French Interventions in Africa

Reluctant Multilateralism

Edited by Stefano Recchia and Thierry Tardy

This book explores France's African intervention policy and the country's attempts to re-legitimise its military presence in Africa by relying on multilateral cooperation through the United Nations, the European Union, and various ad hoc frameworks. France's enduring ability to project military power on the African continent and influence political events there has been central to its self-perception as a major power.

The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Strategic Studies.

A Tale of Two Parties

Living Amongst Democrats and Republicans Since 1952

Kenneth Janda

Series: Routledge Research in American Politics and Governance

In this book Kenneth Janda tackles how US society has changed over the last six decades in terms of occupation, education, regional growth, urbanization, religion, ethnicity, and ideology. He summarizes how the Democratic and Republican parties have shifted in representing these social groups, and articulated the interests of their social bases through congressional voting. Janda then assesses the prospects for interest aggregation and articulation by governments over the next decade. A Tale of Two Parties will have a wide and enthusiastic readership among political scientists and researchers of American politics, campaigns and elections, and voting.

American Politics and the African American Quest for Universal Freedom

Hanes Walton, Jr., University of Michigan, Robert C. Smith, San Francisco State University and Sherri L. Wallace

This dynamic and comprehensive text from nationally renowned scholars continues to demonstrate the profound influence African Americans have had—and continue to have—on American politics. Using two interrelated themes—the idea of universal freedom and the concept of minority–majority coalitions—this updated text demonstrates how the presence of Africans in the United States affected the founding of the Republic and its political institutions and processes. The authors show that through the quest for their own freedom in the United States, African Americans have universalized and expanded the freedoms of all Americans.

American Public Opinion toward Israel

From Consensus to Divide

Amnon Cavari and Guy Freedman

This new book examines trends in American public opinion about Israel in over 75 years, from 1944 to 2019. Analyzing data from hundreds of surveys in jargon-free writing, the authors show that public support for Israel has seen a dramatic shift toward increased division between partisan and select demographic groups, elaborating on the implications that this important change may have for the countries' special relationship. Scholars and students of American foreign policy, public opinion, Middle East politics, and international relations, as well as policy analysts, policy makers, journalists, and anyone interested in American policy toward Israel will want to read this book.

Interpreting Racial Politics in the United States

Ronald Schmidt, Sr.

This book argues that it is time for political scientists studying race to engage the issues that generate its political significance. Drawing on the work of interpretive political scholars, Ronald Schmidt, Sr. addresses core questions regarding racial politics in the US to demonstrate the value of using interpretive methods to better understand the meaning and significance of political actions, structures, and conflicts involving racial identities—not instead of behavioral research but as a necessary addition. Interpreting Racial Politics in the United States will greatly enhance the evolving conversations concerning race and inequality within the US.

Latinas and the Politics of Urban Spaces

Edited by Sharon A. Navarro and Lilliana Saldaña

Series: Race, Ethnicity, and Gender in Politics and Policy

This book illuminates the ways in which Chicanas, Puerto Rican women, and other Latinas organize and lead social movements in major cities of the continental U.S. and Puerto Rico. It shows how they challenge racism, sexism, homophobia, and anti-immigrant policies through their political praxis and spiritual activism. Drawing from a range of perspectives, academic and activist authors offer unique insights into environmental justice, conflict resolution, women's rights, LGBTQ coalition-building, and more—through a distinctive Latina lens. Designed for use in a wide range of college courses, the book is also aimed at practitioners, community organizers, and grassroots leaders.

Party Politics in America

Marjorie Randon Hershey

Considered the "gold standard" of political parties texts, this new, eighteenth edition of Party Politics in America moves its comprehensive and authoritative coverage into the age of deepened partisan conflict, expanded presidential power, and global health threats. Marjorie Hershey builds on the book's three-pronged coverage of party organization, party in the electorate, and party in government and integrates important developments in racial politics, social media use, and battles over access to the vote. The book uses contemporary examples to bring to life the fascinating story of how parties shape our political system.

Political Advocacy and American Politics

Why People Fight So Often About Politics

Sean Richey, Georgia State University, USA and J. Benjamin Taylor

Ideal for university students and researchers, yet also accessible to any reader looking to learn about the role language plays in the formation of political thought. Using original qualitative, survey and experimental studies, this book demonstrates the causes of political advocacy in the political environment and at the individual level. Sean Richey and Benjamin Taylor argue political talk, where conflict is common, is caused by high-activity democratic processes and normatively beneficial individual attributes. The authors also claim that advocacy—when conceptualized as a democratic "release valve"—is exactly the kind of conflict we might expect in a vibrant democracy.

Pop-Up Civics in 21st Century America

Understanding the Political Potential of Placemaking

Ryan Salzman, Northern Kentucky University, USA

Series: Routledge Research in American Politics and Governance

Ryan Salzman examines the political potential of placemaking, an increasingly popular set of behaviors that were unfamiliar to the American public until the last two decades. Informed by interviews, surveys, and material review, Salzman compares the process of placemaking to traditional political and associational behaviors, providing evidence that placemaking has tremendous political potential. This text expands our understanding of placemaking, updating the way we think about civic and political engagement in the 21st century, and will be of interest to those who study and research political behavior, civil society, arts and politics, social movements, and urban public policy.

The Congressional Experience

An Institution Transformed

David E. Price

Congressman David Price is uniquely qualified to guide readers through the labyrinth of Congress, to portray honestly its strengths and failings, and to illuminate the forces transforming the institution. As a trained political scientist, he connects the practical politics on the Hill with the theories of the discipline. He is equally focused on the ethics of public service at a time when politics seem to have reached a new low. Through it all, he conveys a clear sense of the challenges, disappointments, elations, and deep concerns implicit in serving as a member of Congress—especially at a time of national and international fragility.

Every State a Border State?

Gary M. Reich

In this book Gary M. Reich helps explain state policies toward their immigrant populations, arguing that these policies reflect differing immigrant communities across states. He contends that diverging demographic trends at the state level were central to the increasing partisan polarization surrounding immigration nationally, concluding that immigration federalism at present suffers from an internal contradiction that proliferates conflict across all levels of government. The Politics of Immigration Across the United States will appeal to scholars and instructors in the fields of immigration policy, social policy, and state government and politics.

Class Conflict, the News Media, and Ideology in an Era of Record Inequality

Anthony R. DiMaggio

This book examines Americans and their beliefs about the class divide in the United States. It argues that Americans' beliefs about class and the economic divide develop through a multi-step process. Economic affluence influences the development of world view, measured in terms of ideology, partisanship, and self-identified class consciousness. Class consciousness in turn affects how people look at political and economic issues. This book is intended for scholars and students at every level who study inequality from a political, economic, or sociological position, along with general readers with a growing interest and awareness of the effects of inequality on our democracy.

China in the Eyes of the Japanese

Wang Xiuli, Wang Wei, Liang Yunxiang and Zhao Xin

Series: China Perspectives

To deepen Japanese society's understanding and comprehension of China, this book provides an analysis of the history of contact between China and Japan and surveys the present situation to understand the general views of Japanese society toward China. It examines ordinary and elite Japanese people's views of Chinese culture, society, politics, the economy, media and Sino-Japanese relations. In addition, it analyzes the main causes of the formation of such views, and makes suggestions on promoting positive public opinions of China. This title will appeal to students and scholars of cultural studies, international relations and Asian studies.

China's Maritime Boundaries in the South China Sea

Historical and International Law Perspectives

Jinming Li, Research center for Southeast Asian Studies at

Xiamen University and Yunpeng Yang

Series: China Perspectives

Bringing together scholarship from History and International Law, this book provides a lens through which maritime territorial disputes in the South China Sea can be interrogated. Not only does it detail the historical and jurisprudential evidence that support maritime boundaries in the South China Sea for different stakeholders, but it also clarifies some misconceptions related to China's nine-dash lines by referring to the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea. ; This book is an essential resource for researchers, teachers and students who specialize in Southeast Asian Studies, China maritime studies, and the international law of the sea.

Configuring the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank

Power, Interests and Status

Ian Tsung-Yen Chen, National Sun Yat-sen University, Taiwan

Series: Rethinking Asia and International Relations

Studying the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank (AIIB) through the lens of international relations (IR) theory, Chen argues that it is inappropriate to treat the AIIB as either a revisionist or a complementary institution. This book presents critical insights for scholars and foreign-policy practitioners to understand China's surging influence in international organizations and how China can shape the world order. It should prove of interest to students and scholars of IR, strategic studies, China Studies, Asian Studies, developmental studies, economics, and global finance.

Shortening the Distance between Government and Public in China I

A Theoretical Approach

Liu Xiaoyan, Renmin University of China and Yanwen Sun
Series: China Perspectives

Drawing on the key concept of Distance from western political science, the author explores the law and mechanisms of China's political communication. In this volume, the author introduces a creative theoretical framework of distance, a dynamic system comprised of physical and psychological distance, ideal distance and real distance, as well as natural distance and consequent distance. Recent events in the China of Xi Jinping are used as cases to illustrate the point.

; Students and scholars who are interested in political science and political communication, especially Chinese politics, will find this two-volume set an essential reference.

Shortening the Distance between Government and Public in China II

Methods and Practices

Liu Xiaoyan, Renmin University of China and Yanwen Sun
Series: China Perspectives

This volume offers empirical evidence as to how social media can mediate the distance between government and the public. First, it discusses how the use of online social media, can be used strategically to mediate the distance of offline communication. Then, it points out that social media can also lead to unlimited expression of general will. An empirical study of how the residents of five rural provinces in China obtain political information is used to illustrate the point.

Students and scholars who are interested in political science and political communication, especially Chinese politics, will find this two-volume set a useful reference.

Terrorism, Security and Development in South Asia

National, Regional and Global Implications

Edited by Raymond Izarali, Wilfrid Laurier University, Ontario and Dalbir Ahlawat, Department of Security Studies and Criminology, Macquarie University, Australia.

Series: New Regionalisms Series

This book provides a rich analysis of the actors and organizations to reflect on the antecedents and trajectories of terrorism and insurgency in South Asia, and the different counter-measures adopted by the countries, respectively, to deal with the security and developmental challenges. Presenting an opportunity to diversify away from a Western-centric focus on terrorism and security, this book will be valuable to researchers in political science, criminology, defense and security studies, and to policy makers and think tanks.

Early Modern Political Petitioning and Public Engagement in Scotland, Britain and Scandinavia, c.1550-1795

Edited by Karin Bowie and Thomas Munck

A petition used to be a humble means of asking a favour, but in the early modern period, petitioning became more assertive and participative. This book shows how this contrasted to ordinary petitioning in Scotland, England and Denmark, often to the consternation of authorities. By evaluating petitioning practices in Scotland, England and Denmark, the book traces the boundaries between ordinary and adversarial petitioning and shows how non-elites could become involved in politics through petitioning.

The chapters in this book were originally published in the journal Parliaments, Estates and Representation.

Individuality and Ideology in British Object Relations Theory

Gal Gerson, University of Haifa, Israel

Series: Psychoanalytic Political Theory

Following the work of prominent object relations theorists like Bowlby, Fairbairn, Suttie and Winnicott, Gal Gerson explores the correlation between analytical theory and intellectual environment in two ways. First, he interprets the Object Relations Model as a political theory that completes a certain internal development within liberalism. He later outlines the relationship between the analytical theory and the historical setting where it formed and took root. Proposing a novel rethinking of human nature, Gerson provides a much-needed insight into how this school of psychoanalytic theory has impacted contemporary social and political life.

Party Systems and Foreign Policy Change in Liberal Democracies

Cleavages, Ideas, Competition

Angelos Chrysosogelos, Kings College London, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Foreign Policy Analysis

How do political parties affect foreign policy? This book answers this question by exploring the role of party politics as source of foreign policy change in liberal democracies. With a novel framework which bridges concepts of international relations and comparative politics, the book will be of interest to researchers and students in the areas of international relations theory, foreign policy analysis and comparative politics, and generally to anyone wanting to understand how and when parties, elections and voters contribute to international change.

Populism and New Patterns of Political Competition in Western Europe

Edited by Daniele Albertazzi, University of Birmingham, UK and Davide Vampa, Aston University, UK

Series: Extremism and Democracy

This book analyses how party competition has adjusted to the success of populism in Western Europe, whether this is non-populists dealing with their populist competitors, or populists interacting with each other. The volume focuses on Western Europe in the period 2007–2018 and considers both right-wing and left-wing populist parties. This wide-ranging study will appeal to students and scholars of political science interested in populism and political competition; and will appeal to policy makers and politicians from across the political spectrum.

Europe and the Occupation of Palestinian Territories Since 1967

Edited by Federica Bicchi, London School of Economics, UK

This book looks at the perspective of international law, before analysing the European Union and key European countries (France, Germany, Norway, Sweden, United Kingdom). It also embraces different perspectives, from the debate on campus to the role of European multinational companies to the conceptual approach of the World Bank. While much of the literature focuses on Israel, Palestine and the United States, this volume by leading experts adds a very important piece to the puzzle: the European dimension.

The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the journal, Global Affairs.

Series: Conspiracy Theories

This edited volume investigates for the first time the impact of conspiracy theories upon the understanding of Europe as a geo-political entity as well as an imagined political and cultural space. Focusing on recent developments, the individual chapters explore a range of conspiratorial positions related to Europe. The methodological perspectives applied in this volume range from qualitative discourse and media analysis to quantitative social-psychological approaches, and there are a number of national and transnational case studies. This book will be of great interest to students and researchers of extremism, conspiracy theories, and European politics.

Europeanization and Territorial Politics in Small European Unitary States

A Comparative Analysis

Edited by Sandrina Antunes and John Loughlin

The book addresses the impact of the European Union (EU) on subnational mobilization in small unitary states. By means of a comparative analysis of eight small unitary states in Europe, this book shows that the impact of the EU on subnational mobilization is filtered through domestic mediating factors which can lead to three possible outcomes: decentralization, recentralization or no change.

The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the journal, Regional & Federal Studies.

3rd Edition

European Politics

Paul Kubicek, Oakland University, USA

This textbook expertly and accessibly surveys the history, institutions, and issues that are essential for understanding contemporary European politics. Exploring a central question—"what is Europe?"—this text's thematic approach helps students compare politics in individual countries and see the political big picture in the region. This new edition includes coverage of hot topics such as Brexit, Covid-19, the rise of nationalist-populists, Ukraine, Russia, US-European relations, recent elections, and security threats emanating within Europe and beyond. This timely, in-depth text will be essential reading for anyone interested in European politics.

Hegel and Contemporary Practical Philosophy

Beyond Kantian Constructivism

Edited by James Gledhill and Sebastian Stein

Series: Routledge Studies in Social and Political Thought

Scholars of German Idealism and contemporary Anglophone philosophy explore whether Hegelian idealist philosophy can offer the categories that analytic practical philosophy requires to overcome the contradictions that have so far plagued Kantian constructivism. Organized into three parts this book contributes to the debates on the importance of systematic philosophy in the context of practical philosophy, engages with contemporary discussions about the shape of a rational social order, and gauges the timeliness of Hegelian philosophy. This book is a must read to scholars interested in Hegel and in the contemporary tradition of Kantian constructivism in moral and political philosophy.

Humanitarianism, Human Rights and Security

The Case of Frontex

Nina Perkowski, Universität Hamburg, Germany

Series: Interventions

Examining the relationship between humanitarianism, human rights, and security in the governance of borders and migration, this book analyses the case of the European Border and Coast Guard Agency (Frontex), challenging the common assumption that humanitarianism and human rights provide a critical basis for countering securitization. Drawing on insights from Critical Migration and Border Studies, Critical Security Studies, Critical Humanitarianism and Human Rights Studies, and Organisational Sociology, the book will generate interest to multiple disciplines, including Sociology, International Relations, Politics, Anthropology, European Studies, and Geography.

Imbalance

Germany's Political Economy after the Social Democratic Century

Edited by Tobias Schulze-Cleven and Sidney A. Rothstein

Documenting large-scale changes and new tensions in the welfare state, company strategies, interest intermediation, and macro-economic governance, the volume makes the case for analysing contemporary Germany through the politics of imbalance rather than the longstanding paradigm of institutional stability. This conceptual reorientation around inequalities and disparities provides much-needed traction for clarifying the causal dynamics that govern ongoing processes of institutional recomposition.

Resilience in EU and International Institutions

Redefining Local Ownership in a New Global Governance Agenda

Edited by Elena Korosteleva and Trine Flockhart

This book explores the concept and practice of resilience that has generated much debate among both scholars and practitioners. The contributions propose a new understanding of resilience, both as a quality and a way of thinking, taking it to the level of 'the person' and 'the local', to argue that a more sustainable way to govern the world today is bottom-up and inside-out.

Strategic Responses to Domestic Contestation

The EU Between Politicisation and Depoliticisation

Edited by Edoardo Bressanelli, Sant'Anna School of Advanced Studies, Italy, Christel Koop, King's College, London, UK and Christine Reh

Series: Journal of European Public Policy Series

This volume explores how and why EU-level actors respond to the various, sometime competing, 'bottom up' demands, and challenges the view that domestic contestation necessarily limits EU-level room for manoeuvre. Instead, contributions show that domestic pressure can be perceived as either constraining or enabling, with responses, therefore, ranging from the restrained to the assertive.

Syrian Civil War and Europe

Zhao Chen, Zhao Jizhou, Huang Mengmeng and Yanwen Sun

Series: China Perspectives

This book analyzes the diplomatic policies of European countries on Syria from the perspective of Chinese scholars. Starting with a review of the European Union's policies in the Middle East and North Africa, the authors analyze the Syrian policies of France, the United Kingdom and Germany, the three most influential and representative countries in Europe. The authors argue that the favoured "humanitarian intervention" concept failed to achieve the expected results, increased the bloodiness of the Syrian civil war and undermined the European Union's advantage in the region.; Researchers and students of international relations and Middle East Studies will benefit from this volume.

Contested Trade-offs

Edited by Dorota Mokrosinska, Leiden University, Netherlands

Series: Routledge Research in Comparative Politics

This edited volume offers a critical discussion of the trade-offs between transparency and secrecy in the actual political practice of democratic states in Europe. As such, it answers to a growing need to systematically analyse the problem of secrecy in governance in this political and geographical context. This book will be of key interest to scholars and students of security studies, political science, European politics/studies, law, history, political philosophy, public administration, intelligence studies, media and communication studies, and information technology sciences.

Varieties of Populism in Europe in Times of Crises

Edited by Manuela Caiani, Istituto Italiano di Scienze Umane (SUM), Italy and Paolo Graziano, University of Padua, Italy

Series: West European Politics

This volume, composed of eight chapters, investigates how different populist parties in the European Union have been affected by the various crises, disentangling the role of the Great Recession vis-à-vis other factors (such as political and party system factors, but also structural social changes or cultural opportunities) in the growing strength of populist parties in various European countries.

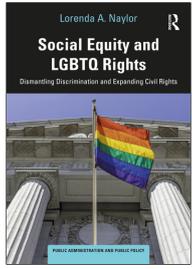

The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of West European Politics.

Social Equity and LGBTQ Rights

Dismantling Discrimination and Expanding Civil Rights

Lorenda A. Naylor, University of Baltimore, USA

Series: Public Administration and Public Policy

Can a baker refuse to make a wedding cake for a gay couple? Despite the US Supreme Court decision guaranteeing marriage equality in 2015, LGBTQ citizens in the United States continue to be discriminated against in fundamental areas that others take for granted as a legal right. Using social equity theory and intersectionality but written in an accessible style, this book demonstrates some of the ways in which LGBTQ citizens have been marginalized for their identity, and argues that the field of public administration has a unique responsibility to prioritize social equity.

Terrorism, Gender and Women

Toward an Integrated Research Agenda

Edited by Alexandra Phelan

Terrorism, Gender and Women: Towards an Integrated Research Agenda encourages greater integration of gender-sensitive approaches to studies of violent extremism and terrorism. It seeks to create and inspire a dialogue among scholars of conflict, terrorism and gender by suggesting the necessity of incorporating gender analysis to fill gaps within, and further enhance, our understanding of political violence.

The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the journal, Studies in Conflict & Terrorism.

A Citizen's Guide to Terrorism and Counterterrorism

Christopher C. Harmon, Marine Corps University, Quantico, USA

Series: Citizen Guides to Politics and Public Affairs

Written for the American citizen, this book covers the problem of terrorism and its newest developments, including the evolution of the Islamist threat and the rise of right-wing racism within our borders and overseas. In a departure from other volumes written for a broad audience, Harmon also focuses on counterterrorism, closely surveying the major tools now in use—or recommended—for responding to terrorism today, such as intelligence, diplomacy with partner countries, policing, economic sanctions, and targeted force.

Changing Bureaucracies

Adapting to Uncertainty, and How Evaluation Can Help

Edited by Burt Perrin and Tony Tyrell

Series: Comparative Policy Evaluation

In this book, international experts provide an unparalleled look at how public sector bureaucracies can better adapt to the reality of unprecedented levels of uncertainty and complexity, and how they can better respond to the emerging needs and demands of citizens and beneficiaries. The contributors identify stability as a strength of bureaucratic structures, but emphasize that bureaucratic rules should be open to examination, through evaluation, which would aid bureaucratic adaptability and ensure relevance. Changing Bureaucracies is an important acquisition for public sector leaders, evaluators, evaluation managers and commissioners and academics alike.

Citizenship in the Globalised World

Christine Hobden, University of Fort Hare, South Africa.

Series: Routledge Studies in Social and Political Thought

This book presents a globally-oriented, state-based conception of citizenship. It responds to both the increasing polarization between nationalists and those who view themselves as citizens of the world, and the expanding responsibility gap between states that perpetuate global injustices and the citizens in whose name they act. Offering a new lens on global justice, this book will be of great interest to scholars and students of political theory, global justice, citizenship, democratic theory, and collective responsibility.

Co-operation, Contestation and Complexity in Peacebuilding

Post-Conflict Security Sector Reform

Edited by Nadine Anzorg, University of Kent, UK and Eleanor Gordon

This edited collection explores three aspects of SSR:

the variation of norm adoption, norm contestation and norm imposition in post-conflict countries that might explain the mixed results in terms of peacebuilding. the multitude of different security actors within and beyond the state which often leads to multiple patterns of co-operation and contestation within reform programmes. how both the multiplicity of and tension between norms and actors further complicate efforts to build peace or, as complexity theory would posit, influence the complex and non-linear social system that is the conflict-affected environment.

International Relations Theory

A Critical Introduction

Cynthia Weber, University of Sussex, UK.

The fifth edition of this innovative textbook introduces students to the main theories in International Relations. It explains and analyses each theory, allowing students to understand and critically engage with the myths and assumptions behind them. Each theory is illustrated using the example of a popular film. This breakthrough textbook has been designed to unravel the complexities of international relations theory in a way that gives students a clearer idea of how the theories work, and of the myths associated with them.

Populism in Global Perspective

A Performative and Discursive Approach

Edited by Pierre Ostiguy, Pierre Ostiguy, Professor, University of Valparaiso, Chile, Francisco Panizza, London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE), UK and Benjamin Moffitt, Australian Catholic University, Melbourne

Series: Conceptualising Comparative Politics

Populism in Global Perspective is a seminal addition to the literature on arguably the most controversial and fervently discussed topic in political science today. Contributors argue that populist identification is relational and sociocultural, and demonstrate the importance of studying populism phenomenologically together with anti-populism. The truly global series of case studies achieves a deliberate balance of left and right instances of populism, including within regions, and of populism in government and opposition. This book is a must read for comparativists, political theorists, sociologists, area studies specialists, and all educated readers interested in populism.

Re-globalisation

When China Meets the World Again

Edited by Wang Dong, Dejun Cao and Qiusha Lv

Series: China Perspectives

Introducing an innovative theoretical framework in the shape of "re-globalisation", this book discusses China's strategies and challenges while interacting with the international community. The book provides several illuminating case studies, such as the Belt and Road Initiative (BRI), the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank (AIIB), and the strategies of the Chinese technology firm Alibaba. As the first systemic and book-length study of "re-globalisation", this volume will appeal to researchers and students of politics and Chinese studies, and contemporary Chinese politics in particular.

Edited by Kandida Purnell, University of Aberdeen, UK

Series: Interventions

This book rethinks the body in global politics and the particular roles bodies play in our international system, foregrounding processes and practices involved in the continually contested (re/dis)embodiment of both human bodies and collective bodies politic. The empirical analyses feed into contemporary IR debates on British and American politics and international relations and the Global War on Terror, while also speaking to broader and interdisciplinary, theoretical literature on bodies/embodiment, visual politics, biopolitics, necropolitics, and affect/emotion, and feelings.

Reglobalization

Edited by Matthew Louis Bishop and Anthony Payne

Series: Rethinking Globalizations

This book charts the way towards a better, repurposed globalization, which it calls 'reglobalization', and shows how this can be built, incrementally but realistically, via reforms to the partial and fragile existing structures of global governance. Reglobalization is essential reading for everybody living in the era of globalization, which is all of us, and worried about its many economic, social and political problems, which is a growing number of us.

The chapters in this book were originally published in the journal Globalizations.

River Basin Organizations in Water Diplomacy

Edited by Anoulak Kittikhoun, Mekong River Commission, Laos and Susanne Schmeier, IHE Delft Institute for Water Education, The Netherlands

Series: Global Institutions

Will tensions and disputes among states sharing international water courses and lakes turn into active conflicts? Addressing this question, the book shows that these concerns are more prominent due to the locations and underlying political dynamics of some of these large rivers and the strategic interests of major powers. Contributing to the academic discourse on transboundary water management and water conflict and cooperation, the book provides insights to policy-makers on which water diplomacy engagements can be successful, the strengths to build on, and the pitfalls to avoid so that shared water resources are managed in a cooperative, sustainable and stable way.

Separatism and the State

Damien Kingsbury, Deakin University, Australia

Series: Routledge Studies in Nationalism and Ethnicity

This book proposes and tests a 'theory of separatism' to determine if there are key commonalities as to why separatist movements rise and what fuels them. Today, there are more than 100 active separatist movements, with around 70 of them engaging in violence. This book focuses on examples from Europe, the Middle East, Africa, and Asia to highlight the commonalities found across the case studies. It will be applicable for undergraduate and postgraduate students of International Relations and International Politics as well as Conflict/Peace Studies, Anthropology and Post-Colonial Studies.

The Politics of Ponzi Schemes

History, Theory and Policy

Marie Springer, John Jay College, City University of New York, USA

In this book Marie Springer provides the first representative portrait of Ponzi schemes, their perpetrators, and their victims. Adopting a multidisciplinary approach, she begins by presenting an overview of different types of Ponzi schemes. She later explores perpetrators and victims of Ponzi schemes followed by a close examination of economic trends, regulatory changes, and the financial relationship with Ponzi schemes. The Politics of Ponzi Schemes provides an excellent foundation for students and practitioners of public administration, banking, as well as investors, finance and accounting, law enforcement officers, legislators and regulators.

Anti-Neoliberal Populisms in Comparative Perspective

A Latinamericanisation of Southern Europe?

Enrico Padoan, Pontifical Catholic University of Chile, Chile
Series: Routledge Studies in Latin American Politics

In this book, Enrico Padoan proposes an original middle-range theory to explain the emergence and the internal organization of anti-neoliberal populist parties in Latin America and Southern Europe, and the relationships between these parties and the organised working class. Padoan traces the diverging evolution of the electoral Lefts in Latin America and Southern Europe, before turning to four chapters focusing on the rise of anti-neoliberal populist parties, with a fifth analyzing four 'shadow cases'. With its distinctive perspective scholars of Latin America and Comparative Politics will find Anti-Neoliberal Populisms in Comparative Perspective a highly valuable resource.

Understanding Mexico's Security Conundrum

Agustin Maciel-Padilla

Series: Routledge Advances in International Relations and Global Politics

This short text describes the distinction between national, internal and public security in Mexico while also providing analysis on Mexico's security policy and its long-term consequences. Agustin Maciel-Padilla contends that the absence of a clear understanding of the concept of security has the potential to aggravate security conditions in Mexico. He argues that that Mexico is required to formulate a comprehensive, long-term, security strategy, and that achieving a proper understanding will allow for better guidance in confronting the grave insecurity facing the country.

Communication in Global Jihad

Jonathan Matusitz, University of Central Florida, USA
 Series: Politics, Media and Political Communication

This book conceptually examines the role of communication in global jihad from multiple perspectives. The main premise is that communication is so vital to the Global Jihadist Movement (GJM) today that jihadists will use any communicative tool, tactic, or approach to impact or transform people and the public at large. The author explores how and why the benefits of communication are a huge boon to jihadist operations. ## Islam, Liberalism and Ontology

A Critical Re-evaluation

Joseph J. Kaminski, International University of Sarajevo, Bosnia and Herzegovina

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion and Politics

This book offers comparative ontologies of both Islam and liberalism as discourses more broadly construed. The author argues that, despite recent efforts to speak of overlapping consensus and discursive congruence, the fundamental categories that constitute 'Islam' and 'Liberalism' remain very different, and that these differences should be taken seriously. This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of Politics and International Relations, Islam, Liberalism, and Communitarianism.

Geopolitics of the Pakistan–Afghanistan Borderland

Edited by Syed Sami Raza, University of Peshawar, Pakistan and Michael J. Shapiro

This book presents an overview of the geopolitics of the Pakistan–Afghanistan borderland and approaches the topic from different methods and perspectives. It focuses on some of the least debated dimensions of this borderland, for instance, the status of women in the tribal-border culture, the legal status of aliens in the making of the border, material and immaterial manifestations of the border, political aesthetics of the border, and the identity crisis on the border.

A New Political Imagination

Making the Case

Tony Fry and Madina Tlostanova, Linköping University, Sweden

Series: Interventions

The book presents the case for the making of a new political imagination by offering a critique of existing political institutions, philosophy and practices that are unable to provide the thinking, means and leadership to deal with the complexity and crises of specific locales and the world at large. This trans-disciplinary volume is directed at those working in political philosophy and epistemology, critical global and security studies, decoloniality and postcolonial studies, design, critical anthropology and the post humanities. It is accessible to both academic audiences and activists and practitioners.

Language, Democracy and the Paradox of Constituent Power

Declarations of Independence in Comparative Perspective

Catherine Frost, McMaster University, Canada

Beginning with the founding speech in the American Declaration, Frost uses insights drawn from unexpected or unlikely forms of founding in cases like Ireland and Canada to reconsider the role of time and loss in how such speech is framed. She brings the discussion up to date by looking at recent debates in Scotland. Drawing on the work of Hannah Arendt and using a contextualist, comparative theory method, Frost demonstrates that the capacity for renewal through speech arises in aspects of language that operate beyond conventional performativity. This book is an excellent resource for researchers and students of political theory, democratic theory, law and constitutionalism.

Democracy and Fake News

Information Manipulation and Post-Truth Politics

Edited by Serena Giusti, Sant'Anna School of Advanced Studies, Italy and Elisa Piras, Sant'Anna School of Advanced Studies, Italy

Series: Politics, Media and Political Communication

This book explores the challenges that disinformation, fake news and post-truth politics pose to democracy from a multidisciplinary perspective. The authors analyse and interpret how the use of technology and social media as well as the emergence of new political narratives has been progressively changing the information landscape, undermining some of the pillars of democracy. This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of political science, law, political philosophy, journalism, media studies, and computer science, since it provides a multidisciplinary approach to the analysis of post-truth politics.

Legislative Deliberative Democracy

Debating Acts Restricting Freedom of Speech during War

Avichai Levit

Series: Routledge Innovations in Political Theory

Avichai Levit argues that the degree of democratic legitimacy of laws that restrict freedom of speech during war, depends on the extent of legislature deliberation on such laws. Using the United States as a case study, this book goes into the details of Congressional deliberation during World War I, World War II and the Cold War, as well as the political histories that brought about such laws. Levit presents an alternative normative account of deliberative democracy. Legislative Deliberative Democracy will be of interest to academics and students alike in the fields of American Constitutional law, Political theory, American politics and political history.

Existentialism, Authenticity, Solidarity

Stephen Eric Bronner

This original and provocative study explores the concept of "authenticity" and its relevance for radical politics. Weaving together readings of three 20th century thinkers: Martin Heidegger, Karl Jaspers and Jean-Paul Sartre, with the concept of authenticity, Stephen Eric Bronner illuminates the phenomenological foundations for self-awareness that underpin our sense of identity and solidarity. Wonderfully rich, insightful, and nuanced, Bronner has produced another bookshelf staple that speaks to crucial issues in politics, philosophy, psychology, and sociology. Existentialism, Authenticity, Solidarity will appeal to scholars, students and readers from the general public alike.

Liberty

Ancient Ideas and Modern Perspectives

Edited by Valentina Arena

Liberty: Ancient Ideas and Modern Perspectives is the first study of the ancient notions of liberty in the interconnected societies of the Ancient Near East, Greece, Rome, and Byzantium and how they relate to modern political theory. It gathers the work of historians of antiquity, whose specialisms are geographically and temporally diverse, together with political theorists and legal and political philosophers interested in conceptions of liberty.

The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the journal, History of European Ideas.

Political Thinking, Political Theory, and Civil Society

Political Thinking, Political Theory, and Civil Society
Fifth Edition

Steven M. DeLue and Timothy M. Dale

Steven M. DeLue, Miami University of Ohio, USA and
Timothy M. Dale

This new edition of Political Thinking, Political Theory, and Civil Society presents a comprehensive overview of the Western tradition of political thought that approaches concepts with the aim of helping readers develop their own political thinking and critical thinking skills. This text is uniquely organized around the theme of civil society - what is the nature of a civil society? why is it important? - that will engage students and help make the material relevant. Major thinkers discussed in the text are explored not only with the goal of understanding their views, but also with an interest in understanding the relationship of their ideas to the notion of a civil society.

Questioning the Utopian Springs of Market Economy

QUESTIONING THE UTOPIAN SPRINGS OF MARKET ECONOMY

Edited by
Damien Cahill, Martijn Konings and Adam David Morton

Edited by Damien Cahill, Martijn Konings and Adam David Morton

Series: Rethinking Globalizations

Revisiting the magnetic poles of Karl Polanyi and Friedrich Hayek on the utopian springs of political economy, this book seeks to provide a compass for questioning the market economy of the twenty-first century. It promises to deliver a set of essays by leading commentators relevant to twenty-first century political economy debates relevant to the present conjuncture of neoliberalism.

The chapters in this book were originally published in a special issue of the journal, Globalizations.

The Economics of Empire

Genealogies of Capital and the Colonial Encounter

Edited by Maureen E. Ruprecht Fadem, The City University of New York / Kingsborough, USA and Michael O'Sullivan, The Chinese University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong

Series: Postcolonial Politics

The Economics of Empire: Genealogies of Capital and the Colonial Encounter is a multi-disciplinary intervention into postcolonial theory that constructs and theorizes a political economy of empire. This comprehensive collection traces the financial genealogies associated with the colonial enterprise, the strategies of economic precarity, the pedigrees of capital, and the narratives of exploitation that underlay and determined the course of modern history. This book will be an excellent resource for students and researchers of Postcolonial Studies, Literature, History, Sociology, Economics, Political Science and International Studies, among others.

The Wives of Western Philosophy

Gender Politics in Intellectual Labor

Edited by Jennifer Forestal, Loyola University Chicago, USA and Menaka Philips, Tulane University, USA

This book examines the lives and experiences of the wives and women associated with nine distinct political thinkers in order to explore the gendered patterns of intellectual labor that permeate the foundations of western political thought. Organized chronologically and representative of three eras in the history of political thought (Ancient, Early Modern and Modern), nine critical biographical chapters explore the everyday acts of intellectual labor and partnership involving these 'wives of the canon.' The Wives of Western Philosophy brings these women to the center of scholarly interest and provides fresh insight into some of the most famed men in political theory.

The Legitimacy of Modern Democracy

A Study on the Political Thought of Max Weber, Carl Schmitt and Hans Kelsen

Pedro T. Magalhães

Series: Routledge Innovations in Political Theory

By re-examining the political thought of Max Weber, Carl Schmitt and Hans Kelsen, this book offers a reflection on the nature of modern democracy and the question of its legitimacy. Pedro T. Magalhães shows that present-day elitist, populist and pluralist accounts of democracy owe, in diverse and complicated ways, an intellectual debt to the interwar era, German-speaking, scholarly and political controversies on the problem(s) of modern democracy. The Legitimacy of Modern Democracy will be of interest to political theorists, political philosophers, intellectual historians, political scientists, and scholars working in the subfields of constitutional law and legal theory.

Post-Traditional Public Administration Theory

For Better Governmental Praxis

David John Farmer

This book describes what is argued to be the most effective way of doing public administration thinking. Its aim is to encourage governments to govern fundamentally better in terms of policy and administration.

The pieces included in this book have been handpicked from the vast academic collection that David Farmer has authored over the last thirty years and which were published in the Journal of Administrative Theory and Praxis and the Journal of Public Administration Education. Collectively, these chapters are intended to help governments use post-traditional public administration theory in order to achieve better praxis.

The Transcaucasian Democratic Federative Republic of 1918

Federal Aspirations, Geopolitics and National Projects

Edited by Adrian Brisku and Timothy K. Blauvelt, Ilia State University, Tbilisi, Georgia

This book argues that despite its month-long existence in this geopolitically volatile region, the TDFR, with and its federative nature and the various discussions about federalism and federation that it provoked, continued to have an appeal for Georgians, Azerbaijanis, Armenians as well as for the Great Powers well beyond its dissolution. Moreover, the experience of the TDFR reifies federalism as a key political concept in the modern history of the Caucasus.

Nicholas R. Micinski, The Graduate Center, City University of New York

Series: Global Institutions

UN Global Compacts is a concise introduction to the key concepts, issues, and actors in global migration governance and presents a comprehensive analysis of the New York Declaration for Refugees and Migrants, the Global Compact on Refugees, and the Global Compact for Migration. The book will be of interest to practitioners, students, and scholars of international cooperation, global governance, migrants, and refugees and will be essential reading for graduate and undergraduate courses on international law, international organizations, and migration.
