Our history

Over two centuries ago, the foundations of the company were laid in pioneering fashion when in 1798 Richard Taylor launched the Philosophical Magazine, one of the first scientific journals produced by an independent company. It was the start of much close collaboration with scholarly societies. Dr William Francis, a chemist, joined Richard Taylor in 1852 and continued the tradition of the close links between the academic community and the company.

Today, we continue to be fully committed to the publication of academic and scholarly information of the highest quality and this remains our primary goal.

Taylor & Francis has grown rapidly to become a leading international, academic publisher. With offices across the globe, the Taylor & Francis Group now publishes more than 2,200 journals and over 5,200 new books each year; with a books backlist in excess of 110,000 specialist titles.

Prices featured are correct at time of going to press but are subject to change without notice.

Book orders should be addressed to the Taylor & Francis Customer Services Department at Bookpoint, or the appropriate overseas agent.

Beyond Fake News

Finding the Truth in a World of Misinformation

Justin P. McBrayer

Beyond Fake News is a technological and market-based explanation for how our informational environment became so polluted. It shows how purveyors of news often have incentives to mislead us, and how consumers of information often have incentives to be misled. And it chronicles how, as technology improves and the regulatory burdens drop, our information-scape becomes ever more littered with misinformation.

Moral Disagreement

Richard Rowland, Australian Catholic University, Australia

Series: New Problems of Philosophy

Disagreement about moral issues is a prominent aspect of contemporary society. Surveys indicate that in the US opinion is split close to 50/50 on the morality of abortion, the death penalty, same-sex relationships, and physician-assisted suicide. It is also a subject with a long philosophical history, going back to Plato and Aristotle.

This clearly-written introduction to the philosophy of moral disagreement examines and assesses all the key topics and questions. Including chapter summaries, suggested further readings and a glossary, Moral Disagreement is ideal for students of ethics, metaethics and political philosophy.

Portraits from Memory

And Other Essays

Bertrand Russell

Series: Routledge Classics

Portraits from Memory is one of Bertrand Russell's most self-reflective and engaging books. Whilst not intended as an autobiography, it is a vivid recollection of some of his celebrated contemporaries, such as George Bernard Shaw, Sidney and Beatrice Webb and D. H. Lawrence. It also includes some of Russell's customary razor-sharp essays on a rich array of subjects, from his ardent pacifism, liberal politics and morality to the ethics of education, the skills of good writing and how he came to philosophy as a young man.

This is Russell at his best, and will enthral those new to Russell as well as those already well-acquainted with his work.

The Problem of China

Bertrand Russell and Bernard Linsky

Series: Routledge Classics

In 1920 Bertrand Russell spent a year in China at the University of Beijing, where his lectures enthralled students and listeners, including Mao Tse Tung. Written at a time when China was largely regarded by the West as backward and weak, The Problem of China sees Russell rise above the prejudices of his era and presciently assess China's past, present and future.

With uncanny foresight, Russell predicts China's resurgence but only if it is able to establish an orderly government, promote industrial development and foster the spread of education. This Routledge Classics edition includes a new introduction by Bernard Linsky.

A Debate on God and Morality

What is the Best Account of Objective Moral Values and Duties?

William Lane Craig, Erik J. Wielenberg and Adam Lloyd Johnson, North Carolina State University, USA.

Philosophers William Lane Craig and Erik J. Wielenberg debate whether theism or secularism provides the best account of objective moral values and duties. Across four exchanges, Craig argues that theism provides a sound foundation for objective morality that atheism does not, and Wielenberg counters that morality can be objective without God. Written for a live debate, the arguments are supplemented here with extended endnote discussion, plus post-debate reflections from both participants. There are also five essay responses to the debate, from J. P. Moreland, David Baggett, Mark Linville, Wes Morriston, and Michael Huemer.

Philosophical Logic

A Contemporary Introduction

John MacFarlane

Series: Routledge Contemporary Introductions to Philosophy

This book treats philosophical logic in an integrated way, showing how philosophical considerations motivate the technical projects, and how the constraints revealed by the technical projects illuminate the philosophical issues. Topics covered include quantifiers, modal logic, indicative conditionals, model-theoretic and proof-theoretic characterizations of logical consequence, intuitionistic logic, fundamental logical disagreement, relevance logic, the relation of logic and reasoning, and vagueness. Each chapter is organized around suggested readings and includes exercises.

The Philosophy of Happiness

An Interdisciplinary Introduction

Lorraine L. Besser, Middlebury College, USA

This book brings together emerging research on happiness within a philosophical perspective. It explores both philosophical theories of happiness as well as the central lines of research prominent within the empirical study of it. By analyzing how particular contributions of each field or line of research inform the contributions of others, the book helps readers develop a greater understanding of the whole of happiness.

Historical Traces and Future Pathways of Poststructuralism

Aesthetics, Ethics, Politics

Edited by Gavin Rae, Universidad Carlos III de Madrid, Spain and Emma Ingala, Universidad Complutense de Madrid, Spain

This volume reconsiders the meaning and place of poststructuralism historically and demonstrates some of the ways in which it continues to be relevant, especially for debates in aesthetics, ethics, and politics. It focuses on the works of Butler, Deleuze, Derrida, Foucault, Irigaray, Kristeva, Lacan, and Lyotard—in combination with those of Agamben, Luhman, Nancy, and Nietzsche—and examine issues including biopolitics, culture, embodiment, epistemology, history, music, temporality, political resistance, psychoanalysis, revolt, and the visual arts.

Intuition as Conscious Experience

Ole Koksvik, University of Bergen, Norway

In this book, Koksvik argues that mental states form a psychological kind called 'intuition', and that having an intuition indeed justifies you in believing what it says. What explains this, he argues, is how similar intuition is to perception. Through a detailed examination he shows that intuition, just like perception, is a conscious experience, and that the two experience types have important properties in common, in virtue of which they can both justify belief.

Language and Phenomenology

Edited by Chad Engelland, University of Dallas, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

Drawing on the insights of phenomenological authors, including Husserl, Heidegger, Merleau-Ponty, Gadamer, and Ricoeur, this book articulates the distinctively phenomenological contribution to language by examining two sets of questions. The first set concerns the relatedness of language to experience. Studies exhibit the first-person character of the philosophy of language by focusing on lived experience, the issue of reference, and disclosive speech. The second set of questions concerns the relatedness of language to intersubjective experience. Studies exhibit the second-person character of the philosophy of language by focusing on language acquisition, culture, and conversation.

Offense and Offensiveness

A Philosophical Account

Andrew Sneddon, University of Ottawa, Canada

Series: Routledge Studies in Ethics and Moral Theory

This book offers a comprehensive study of the nature and significance of offense and offensiveness. It incorporates insights from moral philosophy and moral psychology to rationally reconstruct our ordinary ideas and assumptions about these notions. Sneddon argues that we should think of offense as a moralized bad feeling. He explains offensiveness in terms of symbolic value. We tend to give claims of both offense and offensiveness more credence than they deserve. While it is in principle possible for there to be genuine moral problems of offense and offensiveness, we should expect such problems to be rare.

Paul Ricoeur's Philosophical Anthropology as Hermeneutics of Liberation

Freedom, Justice, and the Power of Imagination

Roger W.H. Savage, University of California, Los Angeles, USA

This book offers a unique account of the role imagination plays in advancing the course of freedom's actualization. It draws on Ricoeur's philosophical anthropology of the capable human being as the staging ground for an extended inquiry into the difficulties of making freedom a reality within the history of humankind. This book locates the abilities we exercise as capable human beings at the heart of a sustained analysis and reflection on the place of the idea of justice in a hermeneutics for which every expectation regarding rights, liberties, and opportunities must be a hope for humanity as a whole.

Philosophy's Nature: Husserl's Phenomenology, Natural Science, and Metaphysics

Emiliano Trizio, University of the West of England, UK

Series: Routledge Research in Phenomenology

This book offers a systematic interpretation of the relation between natural science and metaphysics in Husserl's phenomenology. It shows that Husserl's account of scientific knowledge is a radical alternative to established methods and frameworks in contemporary philosophy of science. The author's interpretation offers a critical reconstruction of the historical context from which his phenomenological approach developed, as well as new interpretations of key Husserlian concepts such as metaphysics, idealization, life-world, objectivism, crisis of the sciences, and historicity.

The Authority of Virtue

Institutions and Character in the Good Society

Tristan J. Rogers

Series: Routledge Studies in Ethics and Moral Theory

This book has two primary purposes. First, it reorients political philosophy around the concept of the good life. To do so, the author addresses the problem of political authority from a virtue ethics perspective. He also considers whether a political theory oriented around the good life is compatible with Rawls's notion of reasonable pluralism. Second, the book explains the relationship between the virtues of institutions and the virtues of character. The author shows how institutions support the development and exercise of the virtues of character, while examining specific other-regarding virtues such as justice and friendship.

The Epistemology and Morality of Human Kinds

Marion Godman, University of Helsinki, Finland

Series: Routledge Focus on Philosophy

Natural kinds is a widely used concept in philosophy, being the idea that the classifications employed by science correspond to the real kinds in nature. Humans are also a subject of scientific study. Does this mean they have a kind of their own? Are there human kinds?

In this book Marion Godman defends the idea of human kinds. Using the examples of gender, Buddhism and mental disorder she argues that human kinds are a result of ongoing historical reproduction. She rejects the reductionism characteristic of research about human kinds, arguing that they deserve scientific study because of their role in explaining our identity, culture and social membership.

The Ethics of War and the Force of Law

A Modern Just War Theory

Uwe Steinhoff, The University of Hong Kong

Series: Routledge Research in Applied Ethics

This book provides a critical overview of the current debate on the ethics of war, as well as a modern just war theory that recognizes the moral force of widely accepted law. Steinhoff's approach is unique in that it complements the usual analysis in terms of self-defense with an emphasis on the importance of other justifications that are often lumped together under the heading of lesser evil. It also draws on criminal law and legal scholarship, which has been largely ignored by just war theorists. Steinhoff rejects arguments in favor of moral fundamentalism and argues that widely accepted laws and conventions of war are partly constitutive of the moral rules that apply in a conflict.

The Metaphysics of Philosophical Daoism

Kai Zheng and Diana Gao

Series: China Perspectives

Drawing on evidence from a wide range of classical Chinese texts, this book argues that xingershangxue, the study of "beyond form", constitutes the core argument and intellectual foundation of Daoist philosophy. ; The author presents Daoist xingershangxue as a typical concept of metaphysics distinct from that of the natural philosophy and metaphysics of ancient Greece, since it focuses on understanding the world beyond perceivable objects and phenomena as well as names that are definable in their social, political, or moral structures. The book will be a valuable resource for scholars interested in Chinese Philosophy, Daoism and Comparative Philosophy.

Virtue, Narrative, and Self

Explorations of Character in the Philosophy of Mind and Action

Edited by Joseph Ulatowski and Liezl van Zyl

Series: Routledge Studies in Ethics and Moral Theory

This volume demonstrates how recent work from the philosophy of mind and action concerning our understanding of the self can shed new light on the nature of practical wisdom and human flourishing. It is unique in that it connects two philosophical areas that have long been treated as distinct areas of studies: virtue ethics and narrative accounts of personal identity. The chapters address the role of narrative in the identification and differentiation of virtues, practical reasoning and moral competence, and human flourishing and the influence of life's narrative structure on our conceptions of what it means to live and act well.

The Principles of New Ethics II

Normative Ethics I

Wang Haiming and Xiaolu An

Series: China Perspectives

This volume introduces the concept and goal of morality and shows the reasoning of why it is both good and bad for human society. A system of an ultimate standard of morality is introduced and it is shown that where there are conflicts between different moral norms that cannot be compromised, people undoubtedly sacrifice less important moral norms to follow more fundamental and important moral norms or principles.

; Written by a renowned philosopher, this book belongs to a four-volume set that is one of the most influential works on ethics in China. The English version will be an essential read for students and scholars of ethics and philosophy in general

Wittgenstein's Liberatory Philosophy

Thinking through his Philosophical Investigations

Rupert Read, University of East Anglia, UK

This book offers the first resolute reading of the PI. Read argues that the key to understanding Wittgenstein's later philosophy is to understand its liberatory purport. Liberatory philosophy is philosophy that can liberate the user from compulsive patterns of thought, freeing one for possibilities that were previously obscured. The book consists in a sequential reading, along these lines, of what Read considers the most important and controversial passages in the PI. Read claims that this liberatory conception is simultaneously an ethical conception. The PI should be considered a work of ethics in that its central concern becomes our relation with others.

Transcendence, Creation and Incarnation

From Philosophy to Religion

Anthony O'Hear, The University of Buckingham, U.K.

Series: Transcending Boundaries in Philosophy and Theology

This book expounds and analyses notions of transcendence, creation and incarnation reflectively and personally, combining both philosophical and religious insights. Preferring tender-minded approaches to reductively materialistic ones, it shows some ways in which reductive approaches to human affairs can distort the appreciation of our lives and activities.

Taking in art, literature, music and classical Greek writings, this is a multifaceted thesis on transcendence. It will, therefore, will be of keen interest to any scholar of Philosophy of Religion, Theology, Aesthetics and Metaphysics.

On the Significance of Religion for Global Diplomacy

Philip McDonagh, Kishan Manocha, John Neary and Lucia Vázquez Mendoza

Series: Religion Matters

What could it mean, in terms of strengthening multilateral diplomacy, if the UN and other regional diplomatic frameworks engaged more creatively with a religious perspective? In this ground-breaking volume it is argued that international organisations, backed by governments, can and should use their convening power to initiate new, multi-layered frameworks of engagement, inclusive of the representatives of religion. Combining cutting-edge research with concrete recommendations for academics, religious actors, policy makers and practitioners, this accessible volume helps to build bridges between these oftentimes separated spheres of engagement.

Contemporary Spiritualities

Enchanted Worlds of Nature, Wellbeing and Mystery in Italy

Stefania Palmisano, Università degli Studi di Torino, Italy and Nicola Pannofino, Università degli Studi di Torino, Italy

Series: Routledge New Religions

This book argues, therefore, that spirituality in the 21st Century actually shares many of the same characteristics as Classical, Mediaeval, Renaissance and Modern spiritualities. It is neither entirely new, nor is it clearly alternative to more established religions. This is a bold take on the spirituality milieu and as such will be of great interest to scholars of Religious Studies working on the sociology of religion, contemporary spirituality and the rise of the "spiritual but not religious".

The Future of Religious Studies in India

Edited by Sudha Sitharaman, Åke Sander and Clemens Cavallin

This book looks at how religious studies is framed and taught in India. It studies the efforts by Rabindranath Tagore in Santiniketan and Mohan Malaviya in Varanasi, to introduce and institutionalize the subject in Indian universities. It also provides concrete suggestions on how to develop religious studies in relation to global citizenship and Indian cultural heritage with the hope of initiating a larger discussion. The book will be indispensable to students and researchers of theology, history, philosophy, sociology, secularization, globalization, religious studies, education studies, and South Asian studies.

Transcendence and Spirituality in Chinese Cinema

A Theological Exploration

Edited by Kris H.K. Chong

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion and Film

This book provides a framework by which a global audience might think theologically about contemporary films produced in mainland China by Chinese directors. Up to this point the academic discipline of Christian theology and film has focussed predominantly on Western cinema, and as a result, has missed out the potential insights offered by Chinese spirituality on film.

This is a new perspective on cinema, religion and Chinese culture that will be of keen interest to scholars of Religion and Film, Religious Studies, Theology, Sociology of Religion and Chinese Studies.

Military Thought of Asia

From the Bronze Age to the Information Age

Kaushik Roy

Series: Warfare and History

Military Thought of Asia challenges the assertion that the generation of rational secular ideas about the conduct of warfare is the preserve of the West, by analysing the history of ideas of warfare in Asia from the ancient period to the present. The volume takes a transcontinental and comparative approach to provide a broad overview of the evolution of military thought in Asia and shows that the 'East' had a long unbroken tradition of conceptualising war and its place in society from the Classical Era to the Information Age. It is essential reading for those interested in the evolution of military thought throughout history, particularly in Asia.

Thinking on Earthquakes in Early Modern Europe

Firm Beliefs on Shaky Ground

Rienk Vermij

This book is the first extensive study of ideas on earthquakes before the Lisbon earthquake in 1755. Earthquakes had a deep impact on pre-modern European culture and reactions to them stood in a long tradition that, before this study, had yet to be explored in detail. Thinking on Earthquakes investigates both scholarly theories and views that were propagated among the early modern European population. A range of events are explored, including the Ferrara earthquake in 1570 and the Vienna earthquake in 1590, making this study an invaluable source for students and scholars of the history of science and the history of ideas in early modern Europe.

Doing History

Mark Donnelly and Claire Norton, St. Mary's University College, UK

Series: Doing... Series

Doing History bridges the gap between the way history is studied in school or as represented in the media and the way it is studied at university level. It presents the ideas and debates that shape how we 'do' history, covering arguments about the nature of historical knowledge and the function of historical writing, whether we can ever really know what happened in the past, what sources historians depend on, and the relative value of popular and academic histories. This revised edition includes public history and activist histories. Clearly structured and accessibly written, it is essential for those embarking on the

The Industrial Revolution in World History

Peter N. Stearns, George Mason University

Now in its fifth edition, this book explores the ways in which the industrial revolution reshaped world history to offer a view into the international factors that started the industrial revolution, its global spread and its impact from the end of the eighteenth century to the present day. Illustrating the contemporary relevance of the industrial revolution history, this is essential reading for students of world history and economics, as well as for those seeking to know more about the global implications of what is arguably the defining socioeconomic event of modern times.

Cartographic Expeditions and Visual Culture in the Nineteenth-Century Americas

Edited by Ernesto Capello, Macalester College, USA and Julia B. Rosenbaum, Bard College, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of the Americas

During the nineteenth century, gridding, graphing and surveying proliferated as never before as nations and empires expanded into hitherto "unknown" territories. This collection considers the explosion of expeditionary mapping and its links to visual culture across the Americas, arguing that acts of measurement are also aesthetic acts. Such visual interventions intersect with new technologies, with sociopolitical power and conflict, with shifting public tastes and consumption practices. The volume represents the first transnational and hemispheric treatment of this material and features the multi-disciplinary perspective of historians, geographers, and art historians.

Child Survivors of the Holocaust in Greece

Memory, Testimony and Subjectivity

Edited by Pothiti Hantzaroula, University of the Aegean, Greece

Series: Routledge Studies in Second World War History

This book constructs a genealogy of the testimonial culture in Greece by framing the rich source of written and oral testimonies in the political discourses and public memory of the aftermath of the Second World War. The testimonies of former hidden children and child survivors of concentration camps illuminate questions that haunted postwar attempts to reconstruct communities, related to the specific evolution of genocide in Greece and to the rising anti-Semitism of postwar Greece. As an oral history of child survivors of the Holocaust, the book will be of interest to scholars of the history of childhood, Jewish studies, memory studies, Holocaust and genocide studies.

Crusading and Archaeology

Some Archaeological Approaches to the Crusades

Edited by Vardit R. Shotten-Halle, Israel Antiquities Authority and Rosie Weetch, The British Museum

Series: Crusades - Subsidia

Between the eleventh and fifteenth centuries, the social and cultural worlds of medieval Europe and the Eastern Mediterranean were transformed by the religious impetus of the crusades. Today we bear witness to these transformations in the material and environmental record revealed by new archaeological excavations and reappraisals of museum collections. This volume highlights new archaeological knowledge being developed by scholars working in the fields of history, archaeology, numismatics and architecture, to demonstrate its potential to change and augment our understanding of the crusades.

Considering Conservative Women in the Gendering of Modern British Politics

Edited by Clarisse Berthezène and Julie V. Gottlieb, University of Sheffield, UK

This volume examines how the British Conservative Party has appealed to women, the roles that women have played in the party, and the tense relationship between women's activism on the Right and feminism. Covering the period since the early 20th century, the contributions each question assumptions about the reactionary response of the British Right, Margaret Thatcher's party, to women's issues and to their political aspirations.

Embodiment, Expertise, and Ethics in Early Modern Europe

Entangling the Senses

Edited by Marlene L. Eberhart and Jacob M. Baum

Series: Routledge Studies in Renaissance and Early Modern Worlds of Knowledge

This book highlights the agency and intentionality of individuals and groups in the making of sensory knowledge from approximately 1500 to 1700. Focused case studies show how artisans, poets, writers, and theologians responded creatively to their environments, filtering the cultural resources at their disposal through the lenses of their own more immediate experiences and concerns. The result was not a single, unified sensory culture, but rather an entangling of micro-cultural dynamics playing out across an archipelago of contexts that dotted the early modern European world.

Garibaldi's Radical Legacy

Traditions of War Volunteering in Southern Europe (1861–1945)

Enrico Acciai, Università degli Studi di Roma "Tor Vergata," Italy

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern European History

The aim of this book is to reconstruct the radical and transnational tradition of war volunteering connected to Giuseppe Garibaldi's legacy in Southern Europe between the unification of Italy (1861) and the end of the Second World War (1945). This book seeks to provide a comprehensive analysis of the long-term, interconnected, and radical dimensions of the phenomenon. One of the main points of focus is the volunteers' motivations for enlisting. Acciai contends that, in choosing to enlist, individual motivations such as patriotism or political idealism played a central role, in conjunction with the persistence and reactivation of the legacies and memories of previous volunteers.

Imaginary Athens

Urban Space and Memory in Berlin, Tokyo, and Seoul

Jin-Sung Chun, Busan National University of Education, Republic of Korea

Series: Routledge Studies in Cultural History

This book examines architecture, urban planning, and civic perception in three modern cities as they transform into national capitals through an entangled, transnational process that involves an imaginative geography based on embellished memories of classical Athens. Schinkel's classicist architecture in Berlin, especially the principle of tectonics at its core, came to be adopted effectively at faraway cities in East Asia, merging with the notion of national polity as Imperial Japan sought to reinvent Tokyo and mutating into an inevitable reflection of modern civilization upon reaching colonial Seoul, all of which give reason to ruminate over the phantasmagoria of modernity.

Luxury, Fashion and the Early Modern Idea of Credit

Edited by Klas Nyberg and Håkan Jakobsson

Series: Perspectives in Economic and Social History

This book addresses how social and cultural ideas about credit and trust, in the context of fashion and trade, were affected by the growth and development of the bankruptcy institution. Luxury, fashion and social standing are intimately connected to consumption on credit. Drawing on data from the fashion trade, this fascinating edited volume shows how the concepts of credit, trust and bankruptcy changed towards the end of the early modern period and in the beginning of the modern period. Focusing on Sweden, with material from France and other European countries, this volume draws together emerging and established scholars from across the fields of economic history and fashion.

Monarchy and Liberalism in Spain

The Building of the Nation-State, 1780–1931

Edited by David San Narciso, Margarita Barral Martínez and Carolina Armenteros

Series: Routledge/Canada Blanch Studies on Contemporary Spain

Bringing together the work of top specialists and emerging scholars in the field, this volume is the first book-length study of the rapport between liberalism and the Spanish monarchy over the long nineteenth century in any language. The book's approach invites the reader to question the boundaries between the political and the cultural during critical times that witness the transformation of political power and the building of the nation-state. Designed for Hispanists and students of politics, ritual, liberalism and monarchy, this collection should appeal to academics, researchers and anyone interested in modern European history.

Pondicherry, Tamil Nadu and South India under French Rule

From François Martin to Dupleix 1674-1754

J.B.P. More

This is a study of the colonization of Pondicherry, Tamil Nadu and South India by the French during the eighteenth century, and their interactions with the Indian rulers and populations in the political, economic, social and religious spheres. The study demonstrates that the French colonizers and missionaries would not have survived in India without the collaboration of the Indian dubashes, merchants, certain Indian rulers and military men.

Redefining Propaganda in Modern China

The Mao Era and its Legacies

Edited by James Farley, University of Kent, UK and Matthew D. Johnson, North Carolina State University, USA.

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern History

This book revisits the central issue of how propaganda was understood within the Communist Party system. The contributors to this volume draw on a range of historical, cultural studies, propaganda studies, and comparative politics approaches, capturing the sweep of propaganda and its systematic continuities and discontinuities from the perspective of policymakers, bureaucratic functionaries, and artists.

Addressing a vital aspect of Chinese Communist Party authority, this book is meant to provide a timely and comprehensive update on what propaganda has meant ideologically, operationally, aesthetically, and in terms of social experience.

Rituality and Social (Dis)Order

The Historical Anthropology of Popular Carnival in Europe

Alessandro Testa, Charles University, Czech Republic

Series: Routledge Studies in Cultural History

Carnival has been described as one of the foundational elements of European culture, if not the festive phenomenon par excellence. Its stratified and complex history and diverse social configurations make it an exceptional object of cultural analysis. This book, the first comparative historical anthropology of popular European Carnival written in English, focuses on its cultural, religious, and political dimensions throughout the centuries. It explores the most important characteristics of European pre-modern Carnival, discussing its origins and developments and offering fresh evidence and analyses about its transversal and long-lasting significance in European societies.

The Daniel Wilsons in France, 1819–1919

Industry, the Arts, the Press, Châteaux, the Elysée Palace, and Scandal

Michael B. Palmer, Université Sorbonne Nouvelle - Paris 3, France

Scottish engineer Daniel Wilson helped launch the industrial revolution in France and acquired a major art collection. His daughter, Marguerite, spent the fortune she inherited restoring the Loire Valley château de Chenonceau. His son, Daniel, an MP and newspaper magnate, married the daughter of the President of the Republic, Jules Grévy, became a leading republican politician and businessman, and was implicated in a scandal that led to his downfall and that of Grévy. This book describes the Paris art scene, focusing on Eugène Delacroix, the early industrial revolution, politics, business and the press in mid-late 19th century France. It highlights the 1887 scandal and its legacy.

The Rhine and European Security in the Long Nineteenth Century

Making Lifelines from Frontlines

Joep Schenk

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern European History

Throughout history rivers have always been a source of life and of conflict. This book investigates the Central Commission for the Navigation of the Rhine's (CCNR) efforts to secure the principle of freedom of navigation on Europe's prime river. In showing how security-prosperity considerations were a driving force in the unfolding of Europe's prime river in the nineteenth century, it is of interest to scholars of politics and history, including the history of international relations, European history, transnational history and the history of security, as well as those with an interest in current themes and debates about transboundary water governance.

War in Spain

Appeasement, Collective Insecurity, and the Failure of European Democracies Against Fascism

David Jorge

Series: Routledge/Canada Blanch Studies on Contemporary Spain

This book argues that during the Spanish Civil War, the European democracies deployed a policy of 'non-intervention', the effect of which wiped out Spanish democracy and the rise of international fascism. Interventionist in practice and of dubious legality, this policy was promoted by the French and British ruling elites because they believed it was the most effective strategy for their own interests, on both a national and imperial scale – but in doing so, they contributed to the liquidation of the League of Nations, which was already seriously damaged by previous failures. Mussolini and Hitler made clear in Spain the impunity of their actions.

Why Should We Be Called 'Coolies'?

The End of Indian Indentured Labour

Radica Mahase

This book examines the end of a labour system which lasted from 1838 until 1920 in various territories throughout the British Empire. It looks at methods of agitations which had their genesis in the territories of the Indian Ocean and compare/contrast these with those of other territories such as the British West Indies. The volume provides a comparative study of the abolition of the Indian indentureship system and shows the global interconnectedness of abolition, with a strong subaltern focus.

Preventive Conservation - From Climate and Damage Monitoring to a Systemic and Integrated Approach

Proceedings of the International WTA - PRECOM3OS Symposium, April 3-5, 2019, Leuven, Belgium

Edited by Aziliz Vandesande, KU Leuven, Heverlee, Belgium, Els Verstrynge, Department of Civil Engineering, Catholic University of Leuven, Belgium and Koenraad Van Balen, Raymond Lemaire International Centre for Conservation, Department of Civil Engineering, KU Leuven, Heverlee, Belgium

Series: Reflections on Cultural Heritage Theories and Practices

'Preventive Conservation - From climate and damage monitoring to a systemic and integrated approach' focusses on preventive conservation approaches, including climate and damage monitoring, and how to implement these monitoring tools within a systemic and integrated approach. The book meets the increasing demand for information, case studies and practical examples to support the transition towards more preventive rather than solely reactive conservation actions, and aims at academics and professionals involved or interested in the conservation of buildings, building parts and heritage.

Ancient Landscapes of Zoara I

Surveys and Excavations at the Ghor as-Safi in Jordan, 1997–2018

Konstantinos D. Politis

Series: The Palestine Exploration Fund Annual

Biblical Zoara is located in the Ghor as-Safi, precisely at the lowest place on earth. Its environmental and cultural history is therefore unique. During two decades, an archaeological project was conducted which discovered many significant finds of human occupations spanning some 12,000 years. These have been meticulously studied and the results are now presented in this comprehensive volume.

China's Route Heritage

Mobility Narratives, Modernity and the Ancient Tea Horse Road

Gary Sigley, The University of Western Australia, Australia

Series: Routledge Studies in Culture and Development

China's Route Heritage examines the creation, development and proliferation of the route heritage discourse of chama gudao, The Ancient Tea Horse Road (ATHR), in the People's Republic of China.

Examining the formation of the tea road as a concept, its development as a platform for cultural branding, and its most recent interactions with the policy of the Belt and Road Initiative (BRI) and the revival of the discourse on the Silk Roads, the book demonstrates that the ATHR is an important part of the discourse on Chinese modernity

The Origins of Roman Christian Diplomacy

Constantius II and John Chrysostom as Innovators

Walter Stevenson, University of Richmond

This book illuminates the origins of Roman Christian diplomacy through two case studies: Constantius II's imperial strategy in the Red Sea; and John Chrysostom's ecclesiastical strategy in Gothia and Sasanian Persia. It demonstrates that these two pioneers innovated a diplomacy that utilised Christianity as a tool for forging alliances with external peoples; a procedure that would later become central to Byzantine statecraft. It will appeal to all those interested in Early Christianity and late antique/medieval history.

Research & Education in Design: People & Processes & Products & Philosophy

Proceedings of the 1st International Conference on Research and Education in Design (REDES 2019), November 14-15, 2019, Lisbon, Portugal

Edited by Rita Almendra, CIAUD / Lisbon School of Architecture, Universidade de Lisboa, Lisboa, Portugal and João Ferreira, Universidade de Lisboa, Lisboa, Portugal
Design is about the creation of meaningful connections to solve problems and advance human wellbeing; the discipline has always explored the beneficial links between form and function, technology and meaning, beauty and utility, people and artefacts, problems and solutions, among others. This book focuses on the crucial connection between design research and design education. If we agree that design has its own things to know and ways to find out about them, then design knowledge resides in people, processes, products, and philosophy. This book explores the intersection of these four areas with the aim of uncovering insights to advance the current state of the design discipline.

The Gender Communication Connection

Teri Kwal Gamble, College of New Rochelle, USA and Michael W. Gamble, New York Institute of Technology, USA

The third edition of this classic text helps readers consider the myriad ways gendered attitudes and practices influence communication in our personal and professional interactions. Written in an engaging style, with a wide array of applicable exercises, the book integrates research with examples from contemporary life related to gender and culture, race, class, and media. Among new topics covered in this edition are multiple genders, gender activism and the Me Too movement, and challenges of 21st-century masculinities and femininities. The book is ideally suited for undergraduate courses in gender and communication within communication studies, sociology, and business departments.

Dismantling Rape Culture

The Peacebuilding Power of 'Me Too'

Tracey Nicholls, Soka University, Hachioji, Japan

Series: Interdisciplinary Research in Gender

This book analyses rape culture through the lens of the 'me too' era. Drawing feminist theory into conversation with peace studies and improvisation theory, it advocates for peace-building opportunities to transform culture and for the improvisatory resources of 'culture-jamming' as a mechanism to dismantle rape culture. This is a provocative and interventionist addition to feminist theory scholarship and is suitable for researchers and students in women's and gender studies, Feminist Theory, Sociology and Peace Studies.

Copyright, Creativity, Big Media and Cultural Value

Incorporating the Author

Kathy Bowrey

As the publishing, film and music industries are dominated by Big Media conglomerates, there is often recourse to simplistic ideological and conspiratorial readings of industry dynamics.

Copyright, Creativity, Big Media & Cultural Value: Incorporating the Author explains why copyright is much more than a creator's private property right or a mechanism through which corporations control cultural production and influence mass consumption choices.

LGBTQ Culture

The Changing Landscape

Edited by Bruce E. Drushel, Miami University

Recent decades have seen remarkable changes in the cultural visibility, legal status, and social acceptance of LGBTQ+ people. These changes raise the question of how LGBTQ+ culture is changing and whether, like many assimilated subcultures before it, it may be in fact endangered. This book examines these seismic changes, their sociological and cultural implications, reminisces about what has been lost and gained, and hints at what the future may hold for LGBTQ+ people.

Media Power and Hegemony in South Africa

The Myth of Independence

Blessed Ngwenya

Series: Routledge Explorations in Development Studies

This book critically explores how meanings of 'independence' are constructed and reconfigured by public service broadcasters in the global south, with a particular focus on the South African Broadcasting Corporation (SABC). It questions the institutional, political-economy and world systems paradigms born out of coloniality which influence broadcasting and media in the global south, and instead presents a radical local understanding of freedom in the present day. Contributing to growing global debates on the decolonisation of knowledge, this book is critical reading for advanced scholars and researchers of African media, culture, communication and epistemic freedom.

Men in the American Women's Rights Movement, 1830–1890

Cumbersome Allies

Hélène Quanquin, Professor of American Studies at the University of Lille

Series: Global Gender

This book studies male activists in American feminism from the 1830s to the late 19th century, using archival work on personal papers as well as public sources to demonstrate their diverse and often contradictory advocacy of women's rights, as important but also cumbersome allies. This is an important scholarly intervention that would be of interest to scholars in the fields of gender history, women's history, gender studies and modern American history.

Representing Abortion

Edited by Rachel Alpha Johnston Hurst, St. Francis Xavier University in Antigonish, Nova Scotia, Canada

Series: Interdisciplinary Research in Gender

Representing Abortion analyses how artists, writers, performers, and activists make abortion visible, audible, and palpable within contexts dominated by anti-abortion imagery centred on the fetus and the erasure of the pregnant person. This creative work is significant as it challenges the polarisation of conversations about abortion. This is an innovative and challenging collection that will be of key interest for scholars studying reproductive rights and reproductive justice; and women and gender studies, and is organized to structure upper undergraduate and graduate courses on reproductive rights and reproductive justice in a new and engaging way.

Storytelling in Luxury Fashion

Brands, Visual Cultures, and Technologies

Edited by Amanda Sikarskie

Series: Routledge Research in Design Studies

This book examines the ways in which luxury fashion brands use their heritage in their digital storytelling and marketing. With essays from authors in China and Macau, India, Romania, Turkey, the United Kingdom, and the United States, covering British, Chinese, French, Japanese, Indian, Italian, and Turkish brands, this truly global collection is the first book of its kind devoted solely to the emerging study of digital heritage storytelling. This method is a hugely important factor in the marketing of luxury brands, and has yet to be studied comprehensively.

Teaching Writing, Rhetoric, and Reason at the Globalizing University

Robert Samuels, UC Santa Barbara, USA

Series: Routledge Research in Writing Studies

This timely intervention into composition studies presents a case for the need to teach all students a shared system of communication and logic based on the modern globalizing ideals of universality, neutrality, and empiricism. Based on close readings of contemporary scholars and theorists, it critiques recent arguments that traditional approaches to teaching writing, grammar, and argumentation foster marginalization, oppression, and the restriction of student agency. This polemical book accessibly stages key debates that all writing instructors must grapple with, and will be useful to graduate students, composition instructors, program administrators, and seasoned scholars.

The New Review Economy

Third-Party Review Sites, Reputation, and Neo-Liberal Public Relations in the Digital Age

Alison N. Novak, Rowan University, USA

Series: Routledge Focus on Public Relations

This book examines third-party review sites (TPRS) and the intersection of the review economy and neoliberal public relations, in order to understand how users and organizations engage the 21st century global review economy. The author applies communication and digital media theories to evaluate contemporary case studies that challenge TPRS and control over digital reputation.

This nuanced and up to date exploration of the contemporary review economy will offer insights and best practice for academic researchers and upper-level undergraduate students in public relations, digital media, or strategic communication programs.

The Ontology of Design Research

Miguel Ángel Herrera Batista

Series: Routledge Research in Design Studies

This book seeks to establish the meaning of design research, its role in the field, and the characteristics that differentiate research in design from research in other fields.

The author introduces a model to explain the relationship between the components of the ontological reality of design: the designed object, the designer, and the user. Addressing design research across disciplines, the author establishes a foundational understanding of research, and research paradigms, for the design disciplines. This will be crucial for the emerging field of design research to find its own identity and move forward.

Asian Interventions in Global Shakespeare

'All the World's His Stage'

Edited by Poonam Trivedi, University of Delhi, India, Paromita Chakravarti and Ted Motohashi

This volume critically analyses and theorises Asian interventions in the expanding phenomenon of Global Shakespeare. It interrogates Shakespeare's 'universality' from Asian perspectives: how this has been modified or even replaced by the 'global bard' as a recognisable brand, and how Asian Shakespeares have contributed to or subverted this process by both facilitating the world-wide dissemination of the bard's plays as well as by challenging and resisting the very templates through which they become globally legible.

Modes of Composition and the Durability of Style in Literature

David L. Hoover

Modes of Composition and the Durability of Style explores the methods and uses of computational stylistics to show that style is extremely resistant to changes in how it is produced. This book uses tools of computational analysis to pursue the multiple facets of composition, such as dictation, handwriting, type-writing, word-processing, and translation, to define the extraordinary durability of authorial style. Modes of Composition and the Durability of Style will be essential for readers exploring computational studies in the ever-expanding digital world of literature.

After Postmodernism

The New American Fiction

Edited by Christopher K. Coffman and Theophilus Savvas
Several of American literature's most prominent authors, and many of their most perceptive critics and reviewers, argue that fiction of the last quarter century has turned away from the tendencies of postmodernist writing. Yet, the nature of that turn, and the defining qualities of American fiction after postmodernism, remain less than clear. This volume identifies four prominent trends of the contemporary scene: the recovery of the real, a rethinking of historical engagement, a preoccupation with materiality, and a turn to the planetary.

The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the journal Textual Practice.

Américas, Autocracy, and Autobiographical Innovation

Overwriting the Dictator

Lisa Ortiz-Vilarelle

Series: Routledge Auto/Biography Studies

Overwriting the Dictator is literary study of life writing and dictatorship in Americas. Its focus is women who have attempted to rewrite, or overwrite, discourses of womanhood and nationalism in the dictatorships of their nations of origin. This volume foregrounds ways in which women's self-representation produces a counter-narrative that critiques and undermines dictatorial power with the depiction of women as self-aware, resisting subjects engaged in repositioning their gendered narratives of national identity.

Majesty and the Masses in Shakespeare and Marlowe

Western Anti-Monarchism, The Earl of Essex Challenge, and Political Stagecraft

Chris Fitter

Series: Routledge Studies in Shakespeare

This book is a landmark study of Shakespeare's politics as revealed in his later History Plays. It offers the first ever survey of anti-monarchism in Western literature, history and philosophy, tracked from Hesiod and Homer through to contemporaries of Shakespeare such as George Buchanan and the authors of the Mirror for Magistrates, thus demonstrating that anxiety over monarchic power, and contemptuous demolitions of kingship as a disastrously irrational institution, formed an important and irremovable body of reflection in prestigious Western writing.

Desire and Time in Modern English Fiction: 1919-2017

Richard Dellamora

Series: Among the Victorians and Modernists

Beginning with Somerset Maugham's innovative, sexually dissident South Seas novel and tales and Alfred Hitchcock's gay-inflected revisiting of the Jack the Ripper sensation in silent film, this book considers the continuing presence of the past in future-oriented work of the 1930s and the Second World War by Sylvia Townsend Warner, Virginia Woolf, George Orwell, and the playwright and novelist, Patrick Hamilton. Early Modern Literature and England's Long Reformation

Edited by David Loewenstein and Alison Shell

Assessing early modern literature and England's Long Reformation, this book challenges the notion that the English Reformation ended in the sixteenth century, or even by the seventeenth century. The aim of this conversation is to generate new perspectives on the constant remaking of the Reformation—or Reformations, as some scholars prefer to characterize the multiple religious upheavals and changes, both Catholic and Protestant, of the early modern period.

The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the journal, Reformation.

Rasa Theory in Shakespearean Tragedies

Swapna Koshy

Series: Routledge Studies in Shakespeare

The ancient Sanskrit theory of Rasa – the aesthete's emotional response to performing arts – is explicated in detail and applied to Shakespeare's tragic masterpieces. This cross-cultural study on the communication of emotions in art establishes that emotions are universal and their communication follows similar patterns in all climes. The Rasa theory is today applied to modern media like film and has found a place among audience centric communication theories. This volume extends the East-West dialogue in aesthetic theory by identifying parallels and points of deviation and delights both aesthete and critic alike.

Jeffrey R. Wilson

In this book, Jeffrey R. Wilson shows how a knowledge of the Shakespearean context enriches our understanding of the literary elements of Game of Thrones. Presenting new interviews with the Game of Thrones cast, and comparing contextual circumstances of composition—such as collaborative authorship and political currents—this book also lodges a series of provocations about writing and acting for the stage in the Elizabethan age and for the screen in the twenty-first century. An essential read for fans of the franchise, as well as students and academics looking at Shakespeare and Renaissance Literature in the context of modern media.

The Intelligent Unconscious in Modernist Literature and Science

Thalia Trigoni

Series: Among the Victorians and Modernists

This book reassesses the philosophical, psychological and, above all, the literary representations of the unconscious in the early twentieth century. This period is distinctive because it gave rise to a line of thought according to which the unconscious is an intelligent agent able to perform judgements and formulate its own thoughts. The book concentrates primarily on the works of D. H. Lawrence, Virginia Woolf and T.S. Eliot, authors who engaged the notion of the intelligent unconscious, reworked it and offered it for the consumption of the general populace in varied ways and for different purposes, whether aesthetic, philosophical, societal or ideological.

Edited by W. Michelle Wang, Daniel K. Jernigan and Neil Murphy

Series: Routledge Literature Companions

This Collection seeks to understand how literature always been deeply engaged with the ever-evolving relationship humanity has with its ultimate demise. It provides a telling demonstration of the myriad ways that humanity has learned to live with the inevitability of death – where "live with" might itself mean any number of things: from consoling, to memorializing, to rationalizing, to fending off, to evading, and, perhaps most compellingly of all, to escaping.

Veneration to the Elders

ŚIVAKŌTYĀCĀRYA'S VAḌḌĀRĀDHANE

Edited by D.A. Shankar, R.V.S. Sundaram, Shubhachandra and H.S. Komalesha

Śivakōtyācārya's Vaḍḍārādhane (Veneration to the Elders) is the earliest extant prose work in Kannada language written by Śivakōtyācārya during 940 CE. This classical text reflects the oral tradition of narrating stories of legendary religious ascetics based on the gāhās which were taken from Bhagavati Ārādhānā. This is a peculiar but commendable way of presenting stories of the senior and respectable ascetics combining oral and written styles of narration.

Women and Ageing

Private Meaning, Social Lives

Edited by Margaret O'Neill and Michaela Schrage-Früh

Series: Life Writing

This edited collection considers the ways older women's life narratives redefine culturally imposed conceptions of what it means to grow older. Drawing on research from age studies as well as social and cultural gerontology, the contributors explore the subjective accounts and diverse voices of older women. In doing so, they examine the tensions between older women's social identities versus their individual narratives.

Assessing Change in English Second Language Writing Performance

Khaled Barkaoui and Ali Hadidi

Series: Innovations in Language Learning and Assessment at ETS

This book introduces a new framework for analyzing second-language (L2) learners' written texts. The authors conducted a major study on changes and differences in English L2 learners' writing performance to advance understanding of the nature of L2 writing development over time, in relation to L2 instruction and testing, and to offer a model that professionals and researchers can use in their own longitudinal and cross-sectional studies of L2 writing development. Grounded in research, data, theory, and technology, this will be a welcome how-to for language test developers, scholars, and graduate students of (L2) writing and assessment.

Academic Usage and Academic Translation

Dirk Siepmann

German and English: Academic Usage and Academic Translation focuses on academic and popular scientific/academic usage. This book's brief is both theoretical and practical: on the theoretical side, it aims to provide a systematic, corpus-based account of current academic usage in English and German as well as of the translation problems associated with various academic genres; on the practical side, it seeks to equip academic translators with the skills required to produce target-language text in accordance with disciplinary conventions.

Humour Translation in the Age of Multimedia

Edited by Margherita Dore

This volume seeks to investigate how humour translation has developed over the last twenty years, focusing in particular on new ways of communication. The authors, drawn from a range of countries, cultures and academic traditions, debate how today's globalised communication, media and new technologies are influencing and shaping the translation of humour. The chapters all cover theoretical foundations and implications, methodological practices and challenges, include a description of current research or practice and comments on possible future developments. Accessible and engaging, this is essential reading for advanced students and researchers in Translation Studies and Humour Studies.

Statistics in Corpus Linguistics Research

Sean Wallis

Statistics in Corpus Linguistics Research: A new approach breaks down the fundamentals of statistics for researchers in corpus linguistics and linguistic analysis. It promotes a visual approach to understanding the performance of tests with real data, demonstrating how to derive new intervals and tests. This book is software-agnostic, discussing the "why" behind the statistical model, and allowing readers a greater facility for choosing their own methodologies. Accessibly written for those with little to no mathematical or statistical background, it explains the mathematical fundamentals of simple significance tests by relating them to confidence intervals.

Reading Images

The Grammar of Visual Design

Gunther Kress, Institute of Education, University of London, UK and Theo van Leeuwen, University of Southern Denmark

This third edition of the landmark textbook Reading Images builds on its reputation as the first systematic and comprehensive account of the grammar of visual design. Drawing on an enormous range of examples from children's drawings to textbook illustrations, photo-journalism to fine art, as well as three-dimensional forms such as sculpture and toys, the authors examine the ways in which images communicate meaning. It is a must for all engaged in the study of language and communication, semiotics, multimedia and the design.

Analysing Discourses in Teacher Observation Feedback Conferences

Fiona Copland and Helen Donaghue
Series: Routledge Studies in Applied Linguistics

This volume focuses on the post-observation feedback conference, a common feature of teacher education programs, and highlights how analyzing its language and dialogue can both further illuminate its role in language education but also about workplace and institutional discourse more generally. Drawing on data from a range of settings, including pre-service teacher education, medical education, and teacher appraisal programs, the book adopts a linguistic ethnographic approach, which seeks to understand the ways in which dialogic interactions are embedded in wider social contexts and structures.

Autoethnographies in ELT

Transnational Identities, Pedagogies, and Practices

Edited by Bedrettin Yazan, Suresh Canagarajah and Rashi Jain
Series: Routledge Studies in Applied Linguistics

This innovative volume showcases the possibilities of autoethnography as a means of exploring the complexities of transnational identity construction for learners, teachers, and practitioners in English language teaching (ELT). The book unpacks the dynamics of today's landscape of language education which sees practitioners and students with nuanced personal and professional histories inhabit liminal spaces as they traverse national, cultural, linguistic, ideological, and political borders, thereby impacting their identity construction and engagement with pedagogies and practices across different educational domains.

Distributed Linguaging, Affective Dynamics, and the Human Ecology Volume I

The Sense-making Body

Paul J. Thibault, University of Agder, Norway Series: Routledge Advances in Communication and Linguistic Theory

Language plays a central role in human life. However, the term 'language' as defined in the language sciences of the 20th century and the traditions these have drawn on, have arguably, limited our thinking about what language is and does. The two inter-linked volumes of Thibault's study articulate crucially important aspects of an emerging new perspective shift on language – the Distributed Language view – that is now receiving more and more attention internationally.

Using CAT Tools in Freelance Translation

Insights from a Case Study

Paulina Pietrzak and Michal Kornacki

This book explores the impact of applying computer-assisted (CAT) tools in freelance translation toward better understanding translators' strategies, preferences, and challenges in using new technologies. Drawing on data from a study with active translators in Poland, Pietrzak and Kornacki examine the underlying factors underpinning translators' lack of engagement with these tools toward pinpointing translators' needs more effectively and offering insights for adapting training programs accordingly. The Shetland Dialect

Peter Sundkvist, Stockholm University, Sweden

Series: Routledge Studies in World Englishes

The traditional dialect spoken in the Shetland Isles, the northernmost part of Scotland and Britain, is highly distinct. It displays distinct, characteristic features on all linguistic levels and particularly in its sound system, or its phonology. The dialect is one of the lesser-known varieties of English within the Inner circle. Sundkvist's comprehensive description of the dialect is intended to serve as an accessible reference source on one of the most distinct lesser-known varieties of English within Britain; a documentation and systematic account of its rich regional variation; and a resource for scholars working in historical or Germanic linguistics.

Translating the Crisis

Politics and Culture in Spain after the 15M

Fruela Fernández, Newcastle University, UK

Series: Critical Perspectives on Citizen Media

This book discusses the multiple translation practices that shaped the 15M movement, a series of mass demonstrations and occupations of squares that took place across Spain in 2011 and which played a central role in the recent global wave of popular protest. Examining a variety of materials and fieldwork across various Spanish cities, it shows how translation has contributed to the dissemination of ideas and the expansion of political debates, produced new intellectual and political figures, and provided support to political projects. This is an invaluable case study demonstrating and analysing the role of translation for political and social change.

Four Dichotomies in Spanish: Adjective Position, Adjectival Clauses, Ser/Estar, and Preterite/Imperfect

Luis H. González

Examining four dichotomies in Spanish, this book shows how to reduce the six to ten rules common in textbooks for each contrast to a single binary distinction. That distinction is a form of totality vs. part, easier to see in some of the dichotomies, but present in all of them.

This book was written for teachers of Spanish as a second language (L2) and for minors or majors of Spanish as an L2. It will also benefit teachers and learners of other L2s with some of these dichotomies.

Dream Sequences in Shakespeare

A Psychoanalytic Perspective

Meg Harris Williams

Through his commitment to poetic language, Shakespeare offers images and dramatic sequences that illustrate fundamental developmental conflicts whose solutions are not preconceived but evolve through the process of dramatization. In this volume, Meg Harris Williams explores the fundamental distinction between the surface meanings of plot or argument and the deep grammar of dreamlife, applied not only to those plays known as 'dream-plays,' but also to critical sequences throughout Shakespeare's oeuvre.

Brecht in India

The Poetics and Politics of Transcultural Theatre

Dr. Prateek

Brecht in India analyses the dramaturgy and theatrical practices of the German playwright Bertolt Brecht in post-independence India.

Analysing the dissemination of a selection of Brecht's plays in the Hindi belt between the 1960s and the 1990s, this study tracks the dialogue between Brechtian aesthetics in India and Europe and a history of deliberate cultural resistance. Brecht in India is an invaluable resource for academics and students of theatre studies and theatre historiography, as well as scholars of post-colonial history and literature.

La Pocha Nostra

A Handbook for the Rebel Artist in a Post-Democratic Society

Guillermo Gómez-Peña, Saúl García-López and Paloma Martínez-Cruz

La Pocha Nostra: A Handbook for the Rebel Artist in a Post-Democratic Society marks a transformation from its sister book, Exercises for Rebel Artists, into a pedagogical matrix suited for use as a performance handbook and conceptual tool for artists, activists, theorists, pedagogues and trans-disciplinary border crossers of all stripes. Based on field experience from ten years of touring, the authors blend original methods with updated and revised exercises, providing new material for teachers, universities, radical artists, curators, producers and students.

Difference and Division in Music Education

Edited by Alexis Anja Kallio, Queensland Conservatorium of Music, Griffith University, Australia Series: ISME Series in Music Education

Difference and Division in Music Education enriches existing discourses by addressing the complex power-relations that frame both governance and agency at the policy, institutional and interpersonal levels. This edited volume of ten contributed essays approaches 'hate' not as a monstrous aberration but as a product of late modernity. Although hate is by no means a new concern for policymakers, educators or musicians, it is one to which we cannot afford complacency: the contemporary international climate of fast communications, divisive politics and intensified encounters with difference has framed expressions of hate as a rising social problem.

Music in Action Film

Sounds Like Action!

Edited by James Buhler and Mark Durrant
Series: Routledge Music and Screen Media Series

Music in Action Film is the first volume to address the central role of music and sound in action film - arguably the most dominant form of commercial cinema today.

Bringing together fifteen essays by established and emerging scholars, the book encompasses both Hollywood blockbusters and international films. The contributors consider action both as genre and as a mode of cinematic expression, in chapters on evolving musical conventions; politics, representation, and identity; musical affect and agency; the functional role of music and sound design in action film; and production technologies.

Twentieth- and Twenty-First-Century Song Cycles

Analytical Pathways Toward Performance

Edited by Gordon Sly and Michael R. Callahan, Michigan State University, USA

Twentieth- and Twenty-First-Century Song Cycles: Analytical Pathways Toward Performance presents analyses of fourteen song cycles composed after the turn of the twentieth century, with a focus on offering "ways into" the musical and poetic structure of each cycle to performers, scholars, and students alike. Ranging from familiar works of twentieth-century music by composers such as Schoenberg, Britten, Poulenc, and Shostakovich to lesser-known works by Van Wyk, Sviridov, Wheeler, and Sánchez, this collection of essays captures the diversity of the song cycle repertoire in contemporary classical music.

Another Song for Europe

Music, Taste, and Values in the Eurovision Song Contest

Ivan Raykoff

Series: Ashgate Popular and Folk Music Series

Another Song for Europe delves into the vast repertoire of Eurovision to explore the changing musical tastes and values around the contest. With chapters on the iconic fanfare that opens the broadcast each year, supposed formulas for composing successful entries, it explores the ever-present tension between national genres of European popular music and the value of cultural difference within or beyond one's borders, especially the predominance of American musical trends in a show that celebrates an idealized pan-European identity. Australia's Jindyworobak Composers

David Symons, University of Western Australia, Australia

Series: Routledge Research in Music

Australia's Jindyworobak Composers examines the music of a historically and artistically significant group of Australian composers active during the later post-colonial period (1930s–c.1960). Chapter One demonstrates to what extent a meaningful relationship may or may not be discernible between the artistic tenets of Jindyworobak writers and apparently likeminded composers. The following chapters explore the music of composers writing within the Jindyworobak period itself and, finally, the later twentieth-century afterlife of Jindyworobakism. This will be of particular interest to scholars and researchers of Ethnomusicology, Australian Music and Music History.

Finding Democracy in Music

Edited by Robert Adlington and Esteban Buch

Series: Musical Cultures of the Twentieth Century

A guiding theme of the volume is that this takes place in a plurality of ways, depending upon the perspective taken to music's manifold relationships, and the idea of democracy being entertained. Contributing authors explore various genres including orchestral composition, jazz, the post-war avant-garde, online performance, and contemporary popular music, as well as employing a wide array of theoretical, archival and ethnographic methodologies. Particular attention is given to the contested nature of democracy as a category, and the gaps that frequently arise between utopian aspiration and reality.

French Music in Britain 1830–1914

Paul J Rodmell

Series: Music in Nineteenth-Century Britain

French Music in Britain 1830–1914 uncovers the history of French music in Britain. From modest beginnings in the 1830s, it traces the arrival of opéra comique, followed by Grand Opera and opéra bouffe, then broadening to orchestral and chamber works.

Placed within the wider social and cultural context of Britain's most ambiguous and beguiling international relationship, this volume demonstrates how French music became an increasingly significant part of the British musician's repertory and influenced many composers. Icons of Sound

Voice, Architecture, and Imagination in Medieval Art

Edited by Bissera V. Pentcheva, Stanford University, USA

Series: Music and Visual Culture

Icons of Sound: Voice, Architecture and Imagination in Medieval Art brings together art history and sound studies to offer new perspectives on medieval churches and cathedrals as spaces where the perception of the visual is inherently shaped by sound. The chapters encompass a wide geographic and historical range, from the fifth to the fifteenth century, and from Armenia and Byzantium to Venice, Rome, and Santiago de Compostela. Contributors offer nuanced explorations of the importance of intangible sonic aura to these spaces, including the temporal and performative nature of ritual music, as well as the use of digital technology to reconstruct historical aural environments.

Medievalism and Nationalism in German Opera

Euryanthe to Lohengrin

Michael S. Richardson

Series: Routledge Research in Music

Using operas by Weber, Schubert, Marshner, Wagner, and Schumann as case studies, Richardson investigates what historical information was available to German composers in their recreations of medieval music, and whether or not such information had any demonstrable effect on their compositions. In this book, readers will gain a clear understanding of the rise of German opera in the early nineteenth century and the cultural and historical context in which this occurred. Providing insight on the reception of medieval history and music in nineteenth-century Germany, it will demonstrate how medievalism and nationalism were mutually reinforcing phenomena then.

Music and Sound in the Worlds of Michel Gondry

Kate McQuiston, University of Hawai'i, USA

Series: Filmmakers and Their Soundtracks

Michel Gondry's directorial work buzzes with playfulness and invention: in a body of work that includes feature films such as Eternal Sunshine of the Spotless Mind and The Science of Sleep to music videos, commercials, television episodes, and documentaries, he has experimented with blending animation and live action, complex narrative structures, and philosophical subject matter. McQuiston examines the hybrid nature of Gondry's work, how he uses sound and music to create a highly stylized reinforcement of often-elusive subjects such as psychology, dreams, the loss of memory, and the fraught relationship between humans and the environment.

Music in Religious Cults of the Ancient Near East

John Arthur Smith

Series: Routledge Research in Music

This volume presents the first extended discussion of the relationship between music and cultic worship in ancient western Asia. The book covers ancient Israel and Judah, the Levant, Anatolia, Mesopotamia, Elam, and ancient Egypt, focusing on the period from approximately 3000 BCE to around 586 BCE. This wide-ranging book brings together insights from ancient archaeological, iconographic, written, and musical sources, as well as from modern scholarship. Through careful analysis, comparison, and evaluation of those sources, the author holds a picture of a world where religious culture was predominant and where music was intrinsic to common cultic activity.

Exploring Career Trajectories of Men in the Early Childhood Education and Care Workforce

Why They Leave and Why They Stay

Edited by David L. Brody, Kari Emilsen, Tim Rohrmann and Jo Warin

Series: Towards an Ethical Praxis in Early Childhood

This book examines why men leave or remain in early childhood education and care, taking a broad international perspective and questioning the role of gender in these career decisions. By exploring various critical and relevant factors, the contributors unpack how gender concepts influence men's career trajectories. Using cultural, racial, ethnic, and social class lenses to examine men's career decisions over their professional lives, the authors' unique approach uncovers the complexity of the issue and offer evidence-based recommendations for policy both on national and local levels, including suggestions to directors and managers who care about achieving a gender balanced workforce.

Maker Literacies and Maker Identities in the Digital Age

Learning and Playing Through Modes and Media

Edited by Cheryl A. McLean and Jennifer Rowsell

This book explores 'making' in the school curriculum in a period in which the ability to create and respond to digital artefacts is key and focuses on makerspaces in educational settings.

Giving as broad a perspective on makerspaces, making, and design as possible, the book will help scholars expand their understandings and help educators appreciate the power and worth of making to inspire students. It is useful for anyone hoping to apply design, maker, and makerspace approaches to their teaching and learning.

Mathematics in Early Childhood

Research, Reflexive Practice and Innovative Pedagogy

Edited by Oliver Thiel, Elena Severina and Bob Perry, Charles Sturt University, Australia

Series: Towards an Ethical Praxis in Early Childhood

Using real-life vignettes throughout, this book encourages readers to broaden their view on maths and its interrelationship to other aspects of life. Bringing together examples of early childhood mathematical education practice from several countries and considering different educational traditions and diverse contexts, the authors invite readers to review, reflect on and critique their own practice. The book is structured around Bishop's six fundamental mathematical activities: explaining, counting, measuring, locating, designing and playing, and his theory of mathematical enculturation, providing a basis for future-oriented research and practice in early childhood maths education.

Supporting Young Children Experiencing Loss and Grief

A Practical Guide

Deborah Price and Clair Barnard

Providing practical ways to support early years practitioners and key stage one teachers who are working with children experiencing feelings of loss and grief, this book uses case studies and interviews with children and adults to uncover best practice techniques. This book also considers the loss children feel when they move home, experience their parents' separation, move settings or lose contact with a close friend or a nursery practitioner/teacher. Answering the key questions of how we support children who have feelings of loss and grief, this book shows the importance of providing children with the tools they need to talk about their feelings.

Capturing Children's Meanings in Early Childhood Research and Practice

A Practical Guide

Ann Marie Halpenny, School of Languages, Law and Social Sciences in the Dublin Institute of Technology

This text provides early childhood students with a range of strategies for accessing, recording and interpreting young children's perceptions and responses to experiences. The central importance of conceptualising pedagogical documentation as research with young children is highlighted and draws on material generated through innovative methodologies developed within the framework of Reggio Emilia and the Mosaic approach. The text is an invaluable resource providing a synthesis of the multiple, imaginative ways we can capture young children's meanings through the use of art, observation, cameras and digital technology, mindfulness, music, movement and other creative tools.

Exploring Materiality in Childhood

Body, Relations and Space

Edited by Maarit Alasuutari, Marleena Mustola and Niina Rutanen

Series: Routledge International Studies in the Philosophy of Education

This book explores the ways childhood and materiality are intertwined and assembled. It makes a scholarly contribution to current understanding of the complex relatedness of childhood and materiality, with chapters catering to a diverse range of theories, in sociomaterialist, posthumanist, post-anthropocentric and more-than-human research, critically exploring the boundaries of these theoretical approaches with diverse empirical cases. These wide ranges of perspectives develop alternatives to human-centered approaches in understanding

Creative and Critical Projects in Classroom Music

Fifty Years of Sound and Silence

John Finney, Chris Philpott and Gary Spruce

Creative and Critical Projects in Classroom Music is both a celebration and extension of John Paynter and Peter Aston's ground-breaking work on creative classroom music, Sound and Silence, first published in 1970. Building on the central themes of the original work – the child as artist, the role of musical imagination and creativity, and the process of making music – the authors and contributors provide a contemporary response to the spirit and style of Sound and Silence. They offer reflections on the ideas and convictions underpinning Paynter and Aston's work in light of scholarship developed during the intervening years.

How to Teach Maths

Understanding Learners' Needs

Steve Chinn, Visiting Professor, University of Derby, UK

Bestselling and award-winning author Steve Chinn challenges many of the long-established methods, beliefs and the culture of maths teaching in this radical new book. His premise is that the way we teach the top 75% of achievers in maths can be improved by using many of the methods and principles that are successful with the bottom 25%. He shows how to adjust the way maths is presented to the learner, looking at the learners' needs first and the maths second, and explains the absolute importance of securing the early learning to set firm foundations for future success. Based on decades of classroom experience and research, this book has the potential to change the way maths is taught forever.

Stepping up Lesson Study

An Educator's Guide to Deeper Learning

Edited by Aki Murata, University of Florida, USA and Christine Kim-Eng Lee, National Institute of Education, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore

Series: WALS-Routledge Lesson Study Series

This much needed book is written for educators who want to learn more than just the surface features of lesson study, to deepen the process and their learning. Bringing together current knowledge and resources from lesson study practitioners and researchers all over the world, this book provides models and examples of how teachers can learn more deeply, and use lesson study more effectively. The chapters connect current research and educational theories to classroom practices and are filled with examples to illustrate how deeper learning works with lesson study.

Surviving Emotional Work for Teachers

Improving Wellbeing and Professional Learning Through Reflexive Practice

Jean Hopman

This is a guide to improving teachers' wellbeing and practice through support of their emotional workload. The book argues that teachers should be given a formal opportunity to debrief on challenging events, allowing them to reflect on and reframe these experiences in a way that informs future practice to prevent the emotional fatigue that can lead teachers to leave the field altogether. Each chapter opens with a teacher's story, acknowledging the emotional layers present in the scenario and what learnings can be drawn from it. This is valuable reading for teachers at all stages of their career, whether preparing for the complex work ahead or making sense of past experiences.

Teachers and Young Researchers in Action

Working Together to Transform Practice

Viv Randall, Debbie Reel and Nicola Smith, University of Birmingham

This book supports teachers and children in carrying out meaningful classroom research that can transform practice. An accessible guide, it shows the different ways in which children and teachers can go about their research, the problems they may meet on the way and the tried and tested methods to meet those challenges. Illustrated with rich real-life examples of research projects – exploring rewards and sanctions, values education, school structures, and reading for pleasure – it shows how we can celebrate the importance of the voice of the child in school life, benefitting individual children, teachers and schools alike.

Curriculum and the Generation of Utopia

Interrogating the Current State of Critical Curriculum Theory

João M. Paraskeva, University of Massachusetts, USA

Series: Routledge Research in Education

This volume illuminates the challenges and contradictions which have prevented critical curriculum theory establishing itself as an alternative to dominant Western Eurocentric epistemologies. By re-visiting the work of leading progressive theorists and drawing on a complex and global range of epistemological perspectives, the text illustrates how counter-dominant narratives have been suppressed by neoliberal dynamics. Foregrounding critical curriculum theory as a vector of de-colonization and de-centralization, the text puts forth Itinerant Curriculum Theory (ITC) as an alternative form of anti-colonial, theoretical engagement.

Indigenous Women and Adult Learning

Edited by Sheila Aikman and Anna Robinson-Pant, University of East Anglia, Norwich, UK

In contemporary educational research, practice and policy, 'indigenous women' have emerged as an important focus in the global education arena and the 2030 Sustainable Development Agenda. This edited book investigates what is significant about indigenous women and their learning in terms of policy directions, research agendas and not least indigenous women's own aspirations.

Chapters 1-6 and 8 in this book were originally published in a Special Issue of the journal, Studies in the Education of Adults, Indigenous Women and Adult Learning.

The Secret Life of English-Medium Instruction in Higher Education

Examining Microphenomena in Context

Edited by David Block, ICREA & Universitat Pompeu Fabra, Spain and Sarah Khan, University of VIC, Spain

Series: Routledge Focus on English-Medium Instruction in Higher Education

This volume explores the inner-workings of English-medium instruction (EMI) in higher education (HE) at two universities. After an introductory chapter that sets the scene and provides essential background, there are four empirically based chapters that draw on data collected from a range of sources at two universities in Catalonia, including interviews, audio/video recordings of classes, audio logs produced by both lecturers and students, policy documents, students' written work and student presentation evaluation rubrics.

Disrupting Hate in Education

Teacher Activists, Democracy, and Global Pedagogies of Interruption

Edited by Rita Verma, Professor of Education, Adelphi University and Michael W. Apple, University of Wisconsin, USA

This book aims to identify and respond to the ideological forms of hate and fear that are present in schools, which echo larger nativist and populist agendas. This volume is international in scope, examining anti-extremism work in the UK, the saffronization of schools in India, and more. Written by a dynamic group of activist-scholars and program leaders, chapters demonstrate how conservative mobilizations gain momentum, and how these mobilizations can be interrupted. Out of these interruptions come new opportunities to practice a critically democratic education that hinges upon risk-taking, deep dialogue, and creating a space for common dignity.

Educating for a Characterful Society

Responsibility and the Public Good

James Arthur, Julia Cleverdon, Nicky Morgan, James O'Shaughnessy and Anthony Seldon

What exactly is 'character' and how best to educate for it? This vitally important book written by five internationally prominent figures and government advisors aims to answer that question. Accessibly written and brimming with inspirational ideas it looks at questions of research, education, government policy and societal engagement with character, including in the light of COVID-19 and the huge debt owed to the public services frontline. This book is a fascinating and vital read for parents, teachers and anyone concerned with social justice, developing the energy and passion of young people and working towards a better, stronger, fairer society.

Education System Design

Foundations, Policy Options and Consequences

Edited by Brian Hudson, Marilynn Leask, University of Bedfordshire, UK and Sarah Younie

This book highlights decisions governments have to make about their public education systems, the options they have before them and the consequences of their decisions. As well as covering issues such as values, curriculum, teacher training and structures, the book addresses education planning for epidemics, pandemics and disasters. It suggests an education system be viewed as an ecosystem with interdependencies between many different components. It is a vital book for any stakeholders in educational systems including students, teachers and senior leaders. It would be particularly useful to policy makers and those implementing policy changes.

The Under-Representation of Black and Minority Ethnic Educators in Education

Chance, Coincidence or Design?

Chris Guy Vieler-Porter

Series: Routledge Research in Race and Ethnicity in Education

This book examines the under-representation of Black and minority ethnic (BAME) people in the leadership of children's learning. It identifies over 40 separate codes emerging from interviews with BAME leaders in children's learning. These codes include low expectations, awareness of their position, the need to be better, monitoring, the complexity of racism and the difficulties of talking about racism. This book will be of great interest for academics, researchers, and post-graduate students in the fields of education management and leadership, critical race theory, and the sociology of education.

A Session by Session Guide to Life Story Work

A Practical Resource to Use with Looked After or Adopted Children

Gillian Shotton, Educational Psychologist, Northumberland.

Life story work is a term often used to describe an approach that helps looked after and adopted children to talk and learn about their life experiences with the help of a trusted adult. This book is an essential step-by-step guide for carers and professionals seeking to carry out life story work with a traumatised or vulnerable child in their care.

This book gives professionals and carers the confidence to carry out life story work in a way that is sensitive to the child's needs and positive for their self-perception and relationships.

Generating Tact and Flow for Effective Teaching and Learning

Susanna M. Steeg Thornhill, George Fox University and Ken Badley, Mount Royal University, Calgary

This book draws from and analyzes teachers' and students' stories of great classes in order to promote teachers' development of pedagogical tact and to encourage flow states for students. As the authors suggest, tactful teachers are more likely to see their students in flow than teachers who struggle with basic classroom routines and practices. Grounded in narrative research, and written for pre-service teachers, the book offers strategies for replicating these first-hand accounts of peak classroom teaching and learning.

It's Our School, It's Our Time: A Companion Guide to Whole-School Collaborative Decision-Making

Geraldine Rowe

This book outlines a whole-school approach to teacher-pupil collaboration, illustrating how increased inequality can be addressed by involvement in the school community and active participation in decision-making from an early age. It presents insights into the psychological processes that are at work when pupils and teachers share decision-making, and how this can harness and increase motivation for pupils and teachers alike. This companion guide is for teachers, head teachers, teacher educators and student teachers who want to transform achievement, behaviour and motivation through greater collaboration with their pupils.

Pandemic Education and Viral Politics

Michael A. Peters, Beijing Normal University, China and Tina Besley, Beijing Normal University, China

Viral modernity is a concept based upon the nature of viruses, the critical role they play in evolution and culture, and their application to understanding the role of information and forms of bioinformation in the social world. Michael A. Peters and Tina Besley, explores human resilience and the collective response to catastrophe, and the philosophy and literature of pandemics, including 'love and social distancing in the time of Covid-19.' These essays, a collection from Educational Philosophy and Theory, also explore the politicising of COVID-19, the growth of conspiracy theories, its origins, and the ways it became a 'viral' narrative in the future of world politics.

Classroom Motivation

Linking Research to Teacher Practice

Eric M. Anderman and Lynley H. Anderman

Classroom Motivation is a comprehensive introduction to the practical applications of research on academic motivation to teaching and learning. Though grounded in theory, the book is uniquely structured around instructional practices that teachers use daily in schools, such as rewards, group activities, academic tasks, student assessment, and parent interaction. This thoroughly revised third edition includes new content on interventions, mindsets, technologies, engagement, and social-emotional learning. Each chapter's case studies, application exercises, and updated empirical findings will further connect pre-service teachers with motivation in practice.

Theories of School Psychology

Critical Perspectives

Edited by Kristy K. Kelly, S. Andrew Garbacz and Craig A. Albers, University of Wisconsin, Madison, USA

Series: Foundations of School Psychology Research and Practice

Theories of School Psychology: Critical Perspectives describes the theories, frameworks, and conceptual models that underlie the science and practice of school psychology. Chapters provide an orientation to theories, frameworks, and conceptual models that address core school psychology domains along with application to common student, school, and system issues prevalent in the field. Promoting a deeper study of the fundamental processes and approaches in school psychology, this book advances the embedding of theories, frameworks, and models into the design and delivery of educational and psychological services for children, youth, families, and schools.

Education, Philosophy and Social Emancipation

Neil Hooley, Victoria University, Australia

This book highlights the philosophical and creative basis of knowledge co-production by all citizens regardless of socio-economic background in contrast with neoliberal ideology. Exploring beginning, transitional and theorised practices, the book is a memoir of the author's extensive personal and educational experience. Each topic is discussed in relation to a number of pragmatist themes that run throughout to illustrate how the process of dialectical emergence underpins and substantiates meaningful human living. Building on the work of American Pragmatism, this is a systematic and detailed reintroduction of pragmatism to educators worldwide for progressive educational change.

Edited by Sarah Gravett, University of Johannesburg, South Africa and Elizabeth Henning, University of Johannesburg, South Africa

Series: Perspectives on Education in Africa

This book explores the current landscape of Initial Teacher Education (ITE) in primary schools in South Africa. It highlights the dilemmas of ITE in schools and outlines the innovations and initiatives to improve ITE, building on recent policy directives and interventions. Authors consider what works best for quality preparation of teachers in the Global South, where many children rely on their teachers and school life to break the cycle of poverty. Chapters draw on evidence from workplace learning, pre-service study and primary school teacher education policy to highlight examples of promising change and what works in the challenging revivals in teacher education in South Africa.

Virtues and Virtue Education in Theory and Practice

Are Virtues Local or Universal?

Edited by Catherine A. Darnell, University of Birmingham, UK and Kristján Kristjánsson, University of Birmingham, UK

Series: Routledge Research in Character and Virtue Education

This book explores questions about the locality versus the universality of virtues from a number of theoretical and practical perspectives. Bringing together experts from education, philosophy and psychology, the volume considers how different disciplines might learn from each other and how insights from theory and practice can be integrated. Chapters explore different approaches to nurturing virtue in the classroom and beyond and question how well virtues travel across geographical and cultural borders. The book examines the philosophical literature and makes links between theory and practice in an original way, offering scholarly research-informed suggestions for practice.

Translanguaging and Transformative Teaching for Emergent Bilingual Students

Lessons from the CUNY-NYSIEB Project

Edited by City University of New York-New York State Initiative on Emergent Bilinguals

This book provides a foundation for translanguaging theory and practice with educating emergent bilingual students. The product of the internationally renowned and trailblazing City University of New York-New York State Initiative on Emergent Bilinguals, this book draws on a common vision of translanguaging to present different practices and outcomes in real schools. Acknowledging oppressive traditions and obstacles facing language minoritized students, this book provides a pathway for combatting racism, monolingualism, classism and colonialism in the classroom and offers narratives, strategies and pedagogical practices to liberate and engage emergent bilingual students.

Anti-Neoliberal Populisms in Comparative Perspective

A Latinamericanisation of Southern Europe?

Enrico Padoan, Pontifical Catholic University of Chile, Chile

Series: Routledge Studies in Latin American Politics

In this book, Enrico Padoan proposes an original middle-range theory to explain the emergence and the internal organization of anti-neoliberal populist parties in Latin America and Southern Europe, and the relationships between these parties and the organised working class. Padoan traces the diverging evolution of the electoral Lefts in Latin America and Southern Europe, before turning to four chapters focusing on the rise of anti-neoliberal populist parties, with a fifth analyzing four 'shadow cases'. With its distinctive perspective scholars of Latin America and Comparative Politics will find Anti-Neoliberal Populisms in Comparative Perspective a highly valuable resource.

Changing Bureaucracies

Adapting to Uncertainty, and How Evaluation Can Help

Edited by Burt Perrin and Tony Tyrrell

Series: Comparative Policy Evaluation

In this book, international experts provide an unparalleled look at how public sector bureaucracies can better adapt to the reality of unprecedented levels of uncertainty and complexity, and how they can better respond to the emerging needs and demands of citizens and beneficiaries. The contributors identify stability as a strength of bureaucratic structures, but emphasize that bureaucratic rules should be open to examination, through evaluation, which would aid bureaucratic adaptability and ensure relevance. Changing Bureaucracies is an important acquisition for public sector leaders, evaluators, evaluation managers and commissioners and academics alike.

Europeanization and Territorial Politics in Small European Unitary States

A Comparative Analysis

Edited by Sandrina Antunes and John Loughlin

The book addresses the impact of the European Union (EU) on subnational mobilization in small unitary states. By means of a comparative analysis of eight small unitary states in Europe, this book shows that the impact of the EU on subnational mobilization is filtered through domestic mediating factors which can lead to three possible outcomes: decentralization, recentralization or no change.

The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the journal, Regional & Federal Studies.

Chinese Politics and Foreign Policy under Xi Jinping

The Future Political Trajectory

Edited by Arthur S. Ding and Jagannath P. Panda

Series: Routledge Studies on Think Asia

This book focuses on China's future under Xi Jinping's authoritarian leadership by examining various facets of the political, economic, social and foreign policy trajectories of contemporary China. It assesses Xi Jinping's power dynamic as the 'core' leader of the Communist Party of China (CPC) and analyses the impact of Xi's signature domestic policies which demonstrate his political authority within the domestic sphere.

Exploring Base Politics

How Host Countries Shape the Network of U.S. Overseas Bases

Edited by Shinji Kawana, Tokyo Institute of Technology, Japan and Minoru Takahashi, Hokkaido University, Japan

Series: Routledge Advances in International Relations and Global Politics

By analysing cases from Japan, Greenland, Germany, Italy, Turkey, Saudi Arabia, South Korea, and Singapore, this book sheds light on the mechanisms of base politics that surround US overseas military bases. In times of war they project military power, and in times of peace they deter the emergence of general and latent threats. They are used to secure access to resources, and as a means of politically and economically influencing small and mid-size countries. Military bases allow the host many benefits of the US security umbrella, but can cause internal problems.

Beyond bringing America strategic and security benefits, they influence power relations in the entire world.

Europe and the Occupation of Palestinian Territories Since 1967

Edited by Federica Bicchi, London School of Economics, UK

This book looks at the perspective of international law, before analysing the European Union and key European countries (France, Germany, Norway, Sweden, United Kingdom). It also embraces different perspectives, from the debate on campus to the role of European multinational companies to the conceptual approach of the World Bank. While much of the literature focuses on Israel, Palestine and the United States, this volume by leading experts adds a very important piece to the puzzle: the European dimension.

The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the journal, Global Affairs.

Financial Accountability in the European Union

Institutions, Policy and Practice

Edited by Paul Stephenson, Maastricht University, The Netherlands, Maria-Luisa Sánchez-Barrueco, University of Deusto, Spain and Hartmut Aden, Hochschule für Wirtschaft und Recht Berlin, Germany

Series: Routledge/UACES Contemporary European Studies

This book offers comprehensive coverage of various aspects of financial accountability around the EU budget – how it is spent via policies, how institutions engage in checking policy performance (what taxpayers' money actually delivers), and therein, the issues of monitoring, controlling, auditing, scrutinising and communicating budgetary expenditure. This book will be of key interest to scholars and students of audit and evaluation, budgetary spending and financial control, and more broadly, public administration, public policy and EU institutions and politics.

Infrastructure Communication in International Relations

Carolijn van Noort

Series: Routledge Studies in Global Information, Politics and Society

Using a case study approach, Carolijn van Noort examines how rising powers communicate about infrastructure internationally and discusses the significance of these communication practices. The four case studies include BRICS's summit communications about infrastructure, Brazil's infrastructure promises to Africa, China's communication of the Belt and Road Initiative in East Africa, and Kazakh's news media coverage of China's Belt and Road Initiative. Infrastructure Communication in International Relations is a welcome and timely book of interest to students and scholars in the field of International Relations, global communications and the politics of infrastructure.

Insecurity Communities of South Asia and the Middle East

Consequences of US Foreign Policy

Majid Sharifi, Director of International Affairs, Eastern Washington University, USA.

This book critically examines how US foreign policy has produced a regional regime of instability and insecurity in South Asia and the Middle East. It studies various events throughout history such as the Taliban regime; the US led war in Afghanistan; Obama administration and Pakistan; Kuwait and Iraq war; the Arab Spring, and the rise of ISIS, to present a theoretical analysis of Washington's consistent pursuit of multibalancing and regime change wars in the region. It will be indispensable for students and researchers of US foreign policy, defence and security studies, strategic affairs, politics and international relations, and political economy.

Legislative Deliberative Democracy

Debating Acts Restricting Freedom of Speech during War

Avichai Levit

Series: Routledge Innovations in Political Theory

Avichai Levit argues that the degree of democratic legitimacy of laws that restrict freedom of speech during war, depends on the extent of legislature deliberation on such laws. Using the United States as a case study, this book goes into the details of Congressional deliberation during World War I, World War II and the Cold War, as well as the political histories that brought about such laws. Levit presents an alternative normative account of deliberative democracy. Legislative Deliberative Democracy will be of interest to academics and students alike in the fields of American Constitutional law, Political theory, American politics and political history.

Politics and Society between Elections

Public Opinion in India's States

Edited by Siddharth Swaminathan and Suhars Palshikar

This book studies patterns in public opinion on politics and society between elections in India. By using the survey data covering 24 Indian states including the National Capital Region of Delhi (NCR), it will serve as State barometers of public opinion. The surveys seek to understand how politics and governance processes are nested in the social and political relationships between citizens inter se and with government functionaries. The book explores citizen perceptions about the social and political universes they inhabit in periods between elections. It will be of great interest to scholars and researchers of political science, governance, public policy, and South Asian studies.

Resilience in EU and International Institutions

Redefining Local Ownership in a New Global Governance Agenda

Edited by Elena Korosteleva and Trine Flockhart

This book explores the concept and practice of resilience that has generated much debate among both scholars and practitioners. The contributions propose a new understanding of resilience, both as a quality and a way of thinking, taking it to the level of 'the person' and 'the local', to argue that a more sustainable way to govern the world today is bottom-up and inside-out.

Shortening the Distance between Government and Public in China I

A Theoretical Approach

Liu Xiaoyan, Renmin University of China and Yanwen Sun

Series: China Perspectives

Drawing on the key concept of Distance from western political science, the author explores the law and mechanisms of China's political communication. In this volume, the author introduces a creative theoretical framework of distance, a dynamic system comprised of physical and psychological distance, ideal distance and real distance, as well as natural distance and consequent distance. Recent events in the China of Xi Jinping are used as cases to illustrate the point.

Shortening the Distance between Government and Public in China II

Methods and Practices

Series: China Perspectives

This volume offers empirical evidence as to how social media can mediate the distance between government and the public. First, it discusses how the use of online social media, can be used strategically to mediate the distance of offline communication. Then, it points out that social media can also lead to unlimited expression of general will. An empirical study of how the residents of five rural provinces in China obtain political information is used to illustrate the point.

Students and scholars who are interested in political science and political communication, especially Chinese politics, will find this two-volume set a useful reference.

Society, Resistance and Civil Nuclear Policy in India

Nuclearising the State

Varigonda Kesava Chandra

Series: Routledge Advances in South Asian Studies

This book explores how anti-nuclear social movements impact the state's civil nuclear policy and its implementation by presenting a historical-comparative case study of anti-nuclear movements in India. Drawing on social movement theory and empirical methods, the book demonstrates that the ability for anti-nuclear movements to impede the inception of nuclear plants – a key element of India's civil nuclear policy – is determined by the movement's collective action repertoires, the politicisation of nuclear power and the state's larger developmental paradigm, and the openness of state input structures.

The History of South Vietnam - Lam

The Quest for Legitimacy and Stability, 1963-1967

Series: Routledge Contemporary Southeast Asia Series

This book provides an in-depth analysis of the political instability of South Vietnam between the two Republics and offers a valuable contribution to the study of the history of Vietnam as it focuses on a decisive period in the history of South Vietnam. A much-needed examination of the political environment of the Republic of Vietnam between 1963-1967, this book shows how South Vietnamese leadership failed to form a stable civilian government and to secure South Vietnam against the increasing threat by North Vietnam.

Understanding Mexico's Security Conundrum

Agustin Maciel-Padilla

Series: Routledge Advances in International Relations and Global Politics

This short text describes the distinction between national, internal and public security in Mexico while also providing analysis on Mexico's security policy and its long-term consequences. Agustin Maciel-Padilla contends that the absence of a clear understanding of the concept of security has the potential to aggravate security conditions in Mexico. He argues that Mexico is required to formulate a comprehensive, long-term, security strategy, and that achieving a proper understanding will allow for better guidance in confronting the grave insecurity facing the country.

Understanding Mexico's Security Conundrum will be essential for scholars, students, and policy makers.

Privatizing Peace

How Commerce Can Reduce Conflict in Space

Wendy N. Whitman Cobb, School of Advanced Air and Space Studies (SAASS), USA

This book explores the privatization of space and its global impact on the future of commerce, peace and conflict. This volume addresses the new rhetoric of space race and weaponization, with a focus on how the costs of potential conflict in space would discourage open conflict and enable global cooperation. It highlights the increasing dependence of the global economy on space research, its democratization, plunging costs of access, and growing economic potential of space-based assets. This book is a must read for researchers of science and technology studies, space studies, political studies, sociology, environmental studies, and political economy.

David Miles

Series: Routledge Innovations in Political Theory

Reformulating a problem of both constitutionalism and liberalism, David Miles argues that constitutionalism cannot be seen merely as an institutional mechanism to limit government, as it also has a crucial civic dimension upon which the liberal state depends. Through an analysis of judicial interventions in the United States and Germany, Miles explores the role of civil society actors in transforming constitutionalism through legal challenges to oligarchical or exclusionary practices. Democracy, the Courts, and the Liberal State will be of interest to scholars, students, and practitioners interested in comparative politics, political theory, and constitutional law and history.

French Interventions in Africa

Reluctant Multilateralism

Edited by Stefano Recchia and Thierry Tardy

This book explores France's African intervention policy and the country's attempts to re-legitimise its military presence in Africa by relying on multilateral cooperation through the United Nations, the European Union, and various ad hoc frameworks. France's enduring ability to project military power on the African continent and influence political events there has been central to its self-perception as a major power.

Insurgency and Counterinsurgency in the Nineteenth Century

A Global History

Edited by Mark Lawrence, University of Kent at Canterbury, United Kingdom

This book examines insurgency and counter-insurgency across the globe in the nineteenth century. It includes chapters from distinguished and rising historians from Europe, North and South America, covering irregular wars in Spain, Ireland, France, Latin America, China, USA, Africa, Central Asia and Burma. They explore links between insurgencies and nationalism, including learning curves and emulation in counter-insurgency. With a special emphasis on non-Western warfare, it includes case-studies such as the Katanga and White Lotus rebellions.

The Archaeology of Knowledge Traditions of the Indian Ocean World

Edited by Himanshu Prabha Ray, Distant Worlds Programme, Ludwig Maximilian University in Munich, Germany.

This book looks at the long cultural, ethnic and commercial links between the Indian subcontinent and maritime Southeast Asia in the pre-modern period. Through an analysis of archaeological and historical records, it identifies and highlights the overlapping of knowledge traditions and the shared culture across the seas. Analysing myths, monuments, shared scripts, rituals and iconography from Arabia, China, India, Vietnam among others, the book historicises the shared heritage of the pre-modern Indian Ocean region.

The Human Rights Graphic Novel

Drawing it Just Right

Pramod K. Nayar

This book studies human rights discourse across a variety of graphic novels, both fiction and non-fiction, originating in different parts of the world. It demonstrates the emergence of the 'universal' subject of human rights, despite the variations. Through a study of these vastly different authors and styles, the book proposes that the graphic novel as a form is perfectly suited to the 'culture' and the lingua franca of Human Rights due to its amenability to experimentation and the sheer range within the form. It will appeal to scholars in Comics Studies, Human Rights, Visual Culture Studies, and to the general reader as well.

Against the Empire

Polity, Economy and Culture during the Anglo-Kuki War, 1917-1919

Edited by Ngamjahao Kipgen, Indian Institute of Technology Guwahati, India and Dzungul Letkhajom Haokip, Gauhati University, Assam, India

This book explores the Kuki uprising against the British Empire during the First World War in Northeast frontier of India (then Assam-Burma frontier). It sheds light on how the three-year war (1917–1919), spanning over 6,000 square miles, is crucial to understanding present-day Northeast India. It taps on a variety of sources — from civilizational discourse to indigenous readings of the war, from tour diaries to oral accounts, and will be of great interest to scholars of South Asian Studies, modern history, military and strategic studies, insurgency and counterinsurgency studies, tribal warfare, and politics.

Avant-Garde Art and Non-Dominant Thought in Postwar Japan

Image, Matter, Separation

K. Yoshida

Series: Routledge Contemporary Japan Series

This book offers a reassessment of how 'matter' — in the context of art history, criticism and architecture — pursued a radical definition of 'multiplicity', against the dominant and hierarchical tendencies underwriting post-fascist Japan. Through theoretical analysis of works by artists and critics such as Okamoto Taro, Tsuruoka Masao, Kawaguchi Tatsuo and Muraoka Saburō, this highly illustrated text identifies formal oppositions frequently evoked in the Japanese avant-garde, between cognition and image; self and other; human and thing; one and many, in mediums ranging from painting and photography, to sculpture and architecture.

Believing in Ghosts and Spirits

The Concept of Gui in Ancient China

Hu Baozhu and MONUMENTA SERICA INSTUT

Series: Monumenta Serica Monograph Series

The present book by Hu Baozhu explores the subject of ghosts and spirits and attempts to map the religious landscape of ancient China. The main focus of attention is the character gui 鬼, an essential key to the understanding of spiritual beings. The author analyses the character gui in various materials – lexicons and dictionaries, excavated manuscripts and inscriptions, and received classical texts. Gui is examined from the perspective of its linguistic root, literary interpretation, ritual practices, sociopolitical implication, and cosmological thinking.

British Engagement with Japan, 1854–1922

The Origins and Course of an Unlikely Alliance

Antony Best

Series: Routledge Studies in the Modern History of Asia

This book by a leading authority on Anglo-Japanese relations reconsiders the circumstances which led to the unlikely alliance of 1902 to 1922 between Britain, the leading world power of the day and Japan, an Asian, non-European nation which had only recently emerged from self-imposed isolation. Based on extensive original research the book goes beyond existing accounts which concentrate on high politics, strategy and simple assertions about the two countries' similarities as island empires.

China's Grand Strategy Under Xi Jinping

How History Complicates Beijing's Global Outreach

Niv Horesh

Series: Routledge Studies on Comparative Asian Politics

This book attempts to identify change and continuity in PRC grand strategy, and the extent to which Chinese imperial history complicates PRC global outreach in the Xi Jinping era. Interdisciplinary in its reach, analysing grand strategy through both rhetoric and praxis, this book unpacks the Chinese world view through critical examination of the latest history textbooks currently in use in PRC middle schools. It also brings new evidence to bear on the debate in the West about Chinese strategic culture. Finally, it compares historical Japanese OFDI patterns with China in order to understand what makes the Chinese economy unique.

Dalit Christians in South India

Caste, Ideology and Lived Religion

Ashok Kumar Mocherla, Indian Institute of Technology Indore, India

This ethnographic study of Dalit Lutherans in South India examines how the lived religion of Dalit Christians contests the structures of caste domination in rural Andhra. It shows how the emergence of Dalit Christianity generated new religious ideas, patterns, terrains, rituals, and practices that challenge the traditional notions of caste privilege and impact the politics of the region. This volume at the intersection of religion and caste will be an essential read for students and researchers of Dalit studies, political studies, sociology, sociology of religion, religious studies, social justice and exclusion studies, and South Asian studies.

From German Königsberg to Soviet Kaliningrad

Appropriating Place and Constructing Identity

Series: BASEES/Routledge Series on Russian and East European Studies

This book explores how the Soviet Union after capturing and annexing the German East Prussian city of Königsberg in 1945 and renaming it Kaliningrad worked to transform the city into a model of Soviet modernity. It examines how the Soviets expelled all the remaining German people, repopulated the city and region with settlers from elsewhere in the Soviet Union, destroyed the key remaining German buildings and began building a model Soviet city, a physical manifestation of the societal transformation brought about by communism.

Deliberative Democracy in Taiwan

A Deliberative Systems Perspective

Series: Routledge Research on Taiwan Series

This book is a pioneering analysis of the deliberative systems approach in Taiwan, extending an understanding of Taiwanese democratic politics and consolidating links between theoretical development and a practical application of deliberative practices. This book considers how components within the intricate web of micro- and macro- deliberative systems perform different functions, complement each other, and contribute both to policy change and democratic innovation in Taiwan and beyond.

Governing the Soviet Union's National Republics

The Second Secretaries of the Communist Party

Saulius Grybkauskas

Series: BASEES/Routledge Series on Russian and East European Studies

This book examines how the position of Second Secretary was established by Khrushchev in the 1950s, explores how it took on increasingly important political functions representing Moscow's interests in the republics and the republics' interests in Moscow, and discusses how the conflicts, inherent in the role, developed. The book also provides biographical details of the people who held the position and argues that the role was extremely effective in managing what could otherwise have been very difficult relationships between centre and periphery.

Displacement, Impoverishment and Exclusion

Political Economy of Development in India

Edited by Sujit Kumar Mishra and R Siva Prasad

This book is all about the nexus of "state, development intervention and the development community" where the main objective of the development intervention is to enhance the revenue of the State's economy. The institutional parameters are instrumental in this success. However, these mechanisms are limited to few stages of development, giving very little space to the development communities. This book is intended to present the contemporary research outcomes on the cross-cutting theme of development induced displacement. Identity, Culture, and Chinese Foreign Policy

THAAD and China's South Korea Policy

Kangkyu Lee

Series: Routledge Studies on Think Asia

This book assesses the role of identity and Chinese face culture in Chinese foreign policy by analysing China's political and economic retaliation against South Korea's deployment of the THAAD (Terminal High Altitude Area Defense) system on its soil. By examining the history and military action of China, Japan, and North and South Korea, the book argues that China's divergent responses were caused by different expectations according to whether states had a perceived identity as a friend or a rival.

Immigration and Integration Policy in Europe

Denmark and Sweden, 1970–2010

Haider Abbas

This book analyses contemporary changes in immigration and integration policy in the wake of populism and rise of right-wing parties across the world. It examines how, in the face of substantial migratory flows, rising security concerns regarding immigration, and a refugee crisis of unprecedented levels, member states of the European Union have responded by calling for restrictive immigration policies, border patrolling and intensified integration programs. Literary Representations of "Mainlanders" in Taiwan

Becoming Sinophone

Phyllis Yu-ting Huang

Series: Routledge Research on Taiwan Series

This book examines literary representations of mainlander identity articulated by Taiwan's second-generation mainlander writers, who share the common feature of emotional ambivalence between Taiwan and China. Closely analyzing literary narratives of Chinese civil war migrants and their descendants in Taiwan, a group referred to as "mainlanders" (waishengren), this book demonstrates that these Chinese migrants' ideas of "China" and "Chineseness" have adapted through time with their gradual settlement in the host land.

Islam, Women's Sexuality and Patriarchy in Indonesia

Silent Desire

Irma Riyani

Series: ASAA Women in Asia Series

This book explores the intimate marital relationships of Indonesian Muslim married women. As well as describing and analysing their sexual relationships, the book also investigates how Islam influences discourses of sexuality in Indonesia, and in particular how Islamic teachings affect Muslim married women's perceptions and behaviour in their sexual relationships with their husbands. Based on extensive original research, the book reveals that Muslim women perceive marriage as a social, cultural and religious obligation that they need to fulfil.

Multiple Homemaking

The Ethnic Condition in Indian Diaspora Societies

Ruben Gowricharn, Professor of Indian Diaspora Studies, VU-University of Amsterdam, The Netherlands

This book develops a theoretical perspective on homemaking as the ethnic condition of Indian diaspora communities. It draws on empirical case studies to elucidate the multiple homemaking practices of two overseas Indian groups, namely the Surinami Hindustanis and the Dutch Hindustanis. The author makes a point to scrutinise such concepts as douglarisation, groupism, citizenship, ethnification, social networks and technology, and transnational flows. The book will be highly useful in studies of diaspora, globalization and transnational migration, multiculturalism, politics and international relations, and South Asian studies.

Orthodox Christianity and the Politics of Transition

Ukraine, Serbia and Georgia

Tornike Metreveli, University of St Gallen, Switzerland

Series: Routledge Religion, Society and Government in Eastern Europe and the Former Soviet States

Based on original research, including extensive interviews with clergy and parishioners as well as historical, legal and policy analysis, the book argues that the nature of the involvement of churches in post-communist politics depended on whether the interests of the church (for example, in education, the legal system or economic activity) were accommodated or threatened: if accommodated, churches confined themselves to the sacred domain; if threatened they engaged in daily politics.

Socialism in the 21st Century

Edited by Anil Rajimwale and M. Vijaya Kumar

The present collection contains papers of the first national workshop organised by the All India Progressive Forum (AIPF) on '21st Century Socialism' in Hyderabad. The papers discuss many old and new aspects of socialism, social revolution and transformation. They emphasize that scientific and technological revolution has added new features to the theory of social transformation, and has reopened many issues settled by history of individual revolution. They argue that socialism of '21st century' will be different, in many crucial ways, than that of the 20th century. ; Please note: Taylor & Francis does not sell or distribute the Hardback in South Asia.

Routledge Handbook of Contemporary North Korea

Edited by Adrian Buzo, Macquarie University, Sydney, Australia

The Routledge Handbook of Contemporary North Korea presents a comprehensive picture of contemporary North Korea, placed in historical context, spanning a period of significant transition and set against the overlapping fields of politics, economy, culture, society and foreign relations. The volume's nineteen chapters are representative of the growth in North Korean studies that has occurred since the 1990s, in parallel with the end of military-backed authoritarian rule in South Korea in 1987, as well as far greater levels of access to the North. The volume is divided into five sections, each reflecting an emergent area of debate and research.

Suzhou in Transition

Edited by Beibei Tang, Xi'an Jiaotong-Liverpool University, China and Paul Cheung

Series: Routledge Studies on China in Transition

Through the lens of the city of Suzhou, this edited volume presents views on the complex interaction between the central state, market agents, local governments and individuals who have shaped the development of Chinese cities and urban life. Featuring a range of disciplinary perspectives, contributors to this volume have all undertaken research in one municipality – Suzhou – to consider how history and culture has evolved during the modernisation of Chinese cities and the transformation of urban space, as well as shifting rural-urban relations and urban life during the reform era.

Ten Lectures on Education

Pedagogic and Sociological Sensibilities

Avijit Pathak

This book - written with theoretical rigor, sociological sensibility and poetic beauty - reveals the intensity of classroom lectures. In the age of 'virtual intimacy', the author retains the courage to celebrate the spirit of direct, face-to-face classroom interactions. As he delivers a series of lectures on education, pedagogy and cultural politics, and engages with his students at Jawaharlal Nehru University, the book begins to take its shape. It invites the readers to raise critical questions, sharpen their socio-political vision, and reflect on educational practices and pedagogic possibilities; Please note: Taylor & Francis does not sell or distribute the Hardback in South Asia.

The Chinese Internet

The Online Public Sphere, Power Relations and Political Communication

Qingning Wang

Series: Media, Culture and Social Change in Asia

This book discusses the use of the internet in China, the complicated power relations in online political communications, and the interactions and struggles between the government and the public over the use of the internet. It argues that there is a "semi-structured" online public sphere, in which there is a certain amount of equal and liberal political communication, but that the online political debates are also limited by government control and censorship, as well as by inequality and exclusions, and moreover that the government rarely engages in the political debates.

In-Between Border Spaces in the Levant

Edited by Daniel Meier, CNRS-PACTE, France

Series: Routledge Studies in Mediterranean Politics

This book focuses on interstitial spaces or in-between borders in the Middle East. Using various case studies, it raises the question how actors living in these regions perform their belonging despite the apparent constraints of history and politics, and each case study highlights how actors, territory and powers relate to each other in order to improve our understanding of historical and political process that are shaping identities under spatial constraints.

The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the journal, Mediterranean Politics.

Indigenous Land Rights in Israel

A Comparative Study of the Bedouin

Morad Elsana

Series: Routledge Studies in Middle Eastern Politics

Introducing the Negev Bedouin land issue from the international indigenous land rights perspective, this comparative study suggests options for the recognition of their land. The book demonstrates that the Bedouin land dispossession, like many indigenous peoples', progressed through several phases that included eviction and displacement, legislation, and judicial decisions that support acts of dispossession and deny the Bedouin's traditional land rights.

Proposing practical recommendations for the recognition of Bedouin land, the volume is a key resource to scholars and students interested in land rights, international law, comparative

British-born Black African Youth and Educational Social Capital

Alganesh Messele, University of East London, UK

Series: Routledge Studies on African and Black Diaspora

Through the voice of British-born Black African youth, this book explores why some racial-ethnic and linguistic minority students fail academically while students from other linguistic minorities excel. Drawing on interpretive-qualitative research analysis, the author demonstrates the racial dimension of social capital in education that challenges the traditional social capital theory that recodes structural notions of racial inequality as primarily cultural, social, and human capital processes and interactions. This book will be of interest to practitioners and scholars of Multicultural Education, Black Studies and the African Diaspora.

Colonialism, Ethnicity and War in Angola

Vasco Martins, University of Coimbra, Portugal

Series: Routledge Studies in the Modern History of Africa

This book explores the impact of social, political and economic change upon the largest ethnic group in Angola, the Ovimbundu. Based on extensive fieldwork including oral testimonies and life stories, participant-observation, and archival materials, this book shifts the viewpoint from the colonial enterprise to focus on African experiences and responses. The author analyses the transformations introduced by Christianity and colonialization and how they contributed to politicised modern notions of ethnic identity and assisted UNITA's mobilisation of the Ovimbundu during the civil-war. This book will be of interest to scholars of African history and politics.

Foreign Policy in North Africa

Navigating Global, Regional and Domestic Transformations

Edited by Irene Fernandez Molina, University of Exeter, UK and Miguel Hernando de Larramendi, Universidad de Castilla-La Mancha, Spain

This volume explores how the foreign policies of North African states have responded to the constraints and opportunities stemming from multi-level transformations in the 2010s. Building on existing scholarship and the impact of the 2011 Arab uprisings, case studies include Tunisia's financial predicaments and foreign debt negotiations; Egypt's relationship with Saudi Arabia; Algeria's policies towards the conflicts in Libya and Mali; Morocco's power balance between the monarchy and the Islamist-led government; Libya's state weakness and internal competition among proliferating actors. The volume concludes by examining post-2011 developments in the Algerian-Moroccan rivalry.

Literary Black Power in the Caribbean

Fiction, Music and Film

Rita Keresztesi, University of Oklahoma, USA

Series: African Diaspora Literary and Cultural Studies

This volume is groundbreaking in its focus on the creative arts and artists in their evaluations of, and insights on, the relevance of the Black Power message. The author takes a cultural studies approach to bring together the political with the aesthetic, enriching an already fertile debate on the era and the subject of Black Power in the Caribbean region. The chapters discuss various aspects of Black Power in the Caribbean: on the pages of journals and magazines, at contemporary conferences that radicalized academia to join forces with communities, in fiction and essays by writers and intellectuals, in calypso and reggae music, and in the first films produced in the Caribbean.

Oil and Development in Ghana

Beyond the Resource Curse

Nathan Andrews, University of Northern British Columbia, Canada and Pius Siakwah, University of Ghana

Series: Routledge Studies on the Political Economy of Africa

A comprehensive overview of Ghana's hydrocarbon economy using actor network and assemblage theories to contest the methodological nationalism of mainstream accounts of the resource curse. Drawing upon recent field research on Ghana's oil and gas sector, the authors contend that there is an assemblage of political, economic, social and environmental networks, processes, actions, actors and structures of power that coalesce to determine the extent to which the country's hydrocarbon resources could be regarded as a 'curse' or 'blessing'. This book will be of interest to scholars of African

Social Media and Everyday Life in South Africa

Tanja E Bosch, University of Cape Town, South Africa

Series: Routledge Contemporary South Africa

This volume explores how, over the past decade, social media platforms have deeply penetrated the fabric of everyday life. The author considers South Africans' use of wearable tech and use of online health and sports tracking systems via mobile phones within the broader context of the digital data economy. The author also focuses on the dating app Tinder, to show how people negotiate and redefine intimacy through the practice of online dating via strategic performances in pursuit of love, sex and intimacy. The book concludes with the use of Facebook and Twitter for social activism e.g. Fees Must Fall; as well as networked community building as in the case of the #ImStaying movement.

Transport Planning and Mobility in Urban East Africa

Edited by Nadine Appelhans, TU Dortmund University, Germany, Wolfgang Scholz, Technische Universität Dortmund, Germany and Sabine Baumgart, Technische Universität Dortmund, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in African Geography

Bringing together contributions on the futures of mobility in urban East Africa, this book examines transport provision, mobility patterns, location specific modes of transport and transformative factors for transport and mobility. Based on critical questioning of the decision-making process in transport planning and the level of accountability to the public, this edited volume shows the dialectic between innovation in transport/mobility and urban development and discusses how to practically integrate mobility and transport provision into planning. This book will be of interest to scholars in urban planning, transport planning, transport geography, social sciences and African studies.

Christianity and Private Law

Edited by Robert F. Cochran, Jr and Michael P. Moreland
Series: Law and Religion

This volume examines the relationship between Christian legal theory and the fields of private law.

While this book is focused on the relationship of Christianity to private law, it will be of broad interest to those who might not share that faith perspective. In particular, legal historians and philosophers of law will find much of interest in the original scholarship in this volume. The book will be attractive to teachers of law, political science, and theology. It will be of special interest to the many law faculty in property, contracts, and torts, as it provides a set of often overlooked historical and theoretical perspectives on these fields.

International Investment Protection within Europe

The EU's Assertion of Control

Julien Berger

Series: Routledge Research in International Economic Law

This book analyses the conflict between the two investment protection regimes applicable within the EU. It addresses the more general question of the relationship between EU and international law and offers a conceptual framework of intra-European investment protection based on the analysis of all intra-EU BITs, the Energy Charter Treaty and EU law, as well as the arbitral practice in over 180 intra-EU investor-State arbitration proceedings. It also develops possible solutions to reconcile the international legal standards of protection with the regionalized transnational law of the European Union.

Health Data Privacy under the GDPR

Big Data Challenges and Regulatory Responses

Edited by Maria Tzanou

Series: Routledge Research in the Law of Emerging Technologies

This book examines health and big data questions in light of the GDPR and the EU's general data privacy legal framework. It addresses the opportunities and challenges of big health data and considers the GDPR's responses to these. The book answers a diverse range of questions including: Are the solutions to the challenges posed by big health data to be found in the law? What role can data protection and the GDPR play in this respect? Does the GDPR provide adequate tools to ensure effective protection of our health privacy whilst still allowing for technological innovation? How does the GDPR deal with big health data that concern women's bodies and children's health?

Law, Migration and Precarious Labour

Ecotechnics of the Social

Anastasia Tataryn

Providing a radical new approach to labour migration, this book challenges the prevailing legal and political construction of the figure of the irregular migrant labourer, whilst at the same time reimagining this irregularity as the basis of an alternative, post-capitalist, sociality. The text draws on the work of contemporary philosopher Jean-Luc Nancy, and more specifically his term 'ecotechnics', in order to examine how economic, political and juridical norms deny the full legal status of certain people who are deemed to be irregular. This powerful analysis is of considerable interest to legal and political theorists, philosophers, labour lawyers, and migration experts.

Medical Treatment of Children and the Law

Beyond Parental Responsibilities

Jo Bridgeman

Series: Biomedical Law and Ethics Library

The high profile cases of Charlie Gard, Alfie Evans, and Tafida Raqeeb raised the questions why the state intrudes into the exercise of parental responsibility concerning the medical treatment of children and why parents may not be permitted to decide what is in the best interests of their child. This book answers these questions and argues for a different understanding of the law concerning the medical treatment of children.

Socialism and Legal History

The Histories and Historians of Law in Socialist East Central Europe

Edited by Ville Erkkilä and Hans-Peter Haferkamp

Series: Routledge Research in Legal History

This book focuses on the way in which legal historians and legal scientists used the past to legitimize, challenge, explain and familiarize the socialist legal orders, which were backed by dictatorial governments.

Studying the socialist interpretations of legal history reveals the ways in which the 20th century legal scholars, situated between legal renewal and political guidance gave legitimacy to, struggled to come to terms with, and sketched the future of the socialist legal orders.

The book will be a valuable resource for academics and researchers working in the areas of Legal History, Jurisprudence and Philosophy of Law and European Studies.

She Took Justice

The Black Woman, Law, and Power – 1619 to 1969

Gloria J. Browne-Marshall

Series: Criminology and Justice Studies

She Took Justice proves the Black Woman liberated herself. Readers go on a journey from the invasion of Africa into the Colonial period and the Civil Rights Movement. The Black Woman reveals power from Queen Nzingha to Shirley Chisholm. These are engaging true stories. Each riveting chapter shows that for most of American history, the law was an enemy to the Black Woman. Using perseverance, tenacity, intelligence and faith, she turned the law into a weapon to combat discrimination, a prestigious occupation, and a platform from which she could lift others as she rose.

Agent-Based Modelling for Criminological Theory Testing and Development

Edited by Henk Elffers and Charlotte Gerritsen
Series: Crime Science Series

Agent-based Modelling for Criminological Theory Testing and Development addresses the question whether and how we can use simulation methods in order to test criminological theories, and if they fail to be corroborated, how we can use simulation to mend and further develop theories.

The book will be of great interest to scholars of criminology (in particular computational criminologists and theoretical criminologists) and artificial intelligence (with an emphasis on AI for generative social processes), and more widely researchers in social science in general. It will also be of valuable for master courses in quantitative criminology.

Cross-Border Police Collaboration

Building Communities of Practice in the Baltic Sea Area

Sophia Yakhlef
Series: Innovations in Policing

This book focuses on a border police collaboration project in the Baltic Sea area aiming at fighting cross-border crimes. It deals with the challenges that inherently "suspicious" organizations face when forced to work together. The study offers unique insights into a European border police project, giving the reader a behind the scenes account of how cross-border policing and organized crime in Europe is prevented and solved. This book is of interest to scholars as well as practitioners concerned with migration management, border policing, intelligence analysis, police culture, and the changing nature of policing in an increasingly global and interconnected world.

Redefining Murder, Transforming Emotion

An Exploration of Forgiveness after Loss Due to Homicide

Kristen Lee Discola

Series: Routledge Studies in Crime and Society

Offering insights based on years of original research, Redefining Murder, Transforming Emotion: An Exploration of Forgiveness after Loss Due to Homicide investigates the ideas and experiences of individuals who have lost loved ones to homicide (co-victims) in order to advance our understanding of the emotional transformation of forgiveness. It stands at the crux of two vibrant, growing fields: criminal victimology and the sociology of emotion. Analysis of 36 intensive interviews with co-victims and three years of participant observation of self-help groups and other victim-centered events offers a multidimensional understanding of forgiveness.

Routledge Handbook on American Prisons

Edited by Laurie A. Gould and John J. Brent

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

This authoritative volume provides an overview of the state of U.S. prisons and synthesizes the research on the many facets of the prison system. The United States is exceptional in its use of incarceration as punishment. It not only has the largest prison population in the world, but also the highest per-capita incarceration rate. Research and debate about mass incarceration continues to grow, with mounting bipartisan agreement on the need for criminal justice reform. With contributions from leading scholars around the globe, this book is a valuable resource for scholars with an interest in U.S. prisons and the issues surrounding them.

Anarchist Accounting

Accounting Principles for a Democratic Economy

Anders Sandström

This book is about accounting in an alternative libertarian socialist economic system. It explores what information and transactions we need to enable democratic and effective financial decisions by those affected by the decisions. Based on the economic model Participatory Economics, the author proposes a set of accounting principles for an economy comprised of common ownership of productive resources, worker and consumer councils, and democratic planning, promoting the model's core values. This is a comprehensive and valuable supplementary text for courses touching on critical accounting theory.

Learning, Environment and Sustainable Development

A History of Ideas

William Scott and Paul Vare

This book is an introduction to the long history of human learning, the environment and sustainable development – about our struggles with the natural world; first for survival, then for dominance, currently for self-preservation, and in future perhaps, even for long-term, mutually-beneficial co-existence. It charts the long arc of human-environment relationships through the specific lens of human learning, putting on record many of the people, ideas and events that have contributed, often unwittingly, to the global movement for sustainable development. The book is of particular interest to those studying (and teaching) courses with a focus on socio-economic and environmental sustainability.

The Digitalization of the 21st Century Supply Chain

Stuart M. Rosenberg

The goal of the book is to gain a clear picture of the current status and future challenges with regard to the digitalization of the supply chain – from the perspective of the suppliers, the manufacturers and the customers. They were the target groups of the book.

In order to reap maximum benefits from digital supply chain models, it is important that companies internalize it as an integral part of the overall business model and organizational structure. Localized disconnected projects, and silo based operations pose a serious threat to competitiveness in an increasingly digital world.

The Ethics of Neuroscience and National Security

Nicholas G. Evans

This book is the first broad survey of neuroscience ethics as it applies to national security. It shows how advances in neuroscience and new technologies raise ethical issues that challenge the norms of law enforcement, intelligence collection and armed conflict. The technologies considered include behavior prediction and modification tools, human enhancement, and novel lethal and nonlethal weapons, whilst the risks include incomplete scientific understanding, 'dual-use' technologies, and political contexts. The book also looks at policy and regulatory options, at various authority levels and development stages, that could mitigate risk.

The Sustainability Grand Challenge

A Wicked Learning Workbook

Edited by Michael Gibbert, Liisa Välikangas and Marijane Luistro-Jonsson

The Wicked Learning Workbook is a toolkit for setting up, running and evaluating Masters' level courses involving interdisciplinary and inter-university groups of students in the context of real-world 'wicked' problems that relate to sustainability. The approach presented in the book develops students' understanding of the UN Sustainable Development Goals as broad-scale societal issues (wicked problems), which are difficult, if not seemingly impossible, to 'solve'. The book also provides a roadmap for universities to develop innovative teaching across institutions, cultures, and the world of practice.

Entrepreneurship in Africa

Context and Perspectives

Ven Sriram, University of Baltimore, USA, David Lingelbach, Tigineh Mersha, University of Baltimore, USA and Franklyn Manu

Series: Global Entrepreneurship

It is now widely recognised that in regions like Africa, for economic and other reasons, the public sector has had to transition away from several areas of the economy and allow private enterprise, especially scalable start-ups and new ventures, to enter and flourish if economic development and employment are to grow. By focusing on the distinctive features of entrepreneurship in the African context, and taking a conversational tone, this is an informative and practical text that will be useful for students of Global Entrepreneurship and Business as well as actual and prospective entrepreneurs in the private, non-profit and public sectors.

Chinese Organizations in Sub-Saharan Africa

New Dynamics, New Synergies

Edited by Terence Jackson, Middlesex University, UK, Lynette Louw, Rhodes University, South Africa and Dev K. (Roshan) Boojihawon, Open University, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in International Business and the World Economy

Trade between China and Africa is increasing year on year, while the West increasingly debates the nature and implications of China's presence. Yet little research exists at organizational and community levels. While western press reporting is overwhelmingly negative, African governments mostly welcome the Chinese presence. This book seeks to provide a theoretical framework for understanding Chinese organization and management in Africa, and to explore how their interventions are playing out at organizational and community level in sub-Saharan Africa.

Entrepreneurial Urban Regeneration

Business Improvement Districts as a Form of Organizational Innovation

Edited by Rezart Prifti, University of Tirana, Albania and Fatma Jaupi, University of Tirana, Albania

Series: Routledge Focus on Business and Management

In today's world, towns and cities dynamically develop over time and that's why urban regeneration is a widely experienced phenomenon. How can Business Improvement Districts (BIDs) create necessary conditions for the development of these phenomena? What is the role that BIDs have in entrepreneurial urbanism, supporting SMEs, city marketing and city branding? These are questions examined in this volume, in an effort to provide an extensive analysis of business improvement districts. Enriched with an analysis of various case studies, the book analyses the importance, benefits, and impacts of this kind of organization.

Motivation in Organisations

Searching for a Meaningful Work-Life Balance

Edited by Manuel Guillen

Series: Humanistic Management

This book extends the current motivation models in business education to include motives of human behaviour that have been neglected for decades. It debunks some of the myths on human motivation and explains why this approach to teaching business is erroneous and leads to wrong and harmful practices in many organisations. In a very personal and engaging style, the author presents a "Map of Motivations", based on a humanistic approach to management. The book is highly relevant to students and researchers in Humanistic Management, People Management, Organisational Behaviour, Business Ethics, Corporate Social Responsibility and Sustainability.

Organizational Entrepreneurship, Politics and the Political

Edited by Carine Farias, Pablo Fernandez, Daniel Hjorth, Copenhagen Business School, Denmark and Robin Holt

Organizational Entrepreneurship, Politics and the Political disconnects entrepreneurship from the politics of enterprise to more fully explore its potential to resist the economic and ethical demand of the enterprise to be instrumentally innovative and instead to disrupt and disturb the established order. As such, entrepreneurship is seen as inevitably political; it is a constant attempt at declassifying existing structures and institutions, de-normalizing practices and sensemaking, to make room for and initiate the new.

The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the Entrepreneurship and Regional Development.

Public Relations and Sustainable Citizenship

Representing the Unrepresented

Debashish Munshi, University of Waikato, New Zealand and Priya Kurian, The University of Waikato, New Zealand

Series: Routledge Insights in Public Relations Research

This book examines how public relations might re-imagine itself as an instrument of "sustainable citizenship" by exploring alternative models of representing and building relationships with marginalised publics that disrupt the standard discourses of public relations. Anchored by postcolonial theory and subaltern historiography, the book focuses on how public relations can be deployed as sustainable citizenship across three core elements of the earth – air, water, and land – taking an inter-disciplinary approach that blends social and political theories with communication theories. It will be of interest to anyone invested in the theoretical foundation of critical public relations.

Research Companion to Language and Country Branding

Edited by Irene Theodoropoulou and Johanna Tovar
Series: Routledge Studies in Language and Identity

Research Companion to Language and Country Branding brings together entirely new interdisciplinary research conducted by scholars working on various sociolinguistic, semiotic, anthropological and discursive analytical aspects of country branding all over the world.

This volume explores how countries and regions imagine and portray others and themselves in terms of gender, ethnicity, and diversity today as well as the past. In this respect, the book examines how branding differs from other, related policies and practices, such as nation building, banal nationalism, and populism.

Strategic University Management

Future Proofing Your Institution

Edited by Loren Falkenberg and M. Elizabeth Cannon

Series: Routledge Focus on Business and Management

Universities are being buffeted by multiple disruptive trends, including increased competition for both funding and students, as well as from new institutions that are nimbler and more responsive to the external environment. To survive this reality, university leaders must engage in effective strategic planning. With increasing expectations for university leaders to engage in strategic planning, this book provides a practical framework for managing the process and delivering results. This book illustrates that the inherent weaving of strategic planning and organizational culture through engaged consultation facilitates a culture of responsiveness, rather than complacency.

The Routledge Companion to International Hospitality Management

Edited by Marco A. Gardini, Michael C. Ottenbacher and Markus Schuckert

Series: Routledge Companions in Business, Management and Marketing

The hospitality sector is facing increasing competition and complexity over recent decades on its development towards a global industry. The strategic response to this is still that hospitality companies try to grow outside their traditional territories and domestic markets, while the expansion patterns and M&A activities of international hotel and restaurant chains reflect this phenomenon. This book will provide a comprehensive overview and deeper understanding of trends and issues to researchers, practitioners and students by showing how to master current and future challenges when entering and competing in the global hospitality industry.

Profit and Prejudice

The Luddites of the Fourth Industrial Revolution

Paul Donovan

Profit and Prejudice takes us through the relationship between economic success and prejudice in labour markets. It starts with the major changes that occur in periods of economic upheaval. These changes tend to be unpopular and complex – and complexity encourages people to turn to the simplistic arguments of 'scapegoat economics' and prejudice. Some of the changes of the fourth industrial revolution will help fight prejudice, but some will make it far worse. The more prejudice there is, the harder it will be for companies and countries to profit from the changes ahead. Profit is not the main argument against prejudice, but can certainly help fight it.

Capitalism, Institutions and Social Orders

The Case of Contemporary Spain

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

Capitalism, Institutions and Social Orders develops a novel political economy approach by establishing a dialogue between the Social Structures of Accumulation (SSA) theory and Ernesto Laclau's post-Marxism theory. Using this synthesis, it provides an in-depth analysis of Spain's socio-economic evolution since the early-1990s. This work is of significant interest to critical political economy and discourse-theory scholars, critical theorists in general, and social scientists concerned with the recent Spanish experience.

Family Business and Regional Development

Edited by Rodrigo Basco, American University of Sharjah, UAE, Roger Stough, George Mason University, USA and Lech Suwala, Technical University of Berlin, Germany

Series: Routledge Advances in Regional Economics, Science and Policy

This book explores the relationship between families, firms, and regions and the extent to which these relationships contribute to regional economic and social development. Although family business participation in economic activities has been a common phenomenon since pre-industrial societies, and its importance has evolved throughout time and across spatial contexts, the book suggests that these factors have often been neglected in family business and regional studies.

Food for Degrowth

Perspectives and Practices

Edited by Anitra Nelson and Ferne Edwards, Trinity College, Dublin

Series: Routledge Environmental Humanities

This book investigates applications of degrowth in a range of geographic, practical and theoretical contexts along the food chain. Degrowth challenges growth and advocates for everyday practices that limit socio-metabolic energy and material flows within planetary constraints. As such, the editors intend to map possibilities for food for degrowth to become established as a field of studies. This book will be of interest to students and scholars of critical food studies, sustainability studies, urban political ecology, geography, environmental studies such as environmental sociology, anthropology, ethnography, ecological economics and urban design and planning.

Military Spending and Global Security

Humanitarian and Environmental Perspectives

Edited by Jordi Calvo Rufanges

Series: Routledge Studies in Defence and Peace Economics

The book draws from prior knowledge and research on military expenditure but introduces an all-encompassing, in-depth and original analysis of military spending as a key and often overlooked factor of global instability, delving into the present and future consequences of its perpetual growth, as well as, confronting the reasoning behind it. The authors argue that increasing military expenditure is not the best response to the emergencies militarization itself has helped create. They assert that militarization is paradoxically both a cause of and a response to the grave challenges our society is facing.

Regionalism in Latin America

Agents, Systems and Resilience

Edited by JOSÉ BRICEÑO-RUIZ, Universidad Nacional Autónoma, Mexico, and Andrés Rivarola Puntigliano

Series: Routledge Studies in the Modern World Economy

This interdisciplinary edited volume explores the political economy of regionalism in Latin America. To understand the resilience of regionalism in Latin America, this book highlights some issues. Firstly, that resilience is linked to mechanisms of self-enforcement that are part of the accumulation of experiences, institution building, and common cultural features described in this book as regionalist acquis. Secondly, the elements and driving forces behind the promotion and expression of the regionalist acquis are influenced and shaped by nested systems in which social processes are inserted.

Rent Seeking and Human Capital

How the Hunt for Rents Is Changing Our Economic and Political Landscape

Kurt von Seekamm Jr., Salem State University, USA
Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

Rent-Seeking and Human Capital explores the debates around rent seeking and contextualizes it within the capitalist economy. This short and provocative book addresses the key questions: who are the rent seekers? What do they do? Where do they come from? What are the consequences of rent seeking for the broader economy? And finally, what should policymakers do about them? The chapters examine the existing literature on rent seeking, including looking at the differences between rent seeking, economic rent and unproductive labor. This text provides an important intervention on rent-seeking for students and scholars of heterodox economics, political economy, and inequality.

The Political Economy of State Intervention

Conserving Capital over the West's Long Depression

Gavin Poynter, University of East London, UK
Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

Through a re-examination of state intervention in the USA and Britain over the course of the "long depression" (1970-to date), this book argues that the state has performed an increasingly significant role in conserving capital, propping up an economic and social order that has lost its productive dynamism. The chapters consider factors which are usually posited as explanations for the long depression such as oil price shocks, domestic conditions and technological innovation. This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of political economy, public policy, political theory, economics and sociology.

Guan Quan and Diana Gao
Series: China Perspectives

The author deploys econometric analysis, multivariate statistical analysis and case studies from different industries to shed light on technological innovation in Japan's context with particular emphasis on the patent system. The large amount of new inventions and patents in the period led to fast economic growth in Japan characterized by the simultaneous development of both traditional and modern industries.

The book will appeal to academics of the East Asian economy, development economics and modern economic history as well as general readers interested in the miracle of the Japanese economy.

The Degrowth Alternative

A Path to Address our Environmental Crisis?

Diana Stuart, Ryan Gunderson and Brian Petersen Series: Routledge Studies in Ecological Economics

Degrowth is a planned economic contraction in wealthy countries that reduces production and consumption - and, by extension, greenhouse gas emissions and stresses on global ecosystems - to sustainable levels within ecological limits. This book explores the idea of degrowth as an economic alternative to offer a more sustainable and just future. The chapters explore what living in a degrowth society would entail and the policies needed to support degrowth. The work provides an advanced introduction to the environmental issues around degrowth for students, scholars and activists interested in economic alternatives, sustainability and the environment.

GIS Cartography

A Guide to Effective Map Design, Third Edition

Gretchen N. Peterson, PetersonGIS, Seattle, Washington, USA

Discussing map design theory and technique rather than map design tools, this book focuses on digital cartography and its best practices. The third edition has completely new sections on how to deal with maps that go viral and the ethics, presentation techniques, features such as amenities, climate data, and hazards, the Equal Earth projection, and vector tile design considerations. All chapters are thoroughly updated with new illustrations and sections for datasets that didn't exist when the 2nd edition was published, as well as new techniques and trends in cartography. This edition is faithful to the original vision that cartography instruction should be software agnostic.

Non-representational Theory

Paul Simpson, University of Plymouth, UK

Series: Key Ideas in Geography

The title explores a range of ideas which have recently engaged geographers and have led to the development of an alternative approach to the conception, practice, and production of geographic knowledge. It offers the first sole-authored, accessible introduction to this work and its impact on geography drawing together the work of a range of established and emerging scholars working on the development of non-representational theories. This volume is essential reading for undergraduates and post-graduate students interested in the social, cultural, and political geographies of everyday living.

Urban Regeneration in the UK

Andrew Tallon, University of the West of England, UK

The textbook provides a comprehensive and critical synthesis of urban regeneration in the UK incorporating key philosophies, approaches, policies, issues, debates and overall critiques from the 1940s up until the late 2010s. The central objective is to place the historical and contemporary regeneration agenda into context. The major changes to the new edition are that the urban agenda and changes to regeneration policies under the Coalition government/Conservative government of the period 2010-2017 are assessed, as well as the influences of economic uncertainty, austerity and Brexit. Advances in the academic literature, policy, and city case studies are also incorporated.

Affective Spaces

Architecture and the Living Body

Federico De Matteis

Series: Ambiances, Atmospheres and Sensory Experiences of Spaces

This book explores the notion of affective space in relation to architecture. It helps to understand the first-person, direct experience of the environment and how it impacts on a person's emotional states, influencing their perception of the world around.

The book's theoretical foundation rests on a wide range of non-architectural sources, primarily from philosophy, anthropology and the cognitive sciences, which is strengthened through cases drawn from actual architectural and urban space.

These cases thus make the book more comprehensible for readers not versed in contemporary philosophical trends.

River Basin Organizations in Water Diplomacy

Edited by Anoulak Kittikhoun, Mekong River Commission, Laos and Susanne Schmeier, IHE Delft Institute for Water Education, The Netherlands

Series: Global Institutions

Will tensions and disputes among states sharing international water courses and lakes turn into active conflicts? Addressing this question, the book shows that these concerns are more prominent due to the locations and underlying political dynamics of some of these large rivers and the strategic interests of major powers. Contributing to the academic discourse on transboundary water management and water conflict and cooperation, the book provides insights to policy-makers on which water diplomacy engagements can be successful, the strengths to build on, and the pitfalls to avoid so that shared water resources are managed in a cooperative, sustainable and stable way.

The Confines of Territory

Edited by John Agnew

Series: Regions and Cities

In its first seven years, the journal Territory, Politics, Governance has published numerous articles examining the ways in which territory figures into contemporary political debates and its limits as a concept when applied to a world in which sovereignty never has simply pooled up within self-evidently distinctive blocs of space named as 'territories.'

The articles in this book are selected from Territory, Politics, Governance to survey many of the dilemmas and questions that haunt the concept of territory even as its current efflorescence in political discourse ignores them.

Buen Vivir as an Alternative to Sustainable Development

Lessons from Ecuador

Natasha Chassagne

Series: Routledge Studies in Sustainable Development

This book explores how communities understand and practice Buen Vivir, an alternative to the current model of sustainable development. Until recently, the concept of Buen Vivir has only been loosely articulated by practising communities and in progressive policy. This book, based on extensive theoretical and field research, offers a concrete way forward. Exploring Buen Vivir's evolution from its indigenous origins, academic interpretations and implications for development policy; to its role in endogenous, community-led change, this book will be of interest to policymakers, activists, students and scholars of sustainability and development.

Climate Change, Disasters, and Internal Displacement in Asia and the Pacific

A Human Rights-Based Approach

Edited by Matthew Scott and Albert Salama

Series: Routledge Studies in Development, Displacement and Resettlement

This book examines how states in eight countries across Asia and the Pacific address internal displacement in the context of disasters and climate change. The collection adopts a human rights-based approach, investigating the role of law and policy in preventing displacement, protecting people who are displaced, and engendering durable solutions. The cases in the book reflect critically on the term 'displacement', and the wider normative framework within which this phenomenon is conceptualised. The book will be of interest to students and practitioners working at the intersection of human rights, human

Reducing Inter-generational Ethnic Poverty

Economics, Psychology and Culture

Greg Clydesdale, Lincoln University, New Zealand

This book looks at human capital development and provides an explanation for why cognitive development varies among ethnic groups. The book uses an interdisciplinary approach to examine inter-generational ethnic poverty. It puts forth an argument that the ethnic poverty gap can be reduced and to do so, we need a broader view of human capital which considers the match between the nature of the economy and the specific capabilities needed. The book focuses on the interrelationship between developmental psychology and socio-economic status and argues the most important relationship in a knowledge economy is actually the one between a parent and a child.

Why the World Needs Anthropologists

Edited by Dan Podjed, Meta Gorup, Pavel Borecký and Carla Guerrón Montero

Why the World Needs Anthropologists considers what anthropologists do, why their insights matter, and how they can add new perspectives on cultural concerns and socio-political issues. Exploring the social value and practical application of anthropology, the book offers a valuable guide to anthropological work beyond the academy. The contributors share their career path and ways in which they use their anthropological skills and knowledge both inside and outside of academia. Addressing topics as varied as sustainability, organizational change, social entrepreneurship, and development, they suggest practical ways anthropology can be used to change the world for the better.

Food Identities at Home and on the Move

Explorations at the Intersection of Food, Belonging and Dwelling

Edited by Raul Matta, Charles-Edouard de Suremain and Chantal Crenn

Series: Home

How does food restore the fragmented world of migrants and the displaced? What similar processes are involved in challenging, maintaining or reinforcing divisions between groups coexisting in the same living place? Food Identities at Home and on the Move examines how 'home' is negotiated around food in the current worldwide context of uncertainty, mobility and displacement. Drawing on empirical approaches to heritage, identity and migration studies, the contributors analyse the relationship between food and the various understandings of

Lineages and Advancements in Material Culture Studies

Perspectives from UCL Anthropology

Edited by Timothy Carroll, University College London, UK, Antonia Walford, UCL, UK and Shireen Walton

This volume comprises a curated conversation between members of the Material Culture Section of UCL Anthropology. In laying out the state of play in the field, it challenges how the anthropology of material culture is being done and argues for new directions of enquiry and new methods of investigation. The case studies draw from a range of contexts, including digital objects, infrastructure, data, extra-terrestriality, ethnographic curation, and medical materiality. They include timely reappraisals of now classical analytical models that have shaped the way we understand the object, the discipline, knowledge formation, and the artefact.

Swarn Singh Kahlon

This book is the third in the trilogy of books looking Sikh migration in Continental Europe following Sikhs in Latin America and Sikhs in Asia Pacific. Earlier Sikh migration was focused on the British Commonwealth and the USA. Once restrictions were placed on entering the UK, the Sikhs were forced to explore the possibility of migrating to other countries including Continental Europe.; The author describes how Sikhs have kept up their traditions through 'Nagar Kirtans', Turban, Youth Summer camps, and 'sewa'. There are almost 140 gurdwaras in Europe with a meagre population of less than a quarter million.

Sounding Out Japan

A Sensory Ethnographic Tour

Richard Chenhall, Tamara Kohn and Carolyn S. Stevens

Series: Sensory Studies

This book takes the reader on a sensory ethnographic tour in Japan and describes the many ways sounds seep into everyday experiences. So many ethnographies describe local worlds with a deep attention to what is seen and what people say, but with a limited understanding of the broader sonic environments that enrich and inform everyday life. The authors use various analytic frames to understand the communicative and symbolic aspects of sounds, and to sense the layers of historical meaning, embodied action and affect associated with sonic environments.

The Anthropologist as Curator

Edited by Roger Sansi

Why do contemporary art curators define their work as ethnography? How can curation illuminate the practice of contemporary anthropology? Does anthropology risk disappearing as a specific discipline within the general model of the curatorial? The Anthropologist as Curator collects together the research of international scholars working at the intersection of anthropology and contemporary art in order to explore these questions.

Witchcraft Accusations from Central India

The Fragmented Urn

Helen Macdonald, University of Cape Town, South Africa

This book unravels the institutions surrounding witchcraft in the central Indian state of Chhattisgarh through theoretical and empirical research on witchcraft, violence and modernity in contemporary times. The author pieces together 'fragments' of stories gathered utilising ethnographic methods to examine the meanings associated with witches and witchcraft, and how they connect with social relations, gender, notions of agency, law, media and the state.

Waiting and the Temporalities of Irregular Migration

Edited by Christine M. Jacobsen, Marry-Anne Karlsen and Shahram Khosravi

This volume approaches waiting both as a social phenomenon that proliferates in irregularised forms of migration and as an analytical perspective on migration processes and practices.

Waiting as an analytical perspective offers new insights into the complex and shifting nature of processes of bordering, belonging, state power, exclusion and inclusion, and social relations in irregular migration. It will be relevant to scholars from anthropology and sociology, and others interested in temporalities, migration, borders, and power.

Wandering the Wards

An Ethnography of Hospital Care and its Consequences for People Living with Dementia

Katie Featherstone and Andy Northcott

Series: Routledge Studies in Health and Medical Anthropology

Wandering the Wards provides a detailed and unflinching ethnographic examination of life within the contemporary hospital. It reveals the institutional and ward cultures that inform the organisation and delivery of everyday care for one of the largest populations within them: people living with dementia who require urgent unscheduled hospital care.

Airbnb, Short-Term Rentals and the Future of Housing

Lily M. Hoffman and Barbara Schmitter Heisler

How do Airbnb and short-term rentals affect housing and communities? Locating the origins and success of Airbnb in the conditions wrought by the 2008 financial crisis, the authors bring together a diverse body of literature and construct case studies of cities in US, Australia and Germany to examine the struggles of local authorities to protect their housing and neighborhoods from the increasing professionalization and commercialization of Airbnb.

Climate Changed

Refugee Border Stories and the Business of Misery

Daniel Briggs

Climate Changed is an honest and humane account about the rapid downsizing of the world's natural resources and the consequences this has for millions of people who, year after year, are displaced from their home countries because of politically-instigated and economically-justified war and conflict. Even if their labour is in demand, all this is further exacerbated by a European social climate of intolerance and stigma which jeopardises integration and counters their wellbeing and safety. The climate has changed.

2nd Edition • NEW EDITION

Reinvention

Anthony Elliott, University of South Australia, Australia

In this new, updated edition of this remarkable book, Anthony Elliott examines "reinvention" as a key buzzword of our times. The second edition of Reinvention includes a new chapter on the digital revolution and artificial intelligence, which situates reinvention within the context of technological automation. There is also a discussion of how the Covid-19 global pandemic has impacted today's cultures of reinvention. In addition, there is a new concluding chapter in which the author develops further his theoretical account of the nature of reinvention societies. This absorbing book will continue to be the ideal introduction to reinvention for students and general readers alike.

Social Analysis and the COVID-19 Crisis

A Collective Journal

Suman Gupta, The Open University, UK, Richard Allen, The Open University, United Kingdom, Maitrayee Basu, University of the Arts London, UK, Fabio Akcelrud Durão, State University of Campinas (Unicamp), Brazil, Ayan-Yue Gupta, University of Bristol, UK, Milena Katsarska, Plovdiv University Paisii Hilendarski, Bulgaria, Sebastian Schuller, Ludwig Maximilian University of Munich, Germany, John Seed and Peter H. Tu, General Electric Research, USA

This book is a collective journal of the COVID-19 pandemic. Featuring contributors located in India, USA, Brazil, UK, Germany, and Bulgaria, it presents first-hand accounts of the pandemic as it unfolded around the world. It documents the beginning of social distancing and lockdown measures as the authors reflect on themes such as the reorganization of political debates and issues, the experience of the marginalized, theodicy, government policy responses, and shifts into digital space under lockdown. The book will be useful to students and researchers of sociology, public health, political economy, public policy, and comparative politics.

The New Demagogues

Religion, Masculinity and the Populist Epoch

Joshua M. Roose, Deakin University, Australia

Series: Routledge Studies in Political Sociology

Focused on the emergence of US President Donald Trump, the UK's departure from the EU and the recruitment of Islamic State foreign fighters from Western Muslim communities, this book explores the ways in which the decay and corruption of key social institutions has created a vacuum of intellectual and moral guidance that has been exploited by new demagogues who mobilize both religion and masculinity to gain support. Identifying the challenges that this poses for western liberal democracy, the author proposes that states must look beyond identity and rights-based politics to consider classical conceptions of citizenship.

Getting Through Security

Counterterrorism, Bureaucracy, and a Sense of the Modern

Mark Maguire and David A. Westbrook
 With the ongoing controversies about the police use force, it is more timely than ever to examine the elite and secretive world of counterterrorism policing. Getting Through Security offers this look behind the scenes of global security structures, in a world haunted by the knowledge that intelligence will fail. Based on extraordinary access to covert counterterrorism programs, the book covers topics from European airports to African bars to explore counterterrorism today. Maguire and Westbrook reflect on what these practices mean for the bureaucratic state and its violence, and offer suggestions for the perennial challenge to secure not just modern life, but humane politics.

On Human Nature

The Biology and Sociology of What Made Us Human

Series: Evolutionary Analysis in the Social Sciences
 Beginning with pressures on hominins to become bipedal as they were forced from forest canopies to open habitats, human nature is an inherited legacy shaped by the pressures that made humans' hominin ancestors more social and group oriented. Combining sociology, evolutionary biology, cladistic biology, and comparative neuroanatomy to examine human nature, Turner sees human nature as a series of overlapping complexes that are the outcome of the inherited legacy of great apes being fed through the transforming effects of a larger brain, speech, and culture.

Austerity Across Europe

Lived Experiences of Economic Crises

Edited by Sarah Marie Hall, University of Manchester, UK, Helena Pimlott-Wilson, Loughborough University, UK and John Horton, University of Northampton, UK
 Drawing together multidisciplinary research exploring everyday life in Europe during a time of economic crisis, this book explores the ways in which austerity policies are lived, felt and experienced, with attention to the measures used by individuals, families and communities to help them 'get by'. Arranged around the themes of intergenerational relations and exchanges, ways of coping through crises, and community, civic and state infrastructures, Austerity Across Europe will appeal to social scientists with interests in everyday life, family practices, neoliberal state policy, poverty and socio-economic inequalities.

Civil Society: Between Concepts and Empirical Grounds

Edited by Liv Egholm, Copenhagen Business School, Denmark and Lars Bo Kaspersen, Copenhagen Business School, Denmark
Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology
 This book reveals the contextual nature of the process through which civil society develops, presenting case studies that analyse the manner in which civil society has been practised and transformed over time, and developing a novel theoretical framework to shed new light on familiar questions pertaining to its boundaries and spaces of action. A fresh intervention in the study of a concept that has been central in defining ideas of solidarity and the common good, and to which researchers and politicians look for solutions to the great challenges of our time, this book will appeal to scholars of sociology, politics, history and philosophy with interests in civil society.

Contentious Cities

Design and the Gendered Production of Space

Edited by Jess Berry, Monash University, Australia, Timothy Moore, Monash University, Australia, Nicole Kalms, Monash University, Australia and Gene Bawden, Monash University, Australia
Series: Gender, Bodies and Transformation
 Grounded in feminist and queer methods, this book offers unique interdisciplinary approaches to understanding gendered spatial equity in the urban environment, exploring the means by which design-tactics might affect the ways in which women and people of diverse gender and sexual identity inhabit, occupy and move through urban space. An examination of the ways in which design might shift toward safer and more inclusive cities, Contentious Cities will appeal to scholars of sociology, gender

Housing and Domestic Abuse

Policy into Practice

Edited by Yorick Irving-Clarke, Chartered Institute of Housing, UK and Kelly Henderson, Durham University, UK

Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology

Housing and Domestic Abuse provides an analysis of how housing policy has been historically utilised in responding to domestic abuse. The authors trace the history of policy from the feminist roots of the refuge movement, to the use of 'anti-social behaviour' legislation to address abuse, and the current proposals being considered.

This book will be of interest to academics, policy makers and practitioners across the fields of housing and domestic abuse policy and practice, as well as students studying social policy more broadly.

Indigenous Invisibility in the City

Successful Resurgence and Community Development Hidden in Plain Sight

Edited by Deirdre Howard-Wagner, Australian National University, Australia

Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology

Indigenous Invisibility in the City contextualises the significant social change in Indigenous life circumstances and resurgence that came out of social movements in cities. It is about Indigenous resurgence and community development by First Nations people for First Nations people in cities.

Today, differences exist over the way governments and First Nations peoples see the role and responsibilities of Indigenous institutions in cities. What remains hidden in plain sight is their societal function as a social and political apparatus through which much of the social processes of Indigenous resurgence and community development in cities occurred.

Reassessing Mandela

Edited by Colin Bundy and William Beinart

Series: Southern African Studies

Seven years since his death (2013), Nelson Mandela still occupies an extraordinary place in the global imagination. Internationally, Mandela's renown seems intact and invulnerable. In South Africa, however, his legacy and his place in the country's history have become matters of contention and dispute. The essays in this book analyse aspects of Mandela's life in the context of South Africa's national history, and make an important contribution to the historiography of the anti-apartheid political struggle.

This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Southern African Studies.

Sex Work and Human Dignity

Law, Politics and Discourse

Stewart Cunningham, University of Strathclyde, UK Series: Interdisciplinary Studies in Sex for Sale

The notion of human dignity is frequently, yet enigmatically, invoked in legal and political debates on sex work, where many people use it without much elaboration on exactly what they mean by it. Sex Work and Human Dignity sheds light on this enigma, by exploring how dignity-based discourses are used by those who write and talk about prostitution and also what role these discourses may play in shaping wider cultural understandings of sex work and sex workers.

Its interdisciplinary nature means it will appeal to those working in a range of disciplines, including law, sociology, philosophy, political theory, and students who study feminism and human dignity.

The Economy of Collaboration

The New Digital Platforms of Production and Consumption

Francesco Ramella, University of Turin, Italy and Cecilia Manzo, Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore, Italy
 Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology

The Economy of Collaboration refers to a mode of organizing the production, distribution and consumption of goods and services based on cooperative relations. The main reference is to activities linked to the digital economy, since they are the emerging forms of a definitely older phenomenon, but which is expanding on an ever-wider scale thanks to new technologies. These collaborative activities can be regulated differently, along a continuum that ranges from the pole of market exchanges to that of generalized reciprocity, with various intermediate mixed forms.

The Policies and Politics of Interdisciplinary Research

Nanomedicine in France and in the United States

Séverine Louvel, Institut d'Etudes Politiques de Grenoble, France

Series: Routledge Studies in Science, Technology and Society

Through an in-depth sociological study of the development of nanomedicine in France and in the United States, this book challenges conventional views of academic disciplines as forming separate 'siloes' which hinder the development of interdisciplinary research. Exploring the ways in which disciplinary and interdisciplinary research go hand in hand in French and US academia, it argues that disciplines are flexible entities whose evolution supports the long-term institutionalization of interdisciplinary science in universities and research centers, even in an area of biomedical research where disciplines are commonly considered obsolete.

The Political Attitudes of Divided European Citizens

Public Opinion and Social Inequalities in Comparative and Relational Perspective

Christian Lahusen, University of Siegen, Germany
 Series: Routledge Studies in Political Sociology

This book unveils the significant impact of the European integration process on the political thinking of European citizens. With close attention to the interrelation between social and political divisions, it shows that an integrated Europe promotes consensus but also propagates growing dissent among its citizens, with both objective inequalities and the subjective perception of these inequalities fueling political dissent. As such, it will appeal to scholars of sociology and politics with interests in Europe and the European Union, European integration and political sociology.

The Politics of Well-Being

Towards a More Ethical World

Edited by Anthony M. Clohesy, University of Essex, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Social and Political Thought

The Politics of Well-Being argues that the relationship between well-being and ethical life has been overlooked. The more specific argument of the book is that ethical life requires political engagement, and the emergence of a society committed to critical thinking.

This book will be of interest to students of politics, psychology, cultural studies, philosophy and sociology, as well as anyone else interested in exploring new ideas about how to make the world a better place.

Understanding Corruption

Traditional and Legal Rational Norms

Edited by Mason C. Hoadley and Neelambar Hatti

This volume brings together scholars specializing in different parts of the world to give us a comparative understanding of the persistence of corruption in some societies. The reader is privileged to learn from the many global variations that are skilfully presented for further analyses.

Seven essays in this volume cover a range of countries which include India, South Africa, Nigeria, Zimbabwe, and Indonesia. As the essays unfold themselves, the problem of corruption takes on an added dimension, that of a legacy left behind by colonialism.

Whiteness and Nationalism

Edited by Nasar Meer, Northumbria University, UK

Whiteness is becoming an increasingly important issue across a variety of social and political contexts. In this book, an international set of authors discuss how and why this has come to be the case. In this book, authors from the US, Australia and Europe consider the contemporary relationships between whiteness and national identity by focusing on mainstream electoral politics, the 'normalisation' of white supremacy; and where whiteness stands in relation to pluralised national identities. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the journal, Identities: Global Studies in Culture and Power.

Racism and English Football

For Club and Country

Daniel Burdsey

Series: Routledge Focus on Sport, Culture and Society

The book argues that racism is firmly embedded and historically rooted in the game's structures, cultures and institutions, and operates as a form of systemic discrimination. It addresses the ways that racism has tainted the English football, and the manner in which football has, in turn, influenced racial meanings and formations in wider society. Equally, it explores how football has facilitated forms of occupational multiculturalism, black player activism and progressive fan politics that resist divisive social phenomena and offer a degree of hope for an alternative future.

A New World-System

From Chaos to Sustainability

Donald G. Reid, University of Guelph, Canada

Series: Routledge Studies in Sustainable Development

This book examines the present crisis in the social and ecological environment that is producing profound, potentially catastrophic challenges to the planet and humanity, and outlines a process for moving forward to address these critical issues. Part 1 surveys the five major threats facing humanity today: climate change, inequality and poverty, new technologies, migration and globalization. It approaches the challenge of integrating these phenomena into a global picture from a systems perspective. Part 2 moves to solving these problems with chapters examining the ability of the present world-system to address these issues and outlining a process for action.

Crimes Against the Environment

Donald J. Rebovich, Utica College, New York, USA and George E. Curtis, Utica College, New York, USA

The book, from the perspective of law and criminology, centers on environmental crime, its commission, the types of entities that commit it, the laws enacted to prohibit it, how it is committed and effective means to control and prevent it. It explains the importance of technological advances, increased public knowledge of potential harm, public groundswell, and how this leads to legislative action. The overlapping dimensions of public health, criminal justice, environmental law and science are addressed as inter-related issues. A profile of the offender, based on empirical evidence and criminal methods is described. Recommendations for stopping environmental crime are presented.

Regulating Coastal Zones

International Perspectives on Land Management Instruments

Edited by Rachelle Alterman, Technion - Israel Institute of Technology, Israel and Cygal Pellach, Technion - Israel Institute of Technology, Israel

Series: Urban Planning and Environment

Regulating Coastal Zones addresses the knowledge gap concerning the legal and regulatory challenges of managing land in coastal zones across a broad range of political and socio-economic contexts. This book is the first to address the legal-regulatory aspects of coastal land management from a systematic cross-national comparative perspective. By including both successful and less-effective strategies, it aims to inform professionals, graduate students, policy makers, and NGOs of the legal and socio-political challenges as well as the better practices from which others could learn.

A River Flows Through It

A Comparative Study of Transboundary Water Disputes and Cooperation in Asia

Edited by Selina Ho, National University of Singapore, Singapore

Series: Routledge Special Issues on Water Policy and Governance

A River Flows Through It: A Comparative Study of Transboundary Water Disputes and Cooperation in Asia explores water disputes in Asia and addresses the question of how states sharing a river system can be incentivized to cooperate.

This book will be of great value to scholars, students, and policymakers interested in transboundary water disputes and cooperation, hydro-diplomacy, and river activism. It was originally published as special issues of Water International

Assessing Public Health Needs in a Lower Middle Income Country

Sarah Ruel-Bergeron, Jimi Patel, Riksum Kazi and Charlotte Burch

Series: Routledge Focus on Environmental Health

This book demonstrates a methodology for assessing public health needs in communities experiencing environmental sanitation inadequacies. Centring on a case study of the Republic of Cameroon, the findings represent the starting point of a campaign to implement a comprehensive water and sanitation infrastructure through advocacy, housing improvements, and new service chains. This book should appeal to environmental health professionals, academics and policymakers, be they domestic to the African region or multinational practitioners.

Climate Change Ethics for an Endangered World

Thom Brooks

Series: Routledge Focus on Environment and Sustainability

In this provocative new book, these popular proposals for ending or overcoming the threat of climate change are shown to offer no easy escape and each rest on an important mistake. Thom Brooks argues that a future environmental catastrophe is an event we can only delay or endure, but not avoid. This raises new ethical questions about how we should think about climate change. How should we reconceive sustainability without a status quo? Why is action more urgent and necessary than previously thought? What can we do to motivate and inspire hope? Many have misunderstood the kind of problem that climate change presents – as well as the daunting challenges we must face and overcome.

Contesting Hydropower in the Brazilian Amazon

Ed Atkins, University of Bristol, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Sustainability

This book focuses on how local, national and international civil society groups opposed to the Belo Monte and São Luiz do Tapajós hydroelectric projects in the Brazilian Amazon. In doing so, it explores how contemporary opposition to hydropower projects demonstrate a form of 'contested sustainability' that highlights the need for sustainable development agendas to take more into account than merely greenhouse gas emissions.

This interdisciplinary work will be of great interest to students and scholars of Sustainable Development, Environmental Justice, Environmental Governance and Development Studies.

Climate Change, Gender Roles and Hierarchies

Socioeconomic Transformation in an Ethnic Minority Community in Viet Nam

Phuong Ha Pham and Donna L. Doane

Series: Routledge International Studies of Women and Place

This book examines changing gender roles, relations and hierarchies in an ethnic minority community in Central Viet Nam. After decades of war, the community continued its self-sufficient way of life in this remote forested mountainous region, but in recent years has been forced to respond to severe climate threats combined with sudden and destabilizing socioeconomic and regulatory change.

This book will be of interest to scholars and postgraduate students of climate change, gender, environment, and public policy and development studies.

Environmental Policy and Air Pollution in China

Governance and Strategy

Yuan Xu

Series: Routledge Studies in Environmental Policy

This book systematically analyses how and why China has expectedly lost and then surprisingly gained ground in the quest to solve the complicated environmental problem of air pollution over the past two decades. The chapters weave together a goal-centered governance model that China has adopted of centralized goal setting, decentralized goal attainment, decentralized policy making and implementation. Coalitions in the Climate Change Negotiations

Edited by Carola Klöck, Paula Castro, Florian Weiler, Central European University, School of Public Policy, Vienna, Austria, and Lau Øjford Blaxekjær

Series: Global Environmental Governance

This edited volume provides both a broad overview of cooperation patterns in the UNFCCC climate change negotiations and an in-depth analysis of specific coalitions and their relations. This book maps out and takes stock of patterns of cooperation in the climate change negotiations since their inception in 1995. It focuses on the evolution of coalitions over time and explores common themes and open questions in coalition research. By taking a broad approach to the study of coalitions in the climate change negotiations, this volume is an essential reference source for researchers, students and negotiators with an interest in the dynamics of climate negotiations.

Flood Resilience of Private Properties

Edited by Thomas Hartmann, Utrecht University, Netherlands, Willemijn van Doorn-Hoekveld, Helena F.M.W. van Rijswijk and Tejo Spit

Series: Routledge Special Issues on Water Policy and Governance

Flood Resilience of Private Properties examines the division and balance of responsibilities between the public and the private when discussing flood resilience of private properties. Political and societal systems influence the action citizens are prepared to take and what they expect their governments to do. The responsibility for implementing such measures is shared between the public and the private domain in different degrees in different countries.

Fractional Calculus for Hydrology, Soil Science and Geomechanics

An Introduction to Applications

Ninghu Su

This book is a unique integrated treatise, on the concepts of fractional calculus as models with applications in hydrology, soil science and geomechanics. The models are primarily fractional partial differential equations (FPDEs), and in limited cases, fractional differential equations (fDEs). It develops and applies relevant FPDEs and fDEs mainly to water flow and solute transport in porous media and overland, and in some cases, to concurrent flow and energy transfer. It is an integrated resource with theory and applications for those interested in hydrology, hydraulics and fluid mechanics.

Geographies of Post-Industrial Place, Memory, and Heritage

Edited by Mark Alan Rhodes II, William R. Price and Amy Walker

Series: Routledge Research in Sustainable Urbanism

This book investigates the overlap of memory and the impacts of industrialization within today's communities and the senses of place and heritage which grew alongside and in reaction to the growth of mines, mills, and factories. While based in the traditions of geography, this collection also draws upon and will be of great interest to students and scholars of cultural anthropology, archaeology, sociology, history, architecture, civil engineering, and heritage, memory, museum, and tourism studies. Using global examples, the authors provide a uniquely geographic understanding to industrial heritage across the spaces, places, and memories of industrial development.

In Pursuit of Healthy Environments

Historical Cases on the Environment-Health Nexus

Edited by Esa Ruuskanen, University of Oulu, Finland and Heini Hakosalo, University of Oulu, Finland

Series: Routledge Studies in Environment, Culture, and Society

In Pursuit of Healthy Environments brings temporal depth to a highly topical issue, the interaction between health and the environment. By means of a rich set of historical case studies from Americas to Europe and from the tropics to the Arctic, the volume demonstrates that the concern for creating and finding healthy environments is not a new one, shows how the link between the environment and health has been perceived at different times and in different cultures, and discusses the practical implications of these conceptualizations.

Interdisciplinary and Transdisciplinary Failures

Lessons Learned from Cautionary Tales

Edited by Dena Fam, University of Technology, Sydney, Australia and Michael O'Rourke

Series: Research and Teaching in Environmental Studies

Unlike other volumes in the current literature, this book provides insight for interdisciplinary and transdisciplinary researchers and practitioners on what doesn't work. Documenting detailed case studies of project failure matters, not only as an illustration of experienced challenges but also as projects do not always follow step-by-step protocols of preconceived and theorised processes.

Drawing on a wide range of international case studies and with a strong environmental thread throughout, the book reveals a range of failure scenarios for interdisciplinary and transdisciplinary projects.

Inclusive Tourism Development

Edited by Regina Scheyvens, Massey University, New Zealand and Robin Biddulph

This comprehensive volume seeks out ways in which those who are typically marginalized by, or excluded from tourism, can be brought into the industry in ways that directly benefit them. It addresses the central questions asked by an inclusive tourism approach: Who is included? On what terms? With what significance?

The authors hope that this book inspires a restless quest to find ways to include new actors and new places in tourism on terms that are equitable and sustainable. The chapters were originally published as a special issue of the journal Tourism Geographies.

Age, Period and Cohort Effects

Statistical Analysis and the Identification Problem

Edited by Andrew Bell, University of Sheffield, UK

This book is key reference material for researchers wanting to know how to appropriately deal with Age-Period-Cohort issues in their statistical modelling. It deals with the identification problem of working with co-linear variables, why some currently used methods are problematic, and suggests ideas for what applied researchers interested in APC analysis should do. Suitable for all those working with APC effects in human data, the book is particularly suitable for social scientists with a moderate level of quantitative understanding.

Designing Evidence-Based Public Health and Prevention Programs

Expert Program Developers Explain the Science and Art

Edited by Mark E. Feinberg

Demonstrating that program development is as much art as science, this book brings together expert program leaders to give practical principles for developing effective prevention curricula. It covers programs addressing a range of physical, mental, and behavioral health problems, including ones targeting families, specific populations, and developmental stages. Readers will learn how to: select content or targets based on existing research; initiate, reinforce, and generalize behavior change; and refine a curriculum.

Leadership Across Boundaries

A Passage to Aporia

Nathan Harter

Series: Leadership: Research and Practice

Leadership Across Boundaries theorizes on leadership in an unprecedented manner by stepping outside of conventional leadership theory and importing into leadership studies the implications of certain innovations in the social sciences, such as pluralism, complexity theory, and the dialogical turn, to change the way scholars discuss and study leadership. An interdisciplinary text, this book will appeal not only to scholars, instructors, and students of leadership, but also to those in the many fields in which leadership theory applies, such as history, economics, sociology, archetypal psychology, the law, political philosophy, applied mathematics, and the martial arts.

The Genetics of Political Behavior

How Evolutionary Psychology Explains Ideology

Michael Ryan

In this unique amalgam of neuroscience, genetics and evolutionary psychology, Ryan argues that leftists and rightists are biologically distinct versions of the human species that came into being at different moments in human evolution.

Proposing a new way of understanding human politics, this is fascinating reading for students and academics in psychology, the social sciences, and humanities, as well as general readers interested in political behavior.

Organisation and Everyday Life with Dyslexia and other SpLDs

Ginny Stacey and Sally Fowler

Organisation and Everyday Life explores the wider implications of living with dyslexia/SpLD, which often goes far beyond reading and writing skills. Organisation is a major area of difficulty for people with dyslexia/SpLD, and this book aims to address the most commonly encountered problems. The authors draw on the latest scientific research, as well as their own experiences to provide expert guidance for problem-solving, time management, and organising workloads. Using mind maps, real-life examples, and helpful tips throughout, the book is written in a clear, dyslexia-friendly style, and will be an essential companion for dyslexia/SpLD support tutors, parents, and individuals.

The Maternal Experience

Encounters with Ambivalence and Love

Margo Lowy

Series: Women and Psychology

The Maternal Experience explores the powerful and dynamic nature of maternal ambivalence, and disrupts the conventional narrative of the mother's lived experience by arguing that encounters with feelings of hatred are both universal and have the capacity to stimulate and enrich her maternal love. Brought alive by examples from film and first-hand experience, this book is fascinating reading for academics and students of psychology, maternal and women's studies, and sociology, as well as practitioners in the fields of psychology, social work, medicine and counselling.

Surviving Lockdown

Human Nature in Social Isolation

David Cohen

This book reflects on the unprecedented changes to our lives and the impact on our human behaviour as we lived through social isolation during the global Covid-19 pandemic. From sociable creatures of habit, we were forced into a period of uncertainty and risk, physically separated from families and friends. Combined with guidance and coping strategies for lockdown, top psychologist, David Cohen, explores the impact of lockdown on our relationships, our children, our mental health and our daily lives, examining the psychology behind our behaviour during this unusual time to discover what we can learn about human nature.

Using Intergroup Contact to Fight Prejudice and Negative Attitudes

Psychological Perspectives

Loris Vezzali, Associate Professor, Department of Education and Humanities, University of Modena and Reggio Emilia, Italy and Sofia Stathi, Senior Lecturer in Psychology, University of Greenwich, UK

Series: European Monographs in Social Psychology

Focusing on the importance of improving intergroup relations, this book examines how intergroup contact can be used to reduce prejudice. The authors build on and critique the contact hypothesis (Allport, 1954) and contribute to its integration with social psychological theoretical and methodological advances through their own research. The book covers attitudes, personality, morality, communication, and social change, in relation to realistic scenarios from research in both the lab and the field. The book will make a significant contribution to the intergroup relations theory, and will be essential reading for both students and academics of social and behavioural psychology.

Children and Television Consumption in the Digital Era

Use, Impact and Regulation

Barrie Gunter, University of Leicester, UK

Do children spend too much time with screen technologies? This key new volume explores the rapid evolution of television and how children in particular have led the way in non-linear viewing. It examines the wide body of literature to present evidence for positive and negative effects of children's screen experiences, exploring the perennial question of the impact on children's cognitive and behavioural development of exposure to specific types of content. Key topics explored include television's role in how children learn about social roles, antisocial and prosocial behaviour, in child health and well-being, and how parents can mediate children's screen behaviour.

The Psychology of Intelligence

Sonja Falck

Series: The Psychology of Everything

What fascinates us about intelligence? How do attitudes to intelligence shape a society? Can we overcome our fears and prejudices about intelligence? Sonja Falck shows there have been two main eras in Western society's way of engaging with the phenomenon of intelligence, and that we are on the brink of a third. She explains the psychology that underlies the contradictory psychosocial reactions and interventions surrounding intelligence seen over the decades alongside ongoing neurobiological studies of intelligence. Her thought-provoking analysis challenges popular assumptions and is applied to show how we can benefit from embracing intelligence in ourselves and others as a fact of life.

The Use and Misuse of the Experimental Method in Social Psychology

A Critical Examination of Classical Research

Augustine Brannigan

This book critically examines the work of a number of pioneers of social psychology, including legendary figures such as Kurt Lewin, Leon Festinger, Muzafer Sherif, Solomon Asch, Stanley Milgram and Philip Zimbardo. Brannigan argues that the reliance of these psychologists on experimentation has led to questions around validity and replication of their studies.

Problematic Research Practices and Inertia in Scientific Psychology

History, Sources, and Recommended Solutions

Edited by James T. Lamiell and Kathleen L. Slaney

Series: Advances in Theoretical and Philosophical Psychology

This volume explores the abiding intellectual inertia in scientific psychology in relation to the discipline's engagement with problematic beliefs and assumptions underlying mainstream research practices, despite repeated critical analysis which reveal the weaknesses, and some cases complete inappropriateness, of these methods. Adapting Evidence-Based Eating Disorder Treatments for Novel Populations and Settings

A Practical Guide

Edited by Christina C. Tortolani, Andrea B. Goldschmidt, The University of Chicago, USA and Daniel Le Grange

This comprehensive text provides practical approaches to adapting empirically supported eating disorder treatments for patients of diverse backgrounds and presentations, or within non-traditional treatment settings across levels of care. The book describes empirically and clinically informed treatment adaptations that impact delivery of real-world services for eating disorder patients. Each focusing on a specific population, setting, or training approach, chapters feature experts in developing, delivering, and testing interventions. Practical applications are then illustrated through case examples and wisdom gleaned through the contributors' own clinical studies and experiences.

Appetite

Sex, Touch, and Desire in Women with Anorexia

Melissa A. Fabello

The first comprehensive resource on anorexia and women's sexuality in the world, this book presents a model for understanding sexuality as complex with interconnected factors, and how anorexia interacts with the varied components of one's sexuality. Challenging the limiting views of sexuality that research on women with anorexia and sex has yielded, Dr. Fabello centers real women's narratives to explore the various ways in which this population wrestles with sexual health, violence, intimacy, identity, and more. Written in an honest voice, Appetite bridges the gap between academia and practicality, using grounded language that appeals to professionals and survivors alike.

Multifamily Therapy Group for Young Adults with Anorexia Nervosa

Reconnecting for Recovery

Mary Tantillo, Jennifer L. Sanftner McGraw and Daniel Le Grange

This book describes an innovative family-centered outpatient Multifamily Therapy Group (MFTG) approach called Reconnecting for Recovery (R4R) for young adults with anorexia nervosa (AN) that is based on a relational reframing of eating disorders. Created in concert with young adults and their families, R4R is designed to help avoid or repair relationship ruptures for continued collaboration in recovery. The book begins by examining AN, MFTG approaches, and the development of R4R and moves into a session by session review of R4R featuring exercises and handouts. Protocols, case vignettes, and other materials help translate the theory and research underlying this model into practice.

Psychodynamic Approaches for Treatment of Drug Abuse and Addiction

Theory and Treatment

David Potik

Provides clinicians and students with insights on the use of psychodynamic therapy to treat drug abuse and addiction, combining theory with clinical case material. The perspectives of a wide range of analysts are reviewed alongside original and more recent conceptualizations based on Kleinian, Winnicottian and Kohutian ideas. The clinical case material covers common issues such as projective identification, countertransference difficulties, and relapses. Prevalent topics in the addiction field are also discussed in relation to psychodynamic therapy, such as the reward system, the cycle of change and the twelve-step program.

The Skeptical Professional's Guide to Psychiatry

On the Risks and Benefits of Antipsychotics, Antidepressants, Psychiatric Diagnoses, and Neuromania

Charles E. Dean

This text critically examines the shortcomings of psychiatry and the DSM-5, as well as the risks of antipsychotics and antidepressants. The book starts with an overview of the evolution of psychiatry, exploring the creation, use, and misuse of medications. Other chapters describe the problems associated with rational prescribing and the embrace of so-called novel therapies such as hallucinogens and opioids. Chapters end with a set of clinical notes with recommendations to clinicians, patients, and other providers, emphasizing the risks and benefits of treatment with medications, but also stressing alternative approaches in the hopes of ultimately improving the lives of patients.

Contextual Behavior Therapy for Sexual and Gender Minority Clients

A Practical Guide to Treatment

Matthew D. Skinta, private practice, California, USA

Combining theory, research, and case studies, this book shows clinicians how to apply transdiagnostic contextual behavior approaches when working with sexual and gender minority (SGM) clients. The text first examines minority stress theory through the lens of contextual behavior analysis. Subsequent chapters illustrate the application of therapeutic techniques drawn from acceptance and commitment therapy, functional analytic psychotherapy, and compassion-focused therapy. Every chapter provides a series of diverse vignettes that illustrate how each aspect of treatment might build upon the last along with a list of recommended books for further exploration of that topic.

Integrating CBT with Experiential Theory and Practice

A Group Therapy Workbook

Thomas W. Treadwell

This workbook elucidates the techniques clinicians will encounter using the Cognitive Experiential (psychodrama) Group Therapy (CEGT) model. This model incorporates cognitive behavioral and psychodrama interventions to help identify and modify negative thinking, behavior, and interpersonal patterns. The book begins with a brief overview of cognitive behavioral therapy (CBT) and psychodrama, moving on to provide a description of CEGT and what group members should expect through engagement in this therapy, highlighting relevant concepts and techniques. Featured throughout are tables and exercises and blank worksheets to help group members challenge dysfunctional thinking.

Practicing Psychotherapy

Lessons on Helping Patients and Growing as a Professional

Linda L. Chamberlain

This book shares Dr. Chamberlain's varied expertise and experiences from working as a psychotherapist for over 40 years, bestowing the wisdom she has gleaned throughout her career from patients, students, teachers, and colleagues. The text examines three core themes: how helping clients is intertwined with the therapist's own life journey; the experience of building intimate relationships with vulnerable populations; and the process of accepting loss and moving forward, for both client and the therapist. Prioritizing personal narratives and case examples, this book marks the significant impact psychotherapy has both patients and clients as well as the mental health professional.

Uncommon Psychiatric Syndromes

David Enoch, Royal Liverpool University Hospital, UK, Basant K. Puri, Hammersmith Hospital and Imperial College London, UK and Hadrian Ball, Norfolk and Suffolk NHS Foundation Trust, UK

This new edition expands on the previous editions as a valued source of information regarding uncommon psychiatric syndromes. Each chapter goes into detail on the essential facts of the mentioned syndromes, thus giving the reader a clear understanding of the material. The last edition was well received and is widely considered a classic text for those in the field, though now it is an outdated source. Since the publication of the fourth edition, there have been many developments in the field of psychiatry, including changes in DSM-5, the advancement of neuroimaging and related research. Four new chapters will be added to the fifth edition and several new syndromes will be covered.

Love Bonds

Michael R. Kauth, Veterans Health Administration, Washington, DC, USA

Love Bonds presents an evolutionary history of romantic love, male-female pair-bonding, same-sex friendship, and sexual attraction. Employing evolutionary theory as a key framework, close same-sex friendship is explored and identified as an adaptive trait that has harnessed love, affection, and sexual pleasure to navigate same-sex environments for both men and women. Chapters consider the desire to form close same-sex friendships and ask if this is embedded in our biology, revealing that most humans have the capacity to form loving, meaningful, and sexual relationships with men and women.

Migration and Intercultural Psychoanalysis

Unconscious Forces and Clinical Issues

Edited by Kristin White and Ina Klingenberg

This edited volume brings together contributions on the social, historical and personal aspects of migration from a psychoanalytic viewpoint. Clinical perspective is combined with a wider view that makes use of psychoanalytic concepts and experience to understand problematic issues around migration today. Later chapters take the historical background into account: the history of psychoanalysis itself is a history of migration, beginning with Freud's experiences of migration, in particular his escape from Nazi Vienna to London at the end of his life, to answer questions regarding migration, refugees, living in a "multicultural society" and living in a "foreign culture".

Psychoanalysis in Medicine

Applying Psychoanalytic Thought to Contemporary Medical Care

Paul Ian Steinberg, University of British Columbia, Canada

This book shows how contemporary psychoanalytic thinking can be applied to enhance the everyday practice of medicine. Dr. Steinberg analyzes his writings over the past 35 years—on psychiatry and family medicine, liaison psychiatry, and supervision and mentoring—based on psychoanalytic developments. Divided into sections based on different venues of medical practice, chapters illustrate how various concepts in psychoanalysis can enhance understanding and management of patients. A concluding section contains applications of psychoanalytic thought in nonclinical areas pertinent to medicine, such as suicide among physicians, patient abuse, and oral examination anxiety in physicians.

Scansion in Psychoanalysis and Art

The Cut in Creation

Vanessa Sinclair

Series: Art, Creativity, and Psychoanalysis Book Series

Scansion in Psychoanalysis and Art examines a strain of artists spanning more than a century, beginning at the dawn of photography and culminating in the discussion of contemporary artists, to illustrate various psychoanalytic concepts by examining artists working in a multitude of mediums. This is an intriguing book for psychoanalysts, psychologists and creative arts therapists, who wish to explore the generative potential of scansion and the relationship between psychoanalysis and the arts, as well as to artists and art historians interested in a psychoanalytic view of these processes.

Women and Psychoanalysis

The Collected Papers of Lucy Holmes

Lucy Holmes

This remarkable collection charts the professional growth of one psychoanalyst from student to seasoned clinician to provide a guidebook for how psychoanalytic theory is conceptualized, created and tested in the analytic session. Specifically, the book traces the development of thinking on the place of women in psychoanalysis and how psychoanalysis has changed how it views and treats women. Exploring topics across women's lives, such as childbirth, anger, identity, death, humour, leadership, and madness, this unique collection of papers is ideal for practicing clinicians and psychoanalysis theorists.

Depth Psychology and Climate Change

The Green Book

Edited by Dale Mathers, Supervisor with the Association of Jungian Analysts. Psychiatrist and humanistic psychotherapist in private practice, South London and teacher of analytical psychology in the UK and Europe.

Depth Psychology and Climate Change offers a sensitive and insightful look at how ideas from depth psychology can move us beyond psychological overwhelm when facing the ecological disaster of climate change and its denial. Integrating ideas from disciplines including anthropology, politics, spirituality, mythology and philosophy, contributors consider how climate change affects psychological wellbeing and how we can place hope and radical uncertainty alongside rage and despair.

The Wounded Researcher

Research with Soul in Mind

Robert D. Romanyshyn

The Wounded Researcher addresses the crises of epistemological violence when we fail to consider that a researcher is addressed by and drawn into a work through his or her complexes. Using a Jungian-Archetypal perspective, this book argues that the bodies of knowledge we create degenerate into ideologies, which are the death of critical thinking, if the complexity of the research process is ignored. Writing with soul in mind invites us to consider how we might write down the soul in writing up our research.

Working With Dreams

Initiation into the Soul's Speaking About Itself

Wolfgang Giegerich

This book is about the practice of working with dreams. Rather than presenting a general theory about dreams, it focuses on the dream as phenomenon and raises the question how we must look at dreams if our approach is supposed to be a truly psychological one. So far most essays on, and the practice of, Jungian dream interpretation have paradoxically centered around the person of the dreamer and not around the dream itself.

Women and Dionysus

Appearances and Exile in History, Culture, and Myth

Maggy Anthony

Series: Routledge Focus on Analytical Psychology

This book links repression of the Dionysian spirit in Western culture with the rise of the patriarchy over the course of two millennia. It draws the connection between Dionysus and women throughout history, with examples from cultures both past and present, and the author's own experiences. The book examines the Dionysian influence on creative older women, and considers connections to mysticism and the Renaissance. This study will be essential reading for scholars of Jungian and post-Jungian studies and for analytical and depth psychologists, particularly those with an interest in female individuation, creativity, and spirituality.

Scientometrics for the Humanities and Social Sciences

R. Sooryamoorthy

This important book presents the inherent potential for data mining and analysis of qualitative data in scientometrics. The author provides select cases of scientometric studies in the humanities and social sciences, explaining their research objectives, sources of data and methodologies. It illustrates how data can be gathered not only from prominent online databases and repositories but also from journals that are not stored in these databases. With the support of examples, the book shows how data on demographic variables can be collected to supplement scientometric data. The book has an increasing applicability to the study of the disciplines in the humanities and social sciences.

Ayurveda in The New Millennium

Emerging Roles and Future Challenges

Edited by D. Suresh Kumar

Ayurveda or the "sacred knowledge of longevity" has been practiced in India and many Asian countries since time immemorial. Interest in Ayurveda started growing all over the world in the late 1970s, following the Alma Ata Declaration adopted by W.H.O. in 1978. Ayurveda in the New Millennium: Emerging Roles and Future Challenges attempts to survey the progress made in this field and to formulate a course of action to take Ayurveda to the new millennium. It also identifies the many stumbling blocks that need to be removed, if Ayurveda is to cater to the needs of a wider audience.

Learning from Disease in Pets

A 'One Health' Model for Discovery

Edited by Rebecca A. Krimins, Johns Hopkins University

Series: CRC One Health One Welfare

This is the first encompassing guide for veterinarians, researchers and physicians on conducting studies using spontaneous models of disease in animals. Using clinical trials to learn how pets with real disease respond to therapy can lead to breakthroughs in human medicine, as well as benefiting pets suffering from otherwise debilitating illness. The book details how to design a robust clinical study, encouraging veterinarians to build on and disseminate findings. It discusses communication styles, the ethics of using pets in veterinary clinical research, diseases that occur in animals and man, and regulatory requirements.

Computational Genomics with R

Altuna Akalin

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Computational Biology Series

Bioconductor books are the best-known in the field. They revolve around old technologies such as microarrays and do not have the fundamental sections such as introduction to R or statistics to include beginners or biologists who want to start analyzing data. This book will have fundamental theoretical and practical aspects of data analysis. It will be useful for beginners and experienced researchers that are looking for a recipe or an analysis approach. Since R has many packages, even experienced researchers will have to look for how particular functions are used in an analysis workflow. In that respect, although not the main audience, experienced researchers will find use for this book.

How Life Increases Biodiversity

An Hypothesis

David Seaborg, Foundation for Biological Conservation and Research, Walnut Creek, California, USA

Life maximizes biodiversity; this is the hypothesis of this book. An atmosphere favorable for life, including high oxygen and the ozone layer, and favorable nitrogen and carbon dioxide levels stimulated increases in biodiversity. Symbiosis drives diversification and macroevolution; e.g. bacteria makes nitrogen available to plants. Ecosystems interact symbiotically. Horizontal gene transfer, often mediated by viruses, is common, drives major evolutionary transitions, and is "symbiotic evolution." These observations and others suggest that life has created a positive feedback loop stimulating biodiversity.

Increasing Physical Activity: A Practical Guide

James M. Rippe, Professor of Medicine, University of Massachusetts Medical School

Series: Lifestyle Medicine

The health benefits of regular physical activity are beyond dispute, yet less than 40% of physicians routinely counsel their patients on the importance of physical activity. Increasing Physical Activity: A Practical Guide equips healthcare practitioners to include physical activity counseling in the daily practice of medicine. The book proves inactivity is a stronger risk factor than other lifestyle factors for cardiovascular disease, diabetes, and many other diseases. It provides evidence-based information on the role of physical activity in preventing and treating chronic conditions and includes practical strategies for healthcare practitioners to prescribe it.

Aquatic Health and Aquaculture

Chandra Prakash

This book discusses how to use the wastewaters, liquid biowastes and soils unfit for agriculture to economically viable aquaculture practices; and putting the emphasis on, aquaculture posology, the science of quantification and administration of doses in aquatic health and aquaculture management. Broadly, aquaculture practices come across three types of problems each; in the context of water quality, and fin fish and shell fish diseases; and preventive, curative and noncurative diseases in fin fish and shell fish. ; Note: T&F does not sell or distribute the Hardback in India, Pakistan, Nepal, Bhutan, Bangladesh and Sri Lanka.

Artificial Seeds Technology

An Emerging Avenue of Seed Science and Applied Biotechnology

Bidhan Roy

The artificial seed technology is a rousing and fast growing area of research in plant tissue culture. This technology is currently considered as an efficient alternative technique for plant propagation of commercially important plant materials. The information in this area is lying unorganized in different articles of journals and edited books. Those information is presented in this book in organized way with up-to-date citations, which will provide comprehensive literature of recent advances.

Biotechnologies Applied to Animal Reproduction

Current Trends and Practical Applications for Reproductive Management

Edited by Juan Carlos Gardón and Katy Satué
 This comprehensive volume focuses on recent trends and new technologies used in the management of reproduction in major farm animals, focusing on both males and females of bovine, equine, and porcine species. With chapters written by scientists who specialize in their respective topics, the volume presents a selection of different technologies that have been developed to assure reproductive success by improving reproductive efficiency, generating germplasm banks, and maintaining genetic diversity in cattle, horses, and pigs.

Clinical Biochemistry and Drug Development

From Fundamentals to Output

Edited by Shashank Kumar
 This book, Clinical Biochemistry and Drug Development: From Fundamentals to Output, focuses on clinical biochemistry fundamentals, cell culture techniques, and drug discovery and development concepts. It deals with three different fields of clinical research: cell culture, clinical biochemistry, and drug discovery and development. The book introduces cell animal and bacterial culture techniques and their potential uses as well as cell culture techniques. The biochemistry aspect of the book covers the principles of clinical biochemistry and biochemical analysis, biochemical aids to clinical diagnosis, measurement, and quality control.

The Global Floriculture Industry

Shifting Directions, New Trends, and Future Prospects

Edited by Khalid Rehman Hakeem

The Global Floriculture Industry: Shifting Directions, New Trends, and Future Prospects presents some of the latest research trends and areas of improvement to benefit the floriculture industry and to understand future directions and prospects. The research addresses the global floriculture industry's shift from traditional to a commercial focus. The global economy has spurred entrepreneurs to focus on the growing trend of export-oriented floriculture under controlled climatic conditions. The volume also looks at the role of plants in stabilizing the environment and the use of scientific knowledge through research that has changed the perspective of modern floriculture.

The Treasure of Natural Healers

Edited by Mahendra Rai, SGB Amravati University,

Maharashtra, India, Shandesh Bhattarai, Nepal Academy of Science and Technology and Chistiane M. Feitosa, Federal university of Piauí, Brazil

This book offers a broad summary of the wild plants and their usage, as well as the growing interest in ethnopharmacology research. The book comprises of important issues such as diversity of wild plants with emphasis on medicinal and food plants, threats to wild plants and traditional ethnobotanical knowledge, their uses in skin diseases, snake-bites, in cosmeceuticals, etc. Moreover, the ethnopharmacological relevance of wild plants in Latin America has been discussed.

The chapters include a wide range of case studies, giving updated evidence on the importance of their wild plant resources from different countries including Peru, Nepal, Bangladesh, India, Pakistan, Brazil.

Edited by Debasis Bagchi, Dept of Pharmacological and Pharmaceutical Sciences, University of Houston College of Pharmacy, Houston, TX and Manashi Bagchi

Some metals exhibit potential toxicity, carcinogenicity or negative health effects, while some metals, called essential minerals or micronutrients, have promising pharmacological, therapeutic and nutritional benefits and selected metals have neither pharmacological or biological efficacy or toxicity. The book covers all the toxic metals individually and discuss their redox biology and cytotoxicity, toxicological aspects on both animals and humans, disease manifestations and threshold, organ specific damage, molecular toxicology including mechanistic insight, effects on genetics and genomics, and, finally, how these toxic metals should be handled safely without causing adverse events.

TEXTBOOK • READER

The Newman Lectures on Transport Phenomena

Edited by John Newman, University of California, Berkeley, USA and Vincent Battaglia, Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory, Berkeley, CA, USA

This book demonstrates how to solve for the velocity profile of the classic problems of fluid mechanics, starting with Navier–Stokes equation. It explains when it is appropriate to simplify a problem by neglecting certain terms through proper dimensional analysis. It covers concepts such as basic relations of fluid mechanics, microscopic interpretation of fluxes, concentrations and velocities in mixtures, multicomponent diffusion, entropy production and implications for transport properties, Lighthill's transformations, etc. It is as much a thesis on transport phenomena as it is in applied mathematics, and it amply arms any serious problem solver with the tools to address any problem.

Edited by Vincenzo Guarino, National Research Council of Italy; Institute of Polymers and composites and Biomaterials, Naples Italy. and Marco Antonio Alvarez-Perez, National Autonomous University of Mexico (UNAM), Tissue Bioengineering Laboratory, DEPEl-Faculty of Dentistry, Mexico City, Mexico

Oral tissue engineering involves the study of current approaches for in vitro regeneration of soft and hard tissues located into the oral cavity. In this context, recent approaches involves the use of innovative biomaterials to replace the lost or damaged human oral tissues. Recent discoveries in materials science and nanotechnology are drastically changing the traditional approach to dentistry by the design of innovative devices able more efficiently supporting the natural regeneration process. The objective of this book is to highlight current progress in tissue engineering for various dental hard/soft tissues including enamel, dentin, pulp, etc.

Pharmaceutical Biocatalysis

Important Enzymes, Novel Targets, and Therapies

Edited by Peter Grunwald

Series: Jenny Stanford Series on Biocatalysis

This volume of Pharmaceutical Biocatalysis starts with a discussion on the importance of biocatalytic synthesis approaches for a sustainable and environmentally friendly production of pharmaceuticals and active pharmaceutical ingredients. Among the enzymes discussed in detail with respect to their pharmaceutical relevance are cyclic nucleotide phosphodiesterases playing an important role in modulating signal transduction in various cell types; human DOPA decarboxylase, related to Parkinson's disease and aromatic amino acid decarboxylase deficiency; and phospholipase D enzymes as drug targets.

Pharmaceutical Biocatalysis

Drugs, Genetic Diseases, and Epigenetics

Series: Jenny Stanford Series on Biocatalysis

Volume 7 of the Jenny Stanford Series on Biocatalysis deals with several different aspects of pharmaceuticals, which include not only various applications of drugs and their metabolism but also natural resources for active pharmaceutical ingredients as well as the removal of pharmaceutical pollution. In detail, novel approaches for developing microbial fermentation processes to produce vitamin B6 using microorganisms are described together with novel routes for vitamin B6 biosynthesis.

Herbal Product Development

Formulation and Applications

Edited by Anil K. Sharma, Raj K. Keservani and Surya Prakash Gautam

This new volume, Herbal Product Development: Formulation and Applications, addresses some of the challenges that hinder the path of successful natural products from laboratory to market. Highly skilled, experienced, and renowned scientists and researchers from around the globe offer up-to-date information that describes characteristics of herbs and herbal products, applications, evaluation techniques, and more. There is also a section dedicated to alternative medicinal strategies for the treatment and cure of diverse diseases. Also considered, of course, is the efficacy and safety of herbal products, which are of major concern.

Promising Drug Molecules of Natural Origin

Edited by Rohit Dutt, Anil K. Sharma, Raj K. Keservani and Vandana Garg

This new volume, Promising Drug Molecules of Natural Origin, explores potential beneficial drug substances derived from nature. It presents the general principles, characteristics, evaluation techniques, and applications involved in drug molecules from natural sources, such as plants and marine life. With chapters from renowned experts from around the world, the chapters in this volume address the challenges of standardization of herbal medicines, methods of characterization of natural medicines and phyto-constituents, and quality control methods for herbal medicines.

Aquatic Food Quality and Safety Assessment Methods

R. Jeya Shakila and G. Jeyasekaran

The book explains on the methods and procedures adopted for testing the quality and safety of aquatic food products. The analytical techniques available for testing the chemical constituents of aquatic food with separate chapters on the analysis of lipids, proteins, vitamins, and minerals are exhaustively given to determine their nutritional quality. The various methods for sensory, physical, biochemical and microbiological quality assessments of aquatic food are explicitly given with detailed protocols for easy adoption.

Food Product Optimization for Quality and Safety Control

Process, Monitoring, and Standards

Edited by Juan Carlos Contreras-Esquivel, Laxmikant S. Badwaik, Porteen Kannan and A. K. Haghi

This book, Food Product Optimization for Quality and Safety Control: Process, Monitoring, and Standards discusses food quality and safety standards that are critically important for both developed and developing economies, where consumer safety is among the primary issues to be considered in food supply chain management. After the rapid development of many economies, quality standards have focused on consumer demands for safe food and beverage.

Biotechnological Approaches in Food Adulterants

Edited by Madan L Verma

The book covers key topics in food adulteration and the applications of cutting-edge technologies in its detection. Topics include growth of food adulterants, potential toxicity, legislations to prevent food adulteration, technology for food adulterants detection, and biosensing and nanobiosensing based detection of food adulterants. Emerging issues in food adulterants and the biotechnological solutions to curb such menaces in the food industry, are discussed. The book is a useful resource for food technologists, chemical engineers, microbiologists, biotechnologists, agricultural engineers, nanotechnologists, and policy makers.

Shifting Food Facts

Dietary Discourse in a Post-Truth Culture

Alissa Overend

Series: Critical Food Studies

This book offers a much-needed reframing of food discourse by presenting alternative ways of thinking about the changing politics of food, eating, and nutrition.

Providing a rich and innovative analysis, this book offers new ways to think about our increasingly complex food landscapes that aims to loosen our reliance on singular food facts in favour of contextual food truths. It will be of interest to students, scholars, and practitioners working in food studies, food politics, sociology, environmental geography, health, nutrition, and cultural studies.

Complex City

RIBA # Publishing

London's Changing Character

Jane Manning, Antony Rifkin, Daniel Elsea, Lionel Eid and George Garofalakis

Part story, part atlas, this is a study of a city's complexity: a visual, geographic and narrative journey that explains why London is the way it is today. Using stunning maps and artful imagery, it makes a compelling case for a finer grain understanding of density through a character-based approach to planning. Each character area is broken down, exploring the characteristics and character-based development potential. For those planning and designing projects, this is a reference book for the early stages of a design project and can help to inform site analyses. For lovers of maps and London, it is a must-read.

Designing Liners

A History of Interior Design Afloat

Anne Massey, Middlesex University, UK

Designing Liners: A History of Interior Design Afloat covers the interior design of these floating palaces from the mid-nineteenth century to the twenty-first century. In this new edition, the design heritage of the ocean liner is also explored in this age of a growing holiday cruise market. The book offers the first history and analysis of this highly significant aspect of the design of interiors, which mirrors and reinforces cultural assumptions about national identity, gender, class and ethnicity. Drawing on a broad range of original research, Anne Massey's approach combines interior design studies, design history, architectural history and maritime studies.

The Architecture of Waste

Design for a Circular Economy

Edited by Caroline O'Donnell, Cornell University, USA and Dillon Pranger, Cornell University, USA

Global material crises are imminent. This means a paradigm shift in domestic behavior, manufacturing, construction, and design is inevitable. The Architecture of Waste provides a hopeful outlook through examining current recycling practices, rethinking initial manufacturing techniques, and proposing design solutions for second lives of material objects.

Complete with over 150 color images and written for both professionals and students, The Architecture of Waste is a necessary reference for rethinking the traditional role of the architect and challenging the discipline to address urgent material issues within the larger design process.

Think Like An Architect

RIBA # Publishing

How to develop critical, creative and collaborative problem-solving skills

Randy Deutsch

Architects have a valuable and critical set of multiple thinking types that they develop throughout the design process. This book shows readers how to access those thinking types and use them outside pure design thinking – showing how they can both solve problems but also identify the problems that need solving. To think the way the best architects do. With a clear, driving narrative, peppered with anecdote, stories and real-life scenarios, this book will future-proof the architectural student. This is a much-needed exploration of the critical thinking skills that architects have in abundance, but that are not taught well enough within architecture schools.

Transforming Towns

Designing for Smaller Communities

Matthew Jones

Towns have undergone dramatic and rapid change over the last century. Declining historic cores are surrounded by sprawling low-density housing, industrial and retail estates. By drawing people away from town centres, these developments erode the sense of community and public life. This book demonstrates how contemporary architecture, community engagement and thoughtful urban design can contribute to the creation of thriving small communities. It addresses a lack of inspiration and ideas for architects and designers and promotes a character-based approach to designing and planning 21st century towns.

Architecture History, Theory and Preservation

Prehistory to the Middle Ages

Arleen Pabón-Charneco, Florida A&M University, USA

Architecture History, Theory and Preservation critically explores the historic development, theoretical underpinnings and conservation practices of architecture. This publication provides professors and students of architecture, art history, historical preservation and related fields, an integrated view of architecture using historical, theoretical, and conservation perspectives. As an architect, architectural historian, and preservationist herself, Pabón-Charneco weaves a field of relationships regarding each building, creating a silent yet empowering bridge between the past and the present.

Freud for Architects

John Abell, Washington State University, USA

Series: Thinkers for Architects

Freud for Architects explains what Freud offers to the understanding of architectural creativity and architectural experience, with case examples from early modern architecture to the present. The book highlights Freud's ideas on the foundational developments of childhood, developments on which the adult psyche is based. It explains why and how the developmental stages could influence adult architectural preferences and preoccupations, spatial intuition, and beliefs about what is proper and right for architectural design. As such it will be of great interest to students, practitioners and scholars in architecture, psychoanalysis and philosophy.

Heritage Planning

Principles and Process

Harold Kalman and Marcus R. Létourneau

This new and substantially revised edition of Heritage Planning: Principles and Process offers an extensive overview of the burgeoning fields of heritage planning and conservation. Positioning professional practice within its broader applied and theoretical contexts, the authors provide a firm foundation for understanding the principles, history, evolution, debates, and tools that inform heritage planning, while also demonstrating how to effectively enact these processes. New themes reflect the emerging recognition that sustainability, climate resilience, human rights, social justice, and reconciliation are fundamental to the future of planning.

Woven Arch Bridge

Histories of Constructional Thoughts

LIU Yan, Lecturer at Kunming University of Science and Technology, China

Series: China Perspectives

The book focuses on the woven arch bridge, present across different cultures and of which its specific nature can be conceptualized by the author as a kind of "universal uniqueness", challenging widespread viewpoints on its origin and genealogy. The author traces histories of the bridge in different cultures, investigates Chinese case studies and offers new insights on the differences between East Asia and Europe.

The book also provides a large number of examples and illustrations of the bridge, and will be of great value and inspiration for architects and scholars as well as general readers interested in historical bridges and traditional construction technology.

Authenticity in the Preservation of Historical Wooden Architecture - Problems and Challenges

Case Studies from the American South

Tomasz Tomaszek, Department of Monument Conservation, Faculty of Civil and Environmental Engineering and Architecture, Rzeszow University of Technology, Poland

Showing a variety of aspects of authenticity of wooden buildings, all demonstrated by specific examples (case studies), 'Authenticity in Preserving Historical Wooden Architecture - Problems and Challenges' presents practical implementations of theoretical findings. Hence, the book contributes to the understanding of wooden architectural heritage from a new perspective. The book will be of particular interest to academics and professionals interested in or involved in the preservation of built wooden heritage.

The Power of Culture in City Planning

Tom Borrup

The Power of Culture in City Planning focuses on human diversity, strengths, needs, and ways of living together in geographic communities. The book turns attention to the anthropological definition of culture, encouraging planners in both urban and cultural planning to focus on characteristics of humanity in all their variety. Borrup argues for changing the approach of city comprehensive planning to put people or "users" first rather than land "uses" as does the dominant practice. This will be an important resource for students, teachers, and practitioners of city and cultural planning, as well as municipal policy makers of all stripes.

Uncertain Regional Urbanism in Venezuela

Government, Infrastructure and Environment

Fabio Capra Ribeiro

Series: Architecture and Urbanism in the Global South

Uncertain Regional Urbanism in Venezuela explores the changes cities face when they become metropolises, forming expanding regions which create both potential and problems within settlements. To do so, it focuses on three metropolitan areas located in Venezuela's Centre-North region: Caracas, Maracay, and Valencia, designated as 'Camava.' This book presents a broader understanding of the region to encourage a more sustainable and knowledge-based development plan, moving away from the exploitation of natural resources, with six future-oriented scenarios to consider.

The Narrative Turn in Urban Planning

Plotting the Helsinki Waterfront

Lieven Ameel, University of Turku, Finland

Series: Routledge Research in Planning and Urban Design

Narratives, in the context of urban planning, matter profoundly. Planning theory and practice have taken an increasing interest in the role and power of narrative, and yet there is no comprehensive study of how narrative, and concepts from narrative and literary theory more broadly, can enrich planning and policy. The Narrative Turn in Urban Planning addresses this gap by defining key concepts such as story, narrative, and plot against a planning backdrop, and by drawing up a functional typology of different planning narratives.

The Routledge Companion to Twentieth and Early Twenty-First Century Urban Design

A History of Shifting Manifestoes, Paradigms, Generic Solutions, and Specific Designs

Jon Lang

Series: Routledge Companions

The Routledge Companion to Twentieth and Early Twenty-First Century Urban Design is a fully illustrated descriptive and explanatory history of the development of urban design ideas and paradigms of the past 150 years. The focus is on where the generic ideas originated, the projects that were designed following their precepts, the functions they address and/or afford, and what we can learn from them. This book will become a standard reference for scholars and students interested in the history of urban spaces, including architects, planners, urban historians, urban geographers, and urban morphologists.

Connected and Autonomous Vehicles in Smart Cities

Edited by Hussein T. Mouftah, University of Ottawa, Canada, Melike Erol-Kantarci, University of Ottawa, Canada. and Sameh Sorour, Queen's University, Canada.

This book contains an archival collection of top quality, cutting-edge and multidisciplinary research on connected autonomous electric vehicles and smart cities. It also details the ground-breaking directions exploiting CAVs in broad spectrum of smart cities applications. The book will be an authoritative reference for smart city decision makers, automotive manufacturers, utility operators, smart-mobility service providers, telecom operators, communications engineers, power engineers, professors, researchers, and students who would like to learn more about the advances in CAEVs connectivity, autonomy, security and integration into smart cities and intelligent transportation systems.

Dynamic Positioning for Engineers

Surender Kumar, Marine Professional, Navi Mumbai, India

Dynamic Positioning for Engineers enables the reader to acquire the basic knowledge about the concept and understanding of the system, from the systems perspective. It illustrates the system, the sub-systems and the components of the Dynamic Positioning system, to better tackle maintenance, problems and breakdowns, leading to an increased mean time between failures and effective fault finding on these Dynamic Positioning related equipment. Overall, it helps the professionals to reduce the downtime, and higher repair costs.

How to Investigate Damp

Practical Site Inspection Skills and Remedial Options

Ralph Burkinshaw

The aim of this book is to take the reader by the hand and show them exactly how to carry out various inspection techniques to identify the causes of damp in buildings. Written in non-technical language by a leading expert and author on damp, the book is full of hints and tips developed over a career spent investigating, diagnosing and remediating damp issues and is essential reading for surveyors looking to improve their skills and knowledge of this often complex defect. The book will also be very useful for homeowners trying to self-diagnose, and architects, engineers and other professionals who need to gain insight into common problem caused by moisture imbalance in buildings.

Synergistic Design of Sustainable Built Environments

Chitrarekha Kabre

Synergistic Design of Sustainable Built Environments introduces and illustrates a novel systems approach that fosters both design excellence and a leap toward a more biocentric (ecologically sustainable) design paradigm. The book provides a deeper understanding of the theories and principles of biocentric design and offers detailed descriptions of the synergistic design process of integrating theories and principles into practice. It also presents extensive thermal and visual built environment design strategies, along with qualitative and quantitative information that designers can use to generate feasible solutions in response to varying climate and occupant comfort.

Corruption in Infrastructure Procurement

Addressing the Dynamic Criticalities

Emmanuel Kingsford Owusu and Albert P.C. Chan

Series: Spon Research

The book conducts a comprehensive examination of the various determining factors of corruption that negatively affect the procurement process and, in the end, result in cost and time overruns. The authors present an in-depth understanding of how the identified determining factors of corruption can be addressed. This book is essential reading for academics, researchers, professionals and stakeholders in the procurement of infrastructure projects and civil works, and those with an interest in corruption, construction management and construction project management.

Emotional Labor in Work with Patients and Clients

Effects and Recommendations for Recovery

Edited by Dorota Żołnierczyk-Zreda, Central Institute for Labour Protection, National Research Institute, Poland
Series: Occupational Safety, Health, and Ergonomics

This book describes psychosocial working conditions that negatively impact the mental and physical well-being of employees of various "assistance-related" professional groups, as well as individuals whose work is related to contact with demanding clients. This book is for any professional or aspiring professional in the field, including postgraduate students. Scientists and practitioners in the field of work and health psychology, management, occupational health and safety, and HR will find this book of interest. Employers of assistance and services sectors, authorities formulating employment laws,

Natural Decadal Climate Variability

Phenomena, Mechanisms, and Predictability

Vikram M. Mehta

Natural decadal climate variability (DCV) and anthropogenic climate change (ACC), primarily global warming, are both important to understand to predict the future of climate. They are both also key factors for the adaptation to and mitigation of adverse climate impacts. This book, after familiarizing readers with the importance of understanding and predicting DCV phenomena and its distinction from ACC phenomena, explains comprehensively the physics of DCV and clarifies the results of new observations and research. It addresses the potential questions that can be raised and presents possible solutions, for both observation system requirements and model developments related to DCV.

The Cosmic Spacetime

Fulvio Melia

The growth of cosmology into a precision science represents one of the most remarkable stories of the past century. Much has been written chronicling this development, but rarely has any of it focused on the most critical element of this work—the cosmic spacetime itself. Addressing this lacuna is the principal focus of this book, documenting the growing body of evidence compelling us—not only to use this famous solution to Einstein's equations in order to refine the current paradigm, but—to probe its foundation at a much deeper level.

Designing Bioactive Polymeric Materials For Restorative Dentistry

Edited by Mary Anne Sampaio de Melo, University of Maryland School of Dentistry, Baltimore, USA

Restorative biomaterials in dentistry are designed to restore the shape and the function of the teeth. Their applicability is related to restorative procedures such as dental restorations, dentures, dental implants and endodontic materials. This book will review the current state of the art for restorative biomaterials as well as discuss the near-future trends in this field. It will examine the biomaterials utilized in restorative dental applications, bonding, composites, cements, and ceramics) and assess the design for these materials and role of nanotechnology.

Edited by Vladimir Mitin, Victor Ryzhii and Taiichi Otsuji

The material presented in the book is reviewed in detail in Chapter 1. Chapter 2 discusses the electronic and plasmonic properties of graphene and heterostructures based on graphene for all devices. Chapters 3–7 focus on the concepts of detectors and emitters with a special emphasis on plasmonic enhancement of those devices as well as on population inversion and lasing. The key advantage of the several detectors and emitters presented in the book is their ability to work at room temperature.

Introduction to Ultrathin Silica Films

Shamil Shaikhutdinov

This is the first-ever book on the preparation, atomic-level description, and chemistry of ultrathin silica films grown on metal substrates. Silica (SiO₂) is one of the key materials in many modern technological applications. Further miniaturization of nanoelectronic devices necessitates rational design of ultrathin silica films on electrically conductive substrates. A growing body of experimental and theoretical results provide the basis for placing single-layer silicates into the family of truly two-dimensional materials and receiving the name silicatene. In addition, thin silica films are well suited for studying chemical reactions on silica surfaces.

Nano-Enabled Medical Applications

Edited by Lajos P. Balogh

This book is the second in a series presenting articles that received the most citations in recent years in nanomedicine. The series is edited by, a prominent nanotechnology researcher and editor-in-chief of Precision Nanomedicine. The theme of the second volume is about nano-enabled medical applications. The 19 articles collected here have already acquired more than 12,500 citations highlighting the importance and professional recognition of the work of these scientists in nanomedicine. The content includes the general overview of the field and a wide variety of applications that have been impossible without nanoscience and nanotechnology.

Microfluidics and Bio-MEMS

Devices and Applications

Edited by Tuhin S. Santra

This book compiles cutting-edge research on cell manipulation, separation, and analysis using microfluidics and bio-MEMS. It illustrates the use of micro-robots for biomedical applications, vascularized microfluidic organs-on-a-chip and their applications, as well as DNA gene microarray biochips and their applications. It also elaborates on neuronal cell activity in microfluidic compartments, microvasculature and microarray gene patterning, different physical methods for drug delivery and analysis, micro-/nanoparticle preparation and separation in a micro-/nanofluidic environment, and the potential biomedical applications of micro-/nanoparticles.

Printed Antennas

Theory and Design

Edited by Binod Kumar Kanaujia, Surendra Kumar Gupta, Jugul Kishor and Deepak Gangwar

Printed antennas have become integral part of next generation wireless communication and found to be commonly used to improve system capacity, data rate, reliability, etc. This book covers theory, design techniques, and the chronological regression of the printed antennas for various applications. This book will provide readers the basics conceptual knowledge about antenna along with advanced techniques for antenna design. The book covers a variety of analytical techniques and their CAD applications and discusses new applications of printed antenna technology such as sensing. The authors also Presents special reconfigurable antennas such as ME dipole, polarization, feeding, DGs.

The Art of Measuring in the Thermal Sciences

Edited by Josua Meyer, Built Engineering and Information Technology, South Africa and Michel De Paepe, Ghent University, Belgium

Series: Heat Transfer

THE ART OF MEASURING IN THERMAL SCIENCES is aimed at providing engineers, researchers, and graduate students a state of the art overview of best practises for conducting sound measurements in the thermal sciences. It is a guide for people who want to conduct thermal experiments in their research and development of thermal systems, and in the industries of energy generation, transport, manufacturing, mining, processes, HVAC, and other industries. The text provides insights into advanced measurement techniques and systems, goes into the fundamentals where possible, and focuses on advanced measurement techniques now used in the precise analysis and design of thermal systems.

Bicycle Engineering and Technology

Andrew Livesey

Rather than just explaining how to maintain a cycle, this book delves into the engineering of a bike and why it needs to be maintained as it does. Covering the applied science, manufacturing methods and mathematics related to cycles and cycling in an easy-to-understand way which will be accessible to both experienced cyclists and laypeople. This book will be a particularly useful resource for students on IMI, City & Guilds and Cytech Cycle Maintenance courses. It reflects the Bicycle Mechanic Apprenticeship Standard (level 2) and the IMI / C&G VRQs (level 2/3). It is supported by 200 photographs and 300 images for full, practical understanding of each topic.

Engineering Science

William Bolton, former Head of Research, Development and Monitoring at BTEC

Engineering Science is a comprehensive textbook for all vocational and pre-degree courses at Level 2 and beginning Level 3. It goes beyond the core science to include applications in the real world and the mechanical and electrical principles needed for the majority of courses. It is well supported by numerous worked examples and problems, with answers. Main changes in this edition are arithmetic, algebraic and graphical methods in engineering (for sections A and B of the BTEC Level 2 unit), and a new chapter introducing the basics of calculus.

Design and Technology

Manoj Kumar Majumder, IIIT, Chhattisgarh, India, Vijay Rao Kumbhare, IIIT, Naya Raipur, Chhattisgarh, India, Aditya Japa, IIIT, Naya Raipur, Chhattisgarh, India and Brajesh Kumar Kaushik

Focusing on micro- and nanoelectronics design and technology, this book provides thorough analysis and demonstration starting from semiconductor devices to the VLSI fabrication, designing (analog and digital), on-chip interconnect modeling culminating with emerging non-silicon/ nano devices. This book gives detailed description of both theoretical as well as industry standard HSPICE, Verilog, Cadence simulation based real-time modeling approach with focus on fabrication of bulk and nano-devices. Each chapter of this proposed title primarily starts with a brief introduction of the presented topic and ends with a summary indicating the futuristic aspect including practice questions.

Introduction to Plant Automation and Controls

Raymond F. Gardner, U.S. Merchant Marine Academy, USA

The increasing complexity of plant control systems requires engineers who can relate plant operations and behaviors to their control requirements. This book is ideal for readers with limited electrical and electronic experience, particularly those looking for a multidisciplinary approach for obtaining a practical understanding of control systems related to the best operating practices of large or small plants. It is an invaluable resource for becoming an expert in this field or as a single-source reference for plant control systems.

Irving Granet, Queensborough Community College, City University of New York, Bayside, USA, Jorge Alvarado, Texas A&M University, USA and Maurice Bluestein, Indiana University-Purdue University, Indianapolis, USA

The ninth edition of Thermodynamics and Heat Power offers a revised sequence of thermodynamics concepts, processes, and energy systems to enable learning outcomes for Engineering and Engineering Technology students taking an introductory course. Built around an easily understandable approach, this updated text focuses on thermodynamics fundamentals and explores renewable energy generation, IC engines, power plants, HVAC, and applied heat transfer. Energy, heat, and work are examined in relation to thermodynamics cycles, and the effects of fluid properties on system performance are explained. Numerous step-by-step examples and problems make this text ideal for student readers.

Rigorous Methods of Analysis and Synthesis

Boris Levin

The book comprises a new method of solving the integral equation of Leontovich, the most rigorous and most effective equation for the current in thin linear antennas, and describes the features of the application of the new solution method to various types of antennas. It considers new ways of analyzing antennas, in particular the method of electrostatic analogy, which permits the improvement of the directional characteristics of log-periodic and director-type antennas. A new approach to the analysis of the electrical characteristics of a microstrip antenna, which allows the expansion of its operation range, is given. New results of antenna synthesis are obtained.

Carbon Membrane Technology

Fundamentals and Applications

Edited by Xuezhong He and Izumi Kumakiri

Carbon membranes have great advantages of strong mechanical strength and high chemical stabilities, as well as high separation performance to reach the industrial attractive region. The aim of this book is to provide the fundamentals on carbon membrane materials for the young researchers and engineers to develop frontier membrane materials for energy efficient separation process. This book describes the status and perspectives of both self-supported and supported carbon membranes from fundamentals to applications. In the end, different potential applications both in gas and liquids separation are well described, and the future directions for carbon membrane development were pointed out.

Engineering Design and Mathematical Modelling

Concepts and Applications

Edited by Nnamdi Nwulu and Mammo Muchie
Engineering design and mathematical modelling are key tools/techniques in the Science, Technology and Innovation spheres. Whilst engineering design is concerned with the creation of functional innovative products and processes, mathematical modelling seeks to utilize mathematical principles and concepts to describe and control real world phenomena. Both of these can be useful tools for spurring and hastening progress in developing countries.

The purpose of this book is to help plant personnel understand the reasons behind the degradation of their lubricant, determine methods to identify the onset of degradation, and reduce or eliminate lubricant degradation within their equipment. The book identifies lubricant degradation mechanisms and explains them clearly. It highlights the processes for each and allows the reader to easily identify conditions. It discusses characteristics of each degradation mechanism with examples and identification of each deport type and goes over lab tests with warning limitations. The book will also compare the degradation against each other to aid the reader in understanding the differences.

Nanotechnologies: The Physics of Nanomaterials (2-volume set)

David Schmool

Nanotechnology: The Physics of Nanomaterials (2-volume set) is a comprehensive guide to the various aspects of nanophysics. The author's microscopic approach illustrates how physical principles can be used to understand the basic properties and functioning of low-dimensional systems. It provides an in-depth introduction to the techniques of production and analysis of materials at the nanoscopic level. Much of physics is based on our understanding of solid-state physics. These volumes show how limitations of size can give rise to new physical properties and quantum effects, which can be exploited in new applications and devices.

Nanotechnologies: The Physics of Nanomaterials

Volume 2: Physical Properties of Nanostructured Materials and Their Applications

David Schmool

Volume 2: Physical Properties of Nanostructured Materials and Their Applications of Nanotechnology: The Physics of Nanomaterials (2-volume set) provides a good overview of the main techniques of the working principles and the type of structures that can be produced with nanomaterials. Specifically, Volume 2 discusses the mechanical, electrical, and optical properties of nanostructures as well as nanomagnetism, spintronics, spin dynamics, as well as broad range of applications to illustrate how the physical properties of materials can be manipulated to perform very specific functions.

Natural Language Processing in Artificial Intelligence

Edited by Brojo Kishore Mishra and Raghvendra Kumar

This volume, Natural Language Processing in Artificial Intelligence, focuses on natural language processing (NLP), artificial intelligence (AI), and allied areas. The book delves into natural language processing, which enables communication between people and computers and automatic translation to facilitate easy interaction with others around the world. It discusses theoretical work and advanced applications, approaches, and techniques for computational models of information and how it presented by language (artificial, human, or natural in other ways).

Nature-Inspired Optimization in Advanced Manufacturing Processes and Systems

Edited by Ganesh M. Kakandikar, Zeal College of Engineering & Research, Pune, Maharashtra, India and Dinesh G. Thakur, DIAT

Series: Artificial Intelligence (AI) in Engineering

This book covers computational intelligence applied to manufacturing. It discusses nature inspired optimization of processes and the design and development with manufacturing systems. It will explore all manufacturing processes including macro and micro levels and offers manufacturing philosophies. Non-conventional manufacturing, real industry problems and case studies, research on generative processes and how everything is relevant to Industry 4.0 will be also be included.

Surface Structure Modification and Hardening of Al-Si Alloys

Denis A. Romanov, Stanislav V. Moskovskii and Viktor E. Gromov

This reference explores the hardening of material surfaces using concentrated energy flows resulting in the nanostructuring of surface layers. The authors demonstrate how these methods achieve a reduction in plastic deformation of the surface, and a more uniform distribution of elastic stresses near the surface during operational use significantly reducing part failure. The book is intended for specialists in the field of physical material science, condensed state physics, metal science and thermal treatment and will be of interest to undergraduate and post-graduate students in these fields.

Edited by Sanjay Mavinkere Rangappa, King Mongkut's University of Technology, North Bangkok, Jyotishkumar Parameswaranpillai, King Mongkut's University of Technology North Bangkok and Suchart Siengchin, King Mongkut's University of Technology North Bangkok

This book provides a comprehensive account of recent developments in polymer coatings, encompassing novel methods, techniques, and a broad spectrum of applications. Chapters explore key aspects of polymer coatings, highlighting fundamental research, different types, and technology advances. It also integrates various aspects of these materials from synthesis to application. Current status, trends, future directions, and opportunities are also discussed. With contributions from top international researchers from industry, academia, government, and private research institutions, new and experienced readers will benefit from this applications-oriented book.

D.S. Sofronov, K.N. Belikov, M. Rucki, S.N. Lavrynenko, Z. Siemiątkowski, E. Yu. Bryleva and O.M. Odnovolova

This monograph focuses on development of inorganic nanomaterials for removal of metallic species from the aqueous environment. General synthetic methods to prepare such materials are lacking. This book investigates problems of controlled synthesis of these materials and the effect of their morphological characteristics on their sorption capacity. This book is of interest to researchers and scientists working with inorganic synthesis and properties of sorption materials.

Spark Erosion Machining

MEMS to Aerospace

Edited by Neelesh Kumar Jain, Indian Institute of Technology-Indore, India and Kapil Gupta, University of Johannesburg, South Africa

The book covers novel applications in spark erosion based machining processes, ranging from production of micro electro mechanical systems to machining of aerospace materials. The principle, methodology and mechanism of spark erosion-based machining processes and their hybrid versions such as EDM, WEDM, Mice-EDM/WEDM, Electrochemical discharge machining, etc. are described. Machining of difficult-to-cut materials such as ceramics, MMCs, glasses; machining of Ni-Ti implants, shape memory alloys, and silicon etc. for biomedical applications; and machining of titanium and superalloys for aerospace and automobile applications are discussed elaborately.

Industry 4.0 – Shaping The Future of The Digital World

Proceedings of the 2nd International Conference on Sustainable Smart Manufacturing (S2M 2019), 9–11 April 2019, Manchester, UK

Edited by Paulo Jorge da Silva Bartolo, Mechanical and Aeronautical Engineering Division, School of Mechanical, Aerospace & Civil Engineering, The University of Manchester, Manchester, UK, Fernando Moreira da Silva, CIAUD, Faculty of Architecture, University of Lisbon, Portugal, Shaden Jaradat, The University of Manchester, UK and Helena Bartolo, Centre for Rapid and Sustainable Product Development, Polytechnic Institute of Leiria, Leiria, Portugal

The Sustainable Smart Manufacturing (S2M) Conference was hosted by The University of Manchester in 2019. The conference was jointly organised by The University of Manchester, The University of Lisbon and The Polytechnic of Leiria – the latter two bringing in a wealth of expertise in how Industry 4.0 manifests itself in the context of sustainably evolving, deeply-rooted cities. S2M 2019 instigated the development of 61 papers selected for publication in this book on areas of Smart Manufacturing, Additive Manufacturing and Virtual Prototyping, Materials for Healthcare Applications and Circular Economy, Design Education, and Urban Spaces.

Safety Metrics for the Modern Safety Professional

C. Gary Lopez

The safety and health profession has been hindered by ineffective metrics for decades, with the primary metrics of choice being the OSHA incident rate and lost time accident rate. This narrow focus on what constitutes loss is not in line with the new concepts of managing the total risk that an organization faces. The book looks at indicators on a tactical level where they can be very effective in providing management with clear direction and "manageable" items they can do to promote the safety efforts of an organization.

Textile Design

Products and Processes

Michael Hann, School of Design, University of Leeds, UK

Series: Textile Institute Professional Publications

This book includes fundamentals of textile processing technology with explanation of craft techniques, various stages of processing fibres and yarns with useful, readily understandable, line drawings. Fibrous types, dyes, yarns and cloths have been explained and material is supported by glossary and explanation of processing stages from fibre to finished cloth. Further, the considerations of relevance to the development and preparation of a design collection are outlined and discussed. Various testing procedures, including fibre, yarn and cloth identification methods, and important innovations in textile products and processing are identified and explained as well.

R for Health Data Science

Ewen Harrison and Riinu Pius

In this age of information, the manipulation, analysis, and interpretation of data has become a fundamental part of professional life. From the understanding of disease and the development of new treatments, to the diagnosis and management of individual patients, the use of data and technology is now an integral part of the business of healthcare. Those working in healthcare interact daily with data, often without realising it. The conversion of this avalanche of information to useful knowledge is essential for high quality patient care. R for Health Data Analysis includes everything a healthcare professional needs to go from R Novice to R Guru.

R for Political Data Science

A Practical Guide

Francisco Urdinez and Andres Cruz

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC The R Series

This is a handbook for political scientists new to R who want to learn the most useful and common ways to interpret and analyze political data. This book is divided into 3 sections. The first, on the use of R, is for those users who are learning R or are migrating from another software. The second section, on econometric models, covers OLS, binary and survival models, panel data, and causal inference. The third section is a data science toolbox of some of the most useful tools in the discipline: data imputation, fuzzy merge of large datasets, web mining, quantitative text analysis, network analysis, mapping, spatial cluster analysis, and principal component analysis.

Understanding Elections through Statistics

Polling, Prediction, and Testing

Ole J. Forsberg

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Statistics in the Social and Behavioral Sciences

Written for those with only a brief introduction to statistics, this book takes you on a statistical journey from how polls are taken to how they can—and should—be used to estimate current popular opinion. Once an understanding of the election process is built, we turn towards testing elections for evidence of unfairness. While holding elections has become the de facto proof of government legitimacy, those electoral processes may hide the dirty little secret of the government illicitly ensuring a favorable election outcome.

Proofs 101

An Introduction to Formal Mathematics

Joseph Kirtland

Proofs 101: An Introduction to Formal Mathematics serves as an introduction to proofs for mathematics majors who have completed the calculus sequence (at least Calculus I and II) and Linear Algebra.

It prepares students for the proofs they will need to analyse and write, the axiomatic nature of mathematics, and the rigors of upper-level mathematics courses. Basic number theory, relations, functions, cardinality, and set theory will provide the material for the proofs and lay the foundation for a deeper understanding of mathematics, which students will need to carry with them throughout their future studies

Data Management Using Stata

A Practical Handbook

Michael N. Mitchell, UCLA Academic Technology Services Consulting Group, Los Angeles, California, USA

This second edition focuses on tasks that bridge the gap between raw data and statistical analysis. It has been updated throughout to reflect new features, including the ability to have multiple Stata datasets open at once, and to manipulate string variables stored as Unicode. Within each chapter, each section is a self-contained lesson illustrating a particular data management task (e.g. creating date variables or automating error checking) via examples. Author Michael Mitchell alerts users to common pitfalls (and how to avoid them) and provides strategic data management advice. Useful as a quick reference and as a means for learning comprehensive data management skills.

Introduction to Modern Algebra and Its Applications

Nadiya Gubareni, Silesian University of Technology, Poland

The book provides an introduction to modern abstract algebra and its applications. It covers all major topics of classical theory of numbers, groups, rings, fields and finite dimensional algebras. The book also provides interesting and important modern applications in such subjects as Cryptography, Coding Theory, Computer Science and Physics. In particular, it considers algorithm RSA, secret sharing algorithms, Diffie-Hellman Scheme and ElGamal cryptosystem based on discrete logarithm problem. It also presents Buchberger's algorithm which is one of the important algorithms for constructing Gröbner basis.

Functional Analysis and Summability

P.N. Natarajan, Mission Vivekananda College, Chennai

In this book, the author makes a sincere attempt for a gentle introduction of these topics to the students. In the Functional Analysis component of the book, Hahn-Banach theorem, Banach-Steinhaus theorem (or Uniform Boundedness Principle), Open mapping theorem, Closed graph theorem and Riesz representation theorem are highlighted. In the Summability component of the book, Silverman-Toeplitz theorem, Schur's theorem, Steinhaus theorem and Steinhaus type theorems are proved.

The book will be useful to post-grad as well as, pre-research level students and research scholars in Mathematics. Students of Physics and Engineering will also find this book useful.

Introduction to Time Series Using Stata, Revised Edition

Sean Beckett

Introduction to Time Series Using Stata, Revised Edition provides a step-by-step guide to essential time-series techniques—from the incredibly simple to the quite complex—and, at the same time, demonstrates how these techniques can be applied in the Stata statistical package. The emphasis is on an understanding of the intuition underlying theoretical innovations and an ability to apply them. Real-world examples illustrate the application of each concept as it is introduced, and care is taken to highlight the pitfalls, as well as the power, of each new tool. The Revised Edition has been updated for Stata 16.

Innovative Methods for Rare Disease Drug Development

Shein-Chung Chow, Duke University School of Medicine
Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Biostatistics Series

In the US, a rare disease is defined by the Orphan Drug Act as a disorder/condition that affects less than 200,000 persons. For the approval of "orphan" drug products for rare diseases, the traditional approach of power analysis for sample size calculation is not feasible as only a limited number of subjects are available for clinical trials. In this case, innovative approaches are needed for providing evidence which meets the same standard as drugs in common conditions. This book focuses on biostatistical applications regarding design and analysis in pharmaceutical research and development from both regulatory and scientific (statistical) perspectives.

AI Meets BI

Artificial Intelligence and Business Intelligence

Lakshman Bulusu and Rosendo Abellera

This book addresses the integration of tools and technologies using artificial intelligence to boost and enhance business intelligence. It covers various AI powered analytics for BI enabled decision-making. It focuses on the primary aspect of "pairing AI with BI" on a one-on-one basis and details the intersection of AI, data science, machine learning, deep learning, and cognitive computing. It explains how these technologies can assist or automate BI and decision making resulting in more informed business decision-making.

Cloud Computing Security

Foundations and Challenges

Edited by John R. Vacca, TechWrite, Pomeroy, Ohio, USA

Overview of cloud computing security technology and implementation. Explores practical solutions to a wide range of cloud computing security issues. Chapters by leading experts in the field address immediate and long-term challenges cloud computing security. This comprehensive handbook serves as a professional reference and practitioner's guide to today's most complete and concise view of cloud computing security in areas such as data security, recovery, privacy, access control, trusted computing, as well as legal issues in areas such as regulatory compliance, auditing, and many others.

Computational Advertising

Market and Technologies for Internet Commercial Monetization

Peng Liu and Chao Wang

This book introduces computational advertising, and advertising monetization. It provides a macroscopic understanding of how consumer products in the Internet era push user experience and monetization to the limit. Part One of the book focuses on the basic problems and background knowledge of online advertising. Part Two targets the product, operations, and sales staff, as well as high-level decision makers of the Internet products. It explains the market structure, trading models, and the main products in computational advertising. Part Three targets system engineers, algorithm engineers, and architects, and focuses on the key technical challenges of different advertising products.

The Design and Implementation of the RT-Thread Operating System

Qiu Yi, Xiong Puxiang and Tianlong Zhu

This book covers embedded real-time multi-threaded operating system called RT-Thread. RT-Thread supports multiple chip architectures, compilers and IDEs, and is free to use. It is often used in Internet-of-Things (IoT) devices. The first part examines the kernel and describes its thread management, the realization of synchronization and communication between threads, clock management, memory management, interrupt management and migration. The second part covers component issues, including the device framework, tools, debugging, file systems, and networking. Each chapter features code samples.

Visualizing with Text

Richard Brath

Series: AK Peters Visualization Series

Visualizing with Text uncovers the rich palette of text elements usable in visualizations from simple labels through to documents. Using a multidisciplinary research effort spanning across fields including visualization, typography, and cartography, it builds a solid foundation for the design space of text in visualization. The book illustrates many new kinds of visualizations, including microtext lines, skim formatting, and typographic sets – which solve some of the shortcomings of well-known visualization techniques. Designers, developers and academics can use this book as a reference and inspiration for new approaches to visualization in any application that uses text.

Anyone Can Code

The Art and Science of Logical Creativity

Ali Arya, Carleton University, Canada

This textbook starts by reviewing creative processes such as visual and algorithmic thinking. It then moves to establish a basic understanding of software programs as a combination of code and data. This is demonstrated through engaging examples, including video games and visual effects. Then, the concept of modularization is used to understand programming constructs. The book uses a reflective approach based on the notion that learning is done not only through "doing" but also "sense-making". To help readers with this approach, the book borrows from different creative activities, such as visual arts, game design, and storytelling, and provides plenty of exercises and reflective questions.

Discovering Computer Science

Interdisciplinary Problems, Principles, and Python Programming

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Textbooks in Computing

Discovering Computer Science: Interdisciplinary Problems, Principles, and Python Programming introduces computational problem solving as a vehicle of discovery in a wide variety of disciplines. With a principles-oriented introduction to computational thinking, the text provides a broader and deeper introduction to computer science than typical introductory programming books. Organized around interdisciplinary problem domains, rather than programming language features, each chapter guides students through sophisticated algorithmic and programming techniques. The author uses a spiral approach to introduce Python language features in increasingly complex contexts as the book progresses.

Multivariable Calculus with Mathematica

Robert P. Gilbert, University of Delaware, Newark, USA, Michael Shoushani and Yvonne Ou

This textbook aims to address the calculus of several variables. Instead of just using Mathematica to directly solve problems, the students are encouraged to learn the syntax and to write their own code to solve problems. This not only encourages scientific computing skills but at the same time stresses the complete understanding of the mathematics. Questions are provided at the end of the chapters to test the student's theoretical understanding of the mathematics, and there are also computer algebra questions which test the student's ability to apply their knowledge in non-trivial ways.

A Practical Approach to Metaheuristics using LabVIEW and MATLAB®

Pedro Ponce-Cruz, Arturo Molina Gutiérrez, Tecnológico de Monterrey, Mexico, Ricardo A. Ramírez-Mendoza, Efraín Méndez Flores, Tecnológico de Monterrey, Mexico, Alexandro Antonio Ortiz Espinoza, Tecnológico de Monterrey, Mexico and David Christopher Balderas Silva, Tecnológico de Monterrey, Mexico

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Computer and Information Science Series

This book describes and implements metaheuristic algorithms, using a practical approach in which engineering problems are solved. A novel optimization algorithm, called Earthquake optimization, is presented as a main example. Since this algorithm is used for earthquake modeling, a geological optimization strategy is demonstrated. In addition, this algorithm is deployed in digital systems to solve engineering problems, using a practical approach. The reader of this book will gain a complete view of the main metaheuristic algorithms in use, and how they can be implemented to solve optimization problems.

Arc-Search Techniques for Interior-Point Methods

Yaguang Yang

This book discusses one of the most recent developments in interior-point methods, the arc-search techniques. Introducing these techniques result in an efficient interior-point algorithm with the lowest polynomial bound, which solves a long-standing issue of the interior-point methods in linear programming, i.e., the algorithm with the best polynomial bound is the least efficient and the most efficient interior-point algorithm cannot be proved to converge. The book also covers important results since 1990s and the extensions of the arc-search techniques to the general optimization problems, such as convex quadratic programming, linear complementarity problem.

Umesh Kumar Tiwari, Graphic Era (Deemed to be University), India and Santosh Kumar, Graphic (Era Deemed to be University), Dehradun, India

Component-Based Software Engineering (CBSE) is a distinctive paradigm of Software Engineering, offering the feature of reusability. It promotes the development of software systems by picking suitable and appropriate pre-existing, pre-built, pre-tested and reusable software work-products called 'components' This book addresses three core issues in the context of component-based software: reusability, interaction-integration of components and testing. This book is aimed primarily at undergraduates and graduates of computer science and software engineering. It would also be beneficial for research scholars, software developers and software designers.

Detecting Regime Change in Computational Finance

Data Science, Machine Learning and Algorithmic Trading

Jun Chen and Edward P K Tsang, University of Essex, United Kingdom

Based on interdisciplinary research into "Directional Change", a new data-driven approach to financial data analysis, this book applies machine learning to financial market monitoring and algorithmic trading.

Directional Change is a new way of summarizing price changes in the market. Instead of sampling prices at fixed intervals (such as daily closing in time series), it samples prices when the market changes direction ("zigzag"). By sampling data in a different way, the book lays out concepts which enable the extraction of information that other market participants may not be able to see.

Combined Roof-Bolting Systems of Mine Workings

Edited by Volodymyr Bondarenko, National Mining University of Ukraine, Dnipropetrovsk, Ukraine, Iryna Kovalevska, National Mining University, Dnipropetrovsk, Ukraine, Hennadiy Symanovych, Mykhaylo Barabash, Viktor Chervatiuk, LLC "DTEK Energy", Kiev, Ukraine, Oleksandr Husiev, PJSC "DTEK Pavlohradvuhillia", Shakhtarske, Ukraine and Vasyl Snihur, PJSC "DTEK Pavlohradvuhillia", Verbky, Ukraine

The basic principles of geomechanical processes occurring in mine workings during the extraction of minerals are discussed in this monograph. Particular attention is paid to the support system, specifically to the various roof-bolt and frame support designs, and also to the modern means providing resource-saving conditions for ensuring mine workings sustainability. The basic principles of the computing experiment performance at the modelling of geomechanical processes are also presented and the stress-strain state of "rock massif – mine working support" systems are investigated. Finally, the results of field studies are discussed and illustrated.

Data Analytics Applied to the Mining Industry

Ali Soofastaei, The University of Queensland, Australia

The book describes the key challenges facing the mining sector as it transforms into a digital industry able to fully exploit process automation, remote operation centres, autonomous equipment and the opportunities offered by the industrial internet of things. It provides guidelines on how data needs to be collected, stored and managed to enable the different advanced data analytics methods to be applied effectively in practice, through use of case studies and worked examples. Each chapter ends with a section detailing lessons for mining. The final chapter explores the revised operating principles, the organizational characteristics and the new skills needed by mining companies.

Diagnostic Radiology Physics with MATLAB®

A Problem-solving Approach

Edited by Johan Helmenkamp, Karolinska University Hospital, Sweden, Robert Bujila, Karolinska University Hospital, Sweden and Gavin Poludniowski, Karolinska University Hospital, Sweden

Series: Series in Medical Physics and Biomedical Engineering Traditionally, computer programming skills have rarely been emphasized during the education and training of medical physicists, meaning that many individuals enter the workplace without the ability to solve real-world clinical problems. This is despite the fact that imaging modalities in radiology produce ever-increasing amounts of data which need to be displayed, optimized, analyzed and archived (a 'big data' as well as an 'image processing' problem).

Quantum Theory of Transport Properties of Single Molecules

Yoshihiro Asai and Marius Buerkle

Considering this, a reprint book compiling key important papers into a single comprehensive volume is convenient and comprehensive. In this volume, 25 papers are collected and compiled into 4 sections. A brief introduction given in each section will help readers with various backgrounds. The book will appeal to anyone involved in charge and/or heat transport problems that are widely spread over various subjects in material science, chemistry, electrical engineering, and condensed matter physics.

Social Laser

Application of Quantum Information and Field Theories to Modeling of Social Processes

Edited by Andrei Khrennikov

We remark that the sociopolitical perturbations under consideration are characterized by the cascade dynamics leading to the exponential amplification of coherent social actions. In quantum physics, such exponential and coherent amplification is the basic feature of laser's functioning. In this book we explore the theory of laser to model aforementioned waves of social protests, from color revolutions to Brexit and Trump's election. We call such social processes Stimulated Amplification of Social Actions (SASA), but to keep closer to the analogy with physics we merely operate with the term "social laser."

Electroinduced Drift of Neutral Charge Clusters in Salt Solutions

Li Hunda, M. A. Kazaryan, Russian Academy of Sciences, Moscow and I.V. Shamanin

This book presents studies of the processes accompanying the effect of periodic electric and magnetic fields on salt solutions in polar dielectric liquids. The authors explain phenomena from a physical point of view, without theoretical constructions and mathematical calculations. This is done in order to make the book accessible to a wide audience and to help the reader navigate in a multilateral topic that is touched upon when studying processes that occur in liquid media under the external influence of an electromagnetic nature. The book will be useful to specialists, engineers and graduate students especially those recording and transmitting information in liquid media.

Green Chemistry and Applications

Edited by Aide Sáenz-Galindo, Adali Oliva Castañeda Facio and Raul Rodriguez-Herrera

Green chemistry is a work tool that can be applied in different areas such as medicine, materials, polymers, food, organic chemistry, etc., since it was propounded in the early 2000's. It has become a viable alternative for care, remediation and protection of the environment and has been implemented worldwide. In this book the twelve principles of green chemistry are presented in a simple way, as well as examples of the applications of green chemistry in numerous areas showcasing it as an ideal alternative for environmental care. It also provides information on current research being implemented at the pilot plant and industrial level.

Introduction to Cosmic Inflation and Dark Energy

Konstantinos Dimopoulos

Series: Series in Astronomy and Astrophysics

Cosmic inflation and dark energy hold the key to the origin and the eventual fate of the Universe. Despite the increasing prominence of these subjects in research and teaching over the past decade or more, no introductory text dedicated to this topic has been previously published. Konstantinos Dimopoulos is a highly regarded expert in the field, and an experienced communicator of the subject to students. In this book he provides advanced undergraduate and early graduate students with an accessible introduction to these topics, and equips them with the tools they need to understand the cosmology of cosmic inflation and dark energy.

Structure Determination By Spectroscopic Methods

A Practical Approach

Raul SanMartin, Dept of Chemistry II, Faculty of Science and Technology, University of the Basque, Spain and Maria Teresa Herrero, Department of Organic Chemistry II, Faculty of Science and Technology, University of the Basque, Spain

The authors travel with the reader through the challenging maze of structure determination, showing how to distinguish between valuable and deceiving data from IR, NMR and MS spectra, and putting all the pieces together to solve the structure elucidation puzzle. Indeed, human reasoning is the key to combine the information contained in those bands, signals and peaks by a rationale that enables the makeup of a chemical structure. A number of increasingly more complex problems will act as trip segments, and in addition to the spectra themselves, each chapter is supplemented with figures and tables that decipher the above data and serve as maps for the journey.

The Caribbean Blue Economy

Edited by Peter Clegg, Robin Mahon, Patrick McConney and Hazel A. Oxenford

Series: Europa Regional Perspectives

The book opens with an examination of the region's position in the global picture regarding adoption of the Blue Economy and examines key crosscutting issues such as ecosystem services, climate change and governance at all levels that could make or break the Blue Economy initiative. Following this, it explores the main sectoral activities that will constitute the Blue Economies in the region: fisheries, tourism, shipping and transport, renewable energy, oil and gas, seabed mining and waste management are all considered, closing with a synthesis of the political and technical requirements to overcome threats and take advantage of opportunities in the Blue Economy.

Poland in the Single Market

Politics, economics, the euro

Edited by Anna Visvizi, Institute of East-Central Europe, Poland, Anna Matysek-Jędrzych and Katarzyna Mroczek-Dąbrowska

Series: Europa Perspectives on the EU Single Market

Poland has been a member of the EU for more than 15 years. During that time, Poland's image within the EU evolved from newcomer, to 'model child', champion of growth, to maverick. This volume's objective is to remind society that Poland's success is an outcome of well-thought over and bold structural reforms implemented in a swift and timely manner, of society's support for these reforms, and of third actors' benign assistance. Looking back on the 30 years since the collapse of communism, and at the 15 years since EU membership, this book offers an

Handbook of Governance in Small States

Edited by Lino Briguglio, Jessica Byron, Stefano Moncada and Wouter Veenendaal, the Institute of Political Science at Leiden University, the Netherlands.

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

This volume covers a wide spectrum of governance issues relating to small states in a global context. What emerges from the book is that the societies of small states are being re-shaped by various forces outside their control, including the globalization process and climate change, rendering their governance ever more complex. These problems are not solely faced by small states, but small country size tends to lead to a higher degree of exposure to external factors.

The chapters are grouped into four sections broadly covering political, environmental, social and economic governance.

Series: Routledge Library Editions: English Civil War

Until this book was published in 1974, many of the letters in this book between Charles I Prince Rupert his nephew and the leading Royalist commander had never been published. The letters give a fascinating insight into the stormy relationship between the monarch and his nephew. Also included are letters from the Royalist exiles, including the future King Charles II and letters to and from Queen Henrietta Maria, Montrose and Oliver Cromwell. The period covered by the letters is the turning point of the Civil War and enables the reader to see the War through the eyes of those who participated in it.

Politics and the Bench

The Judges and the Origins of the English Civil War

W. J. Jones

Series: Routledge Library Editions: English Civil War

Although there have been studies of the English revolution, until this book was published in 1971, little attention had been paid to the Long Parliament's attempts to impeach a number of judges. This book describes how the judges became unpopular from the development of unanimous decision and opinions, to the role of the judges as agents and supervisors of government policies. The Long Parliament viewed them as the instrument behind evil policies and believed they had attempted to usurp the power of legislation. Charles I's failure to realize that legality could not be a perpetual answer to political dissent cost him his throne.

Countdown to Space War

Bhupendra Jasani, Christopher Lee and Stockholm International Peace Research Institute

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

Only two years after Sputnik, weapons were created for attacking spacecraft. These were based on land. But now there is talk of weapons in space-instant-kill beams like lasers. President Reagan has offered a vision of new inventions that could stop nuclear missile attacks. But will they work? Can lasers make nuclear weapons obsolete? Or would they merely be used to wage Stars Wars?

Originally published in 1984, this is mainly the story of the military use of space. It shows how the new technology could trigger nuclear world war. And it looks for a way out...

No-First-Use

Stockholm International Peace Research Institute, Frank Blackaby, Jozef Goldblat and Lodgaard Sverre

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

The debate on no-first-use of nuclear weapons has been conducted on a number of fronts. First use of nuclear weapons has come under challenge from many different directions: from church synods, from international lawyers, in debates at the United Nations, and from strategic thinkers.

Originally published in 1984, this book takes stock for and against no-first-use and examines the political, military and arms control implications of such a commitment.

Objections to Nuclear Defence

Philosophers on Deterrence

Edited by Nigel Blake and Kay Pole

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

Moral and political questions are vitally relevant to the issue of survival in the nuclear age. Ethics has much to teach us about the meaning of national defence and civic responsibility in the nuclear state. For instance, those in NATO who argue for increased spending on such weapons do so with the intention of defending the values of the West. They must therefore be absolutely sure that they are not – as the contributors to this volume, originally published in 1984, powerfully suggest – undermining or destroying those values by the very means they adopt to preserve them.

Ethics and Nuclear Deterrence

Edited by Geoffrey Goodwin

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

Originally published in 1982, this book considers the ethical issues raised by nuclear policies and by the debate between proponents of the multilateralist/unilateralist approaches to disarmament and arms control at the time. It is not, like so many books on the subject, an ideological statement: there are essays by defence strategists which put the case for deterrence and essays by academics and churchmen which strenuously oppose it. The book also includes an essay on attempts to mitigate the appalling brutality of the many 'conventional' wars since 1945.

Tactical Nuclear Weapons

European Perspectives

Stockholm International Peace Research Institute

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

In the 1970s tactical nuclear warfare was a topical issue. The introduction of the new generation of tactical nuclear weapons into Europe could have had disastrous consequences. These new weapons had already been developed by nuclear-weapon laboratories and pressures were growing for their deployment. The fact has to be faced that any use of nuclear weapons is almost certain to escalate until all available weapons are used. Because of its importance, SIPRI organized a meeting to discuss the whole question. Originally published in 1978, this book is the outcome of that meeting.

Postures for Non-Proliferation

Arms Limitation and Security Policies to Minimize Nuclear Proliferation

Stockholm International Peace Research Institute

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

To constrain nuclear proliferation, one must, in addition to designing a proliferation-resistant nuclear fuel cycle, identify a set of long-term arms limitation and security policies for the major states. These policies should be capable of satisfying various security and political objectives of non-nuclear weapon states, thereby minimizing their incentives to acquire independent nuclear weapon capabilities, and thus collectively minimizing future nuclear proliferation. Originally published in 1979, this book attempts to identify such a comprehensive arms limitation and security regime.

The Other Side of Arms Control

Soviet Objectives in the Gorbachev Era

Alan B. Sherr

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

How does the Soviet Union view the costs and benefits of nuclear arms control? What factors motivate Soviet negotiations with the Western world on this crucial issue? And what, precisely, does the Soviet Union hope to accomplish through nuclear arms control? Originally published in 1988, this title provides an in-depth examination of this too infrequently discussed aspect of the arms race and the ongoing negotiations to halt it. Written in accessible, nontechnical language, this title will be of historical interest to students, teachers, policymakers, and others concerned with the future of nuclear arms control.

Dangers of Deterrence

Philosophers on Nuclear Strategy

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

Europe has everything to lose from nuclear war, and nothing to gain from it. Yet it is nuclear deterrence that we are relying on to shield us from war. More and more people are coming to believe that security under a nuclear shield is an illusion, and that nuclear deterrence embodies a dangerous paradox. It is too close to provocation, it cannot prevent nuclear blackmail, and its short-term success can only lead to proliferation and ultimate instability. In this book, originally published in 1983, philosophers go behind the rhetoric of the nuclear debate and analyse the dangers of deterrence.

Verification

How Much is Enough?

Allan S. Krass and Stockholm International Peace Research Institute

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

Originally published in 1985, the level of anxiety and suspicion between the USA and the USSR had rarely been higher. Many advocates of arms control believed that effective verification would reduce tensions and lessen the risk of war. This book analyses the two main issues of verification. One is technological: what are the present capabilities of various verification techniques and what is their potential? The second issue is political: how do US and Soviet approaches compare, what are the roles of domestic and bureaucratic politics, and on what criteria can a workable standard of adequacy be based? In short, how much is enough?

Safeguarding the Atom

A Critical Appraisal

David Fischer, Paul Szasz, Jozef Goldblat and Stockholm International Peace Research Institute

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

Safeguards play a key role in verifying the effectiveness of restraints on the spread of nuclear weapons. Originally published in 1985, this book is a study of the safeguards system of the International Atomic Energy Agency, an important element of the non-proliferation regime. It breaks new ground by focusing on the politics of safeguards, especially the political problems of the IAEA and of the day-to-day application of safeguards. It contains a critical appraisal and proposals for ways of improving existing procedures, and of adapting them to the political and technological changes of recent years.

Nuclear Playground

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

In the late 1980s it was felt that World War III could start in the Pacific. Originally published in 1987, this book tells the story of the nuclear men in the Pacific and of those people they 'displaced' and irradiated. It is also about what these people and their governments had begun to do in response. The nuclear issue had transformed the political landscape of Micronesia and the South Pacific in the 1980s, loosening the US grip and making the French increasingly unpopular. The people of these remote communities, largely forgotten or considered dispensable, had a nuclear past made for them. Now they want to make their own future.

Arms in the '80s

New Developments in the Global Arms Race

John Turner and Stockholm International Peace Research Institute

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

In the 1980s the world spent an enormous amount on preparations for war. Year by year, more and more resources went into the military sector. More and more complex weapon systems were devised. At the time, of all research scientists and engineers in the world, more than one in four was working for the military. Originally published in 1985, this book was for those who wanted to know what was happening. What new missiles were being built? What was happening in outer space? What are the facts about chemical weapons? What progress was being made (if any) in Geneva, Vienna and Stockholm, where the powers were negotiating on these matters?

The Dynamics of the Arms Race

Edited by David Carlton and Carlo Schaerf

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

The nuclear arms race had dominated international politics for the two decades prior to publication. Originally published in 1975, this symposium examines the dynamics of change within the arms race and the attempts at controlling and limiting it. The negotiations themselves, particularly SALT, and the prospects for further progress are discussed extensively. The book also surveys developments in chemical and biological warfare and includes an important paper on chemical warfare agents. The final section looks at recent developments in the theory of conflict and its applications in the Middle East, South Africa and a number of developing countries.

International Atomic Policy During a Decade

An Historical-Political Investigation into the Problem of Atomic Weapons During the Period 1945-1955

Elis Biörklund

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

Originally published in 1956, atomic policy overshadowed political considerations in the same way that 'the balance of power' had mesmerized European politicians for so long. Admiral Biörklund here makes a general survey of the whole problem. He traces the development of the atom and hydrogen bombs and the history of international atomic policy as revealed by post-war conferences, by official statements, and in official and unofficial publications. His thirty years study of Russia and complete command of the language have enabled him to give a more thorough and authoritative account of the Soviet attitude than has so far appeared in English.

Nuclear-Free Zones

Edited by David Pitt and Gordon Thompson

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

There is growing interest world wide in nuclear-free zones. Originally published in 1987, this book explores the question of what constitutes a nuclear-free zone and charts the progress of the movement to establish them. The book shows how definitions of nuclear-free zones vary from those intended to exclude everything nuclear (including nuclear power installations and the dumping of nuclear waste) to those aiming to exclude nuclear weapons in a limited way. Special attention is paid to the three treaties which have established major international nuclear-free zones, examining their strengths and weaknesses as well as areas where the idea has been proposed.

Deterrence in the 1980s

Crisis and Dilemma

Edited by R. B. Byers

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

Originally published in 1985, this title offers analyses by leading American and Canadian scholars and decision-makers in the field of strategic studies of the current problems and dilemmas of contemporary international security with deterrence, nuclear and conventional, as the unifying conceptual theme. Deterrence as theory, as history, as psychology, as politics, as ethics and as policy is addressed. The authors outline the complexities of deterrence, in theory and in practice, and offer proposals regarding the future operationalization of deterrence in order both to reassure Western publics and to enhance Western and international security.

The Logic of Nuclear Terror

Edited by Roman Kolkowicz

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

Originally published in 1987, this title presented a much-needed critical review of the premises, concepts, and policy prescriptions of deterrence theories and doctrines at the time. In particular, authors address: the historical validity, theoretical vitality, and policy-relevance of nuclear deterrence theories and doctrines; the ways in which technological and political change have affected the original concepts of nuclear war and deterrence strategies, and the ways in which such changes have affected policy and doctrine; and realistic alternative ways of thinking about strategy in the changing context of new military technologies and international politics.

Nuclear Disengagement in Europe

Stockholm International Peace Research Institute, Sverre Lodgaard and Marek Thee

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

In the early 1980s there had been an upsurge of public concern over the nuclear threat to Europe. Already saturated with nuclear weapons, Europe faced controversial new deployments and there was alarm over military strategies for nuclear war in the region. It is in this context that the idea of nuclear weapon-free zones had captured the popular imagination and became a political issue in Europe. Not only would such zones build confidence and raise the nuclear threshold, but they would be first steps towards a more comprehensive elimination of nuclear weapons. Originally published in 1983 this title probes the question of nuclear weapon-free zones in the region.

Internationalization to Prevent the Spread of Nuclear Weapons

Stockholm International Peace Research Institute

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

In 1980 the second Review Conference of the Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT) took place in Geneva. This Treaty was the most important barrier to the proliferation of nuclear weapons, the results would obviously have major effects in the field of arms control and disarmament. SIPRI convened an international group of experts to discuss issues pertinent to the forthcoming NPT Review Conference. It took place at SIPRI in Stockholm, 1979, when the feasibility of internationalizing the nuclear fuel cycle was examined. First published in 1980 SIPRI's views on this complex approach are expressed in Part 1 of this book. Part 2 contains the papers that were presented at the symposium.

Australia and Nuclear War

Edited by Michael Denborough

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

Originally published in 1983, this book presents the upshot of deliberations from a conference organised by the Australian National University to examine the whole issue of nuclear war and its implications for Australia, including unforgettable illustrations of some of the consequences of nuclear war. The book does not pretend to provide the answers, nor does it take any political viewpoint. It does present the authoritative opinions of some of the world's leading minds on the extent of the threat that faces Australia alongside powerful statements from committed men and women from around the world – opinions that will inform and disturb all thinking Australians.

Agreements for Arms Control

A Critical Survey

Jozef Goldblat and Stockholm International Peace Research Institute

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

First published in 1982, this is the most comprehensive handbook on arms control ever published. It contains an analysis of the bilateral and multilateral agreements reached since WWII. An assessment is made of the extent to which each agreement has affected the arms race, reduced the likelihood of war or otherwise contributed to the overall goal of disarmament. Ongoing arms control negotiations are also analyzed. The complex problem of verification of compliance with arms control obligations is critically examined, and the shortcomings of the existing arrangements are pointed out. The critique is searching, objective and free of the usual biases of official government reports.

The Nuclear Confrontation in Europe

Edited by Jeffrey H. Boutwell, Paul Doty and Gregory F. Treverton

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

Originally published in 1985, this book explores the nuclear confrontation between East and West in Europe: where we stand, how we got there and what the future may hold. Its concluding chapter outlines the prospects for nuclear arms control in Europe, and it frames the debate over NATO strategy and the role of nuclear weapons in the years ahead. Can NATO reduce its reliance on nuclear weapons? Can it cope with the issues at all? The chapters on NATO theatre nuclear forces and doctrine provide a rich background to current policy issues. This title unravels the military and political considerations at play in that debate and maps the European politics surrounding it.

Nuclear Energy and Nuclear Weapon Proliferation

Stockholm International Peace Research Institute

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

In mid-1980 a second conference for the review of the Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT) would take place in Geneva. Given the importance of preventing nuclear weapon proliferation, this conference would be a crucial event in the field of arms control and disarmament. In an attempt to contribute to the discussions at the NPT Review Conference, SIPRI assembled a group of experts from a number of countries to discuss the technical aspects of the control of fissionable materials in non-military applications. Originally published in 1979, this book on nuclear energy and nuclear weapon proliferation contains the papers presented at the symposium and reflects the discussions at the

Originally published in 1983, this book presents both the technical and political information necessary to evaluate the emerging threat to world security posed by recent advances in uranium enrichment technology. Some of the issues addressed in this book are: a technical analysis of the most important enrichment techniques in a form that is relevant to analysis of proliferation risks; a detailed projection of the world demand for uranium enrichment services; a summary and critique of present institutional non-proliferation arrangements in the world enrichment industry, and an identification of the states most likely to pursue the enrichment route to acquisition of nuclear weapons.

Non-Proliferation

The Why and the Wherefore

Stockholm International Peace Research Institute and Jozef Goldblat

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

Is the appearance of new nuclear weapon states inevitable? Who are the sponsors and apologists of nuclear weapons, and why are others in favour of renouncing them? What are the implications for international security of the increasingly wide use of nuclear energy? First published in 1985, SIPRI's study suggests some answers to these questions. The book examines the situation in a number of countries of key importance for non-proliferation: the two nuclear-weapon states which have declined to join the 1968 Non-Proliferation Treaty; a group of nuclear 'threshold' states also remaining outside the Treaty; and a group of states, both developed and developing, who have joined the Treaty.

The Nuclear Predicament

Explorations in Soviet Ideology

Stephen Shenfield

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

Ideological debate is one component of the intellectual background to Soviet policy-making. First published in 1987, this paper explores how Soviet writers wrestle with the challenge to their ideology that is posed by the threat of nuclear war. Eg. What is the relationship between the values of peace and of socialism? What drives the arms race? Is capitalism inherently militaristic, or is a demilitarized capitalism conceivable? Is the outcome of history predetermined or open? It is shown that the range of permissible views is wider than often assumed, and that the constraints of Soviet ideology do not exclude evolution towards a more cooperative approach to international security.

The Proliferation Puzzle

Why Nuclear Weapons Spread (and What Results)

Edited by Zachary S. Davis and Benjamin Frankel

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

First published in 1993, this volume was unique in its scope and approach: Unlike most literature on nuclear weapons proliferation at the time, the essays in this volume offer theoretical discussions and suggest testable hypotheses about the causes and effects of nuclear weapons proliferation. This book brings together scholars from different schools within international relations and the social sciences to address the question of why nuclear weapons spread. The essays in this volume show how explicit hypotheses about the causes and consequences of nuclear weapons proliferation provide a deeper understanding of the problem and suggest specific, theory-informed policy recommendations.

Nuclear Non-Proliferation and Global Security

Edited by David B. Dewitt

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

The nuclear non-proliferation treaty had recently undergone its third formal review by its signatories, who had assessed its effectiveness and considered how it might better be implemented. This book, first published in 1987, written by experts many of whom were participants in the nuclear non-proliferation treaty regime, examines the whole range of issues connected with nuclear non-proliferation and the treaty. It looks at non-proliferation from the point of view of nuclear nations, non-nuclear nations and the nuclear industry. It assesses the work of the international monitoring bodies and reconsiders the place of non-proliferation in the changing balance of global nuclear power.

Strategic Disarmament, Verification and National Security

Stockholm International Peace Research Institute

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

First published in 1977, the purpose of this book was to analyse the relationship between the security of two states mutually undergoing strategic disarmament at the time and the need for safeguarding their security by means of a verification system. The book thus studies some of the basic problems in the disarmament debate. There was thus some justification for the statement made by some outstanding authorities in the field that 'to date, no systematic analysis has been attempted to determine what disarmament measures would optimally require of verification methods...' Our ambition is to respond to this criticism, at least so far as the strategic context of disarmament is concerned.

Arms Control

Management or Reform?

Lawrence Freedman

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Nuclear Security

Originally published in 1986, although the pace of arms control negotiations has been stepped up, there is still little sign of agreement. In this paper the author examines the current negotiating effort, with particular emphasis on its implications for European security. He provides an up-to-date analysis of the superpower discussions on nuclear arms control, including the impact of 'star wars', and also of the talks at Vienna on conventional force reductions and at Stockholm on confidence-building measures. He notes a shift in emphasis from 'parity' to 'transparency' in Western proposals, and questions whether this promises greater results than were achieved from earlier approaches.

The Psychology of Everything

Know the psychology. Understand your world.
See your life in a new way.

The Psychology of Everything is a series of books which debunk the popular myths and pseudo-science surrounding some of life's biggest questions. The series explores the hidden psychological factors that drive us, from our subconscious desires and aversions, to our natural social instincts. Absorbing, informative, and always intriguing, each book is written by an expert in the field, examining how research-based knowledge compares with popular wisdom, and showing how psychology can truly enrich our understanding of modern life.
