind energy into usable energy, and this book examines the innovative, novel, or unusual concepts with numerous photos and historical examples. Primarily, only prototypes that have been constructed are mentioned, along with a few design concepts. The wind turbines are divided by types: horizontal axis wind turbines, ducted wind turbines, vertical axis wind turbines, airborne wind turbines, and more.

Intelligent Systems for Smart Grid

Security Analysis, Optimization, and Knowledge Discovery

Yan Xu, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore and Zhao Yang Dong, University of Sydney, Australia

Power systems are evolving towards the smart grid paradigm, featuring large-scale integration of renewable energy resources, deeper participation of demand side, and enhanced interaction of electric vehicles to grid. These emerging elements have introduced significant challenges to the system's security, operation, and control, which means that conventional analysis tools are becoming less effective. With a focus on security, optimization, and knowledge discovery, this book presents the cutting-edge intelligent system techniques and their applications to smart grid's real-time stability monitoring and control, operation and planning, and knowledge extraction.

Latent Heat-Based Thermal Energy Storage Systems

Materials, Applications, and the Energy Market

Edited by Amritanshu Shukla, Atul Sharma and Pascal Henry Biwolé

This new volume, Latent Heat-Based Thermal Energy Storage Systems: Materials, Applications, and the Energy Market, offers up-to-date coverage of the fundamentals as well as recent advancements in energy efficient thermal energy storage materials, their characterization, and technological applications. Thermal energy storage (TES) systems offer very high-energy savings for many of our day-to-day applications and could be a strong component for enhancing the usage of renewable/clean energy-based devices.

Motion Control of Functionally Related Systems

Tarik Uzunović and Asif Šabanović

Series: Automation and Control Engineering

This book gives an overview of the control methods appearing in the motion control area and the detailed design procedures for the class of systems that are required to execute certain task together. Tasks can generally be divided in their components, denoted as functions in the book. It is shown how dynamics of those tasks can be described. Based on the presented description, several control methods were discussed. Applicability of the introduced control design approach was demonstrated in subsequent chapters for various tasks.

Polymers and Multicomponent Polymeric Systems

Thermal, Thermo-Mechanical and Dielectric Analysis

Edited by Jose James, St. Joseph's College, Moolamattom, Idukki, Kerala, INDIA, Pramoda Kumari Pallathadka, Institute of Materials Research and Engineering (IMRE), (A*STAR) Agency for Science, Technology and Research, Singapore and Sabu Thomas, School of Chemical Sciences, Mahatma Gandhi University, Kottayam, Kerala, India

In recent years, multicomponent polymers have generated much interest due to their excellent properties, unique morphology and high-end applications. Book focusses on thermal, thermo-mechanical and dielectric analysis of polymers and multicomponent polymeric systems like blends, interpenetrating polymeric networks (IPNs), gels, polymer composites, nanocomposites. Through these analyses, it provides an insight into the stability of polymer systems as a function of time, processing and usage. Aimed at polymer chemists, physicists and engineers, it also covers ASTM/ISO and other standards of various measurement techniques for systematic analysis in materials science.

Vacuum Technique

L.N. Rozanov, St. Petersburg Technical University, Russia

Vacuum Technique presents a comprehensive treatment of vacuum technology. It gives an overview of low-pressure gases and discusses the theory of vacuum technology and mathematical modeling of gas transfer in vacuum systems. The author presents explanations of specific problems in favor of describing different vacuum elements, including the computer-aided synthesis and analysis of vacuum systems. The book includes different design methods and presents the structure and characteristics of vacuum systems for low, middle, high and superhigh vacuums. It also discusses the characteristics of materials, joints, movement inputs, and all aspects of production technology and construction standards.

Practical Applications of Microresonators in Optics and Photonics

Edited by Andrey B. Matsko, Independent Contractor, Pasadena, California, USA

Series: Optical Science and Engineering

Assembling an international team of experts, this book reports on the progress in the rapidly growing field of monolithic micro- and nanoresonators. The book opens with a chapter on photonic crystal-based resonators (nanocavities). It goes on to describe resonators in which the closed trajectories of light are supported by any variety of total internal reflection in curved and polygonal transparent dielectric structures. The book also covers distributed feedback microresonators for slow light, controllable dispersion, and enhanced nonlinearity. A portion of coverage is dedicated to the unique properties of resonators, which are extremely efficient tools when conducting multiple applications.

Bayesian inference with INLA

Virgilio Gomez-Rubio, Universidad de Castilla-La Mancha, Albacete, Spain
 The Integrated Nested Laplace Approximation (INLA) is a popular method for approximate Bayesian inference. This book provides an introduction to the underlying INLA methodology and practical guidance on how to fit different models with R-INLA and R. This covers a wide range of applications, such as multilevel models, spatial models and survival models. The book will also cover recent research on how to extend the types of models that can be fitted with INLA and R-INLA. This will include built-in features in R-INLA to define new latent models directly in R as well as combining INLA with numerical integration and MCMC methods.

Discrete Encounters

Craig Bauer, York College of Pennsylvania, Physical Sciences Department, USA Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Cryptography and Network Security Series
 This book offers a new, fresh approach to the Discrete Mathematics course. Combining traditional course topics with popular culture, applications from a variety of historical examples and a focus on the historical development of the material. The author's intent is to entertain as well as teach. His very unique approach offers a quite different look at these topics. The book will cover many of the same topics found in other texts but with a notable twist in presentation. Defining discrete mathematics, the author moves quickly into combinatorics, permutations, difference equations, graph theory, financial mathematics, fractals and chaos, trees, etc.

Financial Mathematics For Actuarial Science

Richard James Wilders, North Central College, Naperville, USA
Financial Mathematics for Actuarial Science: The Theory of Interest is concerned with the measurement of interest and the various ways interest affects what is often called the time value of money (TVM). Interest is most simply defined as the compensation that a borrower pays to a lender for the use of capital. The goal of this book is to provide the mathematical understandings of interest and the time value of money needed to succeed on the actuarial examination covering interest theory.

Introduction to Web Mapping

Michael Dorman
 A web map is an interactive display of geographic information, in the form of a web page, that you can use to tell stories and answer questions. Web maps have numerous advantages over traditional mapping techniques. Introduction to Web Mapping teaches you how to develop online interactive web maps and web mapping applications, using standard web technologies: HTML, CSS and JavaScript. The core technologies are introduced in Chapters 1-5, focusing on the specific aspects which are most relevant to web mapping. Chapters 6-13 then implement the material and demonstrate key concepts for building and publishing interactive web maps.

Introductory Mathematical Analysis for Quantitative Finance

Daniele Ritelli and Giulia Spaletta

Series: Chapman and Hall/CRC Financial Mathematics Series

Introductory Mathematical Analysis for Quantitative Finance is a textbook designed to enable students with little knowledge of mathematical analysis to fully engage with modern quantitative finance. A basic understanding of dimensional Calculus and Linear Algebra is assumed.

The exposition of the topics is as concise as possible, since the chapters are intended to represent a preliminary contact with the mathematical concepts used in Quantitative Finance. The aim is that this book can be used as a basis for an intensive one-semester course.

Statistical and Econometric Methods for Transportation Data Analysis

Simon Washington, Matthew G. Karlaftis, National Technical University of Athens, Greece, Fred Mannering, University of South Florida, Tampa, and Panagiotis Anastasopoulos

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Interdisciplinary Statistics

The complexity, diversity, and random nature of transportation problems necessitates a broad analytical toolbox. Describing tools commonly used in the field, Statistical and Econometric Methods for Transportation Data Analysis, Third Edition provides an understanding of a broad range of analytical tools required to solve transportation problems. It includes a wide breadth of examples and case studies covering applications in various aspects of transportation planning, engineering, safety, and economics.

Integrals Related to the Error Function

Nikolai E. Korotkov and Alexander N. Korotkov

Integrals Related to the Error Function presents a table of integrals related to the error function, including indefinite and improper definite integrals. Most of the formulas in this book have not been presented in other tables of integrals or have been presented only for some special cases of parameters or for integration only along the real axis of the complex plane. Many of the integrals presented here cannot be obtained using a computer (except via an approximate numerical integration).

Spectral Geometry of Partial Differential Operators (Open Access)

Michael Ruzhansky, Ghent University, Belgium, Makhmud Sadybekov and Durvudkhan Suragan, Nazarbayev University, Kazakhstan

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Monographs and Research Notes in Mathematics

The aim of Spectral Geometry of Partial Differential Operators is to provide a basic and self-contained introduction to the ideas underpinning spectral geometric inequalities arising in the theory of partial differential equations.

Historically, one of the first inequalities of the spectral geometry was the minimization problem of the first eigenvalue of the Dirichlet Laplacian. Nowadays, this type of inequalities of spectral geometry have expanded to many other cases with number of applications in physics and other sciences.

Summable Spaces and Their Duals, Matrix Transformations and Geometric Properties

Feyzi Basar, İnönü University, Malatya, Turkey and Hemen Dutta

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Monographs and Research Notes in Mathematics

The aim of Summable Spaces and Their Duals, Matrix Transformations and Geometric Properties is to discuss primarily about different kinds of summable spaces, compute their duals and then characterize several matrix classes transforming one summable space into other. The book also discusses several geometric properties of summable spaces, as well as dealing with the construction of summable spaces using Orlicz functions, and explores several structural properties of such spaces.

Artificial Intelligence in Healthcare

A Leader's Guide to Winning in the New Age of Intelligent Health Systems

Tom Lawry

Series: HIMSS Book Series

Written for clinical and business leaders in health, this book defines Artificial Intelligence and its role in driving digital transformation to improve clinical, operational and financial outcomes of provider, payer and public health organizations worldwide. It provides readers with an in-depth (but non-technical) look at the technology "building blocks" of AI (e.g. machine learning, cognitive services, bots) with real-world use cases cited along the way to illustrate the power of AI in healthcare settings.

Augmented Intelligence

The Business Power of Human–Machine Collaboration

Judith Hurwitz, Henry Morris, Candace Sidner and Daniel Kirsch

The era of artificial intelligence and cognitive computing are redefining the world of how we put data to use in our companies. Organizations are in possession of more information than ever before. But it isn't enough to simply analyze data; it is critical to be able to combine machine intelligence with human intelligence. In this book the authors explain how combining human judgment with machine learning can lead to better outcomes for your business. You learn about advances in machine learning and which techniques are most appropriate to solve your business problem. You gain insight into managing the cycle of data management to build revenue and sustainable competitive advantage.

Digital Afterlife

Death Matters in a Digital Age

Edited by Maggi Savin-Baden, University of Worcester and Victoria Mason-Robbie

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Artificial Intelligence and Robotics Series

The concept of digital immortality is defined as the continuation of an active or passive digital presence after death. Advances in data mining and artificial intelligence are now making an active presence after death possible, and the dead remain part of our lives as they live on in our digital devices. This book draws together a group of leading experts in the field to present the diverse understandings of digital immortality and examine the impact digital immortality has on recipients and on the wider society. It will explore the impact of digital immortality on preservers of digital media, receivers of digital media, and mediators.

JavaScript for Data Science

Maya Gans, Toby Hodges, European Molecular Biology Laboratory, Heidelberg, Germany and Greg Wilson

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Data Science Series

JavaScript is the language of the web. Originally developed for making browser-based interfaces more dynamic, it is now used for large-scale software projects of all kinds, including scientific visualization tools and data services. However, most researchers and data scientists have little or no experience with it. This book is designed to fill that void. It introduces readers to JavaScript's power and idiosyncrasies, and guides them through the key features of the modern version of the language and its tools and libraries. The book places equal focus on client- and server-side programming, and shows readers how to create interactive web content, build and test data services.

Posthumanist Learning

What Robots and Cyborgs Teach us About Being Ultra-social

Cathrine Hasse, Aarhus University, Denmark

Posthumanism questions the self-evident status of human beings by exploring how technology is changing what can be categorised as 'human', e.g. cyborgs and humanoid robots. In this book, the author applies a posthumanist lens to traditional learning theory, challenging conventional understanding of what a human learner can actually be. Posthuman Learning presents a new, inclusive, posthuman learning theory, designed to keep up with the transformations of human learning resulting from new technological experiences, as well as considering the expanding role of cyborg devices and robots in learning.

Practical Numerical and Scientific Computing with MATLAB and Python

Eihab B. M. Bashier

The book introduces numerical analysis, with a focus on the implementation of methods and algorithms to solve a variety of mathematical problems in use within a variety of applications. It applies programming in MATLAB and Python to a variety of numerical analysis tasks. Each section of the book introduces a method, analysis of error (or convergence) when applicable, and implementation with Matlab and Python. Examples and exercises are also included. The book also includes chapters on numerical differentiation and integration, the solution of systems of linear ODEs, introduction to the nonstandard finite difference methods for solving IVPs and solving dynamical optimization problems.

The Art of Coding

The Language of Drawing, Graphics, and Animation

Mohammad Majid al-Rifaie, Goldsmiths, University of London, Anna Ursyn, University of Northern Colorado and Theodor Wyeld

The aim of this book is to bring programming skills closer to the reader by presenting coding in a visual way. The book approaches programming not as a discrete or discontinuous set of skills, but rather as an approach to creativity, or a constellation of ideas. The book will discuss interactions between images and text, music and text, as well as music and images, all in the context of programming, visualization, and the media. The authors explore various learning styles with a focus on the use of online-streamed video tutorials and project based approaches. The book will also feature a collection of learning projects for students and instructors to select specific themes from.

The book will provide a comprehensive overview on information visualization and visual exploration. In the era of Big Data visual interactive approaches that support the investigation of large volumes of data significantly grow in importance. The top-down view on the problem illustrated with numerous examples based on real data and settings will help people from these domains to get a sound knowledge about key challenges, concepts and methodologies in this regard. And it will also serve as an ideal basis for teaching advanced undergraduate and graduate students in computer science, engineering, economy or others.

A Beginner's Guide to Internet of Things Security

Attacks, Applications, Authentication, and Fundamentals

B. B. Gupta and Aakanksha Tewari

This book focuses on security issues in the IoT environment. It analyzes the security problems of each layer separately and try to identify solutions. It also analyzes the integration and scalability issues with the cross-layer architecture of IoT in detail. Further, it discusses some state-of-the-art authentication schemes that can secure RFID tags along with some security models that are used to verify whether an authentication scheme is secure against any potential security risks.

For the Love of Cybernetics: Personal Narratives by Cyberneticians

Personal Narratives by Cyberneticians

Edited by Jocelyn Chapman

For the Love of Cybernetics: Personal Narratives by Cyberneticians is a collection of personal accounts that offer unique insights into cybernetics via the personal journeys of nine individuals.

For the authors in this collection, cybernetics is not their "area of interest"—it is how they think about what they do, and it is their practice. They share the belief that cybernetics is not a tool to apply here and there, but a unifying way of seeing the world that transforms how we behave, thus increasing possibilities for positive systemic change.

This book was originally published as a special issue of the journal, World Futures.

Artificial Intelligence and the Environmental Crisis

Can Technology Really Save the World?

Keith Ronald Skene, Director, Biosphere Research Institute, Angus, UK

This book argues that artificial intelligence needs a completely different set of foundations, based on ecological intelligence rather than human intelligence, if it is to deliver on the promise of a better world. This can usher in the greatest transformation in human history, an age of re-integration. Our very existence is dependent upon our context within the Earth System, and so, surely, artificial intelligence must also be grounded within this context, embracing emergence, interconnectedness and real-time feedback. We discover many positive outcomes across the societal, economic and environmental arenas and discuss how this transformation can be delivered.

Introduction to Wavelet Transforms

Nirdosh Bhatnagar

This book introduces the basics of wavelet transforms, including continuous and discrete wavelet transforms, and Daubechies wavelets. It also includes elementary examples of wavelets, and certain well-known applications. Important concepts of signal processing are covered in the second part of the book, including discrete Fourier transforms, z-transforms and discrete-time Fourier transforms, along with continuous and discrete-time signal processing. The final part of the book covers mathematical concepts. It includes a chapter on set-theoretic concepts and number theory, as well as a chapter matrices and determinants.

Designing Robot Behavior in Human-Robot Interactions

Changliu Liu, Dept. of Aeronautics and Astronautics, Stanford University, Te Tang, Department of Mechanical Engineering, University of California, Berkeley, Hsien-Chung Lin, Dep of Mechanical Engineering, University of California, Berkeley and Masayoshi Tomizuka, University of California, Berkeley

Human-robot interactions have been recognized to be a key element of future robots in many application domains such as manufacturing and transportation. It is challenging to design the behavior of those robots as they need to operate in highly unstructured and stochastic environments. The focus of this book is to set up a unified analytical framework for various human-robot systems; to establish a methodology to design the robot behaviors through control, decision and learning so that they can interact safely and efficiently with humans in dynamic uncertain environments; and to demonstrate the effectiveness of the method through a variety of realistic applications.

Knowing your market ahead of time can make for considerable savings and profit for those who can capture a market with their projects. The present book provides an in-depth description of the marketing of projects that helps projects succeed in the market. While marketing theory is a subject that has been studied countless times, there are no books at this time that discuss how to go about marketing projects. A project that is not based on a proper needs assessment and that doesn't reach its public is doomed for failure. The present book provides an in-depth, essential understanding of marketing as it applies to projects.

Resource Proportional Software Design for Emerging Systems

Suparna Bhattacharya, K. Gopinath and Douglas L. Voigt, Hewlett Packard Enterprise

This book raises developer awareness to the central principles and benefits of resource proportional software design in creating an antidote to the problem of run-time bloat in deeply layered software stacks. It equips developers to practice resource proportional software design using the principles to build efficient software without compromising flexibility. The book further motivates similar practices in a discussion on implications for emerging technologies for system designers and provides an outline of open research questions for academic researchers.

Information Systems

What Every Business Student Needs to Know, Second Edition

Efrem G. Mallach, Rhode Island College, Providence, and Kea Company, New Bedford, Massachusetts, USA

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Textbooks in Computing

Most information systems textbooks overwhelm business students with overly technical information they may not need in their careers. This textbook takes a new approach to the required information systems course for business majors. For each topic covered, the text highlights key "Take-Aways" that alert students to material they will need to remember during their careers. Sections titled "Where You Fit In" and "Why This Chapter Matters" explain how the topics being covered will impact students on the job. Review questions, discussion questions, and summaries are also included. The second edition will be updated to include new technology, along with a new running case study.

Big Data with Hadoop MapReduce

Rathinaraja Jeyaraj, Pugalendhi, PhD Ganeshkumar and Anand Paul

The authors of Big Data with Hadoop MapReduce: A Classroom Approach have framed the book to facilitate understanding big data and MapReduce by visualizing the basic terminologies and concepts. They employ over 100 illustrations and many worked-out examples to convey the concepts and methods used in big data, the inner workings of MapReduce, and single node/multi-node installation on physical/virtual machines.

Handbook of Radiotherapy Physics

Theory and Practice, Second Edition, Two Volume Set

Edited by Philip Mayles, Clatterbridge Cancer Centre, UK, Alan E. Nahum, The Clatterbridge Cancer Centre NHS Foundation Trust, Bebington, Wirral, UK and J.C. Rosenwald

From background physics and biological models to the latest imaging and treatment modalities, the Handbook of Radiotherapy Physics covers all aspects of radiotherapy physics. Fully updated throughout, it explores the underlying physics, radiobiology, and technologies involved. It discusses the support requirements of external beam radiotherapy; new advances in photon and particle therapy; and radiation protection and legislation. With contributions from renowned specialists, this second edition of the key reference in the field provides essential knowledge for medical physicists, researchers, radiation oncologists and technologists.

The Making of an Artificial Brain from a Time Crystal

Anirban Bandyopadhyay, National Institute for Materials Science, Ibaraki, Japan

This reference explores recent efforts to realize a practical physical device that follows the neural network principles of the brain, incorporating research from the last 50 years in nanotechnology, artificial intelligence, supramolecular chemistry, and materials science. The author adopts a multidisciplinary approach, addressing fundamental problems in computer science, organic synthesis, theoretical physics, supramolecular chemistry, and artificial intelligence in a lucid, accessible way and references major breakthrough papers that have changed the course of scientific development. A color insert is included, as well as a CD with additional material.

Introduction to Physics in Modern Medicine

Suzanne Amador Kane, Haverford College, Pennsylvania, USA and Boris A. Gelman

Covering a wide range of applications, this third edition builds on the bestselling second edition, providing medical personnel and students with an exploration of the physics-related applications found in state-of-the-art medical centers. Requiring no previous knowledge of physics, biology, or chemistry and keeping maths to a minimum, the application-dedicated chapters adhere to simple and self-contained qualitative explanations that make use of examples and illustrations. With an enhanced emphasis on digital imaging and computers in medicine, the text gives readers a fundamental understanding of the practical application of each concept and the basic science behind it.

Thermodynamics Problem Solving in Physical Chemistry

Study Guide and Map

Kathleen E. Murphy, Daemen College, NY

This innovative and unique workbook and “map” guides physical chemistry students through the decisions to be made to assess a problem situation, create appropriate solutions, and gain confidence through practice solving physical chemistry problems. The workbook includes six major sections with 20 - 30 solved problems in each section that span from easy, single objective questions to difficult, multistep analysis problems. Each section of the workbook has “key points” that highlight major features of the topic to remind students of what they need to apply to solve problems in the topic area. Consequently, the workbook and map can act as a “test” review for the students.

Unifying the Universe

The Physics of Heaven and Earth

Hasan Padamsee, Cornell University, USA

Unifying the Universe: The Physics of Heaven and Earth provides a solid background in basic physics. With a humanistic perspective, it shows how science is significant for more than its technological consequences. Fully updated throughout, with a new chapter on the ‘Quantum World’ and supplementary video resources, this new edition includes clear and well-planned links to the arts and philosophies of relevant historical periods to bring science and the humanities together.

Biochemistry, Biophysics, and Molecular Chemistry

Applied Research and Interactions

Edited by Francisco Torrens, Debarshi Kar Mahapatra and A. K. Haghi

Series: Innovations in Physical Chemistry

Biochemistry, Biophysics, and Molecular Chemistry: Applied Research and Interactions provides the background needed in biophysics and molecular chemistry and offers a great deal of advanced biophysical knowledge. It emphasizes the growing interrelatedness of molecular chemistry and biochemistry, and acquaints one with experimental methods of both disciplines. This book addresses some of the enormous advances in biochemistry, particularly in the areas of structural biology and bioinformatics, by providing a solid biochemical foundation that is rooted in chemistry.

Biophysical and Biochemical Mechanisms of Human Organism Development

Life, Death, and Disease in Relation to the Atmosphere of the Solar System

M. R. Ponizovskiy

This volume, Biophysical and Biochemical Mechanisms of Human Organism Development: Life, Death, and Disease in Relation to the Atmosphere of the Solar System, advances the knowledge in field of mechanism development of a lived organism during its lifetime through the normal stationary state and quasi-stationary pathologic state from the point of views of biochemistry, biophysics, and thermodynamics. This book provides the possibility to estimate the received experimental results from the three points of view, giving a broad perspective on a mechanism's mutual subjections between an organism and its environment (meaning the atmosphere of the solar system).

Bioresponsive Polymers

Design and Application in Drug Delivery

Edited by Deepa H. Patel

This volume, Bioresponsive Polymers: Design and Application in Drug Delivery, focuses on recent advancements in bioresponsive polymers and their design, characterization, and applications in varied fields, such as drug delivery and gene delivery. It looks at several carriers for drug delivery and biological molecules using different bioresponsive polymers. To address the many difficulties in existing dosage forms, this book provides information on recent developments to overcome drawbacks of conventional forms of the drug delivery.

Compliance or Defiance?

Assessing the Implementation of Policy Prescriptions for Commercialization by Water Operators

Mireia Tutusaus, IHE Institute for Water Education, Delft, The Netherlands

Series: IHE Delft PhD Thesis Series

This research builds on work of policy implementation adjusted to the analysis of commercialization of water services in small towns. In documenting the operations of three different cases in Mozambique, Uganda and Indonesia, it highlights the challenges to fully implement commercialization, and how an analysis of the practices of these providers on their day-to-day operations reveals how these principles are tinkered with, or complied with in ways that the policy prescriptions do not anticipate. It uses a practice-oriented focus to otherwise usually ideologically charged discussions around commercialization, offering new grounds to engage in this discussion with empirical material.

Effects of Wetland Conversion to Farming on Water Quality and Sediment and Nutrient Retention in a Tropical Catchment

Abias Uwimana, IHE Institute for Water Education, Delft, The Netherlands

Series: IHE Delft PhD Thesis Series

The study assessed the impacts of conversion of wetlands to farming land on the water quality and sediment and nutrient retention. Seasonally, water quality changed with discharge following a mechanism of buildup (dry season), washout (early stages of high flow) and dilution (end stages of high flow). In contrast to natural wetlands that had a net retention, fishponds acted as temporal traps of TSS, TN and TP at the early stages of farming, and a source of TSS, TN and TP at the end of the farming period, while rice farming generated TSS, TN and TP at early in the farming period and trapped them at the end of the farming season.

Optimisation of Dynamic Heterogeneous Rainfall Sensor Networks in the Context of Citizen Observatories

Juan Carlos Chacon-Hurtado, IHE Institute for Water Education, Delft, The Netherlands

Series: IHE Delft PhD Thesis Series

Precipitation drives the dynamics of water systems, making its monitoring essential for efficient water management. Precipitation sensors are arranged in networks at fixed places, providing continuous point observations for long periods. This work explores the use of sensors that can relocate as rainfall events develop (dynamic sensors), and increasing the number of sensors involving volunteers (citizens) to improve the efficiency of the sensor network. The focus is on merging heterogeneous observations in non-stationary fields, exploring the interactions between different definitions of optimality, and developing a framework for the optimal scheduling of dynamic sensors.

Rethinking Faecal Sludge Management in Emergency Settings

Decision Support Tools and Smart Technology Applications for Emergency Sanitation

Fiona Zakaria, IHE Institute for Water Education, Delft, The Netherlands

Series: IHE Delft PhD Thesis Series

This study proposes applications of technology advances for a better emergency sanitation responses. Proposed ideas are development of a smart toilet and a decision support system to help better planning of sanitation responses in a shortest time possible, and an attempt to simulate financial flow of a sanitation system in a web application. The eSOS Smart Toilet features a smart monitoring system that allows coordinated toilet operations in minimum space and densely inhabited emergency camps. The Value of Using Hydrological Datasets for Water Allocation Decisions: Earth Observations, Hydrological Models and Seasonal Forecasts

Alexander José Kaune Schmidt, IHE Institute for Water Education, Delft, The Netherlands

Series: IHE Delft PhD Thesis Series

This work provides numerical tools, methods and results to evaluate the value of using hydrological datasets to support water allocation decisions at river basin and irrigation district scale. An integrated approach is used to predict climate, improve decisions and reduce negative impacts. Results show that investing in hydrological data with finer spatial and temporal resolution and longer periods of record improves water allocation decisions and reduces agricultural production loss in large irrigation schemes. The framework was tested in Costa Rica, Colombia and Australia, but can be applied in any case study around the world.

Understanding the Impact of Human Interventions on the Hydrology of Nile Basin Headwaters, the Case of Upper Tekeze Catchments

Tesfay Gebretsadkan Gebremicael, IHE Institute for Water Education, Delft, The Netherlands

Series: IHE Delft PhD Thesis Series

This book presents an improved understanding of the hydrological processes and main drivers of streamflow regime change in semi-arid catchments of the Nile Basin headwaters. It demonstrates that human interventions are the most important causes of change of the hydrological processes and the availability of water in catchments. This book proves that rainfall-runoff relationships in semi-arid catchments are non-uniform and that the application of hydrological models in such catchments need special attention. This study demonstrates that a parsimonious dynamic hydrological model can improve our understanding of the hydrological response to dynamic environmental changes.

Political Party Dynamics and Democracy in Sweden:

Developments since the 'Golden Age'

Tommy Moller

Series: Europa Country Perspectives

The political landscape in Sweden has undergone a rapid change in recent years. The institutions of the political system – not least political parties – appear from a historical perspective to have become partly dysfunctional. The previously stable party system has become unstable. Consequently, it has become more difficult to form governments and more difficult for governments to govern. The famous culture of consensus has been replaced by a harsher and more confrontational political climate; the tone in political debate has become more aggressive.

The Genius of the German Lyric

An Historic Survey Of Its Formal And Metaphysical Values

August Closs

Series: Routledge Library Editions: German Literature

Originally published in 1938, this remains one of the few comprehensive studies of the German lyric in any language, ranging from the Middle Ages to the 1960s. By the use of detailed critical analysis the book interprets the essence of German lyric poetry and includes a study of the phases of German literature in the first half of the 20th Century.

German Lyric Poetry

A Critical Analysis of Selected Poems from Klopstock to Rilke

Series: Routledge Library Editions: German Literature

Originally published in 1952, this book provides a detailed critical analysis of 40 German lyrics. All the poems analysed are reprinted in full, so that criticism may be checked by reference to the original text. The book therefore provides a unique introduction to German poetry from the Age of Enlightenment to that of Rilke, without burdening the reader with too much details about minor figures.

The Augustan World

Life and Letters in Eighteenth-Century England

A. R. Humphreys

Series: Routledge Library Editions: 18th Century Literature

The outlook of writers in the eighteenth century was profoundly influenced by the social and intellectual interests of Augustan life. Originally published in 1954, this book aims to describe that influence, and to set the literature of the period in its social environment with a critical attention. The treatment is compact but readable, and effective use is made of quotations from contemporary literature.

Idylls & Realities

Studies in Nineteenth-Century German Literature

J. P. Stern

Series: Routledge Library Editions: German Literature

Originally published in 1971, this book outlines the period of Germany's belated industrial revolution and suggests why German literature does not, before the 1880s, contribute to the tradition of European realism. It considers the alternatives to realism offered in three genres of drama, poetry and prose fiction. The book closely analyses specific texts, both in the original and in translation, with comparisons with non-German works.

The Man and the Poet

Margaret Mare

Series: Routledge Library Editions: German Literature

Originally published in 1957, this was the first biography and full account of Eduard Mörike's works to appear in English. One of the greatest German lyric poets, Mörike is, according to some critics equal to Goethe as a lyricist. This book was the first attempt to analyse Mörike's highly suggestive drawings, some of which are reproduced in the book. The contents of poems are summarized, so no prior knowledge of German is assumed, and a large number of poems are quoted in full.

An Anthology with Critical Essays and Commentaries

Ronald Taylor

Series: Routledge Library Editions: German Literature

Originally published in 1970, this book surveys the central philosophical and aesthetic doctrines which characterize German Romanticism. A selection of literary, philosophical and political essays by some of the most important German Romantic thinkers illustrates the principal themes: these range from philosophical idealism and aesthetic subjectivism to folklore and emergent German nationalism, from exotica and medievalism to irrationality and the metaphysics of music.

A Study of English Utopian Fiction since the End of the Nineteenth Century

Richard Gerber

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Utopias

This book, originally published in 1955 and reissued in 1973, is a study of the flourishing of an ancient literary form which had only recently been recognized and systematically studied as a proper genre – utopian fiction. Beginning with the imaginary journeys of writers like H. G. Wells at the end of the nineteenth century, Professor Gerber traces the evolving themes and forms of the genre through their culmination in the sophisticated nightmares of Aldous Huxley and George Orwell.

1880-1950

Jethro Bithell

Series: Routledge Library Editions: German Literature

Originally published in 1939 and revised in 1959, this book traces back to their origins the literary movements and phases of German literature of 1880 to 1950 as they occur and shows how and why they pass over into succeeding phases. It closely analyses Naturalism, Impressionism, Neo-romanticism and Expressionism as well as dealing exhaustively with Surrealism, Magic Realism and Existentialism. The book includes discussion of post-war Anglo-American and French literature.

Geoffrey Day

Series: Routledge Library Editions: 18th Century Literature

Originally published in 1987, this title is a comprehensive study focused on experimental forms in eighteenth-century fiction. It suggests that the eighteenth-century novel is misread because it is judged with the templates of nineteenth and twentieth century versions of 'the novel' in mind, rather than as a standalone genre. Looking at works from well-known authors of the time this learned and lively book, gently but precisely undermines a basic category of modern literary understanding.

The Conservation of Ecosystems and Species

Gareth E. Jones

Originally published in 1987, Conservation of Ecosystems and Species examines a wide range of conservation issues and explains the scientific reasons why conservation of ecosystems and species is important, not merely for its own sake, but for the future of humanity. It charts the development of conservation policy around the concept and understanding of the ecosystem. The roles of the planner, the industrialist and the politician in the development of a conservation policy are described.

Rainer Maria Rilke

His Life and Work

F. W. van Heerikhuizen, Fernand Renier and Anne Cliff

Series: Routledge Library Editions: German Literature

Originally published in English in 1951, this biography of one of Germany's foremost mystical poets dis-proves many of the myths surrounding Rainer Maria Rilke and examines his life and work from social, historical and psychological perspectives, while all the time referencing Rilke's works to his complex personality. The legacy of his work on younger generations is also examined. All German prose quotations have been translated into English for this edition, existing translations used for the German poetry.

Culture, Ritual and Revolution in Vietnam

Shaun Kingsley Malarney

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Ritual

Originally published in 2002 Culture, Ritual and Revolution in Vietnam is a study of the history and consequences of the revolutionary campaign to transform culture and ritual in northern Vietnam. Based upon official documents and several years of field research in Thinh Liet Commune, a Red River delta community near Hanoi, it provides the first detailed account of the nature of revolutionary cultural reforms in Vietnam as how those reforms continue to animate contemporary socio-cultural life.

An Introduction to Logic

David Mitchell

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Logic

Originally published in 1967. The common aim of all logical enquiry is to discover and analyse correctly the forms of valid argument. In this book concise expositions of traditional, Aristotelian logic and of modern systems of propositional and predicative logic show how far that aim has been achieved. Review of the original publication; 'Mr Mitchell is quite consciously controversial; he has opponents clearly in view, and the progress of his discussion is dialectical at every stage.' The Times Educational Supplement

The Ways Out

Utopian Communal Groups in an Age of Babylon

John R. Hall

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Utopias

A comparative analysis of both secular and religious communal groups in contemporary America, this study, originally published in 1978, shows that contemporary communalists stand in relation to collectivism much the same as early Protestants stood in relation to individualism – as the self-proclaimed pioneers of the new age. There is great diversity among communal groups, a diversity which is found to stem from alternative orientations towards time and alternative assumptions about the cognitive status of the social world.

Meaning, Quantification, Necessity

Themes in Philosophical Logic

Martin Davies, University of Oxford, UK

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Logic

Originally published in 1981. This book brings together related ideas surrounding the crucial concepts of meaning, truth, and semantic structure. It presents careful consideration of main themes ranging from Gricean accounts of meaning to two dimensional modal logic. It deals with various constructions that are found in natural languages: names, quantifiers, definite descriptions, and modal operators. Throughout, while assuming some familiarity with philosophical logic and elementary formal logic, the text provides a clear exposition.

A Complete Concordance to Wolfram von Eschenbach's Parzival

Clifton D. Hall

Series: Routledge Library Editions: German Literature

Originally published in 1990, this massive work of scholarship provides an invaluable reference tool for efficient textual investigation to a medieval masterpiece and one of the most significant Middle High German poems. Function words and selected high frequency words with related forms, omitted from many concordances, are given in single verse context in the Verse Concordance. The shorter format offers enough information for most research needs, and certainly enough to indicate where recourse to the text itself is required.

The German Poets of the First World War

Patrick Bridgwater

Series: Routledge Library Editions: German Literature

Originally published in 1985, this book provides a full survey of the best and most significant work of German writers to the First World War. Including (in both German and English) the texts of all the main poems discussed, this book contains many not readily available elsewhere. Authors discussed include Trakl, Rilke and George as well as less familiar names. The book not only corrects the distorted view of the subject perpetuated by most histories of German literature, but will also help to English First World War poetry into perspective.

The Province of Logic

An Interpretation of Certain Parts of Cook Wilson's "Statement and Inference"

Richard Robinson

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Logic

Originally published in 1931. This inquiry investigates and develops John Cook Wilson's view of the province of logic. It bases the study on the posthumous collected papers Statement and Inference. The author seeks to answer questions on the nature of logic using Cook Wilson's thought. The chapters introduce and consider topics from metaphysics to grammar and from psychology to knowledge. An early conception of logic in the sciences and presenting the work of an important twentieth century philosopher, this is an engaging work.

Work in the English Novel

The Myth of Vocation

Ruth Danon

Series: Routledge Library Editions: 18th Century Literature

Originally published in 1985, this book traces the development of an ideal of work in English writing which runs parallel to that of the Protestant work ethic. The author has called this the myth of vocation: work is seen as the primary source of self-definition, psychic integration and fulfilment. The root, and the purest form, of the idea is to be found in Robinson Crusoe. This work, so seminal in many ways, presents a prototypical middle-class hero, caught in a conflict between the impulse to adventure and that to create and make profits.

Women's Utopias in British and American Fiction

Nan Bowman Albinski

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Utopias

Utopian writing offers a fascinating panorama of social visions; and the related forms of dystopia and anti-utopian satire extend this into the range of social nightmares. Originally published in 1988, this comparative study of utopian fiction by British and American women writers demonstrates the continuity of a well-established, but little-known, tradition, emphasising its range and diversity, and providing ample evidence of women's aspirations and documenting the restrictions and exclusions in private and public life that their novels challenge.

Aspects of a Theory of Singular Reference

Prolegomena to a Dialectical Logic of Singular Terms

William J. Greenberg

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Logic

Originally published in 1985. This study concerns the problem of treating identity as a relation between an object and itself. It addresses the Russellian and Fregean solutions and goes on to present in the first part a surfacist account of belief-context ambiguity requiring neither differences in relative scope nor distinctions between sense and reference. The second part offers an account of negative existentials, necessity and identity-statements which resolves problems unlike the Russell-Frege analyses. This is a detailed work in linguistics and philosophy.

Logic in Practice

L. Susan Stebbing and C. W. K. Mundle

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Logic

Originally published in 1934. This fourth edition originally published 1954, revised by C. W. K. Mundle.

This book discusses the habit of sound reasoning which is acquired by consciously attending to the logical principles of sound reasoning, in order to apply them to test the soundness of arguments. It isn't an introduction to logic but it encourages the practice of logic, of deciding whether reasons in argument are sound or unsound. Stress is laid upon the importance of considering language, which is a key instrument of our thinking and is imperfect.

Liberty and Poetics in Eighteenth Century England

Michael Meehan

Series: Routledge Library Editions: 18th Century Literature

The qualities and achievements of eighteenth century English literature have suffered denigration as a result of a prevailing Whig interpretation of literary history. It is the contention of this book, originally published in 1986, that an alternative form of Whig interpretation is possible and even desirable. It has as its sphere of interest the ways in which views on the nature and benefits of political freedom, and various "whiggish" readings of literary history, political theory and aesthetics, did in fact shape literary and social changes through the eighteenth century.

The Twentieth Century 1890-1945

Raymond Furness

Series: Routledge Library Editions: German Literature

Originally published in 1978, this study presents a detailed analysis of the major literary movements in Austria and Germany from the end of the nineteenth century to the collapse of the Third Reich. It examines the plethora of literary genres which marked the transition from the nineteenth to the twentieth century: the short-lived Naturalist movement rapidly giving way to various forms of symbolism and neo-romanticism. The situation in Vienna is studied in detail; the concept of modernism vis-à-vis expressionism with special regard to Rilke and Kafka.

Ritual, Identity, and the Mayan Diaspora

Nancy J. Wellmeier

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Ritual

Originally published in 1998, Ritual, Identity, and the Mayan Diaspora examines the lives and the continuing ritual traditions of the Mayas in the United States. The book focuses on a predominantly Maya town in rural Florida and shows how members of this ancient Central American civilization use their religious tradition to maintain their ethnic identity in an unfamiliar environment. Bringing together studies of Mesoamerican fiesta or cargo systems, religious ritual and migration studies, this interdisciplinary work describes the religious traditions of indigenous Guatemala.

Conservation at Home

A Practical Handbook

Michael Allaby

Originally published in 1988, Conservation at Home looks at practical methods of conservation that can be carried out within the home. Still as relevant today, as it was at the time of publication, this book gives practical and authoritative advice on a wide range of activities and products that can materially affect our environment. From the fabric and fuel, we use to keep warm, to the utensils and chemicals we clean with and the food we eat this book provides detailed information on how our domestic lives are affecting not only the natural world, but also ourselves as humans.

International Trade in Wildlife

Tim Inskipp and Sue Wells

Originally published in 1979 International Trade in Wildlife is a product of the 1973 Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora conference, containing the full text of the CITES convention. The volume outlines the animals and plants controlled by CITES, and describes the protective policies put in place to protect endangered plants and animals. Although published over 40 years ago, the document still offers a comprehensive and useful guide to conservation and will be an important historical document for environmental policy makers and conservationists alike.

Ritual in Industrial Society

A Sociological Analysis of Ritualism in Modern England

Robert Bock

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Ritual

Originally published in 1974, Ritual in Industrial Society is based on several years' research including interviews and observations into the importance of ritual in industrial society within modern Britain. The book addresses how identity and meaning for people of all occupations and social classes can be derived through rituals and provides an expansive and diverse examination of how rituals are used in society, including in birth, marriage and death. The book will be of interest to sociologists as well as academics of religion and theology, social workers and psychotherapists.

Floods and Drainage

British Policies for Hazard Reduction, Agricultural Improvement and Wetland Conservation

E.C. Penning-Rowell, Middlesex University, UK, D. J. Parker and D.M. Harding

Originally published in 1986, Floods and Drainage advanced hazard – response theory as developed mainly by the White/Burton/Kates school of researchers in North America. Based on fifteen years of research, the book rejects conventional theory's emphasis on personal response to hazardous environments, suggesting that this seriously detracts from the institutional and political forces that are so important in the analysis of hazard responses and policies. The book also seeks to provide material of practical relevance to environmental managers and engineers, rather than to present just research results.

An Introduction to Many-valued Logics

Robert Ackermann

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Logic

Originally published in 1967. An introduction to the literature of nonstandard logic, in particular to those nonstandard logics known as many-valued logics. Part I expounds and discusses implicational calculi, modal logics and many-valued logics and their associated calculi. Part II considers the detailed development of various many-valued calculi, and some of the important metatheorems which have been proved for them. Applications of the calculi to problems in the philosophy are also surveyed. This work combines criticism with exposition to form a comprehensive but concise survey of the field.

The Foundations of Psychological Theory

Robert E. Lana, Temple University

Series: Psychology Library Editions: History of Psychology

Over the previous decade, Robert E. Lana had attempted to understand the enterprise of psychology as a totality. After considerable study, he became convinced that the twin vehicles for such a task were the history of the field and the epistemological contexts into which psychological theories fit. Originally published in 1976, the initial chapters in this volume are devoted to explaining, through history, the major epistemological ideas either implicit or explicit in modern psychological theory. Later chapters are studies of the epistemological contexts that, in part, yield modern psychological theory.

The Implications of Induction

L. Jonathan Cohen

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Logic

Originally published in 1973. This book presents a valid mode of reasoning that is different to mathematical probability. This inductive logic is investigated in terms of scientific investigation. The author presents his criteria of adequacy for analysing inductive support for hypotheses and discusses each of these criteria in depth. The chapters cover philosophical problems and paradoxes about experimental support, probability and justifiability, ending with a system of logical syntax of induction. Each section begins with a summary of its contents and there is a glossary of technical terms to aid the reader.

Women, Families and the British Army 1700–1880

Edited by Jennine Hurl-Eamon and Lynn MacKay

This collection provides, for the first time in one place, a wide body of texts relating to common soldiers' personal lives: the women with whom they became involved, their children, and the families who cared for them. It brings hitherto unpublished material into print for the first time, and resurrects accounts that have not been in wide circulation since the nineteenth century. Combining the observations of officers, government officials and others with memoirs and letters from men in the ranks, and from the women themselves, it also draws extensively on press accounts, especially in the nineteenth century.

Death, Ritual, and Bereavement

Edited by Ralph Houlbrooke

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Ritual

Originally published in 1989, Death, Ritual and Bereavement examines the social history of death and dying from 1500 to the 1930s. This edited collection focuses on the death-bed, funerals, burials, mourning customs, and the expression of grief. The essays examines present-day tendencies to conceal the unpleasant aspects of death, among them the growing participation of doctors in the management of death-beds in the eighteenth century and the creation of extra-mural cemeteries. The book will appeal to students and academics of family and social history as well as history of medicine, religion and anthropology.

Goethe and the Philosopher's Stone

Symbolical Patterns in 'The Parable' and the Second Part of 'Faust'

Alice Pearl Raphael

Series: Routledge Library Editions: German Literature

Originally published in 1965, this study examines the concealed meanings in the second part of Faust, often considered obscure. It is of value not only to students of literature but also comparative religions, as it deals with Goethe's knowledge of ancient myths, mysteries and Hellenistic religions. It is of value too, to those interested in alchemy as it traces the many alchemical references in Faust. The book gives a psychological interpretation of elements of Goethe's personal life and work, which succeeds in making the man and the veiled references in his most profound work accessible to the modern reader.

Number and Pattern in the Eighteenth-Century Novel

Defoe, Fielding, Smollett and Sterne

Douglas Brooks

Series: Routledge Library Editions: 18th Century Literature

Numerological patterning in literature, where structural details of a literary work are symbolically related to its meaning on the verbal level, was particularly common from the Middle Ages up to the 17th century. Originally published in 1973, the author breaks new ground in revealing that familiarity with this technique lived on into the 18th century, supplying the more artistically aware of the early British novelists with meaningful formal guidelines. This original and controversial study combines structural analysis with fresh interpretative insights, and draws parallels with painting, music and architecture.

The First Century of Experimental Psychology

Edited by Eliot Hearst

Series: Psychology Library Editions: History of Psychology

This volume, originally published in 1979, commemorates the centennial of experimental psychology as a separate discipline – dated from the opening of Wilhelm Wundt's laboratory at Leipzig in 1879. Each major research area is surveyed by distinguished experts. Writing in a lively style suitable for non-specialists, the authors provide a general introduction to the history of experimental psychology. This book blends history with methodology, findings with theory, and discussion of specific topics with integrated assessments of what has truly been accomplished in the first hundred years of experimental psychology.

Elementary Formal Logic

A Programmed Course

C. L. Hamblin

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Logic

Originally published in 1966. This is a self-instructional course intended for first-year university students who have not had previous acquaintance with Logic. The book deals with "propositional" logic by the truth-table method, briefly introducing axiomatic procedures, and proceeds to the theory of the syllogism, the logic of one-place predicates, and elementary parts of the logic of many-place predicates. Revision material is provided covering the main parts of the course. The course represents from eight to twenty hours work, depending on the student's speed of work and on whether optional chapters are taken.

Reason and Energy

Studies in German Literature

Michael Hamburger

Series: Routledge Library Editions: German Literature

Originally published in 1957, this volume brings together a collection of essays and hard to source translations on both well and lesser known German writers and poets, including Hölderlin, Benn, Mann and Nietzsche. The essays are linked by a consideration of the tension between the desire for what Thomas Mann called 'the miracle of ingeniousness regained' and the constrains of reason. The book shows how this tension contributes toward the prophetic nature of so much 18th and 19th Century German literature and its modernity, which qualities are also placed in the context of German political and social conditions.

The Third Earl of Shaftesbury

A Study in Eighteenth-Century Literary Theory

R.L. Brett

Series: Routledge Library Editions: 18th Century Literature

Originally published in 1951, this study gives an account of Shaftesbury's aesthetic and literary theory; his discussion of the imagination, ridicule, the aesthetic judgment and the sublime; and his anticipation of later writers such as Burke, Coleridge and Kant. It also considers Shaftesbury's thought as part of the background of ideas in the Augustan period and his influence in such fields as literature, architecture and landscape gardening. In addition, the author assesses in more general terms Shaftesbury's attempt to maintain a Platonic viewpoint that would be more congenial to poetry than Locke's "new way of ideas".

From Baroque to Storm and Stress 1720-1775

Friedhelm Radandt

Series: Routledge Library Editions: German Literature

Originally published in 1977, this volume traces the development of literary forms and themes and of movements and schools, during the overtly philosophical age. It begins with the prominent poets of the 1720s and 1730s: Brockes, Hagedorn and Haller. It charts the many attempts at formulating poetic theory, particularly those of Gottsched, Bodmer and Breitinger. Emphasis is placed on the dramatic writings of J. E. Schlegel, Gellert and Ch. F. Weisse. Young Goethe's creativity in all genres, Lenz' and Klinger's fascination with the stage and the lyric poetry of the Göttinger Hain explains the effectiveness of the Sturm

Problems of Historical Psychology

Zevedei Barbu

Series: Psychology Library Editions: History of Psychology

Originally published in 1960, this study was rooted in the conviction that a close cooperation between the disciplines of psychology and history opened new and fruitful perspectives for the understanding of both fields. The title is an investigation of the connection between history and psychology, discussing how a society shapes and conditions the minds of those born into it. The author takes a close look at Greek society at the time of Pericles, and English society of the Elizabethan era. Though presented in the idiom of psychology, the problems with which this book is concerned, should appeal to historian and psychologist alike.

Essays on the Eighteenth-Century English Stage

Edited by Kenneth R. Richards, Manchester University, UK and Peter Thomson

Series: Routledge Library Editions: 18th Century Literature

The eighteenth century produced more inventive actors than fine dramatists, and it displayed its actors to increasing advantage as theatre management became more expert, and stage design more ambitious. First published in 1972, the eleven papers collected in this title, originally read at a Manchester University Symposium in July 1971, follow this historical emphasis. Two papers are centred on dramatists, four on actors, three on managers, and two on designers. This book's particular value lies in its bringing together several simply presented but deeply informed explorations of often neglected aspects of the eighteenth-century theatre.

The Logic of Commands

Nicholas Rescher, University of Pittsburgh, USA

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Logic

Originally published in 1966. Professor Rescher's aim is to develop a "logic of commands" in exactly the same general way which standard logic has already developed a "logic of truth-functional statement compounds" or a "logic of quantifiers". The object is to present a tolerably accurate and precise account of the logically relevant facets of a command, to study the nature of "inference" in reasonings involving commands, and above all to establish a viable concept of validity in command inference, so that the logical relationships among commands can be studied with something of the rigour to which one is accustomed in other branches of logic.

German Literature under National Socialism

J. M. Ritchie

Series: Routledge Library Editions: German Literature

Originally published in 1983, this study starts with an exploration of proto-Nazi literature in the early 20th Century and pursues later developments up to the arrival of fully-fledged National Socialism. Not only literature within Germany is covered; after 1933 republican writers forced into exile for racial as well as political reasons rejected the anti-Semitic 'barbarism' of National Socialism and developed a powerful brand of anti-fascist literature in countries around the world. This 'exile' literature is covered in depth, both for its outstanding individual figures like Brecht and Mann as well as for the general phenomenon of exile.

The Eighteenth Century

The Context of English Literature

Edited by Pat Rogers

Series: Routledge Library Editions: 18th Century Literature

The aim of this book, originally published in 1978, is to make the reading of literary classics such as Gulliver's Travels, Robinson Crusoe, Tom Jones, The Beggar's Opera and Tristram Shandy an even richer experience by giving them an intelligible place in history. The 'context' is seen not as a vague backcloth, but as a living fabric of ideas and events which animate Augustan literature. The authors cover the achievements of men like Hume, Walpole, Chippendale, Newton and Reynolds, who are often merely names to the literary student, and show how writers were affected by exciting developments in psychology, aesthetics, medicine and other fields.

Truth-Functional Logic

J. A. Faris

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Logic

Originally published in 1962. This book gives an account of the concepts and methods of a basic part of logic. Elementary ideas, including those of truth-functional argument and truth-functional validity, are explained followed by a more comprehensive account of truth-functionality - the leading characteristics of the most important monadic and dyadic truth-functions are described, and the different notations in use are set forth. The main part of the book describes and explains three different methods of testing truth-functional arguments and argument forms for validity: the truth-table method, the deductive method and the method of normal forms.

The Woman's View

An Anthology of Prose Passages about Women, from the Eighteenth Century to the Present Day

Edited by June Wedgwood Benn

Series: Routledge Library Editions: 18th Century Literature

What is it like being a woman - in society, in the home and as a person in one's own right? Originally published in 1967, here is a collection of passages, all linked by their theme, that of being a woman. They are taken from novels, essays, letters and diaries written by or about women concerning their psychology and position in society from the later eighteenth century onwards. In these days of emancipation and assumed equality (in some countries at any rate) it is as well to remember the very recent past and to look forward to the future, for all girls will have, certain problems to face just because they are girls. It is best to be prepared.

An Introduction to Logic

The Criticism of Arguments

Peter Alexander

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Logic

Originally published in 1969. This book assumes no previous knowledge of logic but aims to show how logical notions arise from everyday discourse, whether technical or non-technical. It sets out a knowledge of principles and gives an account of the reasons modern systems have emerged from traditional syllogistic logic. The text explains the connections between everyday reasoning and formal logic and works up to a brief sketch of systems of propositional calculus and predicate-calculus, using both the axiomatic method and the method of natural deduction. It provides a self-contained introduction but is also a sound basis for more advanced study.

Journey through Utopia

Marie Louise Berneri

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Utopias

In this title, originally published in 1950, the author has set out to give a description and a critical assessment of the most important (not necessarily the most famous) Utopian writings since Plato first gave, in his Republic, a literary form to the dreams of a Golden Age and of ideal societies which had doubtless been haunting man since the beginning of the conscious discussion of social problems. It is more than a mere compilation and criticism of Utopias, it brings out in a striking way the close and fateful relationship between Utopian thought and social reality, and takes its place among the important books which had appeared in the previous few years.

German and Song 1740 - 1900

John Smeed

Series: Routledge Library Editions: German Literature

Originally published in 1987, this volume charts the development of German song across a century and a half, relating it both to poetry and to the cultural scene in Germany. By emphasising genre rather than individual composers and while paying heed to acknowledged masterpieces – by quoting extensively from forgotten composers, the book avoids historical over-simplification and arrives at a fuller picture of this rich tradition. In so doing, it uncovers much neglected material. The book investigates the relationship between German poets and composers and their native folk tradition. The book is accessible both to students of literature and music.

The Logical Structure of Science

A. Cornelius Benjamin

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Logic

This book addresses the argument in the philosophy of science between the positivists and the anti-positivists. The author starts from a point of firm conviction that all science and philosophy must start with the given... but that the range of the given is not definite. He begins with an examination of science, explaining his position on metaphysics, and attempts to formulate the character of operational acts before a general theory of symbolism is explored. The last five chapters constitute a treatise to show that the development from one stage of symbolism to the next is inevitable, consequently that explanatory science represents the culmination of knowledge.

Campaigning for the Environment

Richard Kimber and Jeremy Richardson

Originally published in 1974 Campaigning for the Environment addresses the issue of the environmental lobby. Using seven case-studies from the time of publication, the book covers the important aspects of environmental campaigning, where the environment has been threatened and where pressure groups have been formed to defend it. The book discusses the political problems of protecting and improving the environment, and states that each campaign involves taking on major sections of the political system. Despite having been published over 40 years ago, the commentary of the book, and the analysis in the case studies is still as relevant today as it was then.

The Problems of Logic

Andrew Paul Ushenko

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Logic

Originally published in 1941. This classic work treats problems in technical Logic, involving Symbolic Logic to a marked extent. The author deprecates the tendency to regard Logic as a branch of Mathematics and advances the intuitionist theory of Logic. This involves criticism of Carnap, Russell, Wittgenstein, Broad and Whitehead, with additional discussions on Kant and Hegel. The author believes that an exclusively mathematical treatment cannot give an adequate account of Logic. A fundamental characteristic of Logic is comprehensiveness, which brings out the affinity between logic and philosophy, for to be comprehensive is the aim of philosophical ambition.

Presupposition & Transcendental Inference

Humphrey Palmer

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Logic

Originally published in 1985. This book is about a single famous line of argument, pioneered by Descartes and deployed to full effect by Kant. 'I think, so I exist' is valid reasoning, but circular as proof. Kant argues from our having a science of geometry to Space being our contribution to experience: a different conclusion, arrived at by a similar fallacy. These arguments show an inbuilt inconsistency.

Attempts to re-build metaphysics by means of such transcendental reasoning have been debated. This book offers an introduction to the field, and ventures its own assessment, in non-technical language, without assuming previous training in logic or philosophy.

Counterparts

The Dynamics of Franco-German Literary Relationships 1770-1895

Lilian R. Furst

Series: Routledge Library Editions: German Literature

Originally published in 1977, this volume gives a co-hesive overview of Franco-German literary relationships between 1770 and 1895. It discerns the dynamics and outlines the structure of the interrelationship. The two literatures develop in a broadly similar direction in the nineteenth century, but there is a puzzling time-lag which forms the focal point of enquiry. It looks back to the combination of literary, political and social factors that may explain how the time-lag came into being. The book serves both as an introduction and as a starting point for further detailed analysis of specific areas and offers a new approach to the comparative study of literature.

The Roots of Modern Environmentalism

David Pepper, Oxford Brookes University, UK

Originally published in 1984, The Roots of Modern Environmentalism provides a historical, philosophical and ideological background to environmentalism. Topics covered include, the roots of technological environmentalism, the medieval cosmology and Bacon's philosophy, the non-scientific roots of ecological environmentalism, such as Romanticism and its scientific roots in the theories of Malthus and Darwin. The Marxist perspective on Nature is also discussed. The concluding chapter is a criticism of education which challenges its usefulness as an agent of socio-economic change. This book will be of interest to academics and students of environmentalism and geography.

Temperament

A Survey of Psychological Theories

Constance Bloor

Series: Psychology Library Editions: History of Psychology

Originally published in 1928, this title attempts to give a short historical outline of the treatment which 'temperament' had received at the hands of psychological theory. From the time of Hippocrates 'temperament' had figured in philosophical and psychological writings as one of the constituents which determine behaviour. The language in which it had been treated had been vague and obscure, and this, combined with the equally indeterminate associations which were carried over from the speech of everyday life at the time, had contrived to surround the subject with an atmosphere of unreality which was in sharp contrast to the significance of the role assigned to it.

The Shaping of Modern Psychology

An Historical Introduction

L.S. Hearnshaw

Series: Psychology Library Editions: History of Psychology

Originally published in 1987, this title presents a systematic survey of the development of psychology from the dawn of civilization to the late 1980s. Psychology as we find it today has been shaped by many influences, philosophical, theological, scientific, medical and sociological. It has deep roots in the whole history of human thought, and its significance cannot be properly appreciated without an understanding of the way it has developed. This book covers the history of modern psychology from its animistic beginnings, through the Greek philosophers and the Christian theologians, and developments such as the Scientific Revolution, to the time of first publication.

Writers and Politics in West Germany

K. Stuart Parkes

Series: Routledge Library Editions: German Literature

Originally published in 1986, this book is an interpretative survey of the development of political writing in the former Federal Republic of Germany. It illustrates how intertwined writing is with politics, whether by the political commitment of writers like Grass or the analysis of Böll, by the exclusion of writers from political debate under Adenauer or their insistence on involvement in the years of the SPD. So many themes central to German life are themselves political – the division of the German state, the interpretation of the German character, the Green Movement. This wide-ranging and thorough study discusses a central issue of European politics and culture.

The Elmhursts of Dartington

Michael Young

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Utopias

Originally published in 1982, this book, the story of two remarkable people and the place they made, is told by one who was himself intimately involved in their work and reveals how a unique combination of education, arts, industry and agriculture came to be put together. Dartington School was one of the most famous experimental schools in the world. Michael Young recounts the lives of Dorothy and Leonard Elmhurst – she the daughter of an American millionaire; he the son of a Yorkshire parson and secretary to Rabindranath Tagore in Bengal before they married. He also tells the story of the foundation of The Dartington Hall Trust and its aims and achievements up to 1978.

Man and Wildlife

L. Harrison Matthews

Originally published in 1975, Man and Wildlife traces the evolution of man from pre-hominid ancestors, and his influence in modifying the environment and its flora and fauna as technical knowledge grew. The development of civilization allowed man to dominate the environment; its advance led to the discovery and exploitation of the world's resources. The book traces the beginnings of environmental consciousness in the decades preceding its publication. It examines the extent of the human devastation of the environment, which has increased with rapid expansion of the world's human population, and the belated efforts to halt the destruction and help wildlife preservation.

A Short History of British Psychology 1840-1940

Series: Psychology Library Editions: History of Psychology

Originally published in 1964, the story of the development of psychology in Great Britain had never been told. In the 1840s, when John Stuart Mill wrote about 'Psychology' in his treatise on Logic, the word was hardly known to the British public. Today the subject is taught in nearly every university, and psychologists are professionally employed by many public bodies. The British contribution to the dramatic rise of psychology was an exceptionally important one, and had been shamefully neglected not only by the public but by British psychologists themselves. The tendency at the time to regard the subject through American spectacles distorted the role of British pioneers.

T. J. Reed

Series: Routledge Library Editions: German Literature

Originally published in 1980, this book examines the nature and significance of Classicism as a literary phenomenon and relates the beginnings of the German variety to the search for a national identity in the circumstances of a politically fragmented eighteenth century Germany. It surveys the pre-classical scene, traces the intellectual currents and the literary forms and material which Classicism was to synthesise, and presents its theoretical basis. The major works of Goethe and Schiller in the decade of their partnership are analysed. Their response to political events is placed in the contemporary context and the divergences which challenge Classicism are discussed.

Quantification Theory

J. A. Faris

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Logic

Originally published in 1964. This book is concerned with general arguments, arguments that rely for their force on the ideas expressed by all, every, any, some, none and other kindred words or phrases. Quantificational form is dealt with before an account of methods by which arguments may be tested for validity or invalidity. Some attention is also paid to the logic of identity and of definite descriptions. Throughout the book it gives a clear explanation of the concepts involved and the symbols used; in particular a step-by-step, partly mechanical method is developed for translating complicated statements of ordinary discourse into appropriate quantificational formulae.

Ludwig Tieck

An Annotated Guide to Research

Dwight A. Klett

Series: Routledge Library Editions: German Literature

When originally published in 1993, this was the first bibliography of the secondary literature on Tieck. Given as much secondary literature surrounding Tieck's life and works has been generated outside of his native Germany as within, this bibliography focuses particularly on his life and work from an international perspective. In order to make the information surrounding Tieck accessible, the book provides a detailed table of contents, with corresponding text divisions, rather than a subject index. It therefore highlights Tieck's achievements in their various national contexts so that not only students of German can get an accurate feel for Tieck's versatility and range.

Before Jane Austen

The Shaping of the English Novel in the Eighteenth Century

Harrison R. Steeves

Series: Routledge Library Editions: 18th Century Literature

Few centuries have seen greater changes in social perspective and guiding ideas than the eighteenth century; literature in every Western country was a powerful instrument not only in recording these changes but in bringing them about. First published in 1965, in the words of the author: 'This volume is to deal with the years in which the novel was still an experiment. At the beginning of the 18th century there was no novel. By the end, novels of every description were being published, not in dozens, but in hundreds. The badness of the product was universally recognized, but perhaps fifty had emerged out of the ruck of mediocrity, some tolerable, some good, and some great.'

Goethe's Faust

John R. Williams

Series: Routledge Library Editions: German Literature

Originally published in 1987, this is a thorough, lucid introduction and commentary to Goethe's Faust. It gives the student valuable insights into the most important work of Germany's foremost poet. German quotations are translated or paraphrased and a detailed knowledge of German literature is not assumed. The book traces Goethe's work on the play and surveys its critical reception. Part One is analysed as a mimetic tragedy, Part Two as an historical and cultural profile of Goethe's own times. The commentary guides the reader carefully through its subtleties and multi-layered references and provides a broad and coherent structure for the overall understanding of the work.

Developmental Psychology

Historical and Philosophical Perspectives

Edited by Richard M. Lerner, Tufts University, Massachusetts, USA

Series: Psychology Library Editions: History of Psychology

Originally published in 1983, the purpose of this book was to discuss the relations between philosophy and developmental psychology, as those relations existed over the course of the history of the discipline and as they existed at that time. Although not all portions of developmental psychology are surveyed, major proponents of several key areas are represented (e.g. organismic developmental theory, stage theory, life-span-developmental psychology, and the ecological approach to development). The diversity of approaches and of interests present in the book are representative of the breadth of theoretical and empirical interests found in developmental psychology at the time.

The History of Utopian Thought

Joyce Oramel Hertzler

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Utopias

This book, first published in 1923, embodies two related and yet distinct types of sociological endeavour. It is a study in the history of social thought, a field which had only been receiving serious and widespread attention in recent years, and attempts to give an historical cross-section of representative Utopian thought. But it is also a study in social idealism, a study in the origin, selection and potency of those social ideas and ideals that occasional and usually exceptional men conceive, with particular emphasis upon their relation to social progress. It was the first book that attempted to give an unprejudiced, systematic treatment of the social Utopias as a whole.

Words of Power

A Feminist Reading of the History of Logic

Andrea Nye, University of Wisconsin-Whitewater, USA

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Logic

Originally published in 1990. This confrontational book challenges the complaint that women are illogical. In a series of studies of the logics of historical figures Parmenides, Plato, Aristotle, Zeno, Abelard, Ockham, and Frege the author traces the changing interrelationships between logical innovation and oppressive speech strategies, relating logical techniques such as logical division, syllogisms, and truth functions, to ways in which those with power speak. The book looks at specific historical settings of Ancient and Hellenistic Greece, medieval Europe, and Germany between the World Wars, how logicians reworked language so that dialogue and reciprocity are impossible.

The Logic of Choice

An Investigation of the Concepts of Rule and Rationality

Gidon Gottlieb

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Logic

Originally published in 1968. This is a critical study of the concept of 'rule' featuring in law, ethics and much philosophical analysis which the author uses to investigate the concept of 'rationality'. He indicates how the modes of reasoning involved in reliance upon rules provide an alternative to the modes of logico-mathematical reasoning and scientific reasoning. He considers a methodology using rules such as law and ethics. Other substantive issues related to mainstream legal philosophy are discussed. The book utilizes examples from English and American legal decisions to suggest how the positions of legal positivism and natural law are equally artificial and misleading.

Literature and Crime in Augustan England

Ian A. Bell

Series: Routledge Library Editions: 18th Century Literature

Eighteenth-century England saw an explosion of writings about deviance. As the state formalised its power to categorise and punish crime, writings in literature, in the law and in the press confronted the problematic nature of legal authority and the unstable idea of 'the criminal'. Originally published in 1991, Ian Bell's masterly investigation of the diverse representations of crime and legality in the Augustan period re-assesses the canonical texts of eighteenth-century 'Literature' in the context of a wide range of contemporary sources: from polemics to pornography, from Hogarth's prints to Old Bailey Sessions Papers, from philosophical writing to Boswell's private journals.

An Inquiry into the Foundations of Psychology

Per Saugstad

Series: Psychology Library Editions: History of Psychology

First published in 1965, this book originated in an attempt to reconcile a phenomenological and a behavioristic approach to psychology. Basic assumptions in phenomenology, behavioristics and psychophysics are examined. It is shown that in phenomenology theoretical concepts tend to be treated as observations, whereas in behavioristics observations tend to be treated as theoretical concepts. It says that the relationship between observer and observed event is confused throughout the history of psychology. This is due to the fact that man's cognitive processes are to a large extent unknown. This book presents a conception of psychology taking into account man's cognitive processes.

Concept and Object

The Unity of the Proposition in Logic and Psychology

Anthony Palmer

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Logic

Originally published in 1988. This text gives a lucid account of the most distinctive and influential responses by twentieth century philosophers to the problem of the unity of the proposition, discussing the province of psychology and the province of logic. This author argues that while Russell, Ryle and Davidson attempted a theoretical solution, Frege and Wittgenstein rightly maintained that no theoretical solution is possible. The final chapters illustrate the way in which a response to the problem affects the way we think about the nature of the mind, discussing Strawson's concept of a person and critiquing the philosophical claims made by devotees of artificial intelligence.

The Elements of Formal Logic

G. E. Hughes and D. G. Longley

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Logic

Originally published in 1965. This textbook of modern deductive logic is designed for beginners but leads further into the heart of the subject. The fields covered are the Propositional Calculus, the more elementary parts of the Predicate Calculus, and Syllogistic Logic treated from a modern point of view. In each of the systems the main emphases are on Decision Procedures and Axiomatisation, and the material is presented with as much formal rigour as is compatible with clarity. The techniques used are not only described but given a theoretical justification. Proofs of Consistency, Completeness and Independence are set out in detail. Exercises are appended to most of the chapters.

Heroic Legends of the North

An Introduction to the Nibelung and Dietrich Cycles

Edward R. Haymes and Susann T. Samples

Series: Routledge Library Editions: German Literature

Originally published in 1996, this book is a study of two of the central themes of medieval German mythology, the Dietrich and Nibelung legends. It traces its two legendary topics from their historical roots during the last centuries of the Roman Empire to the medieval texts that make them known to us. Many of the medieval texts have never been translated into English or even modern German. A synopsis of each work is therefore included so that the reader can form an idea of the content of the works in question. The book takes a text-oriented approach. The book includes a chronological chart which puts most of the texts and literary works discussed in a European and world context.

The Language of Natural Description in Eighteenth-Century Poetry

John Arthos, University of Dennison, US

Series: Routledge Library Editions: 18th Century Literature

First published in 1949, this title was written in order to help establish a better understanding of the 'stock diction' of 18th-century English poetry, and, in particular, of the diction commonly used in the description of nature. The language characteristic of so much of the poetry of this period had been severely criticized for a long time. But in the twenty or thirty years prior to publication some effort had been made to review the subject and the problem. However, several questions still remained unanswered, and more exhaustive analysis needed to be undertaken. This volume was an effort to provide answers for some of these questions and to begin the analysis that was required.

Literature and the Social Order in Eighteenth-Century England

Edited by Stephen Copley

Series: Routledge Library Editions: 18th Century Literature

First published in 1984, this anthology of 18th century writings about contemporary society is divided into parts on the social order, economics, the poor and crime, with an introduction identifying some of the main social discourses of the time. They reflect the emergence of an embryonic capitalist society, with its challenge to feudal ties, and of a nascent bourgeois class. It is not intended to provide material for an empirical historical account of these changes, but to give some idea of the ideological terms in which they are perceived, endorsed or contested by contemporaries; and provide a set of discursive contexts in which the imaginative literature of the period can be read.

Topics in Modern Logic

D. C. Makinson

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Logic

Originally published in 1973. This book is for philosophy students who have limited background in mathematics. On the formal side, it provides the basic tools from set theory and arithmetic, setting out completeness results for two, three, and four valued logic, explains concepts such as freedom and bondage in quantificational logic, describes the intuitionistic conception of the logical operators, and sets out Zermelo's axiom system. On the philosophical, it explores the problem of entailment, the Löwenheim-Skolem theorem, ideas underlying intuitionistic logic and the relationship between logic and set theory. Exercises within the text sit alongside the theoretical ideas they involve.

Nondeductive Inference

Robert Ackermann

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Logic

Originally published in 1966. An introduction to studies of kinds of inference in which validity cannot be determined by ordinary deductive models. In particular, inductive inference, predictive inference, statistical inference, and decision making are examined in some detail. The last chapter discusses the relationship of these forms of inference to philosophical notions of rationality. Special features include a discussion of the legitimacy of various criteria for successful predictive inference, the development of an intuitive model which exhibits the difficulties of choosing probability measures over infinite sets, and a comparison of rival views on the foundations of probability.

The Development of Mathematical Logic

P. H. Nidditch

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Logic

Originally published in 1962. This clear and simple account of the growth and structure of Mathematical Logic requires no previous knowledge of logic. It outlines the four lines of thought that have been its roots - the logic of Aristotle, the idea of all the parts of mathematics as systems to be designed on the same sort of plan as that used by Euclid and his Elements, and the discoveries in algebra and geometry in 1800-1860. It goes on to give some of the main ideas and theories of De Morgan, Boole, Jevons, Pierce, Frege, Peano, Whitehead, Russell, Post, Hilbert and Goebel. Offering a general picture of logic, it is also a starting guide for those going more deeply into this field.

The Psychology of Everything

Know the psychology. Understand your world.
See your life in a new way.

The Psychology of Everything is a series of books which debunk the popular myths and pseudo-science surrounding some of life's biggest questions. The series explores the hidden psychological factors that drive us, from our subconscious desires and aversions, to our natural social instincts. Absorbing, informative, and always intriguing, each book is written by an expert in the field, examining how research-based knowledge compares with popular wisdom, and showing how psychology can truly enrich our understanding of modern life.
