Amerindian Socio-Cosmologies between the Andes, Amazonia and Mesoamerica

Toward an Anthropological Understanding of the Isthmo-Colombian Area

Edited by Ernst Halbmayer, University of Vienna, Austria
Series: Routledge Studies in Anthropology

This book offers a new anthropological understanding of the socio-cosmological and ontological characteristics of the Isthmo-Colombian Area, beyond established theories for Amazonia, the Andes and Mesoamerica. It focuses on a core region that has been largely neglected by comparative anthropology in recent decades.

Centering on relations between Chibchan groups and their neighbors, the contributions consider prevailing socio-cosmological principles and their relationship to Amazonian animism and Mesoamerican and Andean analogism

2nd Edition

Dynamics of Human Biocultural Diversity

A Unified Approach

Elisa J. Sobo, San Diego State University

This lively text by leading medical anthropologist Elisa Sobo offers a unique, holistic approach to human diversity and rises to the challenge of truly integrating biology and culture. In this second edition the material has been updated to reflect changes in both the scientific and socio-cultural landscape, for example in relation to topics such as the microbiome and transgender. Readers learn to conceptualize human biology and culture concurrently—as an adaptive biocultural capacity that has helped to produce the rich range of human diversity seen today.

Forensic Anthropology Teams in Latin America

Edited by Silvia Dutrénit-Bielous, Mora Institute, Mexico.

This book charts the development of forensic anthropology teams in Latin America and surveys their main characteristics, achievements, and challenges in light of a recent past fraught with state repression and violence.

The volume contains contributions by an interdisciplinary group of scholars from several Latin American universities, with chapters on Argentina, Chile, Uruguay, Peru, Guatemala, and Mexico. These countries' shared legacy is a host of human rights violations that continue to have an impact on present day society.

This collection will be of interest to scholars from Anthropology, Latin American Studies, Politics, and History.

2nd Edition

Human Biological Diversity

Daniel E. Brown, University of Hawaii at Hilo, USA

This introductory textbook is designed to cover key contemporary topics in the study of human variation and human biology and is accessible for students with no background in anthropology or biology. The second edition includes two new chapters: on human variation in the skeleton and dentition, and on tracing human population affinities. All other chapters have been fully updated to reflect advances in the field, and now include pedagogical features to aid student understanding. This is essential reading for courses on human variation, human biology, human evolution, race, and general introductions to biological/physical anthropology.

Extracting Home in the Oil Sands

Settler Colonialism and Environmental Change in Subarctic Canada

Edited by Clinton N. Westman, University of Saskatchewan, Canada, Tara L. Joly, University of Saskatchewan, Canada and Lena Gross, University of Oslo, Norway
Series: Arctic Worlds

The Canadian oil sands are one of the world's most important energy sources and the subject of global attention in relation to climate change and pollution. This volume engages ethnographically with key issues concerning the oil sands by working from anthropological literature and beyond to explore how people struggle to make and hold on to diverse senses of home in the region.

Kama Muta

Discovering the Connecting Emotion

Alan Page Fiske

This book describes a ubiquitous and potent emotion that has only rarely and recently been studied in any systematic manner, which scientists now call 'kama muta' (Sanskrit, 'moved by love'). Alan Page Fiske shows that what evokes this emotion is the sudden creation, intensification, renewal, repair, or recall of a communal sharing relationship – when love ignites or people feel newly connected. Kama muta is described as it manifests at many points in history across cultures, in everyday experiences and the peak moments of life. The book will be of interest to students and scholars from a number of disciplines who are interested in emotion or social relationships.

Locating Zika

Social Change and Governance in an Age of Mosquito Pandemics

Edited by Kevin Bardosh

Series: Routledge Studies in Health and Medical Anthropology

The Zika virus has challenged conventional ideas of mosquito-borne diseases, tested the resilience of global health systems and embedded itself within local sociocultural worlds, with major implications for environmental, sexual, reproductive and paediatric health, science and policy. This book locates the 2016 Zika epidemic in Latin America and the Caribbean within its broader biosocial and historical context. The chapters contain a diverse set of case studies from scholars and health practitioners working across the region including Brazil, Venezuela, Ecuador, Mexico, Colombia, the United States, and Haiti.

Mambila Divination

Framing Questions, Constructing Answers

David Zeitlyn

Series: Routledge Studies in Anthropology

This book offers a major contribution to the study and analysis of divination, based on continuing fieldwork with the Mambila in Cameroon. It seeks to return attention to the details of divinatory practice, using the questions asked, and life histories to help understand the perspective of the clients rather than that of the diviners. A detailed case study is examined, and analysed using conversational analytic principles.

The book will interest specialists and scholars concerned with religion, rationality and decision making, from disciplines including anthropology, African studies and philosophy.

On Insignificance

The Loss of Meaning in the Post-Material Age

Massimo Leone, University of Turin, Italy

Focusing on the anthropological consequences of the disappearing of materiality and sensory embodiment, On Insignificance highlights some of the most perturbing patterns of insignificance that have seeped into our everyday lives. Seeking to explain the semiotic causes of feelings of meaningless, Leone posits that caring for the singularities of the world is the most viable way to resist the alienating effects of the digital bureaucratization of meaning. The book will be of interest to scholars of anthropology, cultural studies, semiotics, aesthetics, communication studies and social theory.

Reading Life with Gwich'in

An Educational Approach

Jan Peter Laurens Looovers, University of Aberdeen, UK

Series: Arctic Worlds

Based upon ethnographic fieldwork and personal experiences with the Teet'it Gwich'in community in northern Canada. The author provides insight into Gwich'in understandings of life as well as into historical and political processes. He outlines the development of an educational approach towards conducting ethnography and writing anthropological literature, starting with the premise 'you have to live it'. The book focuses on ways of knowing and collaboration through learning and being taught by interlocutors. Looovers investigates the notion of reading life - land, water and weather as well as texts - and analyses the reading of texts as acts of conversations or correspondences.

Reflections on Life in Ghettos, Camps and Prisons

Stuckness and Confinement

Edited by Simon Turner, University of Copenhagen and Steffen Jensen, Rehabilitation and Research Centre for Torture Victims, Denmark

This book explores the relationship between ghettos, camps, places of detention and prisons with a focus on those people who are confined, encamped, imprisoned, detained, stuck, or forcibly removed through the lens of 'stuckness'. From a point of departure in anthropology, with important contributions from criminology, geography and philosophy, the chapters explore how life is lived in and across these sites of confinement by focusing on the tactics of everyday life, while being mindful of how forms of abjection are constitutive elements of these sites. With case studies from Palestine, Sierra Leone, South Africa,

Northern Australia, Rwanda, Ivory Coast and Nicaragua.

Sacred Waters

A Cross-Cultural Compendium of Hallowed Springs and Holy Wells

Edited by Celeste Ray

Describing sacred waters and their associated traditions in over thirty countries and across multiple time periods, this book identifies patterns in panhuman hydrolatry. Addressing themes that will shape future water research, this volume examines cultural perceptions of water's sacrality that can be employed to foster resilient human-environmental relationships in the growing water crises of the twenty-first century. The work combines perspectives from anthropology, religious studies, sociology, geography, archaeology, history and folklore.

Suckling

Kinship More Fluid

Fadwa El Guindi, UCLA, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Anthropology

A ground-breaking ethnographic study of suckling in the Arabian Gulf, this book reenergises the study of kinship. It analyses the misunderstood and marginalized phenomenon of suckling drawing on ethnographic fieldwork in Qatar over a seven-year period.

The volume takes kinship study beyond origins, nature-culture debates, and social nurturing and relatedness, and challenges claims of deterministic, reductionist formulas. This book is valuable for anthropologists, Middle East scholars and others with an interest in breastfeeding, family and social organisation, and religion.

Surfaces

Transformations of Body, Materials and Earth

Edited by Mike Anusas, University of Edinburgh, Edinburgh and Cristián Simonetti, Pontificia Universidad Católica de Chile, Chile

Series: Routledge Studies in Anthropology

In attending to surfaces, as they wrap, layer and grow within sentient bodies, material formations and cosmological sites, this volume presents a series of ten anthropological studies stretching across five continents and in observation of earthly practices of making, knowing, living and dying.

The book principally invites readers from anthropology, the creative arts and environmental studies, but also across the wider humanities and social sciences as well as those in neighbouring scientific fields of archeology, biology, geography, geoscience, material science, neurology and psychology interested in the intersections of mind, body, materials and world.

2nd Edition

The Angry Earth

Edited by Anthony Oliver-Smith and Susanna M. Hoffman

The Angry Earth explores how various cultures in different historical moments have responded to calamity. Through case studies drawn from around the globe the contributors to this volume examine issues ranging from the social and political factors that set the stage for disaster, to the cultural processes experienced by survivors, to the long-term impact of disasters on culture and society. In the second edition, each chapter has been updated with a postscript to reflect on recent developments in the field. There is also new material on key present-day topics including epidemics, drought, non-governmental organizations, and displacement and resettlement.

The Biometric Border World

Technology, Bodies and Identities on the Move

Edited by Karen Fog Olwig, University of Copenhagen, Denmark, Kristina Grünberg, University of Copenhagen, Denmark, Perle Möhl, University of Copenhagen, Denmark and Anja Simonsen, University of Copenhagen, Denmark

Series: Routledge Studies in Anthropology

Since the 1990s, biometric border control has attained key importance throughout Europe. Based on innovative collaborative fieldwork, this book examines how biometrics are developed, put to use and negotiated in key European border sites. It analyses the disparate ways in which the technologies are applied, perceived and experienced by border control agents and others managing the cross-border flow of people, by scientists and developers engaged in making the technologies, and by migrants and NGOs attempting to manoeuvre in the complicated and often unpredictable systems of technological control.

The Secret Lives of Anthropologists

Lessons from the Field

Edited by Bonnie L. Hewlett

This book addresses the difficult conditions researchers may face in the field and provides lessons in how to navigate the various social, political, economic, health and environmental challenges involved in fieldwork. It also sheds important light on aspects often considered 'secret' or taboo. A range of senior anthropologists offer the benefit of their experience conducting research in diverse cultures around the world. The contributions combine engaging personal narrative with consideration of theory and methods.

Adventures in the Aid Trade

Forty Years Practicing Development in Forty Countries

Richard Holloway

Adventures in the Aid Trade takes us on a fascinating journey through 40 years of work at the coal face of international development. Drawing on his experiences from long periods in the field, the author reflects on what has worked, what has not and why, and considers how these experiences relate to students and practitioners today. Whether you are a current development practitioner, or a student just starting out in your understanding of the development and humanitarian sectors, this book provides an invaluable snapshot of the world of civil society organisations, governance, the voluntary sector, and the lived lives of ordinary people in extraordinary times.

Contemporary European Emigration

Situating Integration in New Destinations

Edited by Brigitte Suter and Lisa Åkesson

Series: Routledge Studies in Development, Mobilities and Migration

At a time when European unity is politically challenged by the question of immigration, it is easy to forget that many Europeans are in fact leaving the continent. Drawing on the experiences of contemporary European emigrants from a range of countries, this book sheds light on how global economic, political and social transformations spur new forms of migration and mobility experiences. Delving into accounts of social integration and transnational and local connectivity, the book provides enticing insights into how Europeans see themselves in the world.

Researchers within migration studies and European studies will find this book an important addition to the literature.

African Initiated Christianity and the Decolonization of Development

Sustainable Development in Pentecostal and Independent Churches

Edited by Philipp Öhlmann, Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin, Germany, Wilhelm Gräb, Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin, Germany and Marie-Luise Frost, Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin, Berlin

Series: Routledge Research in Religion and Development

This book investigates the substantial and growing contribution which African Independent and Pentecostal Churches are making to sustainable development in all its manifold forms. Moreover, this volume seeks to elucidate how these churches re-shape the very notion of sustainable development and contribute to the decolonization of development. This book will be useful for the community of scholars interested in religion and development as well as researchers within African studies, anthropology, development studies, political science, religious studies, sociology of religion, and theology. It will also be a key resource for development policy-makers and practitioners.

Political Financing in Developing Countries

A Case from Ghana

Joseph Luna

Series: Routledge Explorations in Development Studies

This book argues that to fully grasp the decision-making of politicians and political actors in developing countries, we must first understand how politicians finance their campaigns for office—and to whom they are indebted and expected to repay. Overall, the book argues that scholars of development should advance research on political finance to identify and then alleviate the games that decision makers must play to survive in the political sphere. Political Financing in Developing Countries will be an important and timely resource for scholars across development studies, politics, economics, and African Studies.

Humanitarianism and the Quantification of Human Needs

Minimal Humanity

Joël Glasman

Series: Routledge Humanitarian Studies

This book provides the first historical inquiry into the quantification of needs in humanitarian assistance. Ultimately the book argues that we cannot understand the global humanitarian aid movement, if we do not understand how humanitarian agencies made human suffering commensurable across borders in the first place. This important historical enquiry into the universal nature of human suffering will be an important read for humanitarian researchers and practitioners, as well as readers with an interest in international history and development.

Practices of Citizenship in East Africa

Perspectives from Philosophical Pragmatism

Edited by Katariina Holma and Tiina Kontinen, University of Jyväskylä, Finland

Series: Routledge Explorations in Development Studies

Practices of Citizenship in East Africa uses insights from philosophical pragmatism to explore how to strengthen citizenship within developing countries. Using a bottom-up approach, the book investigates the various everyday practices in which citizenship habits are formed and reformulated. This book will be of interest to scholars within the fields of development, governance, and educational philosophy. Practitioners and policy-makers working on inclusive citizenship and interventions to strengthen civil society will also find the concepts explored in this book useful to their work.

Routledge Handbook of Migration and Development

Edited by Tanja Bastia, University of Manchester, UK and Ronald Skeldon

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

The links between migration and development can be traced back to the post-war period, if not further, yet it is only in the last 15 years that the 'migration-development nexus' has risen to prominence for academics and policy makers. The Routledge Handbook of Migration and Development provides an interdisciplinary, agenda-setting survey of the field, charting current and future trends in migration and development research. Given the increasing importance of migration in both international development and current affairs, this book will be of interest both to policy makers and to students and researchers of geography, development studies, political science, sociology and economics.

The Global North-South Atlas

Mapping Global Change

Marcin Wojciech Solarz

This innovative atlas deconstructs the contemporary image of a world divided into North and South depending on their wealth and development. Starting with the Brandt Commission's 'North-South Line', the book uses a range of colourful maps, charts, and regional profiles to argue the need for the international community to redraw the global map. This book will serve as a perfect textbook for students studying global divisions within geography, politics, economics, international relations, and development departments, as well as being a useful guide for researchers, and for those working in NGOs and government institutions.

Biopics of Women

Karen Hollinger, Professor, Department of Literature, Georgia Southern University
Series: "International Perspectives on Science, Culture and Society"

This book is an accessible overview of biographical fiction films of women. Structured around four of the most popular subjects of female biopics: queens and political figures; entertainers, writers; and subjects of current affairs. Providing an overview of key subgenres, 'Biopics of Women' examines the development of biographical films in each area and the images of successful women they project in order to investigate the issues involved in women's representation in the genre as a whole. This is a lively and readable text for students and scholars in Gender and Film, Gender and Media and Women's Studies.

Girls, Moral Panic and News Media

Troublesome Bodies

Sharon R. Mazzarella

Series: Routledge Research in Gender, Sexuality, and Media

The public concern with youth in the United States is a fascination that has long played out in the media and has consistently focused on girls. In this book, Mazzarella takes a broad look at U.S. print media constructions of girls, girlhoods, and girl's bodies/sexualities through a series of contemporary in-depth case studies including, news coverage of the 2008 Gloucester (MA) High School "pregnancy pact," teen gun control activist Emma González, and the normalization of "early puberty." Taken as a whole these case studies work to document a wider cultural moral panic about the troublesome nature of girls' bodies which are often framed as in need of adult surveillance and policing.

Early Motherhood in Digital Societies

Ideals, Anxieties and Ties of the Perinatal

Ranjana Das, University of Leicester

Series: Global Gender

The Mediation of Childbirth examines the mediation of childbirth on and offline on both sides of the Atlantic. It investigates the meanings embedded into media texts that birthing women in Britain and the USA access and interpret. It analyses the discourses in British and American television programmes, and online videos about the birthing body, medical interventions, pain, anxiety and risk. These stories are analysed to investigate the complexity of emotions around birth, the diversity of birth experiences, and the myriad ways in which television, the press and social media both shape, resource, impede and empower women giving birth.

Representations of Working-Class Masculinities in Post-War British Culture

The Left Behind

Matthew Crowley

Series: Interdisciplinary Research in Gender

This book presents an analysis of representations of white, heterosexual, working-class masculinities in British culture in the latter half of the 20th century. As the period which saw the establishment of the Welfare State, and the construction and breakdown of the post-war consensus in British politics, this is a period of great significance in the formation and maintenance of working-class masculinities and their correspondent representations. Using the analysis of representations of working-class masculinities as a lens the author examines a range of historical and cultural moments including films (Alfie), Plays (Don't Look Back in Anger) and Music (The Beatles).

The Maternal in Creative Work

Intergenerational Discussions on Motherhood and Art

Edited by Elena Marchevska and Valerie Walkerdine

Series: Interdisciplinary Research in Motherhood

Maternal Structures in Creative Work examines the interrelation between art, creativity and motherhood. An interdisciplinary range of international contributors look at mothers as subjects and as artists who produce auto/biography, text, performances and objects about the maternal experience, and how the creative practice is used to accept, negotiate, resist, or challenge traditional conceptions of mothering. Chapters are collaborative, they include an intergenerational discussion of art practices in the 20th and 21st centuries, representations of breastfeeding and infertility in creative projects, the notion of the 'unfit mother' and childlessness.

Polyamory, Monogamy, and American Dreams

The Stories We Tell about Poly Lives and the Cultural Production of Inequality

Mimi Schippers, Tulane University

How do the stories we tell about monogamy do cultural and ideological work to maintain and legitimize social inequalities along the lines of race, ethnicity, nation, religion, class, gender and sexuality? How might the introduction of polyamory or consensually non-monogamous relationships in the stories we tell about intimacy confound, disrupt or shift the meaning of what constitutes a good life? These are the questions that Mimi Schippers focuses on in this original and engaging study, arguing for a sociologically informed and cultivated lens with which to read media images and texts against hegemony – that of the polyqueer gaze.

The Wedding Spectacle Across Contemporary Media and Culture

Something Old, Something New

Edited by Jilly Boyce Kay, Melanie Kennedy and Helen Wood

The collection acts as a feminist project but does not straight-forwardly renounce the wedding spectacle. Rather these contributions offer an interrogation of its myriad forms and practices to illuminate the paradoxes, contradictions and disappointments of heteronormative love. Written by leading and emerging feminist scholars, the essays here range across different media forms, genres and cultural practices, to explore how the visibility of weddings changes and adapts across a new cultural and social landscape.

Birthing Outside the System

The Canary in the Coal Mine

Edited by Hannah Dahlen, Western Sydney University, Australia, Bashi Kumar-Hazard and Virginia Schmied, Western Sydney University, Australia

Series: Routledge Research in Nursing and Midwifery

This book explores why women might decide to birth at home and makes connections between women's right to choose where they give birth and violations of human rights in childbirth within the maternity care system. Drawing on legal and ethical perspectives, it looks at high risk home birth, free birth, unregulated birth workers, giving birth following a prior traumatic birth, VBAC, the oppression of midwives supporting women making unorthodox choices, and the legal rights of women giving birth. It includes chapters on home birth and avoiding mainstream maternity care in Australia, the UK, the US and India.

Childlessness in the Age of Communication

Deconstructing Silence

Cristina Archetti

Series: Routledge Studies in the Sociology of Health and Illness

This book is both a readable analysis of the way the silence surrounding this issue is socially and politically constructed and a first-person ethnographic account of the existential questions posed by involuntary childlessness. Archetti demonstrates what it means not to have children in a world that increasingly fetishizes parenthood. Childlessness in the Age of Communication draws on a range of disciplines and fields including sociology, health, gender and sexuality studies, communication, media studies, politics and anthropology. It is a book for all those interested in childlessness and innovative qualitative research methodologies.

Series: Interdisciplinary Disability Studies

This book examines the relationship between contemporary cultural representations of disabled children on the one hand, and disability as a personal experience of internalised oppression on the other.

Posing new questions for disability studies and for identity politics about the relationships between lived experiences, cultural representations and dominant discourses – and demonstrating a new approach to the concept of 'internalised oppression' – this book will be of interest to scholars and students of disability studies, medical humanities, sociology and psychosocial studies, as well as to those with an interest in identity politics more generally.

Death, Religion and Law

A Guide For Clinicians

Peter Hutton, University Hospitals Birmingham NHS

Foundation Trust, UK, Ravi Mahajan, Queen's Medical Center, Nottingham, England, UK and Allan Kellehear, University of Bradford, UK

Although every person and family must be treated as unique in their social and ethno-religious context, few health and social care practitioners are able to know even the basic customs, values or preferences of all the major religions relevant to the care they provide. This practical guide summarizes the principles of working with dying patients and their families influenced by the most common world religions. It also outlines the main legal requirements to be followed by those who care for the dying following the death of the patient. It is an important reference for practitioners working with dying patients, their families and the bereaved.

Disability Hate Speech

Social, Cultural and Political Contexts

Edited by Mark Sherry, Terje Olsen, Janikke Solstad Vedeler and John Eriksen

Series: Interdisciplinary Disability Studies

This book, the first to specifically focus on disability hate speech, explains what disability hate speech is, why it is important, what laws regulate it (both online and in person) and how it is different from other forms of hate.

It makes a vital contribution to understanding disability hatred and prejudice, and will be of particular interest to those studying issues associated with hate speech, disability, psychology, law, and prejudice.

Disrupting Whiteness in Social Work

Edited by Sonia M. Tascón, University of the Sunshine Coast, Australia. and Jim Ife

Focussing on the epistemic: the way in which knowledge is understood, constructed, transmitted and used, this book shows the way social work knowledge has been constructed from within a white western paradigm, and the need for a critique of whiteness within social work at this epistemic level. Social work, emerging from the western Enlightenment world, has privileged white western knowledge, in ways that have been, until recently, largely unexamined within its professional discourse. This imposition of white western ways of knowing, has led to a corresponding marginalisation of other forms of knowledge.

Educating Doctors' Senses Through the Medical Humanities

"How Do I Look?"

Alan Bleakley, Plymouth University, UK

Series: Routledge Advances in the Medical Humanities

Educating Doctors' Senses Through the Medical Humanities: "How Do I Look?"

"How Do I Look?" uses the medical diagnostic method to identify a chronic symptom in medical culture: the unintentional production of insensibility through compulsory mis-education. This book identifies the symptom and its origins and offers an intervention: deliberate and planned education of sensibility through the introduction of medical humanities to the core undergraduate medicine and surgery curriculum.

The book will be of interest to all medical educators and clinicians, including those health and social care professionals outside of medicine who work with doctors.

Gerontological Social Work in Action

Anti-Oppressive Practice with Older Adults, their Families, and Communities

Wendy Hulko, Shari Brotman, Louise Stern and Ilyan Ferrer

Gerontological Social Work in Action introduces 'anti-oppression gerontology' (AOG), a critical approach to social work with older adults, their families, and communities. AOG principles are applied to direct and indirect practice and a range of topics of relevance to social work practice in the context of a rapidly aging world.

This textbook should be considered essential reading to social work students new to aging and/or seeking to specialize as well as others interested in the application of anti-oppressive principles to working and researching with older adults.

Governance Ethics in Healthcare Organizations

Gerard Magill and Lawrence Prybil

Series: Routledge Studies in Health and Social Welfare

Drawing on the findings of a series of empirical studies undertaken with boards of directors and CEOs in the United States, this groundbreaking book develops a new paradigm to provide a structured analysis of ethical healthcare governance. It begins by presenting a clear framework for ethical analysis, designed around basic features of ethics – who we are, how we function, and what we do – before discussing the paradigm in relation to clinical, organizational and professional ethics. It goes on to apply this framework in areas that are pivotal for effective governance in healthcare.

Insane Society: A Sociology of Mental Health

Peter Morrall, University of Leeds, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in the Sociology of Health and Illness

This book critiques the connection between Western society and madness. Outlining and analysing ideas from biology and psychology, and incorporating the perspectives of those regarded by themselves or others as mad, this text synthesises a range of sociological and anthropological thinking that, where madness is concerned, society matters. Looking beyond the affected individual to their social, political, economic, ecological, and cultural context, it examines whether or not society itself, and its institutions, divisions, practices, and values, is mad. It is an important read for students and scholars of sociology, anthropology, social policy, criminology, health, and mental

Listening to Women After Childbirth

Alison Brodrick, Sheffield Teaching Hospitals, UK and Emma Williamson, Sheffield Teaching Hospitals, UK

It is vital that healthcare practitioners understand the psychological impact of childbirth when caring for women. This book outlines how clinicians can offer practical support to women after birth, including looking at adaptations to motherhood, causes and manifestations of PTSD following childbirth, setting up postnatal pathways for women, developing communication skills, using women's voices to inform future practice and emphasising the importance of clinical supervision. Drawing together theoretical knowledge, evidence, practical skills and women's narratives, it is of significant value to all healthcare practitioners engaged in maternity services.

Men, Masculinities and the Care of Children

Images, Ideas and Identities

Martin Robb

Sharing the care of children in families is increasingly becoming the norm in modern day society as more mothers enter paid work and government campaigns endeavour to increase the number of men working in childcare. However, there has been mounting anxiety from the media and public about the risks of child abuse, often perceived as being mostly perpetrated by men. Bringing together theory and up-to-date research, this book asks whether men's care for children, both as fathers and practitioners, actually differs from the care provided by mothers and female carers and highlights the implications of this for future policy and practice.

Nursing and Humanities

Graham McCaffrey

Series: Routledge Research in Nursing and Midwifery

The book starts with a survey of the history of humanities in nursing, in comparison with medical humanities and in the context of the emergence of interdisciplinary health humanities. A central section offers an argument for placing the humanities firmly within a mixed model of nursing knowledge that is based upon embodied cognition. Final chapters explore these ideas through a series of essays on topics of humanities as a form of intervention, prose and poetry in relation to nursing, and applications of the Buddhist concept of interdependence. Nursing and Humanities is intended primarily for nurse academics and graduate students.

Risk and Substance Use

Framing Dangerous People and Dangerous Places

Edited by Susanne MacGregor, London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine, UK and Betsy Thom, Middlesex University, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in the Sociology of Health and Illness

This interdisciplinary collection examines the role that alcohol, tobacco and other drugs have played in framing certain groups and spaces as 'dangerous' and in influencing the nature of formal responses to the perceived threat.

Bringing together a range of case studies drawn from different countries and across different periods of time, the chapters collected here illustrate issues of marginalisation, stigmatisation, human rights and social expectations. It is of interest to a diverse audience of historians, philosophers, human geographers, anthropologists, sociologists and criminologists interested in substance use and misuse, deviance, risk and power among other topics.

AfroSurrealism

The African Diaspora's Surrealist Fiction

Rochelle Spencer
 Series: The Cultural Politics of Media and Popular Culture

Examining the surrealist novels of several contemporary writers including Edwidge Danticat, Tananarive Due, Nalo Hopkinson, Junot Díaz, Helen Oyeyemi, and Colson Whitehead, AfroSurrealism, the first book-length exploration of AfroSurrealist fiction, argues that we have entered a new and exciting era of the black novel, one that is more invested than ever before in the cross-sections of science, technology, history, folklore, and myth. As such, it will appeal to scholars of cultural, media and literary studies with interests in the contemporary novel, Surrealism and black fiction.

All Media Are Social

Sociological Perspectives on Mass Media

Stephen R. Barnard and Andrew M. Lindner, Skidmore College, USA

Series: Sociology Re-Wired

In this introduction to media sociology, Lindner and Barnard encourage readers to think critically about big media companies, state-media relations, developments in journalism, representations of race, class, gender, and sexuality, and what social media may or may not be doing to our brains. Exploring pressing questions by carefully excavating the results of classic and contemporary social studies, All Media Are Social offers an accessibly-written analysis of enduring patterns and the newest developments in mass media. With strong emphases on theory and methods, Lindner and Barnard provide the readers with the tools to better understand the ever-changing media landscape.

Aspiration, Desire and the Drivers of Migration

Edited by Francis L. Collins, University of Waikato, New Zealand and Jørgen Carling

Series: Research in Ethnic and Migration Studies

This book throws new light on the drivers of migration and explores the different ways in which aspiration and desire are involved in the generation, experiences and outcomes of migration. At a time when migration has become one of the most prominent areas of national and international political debate, this volume provides the tools for researchers to reconsider how we understand the forces and outcomes of global mobility. This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Ethnic and Migration Studies.

Birth and Death

Experience, Ethics, Politics

Kath Woodward, The Open University, UK and Sophie Woodward

Usually conceived in opposition to each other – birth as a hopeful beginning, death as an ending – this book brings them into dialogue with each other to argue that both are central to our experiences of being in the world and part of living.

Of interest to academics and students in the fields of feminism, phenomenology and the life course, the book will also be of relevance to policy makers in the areas of birth activism and end of life care. Drawing from personal stories and everyday life and publicly contested examples the book will also be of interest to a more general readership as it engages with questions we all at some point will grapple with.

Brains, Media and Politics

Generating Neoliberal Subjects

Rodolfo Leyva, London School of Economics and Political Science, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Political Sociology

This book combines leading theories from sociology, media-communications, developmental psychology and cognitive science, and draws on primary evidence from a unique mix of qualitative and quantitative studies - of young people's leisure practices and educational experiences, of young adults' political processes in relation to exposure to social networking sites, and of the effects of commercial media viewing on material values and support for social welfare - to provide a nuanced account of how the conscious and non-conscious cognitive dimensions of people's subjectivities and everyday social

China at a Threshold

Exploring Social Change in Techno-Social Systems

James B. Cuffe, Waterford Institute of Technology, Ireland
Series: Contemporary Liminality

This book offers an account of the increasing use of technology in Chinese society and the challenges that this presents in all facets of everyday life, from health and politics to ethics and education. Drawing on conceptual tools from the theory of technology and anthropology, it explores debates surrounding technology as a liberating tool for human flourishing or as a malevolent force for social atrophy. A study of changing urban life in China, it addresses questions surrounding communication technology and state control, civil rights and freedom of speech, asking what the future may hold for China and urging us to rethink our understanding of the role of technology in social

Chinese Social Structure and Social Construction

Xueyi Lu and Yanwen Sun
Series: China Perspectives

What is the social structure of Chinese society in the 21st century? How should China address the problem of migrant workers? How can China form a modern society? These key sociological issues are some of the topics this book covers.

Arguing that the gap between economic and social development has become the major social issue facing modern China, the author advocates paying close attention to the country's social structure and the growth of the middle-class.

The book will be of interest for all scholars and students of Sociology and Chinese Studies.

Cool Britannia and Multi-Ethnic Britain

Uncorking the Champagne Supernova

Jason Arday, Durham University, UK

Series: Routledge Research in Race and Ethnicity

Cool Britannia and Multi-Ethnic Britain: Uncorking the Champagne Supernova attempts to move away from the melancholia of Cool Britannia and the discourse which often encases the period by repositioning this phenomena through an ethnic minority perspective.

The Cool Britannia Years become a metaphoric reference point for presenting a Britain that was culturally splintered in many ways. This book utilises storytelling and the auto-ethnography as an instrument to unpack the historical amnesia that ensues when unpacking the racialized plights of the time.

Critical Thinking

Developing the Intellectual Tools for Social Justice

Joseph Zornado, Rhode Island College, United States of America, Jill Harrison, Rhode Island College, United States of America and Daniel Weisman, Rhode Island College, United States of America

Critical Thinking presents, defines and explains the intellectual skills and habits of mind that comprise critical thinking and its relationship to social justice. The book documents and explains the scope of multiple crises facing society today, including environmental destruction, income and wealth inequality, large-scale human migration, and the rise of autocratic governments. It shows how critical thinking, cultural cognition, and critical awareness lead to the possibility of solutions grounded in social justice.

Critical Theory and Social Transformation

Crises of the Present and Future Possibilities

Gerard Delanty

This book provides an exploration of the major themes in critical social theory of recent years. Delanty argues that a critical theory perspective can offer much needed insights into the pressing socio-political challenges of our time. He engages with the key topics facing critical social theorists: capitalism, cosmopolitanism, modernity, the Anthropocene, and Europe. The notions of critique, crisis and social transformation are central to the book. The book will appeal to those working in sociology, political sociology, politics and international studies, and to anyone with an interest in any of the chapter specific topics, such as public space, memory, and neo-authoritarianism.

Defending Qualitative Research

Design, Analysis and Textualization

Mario Cardano, University of Turin, Italy

Series: Routledge Advances in Research Methods

Focusing on the phases of qualitative research which precede and follow fieldwork - design, analysis, and textualization - this book offers new theoretical tools to tackle one of the most common criticisms advanced against qualitative research: its presumed lack of rigour. Rejecting the notion of 'rigour' as formulated in quantitative research and based on the theory of probability, it proposes a theoretical frame that allows combining the goals of rigour and that of creativity through the reference to theory of argumentation. As such, it will appeal to scholars and students across the social sciences with interests in qualitative research methods.

2nd Edition

Economic Sociology

An Introduction

Jeffrey K. Hass, University of Richmond, USA

Economic Sociology, 2nd edition, shows how economies are more than supply-and-demand curves, individual profit motives, and efficient performance: they are forms of power and structure, grounded in institutions and culture. The volume addresses crucially important economic issues that touch our well-being and justice: the rise and structuring of capitalism; relations between states and economies; economic policies; economies and inequality; and organizations and corporations. Written in a clear and direct style, this textbook will appeal to students and scholars in economic sociology, sociology of work, economics, social policy, political economy and comparative sociology

Economic Transition and People's Livelihood

Renwei Zhao and Yanwen Sun

Series: China Perspectives

China has experienced radical economical and societal change since the reform process was initiated in 1978, bringing about significant income discrepancy between regions, social classes and generations and impacting greatly on various aspects of people's livelihood.

This book is a collection of twenty-five papers on economic transition in China from 1978 to the early 21st century. The author examines the imbalance in income distribution from a socio-economic perspective and the relationship between planning and the market.

The set will appeal to students and scholars who are interested in social and economic reform in China.

Encountering the Past within the Present

Modern Experiences of Time

Siobhan Kattago, University of Tartu, Estonia

Series: Memory Studies: Global Constellations

This volume reflects on the old philosophical question of how to live the good life, not only with others who are physically with us, but also with those, whose presence is ghostly and liminal. Divided into three parts, chapters examine ways in which the legacies of World War II, the Holocaust and communism have been remembered after 1945 and 1989. Maintaining a sustained reflection on the nexus of memory, modernity and time in tandem with ancient questions of responsibility for one another and the world, the volume contributes to the growing field of memory studies from a philosophical perspective.

Everyday Fears of Legal Immigrants with Undocumented Spouses

Under U.S. Immigration Policy

Nina Michalikova, University of Central Oklahoma, USA

Series: Solving Social Problems

The first study to systematically analyse the ways in which legal immigrants are affected by federal and state policies that target their undocumented spouses, this book explores the structural limitations faced by legal immigrants with undocumented spouses in their private, social and professional lives, as well as in regard to their finances, and health. Based on auto-ethnographic work and drawing on qualitative research and quantitative data, it reveals that regardless of their immigration status, all members of mixed-status families are directly or indirectly subjected to the same intrusive and punitive laws.

Evolutionary Moral Realism

Michael Stiglitz, University of Lethbridge, Canada and John Collier

Series: History and Philosophy of Biology

Against standard approaches to evolution and ethics, this book develops the idea that moral values may find their origin in regularly recurring features in the cooperative environments of species of organisms that are social and intelligent.

Combining a naturalistic approach to morality with an equal emphasis on moral argument and truth, this book will be of interest to philosophers and historians of biology, theoretical biologists, comparative psychologists, and moral philosophers.

Family Life in Transition

Borders, Transnational Mobility, and Welfare Society in Nordic Countries

Edited by Johanna Hiitola, Kakkola University Consortium Chydenius, University of Jyväskylä, Finland, Kati Turtiainen, University of Jyväskylä, Finland, Sabine Gruber, Linköping University, Sweden and Marja Tiilikainen, University of Helsinki, Finland

Series: Routledge Studies in Family Sociology

This volume examines the ways in which bordering practices influence the everyday lives of racialized parents in the changing welfare states of Finland, Denmark, Norway, and Sweden.

Focusing on the need to negotiate, adjust, and reconcile of family life, parenthood and parenting practices in the face of national, material, ideological, cultural, religious, and moral borders, it considers the manner in which these processes are complicated by recent changes in the legitimization of Nordic welfare states.

Freedom of Information and Social Science Research Design

Edited by Kevin Walby, University of Winnipeg, Canada and Alex Luscombe, University of Toronto, Canada.

Series: Routledge Advances in Research Methods

This multidisciplinary volume demonstrates how freedom of information law and process can shape social science research design. It provides readers with resources to carry out freedom of information requests and considers the influence such requests can have on debates within disciplines. It examines the use of freedom of information disclosures with other datasets, explores the challenges of using freedom of information processes in research and considers the reasons for which freedom of information processes remain under-used in social scientific research.

Gambling, Losses and Self-Esteem

An Interactionist Approach to the Betting Shop

Cormac Mc Namara, Trinity College Dublin, Ireland

Series: Routledge Advances in Research Methods

This book provides new insights into contemporary betting shops. Adopting an interactionist approach, it examines the process of 'blame-shifting' as collective attempt to repair self-esteem in the wake of financial losses and considers the role of announcements made in betting shops in creating an atmosphere of inclusion.

Gender Verification and the Making of the Female Body in Sport

A History of the Present

Sonja Erikainen, University of Edinburgh, UK

Series: Routledge Advances in Critical Diversities

Tracing gender verification policies and practices in sport since the 1930s till the present, the book shows how and why medical "sex tests" have been used to "verify" women athletes' femaleness, in ways that both reflect and have shaped broader social and scientific ideas about femaleness in the process. By mapping the social, historical, and material instability of sex and gender, it shows why so much investment has been placed in distinguishing femaleness from maleness in sport and beyond.

Got Solidarity?

Challenging Straight White College Men to Advocate for Social Justice

Jörg Vianden

Series: New Critical Viewpoints on Society

In Got Solidarity?, Jörg Vianden reports the results from a nationwide qualitative study of how white college men experience or perceive campus and community diversity issues. Using tenets of transformative learning and pedagogy for privileged learners, the author provides stories from white men about diversity, privilege, oppression, masculinity, and social change. Uniquely, this book pairs white privilege with the stories of traditionally marginalized college groups, including women, students of color, and students who identify across different gender and sexual orientation spectra.

Identity, Agency and Fieldwork Methodologies in Risky Environments

Edited by Monique Marks and Julten Abdelhalim

Series: Contemporary Issues in Social Science

Bringing together a unique set of narratives from social scientists who have been situated in risky environments, this volume discusses the moral and ethical dilemmas of doing fieldwork in environments that are characterised by insecurity. This book is likely to be instructive to young researchers entering into fields that are risky, and is also an excellent resource for the more seasoned researchers who might have had comparable experiences that they wish to reflect on. It will be an invaluable resource for teaching qualitative research across a wide spectrum of disciplines. This book was originally published as a special

Governing Affects

Neoliberalism, Neo-Bureaucracies, and Service Work

Otto Penz, University of Vienna, Austria and Birgit Sauer, University of Vienna, Austria

Series: Routledge Studies in the Sociology of Emotions

Governing Affects explores the neoliberal transformation of state governance in Europe towards affective forms of dominance, exercised by customer oriented neo-bureaucracies and public service providers.

The book examines new affective modes of subjectivation and activation of public employees as well as their embodiment of affective requirements to successfully guide and advise citizens. By combining theory building on governance with empirical research in key areas of state power the book will be of interest to scholars and researchers in a broad range of disciplines including political science, political sociology, and critical governance studies.

Impoverishment and Asylum

Social Policy as Slow Violence

Lucy Mayblin, University of Sheffield, UK

Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology

Impoverishment and Asylum argues that a shift has taken place in recent decades from construing asylum as primarily a political and/or humanitarian phenomenon, to construing it as primarily an economic phenomenon, and that this shift has had led to the purposeful impoverishment, by the state, of people seeking asylum in the UK.

It offers a rigorously researched and richly theorised analysis drawing on postcolonial and decolonial perspectives in making sense of the purposeful impoverishment by the state of a particular group of people, and why this continues to be tolerated in the fourth richest country in the world.

Institutional Ethnography in the Nordic Region

Edited by Rebecca W. B. Lund, University of Tampere, Finland and Ann Christin E. Nilsen, University of Agder, Norway

Series: Routledge Advances in Research Methods

This book explicates the Nordic response to institutional ethnography, showing how it has been adapted and interpreted within the theoretical and methodological landscape of social scientific research in the region, as well as the institutional particularities of the Nordic welfare state. Addressing the main topics of concern in the Nordic context, together with the way in which research is undertaken, the authors show how institutional ethnography is combined with different theories and methodologies in order to address particular problematics, as well as examining its standing in relation to contemporary research policy and university reforms.

Internationalism or Extinction

Noam Chomsky, Charles Derber, Suren Moodliar and Paul Shannon

Series: Universalizing Resistance

In his new book Noam Chomsky writes cogently about the threats to planetary survival that are of growing alarm today. Chomsky uniquely traces the duality of threats from nuclear weapons and from climate change—including how the concerns emerged and evolved, and how the threats can interact with one another. The introduction and accompanying interviews place this dual threat in a framework of unprecedented corporate global power domination that has overtaken nation states' ability to control the future and preserve the planet.

Institutional Racism and Restorative Justice

Oppression and Privilege in America

Diane C Emling

Invisible, intractable, deadly—institutional racism has many complexities. But are there mitigating actions society could take? Diane Carpenter Emling explores this question in Institutional Racism and Restorative Justice: Oppression and Privilege in America. Moving beyond the immediate sources and consequences of racism and inequality, to thoroughly assess approaches to restorative justice, Emling details America's complex history of racism, demonstrating how it becomes embedded in society through land ownership, housing, education, health care, employment, public services, and criminal justice.

Intersectionality in Feminist and Queer Movements

Confronting Privileges

Edited by Elizabeth Evans, University of London, United Kingdom and Eléonore Lépinard, University of Lausanne, Switzerland

Series: Routledge Advances in Feminist Studies and Intersectionality

The volume sets out three key ways in which intersectionality operates within feminist and queer movements: it is used as a collective identity, as a strategy for forming coalitions, and as a repertoire for inclusivity. The case studies presented in this book then evaluate the extent to which some, or all, of these types of intersectional activism are used to confront manifestations of privilege. Drawing upon a wide range of cases from across time and space, this volume explores the difficulties with which activists often grapple when it comes to translating the desire for intersectionality into a praxis which confronts privilege.

Interactional Justice

The Role of Emotions in the Performance of Loyalty

Lisa Flower, Lund University, Sweden

Series: Routledge Studies in the Sociology of Emotions

By drawing on extensive ethnographic fieldnotes and interviews with lawyers, this sociological study brings their loyalty work to life and reveals to the reader the unwritten rules of emotional interactions. It presents how defence lawyers socially construct their duty of loyalty by negotiating informal and implicit professional and social expectations. This accomplishment demands emotion work and face work in order to perform a role which includes defending clients accused of heinous crimes and "losing" the majority of cases. As the defence team is central to this, the ways of doing teamwork with their joint efforts is explored.

Introduction to Sociology

Frank van Tubergen, Utrecht University, Netherlands

This textbook presents in a highly accessible and engaging way key knowledge in sociology, introducing students to core concepts, theories, perspectives, methods and findings.

Furthermore, it helps students learning to think like a sociologist. It offers students a 'sociological toolkit', a set of useful insights, tools and principles, which will enable them to do research like a sociologist themselves. Being able to think like a sociologist helps students to analyze any sociological topic and any contemporary social problem - even those with which one is yet unfamiliar.

Jakob von Uexküll and Philosophy

Life, Environments, Anthropology

Edited by Francesca Michelini, University of Kassel, Germany and Kristian Köchy, University of Kassel, Germany
Series: History and Philosophy of Biology

This collection of essays attempts for the first time to make justice of Uexküll's theoretical impact on Western culture. By highlighting his importance for philosophy, the book aims to contribute to the general interpretation of the relationship between biology and philosophy in the last century and explore the often neglected connection between continental philosophy and the sciences of life. Thanks to the exploration of Uexküll's conceptual legacy, the origins of cybernetics, the overcoming of metaphysical dualisms, and a refined understanding of organisms appear variedly interconnected.

Love Across Borders

Asian Americans and the Politics of Inter-marriage and Family-Making

Kelly H. Chong, University of Kansas, USA

Through the lens of intermarriage, Love Across Borders offers critical insights into the often invisible racial struggles of this racially in-between "model minority" group – particularly its ambivalent negotiations with whiteness and white privilege – and on the group's social incorporation process and its implications for the redrawing of color boundaries in the U.S.

Comparing two types of Asian-American intermarriage, interracial and interethnic, Chong shows that both types of intermarriages, in differing ways, are sites of complex struggles around racial/ethnic identity and cultural formations that reveal the salience of race in the lives of Asian-Americans.

Love and Intimacy in Contemporary Society

Love in an International Context

Ann Brooks, Australian Catholic University, Australia

Love and Intimacy in Contemporary Society reflects on relationships in contemporary society and the role of love and intimacy in framing lives. The book shows how relationships are impacted by social networking and new technologies and the opportunities and challenges posed by these new platforms for building relationships. Finally, the book examines how intimacy has become commercialised in late capitalism and how that acts to change relationships. The book is written in an accessible way and explores a range of theoretical debates and contemporary research around emotions, which can be useful for undergraduate, postgraduate and doctoral study.

Later Life

Exploring Aging through Literature

Barbara A. Misztal, University of Leicester, UK

Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology

Later Life views older age as a valuable stage of life and argues for the centrality of self-making to the quality of later life. Aiming to enrich an understanding of ageing as the unfolding process in which people try to negotiate vulnerabilities of their bodies and manage mortality, it explores the conditions for pursuing the search for knowledge of oneself in later life.

The book's focus on the experiences of later life will appeal to the reader interested in understanding the complexities of ageing and in enhancing the quality of later life, while its reliance on literary illustrations will be appreciated by lovers of literature.

Love as a Collective Action

Latin America, Emotions and Interstitial Practices

Adrian Scribano, National Scientific and Technical Research Council, Argentina

Series: Routledge Studies in the Sociology of Emotions

The book proposes love not only as an effect or trait of a society, but also as an analytical tool for better understanding the processes of social structuring. It connects a sociology of bodies/emotions with a specific perspective on collective action and links conflictual structures and the politics of sensibilities in six Latin American countries by using a strategy of inquiry attuned to current patterns of social transformation, that of digital ethnography. This work is of interest to those who want to know which emotions are the prevailing in Latin America, and all researchers and students who are interested in the connection between conflict, society and emotions.

Love Under the Skin

Interracial Marriages in the American South and France

Cécile Coquet-Mokoko

Series: New Critical Viewpoints on Society

The rising visibility of interracial couples calls for increased attention to how culture and race overlap. This comparative study seeks to de-center the U.S.-centered viewpoint common to much of the literature on black and white relations. Based on nine years of fieldwork in the American South and in France, the author invites readers on a journey across geographic and cultural lines and reveals many unexpected parallels between the two societies. Her account emphasizes resilience and agency as couples seek to protect themselves and their children, while their extended or symbolic kinship networks help white partners acknowledge the existence of racial privilege.

Media Perceptions of Religious Changes in Australia

Of Dominance and Diversity

Enqi Weng, Deakin University, Australia

Series: Routledge Studies in the Sociology of Religion

This volume explores the contradiction between the news coverage of religion and its apparent decline according to census data. Based on media research in Australia, and offering comparisons with the UK, the author demonstrates that media discussions present religion according to specific interpretations, which in turn result in very limited understandings of religion itself. Drawing on understandings of the sacred as a non-negotiable value present in religious and secular form, Media Perceptions and Religious Change in Australia calls for a broader sociological perspective on religion.

Series: Youth, Young Adulthood and Society

This book examines in a culturally and contextually sensitive way, the particularity of what it means to be young in post-Mao China undergoing rapid and dramatic transformation by comparing childhood and youth experiences over three generations. It offers a comprehensive coverage of various aspects of life pertinent to youth experiences, comparing each of these across generations, treating them as interrelated and mutually affecting processes—childhood, intergenerational relationships, education and future plans, gender and sexuality.

Music, Immigration and the City

A Transatlantic Dialogue

Edited by Philip Kasinitz, City University of New York, USA and Marco Martiniello, University of Liege, Belgium Series: Ethnic and Racial Studies

This book examines the role of migrant and migrant descended communities in the production and consumption of popular music in Europe and North America. Music is often one of the first arenas in which populations encounter newcomers, a place where ideas about identity can be reformulated and reimagined, and a field in which innovation and hybridity are often highly valued. This book highlights why it is a subject worthy of more attention from students of racial and ethnic relations in diverse societies. It was originally published as a special issue of Ethnic and Racial Studies.

On Guilt

The Force Shaping Character, History, and Culture

John Carroll, La Trobe University, Australia
 Series: Morality, Society and Culture

This book explores the nature of guilt, shedding light on how the modern West came increasingly to understand it as 'the most terrible sickness'. It traces the psychological origins of guilt in each person's family, and demonstrates the historical rise of guilt in parallel with civilization. It examines the modern predicament: the difficulty of finding explanations for guilt in a secular, post-church society - and the possibility of relief from its curse, while channeling it into a fulfilling life. As such it will appeal to those with interests in sociology, psychology, psychiatry, cultural studies, cultural history, and anthropology.

Negotiating Thinness Online

The Cultural Politics of Pro-anorexia

Gemma Cobb, University of Sussex, UK
 Series: Gender, Bodies and Transformation

This book interrogates the thin ideal in pro-anorexia online spaces and the way in which it operates on a continuum with everyday discourses around thinness. Situating 'pro-ana' online spaces in relation to the mainstream construction of thinness, promulgated by, for instance, women's magazines, the author argues that in spite of the media's insistence that pro-ana attitudes are pathological, dangerous and must be censored, they hold the potential to critique that which has long been considered normal: the culture of compulsory thinness.

On the Genealogy of Critique

Or How We Have Become Decadently Indignant

Diana Stypinska, Liverpool Hope University, UK
 Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology

On the Genealogy of Critique intervenes into both the contemporary academic debates on critique and today's mainstream criticism by reflecting upon the relationship between criticality and social change in the age of post-politics. It presents a counter-history of criticism, demonstrating how the modern notion of critical subjectivity embodies an imperative to the securitisation of the status quo. This book is of relevance to anyone concerned with social change. Particularly, it will be of use to academics, postgraduates and advanced undergraduate students working in the areas of Sociology, Politics, Philosophy and Cultural Studies.

Nostalgia Now

Cross-Disciplinary Perspectives on the Past in the Present

Edited by Michael Hviid Jacobsen, Aalborg University, Denmark

Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology

This volume explores the nature of nostalgia as an important emotion in contemporary society and social theory. Situated between the 'sociology of emotions' and 'nostalgia studies', it considers the reasons for which nostalgia appears to be becoming an increasingly significant and debated emotion in late-modern culture. Thematically organised and examining the role of nostalgia on an individual level as well as analysing its function on a more historical social level as a collective and culturally shared emotion Nostalgia Now brings together the latest empirical and theoretical work on an important contemporary emotion and proposes new agendas for research.

Paying for Sex in a Digital Age

US and UK Perspectives

Teela Sanders, University of Leicester, UK, Barbara G. Brents, University of Nevada, USA and Chris Wakefield, University of Nevada, USA

With data drawn from two large surveys of sex workers' clients in the US and UK, this book presents cross cultural examinations of the dynamic market for sexual services over the internet and beyond, making clear that the situational as well as individual factors affect the willingness and ability to purchase sexual services. The emergent evidence based view shatters stereotypes and generalizations on which much policy is based, and demonstrates the complexities surrounding who pays for sex and the contours of sexual consumption in consumer culture.

Postnational Memory, Peace and War

Making Pasts Beyond Borders

Nigel Young, Colgate University, USA

Series: Memory Studies: Global Constellations

This book examines the phenomenon of modern memory as a reaction to total war, an aspiration to truth-seeking provoked by the independent forces of modern war and collective violence which is transnational, or postnational, in character. Using examples from prose and poetry, film and theatre, painting and photography, and music and the popular arts, the author traces a narrative path through the events of the 20th century, defining the tradition of modern memory in terms of its essentially anti-militaristic, anti-war character, as expressed in the manner in which it represents recalled violence and atrocity.

Post-Sixties Narratives as Cultural Criticism

Seeking Radical Change in America

Lin Xiang, Sichuan Normal University, China

With a focus on essays in Dissent magazine, as well as books on American culture by Daniel Bell, and Russell Jacoby, this book examines the cultural criticism led by New York intellectuals from the 1960s onwards, considering the influence of such critique on American collective memory and contemporary public culture. A study of the ways in which narratives can move beyond story-telling to have interpretative and ideological functions as a form of criticism, this book will appeal to scholars of cultural studies and sociology, as well as those working in the fields of linguistics and literary theory.

Post-Human Institutions and Organizations

Confronting the Matrix

Edited by Ismael Al-Amoudi, Cardiff University, UK and Emmanuel Lazega, Institut d'Etudes Politiques de Paris, France

Series: The Future of the Human

This volume explores the social representations and significance of technological developments – especially AI and human enhancement – that have started to transform our human agency. It enriches the ongoing public discussion of the social and political implications of the smart machines by looking at the extent to which they further digitalize and bureaucratize the world, in particular by asking whether they are used to develop techno-totalitarian societies that corrode normativity and solidarity.

Reframing Drag

Beyond Subversion and the Status Quo

Kayte Stokoe, University of Warwick, UK

Series: Routledge Research in Gender and Society

Reframing Drag provides a critical survey of French and Anglo-American, queer and feminist theorizations of drag performance, placing these approaches in a dialogue with contemporary drag practice and the representation of drag in three literary texts. Challenging pervasive assumptions circulating in existing queer and feminist analyses of drag performance, the author contends that an intersectional, trans feminist approach to drag performance can provide richer, more nuanced, understandings of drag, and, unlike the 'opposite sex' narrative, acknowledges the gender diversity at work in current drag scenes.

Remembering German-Australian Colonial Entanglements

Edited by Lars Eckstein, Universität Potsdam, Germany and Andrew Wright Hurley, University of Technology Sydney, Australia

This book emphatically promotes a critical and nuanced understanding of the complex entanglement of German colonial actors and activities within Australian colonial institutions and different imperial ideologies. Case studies foreground the highly ambiguous roles played by explorers, missionaries, intellectuals and other individuals, as well as by objects and things that travelled between worlds. The chapters foreground the complex relationship between science, religion, art and exploitation, displacement and annihilation. Contributors trace how these entanglements have been commemorated or forgotten over time – by Germans, settler-Australians and Indigenous people.

Social Construction and Social Development in Contemporary China

Series: China Perspectives

What is the social structure of Chinese society in the 21st century? How should China address the problem of migrant workers? How can China form a modern society? These key sociological issues are some of the topics this book covers.

Arguing that the gap between economic and social development has become the major social issue facing modern China, the author advocates paying close attention to the country's social structure and the growth of the middle-class.

Social Medicine and the Coming Transformation

Howard Waitzkin, Alina Pérez and Matt Anderson

Students, teachers, practitioners and policy advocates will value this textbook of social medicine, which goes beyond the usual approaches of texts in public health, medical sociology and health policy. The authors draw upon examples worldwide to show how principles based on solidarity and mutual aid have enabled people to construct health-promoting social conditions. The book enhances learners' understanding about promoting health through social and individual means; the micro-politics of medical encounters; the social origins and determinants of illness; the influences of race, class, gender, and ethnicity; health and empire; and health praxis, reform, and sociomedical activism.

Social Stratification and Social Movements

Theoretical and Empirical Perspectives on an Ambivalent Relationship

Edited by Sabrina Zajak, Ruhr-Universität Bochum, Germany and Sebastian Haunss, Universität Bremen, Germany

Series: The Mobilization Series on Social Movements, Protest, and Culture

This volume takes up the question of the connection between social movements and societal structures, addressing the neglect in social movement studies of the role of social stratification as a reason or cause for protest. Exploring the link between protest mobilization and social stratification, it challenges the assumption that with regard to social inequality, social movements are expressions of antagonistic class interests. The book connects social stratification to the emergence of protest, and its impact on the structure of society thus contributing to the development of theory dealing with the evolution and consequences of social movements.

Sociological Theory in the Digital Age

Gabe Ignatow, University of North Texas, USA

This book contributes to several ongoing conversations on how the social sciences can best adapt to contemporary information technologies and information societies. Focusing on practical or 'usable theory,' it surveys the challenges and opportunities of conducting social science in the information age, as well as the theoretical solutions that sociologists have developed and applied over the last two decades. It will appeal to scholars of sociology and social theory with interests in research methods, the development of theory and digital technologies.

State Violence in Nazi Germany

From Kristallnacht to Barbarossa

Emanuel Marx, Tel Aviv University, Israel

Through analyses of three eventful years in Nazi Germany's history, this book offers a new account of the phenomenon of extreme state violence as a special category of violence, in which the armed forces are used unnecessarily and excessively, often on thin pretexts, and only rarely with the intention of carrying a message to the public.

The Black Circuit

Race, Performance, and Spectatorship in Black Popular Theatre

Rashida Z. Shaw McMahon

Series: Sociology Re-Wired

The Black Circuit presents the first book-length study of "Chitlin Circuit" theatre, the most popular and controversial form of black theatre to exist outside the purview of Broadway since the 1980s. Through historical, performance, and sociological research, Rashida Z. Shaw McMahon presents a critical examination of how these alienated African American musical events complicate our contemporary understanding of performance and spectatorship within African American theatre, with specific attention to the theatre of Je' Caryous Johnson and Gary Guidry, David Talbert, Tyler Perry, and the mid-century musicals of Langston Hughes.

Statelessness and Contemporary Enslavement

Jane Anna Gordon

Why have statelessness and contemporary enslavement become endemic since the 1990s? What is it about global political economic policies, protracted warfare, and migration rules and patterns, that have increased these extreme forms of vulnerability?

While the centuries-long practice has taken on a new guise necessary to its profitability in the current global economy, what and who it involves has remained remarkably consistent. This book argues that statelessness and enslavement are not aberrations or radical exceptions. They have been and are endemic to Euromodern state systems.

The Bro Code

The Fallout of Raising Boys to Objectify and Subordinate Women

Thomas Keith

The Bro Code shows that there are numerous sources in boys' and men's lives teach them to view women as less important than themselves and as sexual objects. These sources include fathers and other male family members, coaches, and a vast array of media that depict women as primarily having value through sexuality. The fallout of raising boys to view women this way is the continuation of highly progressive-resistant forms of patriarchy that contribute to everything from the glass ceilings in professional life with which women contend to the high rates of physical and sexual assault that permeate society.

The Appeal of Art in Modernity

Michael Symonds

Series: Classical and Contemporary Social Theory

This book explores the place of art in the modern world. Engaging with a broad range of theory, the author draws on the thought of Max Weber to offer an account of art's widespread appeal in terms of its constituting a self-contained value-sphere of meaning, which provides a feeling of tremendous salvation from the senseless routines of modern life. The book recasts major theories on aesthetics in philosophy and sociology and gives fresh answers to fundamental questions concerning the relation of art to politics and ethics, while showing how art came to be regarded as one of the last bastions of freedom and the highest human achievement.

The Communicative Construction of Reality

Hubert Knoblauch, Technische Universität Berlin, Germany

Series: Knowledge, Communication and Society

This volume advocates a shift from the social constructivism of Luckmann and Berger to a communicative constructivism that acknowledges communication as a form of action in its own right, which constructs a social reality that guides, delimits and enables actions. A study of the importance of understanding the role of communication in an age in which digitisation and mediatisation have extended the reach of communication to a global level, this book shows how the communication society does not merely replace modern society and its hierarchical institutions, but complements it in a manner that continually results in conflicts.

The Field of Water Policy

Power and Scarcity in the American Southwest

Franck Poupeau, UMI iGLOBES, CNRS/University of Arizona, Tucson, USA, Brian F. O'Neill, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, USA, Joan Cortinas Muñoz, University of Arizona, USA, Murielle Coeurdray, University of Arizona, USA and Eliza Benites-Gambirazio, University of Arizona, USA

Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology

This book offers a new approach to environmental problems. Bringing the tools of Bourdieu's field sociology to bear on a moment of environmental crisis with a study of the logics of water policy in the American Southwest, it reveals the contest over the management of scarce resources in a context of lasting drought and analyses the dynamic influences on water management and the social and institutional forces that orient water and conservation policies. As such, it will appeal to scholars of sociology and geography with interests in the environment and the management of natural resources.

The Portable Community

Place and Displacement in Bluegrass Festival Life

Robert Owen Gardner, Linfield College, USA

Series: Interactionist Currents

This book explores the various ways in which individuals use music and culture to understand and respond to changes in their natural and built environments. Drawing on over fifteen years of ethnographic fieldwork, interviews and participant observation, the author develops the thesis that the relationships, networks, and intimate forms of social interaction in the 'portable' community cultivated at bluegrass festival events are significant cultural formations that shape participants' relationships to their localities. This volume will appeal to scholars of sociology with interests in symbolic interactionism, the sociology of music, culture and the sociology of disaster.

The Routledge International Handbook of Perpetrator Studies

Edited by Susanne C. Knittel, Utrecht University, The Netherlands and Zachary J. Goldberg, Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität Munich, Germany

Series: Routledge International Handbooks

The Routledge International Handbook of Perpetrator Studies traces the growth an important interdisciplinary field, its foundations, key debates and core concerns, as well as highlighting current and emerging issues and approaches and pointing to new directions for enquiry. With a focus on the perpetrators of mass killings, political violence and genocide, it is concerned with a range of issues relating to the figure of the perpetrator, from questions of definition, typology, and conceptual analysis, to the study of motivations and group dynamics to questions of guilt and responsibility, as well as representation and memory politics.

The Tumultuous Politics of Scale

Unsettled States, Migrants, Movements in Flux

Edited by Donald M. Nonini and Ida Susser

Contemporary politics, this book contends, depend upon the turbulent struggles and strategies around scale. Conflicts over scale can be seen as opaque class struggles. Political projects, whether from the ground up or representing corporate or state interests, continually contest the scale at which authority is vested. This volume looks at the way global corporations redefine the scale of power and how working class and other movements build alliances and cross scales to develop political blocs. Contributions from interdisciplinary perspectives explore theoretical issues around contested temporal and spatial scales, and around variations in scale from the body to the global.

Universal Basic Income

Brian McDonough and Jessie Bustillos Morales, London Metropolitan University, UK

Series: Key Ideas

Universal basic income is a controversial policy which is causing a stir amongst academics, politicians, journalists and policy makers all over the world. The idea of receiving 'money for nothing', with no strings attached, has for a long time appeared a crazy or radical proposal. But today, this policy is being put into practice. With more and more trials and experiments taking place in different countries, this book provides both the theory and context for making sense of different basic income approaches, examining how the policy can be best implemented. This book is an essential resource for anyone who wishes to get to grips with universal basic income.

Urban Change and Citizenship in Times of Crisis

Volume 1: Concepts and Theory

Edited by Bryan Turner, Australian Catholic University, Australia, Hannah Wolf, Gregor Fitzi, Bielefeld University, Germany and Juergen Mackert, University of Potsdam, Germany

Series: Citizenship and Modern Society

Composed around the question whether there can be such a thing as a 'successful city', this volume addresses issues of urban political subjectivities by considering the city's role in historical processes of emancipation, the fight for citizenship rights, and today's challenges and opportunities with regard to promoting social justice, integration, and diversity. Consequentially, theory-driven empirical analyses offer new insight into ways of solving problems in urban contexts and a genuine approach to analyse the Social Quality in cities.

Urban Change and Citizenship in Times of Crisis

Volume 2: Changing Cities and Citizens' Action

Edited by Bryan Turner, Australian Catholic University, Australia, Hannah Wolf, Gregor Fitzi, Bielefeld University, Germany and Juergen Mackert, University of Potsdam, Germany

Series: Citizenship and Modern Society

The contributions to Urban Neo-liberalisation bring together critical analyses of the dynamics and processes neo-liberalism has facilitated in urban contexts. Against the backdrop of recent austerity politics and a marketisation of cities, this volume discusses processes of urban neo-liberalisation with regard to democracy and citizenship, inclusion and exclusion, opportunities and life chances. It addresses pressing issues of commodification of housing and home, activation of civil society, vulnerability and the right to the city.

Urban Change and Citizenship in Times of Crisis

3 Volume Set

Edited by Bryan Turner, Australian Catholic University, Australia, Hannah Wolf, Gregor Fitzi, Bielefeld University, Germany and Juergen Mackert, University of Potsdam, Germany

This three-volume collection explores the most pressing questions relating to the current development of urban environments. It provides an overarching consideration of the interconnection between neoliberal city restructuring processes and citizenship. As such, it will appeal to sociologists, urban geographers and scholars of urban studies with interests in the transformation of citizenship and cities.

Urban Change and Citizenship in Times of Crisis

Volume 3: Citizenship, Human Rights and Religion

Edited by Bryan Turner, Australian Catholic University, Australia, Hannah Wolf, Gregor Fitzi, Bielefeld University, Germany and Juergen Mackert, University of Potsdam, Germany

The contributions gathered in this volume shed light on the clash between the perspectives of restructuring and re-ordering urban environments in the interest of investors and the manifold and innovative agencies of resistance that claim and stand up for the rights of urban citizenship. The case-studies of the volume comparatively show the different and sometimes contradictory patterns of these conflicts in Berlin, Sydney, Belfast, Jerusalem, Amsterdam and Istanbul as well as in metropolises of Latin America and China. Innovative resistance agencies emerge that paint possible paths for the re-establishment of the right to the city as the core of urban citizenship.

Welfare and the Welfare State

Central Issues Now and in the Future

Bent Greve, Roskilde University, Denmark

This book provides an overview of the central concepts in the light of a state, market and civil society lenses. It also provides the reader with knowledge on distribution in societies and how this interacts and influences different groups and their position in society. There are also chapters dealing specifically with central sectors in the welfare states such as health, long-term care and education. The book uses a comparative approach as this better enables one to understand one's own country welfare, as well as helping to underline and see the linkages to the impact of global and regional issues on welfare states and their development.
