Our history

Over two centuries ago, the foundations of the company were laid in pioneering fashion when in 1798 Richard Taylor launched the Philosophical Magazine, one of the first scientific journals produced by an independent company. It was the start of much close collaboration with scholarly societies. Dr William Francis, a chemist, joined Richard Taylor in 1852 and continued the tradition of the close links between the academic community and the company.

Today, we continue to be fully committed to the publication of academic and scholarly information of the highest quality and this remains our primary goal.

Taylor & Francis has grown rapidly to become a leading international, academic publisher. With offices across the globe, the Taylor & Francis Group now publishes more than 2,200 journals and over 5,200 new books each year; with a books backlist in excess of 110,000 specialist titles.

Prices featured are correct at time of going to press but are subject to change without notice.

Book orders should be addressed to the Taylor & Francis Customer Services Department at Bookpoint, or the appropriate overseas agent.

Bioviolence

How the Powers That Be Make Us Do What They Want

William Watkin, Brunel University London, UK

This book explores and exposes the many aspects of contemporary biopower and bioviolence: neglect, exclusion, surveillance, regulation, encampment, trolling, fake news, terrorism and war. As it does so it demonstrates that the very term 'violence' is a discursive construct, an effect of language, made real by our behaviours, embodied by our institutions, and dissemination by our technologies. In short, bioviolence is how the contemporary powers that be make us do what they want. Resolutely inter-disciplinary, this book is suitable for all scholars, students and general readers in the fields of IR, political theory, philosophy, the humanities, sociology and journalism.

Living Technology

Philosophy and Ethics at the Crossroads Between Life and Technology

Armin Grunwald

The book addresses the understanding of the ongoing dissolution of the life/technology borders, the provision of ethical guidance for navigating research and innovation responsibly, and the philosophical reflection on the meaning of the current shifts. It presents a comprehensive look at the entire spectrum of living organisms—bacteria and viruses, plants, animals and humans—and robots as possible early forms of emerging technical life.

Europe: A Philosophical History, Part 1

The Promise of Modernity

Simon Glendinning, London School of Economics, UK

In the two volumes of Europe: A Philosophical History Simon Glendinning tells the story of Europe's history as a philosophical history.

In Part 1, The Promise of Modernity, Glendinning examines the conception of Europe that links it to ideas of rational Enlightenment and modernity. Tracking this self-understanding in the writings of Kant, Hegel and Marx, he explores the transition in Europe from a modernity that was philosophical and religious to one which was philosophical and scientific. While this transition profoundly altered Europe's own history, Glendinning shows how its self-confident core remained intact in this development.

Adam Smith

Samuel Fleischacker, University of Illinois at Chicago, USA

Series: The Routledge Philosophers

Adam Smith is widely regarded as the founder of political economy and one of the great thinkers of the Enlightenment. Best-known for The Wealth of Nations, Smith engaged equally with the nature of morality, above all in his Theory of Moral Sentiments.

This book is an outstanding philosophical introduction to the full range of Smith's thought. Including chapter summaries, suggestions for further reading and a glossary, Adam Smith is essential reading for those studying ethics, political philosophy, the history of philosophy, and the Enlightenment, as well as those reading Smith in related disciplines such as economics, law and religion.

Europe: A Philosophical History, Part 2

Beyond Modernity

Simon Glendinning, London School of Economics, UK

In the two volumes of Europe: A Philosophical History Simon Glendinning tells the story of Europe's history as a philosophical history.

In the wake of two world wars, Europe's promise of universal peace, freedom and well-being lay in ruins. In Part 2, Beyond Modernity, Glendinning invites us to affirm a new philosophical-historical self-understanding: not the history of the rational animal on the way to its final end, with Europe at the head, but a history of the unpredictably self-transforming animal without a final end. Glendinning argues that Europe remains promising, its cosmopolitan heritage opening a future beyond its exhausted modernity.

2nd Edition • TEXTBOOK • READER

Philosophy of Perception

A Contemporary Introduction

William Fish, Massey University, New Zealand

Series: Routledge Contemporary Introductions to Philosophy

Fish introduces the subject thematically, setting out theories of perception with their motivations and problems. While providing historical background to debates in the field, this comprehensive overview focuses on recent presentations and defenses of the theories, and looks beyond visual perception to take into account the role of other senses. The 2nd edition is restructured into two parts: part 1 covers philosophical theories of perception, part 2 key topics and issues in perception from philosophy, cognitive science, and psychology. Includes two new chapters: on color and color vision, and on the interaction between sense modalities.

James Jakób Liszka

Series: Routledge Studies in American Philosophy

This book presents a comprehensive and systematic picture of Peirce's ethics and aesthetics, arguing that Peirce established a normative framework for the study of right conduct and good ends. It also connects Peirce's normative thought to contemporary debates in ethical theory. Once aesthetics has determined what makes an end worthy and admirable, and ethics determines which are good and right to pursue, logical and scientific reasoning is employed to figure the most likely means to attain those ends. In the process, Peirce develops an interesting theory of moral motivation, an account of moral reasoning, moral truth, and a picture of what constitutes a moral community.

Spectators, Legislators, Hopes, and Evils

Pavlos Kontos, University of Patras, Greece

This book offers a new account of Aristotle's practical philosophy. Kontos argues that Aristotle does not restrict practical reason to its action-guiding role; rather, practical reason remains practical even when its exercise does not immediately concern the guidance of our present actions. To elucidate why this wider scope of practical reason is important, Kontos brings into the foreground five protagonists that have long been overlooked: spectators or judges, legislators, hopes, prayers, and outsiders. He offers new insights about Aristotle's philosophical contribution to debates about radical evil, moral luck, hope, utopia, internalism and externalism, and the philosophy of law.

Edited by Christopher Badura, Ruhr University Bochum, Germany and Amy Kind, Claremont McKenna College, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This book explores how imagination can be put to epistemic use. More specifically, the contributors address ways in which our imaginings must be constrained so as to justify beliefs and give rise to knowledge. The essays in this volume explore several different contexts in which imagination is appealed to for justification, namely reasoning, modal epistemology, thought experiments, and knowledge of self and others. Together, they explain when and how imagination can be epistemically useful, and outline certain contexts where imagination is used epistemically.

Essays on the Philosophy of Kendall L. Walton

Edited by Sonia Sedivy, University of Toronto Scarborough, Canada

Series: Routledge Research in Aesthetics

This is the first collection of essays focused on the many faceted work of Kendall L. Walton. Walton provides a comprehensive framework for understanding the arts in terms of the human capacity of make-believe that shows how different arts—visual, photographic, musical, literary or poetic—can be explained in terms of complex structures of pretense, perception, imagining, empathy and emotion. His ground-breaking work has been taken beyond aesthetics to address foundational issues concerning linguistic and scientific representations—for example about the nature of scientific modelling or to explain how what we say is mostly quite different from the literal meanings of our words.

Consequentialism, Action-Guidance, and the Perspective-Dependence of Moral Duties

Vuko Andrić, University of Bayreuth, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Ethics and Moral Theory

This book develops an original version of act-consequentialism. It argues that act-consequentialists should adopt a subjective criterion of rightness. The book develops new arguments which strongly suggest that, according to the best version of act-consequentialism, the rightness of actions depends on expected rather than actual value. Its findings go beyond the debate about consequentialism and touch on important debates in normative ethics and metaethics.

Global Epistemologies and Philosophies of Science

Edited by David Ludwig, Wageningen University and Research, Netherlands, Inkeri Koskinen, Tampere University, Finland, Zinhle Mncube, University of Johannesburg, South Africa, Luana Polisele, Konrad Lorenz Institute for Evolution and Cognition Research (KLI), Austria and Luis Reyes-Galindo, Independent Researcher
Series: History and Philosophy of Biology

In bringing together a global community of philosophers, Global Epistemologies and Philosophies of Science develops novel perspectives on epistemology and philosophy of science by demonstrating how frameworks from academic philosophy (e.g. standpoint theory, social epistemology, feminist philosophy of science) and related fields (e.g. decolonial studies, transdisciplinarity, global history of science) can contribute to critical engagement with global dimensions of knowledge and science.

Information and the History of Philosophy

Edited by Chris Meyns, Utrecht University, The Netherlands
Series: Rewriting the History of Philosophy

This is the first comprehensive investigation of the history of philosophical questions around information, from the classical period to the twenty-first century, and is a landmark publication in what is an emerging field. Organised into five clear parts, nineteen chapters by an international team of contributors cover all the key topics.

Essential reading for students and researchers in the history of philosophy, philosophy of science and technology, and library and information studies. It is also a valuable resource for those working in subjects such as the history of science, media and communication studies, and intellectual history.

Innateness and Cognition

M. J. Cain, Oxford Brookes University, UK

The question of innateness, or nativism, is one of the most heated problems in philosophy, reaching as far back as Plato but generating fierce debates in contemporary philosophy and psychology. Is the mind at birth a blank slate, as John Locke thought? Which aspects of the mind are innate and which are the products of experience? Is it a question of 'nature or nurture'?

Innateness and Cognition is a much-needed overview of this important problem and an excellent resource for those studying and researching in philosophy of psychology and philosophy of mind, as well as those interested in conceptual issues in linguistics.

Moral Enhancement and the Public Good

Parker Crutchfield

Crutchfield argues the controversial claim that everyone should be administered a substance that makes us better people. Furthermore, he argues that it should be administered without our knowledge. That is, moral bioenhancement should be both compulsory and covert. His claim is that our duty to future generations and our epistemic inability to promote the public good highlight the need for compulsory, covert moral bioenhancement. This not only gives us the best chance of preventing widespread suffering, it also best promotes liberty, autonomy, and equality. In a final chapter, he addresses the most salient objections to his argument.

Philosophy of Improvisation

Interdisciplinary Perspectives on Theory and Practice

Edited by Susanne Ravn, University of Southern Denmark, Simon Høffding, University of Oslo, Norway and James McGuirk, Nord University, Norway

Series: Routledge Research in Aesthetics

This volume brings together philosophical and interdisciplinary perspectives on improvisation. The contributions connect the theoretical dimensions of improvisation with different viewpoints on its practice in the arts and the classroom. Drawing on recent work done in the philosophy of mind, they also address questions such as whether improvisation is a single unified phenomenon, or whether it entails different senses. Finally, they ask after the special kind of improvisational expertise which characterizes musicians, dancers, and other practitioners, an expertise marked by the artist's ability to participate competently in complex situations while deliberately relinquishing control.

Political Philosophy from an Intercultural Perspective

Power Relations in a Global World

Edited by Bianca Boteva-Richter, University of Vienna, Austria, Sarhan Dhouib, University of Hildesheim, Germany and James Garrison, Baldwin Wallace University, USA
Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This book encourages reflection on the relationship between power and non-power in the contemporary political world. It sheds light on issues like migration, human rights violations, political power's effect on discourse, global poverty, power asymmetries, and experiences of injustice, with the goal of offering a particularly intercultural analysis of these problems along with approaches to resolving them. Featuring contributors from Africa, Asia, Eastern and Western Europe, Latin America, and the U.S., the book connects a global, normative analysis of power with local traditions of thought, resulting in an innovative treatment of the philosophical-political problems of our times.

Practical Wisdom

Philosophical and Psychological Perspectives

Edited by Mario De Caro, University Roma Tre, Italy and Maria Silvia Vaccarezza, University of Genova, Italy
Series: Routledge Studies in Ethics and Moral Theory

This volume investigates and rethinks the role of practical wisdom in light of the most recent developments in virtue theory and moral, social and developmental psychology. The essays contribute to the debate about practical wisdom by elucidating its role in empirical psychology and advancing important new research questions. They address various topics related to practical wisdom and its development, including honesty, ecocentric phronesis, social cognitive theory, practical wisdom in limited-information contexts, Whole Trait Theory, skill models, the reciprocity of virtue, and challenges from situationism.

The Legacy of Nietzsche's Philosophy of Laughter

Bataille, Deleuze, and Rosset

Lydia Amir, Tufts University, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Twentieth-Century Philosophy

This book investigates the role of humor in the good life, specifically as discussed by three prominent French intellectuals who were influenced by Nietzsche's thought: Bataille, Deleuze, and Rosset. Amir begins by discussing Nietzsche's reception in France, and she explains why and how he came to be considered a "philosopher of laughter" in the French academe. Subsequent chapters explore the complex relationship between the comic and the tragic, and of humor and laughter to irony, satire, and ridicule. This book illuminates the philosophies of these three thinkers, their connection to Nietzsche, and, overall, the significant role that humor plays in philosophy.

Skeptical Invariantism Reconsidered

Edited by Christos Kyriacou, University of Cyprus and Kevin Wallbridge, University of Cyprus

Series: Routledge Studies in Epistemology

This collection of original essays explores the topic of skeptical invariantism in theory of knowledge. It eschews historical perspectives and focuses on this traditionally underexplored, semantic characterization of skepticism. The book provides a carefully structured, state-of-the-art overview of skeptical invariantism and offers up new questions and avenues for future research. It treats this semantic form of skepticism as a serious position rather than assuming that skepticism is false and attempting to diagnose where arguments for skepticism go wrong.

The Politics of Human Life

Rethinking Subjectivity

Piergiorgio Donatelli

Through a discussion of the intimate human spheres of reproduction, dying and sexuality, Piergiorgio Donatelli argues that we now live in a world characterised by new ways of living: by novel rearrangements of emotions, and by the modification, and in some cases a radical rupture in, existing ideas of human life.

Engaging pressing contemporary themes, this book will be invaluable to scholars in the fields of ethics, law and political theory, and both analytic and continental philosophy.

The Husserlian Mind

Edited by Hanne Jacobs, Tilburg University, The Netherlands

Series: Routledge Philosophical Minds

Edmund Husserl is regarded as a principal founder of phenomenology. The Husserlian Mind is an outstanding reference source to the full range of Husserl's philosophy. Forty chapters by a team of international contributors are divided into seven clear parts: Husserl's major works; Husserl's phenomenological method; phenomenology of consciousness; epistemology; ethics and social and political philosophy; science; and metaphysics.

Offering an unparalleled guide to the enormous range of his thought, this book is essential reading for students and scholars of Husserl, phenomenology, and the history of twentieth-century philosophy.

The Psychological Basis of Moral Judgments

Philosophical and Empirical Approaches to Moral Relativism

John J. Park, California State University, USA

Series: Routledge Research in Psychology

This volume examines the psychological basis of moral judgments and asks what theories of concepts apply to moral concepts. By combining philosophical reasoning and empirical insights from the fields of moral psychology, cognitive science, evolutionary psychology, and neuroscience, it considers what mental states not only influence, but also constitute our moral concepts and judgments. This powerfully argued text will be of interest to researchers, academics, and educators with an interest in cognitive science, moral theory, philosophy of psychology, and moral psychology more broadly. Those interested in social psychology and moral development will also benefit from the volume.

The Right to Know

Epistemic Rights and Why We Need Them

Lani Watson, University of Edinburgh, UK

Series: Routledge Focus on Philosophy

This book provides the first comprehensive examination of the right to know and other epistemic rights: rights to goods such as information, knowledge, and truth. These rights play a prominent role in our information-centric society and yet they often go unnoticed, disregarded and unprotected. As such, those who control what we know, or think we know, exert an influence on our lives that is often as dangerous as it is imperceptible. Beginning with a rigorous but accessible philosophical account of epistemic rights, Lani Watson examines the harms caused by epistemic rights violations, drawing on case studies across medical, political and legal contexts.

What is Thinking?

And Other Philosophical Reflections

Saitya Brata Das

The philosophical essays of this collection argue, each time from a singular perspective, that the task of thinking is to release the element of the unconditional from various closures, and thus to make it manifest as the true and the essential task of our individual and social existence. Naming this unconditional element as the "messianic", the book displays the profound ethico-political significance of messianic thought for our contemporary world.

The Social Institution of Discursive Norms

Historical, Naturalistic, and Pragmatic Perspectives

Edited by Leo Townsend, University of Vienna, Austria, Preston Stovall, Montana State University, USA and Hans Bernhard Schmid, University of Vienna, Austria

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This book explores the idea that discursive norms—the norms governing our thought and talk—are profoundly social. Not only do these norms govern and structure of social interactions, but they are sustained by a variety of social and institutional structures. The chapters offer historical perspectives on discursive norms, examine the sociality of normativity from within a broadly naturalistic framework, and discuss linguistic phenomena such as online speech acts, oppressive speech, and assertions.

Virtues, Democracy, and Online Media

Ethical and Epistemic Issues

Edited by Nancy E. Snow, University of Oklahoma, USA and Maria Silvia Vaccarezza, University of Genova, Italy

Series: Routledge Studies in Ethics and Moral Theory

The spread of post-truth communication affects ordinary citizens' commitment to truth and attitudes toward information sources, threatening the promotion of democratic ideals in public debate. This volume investigate the importance of helping citizens improve the quality of their online agency and raise awareness of the risks social media poses to democratic values. The book moves from two initial chapters that provide historical background and overview of the present post-truth malaise, through a series of chapters that feature mainly diagnostic accounts of the epistemic and ethical issues we face, to the complexities of virtue-theoretic analyses of specific virtues and vices.

Archaeology of Religion in South Asia

Buddhist, Brahmanical and Jaina Religious Centres in Bihar and Bengal, c. AD 600–1200

Birendra Nath Prasad

Through an analysis of the published archaeological data, this work explores some aspects of the social history of Buddhist, Brahmanical and Jaina temples and shrines, and Buddhist stūpas and monasteries in early medieval Bihar and Bengal. This archaeological history of religions questions many 'established' textual reconstructions, and enriches our understanding of the complex issue of the decline of Buddhism in this area.

Religion and Social Protest Movements

Tobin Miller Shearer

What role has religion played in social protest movements? This book examines how activists have used religious resources such as liturgy, prayer, song and vestments with a focus on global case studies. Prayer as a sacred act is usually associated with piety and pacifism, however it can be argued that those who pray in public while protesting are more likely to encounter violence. Drawing on journalistic accounts, participant reflections, and secondary literature, Shearer offers both historical and theoretical perspectives on the persistent correlation of the use of public prayer with an increase in conflict and violence.

Latina Lives, Latina Narratives

Influential Essays by Vicki L. Ruiz

Edited by Miroslava Chávez-García

This book brings together the most influential and widely known writings of Vicki L. Ruiz. For nearly forty years, Ruiz has produced scholarship that has provided the foundation for a rich and nuanced understanding of the ways in which Chicanas and Latinas negotiate the structures impinging on their everyday lives. The articles reflect the evolution of Ruiz's intellectual contributions as well as her commitment to integrating feminist history, theory, and methodology, and show how she has generously offered insights, reflections, and humor in helping us define and shape who we are. It fulfills a much-needed demand in the teaching of women's, Chicana/o, Latina/o, and labor history.

No Free Speech for Fascists

Exploring 'No Platform' in History, Law and Politics

David Renton, Independent Scholar, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Fascism and the Far Right

No Free Speech for Fascists explores the choice of anti-fascist protesters to demand that the opportunities for fascists to speak in public places is rescinded, as a question of history, law, and politics. It explains how the demand to No Platform fascists emerged in 1970s Britain, as a limited exception to a left-wing tradition of support for free speech. This book will be of interest to activists and to those studying and researching political history, law, free speech, the far right, and anti-fascism. It sets out a philosophy of anti-fascism for a social media age.

Sites of the Dictators

Memories of Authoritarian Europe, 1945–2020

Xosé M. Núñez Seixas

This book explores the changing evolution of memory debates on places intimately linked to the lives and death of different fascist, para-fascist and communist dictators in a truly transnational and comparative way. Using the concept of 'sites of the dictators', the author explains why it is so difficult to deal with some sites of memory linked to dead autocrats and discusses the potential of the 'Europeanization' of these 'dark' memories of the past. Exploring the imperatives of memory politics and how these are reconciled with local actors interested in exploiting the dictator's remembrance, it will be useful reading for students and scholars of history, politics and memory studies.

The Renaissance

Alison M. Brown

Series: Seminar Studies

The Renaissance, now in its third edition, engages with earlier and current debates about the Renaissance, especially concerning its 'modernity', its elitism and gender-bias, and its globalism. Brown provides a fresh insight into some of the main themes of the Renaissance, with humanism now being explored in relation to gender, the position of women, and the response of religious reformers to the new ideas. Key themes, such as humanism, art and architecture, Renaissance theatre, and the invention of printing, are illustrated with quotations and exempla, making this book an invaluable source for students of the Renaissance, early modern history, and social and cultural

Fu Jin and Yanwen Sun

Series: China Perspectives

This volume examines national policies developed for the culture industry and practice of Chinese theatre from 1949 to the period of the "Great Leap Forward". The author highlights the tension between the new nation's principle of "letting one hundred flowers bloom" and the theatrical industry as a tool for ideological propaganda. He argues that the transition from war-time conditions to the new social structure of peace time was far from thorough and stable.

The British and Bihar

Peter Robb, Emeritus Professor, SOAS South Asia Institute, London, UK

This book looks at agriculture, development, poverty and British rule in India, especially in the Patna Division in Bihar between c.1870–1920. It traces the economic influence of British policies and maps the impact of legal, administrative and scientific interventions to rural conditions and norms in the state. The book discusses British theories and policies of 'improvement', comparing them with Bihar's agricultural practice and socio-economic conditions to draw conclusions about rural impoverishment. It further examines the economic role of governments, Eurocentric development theories and the complex impact of development policy on agriculture and society in Bihar.

Civilian-Driven Violence and the Genocide of Indigenous Peoples in Settler Societies

Edited by Mohamed Adhikari, University of Cape Town, South Africa

Existing studies of settler colonial genocides explicitly consider the roles of metropolitan and colonial states, and their military forces in the perpetration of exterminatory violence in settler colonial situations, yet rarely pay specific attention to the dynamics around civilian-driven mass violence against indigenous peoples. In many cases, however, civilians were major, if not the main, perpetrators of such violence. The focus of this book is thus on the role of civilians as perpetrators of exterminatory violence and on those elements within settler colonial situations that promoted mass violence on their part.

Edmond Fleg and Jewish Minority Culture in Twentieth-Century France

Sally Charnow, Hofstra University, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in the Modern History of France

The first critical biography of the leading French writer, Edmond Fleg (1874-1963), this book explores his role in forging a modern French Jewish identity before and after the Second World War. This account is both individual and social, pointing to the ways in which Fleg acted within the possibilities and constraints of his milieu and used his writing to engage with and shape the discursive fabric of twentieth-century French culture. It appeals to scholars who work on modern France, Jewish Studies, and those who focus on issues of identity and difference, as well as a more general audience interested in Modern France and/or modern Jewish history.

Experiences of War in Europe and the Americas, 1792–1815

Soldiers, Slaves, and Civilians

Edited by Mark Lawrence, University of Kent, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern History

This work seeks to offer a new way of viewing the French Wars of 1792–1815. It shows how the unprecedented mobilisation of this era forged a generation of soldiers and civilians sharing a common experience of suffering, bequeathing the West with a new veteran sensibility. Ranging across Europe, North and South America and the Caribbean, this book reveals the adventure and suffering confronting ordinary soldiers campaigning in Europe and the Americas, and the burdens imposed on civilians enduring rising and falling empires across the West. It also reveals how the wars liberated slaves, serfs and common people through revolutions and insurgencies.

Family History and Historians in Australia and New Zealand

Related Histories

Edited by Malcolm Allbrook, Australian National University, Australia and Sophie Scott-Brown, University of East Anglia, UK

Series: Routledge Approaches to History

This collection is about the emerging relationship between family history and the discipline of history, and the potential of each to revitalise the other. In Anglo-Western culture, the roots of the discipline's professionalisation lay in efforts to cast history as objective knowledge, to extend its subject matter, to enlarge the scale of historical inquiry. Family history, almost by definition, is often inescapably personal and localised. How have Australian and New Zealand historians responded to this resurgence of interest in the personal and the local, and how has it influenced the thought and practice of historical inquiry?

Histories of Surveillance from Antiquity to the Digital Era

The Eyes and Ears of Power

Edited by Andreas Marklund and Laura Skouvig, University of Copenhagen, Denmark

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern History

Deploying empirical studies spanning from early Imperial China to the global security landscape after the Nine-Eleven terrorist attacks, seventeen scholars from across the globe offers a comprehensive overview of the history of surveillance that sheds new light on the hidden mechanisms of power that impels surveillance as societal phenomenon, past, present and future. The contexts are political, social, economic and within the world of business.

Labour and Economic Change in Southern Africa c.1900-2000

Zimbabwe, Zambia and Malawi

Rory Pilosof and Andrew Cohen

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern History

This book explores the social and economic development of Zimbabwe, Zambia and Malawi over the course of the twentieth century. The different economic models and performances of these states offer good comparison, allowing researchers to look at different models of development, and how these played out over the long-term. The book provides data on population growth and change, industrial and occupational structure, and the various shifts in what the economically active population did. It will be useful for historians, economists, development studies scholars and non-governmental organisations working on twentieth-century and contemporary southern Africa.

National History and New Nationalism in the Twenty-First Century

A Global Comparison

Edited by Niels F. May, German Historical Institute, France and Thomas Maissen, Deutsches Historisches Institut Paris, France

Series: Routledge Approaches to History

National history has once again become a battleground in fields such as popular culture, museums, schoolbooks, and memorial politics. The narratives of new nationalism are similar in most countries. Unlike in earlier forms, the main enemies no longer are neighboring states, but international and supranational institutions. To profit from national history as an integrative tool, new nationalists claim that the media and the history curricula in schools should not contest or question the nation and its great historical deeds. This book gives a broad international overview of the rise of renewed national historical narratives and the way professional historians react to them.

Memories of the Japanese Empire

Comparison of the Colonial and Decolonisation Experiences in Taiwan and Nan'yo-gunto

Edited by Yuko Mio, Keio University, Japan

Series: Routledge Studies in the Modern History of Asia

The contributors to this book examine and compare the colonial and decolonisation experiences of people in Taiwan and Nan'yo Guntō - Micronesia - who underwent periods of rule by the Greater Japanese Empire.

How did these ruled nations construct their cultural and historical awareness in areas where the strategic design of Japan's "civilising mission" was not convincing? How did Japan's reign affect the formation of historical awareness and cultural construction of present day communities in these two regions?

The fascinating ethnographic insight offered will be of great interest to historical anthropologists of Taiwan, Japan and the Pacific.

Mirror of the World

Literature, Maps, and Geographic Writing in Late Medieval and Early Modern England

Meg Roland

Tracing English geographical thought through the material culture of literary and popular texts, this study provides evidence for the reception and transmission of Ptolemaic-based geography in England during a critical period of geographic innovation. With evidence from prose romance, book illustration, theatrical performance, cosmological ceilings, and almanacs, this book proposes a new, interdisciplinary literary and cartographic history of the influence of Ptolemaic geography in England, one that reveals the lively integration of geographic concepts through narrative and non-cartographic visual forms.

Political Economy and Imperial Governance in Eighteenth-Century Britain

Heather Welland, Binghamton University, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Eighteenth-Century Cultures and Societies

This book examines the relationship between imperial governance and political economy in eighteenth-century Britain, particularly in Canada and Ireland. It focuses on the ways in which economic thought was generated in moments of imperial crisis, especially those manifesting tensions between economic growth, political authority, and social stability. It highlights the way extra-parliamentary interests facilitated, and were co-opted into, strategies of governance and commercial regulation.

Politics and the Slavic Languages

Tomasz Kamusella, St. Andrew's University, United Kingdom
Series: Routledge Histories of Central and Eastern Europe

During the last two centuries, ethnolinguistic nationalism has been the norm of nation and state-building in central Europe. In the current age of borderless cyberspace, regional and minority Slavic languages are freely standardized and used, even when not officially recognized. As a result, the number of Slavic languages has varied widely from a single Slavic language to as many as 40. This timely book illustrates that decisions on what counts as a language are neither permanent nor stable, arguing that the politics of language equates politics in central Europe. It is an essential resource for scholars of linguistics and politics in Central Europe.

Rio de Janeiro in the Global Meat Market, c. 1850 to c. 1930

How Fresh and Salted Meat Arrived at the Carioca Table

Maria-Aparecida Lopes, California State University, Fresno, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of the Americas

This book examines the meat provision system of Rio de Janeiro from the 1850s to the 1930s. Rio was Brazil's political center, main industrial city, and prime consumer market. Meat consumption was an indicator of living standards and a matter of public concern. The work unveils that in the late nineteenth century, the city was well supplied with red meat. Initially, dwellers relied mostly on salted meat; then, in the latter decades of the 1800s, the municipal centralization of fresh meat processing and distribution made its provision regular and predictable. This study examines these developments in light of national and global developments in the livestock and meat industries.

Sovereignty and the Denial of International Equality

Writing Civilisational Difference in Early Modern International Relations

Xavier Mathieu, Aston University, UK

Series: Interventions

This book asks whether sovereignty can guarantee international equality by exploring the discourses of sovereignty and their reliance on the notions of civilisation and savagery in two historical colonial encounters: the French explorations of Canada in the 16th century and the domestic troubles linked to the Wars of Religion. Representing a major intervention in the existing IR debates about sovereignty, this book will be a valuable resource for researchers working on issues of sovereignty and equality in IR.

Sartorial Practices and Social Order in Eighteenth-Century Sweden

Fashioning Difference

Mikael Alm, Uppsala University, Sweden

Series: Routledge Studies in Eighteenth-Century Cultures and Societies

In early modern societies, the interplay between sartorial practices and social order was complex and contested. This book approaches this complexity by bringing together social culture with contemporary notions of order and difference, sartorial culture with notions of right and wrong in matters of clothing, and visual culture with notions of legibility and differentiation in dress. Departing from a public prize competition on the introduction of a national dress in Sweden in 1773, the study opens a window onto the sartorial world of the age of revolutions.

Sun Yatsen, Robert Wilcox and Their Failed Revolutions, Honolulu and Canton 1895

Dynamite on the Tropic of Cancer

Patrick Anderson, Queen Mary University of London, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern History

This is a radical re-examination of the "Father of Modern China" Dr. Sun Yatsen's globally-shaped formation as a professional revolutionist, and of the impact of the adult Sun's revolutionary relationship with Hawai'i and with his communities of supporters there during its own most turbulent political decade, the 1890s. Dynamite reveals the hitherto untold story of the secret revolutionary alliance forged between Sun's Xingzhonghui and Robert Wilcox, leader of the Kanaka/Native Hawaiian counterrevolution of January 1895. This failed native uprising became the archetype upon which Sun would base his own first attempt at revolution in China.

The German Spa in the Long Eighteenth Century

A Cultural History

Ute Lotz-Heumann, University of Arizona, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Cultural History

Shifting the focus from the medical use of spas to their cultural and social functions, this study shows that eighteenth- and early nineteenth-century German spas served a vital role as spaces where new ways of perceiving the natural environment and conceptualizing society were disseminated. The spa popularized a preference for mountains and the seacoast that laid the basis for modern tourism, and contemporaries perceived spas as Enlightenment meeting places comparable to coffeehouses, salons, and Masonic lodges. Spas were conceived as spaces where the nobility and the bourgeoisie could interact on an equal footing, thereby overcoming the constraints of early modern social boundaries.

The Cold War, the Space Race, and the Law of Outer Space

Space for Peace

Albert K. Lai

Series: Routledge Studies in Modern History

This book tells the story of one of the United Nations' most enduring and least known achievements: the adoption of five multilateral treaties that compose the international law of outer space. It explains how the United Nations tried to seize the promise of peace through scientific cooperation and to ward off the potential for war in the Space Age through the adoption of the Outer Space Treaty, the Rescue and Return Agreement, the Liability Convention, the Registration Convention, and the Moon Agreement. Interdisciplinary in approach, it will be of interest to scholars in law, history and other fields who are interested in the Cold War, the Space Race, and outer space law.

Edited by Andrew Goss, Augusta University, USA

The Routledge Handbook of Science and Empire introduces readers to important new research in the field of science and empire. This compilation of inquiry into the inextricably intertwined history of science and empire reframes the field, showing that one could not have grown without the other. The 27 original essays examine: scientific and imperial disciplines, networks of science, and decolonized science. Specialized chapters cover science in China, Russia, the Middle East, Australia, India, Russia, and the Americas. Free of jargon and with clearly written essays, the handbook is a valuable guide for any student of the history of science and empire.

Translating Cuba

Literature, Music, Film, Politics

Robert S. Lesman, Shippensburg University, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of the Americas

Translating Cuba surveys the many points of contact translators have made between Cuban culture and English-speaking audiences since 1959. The study analyzes ideological and aesthetic choices made in the translation of poetry, science fiction, political writing, music lyrics, and film to demonstrate the kaleidoscopic way in which Cuba has been viewed by audiences in the Anglophone world. The ideological agendas of translators, editors, and publishers are often visible in translation decisions, though in some cases haphazard omissions or refractions deflect the communicative trajectory of a text without a discernable motive.

Writing Russia

The Discursive Construction of AnOther Nation

Melissa-Ellen Dowling, University of Adelaide, Australia

Series: Routledge Approaches to History

This book offers the first systematic analysis of Anglophone national histories of Russia. By deconstructing historical works on the history of Russia, the book provides insight into representations of Russia in the West. It demonstrates that historians employ literary techniques in their narratives of Russia to produce a seemingly cohesive image of a nation. This is a process that this book theorises as "discordus", representing an original framework for examining history texts. Postmodern in approach, the work pushes the boundaries of historiography and calls into question the nature of history.

Art Conservation

Mechanical Properties and Testing of Materials

W. (Bill) Wei

When it comes to science, conservation training programs and museum studies curricula focus mostly on chemistry. This book fills this important gap in conservation training. It is the first such book written specifically for the conservation community and the professional with little or no background in (mechanical) engineering. It provides an introduction to the basics of mechanical properties and behavior of materials and objects with examples and exercises based on conservation practice. It discusses more complex issues of mechanical loading of objects and advanced concepts used to solve them.

Assembling Past Worlds

Materials, Bodies and Architecture in Neolithic Britain

Oliver J.T. Harris, The University of Leicester, UK

Assembling Past Worlds draws on new materialism and the philosophy of Gilles Deleuze to explore the potential for a posthumanist archaeology. The book will show how new approaches are transforming our understandings of past worlds, and in so doing, how we can meet the challenges facing archaeology today. It will be of interest to both students and researchers in archaeological theory and the Neolithic of Europe.

Museum Innovation

Building More Equitable, Relevant and Impactful Museums

Edited by Haitham Eid, Southern University, USA and Melissa Forstrom, State University of New York, USA

Museum Innovation encourages museums to critically reflect upon current practices and adopt new approaches to their civic responsibilities. Arguing that museums have a moral duty to perform, the book shows how social innovation can make them more equitable, relevant and impactful institutions. It explores the role of contemporary museums in society. It is essential reading for academics, students and practitioners working in the museum and heritage studies field. The book's interdisciplinary nature makes it also an interesting read to those working in business studies, digital humanities, visual culture, arts administration, and political science fields.

Diverse Pursuits

Javed Malik

The five essays in this book reflect many years of the author's sustained academic engagement with dramatic forms and traditions. The opening essay traces the historical trajectory of modern drama in Europe from its bourgeois period through the period of the liberal dissent to the more recent periods of radical alternative. The subsequent essays deal with certain specific examples of that drama in India and the West, such as Shakespeare adaptations on the Parsi theatre stage, Habib Tanvir, and Samuel Beckett.

3D Audio

Edited by Justin Paterson and Hyunkook Lee

Series: Perspectives on Music Production

This edited volume crosses disciplines to bring together the best new work in the cutting-edge field of 3-D Audio. With a rise in virtual and augmented reality, surround sound is becoming more common place in entertainment and will soon reach into new areas like education and social media. Scientific research from many fields is needed to create 3D audio. The divisions between these areas can be cultural, mercantile, technological, or conceptual, but with parallel research strands all carrying momentum, this book provides the invaluable resource for crossing those boundaries for a shared, multi-disciplinary context.

Abortion and Democracy

Contentious Body Politics in Argentina, Chile, and Uruguay

Edited by Barbara Sutton, University at Albany, SUNY and Nayla Luz Vacarezza, National Council for Scientific and Technical Research, Argentina

Abortion and Democracy offers critical analyses of abortion politics in Latin America's Southern Cone, with lessons and insights of wider significance. Drawing on the region's recent history of military dictatorship and democratic transition, this edited volume explores how abortion rights demands fit with current democratic agendas. This is an important intervention suitable for students and scholars of abortion politics, democracy in Latin America, gender and sexuality, and women's rights.

Composing Audiovisually

Perspectives on audiovisual practices and relationships

Louise Harris

Series: Sound Design

Composing Audiovisually interrogates how the relationship between the audiovisual media in these works, and our interaction with them, might allow us to develop mechanisms for talking about and understanding our experience of audiovisual media across a broad range of modes and media. This book attempts to address gaps in our discourse on audiovisual modes, and offer possible starting points for future, genuinely transdisciplinary thinking in this field.

Developing Graphics Frameworks with Python and OpenGL

Lee Stemkoski and Michael Pascale

Developing Graphics Frameworks with Python and OpenGL shows you how to create software for rendering complete three-dimensional scenes. The authors explain the foundational theoretical concepts as well as the practical programming techniques that will enable you to create your own animated and interactive computer-generated worlds.

You will learn how to combine the power of OpenGL, the most widely adopted cross-platform API for GPU programming, with the accessibility and versatility of the Python programming language. Topics you will explore include generating geometric shapes, transforming objects with matrices, applying image-based textures to surfaces, and lighting your scene.

Cinematic Storytelling

A Comprehensive Guide for Directors and Cinematographers

Thomas Robotham

This book presents a new, story-based approach to cinematic coverage and storytelling in film and video. It breaks from the conventional idea that shots are the fundamental unit of filmmaking, instead exploring the specifics of determining coverage. Keyframes in patterns are introduced, delivering scripted material in a context-rich presentation that supports the storytelling. Ideal for filmmaking students interested in directing and cinematography, as well as aspiring and early-career filmmakers, cinematographers and directors.

Loving Writing

Techniques for the University and Beyond

Wendy M.K. Shaw

This writing textbook bridges factual, critical, and expressive modes of writing to help students develop a reflective sense of why and how to write for university, professional, and public audiences. Exploring the ways in which writing builds tools for argument both in and beyond the university, it enables students to break out of the dusty and formulaic patterns of writing that too often threaten to render academic studies irrelevant. Playful and personal, Loving Writing can be used as a textbook for advanced or introductory college writing courses and provides innovative guidance to liberal arts students seeking to develop their writing abilities.

A History of Aboriginal Art in the Art Gallery of New South Wales

Vanessa Russ

Series: Routledge Research in Art Museums and Exhibitions

In this highly original study, Vanessa Russ examines the gradual invention of Aboriginal art within the Art Gallery of New South Wales.

This process occurred as the social histories of Australia expanded and recognised Aboriginal people, through wars and political shifts, and as international organisations began placing pressure on nation-states to expand, diversify, and respect multicultural perspectives. This book explores a state art institution as a case study to consider these complex narratives through a single history of Aboriginal art from early colonisation until today.

British Art and the Environment

Changes, Challenges, and Responses Since the Industrial Revolution

Edited by Charlotte Gould and Sophie Mesplède

Series: British Art: Histories and Interpretations since 1700

This book explores the nature of Britain-based artists' engagement with the transformations of their environment since the early days of the Industrial Revolution. At a time of pressing ecological concerns, the international group of contributors provide a series of case studies which reconsider the nature-culture divide and aim at identifying the contours of a national narrative which stretches from enclosed lands to rising seas. By adopting a longer historical view this book hopes to enrich current debates concerning art's engagement with recording and questioning the impact of human activity on the environment.

French Women Orientalist Artists, 1861–1956

Cross-Cultural Contacts and Depictions of Difference

Mary Kelly

Series: Routledge Research in Gender and Art

This book is the first full-length study dedicated to French women Orientalist artists. Mary Kelly has gathered primary documentation relating to seventy-two women artists whose works of art can be placed in the canon of French Orientalism between 1861 and 1956. Bringing these artists together for the first time and presenting close contextual analyses of works of art, attention is given to artists' cross-cultural interactions with painted/sculpted representations of the Maghreb particularly in Algeria, Tunisia and Morocco. This book will be of particular interest to scholars in the History of Art, Gender Studies, History, and Middle Eastern and North African Studies.

Iconic Works of Art by Feminists and Gender Activists

Mistress-Pieces

Edited by Brenda Schmahmann

Series: Routledge Research in Gender and Art

In this book, contributors identify and explore a range of iconic works – "Mistress-Pieces" – made by feminists and gender activists since the 1970s. The first volume for which the defining of iconic feminist art is its raison d'être, its contributors interpret a "Mistress-Piece" as a work that has proved influential in a particular context because of its distinctiveness and relevance. Reinterpreting iconic art by Alice Neel, Hannah Wilke and Ana Mendieta, authors also offer important insights about works that may be less well known – those by Natalia LL, Tanja Ostojic, Swoon, and Tracey Moffatt, amongst others.

Independent Women

From Film to Television

Edited by Claire Perkins, Monash University, Melbourne, Australia and Michele Schreiber

"Independent" has functioned throughout film and television history as an important euphemism for "feminist.". This volume investigates how this connection plays out in a contemporary environment that popular feminist discourse is constructing as a golden age of television for women. The original essays in the volume offer insights into how post-network television is being valued as a new site of independent production for women.

The chapters in this book were originally published in a special issue of Feminist Media Studies.

Italian Painting in the Age of Unification

Laura L. Watts

Series: Routledge Research in Art History

Italian Painting in the Age of Unification reconstructs the artistic motivations and messaging of three artists—Tommaso Minardi, Francesco Hayez and Giacchino Toma—from three distinct regions in Italy prior to, during and directly following political unification in 1861. Each artist, working in Rome, Milan and Naples respectively, adopted the visual narratives particular to his region, using style to communicate aspects of his political, religious or social context.

Simonetta Moro, Institute for Doctoral Studies in the Visual Arts

Series: Routledge Advances in Art and Visual Studies

Mapping Paradigms in Modern and Contemporary Art defines a new cartographic aesthetic, or what Simonetta Moro calls carto-aesthetics, as a key to interpreting specific phenomena in modern and contemporary art, through the concept of poetic cartography. The book posits that the emergence of "mapping" as a ubiquitous theme in contemporary art can be attributed to the power of the cartographic model to constitute multiple worldviews that can be seen as paradigmatic of the post-modern and contemporary condition.

Olfactory Art and the Political in an Age of Resistance

Edited by Gwenn-Aël Lynn and Debra Riley Parr

Series: Routledge Advances in Art and Visual Studies

This book claims a political value for olfactory artworks by situating them squarely in the contemporary moment of various forms of political resistance.

Each chapter presents the current research and art practices of an international group of artists and writers from the United States, Canada, France, Germany, Switzerland, Thailand, Sweden, and the Netherlands. The book brings together new thinking on the potential for olfactory art to critique and produce modes of engagement that challenge the still-powerful hegemonic realities of the twenty-first century, particularly the dominance of vision as opposed to other sensory modalities.

The Vagabond in the South Asian Imagination

Resilience, Agency and Representation

Avishek Ray, Department of Humanities & Social Sciences, National Institute of Technology, Silchar, Assam, India
This book discusses the epistemic foundation of the heuristic construct 'vagabond' and the convergence between the politics of itinerancy and that of dissent in the context of South Asia. It describes the fraught relationship between 'native' itinerant practices and techniques of governmentality which have furnished different categorizations and taxonomies of mobility. The volume demonstrates the historical seismic breaks—from the Orientalist to the post-Orientalist, from the pre-modern to the modern, and from the colonial to the post-colonial—in the representation of the vagabond in the juridico-political imagination, in historiography and cultural articulation.

Books and Social Media

How the Digital Age is Shaping the Printed Word

Miriam J. Johnson

Books and Social Media considers the way in which readers and writers come together in digital communities to discover, and create, new works of fiction. Using empirical data and up-to-date research methods, Johnson introduces the ways in which these social platforms give rise to a new type of citizen author who chooses to sidestep the industry's gatekeepers and share their works directly with interested readers on these social platforms. The use of surveys, interviews, and data mining brings to the fore issues of gender, genre, community, and power.

Close Reading the Anthropocene

Edited by Helena Feder

Reading literature new and old, images and art, literary and critical theory, science and cultural studies, this book explores question of meaning, its importance and immanent potential for loss, in the new geological epoch of the Anthropocene. Moving between places, rocks, plants, animals, atmosphere, and eclipses, this interdisciplinary edited collection grounds the complex relations between text and world in the environmental humanities. The volume's wide-ranging chapters are critical, often polemical, engagements with the question of the Anthropocene and the changing conversation around reading, interpretation, and textuality.

Jane Austen and Critical Theory

Edited by Michael Kramp

Jane Austen and Critical Theory is a collection of new essays that addresses the absence of Critical Theory in Austen studies—an absence that has limited the reach of Austen criticism. The collection brings together innovative scholars who ask new and challenging questions about the efficacy of Austen's work. The book specifically reminds us of the vital importance of Austen and her fiction for central concerns of the humanities, including the place of the individual within civil society, the potential for new identities and communities, the urgency to address racial and sexual oppression, and the need to imagine more just futures.

How to Read a Poem

Seven Steps

Thomas H. Ford

How to Read a Poem is an introduction to creative reading, the art of coming up with something to say about a text. It presents a new method for learning and teaching the skills of poetic interpretation, providing its readers with practical steps they can use to construct perceptive, inventive readings of any poem they might read. This accessible and enjoyable guide is the ideal introduction to anyone approaching a detailed study of poetry for the first time and also offers useful theoretical insights for those more experienced in the area.

Dust Off the Gold Medal

Rediscovering Children's Literature at the Newbery Centennial

Edited by Sara L. Schwebel and Jocelyn Van Tuyl

Series: Studies in Childhood, 1700 to the Present

The oldest and most prestigious children's literature award, the Newbery Medal has since 1922 been granted annually by the American Library Association to the children's book it deems "most distinguished." This volume provides a critically- and historically-grounded scholarly analysis of representative but understudied Newbery Medal books from the 1920s through the 2010s, interrogating the disjunction between the books' omnipresence and influence, on the one hand, and the critical silence surrounding them, on the other.

Haunted Heaney

Spectres and the Poetry

Ian Hickey

Series: Routledge Studies in Irish Literature

Haunted Heaney: Spectres and the Poetry looks at the ghosts and spectres present within the poetry of the Nobel prize winning poet Seamus Heaney. Covering Heaney's work from his first collection, Death of a Naturalist, to his final collection, Human Chain, this volume analyses Heaney's poetry through the lens of hauntology as presented by Jacques Derrida in Specters of Marx. The book also incorporates Heaney's prose work and interviews into the discussion and uses these works as a meta-commentary to the poetry offering a deeper insight into the mind of one of Ireland's greatest writers.

Literature, Cultural Politics and Counter-Readings

Hamlet as the Prince of Deconstruction

Anindya Sekhar Purakayastha

This book is an attempt at deconstructive counter-reading of existing cultural or literary texts. Deconstruction usually bears a pejorative ring, while most would flaunt their familiarity with some of its philosophic jargons, for the majority, it is an area to be dismissed as intellectual obscurity or abstruse 'high theory'. Norm-deviant reading strategies of deconstruction offer fresh insights and rebellious interpretative possibilities.

Magical Epistemologies

Forms of Knowledge in Early Modern English Drama

Anannya Dasgupta

This book began with a simple question: when readers such as us encounter the term magic or figures of magicians in early modern texts, dramatic or otherwise, how do we read them? The arc of dramatists and texts that this book draws between Doctor Faustus, The Tempest, The Alchemist and Comus: A Masque at Ludlow Castle offers a sustained examination of the epistemologies of magic in the context of early modern knowledge formation.

Orientalism and Reverse Orientalism in Literature and Film

Beyond East and West

Edited by Sharmani Patricia Gabriel, Universiti Malaya, Malaysia and Bernard Wilson, The University of the Sacred Heart, Japan.

Series: Routledge Interdisciplinary Perspectives on Literature

Acknowledging the significance of Edward Said's Orientalism for contemporary discourse, the contributors to this volume deconstruct, rearrange and challenge elements of his thesis, looking at the new conditions and opportunities offered by globalization. Theoretically, and empirically, this book offers an expansive range of contexts, comprising the insights, analytical positions, and perspectives of a transnational team of scholars. Given its unique approach, this book will be essential reading for scholars of literary theory, film studies and Asian studies, as well as for those with a general interest in postcolonial literature and film.

Post-Romantic Aesthetics in Contemporary British and Irish Poetry

Stefanie John

Series: Routledge Studies in Comparative Literature

This book demonstrates the legacies of Romanticism that animate the poetry and poetics of Eavan Boland, Gillian Clarke, John Burnside, and Kathleen Jamie. It argues that the English Romantic tradition serves as a source of inspiration and critical contention for these Irish, Welsh, and Scottish poets and relates this engagement to wider concerns with gender, nation, and nature.

Re-Reading the Eighteenth-Century Novel

Studies in Reception

Jakub Lipski

Series: Routledge Focus on Literature

Re-Reading the Eighteenth-Century Novel adds to the dynamically developing subfield of reception studies within eighteenth-century studies. Lipski shows how secondary visual and literary texts live their own lives in new contexts, while being also attentive to the possible ways in which these new lives may tell us more about the source texts. To this end the book offers five case studies of how canonical novels of the eighteenth century by Daniel Defoe, Henry Fielding and Laurence Sterne came to be interpreted by readers from different historical moments, as reflected by secondary cultural texts.

Sexuality in Literature for Children and Young Adults

Edited by Paul Venzo and Kristine Moruzi

Series: Children's Literature and Culture

Expanding outward from previous scholarship on gender, queerness and heteronormativity in children's literature, this book offers fresh insights into representations of sex and sexuality in texts for young people, examining how fiction and non-fiction writing, picture books, film and television and graphic novels position young people in relation to ideologies around sexuality, sexual identity, and embodiment. This work brings together a diverse range of conceptual and theoretical approaches that are framed by the idea of sexual becoming.

The Matrilineal Heritage of Louisa May Alcott and Christina Rossetti

Azelina Flint

Series: Routledge Studies in Nineteenth Century Literature

In an unprecedented comparison of two of the most important female authors of the nineteenth-century, Azelina Flint foregrounds the influence of the religious communities that shaped Louisa May Alcott's and Christina Rossetti's visions of female creativity. By drawing attention to the parallels in the authors' familial affiliations and religious beliefs, Flint recuperates a tradition of nineteenth-century women's mysticism that departs from the individualistic models of male literary traditions to locate female empowerment in gynocentric relationships dedicated to achieving a shared revelation of God.

Thinking Past 'Post-9/11'

Home, Nation and Transnational Desires in Pakistani English Novels and Hindi Films

Jayana Jain, University of Munster, Germany

This book offers new ways of constellating the literary and cinematic delineations of Indian and Pakistani Muslim diasporic and migrant trajectories narrated in the two decades after the 9/11 attacks. Focusing on four Pakistani English novels and four Indian Hindi films, it examines the aesthetic complexities of staging the historical nexus of global conflicts and unravels the multiple layers of discourses underlying the notions of diaspora, citizenship, nation and home.

William Faulkner and Mortality

A Fine Dead Sound

Ahmed Honeini

Series: Routledge Studies in Twentieth-Century Literature

William Faulkner and Mortality is the first full-length study of mortality in William Faulkner's fiction. The book challenges earlier, influential scholarly considerations of death in Faulkner's work that claimed that writing was his authorial method of 'saying No to death'. Through close-readings of six key works this book examines how Faulkner's characters confront various experiences of human mortality and offers a new paradigm for reading Faulkner's oeuvre, and adds an alternative voice to a debate within Faulkner scholarship long thought to have ended.

World Literature After Empire

Rethinking Universality in the Long Cold War

Pieter Vanhove

Series: Routledge Studies in Comparative Literature

This book makes the case that the idea of a "world" in the cultural and philosophical sense is not an exclusively Western phenomenon. During the Cold War a plethora of historical attempts were made to reinvent the notions of world literature, world art, and philosophical universality from an anticolonial perspective.

Fathoming Translation as Discursive Experience

Theorization and Application

Chunshen Zhu

In his positive approach to translation studies featured in this highly original volume, Chunshen Zhu brings into perspective from the vantage point of translation the workings of human factors in text production, interpretation, and dissemination in and through translation in varying social situations.

This book examines a variety of key issues heatedly debated or largely neglected in the field of translation studies and beyond, e.g., meaning making, nature of the Unit of Translation, augmentation of transitivity by modification, signification of repetition, and cognitive effects of syntactic iconicity.

Multimodality and Identity

Theo van Leeuwen, University of Southern Denmark, Denmark

This book brings together the work of leading author, Theo van Leeuwen, on typography, colour, texture, sound and movement, and shows how they are used to communicate corporate and individual identities. Combining sociological insights into contemporary forms of identity with multimodal approaches to analyzing how these identities are expressed, the text is illustrated with examples from fashion, the built environment, logos, modern art and more. With sample analyses, this user-friendly text provides clear methods for analysis and creative strategies for the practice of multimodal communication.

Developing Cross-Cultural Relational Ability in Foreign Language Learning

Asset-Based Pedagogy to Enhance Pragmatic Competence

Gerrard Mugford, Universidad de Guadalajara, Mexico.

Series: Routledge Research in Language Education

By reconceptualizing successful communication in a foreign language as an enjoyable and uplifting experience, this volume moves beyond a focus on grammatical accuracy and fluency to foreground the ways in which foreign language learners can be encouraged to build on previous achievements and communicative successes in the target language and so develop confidence, commitment, and cross-cultural relational ability. Chapters highlight bilingual speakers' conscious language use, practices, and choices in the target language, and the reasons and implications for such deliberate communicative practices and relational behaviour.

English and Translation in the European Union

Unity and Multiplicity in the Wake of Brexit

Series: Routledge Advances in Translation and Interpreting Studies

This book explores the growing tension between multilingualism and monolingualism in the European Union in the wake of Brexit, underpinned by the interplay between the rise of English as a lingua franca and the low status of translations in EU bodies, agencies and institutions. The book draws on an interdisciplinary approach highlighting insights from such fields as sociolinguistics, translation studies, and philosophy of language in looking at data drawn from official EU documents and online resources, many of which are increasingly initially produced in English and then translated into other languages, but not published as translations.

The (Un)Translatability of Qur'anic Idiomatic Phrasal Verbs

A Contrastive Linguistic Study

Ali Yunis Aldahesh, University of Sydney, Australia

Series: Routledge Advances in Translation and Interpreting Studies

Qur'anic idiomaticity, in its all aspects, poses a great deal of challenge to the Qur'an readers, learners, commentators and translators. One of the most challenging aspects of the Qur'anic idiomaticity is Qur'anic Idiomatic Phrasal Verbs. By examining a corpus of ten of the most influential English translations of the Qur'an, this study scrutinises the ways by which translators of the Qur'an deal with the phenomenon of Qur'anic Idiomatic Phrasal Verbs, difficulties they encounter when translating them into English, strategies they employ in their attempt to overcome the inherent ambiguity of such expressions and provide their functional-pragmatic equivalent to English readership.

The Routledge Handbook of Translation and the City

Edited by Tong King Lee, University of Hong Kong, China

Series: Routledge Handbooks in Translation and Interpreting Studies

The Routledge Handbook of Translation and the City is the first multi-faceted overview of how cities can be read through the lens of translation and how translation studies can be enriched by an understanding of the complex dynamics of the city.

Divided into four sections, the chapters are authored by leading scholars in translation studies, sociolinguistics, and literary and cultural criticism. They cover contexts from Brussels to Singapore and Melbourne to Cairo and topics from translation as resistance to translanguaging and urban design. This is critical reading for researchers, scholars and advanced students in translation studies, linguistics and urban studies.

Theatre of the Sphere

The Vibrant Being

Luis Valdez and Michael Chemers, UC Santa Cruz, USA

Theatre of the Sphere is Luis Valdez's exploration of the principles that underlie his innovations as a playwright, teacher, and theatrical innovator. He discusses the unique aesthetic, more than five decades in the making, that defines the work of his group El Teatro Campesino - from shows staged on the backs of flatbed trucks by the participants in the Delano Grape Strike of the 1960s to international megahits like Zoot Suit. This is a vital and indispensable text for today's actor, as well as scholars and students of contemporary theatre, American and Chicano performance, and the process of theatre-making, actor training and community performance.

Theatre Studios

A Political History of Ensemble Theatre-Making

Tom Cornford, University of London

Theatre Studios explores the history of the studio model in England, first established by Konstantin Stanislavsky, Jacques Copeau and others in the early twentieth century, and later developed in the UK primarily by Michel Saint-Denis, George Devine, Michael Chekhov and Joan Littlewood, whose studios are the focus of this study. Students and makers of theatre alike will find in this book a provocative and illuminating analysis of the politics of performance-making and a history of the theatre as a site for developing counterhegemonic, radically democratic, anti-individualist forms of cultural production.

A Field Guide to Student Teaching in Music

Ann C. Clements, Pennsylvania State University, USA, Sarah H. Watts and Douglas C. McCall

A Field Guide to Student Teaching in Music, Second Edition, serves as a practical guide for the music education student, one that recognizes the importance of effective coursework while addressing the unique field-based aspects of the music classroom. Student teaching in music is a singular experience, presenting challenges beyond those encountered in general education classroom settings. This guide builds on theoretical materials often covered in music methods courses and yet is not beholden to any one pedagogy, thus allowing for a dynamic and flexible approach for various classroom settings.

Gold, Festivals, and Music in Southeast Brazil

Sounding Portugueseness

Barbara Alge

Series: SOAS Studies in Music

This book is a study of the musical legacy of the 18th century Brazilian gold rush that integrates ethnographic research of the main genres of former mining communities in Brazil -- from liturgical music in the style of European art music to Afro-Brazilian musical expressions. Its content and structure are informed by Norbert Elias' idea of the civilizing process, which is explored regarding its relevance in interpreting sociocultural processes and choreo-musical expressions in the small town Morro Vermelho. The book's innovative feature is its focus on a little-known area to non-Brazilian scholars, and its focus on the colonial and European heritage in Brazil.

Horn Teaching at the Paris Conservatoire, 1792-1903

The Transition from Natural Horn to Valved Horn

Jeffrey Snedeker

In the 1790s, the formation of the Conservatoire signalled the strong cultural value placed on musical training. Interestingly, when valved horns arrived in the 1820s, the Conservatoire was circumspect. This book tells the story of the transition from natural horn to valved horn at the Conservatoire, from 1792 to 1903, including close examination of horn teaching before the arrival of valved brass in Paris, the initial reception and application of this technology to the horn, the persistence of the natural horn, and the progression of acceptance, use, controversies, and eventual adoption of the valved instrument in the Parisian community and at the Conservatoire.

Intertextuality in Music

Dialogic Composition

Edited by Violetta Kostka, Paulo F. de Castro and William A Everett

Intertextuality in Music: Dialogic Composition provides a systematic investigation of musical intertextuality not only as a general principle of musical creativity but also as a diverse set of devices and techniques that have been consciously developed and applied by many composers in the pursuit of various artistic and aesthetic goals. Intertextual techniques, as this collection reveals, have born a wide range of results, such as parody, paraphrase, collage, and dialogues with and between the past and present.

New Music and the Crises of Materiality

Sounding Bodies and Objects in Late Modernity

Samuel Wilson

Arguing that new music in this era reflects a historical moment when the idea of materiality itself is in flux, the book focuses on how recent music and sound art have expressed notions of the body and the material environment. It engages with thinkers such as Theodor Adorno and Sara Ahmed to demonstrate how this music relates to changing material conditions, from the rise of neo-liberalisms and information technologies to new concepts of the natural world.

Drawing on musicology, cultural theory, and philosophy, this book offers a new theoretical framework for understanding musical bodies, musical objects, and the environments in which they interact.

Reading Smile

History, Myth and American Identity in Brian Wilson and Van Dyke Parks' Long-Lost Album

Dale Carter

Series: Routledge Studies in Popular Music

First conceived in 1966 but only completed in 2004, Brian Wilson Presents Smile has been called "the best-known unreleased album in pop music history" and "an American Sergeant Pepper." Reading Smile offers a close analysis of the recording in its social, cultural and historical contexts.

; It focuses on the finished work's subject matter as embodied in Van Dyke Parks' contentious yet little understood lyrics, with their low-resolution, highly allusive portrayals of western expansion's archetypes. Of particular relevance to those interested in American Studies and popular culture, 1960s popular music, not least to fans of Brian Wilson, Van Dyke Parks and the Beach Boys.

The Early Romantic Composers: 5-Volume Set

Michael Spitzer

Series: The Early Romantic Composers

The FIVE composers represented in this series sit at the core of the Western art-music tradition: Beethoven and Schubert worked at the cusp between the Classical style and Romanticism; Mendelssohn, Schumann and Chopin formed a group of composers who could be said to have invented musical modernity. The volume editors have selected key scholarly perspectives; priority has been given to items in English, but a few seminal contributions appear either in a foreign language or in new, previously unpublished translations. Extended introductions also situate the contents of individual volumes in broad scholarly contexts.

Block Parties

Identifying Emergent STEAM Thinking Through Play

Daniel Ness

Block Parties examines young children's spatial development through the lens of emergent STEAM thinking. This book explores the physical and psychological tools that children use when they engage in constructive free play, and how these tools contribute to and shape the constructions they produce. Providing readers with the tools and understanding necessary to develop children's spatial sense through the domains of mapping and architecture, this cutting-edge volume lays the groundwork for both cognitive development and early childhood specialists and educators to develop more robust models of STEAM-related curriculum that span the early years through to adolescence.

How to Recognise and Support Mathematical Mastery in Young Children's Play

Learning from the 'Talk for Maths Mastery' Initiative

Edited by Di Chilvers, WatchMeGrow and the Development Map

This exciting book explores young children's fascination with all things mathematical. Drawing on the Talk for Maths Mastery project, it helps practitioners to understand early mathematical development and recognise the maths taking place in children's play. Emphasising the importance of starting from children's existing mathematical interests, it shows how adults can build on these starting points to gradually introduce new concepts and address misconceptions as they arise. This book is essential reading for all early years practitioners and teachers working with children throughout the EYFS and KS1 as well as students on early years courses.

Developing Secure Attachment Through Play

Helping Vulnerable Children to Build their Social and Emotional Wellbeing

Joan Moore

This book offers a range of imaginative and engaging play-based activities, designed to help vulnerable young children forge safe attachments with their caregivers. It focuses on key developmental stages that may have been missed due to challenging life circumstances, such as social-emotional development, object permanence, and physical and sensory development. It also considers pertinent issues including trauma, separation, loss and transition. This will be a valuable resource for early years practitioners, adoptive, foster and kinship parents, and therapists and social workers supporting young children.

Supporting Children with Social, Emotional and Mental Health Needs in the Early Years

Practical Solutions and Strategies for Every Setting

Sonia Mainstone-Cotton

This accessible book offers essential guidance and practical ideas for early years staff to support children with social, emotional and mental health (SEMH) needs. Chapters first explore what SEMH is, why children may have SEMH needs, and what this can look like. The book then moves on to share practical tools, activities, and strategies, thinking about the environment, routines and transitions, feelings and emotions, nature, mindfulness, and more. Case examples weave throughout, bringing the book alive with first-hand advice from a range of professionals, including educational psychologists, play therapists and forest school specialists.

Shifting Traditions of Childrearing in China

Narratives from Three Generations of Women

Xin Guo

Series: China Perspectives

Unique in its approach to understanding motherhood in China, this book sets out to study three generations of Chinese mothers' experiences in childrearing. It investigates three aspects of these mothers' lives, namely the growing-up experiences, mothering experiences, and intergenerational transmission between mothers and daughters, emphasizing that gender is not immutable and that motherhood is not isolated from other social domains. This is an essential read for researchers, students, professionals and practitioners in the fields of sociology of families, childhood and education, gender studies, motherhood/parenthood studies, narrative studies, social policy and development studies.

Critical Geographies of Education

Space, Place, and Curriculum Inquiry

Robert J. Helfenbein, Associate Dean for Research & Faculty Affairs, Tift College of Education, Mercer University

This work explores how the application of the ideas and practices of Critical Geography to educational theory in general and curriculum theorizing in specific might point to new trajectories for analysis and inquiry. Presented as an intellectual geography that traces how spatial analysis can be useful in curriculum theorizing, social foundations of education, and educational research, the book surveys a range of issues including social justice and racial equity in schools, educational reform, internationalization of the curriculum, and how schools are placed within the larger social fabric.

Critical Pedagogies in Physical Education, Physical Activity and Health

An Introduction

Edited by Julie Stirrup and Oliver Hooper

This book explores critical pedagogy – and critical work around the body, health and physical activity – in physical education. By examining the complex relationships between policies and practice, and how these are experienced by young people, it elucidates the need for critical pedagogy in contemporary times. Designed to support pedagogical study in a range of contexts, this book will be of particular interest to undergraduate and postgraduate students, teachers and researchers with an interest in physical education, physical activity and health and the role they play in young people's lives.

Fostering Computational Thinking Among Underrepresented Students in STEM

Strategies for Supporting Racially Equitable Computing

Edited by Jacqueline Leonard, University of Wyoming, USA, Jakita O. Thomas, Auburn University, USA, Roni Ellington, Morgan State University, USA, Monica B. Mitchell, MERA, Washington, D.C., USA and Olatokunbo S. Fashola, American University, USA

This book broadly educates preservice teachers and scholars about current research on computational thinking (CT). More specifically, attention is given to computational algorithmic thinking (CAT), particularly among underrepresented K–12 student groups in STEM education. Computational algorithmic thinking (CAT) – a precursor to CT – is explored in this text as the ability to design, implement, and evaluate the application of algorithms to solve a variety of problems. This practical text includes vignettes and visual examples to illustrate how coding, computer modeling, robotics, and drones may be used to promote CT and CAT among students in diverse classrooms.

Transforming School Culture through Lesson Observation

A Collective and Collaborative Approach

Christine Cunniffe

This book sets out a three-stage programme for lesson observation showing how a collaborative whole-school approach can transform the culture of the staffroom and improve outcomes for pupils. Focusing on the emotional environment of the classroom, the relationships between teachers and pupils, and teaching and learning outcomes, it will enable schools to provide a consistent approach to lesson observation where good practice can be celebrated and shared. If you are looking to make real impact within your school and bring about change for the better, this innovative approach is for you.

Curriculum, Environment, and the Work of C. A. Bowers

Ecological and Cultural Perspectives

Edited by Audrey M. Dentith, North Carolina A&T State University, USA., David Flinders, Indiana University, USA, John Lupinacci, Washington State University, USA and Jennifer S. Thom, University of Victoria, Canada

Series: Studies in Curriculum Theory Series

This edited volume extends ecological approaches to curriculum theory by recognizing and building on the contributions of the late Chet A. Bowers to curriculum and ecological studies globally. The text illustrates how Bowers' ideas must now inform future approaches to schooling, teacher education, research, and indigenous communities to guard against the global ecological crises we now face. Benefitting researchers, academics, and educators with an interest in curriculum studies, sustainability education, and environmental studies in particular, the text will also appeal to those interested in the sociology of education, educational change and school reform.

Gender Equity in STEM in Higher Education

International Perspectives on Policy, Institutional Culture, and Individual Choice

Edited by Hyun Kyoung Ro, University of North Texas, USA, Frank Fernandez, University of Mississippi, USA and Elizabeth Ramon, University of North Texas, USA

Series: Routledge Research in STEM Education

This timely volume brings together a range of international scholars to analyse cultural, political, and individual factors which contribute to the continued global issue of female underrepresentation in STEM study and careers. Contributing to the United Nations' (UN) 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, this text will benefit researchers, academics, and educators with an interest in science education, higher education, and gender equity in STEM fields. The text will also support further discussion and reflection around multicultural education, educational policy and politics, and the sociology of education more broadly.

No School Left Behind

Implementation of China's New Mathematics Curriculum Reform (2000–2020)

Wei Gao and Xianwei Liu

Series: China Perspectives

Based on fieldwork at two elementary schools in northeastern China, the monograph explores how local schools responded to the Chinese New Mathematics Curriculum Reform in 2001, and how the current on-going reform started in 2011 inherited its legacy. Via interviews, observations and document review, the author investigates the schools' reform trajectory, the dynamics of administrators, teachers' reaction and professional learning activities. This book enriches existing literature on the implementation of mathematics curriculum reform and brings insights into schools' implementation decisions, which will appeal to policy makers, curriculum researchers and administrators.

Social Studies Education in South and South East Asian Contexts

Edited by Kerry J Kennedy, The Education University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong

Series: Routledge Series on Schools and Schooling in Asia

Drawing on an international team of academics, this edited volume explores the role of social studies education in South and Southeast Asia. In an increasingly volatile and unpredictable world, young people need social studies education to enable them to cast a gaze on the society in which they are embedded, ask questions about it and contemplate ways to improve it for all its citizens. This book shows how different and diverse countries are dealing with these challenges and what can be expected from future citizens in this part of the world.

Empowering Science Teachers to Take on the Climate Crisis Through NGSS

Kelley T. Le, UCI Science Project

This timely and insightful book supports secondary science teachers to take on climate change and climate science in the classroom, and to develop effective curricula ready to meet the Next Generation Science Standards (NGSS). By anchoring instruction around the climate crisis and urgent issues like the COVID-19 pandemic, global warming, and deforestation, author Dr. Le shows how you can teach scientific literacy and also empower your students to be the agents of change needed in their own communities. How To Teach Boys To Succeed In School

Mark Roberts, Tavistock College, Devon

This essential new book answers nine key questions about how teachers and schools can best tackle boys' academic underperformance. For decades schools have grappled with the most significant barriers to male academic success: a lack of motivation to succeed, poor attitudes to learning, lower literacy levels and a reluctance to read for pleasure or write at length. Mark Roberts provides clear answers about how teachers can tackle 'The Boy Question'. With practical advice and examples to help stem the cycle of boys' underachievement and tackle anti-school attitudes, this is essential reading for all teachers and school leaders.

Talent Development in Gifted Education

Theory, Research, and Practice

Edited by Joyce VanTassel-Baska

This volume brings together experts in gifted education to explore critical perspectives in talent development across the lifespan, guiding readers towards a deeper understanding of advanced learners and their education. The first section delves into the foundational theory, research, and models of practice underpinning gifted education and talent development, while the second section examines its practical applications. The book concludes with an exploration of talent throughout the lifespan. Ideal for researchers and students of gifted education and creativity studies, this handbook challenges readers to interrogate what they think they know about giftedness and talent development.

Critical Perspectives on Equity and Social Mobility in Study Abroad

Interrogating Issues of Unequal Access and Outcomes

Edited by Chris R. Glass, Old Dominion University, USA and Peggy Gesing, Eastern Virginia Medical School, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Global Student Mobility

This edited volume brings together the perspectives of a diverse group of international scholars to explore the intersections of study abroad and social mobility. In doing so, it challenges universalist assumptions and power imbalances implicit in study abroad across the Global North and South, and explores the implications of COVID-19 for equity within study abroad programs, policy, and practice going forward. Against the backdrop of growing criticism over the power imbalances in international exchange, this text will benefit researchers, academics, and educators with an interest in higher education, international and comparative education, and multicultural education.

Decolonising Curricula and Pedagogy in Higher Education

Bringing Decolonial Theory into Contact with Teaching Practice

Edited by Shannon Morreira, Kathy Luckett, Siseko H. Kumalo and Manjeet Ramgotra

Series: Third Worlds

This book brings together voices from the Global South and Global North to think through what it means, in practice, to decolonise contemporary higher education. It brings theories of decoloniality into conversation with the structural, cultural, institutional, relational and personal logics of curriculum, pedagogy and teaching practice. It further explores what is at stake when decolonial work is taken from the level of theory into actual practice.

The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of Third World Thematics.

The Nature of Educational Theories

Goal-Directed, Equivalence and Interlevel Theories

Tone Kvernbekk, University of Oslo, Norway

Series: Routledge Research in Education

This important book provides the answer to the question: what is an educational theory? The book offers a classification scheme that allows readers to discriminate distinct types of educational theory, discuss specific theoretical strengths and weaknesses, account for educational practice and the way it relates to theory, and to consider the ways in which the nature of theories can inform the work of educational theorists and practitioners.

Kvernbekk observes throughout how having metatheoretical knowledge of the structure of theory types will improve understanding and representation of educational phenomena, and enhance the ability to change these phenomena for the better.

Transforming Learning Through Tangible Instruction

The Case for Thinking With Things

Sarah Kuhn

Transforming Learning Through Tangible Instruction offers a transformative, student-centered approach to higher education pedagogy that integrates embodied cognition into classroom practice. Evidence across disciplines makes clear that people learn with their bodies as well as their brains, but no previous book has provided evidence-based guidance for adopting and refining its practice in colleges and universities. Collecting findings from cognitive science, educational neuroscience, learning theories, and beyond, this volume's unique approach will have profound implications for higher education faculty and administrators engaged in teaching and learning.

World-Centred Education

A View for the Present

Gert Biesta, Maynooth University, Ireland and University of Edinburgh, UK

This book makes an intervention in a long-standing discussion by arguing that education should be world-centred rather than child-centred or curriculum-centred. It explores what an existential orientation to education entails and why this should be an urgent concern for education today. He highlights the importance of teaching, not understood as the transmission of knowledge and skills but as an act of (re)directing the attention of students to the world, so that they may encounter what the world is asking from them. This text demonstrates to academics, students, teachers, school administrators, and teacher educators, the urgency of a world-centred orientation for education today.

Critical Pedagogy

An Exploration of Contemporary Themes and Issues

Tomas Boronski

This accessible text provides a clear overview of the contemporary themes and challenges within critical pedagogy and education. With case studies, discussion tasks and exemplars from global history woven throughout, each chapter considers a prominent societal and educational issue, tackling some difficult and unsettling areas. Embedded in this exploration is an understanding and application of key concepts, such as justice, equality, rights and power, and how these relate to a range of topics in schooling. These include the role of teachers in an age of hyper surveillance and performance monitoring, alternative approaches to education, and the growing fear of the 'other'.

A Christian Education in the Virtues

Character Formation and Human Flourishing

James Arthur

Series: Routledge Research in Character and Virtue Education

A Christian Education in the Virtues examines the connection between human nature and human flourishing. It draws on ancient and medieval sources to explore the formation of the person based on a Christian anthropology, emphasising the communal nature of the virtuous life and provides a richer approach to the question of contemporary character education.

This important book will be essential reading for academics, researchers and students in the fields of character and virtue education, religious education and the philosophy of education.

Building Cross-border Joint Universities in China

A Study of Organizational Dilemma

Yunyun Qin, The University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong

Series: Education and Society in China

This book examines the interactions and dynamics between one cross-border joint-university and its social environment in the process of institutional transplantation and organizational adaptation. By examining a variety of tensions between the joint-university and its key social actors, this research suggests a concept of "organizational dilemma" to capture the characteristics embedded in cross-border joint-universities in mainland China, and as an analytical model to unpack the tensions giving rise to the dilemmatic feature.

Centering Global Citizenship Education in the Public Sphere

International Enactments of GCED for Social Justice and Common Good

Edited by Susan Wiksten, Paulo Freire Institute, UCLA, USA
Series: Critical Global Citizenship Education

This volume brings together key perspectives from scholars in the Global South and Global North to illustrate diverse ways in which the UN's Global Citizenship Education (GCED) agenda can promote social justice and be used as a vehicle for negotiating and learning about diverse and shared objectives in education and the global public sphere. Given its unique approach, this book is a timely addition to literature on education in the global public sphere. It will prove to be an invaluable resource for scholars working at the intersections of global education and transnational education policies, and for teachers involved in global education.

Gender and Education in India

Edited by Nandini Manjrekar and Simran Luthra

Examining the complex linkages between gender and education in the Indian context forms part of a wider matrix of inquiry related to understanding gender and its intersections with class, caste, religion and region. The sixteen essays in this Reader by eminent scholars offer critical feminist perspectives covering many issues related to these linkages, examining ideologies, structural contexts, knowledge, pedagogy and experiences through a socio-historical lens.

Social Haunting, Education, and the Working Class

A Critical Marxist Ethnography in a Former Mining Community

Kat Simpson, University of Huddersfield, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Education, Neoliberalism, and Marxism

Based on a critical Marxist ethnography, conducted at a state primary school in a former coalmining community in the north of England, this book provides insight into teachers' perceptions of the effects of deindustrialisation on education for the working class. The book draws on the notion of social haunting to help understand the complex ways in which historical relations continue to shape experiences and processes of schooling. This text will benefit researchers, academics, and educators with an interest in the sociology of education, and social class and education in particular. Those interested in schooling and qualitative social research will also benefit from the book.

Tamils, Social Capital and Educational Marginalization in Singapore

Labouring to Learn

Lavanya Balachandran, National University of Singapore, Singapore

Series: Routledge Critical Studies in Asian Education

Labouring to Learn examines how social capital mediates the interactive effects of race and class on educational underperformance among Singaporean Tamil secondary school students. By studying biographical narratives of ethnic Tamil students, this volume charts the systemic causes for academic underachievement using the social capital framework. It aims to address social inequality in non-liberal multicultural contexts, where marginalisation is differently experienced across ethnic minorities, and traced to broader socio-cultural contexts.

Creating Transformative Online Communities in Higher Education

Patrick R. Dempsey

Creating Transformative Online Communities in Higher Education provides a practical approach for building authentic learning experiences into the design and delivery of online teaching and learning systems. Combining three conceptually related ideas—complexity theory, transformative learning, and the Community of Inquiry—this novel, highly applicable framework enables instructors to create compelling virtual learning experiences for students. As higher education faculty, instructional designers, and graduate students shift from presenting information to creating experiences, the book offers an evidence-based disruption of the current thinking on and practice of course design.

ICT and International Learning Ecologies

Representation and Sustainability Across Contexts

Edited by Ian A. Lubin

ICT and International Learning Ecologies addresses new ways to explore international, comparative, and cultural issues in education and technology. As today's development orthodoxies push societies around the world to adopt imported information-communication tools, new approaches are needed that integrate cultural responsiveness, autonomy, and sustainability into technology-enhanced learning. This edited collection conceptually and methodologically reframes the complexities of teaching and learning in historically marginalized communities around the world, where inequities are often exacerbated by one-size-fits-all programs, for graduate students and researchers.

New Models for Design and Performance

Scott M. Martin, James L. Casey and Stephanie Kane

Serious Games in Personalized Learning investigates game-based teaching and learning at a time when learning and training systems are increasingly integrating serious games, machine-learning artificial intelligence models, and adaptive technologies. Game-based education provides rare data for measuring, assessing, and evaluating not just a game's effectiveness but the acquisition of information and knowledge that a student may gain through playing a learning game. This book synthesizes contemporary research, frameworks, and models centered on the design and delivery of serious games that truly personalize the learning experience.

Black Girls' Literacies

Transforming Lives and Literacy Practices

Edited by Detra Price-Dennis and Gholnecsar E. Muhammad

Series: Expanding Literacies in Education

Bringing together the voices of leading and emerging scholars, this volume highlights the many facets of Black girls' literacies. As a comprehensive survey of the research, theories, and practices that highlight the literacies of Black girls and women in diverse spaces, the text addresses how sustaining and advancing their literacy achievement in and outside the classroom traverses the multiple dimensions of writing, comprehending literature, digital media, and community engagement. The Black Girls' Literacies Framework lays a foundation for the understanding of Black girl epistemologies as multi-layered, nuanced, and complex.

Foundational Principles of Task-Based Language Teaching

Martin East

Series: ESL & Applied Linguistics Professional Series

This book introduces readers to the concept of task-based language teaching (TBLT), a learner-centred and experiential approach to language teaching and learning. Based on the premise that language learners can enhance their second language acquisition (SLA) through engagement in communicative tasks that compel them to use language for themselves, TBLT stands in contrast to more traditional approaches. Accessible and comprehensive, this book provides a foundational overview of the principles and practice of TBLT and demystifies what TBLT looks like in the classroom.

Whitewashed Critical Perspectives

Restoring the Edge to Edgy Ideas

Edited by Catherine Compton-Lilly, Tisha Lewis Ellison, Kristen H. Perry and Peter Smagorinsky

This volume examines revolutionary constructs in literacy education and demonstrates how they have been gentrified, whitewashed, and appropriated to lose their revolutionary edge and made palatable for the mainstream. Written by top scholars in literacy education, chapters cover key concepts that were originally conceived as radical theories to upset the status quo—including Third Space, Funds of Knowledge, Culturally Relevant Pedagogies, and more. Each chapter addresses how the core theory was culturally appropriated and de-fanged to support rather than take down racial and societal hierarchies.

Critical Applied Linguistics

A Critical Re-Introduction

Alastair Pennycook, University of Technology, Sydney, Australia

Now in its second edition, this accessible guide and introduction to critical applied linguistics provides a clear overview of the problems, debates, and competing views in language education, literacy, discourse analysis, language in the workplace, translation and other related domains. Covering critical theory and domains of practice, the book is organized around five themes: the politics of knowledge, the politics of language, the politics of texts, the politics of pedagogy, and the politics of difference.

This landmark text is essential reading for students and researchers of applied linguistics, multilingualism, language and education, TESOL, and language and identity.

Indigenous Legal Judgments

Bringing Indigenous Voices into Judicial Decision Making

Edited by Nicole Watson and Heather Douglas

This book is a collection of key legal decisions affecting Indigenous Australians, which have been re-imagined so as to be inclusive of Indigenous people's stories, historical experience, perspectives and worldviews. The new judgments are characterised by intersectional perspectives which draw on postcolonial, critical race and whiteness theory. Some contributors imagine new truth-telling forums, highlighting the strength and creative resistance of Indigenous people to oppression and exclusion. Others have rejected the possibility that the legal system, that has been integral to settler colonialism, can ever deliver meaningful justice to Indigenous people.

The Spy Who Would Be Tsar

The Mystery of Michal Goleniewski and the Far-Right Underground

Kevin Coogan, Independent Scholar, USA

Michal Goleniewski was one of the Cold War's most important spies but has been overlooked in the vast literature on the intelligence battles between the Western Powers and the Soviet Union. He later gained infamy by claiming to be the last surviving member of the Russian royal family. Renowned investigative journalist Kevin Coogan reveals Goleniewski's extraordinary story for the first time in this fascinating and revelatory biography which will be of interest to students and researchers of the Cold War, intelligence history and right-wing extremism as well as general readers with an interest in these intriguing subjects.

Women, Men, and Elections

Policy Supply and Gendered Voting Behaviour in Western Democracies

Rosalind Shorrock, University of Manchester, UK

Series: Gender and Comparative Politics

Women, Men, and Elections sheds new light on gendered political behaviour by analysing the relationship between policy supply and gender gaps in vote choice across elections in the US, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and multiple Western European countries. Rosalind Shorrock argues that electoral context, and specifically policy supply, is associated with the ways in which vote choice at election time is gendered. Shorrock offers a much needed fresh perspective on our understanding of political behaviour, representation, and party competition. It serves as an excellent text for students and scholars of comparative politics, gender and politics, and political behaviour.

Writing Politics

Studies in Compositional Method

Michael J Shapiro, University of Hawaii, USA

Writing Politics is a methods book designed to instruct on politically focused literary inquiry. Exploring the political sensibilities that arise from the way literary fiction re-textualizes historical periods and events, the book features a series of violence-themed inquiries that emphasize forms of writing as the vehicles for politically attuned historiography. Each investigation treats the way the literary genre, within historiographic metafiction, enables political inquiry. Michael J. Shapiro has produced another original and sophisticated bookshelf staple; the only contemporary investigation in Political Studies that instructs on method in this way.

Managing Diversity In Public Sector Workforces

Norma Riccucci

Public and private sector workforces in the U.S. look very different today than they did even 25 years ago. The changes are having a significant effect on how organizations manage their workforces. The old styles of managing heterogeneous workforces are proving to be ineffectual, and so management strategies aimed at embracing diversity and inclusion are essential. Managing Diversity in Public Sector Workforces, Second Edition examines demographic changes to the U.S. labor force and workplace and the ways in which government employers are managing the diverse populations that now fill public sector jobs.

Nelson Mandela

Peace through Reconciliation

Neera Chandhoke, Centre for Equity Studies, New Delhi

Series: Peacemakers

This book reflects on the life and politics of Nelson Mandela (1918–2013), and his efforts to broker peace and reconciliation in a deeply divided country. Through examples from apartheid South Africa, it explores conflict and methods for realising peace, social justice and democracy. In the most violent phase of the country's history, Mandela offered to both communities peaceful means to ensure equality, justice and inclusivity. The author highlights the extraordinary challenges which Mandela faced in mobilising consent and persuading both the black and the Afrikaner community to acquiesce to peace and the transfer of power.

Trophic Interactions Within Aquatic Ecosystems

Dewey G Meyers

First published 1984. The intent of the authors in organizing a AAAS symposium and this subsequent volume was to integrate the findings of aquatic ecologists whose research spans the first three trophic levels (algae, zooplankton and fish) of both marine and freshwater environments. Major topics (phytoplankton, zooplankton, fish and community interactions) are presented as, at least, two trophic-level associations by scientists who have distinctly differing perspectives. The format of papers varies from review to research and was chosen by authors on the basis of suitability to their specific topic.

China in the Asian Financial Crisis*Peter Nolan, University of Cambridge, UKSeries: Routledge Studies on the Chinese Economy

The widely-held view of the Asian Financial Crisis is that it had no substantial impact on China. In fact, the country was far more vulnerable than most people realized, due to the high possibility of financial contagion entering the system from Hong Kong through Guangdong province. This book analyzes the severe policy challenge that it presented for China's leaders. China was able to avoid disaster by astute and difficult policy choices, in the face of fierce pressure from outside the country, as well as from different domestic interests at many different levels.

Power Relations and Comparative Regionalism

Europe, East Asia and Latin America

Edited by Min-hyung Kim, Kyung Hee University, Republic of Korea and James A. Caporaso, University of Washington, USA

Series: Innovations in International Affairs

Three trends have dominated the political economy of integration during the last two decades: globalization, economic nationalism, and regionalization. This book explores comparative regional integration, focusing on both intra-regional integration and relations among regions in the context of power. It will benefit students and scholars of international relations and comparative political economy, especially those with an interest in integration studies and comparative regionalism.

Role Theory, Environmental Politics, and Learning in International Relations

The Case of the Arctic Region

Edited by Sandra Engstrand, Malmö University, Sweden

Series: Role Theory and International Relations

In this book, Sandra Engstrand uses role theory to enhance our understanding on how states learn about environmental norms. Engstrand examines negotiation processes on environmental protection for the prevention of Arctic marine oil spills and the reduction of short-lived climate pollutants. She concludes that states' wishes to preserve their social role in a group, and to be perceived as Arctic 'cooperators', are drivers for a social learning on environmental norms. A timely and unmatched volume, this book will engage students and academic researchers in International Relations, Environmental Governance and Arctic Politics.

The Success and Failure of Right-wing Populist Parties in the Benelux Countries

Léonie de Jonge, University of Groningen, the Netherlands

Series: Extremism and Democracy

This book focuses on the varied support for the populist radical right in the Benelux countries: Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. Despite many common characteristics, right-wing populist parties have historically been more successful in the Netherlands and Flanders than in Luxembourg and Wallonia. This volume will be of interest to practitioners as well as students and scholars of party politics, the media, the populist radical right, and the Benelux region.

Trade Interests and UN Funding

Commercial Earmarking of Multi-bi Aid

Pawel Gmyrek

Series: Global Institutions

This book examines a particular type of donor behavior – known as country earmarking of contributions – which occurs within the voluntary financing system of the United Nations. The research demonstrates that already during the period of the Millennium Development Goals a large share of the voluntary multilateral funding decisions was influenced by the commercial priorities of the donor countries. Synthesizing the existing knowledge concerning the supply-side of multi-bi aid, this book provides an accessible, entry-level overview of the topic that will appeal to students and scholars of global governance and international organizations.

Planning and Evaluation for Public Safety Leaders

A Toolkit

Shane Nurdyke, University of South Dakota, USA

This book presents field-tested techniques and tips to help public safety leaders effectively manage their organizations and overcome challenges. Organizations within the public safety sector are unique in many respects, which provides a different context in which planning, and performance measurement occur. Without recognizing this particular context, public planning texts can ignore crucial elements when it comes to effectively achieving and measuring public safety outcomes. The practical approach presented here will equip students with accessible explanations specific to the public safety context, and practical tools for public safety leaders to apply to their organizations.

Comparing Armed Conflicts

Edited by Bruno Charbonneau, Laurentian University, Canada and Adam Sandor

Comparing armed conflicts primes the production of categories that, when mobilized, can alter the trajectories of the conflicts. Considering the political dynamism of spaces of conflict and intervention, and that practitioners regularly seek out academic expertise, this book discusses the possibilities and limits of comparative approaches to understanding armed conflict and intervention.

Hijacking the Arab-Israeli Conflict

Edited by Asaf Romirowsky

Hijacking the Arab-Israeli Conflict emphasizes how a delegitimizing lexicon of terms and concepts is often used in highly politicized anti-Zionist scholarship. This volume focuses on this linkage between language and thought partly because it is long a staple focus for political theory and philosophy.

The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of Israel Affairs

The U.S. Navy

Case Studies in Its Past, Present, and Future

Edited by Thomas-Durell Young

Great power competition has returned to the world stage and the U.S. Navy finds itself in the forefront of U.S. efforts to demonstrate national resolve. The U.S. Navy: Case Studies in its Past, Present, and Future argues that the challenge of determining the future structure and operation of the fleet can be best achieved through an examination of its relevant past experience, as well as from current operations of the navy.

The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of Defense & Security Analysis.

Chinese News Discourse

From Perspectives of Communication, Linguistics and Pedagogy

Edited by Nancy Xiuzhi Liu, Candace Veacock and Shixin Ivy Zhang

Series: Routledge Studies in Chinese Discourse Analysis

As a country in transition, Chinese news discourse has quite distinctive characteristics, and more so given the power of state media in society. With China's engagement in world affairs and its massive Belt and Road Initiative (BRI) now in place, Western media coverage of China has dramatically increased. Against this backdrop, news dissemination and discourse demonstrate a need from academia to give perspectives with interdisciplinary approaches. Chinese News Discourse presents original research from academics in China and the west, showing theoretical, methodological and practical dimensions between news media and discourse.

Rethinking Locality in Japan

Edited by Sonja Ganseforth and Hanno Jentzsch

Series: Nissan Institute/Routledge Japanese Studies

This book inquires what is meant when we say 'local' and what 'local' means in the Japanese context. Through the window of locality, it enhances an understanding of broader political and socio-economic shifts in Japan. This includes demographic change, electoral and administrative reform, rural decline and revitalization, welfare reform, as well as the growing metabolic rift in energy and food production, relevant for Japan specialists, but also connected with scholarly debates further afield.

Tenkō: Cultures of Political Conversion in Transwar Japan

Edited by Irena Hayter, George T. Sipos and Mark Williams

Series: Nissan Institute/Routledge Japanese Studies

This book approaches the concept of tenkō (political conversion) as a response to the global crisis of interwar modernity, as opposed to a distinctly Japanese experience in postwar debates. Tenkō connotes the expressions of ideological conversion performed by members of the Japanese Communist Party, starting in 1933, whereby they renounced Marxism and expressed support for Japan's imperial expansion on the continent. Although tenkō has a significant presence in Japan's postwar intellectual and literary histories, this multi-authored volume is one of the first in English-language scholarship to approach the phenomenon.

The New Dynamics of Democracy in South Korea

Edited by Chae-Han Kim, Hallym University, South Korea
South Korea has been through important changes since its democratization in the late 1980s, most recently in 2016-17 when the candlelight protests led to the ousting of Park Geun-hye and the election of Moon Jae-in. Taking a thematic approach to understanding South Korean democracy, each chapter in this textbook is written by a leading Korean expert on a different element of South Korean politics and government. The New Dynamics of Democracy in South Korea is an invaluable textbook for students of Korean politics, which will also be a useful resource for scholars of comparative democracy.

China in the Tang-Song Interregnum, 878-978

New Approaches to the Southern Kingdoms

Hugh Clark

Series: Asian States and Empires

This book challenges the long-established structure of Chinese history around dynasties, adopting a more "organic" approach which emphasises cultural and economic trends that transcend arbitrary dynastic boundaries. It argues that with the collapse of the Tang court and northern control over the holistic empire in the last decades of the ninth century, the now-autonomous kingdoms that filled the political vacuum in the south responded with a burst of innovative energy that helped set the stage for the economic and cultural transformations of the following Song dynasty.

Language, Education, and Identity

Medium in South Asia

Edited by Chaise LaDousa, Hamilton College, New York, USA. and Christina P. Davis, Western Illinois University, USA.

This book examines medium of instruction in education and studies its social, economic, and political significance in the lives of people living in South Asia. It provides insight into the meaning of medium and what makes it so important to identity, aspiration, and inequality. It questions the ideologized associations between education and social and spatial mobility and discusses the gender- and class-based marginalization that comes with vernacular-medium education. The volume also considers how policy measures, such as the Right to Education (RTE) Act in India, have failed to address the inequalities brought by medium in schools.

India and the Arab Unrest

Challenges, Dilemmas and Engagements

Prasanta Kumar Pradhan

Series: Routledge Studies on Think Asia

This book is a study of India's political, diplomatic and security challenges faced by the changing geopolitical and security dynamics in the Middle East and North Africa.

Like many other countries, India has been deeply affected by the unrest in the Arab world. As India has several long-term economic, political, security stakes in the region, it has adopted extreme caution in its responses towards the developing situation in the Middle East since the Arab unrest. This book examines India's policy of non-intervention and opposition to military intervention in the internal and regional affairs in the Middle East and North Africa (MENA) region.

Prostitutes, Hostesses, and Actresses at the Edge of the Japanese Empire

Fragmenting History

Nobuko Ishitata-Okunomiya Yamasaki

Analysing materials from literature and film, this book considers the fates of women who did not or could not buy into the Japanese imperial ideology of "good wives, wise mothers" in support of male empire-building. The roles of marginalized women, such as sex workers, women entertainers, hostesses, and hibakusha have rarely been analyzed. This book addresses this intellectual lacuna by closely examining lived experiences in Japan, but also in Shanghai, Manchukuo, colonial Korea, and the Pacific. An appendix presents the first English translation of a memorable statement on comfort women by former Japanese propaganda actress, Ri Kōran / Yamaguchi Yoshiko.

The Writing of the Nation by its Elite

The Politics of Anglophone Indian Literature in the Global Age

Series: Literary Cultures of the Global South

This volume examines the idea of India as it emerges in the writing of its anglophone elite, post-2000. Drawing on a variety of genres, including fiction, histories, non-fiction assessments, this book maps the explosion of English-language writing in India after the economic liberalisation and points to the nation's sense of its growing importance as a producer of culture. A major intervention on how postcolonial India is written about and imagined in the anglophone world, it will be of great interest to scholars and researchers of cultural studies, literature, history and South Asian studies, as well as to general readers with an interest in India and Indian writing.

Vaiśeṣikasūtra – A Translation

Ionut Moise and Ganesh U. Thite

Series: Routledge Hindu Studies Series

This book introduces readers to Indian philosophy by presenting the first integral English translation of Vaiśeṣikasūtra with the earliest extant commentary of Candrānanda on the old aphorisms of Vaiśeṣika school of Indian philosophy. The book offers a comprehensive description of the fundamental categories of ontology and metaphysics, among which the category of 'particularity' (viśeṣa) plays a major role in the 'problem of individuation' of 'substance' and 'nature' in both Indian and Western metaphysics.

Transitions in Post-Soviet Eurasia

Identity, Polity and Strategic Choices

Edited by Archana Upadhyay, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi

This book discusses the ideological and historical relevance of the term 'Eurasia' as a concept in the global geopolitical and ethno-cultural discourse. It focuses on the contested meanings attached to the idea and traces its historical evolution and interpretations. It further examines the contours and characteristics of power politics in the Eurasian landscape by exploring the dynamics of the contending and competing interests that have come to occupy the region, particularly in the aftermath of the disintegration of the Soviet Union.

Transnational Civil Society in Asia

The Potential of Grassroots Regionalization

Edited by Simon Avenell and Akihiro Ogawa

Series: Routledge Contemporary Asia Series

This edited volume addresses how transnational interactions among civil society actors in Asia and its sub-regions are helping to strengthen common democratic values and transform dominant processes of policymaking and corporate capitalism in the region. Investigating the role of such networks through a range of interdisciplinary approaches, it brings together case studies on Asian transnationalism from South, Southeast, and Northeast Asia and will appeal to students and scholars of international relations, politics and Asian studies.

Climate Change in the Middle East and North Africa

15,000 Years of Crises, Setbacks, and Adaptation

William R. Thompson and Leila Zakhirova

Environmental factors in the Middle East and North Africa have played a crucial role in the historical and social development of the region. The book delves into a broad set of historical literature from the past 15,000 years that neglected to consider environmental factors to their full effect.

Emphasizing regional dynamics, the central question deals with the role of climate change in the rise and decline of the MENA region. The book will be a key resource to students and readers interested in global warming including academics and policy makers.

The Societies of the Middle East and North Africa

Structures, Vulnerabilities, and Forces

Edited by Sean Yom

The second edition of this well-regarded volume explores the societies of the Middle East and North Africa. Presenting original studies written by the world's leading MENA scholars, it sheds light upon the organizing structures, human vulnerabilities, and dynamic forces that propel social change among the peoples of the Arab world, as well as Israel, Turkey, and Iran.

Written in an accessible way, the chapters are clearly structured, and contain insightful analysis, memorable case studies, illustrative photographs, and visualized data that illuminate the contours of social life across this diverse region.

U.S. - Israeli Strategic Cooperation In The Post-cold War Era

An American Perspective

Karen Puschel

This study moves from a history of the American-Israeli strategic relationship since 1967 to an assessment of the permanency of US-Israeli strategic ties, their purpose in the eyes of both partners, and their susceptibility to future pressures. It includes an examination of the relationship under the strain of the 1991 Gulf War.

The Safavid World

Edited by Rudi Matthee, University of Delaware, USA

Series: Routledge Worlds

The Safavid World brings together thirty essays on many aspects of the complex Safavid state, 1501-1722. With the latest insights and arguments, some offer overviews of the period or topic at hand, and others present new interpretations of old questions based on newly found sources. Examining the Safavids from their foundations in the fourteenth century to their relations with the rest of the world in the eighteenth century, this study is essential reading for undergraduates, postgraduates, and scholars of the Safavid world and the history and culture of Iran and the Middle East.

Convivial Worlds

Writing Relation from Africa

Series: Literary Cultures of the Global South

This book discovers everyday forms of conviviality in fiction and life writing from Eastern and Southern Africa. It focuses on ordinary moments of recognition, of hospitality, of humour and kindness in everyday life to illuminate the significance of repertoires of repair in a world broken by relations of power. Through readings of specific capacities of living with difference, the book excavates ideas of world-making, personhood and the possibilities of alternative social imaginaries from African perspectives. It will be of great interest to scholars and researchers of Literary and Cultural Studies, especially Postcolonial Literature, African Studies and Indian Ocean Studies.

Advancing Sexual and Reproductive Health and Rights in Africa

Constraints and Opportunities

Edited by Ebenezer Durojaye, Gladys Mirugi-Mukundi and Charles Ngwena, University of Pretoria, South Africa

Series: Routledge Contemporary Africa

Despite many positive developments in sexual and reproductive health in recent years, many Africans still encounter challenges, for instance in poor maternity services, living with HIV, and discrimination on the basis of age, gender, sexual orientation or identity. Covering topics such as abortion, gender identity, adolescent sexuality and homosexuality, the chapters in this book discuss the impact of culture, morality and social beliefs on the enjoyment of sexual and reproductive health and rights across the continent, particularly in relation to vulnerable and marginalised groups.

Africa in a Multilateral World

Afropolitan Dilemmas

Edited by Albert Kasanda, Czech Academy of Sciences, Czech Republic and Marek Hrubec

Series: Routledge Contemporary Africa

The book analyses how Africans and Africa relate to other parts of the multilateral world, and to the world in general, and how these relations stem from local, national and regional interactions in different parts of Africa. The first part focuses on the assumptions that are necessary to understand the role of Africa on the global stage, especially from the perspectives of political philosophy and global and international studies. The second part of the book looks at both Afropolitan trends and the limits of Afropolitanism. In the third part, the authors focus on specific African global tendencies stemming from the local conditions in several case studies.

Africa's Soft Power

Philosophies, Political Values, Foreign Policies and Cultural Exports

Oluwaseun Tella

Series: Global Africa

This book investigates the ways in which soft power is used by African countries to help drive global influence. Selecting four of the countries most associated with soft power across the continent, this book delves into the currencies of soft power across the region: from South Africa's progressive constitution and expanding multinational corporations, to Nigeria's Nollywood film industry, Kenya's fashion, sport diplomacy, and tourism industries, and finally Egypt's reputation as the cradle of civilisation. The book asks how soft power is wielded by these countries and what constraints and contradictions they encounter.

Bessie Head and the Trauma of Exile

Identity and Alienation in Southern African Fiction

Joshua Agbo, Benue State University, Nigeria

Series: Global Africa

This book investigates themes of exile and oppression in Southern Africa across Bessie Head's fiction. This book argues that Head's characters are driven to exile as a result of their socio-political ambivalence while still in South Africa, and that this sense of discomfort follows them to their new lives. Investigating themes of trauma and identity politics across colonial and post-colonial contexts, this book also addresses the important theme of black-on-black prejudice and hostility which is often overlooked in studies of Head's work.

Decolonizing Political Communication in Africa

Reframing Ontologies

Edited by Beschara Karam, University of South Africa and Bruce Mutsaers, Auburn University, USA

Series: Routledge Contemporary Africa

This book uses decolonisation as a lens to interrogate political communication styles, performance, and practice in Africa and the diaspora. The book interrogates the theory and practice of political communication, using decolonial research methods to begin a process of self-reflexivity and the creation of a new approach to knowledge production about African political communication. Centring African scholarship, the book draws on case studies from across the continent, including Zimbabwe, South Africa, Nigeria and Ghana. ## Decolonising Childhoods in Eastern Africa

Literary and Cultural Representations

Oduor Obura, University of Potsdam, Germany

Series: Routledge African Studies

This book deconstructs Eurocentric narratives and showcases local voices to re-examine childhood in Eastern Africa. Taking a chronological approach, the author provides a critical reading of Africanist anthropological research on childhood in eastern Africa before examining writings from the pre-imperial and colonial periods. Moving into the contemporary period, the book reveals the continuity of these portrayals in humanitarian and journalistic discourses, before exploring postcolonial writings on childhood in works by Eastern African novelists.

Gender, Conflict and Reintegration in Uganda

Abducted Girls, Returning Women

Allen Kiconco, University of the Witwatersrand, South Africa

Series: Routledge Studies on Gender and Sexuality in Africa

This book explores what happened when the tens of thousands of girls (now women) abducted by Lord's Resistance Army and inducted into their campaign of violence against the Ugandan government, returned home. Drawing on extensive original research, the author considers the challenges which the formerly abducted women have encountered upon their return, the strategies which have been used to aid their reintegration, and the enduring stigma of abduction which they continue to suffer from. This book will be of interest to scholars, policymakers and practitioners working in the fields of post-conflict reconstruction, African politics and gender and conflict.

Mobility in Contemporary Zimbabwean Literature in English

Crossing Borders, Transcending Boundaries

Magdalena Pfalzgraf, Saarland University, Germany

Series: Routledge Contemporary Africa

This monograph explores the concept of mobility in Zimbabwean works of fiction published in English between the introduction of the controversial Fast Track Land Reform Programme and the end of the Mugabe era. Situating Zimbabwe's recent literary developments in a wider context of Southern African writing and history, this book focuses on texts which portray movement within Zimbabwe's cities, between village and city, to South Africa, and overseas. Setting out a rich dialogue between literary criticism and mobility studies, this book will be of interest to researchers of African Literature, Southern Africa, migration and mobility.

The Fourth Industrial Revolution and the Recolonisation of Africa

The Coloniality of Data

Everisto Benyera

Series: Routledge Contemporary Africa

In this book, the author argues that the looting of Africa that started with human capital and then natural resources, now continues unabated via data and digital resources looting. This book argues that the fourth industrial revolution, the process of accelerated automation of traditional manufacturing and industrial practices via digital technology, will serve to further marginalise Africa within the international community. Highlighting the crippling continuation of asymmetrical global power relations, this book will be an important read for researchers of African studies, politics and international political economy.

Series: African Governance

This book investigates the role of ethnic federalism in Ethiopian politics, reflecting on a long history of division amongst the country's political elites. The book argues that these patterns have enabled the resilience and survival of authoritarianism in the country, and have led to the failure of democratization. Focusing largely on the last 27 years under the EPRDF and on the political changes of the last few years, but also stretching back to historical narratives of ethnic grievances and division, this book is an important guide to the ethnic politics of Ethiopia and will be of interest to researchers of African politics, authoritarianism and ethnic conflict.

Post-Colonial Kenya

The Rise of an Authoritarian and Predatory State

Rok Ajulu

Series: Contemporary African Politics

This engaging reassessment of postcolonial Kenyan political history develops a theory of historical change and the role of leading figures in it. Combining political economy with political sociology it demonstrates how violence following the contested presidential election of 2007 represented, to a much more extreme extent, a continuation of the pattern of political contestation that has repeated itself throughout Kenya's political history.

The Cabinet of Imaginary Laws

Edited by Peter Goodrich and Thanos Zartaloudis

Series: Discourses of Law

Returning to the map of the island of utopia, this book provides a contemporary, inventive, addition to the long history of legal fictions and juristic phantasms. Aimed at an intellectual audience disgruntled with the negativity of critique and the narrowness of the disciplines, this book will appeal especially to theorists, literati, lawyers, scholars and a general public concerned with the future of decaying laws and an increasingly derelict legal system.

Land Use Law in Florida

W. Thomas Hawkins

Florida case law is an important course of study for planners, as the state has its own legal framework governing how people may use land with regulation that has evolved to include state-directed urban and regional planning. Land Use Law in Florida presents an in-depth analysis of land use law common to many states across the US, using Florida cases and statutes as examples.

The Law of Insurance Warranties

An Insoluble Problem?

Alastair Owen

Series: Lloyd's Insurance Law Library

The book provides a detailed review of efforts to reform the law on insurance warranties in Australia, New Zealand and the UK, arguing that none of these have been successful. The text proposes a radical new approach to reform of this area of the law, demonstrating through detailed stress testing of these proposals that they would deliver more consistent and equitable outcomes than those achieved to date. The book will be of considerable interest and value to practitioners, academics and students, as well as to other common law jurisdictions contemplating reform of this area of the law.

Public Health, Mental Health, and Mass Atrocity Prevention

Edited by Jocelyn Getgen Kestenbaum, Caitlin Mahoney, Amy Meade and Arlan Fuller

This multidisciplinary volume considers the role of both public health and mental health policies and practices in the prevention of mass atrocity—including war crimes, crimes against humanity and genocide. It brings together diverse fields of study by global north and global south authors in diverse contexts and culminates in a narrative that demonstrates the state of the current fields on intersecting themes within public health, mental health and mass atrocity prevention and the future potential directions in which these intersections could go.

Environmental Protection, China and International Trade

Greening the WTO Ban on Chinese Export Duties

Fengang Jiang

Series: The Rule of Law in China and Comparative Perspectives

This book argues for a balanced approach to 'greening' the WTO ban on China's export duties without opening the floodgates to protectionism.

As a result of the WTO's controversial China—Raw Materials and China—Rare Earths decisions, China is prohibited from using export duties to address any environmental problems, including those associated with climate change. This book puts the case for a more balanced approach. ## Non-Governmental Organisations and the United Nations Human Rights System

Fiona McGaughey

Series: Routledge Research in Human Rights Law

This book charts the historical development of the NGO role in the UN. It examines the UN regulation of NGOs but the largely informal nature of the role, and an exploration of the various types of NGOs, including some less benign actors such as GONGOs (Governmental NGOs). It also draws on empirical data to illustrate NGO influence on UN human rights bodies and gives voice to stakeholders both inside and outside the UN. The book concludes that the current UN human rights system is heavily reliant on NGOs and that they play an essential fact-finding role and contribute to global democratisation and governance.

Law and the Philosophy of Language

The Ordinarity of Law

Pascal Richard

Series: Routledge Research in Constitutional Law

Academic legal production, when it focuses on the study of law, generally grasps this concept on the basis of a reference to positive law and its practice. This book differs clearly from these analyses and integrates the legal approach into the philosophy of normative language, philosophical realism and pragmatism. The book will be essential reading for academics working in the areas of legal theory, legal philosophy and constitutional theory.

Offshore Financial Centres and the Law

Suspect Wealth in British Overseas Territories

Dominic Thomas-James

Series: The Law of Financial Crime

This book considers the ability of small jurisdictions with financial centres to meet the expectations of the international community in addressing the threats posed to themselves and others by their innocent, or otherwise, facilitation of the receipt of suspect wealth. It questions whether the degree of criticism that they have encountered is warranted in light of apparent willingness to engage in the enactment and administration of internationally accepted laws, and cooperate with international institutions.

Social Justice and Adequate Housing

Rights, Roma Inclusion and the Feeling of Home

Silvia Cittadini

This book analyses and challenges the understanding of this term in law and politics by investigating its relationship with the idea of 'home'. It is necessary to provide them with adequate housing! It is very common to hear this phrase when dealing with housing poverty, especially in relation to migrants, minorities, indigenous and other subaltern groups are concerned. But what does "adequate housing" mean? This book tackles this issue by proposing a critical analysis of this concept and of its use in the development of housing policies addressing the subaltern group par excellence in Europe, Roma.

Subversive Legal History

A Manifesto for the Future of Legal Education

Russell Sandberg

Series: Transforming Legal Histories

This book rejuvenates not only the historical study of law and but also the role of Law Schools by asking which stories we tell and which stories we forget. Subversive Legal History is not a type of Legal History but is a characteristic. It describes a legal method that should not be the preserve only of specialist legal historians but rather should be part of the toolkit of all law students, teachers and researchers.

It will be essential for all who work and study in Law Schools, proposing a radical new approach not only to the historical study of law but to the content, purpose and ambition of legal education.

Routledge Handbook of Subnational Constitutions and Constitutionalism

Edited by Patricia Popelier, Nicholas Aroney and Giacomo DelleDonne

This handbook provides a toolbox of definitions and typologies to develop a theory of multilevel constitutionalism and subnational constitutions. Broad in scope, it encompasses many different types of multi-tiered systems world-wide to map the possible meanings, uses and challenges of subnational or state constitutions in a variety of political and societal contexts.

Developing the building blocks of an explanatory theory of subnational constitutionalism, it will be essential to all those interested in comparative constitutional law, federalism and governance.

Transport Law on Passenger Rights

Edited by Marko Pavliha

Series: IMLI Studies in International Maritime Law

This book will cast light through a critical prism on the most important characteristics of the international transport law, the EU legislation and jurisprudence regarding passenger rights during the carriage by air, sea, rail and road. One of the ideas which, however, needs further research is that the commendable legal solutions and experience of the EU can serve as an excellent framework for a new holistic international convention on passengers rights in all transport modes.

The Origin of Copyright

Expression as Knowing in Being and Copyright Onto-Epistemology

Wenwei Guan, City University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong

Series: Routledge Research in Legal Philosophy

This book provides insights on the copyright evolution and how proprietary individual expression's copyright protection forms an integral part of our knowing in being, driven by the advances of technology through the proliferating trading frameworks.

Building on its onto-epistemological critiques on the stakeholder, force, and mechanism of copyright evolution, the book helps readers understand why, not only copyright, but also law in general, and justice too, need to be onto-epistemologically balanced, as this is categorically imperative for being, the fundamental law of nature.

Critical Mass

Understanding and Fixing the Social Roots of Mass Shootings in the United States

Dinur Blum and Christian González Jaworski

This book examines social patterns in 2,000 mass shootings in the United States between 2013 through 2020. While mass shootings are often described as psychological, the authors show that there are social factors that produce the anger needed to commit a mass shooting. These factors are fairly common and can be addressed to stem the anger earlier. The factors include chronic poverty, sudden unemployment, relationship problems, domestic violence, social isolation, and alcohol. Common social strains can metastasize and be lethally dangerous. By understanding the social factors, we can reduce the anger and frustration people feel that would drive them to killing others.

Child Protection in the Church

An Anglican Case Study

Michael Guerzoni

Series: Routledge Studies in Crime and Society

Child Protection in the Church investigates whether, amidst publicised promises of change from church institutions and the introduction of "safe church" policies and procedures, reform is actually occurring within Christian churches towards child protection; using a case study of the Anglican Diocese of Tasmania, Australia. Providing an insight into the lived reality of child protection within churches, and highlighting the ongoing complexities of safe ministry, the book is a useful companion to students, academics and practitioners of child protection and organisational studies, alongside clergy, church leaders and those training for the ministry.

Rhetoric of InSecurity

The Language of Danger, Fear and Safety in National and International Contexts

Victoria Baines

Series: Law, Language and Communication

This book demands that we question what we are told about security, using tools we have had for thousands of years.

The work considers the history of security rhetoric in a number of distinct but related contexts, including the United States' security strategy, the 'war' on Big Tech, and new concerns such as cybersecurity. Focusing on the language of security discourse, it draws common threads from the ancient world to the present day and the near future. ## Explaining Variation in Juvenile Punishment

The Role of Communities and Systems

Steven N. Zane

Series: Routledge Studies in Juvenile Justice and Delinquency

This research monograph provides a comparative analysis of juvenile court outcomes, exploring the influence of contextual factors on juvenile punishment across systems and communities. In doing so, it investigates whether, how, and to what extent context influences variation in juvenile punishment across these systems and communities. The contextual hypotheses under investigation evaluate three prominent macro-structural theoretical approaches: the conflict-oriented perspective of community threats, the consensus-oriented perspective of social disorganization, and an organizational perspective of the political economy of the juvenile court.

Charity Management

Leadership, Evolution, and Change

Sarah Mitchell

Series: Charity and Non-Profit Studies

Britain faces challenges that weren't imaginable thirty years ago, challenges which charities, rooted as they are in community action and the public good, should be ideally suited to tackle. Even after a decade of cuts and immense social and environmental disruption charities are still fighting hard to maintain business as usual. This book explores how charities in the UK really operate, as seen through the eyes of people who work in and with charities, and investigates what holds charities back from change. This volume is especially valuable for academics and professionals in the fields of charity and non-profit management, organisational change, and strategic management.

Series: Manufacturing and Production Engineering

The book identifies the quantitative measures to assess behavior induced risks by presenting a framework that limits the interpersonal tension of addressing behavioral risks. Included in the book is an illustrative case study in the oil and gas sector that demonstrates the use of the framework. The missing dimension of behavior-centric intangible risk factors in current risk identification is explored. The book goes on to cover management processes, providing a systematic analytical approach to mitigate subjectivity when addressing behavioral risks in projects.

Faithful Careers

Integrating the Catholic Faith and Work

Peter M. Smudde, Illinois State University, USA

In this book Peter Smudde contends that God calls us to live an "integrated life" that unifies both the spiritual and the secular aspects of life. Smudde demonstrates how the Catholic faith truly does apply to our labor, putting forth particular matters of the faith that pertain to faithful careers. He then applies pertinent teachings and concepts to real-world contexts, enabling lessons to be practically applied on a daily basis. Catholic professionals at all stages of their careers will welcome this insightful book, that explores the call to put spirituality in the foreground—to obtain ever-deeper faith and, thereby, greater integration of faith in everyday life and career.

Leading with Love

Rehumanising the Workplace

Karen Blakeley and Chris Blakeley

The book presents original research based on leaders who were nominated by their people for leading with love. It shows how they learned to lead with love for the benefit of themselves, their organisations and their people. It shows that leading with love is something that is practised by leaders who are more emotionally, morally and spiritually mature. Leading with love is a sign of psychological maturity whilst leading with fear is a sign of hindered emotional and spiritual development. Based on this research, the book presents a simple framework to help leaders who wish to develop this psychological maturity and apply practices which will enable them to successfully lead with love.

Business and Management Internships

Improving Employability through Experiential Learning

Kawana W. Johnson, North Carolina State University, USA.

Business schools are increasing their focus on experiential learning and are encouraging faculty to incorporate internships into their existing curriculum. Linking theory, history and practice, the book is ideal reading for students participating in an internship for academic credit and as a guidebook for business schools that wish to improve their academic internship program. It explains the benefits that experiential learning brings to the business student and the institution, and can be linked to work-based learning or an experiential learning module to deepen students' knowledge of both the theory and the practical aspects of an internship.

Supply Chain Processes

Developing Competitive Advantage through Supply Chain Process Excellence

Peter W. Robertson

Supply Chain Processes introduces readers to the view that genuine supply chain competitive advantage is achieved via supply chain excellence which in turn is underpinned by supply chain process excellence. The ultimate supply chain goal is to deliver the right product, of the right quality, in the right quantity, to the right place, at the right time and for the right cost. The author identifies four core supply chain processes – strategy, design, execution and people – to which the process improvement techniques explained can be applied to ensure superior supply chain performance.

The Strategic Manager

Understanding Strategy in Practice

Harry Sminia

The Strategic Manager provides a comprehensive, logical and applied insight in strategic management. Unlike some more theory-heavy texts, this book focuses on how strategy works in everyday practice, taking readers' expectations and understanding beyond that of strategy as a matter of planning only. It enables the reader to learn and reflect upon their practical skills and knowledge, and critically evaluate the strategy process and their own decision-making. Essential reading for postgraduate students of Strategic Management, MBA students and those in executive education, this text will also be a useful tool for reflective managers trying to develop a better understanding.

Accounting Ethics Education

Making Ethics Real

Edited by Alberto J. Costa and Margarida M. Pinheiro

Series: Routledge Studies in Accounting

Accounting education ought to prepare future professionals to enter a principle-based, rules-oriented field of activity wherein technical knowledge of accounting standards (principles, rules and decision-procedures) and ethical awareness (capacity to discern moral issues and resolve ethical dilemmas) are crucial. Examining multiple perspectives, the book improves the scholarly debate by providing cutting edge and insightful research, vital for all those interested and immersed in these matters. It will be of great value to academics, students, researchers, and professionals in the fields of accounting, accounting education and ethics.

Auditor Going Concern Reporting

A Review of Global Research and Future Research Opportunities

Marshall A. Geiger, Anna Gold and Philip Wallage

Series: Routledge Studies in Accounting

This monograph reviews and synthesizes 182 recent GCO studies that have appeared since the last significant review published in 2013 through the end of 2019. The authors categorize studies into the three broad areas of GCO 1) determinants, 2) accuracy, and 3) consequences. As an integral part of their synthesis, they summarize the details of each study in several user-friendly tables. After discussing and synthesizing the research, they present a discussion of opportunities for future research, including issues created or exacerbated as a result of the global COVID-19 pandemic.

Budgeting and Performance Management in the Public Sector

Sara Giovanna Mauro

Series: Routledge Focus on Accounting and Auditing

This book reviews and investigates the key components of NPM, NPM and PV, and discusses what lies beyond these acronyms. Specifically, this book stands out in its use of performance measurement and budgetary lenses to explore the multidimensional processes of reform and change in the public sector. By focusing on the crucially important transformations that have occurred in the field, reviewing several paradigms and analysing different practices from a longitudinal and comparative perspective, the book will be essential in guiding students and scholars of public management and accounting.

Business, Entrepreneurship and Innovation Toward Poverty Reduction

Edited by Steven Si, David Ahlstrom, Wei Jiang and John Cullen, Washington State University, USA

This book provides new and valuable analyses of poverty and business, entrepreneurship, and innovation in the current nations and regions including developing and developed countries. As business, entrepreneurship, and innovation can help to generate greater business activity in settings of severe poverty, they will help to solve poverty as individuals in severe poverty are able to both generate greater incomes and accumulate greater assets as they participate with those large firms in those activities.

The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the Entrepreneurship & Regional Development.

Citizen Activities in Energy Transition

User Innovation, New Communities, and the Shaping of a Sustainable Future

Sampsa Hyysalo, Aalto University, School of Art, Design and Architecture

Series: Routledge Studies in Innovation, Organizations and Technology

This book addresses the rapidly changing citizen roles in innovation, technology adoption, intermediation, market creation and legitimacy building for low-carbon solutions. It links research in innovation studies, sustainability transitions and science & technology studies and builds a new approach for the study of user contributions to innovation and sociotechnical change. Academics, policy makers and managers are given a new resource to understand the "demand side" of sociotechnical change beyond the patterns of investment, adoption and social acceptance that have traditionally occupied their attention.

Corporate Research Laboratories and the History of Innovation

David M. Pithan

Series: Routledge Studies in Management, Organizations and Society

With the beginning of the twentieth century, American corporations in the chemical and electrical industries began establishing industrial research laboratories. Some went on to become world-famous. Innovative ideas do not simply appear out of the blue and spread on their own merit. Rather, the laboratory's diffusion takes place in a cultural context that goes beyond corporate capital and technological change. Using discourse analysis as a method to comprehensively capture the organizational field of the early American R&D laboratories from 1870 to 1930, this book uncovers the collective meanings associated with the industrial laboratory.

Digital Dawn in Adland

Transforming Australian Agencies

Robert Crawford, University of Technology, Sydney

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of Marketing

A historical study of Australian advertising agencies from the late 90s into present century, this book provides a compelling account of the emerging and profound impact of the digital era on a powerful but complacent industry. Based on reports, company archives, and over fifty interviews with practitioners across the range of agency departments, this in-depth history reveals how power shifts between agencies and other media platforms forged our current landscape of advertiser-funded digital media. For scholars of marketing, media, communication and contemporary history, this is an illuminating perspective on the early impact of the digital revolution and its relevance today.

Digital Entrepreneurship and the Sharing Economy

Edited by Evgueni Vinogradov, Birgit Leick and Djamchid Assadi

Series: Routledge Studies in Entrepreneurship

The digital and increasingly digitised world is shaped by the interplay of new technological opportunities and ubiquitous societal trends. These developments facilitate the rise of the sharing economy and open for a variety of new entrepreneurial opportunities that businesses can take up. The novel entrepreneurial opportunities, however, imply a paradigmatic shift in the understanding of entrepreneurship. This book combines digital entrepreneurship with the sharing economy. It presents cutting-edge research for scholars and practitioners interested in either one of the topics – digital entrepreneurship or sharing economy – or their connection.

Foundations of a Sustainable Economy

Moral, Ethical and Religious Perspectives

Edited by Umar Burki, Toseef Azid, Qassim University, College of Business and Economics and Robert Dahlstrom, Farmer School of Business, University of Miami Ohio, USA.

Series: Finance, Governance and Sustainability

This book addresses current practices related to sustainable development, its challenges, and the future. The authors make the case that to achieve sustainability, government, society and the economy must ensure a platform for people to participate in decision-making and benefit from the rights they are accorded. By covering a range of perspectives across economic, social and moral life, the book will shed light on the problems and possible solutions to sustainable development and the triple bottom line (TBL), of people, planet and profit, under the umbrella of morals and divine law.

How Ideas Move

Theories and Models of Translation in Organizations

John Damm Scheuer, Roskilde University, Denmark

Series: Routledge Studies in Innovation, Organizations and Technology

When implementing ideas into practice, companies must take into account that in order to carry out innovative change, translation is key. From strategic and leadership changes to policy decisions and ideas about concepts like "LEAN", "TQM" and "BPR" are introduced to improve organizational processes. This book builds on the research done in translation studies of change in organizations and show the implications and application of these findings for managing innovation and change. This vital study will be a must read for researchers, students and practitioners including change agents, general managers, public servants as well as strategic managers and policy-decision-makers.

Leadership, Organizational Change and Sensemaking

Ronald Skea

Series: Routledge Studies in Organizational Change & Development

Organizational change literature focuses on the leaders role in giving sense to others of the need for change and there is a plethora of models and recipes on how to influence employees thinking about change, organizational design and performance. Notwithstanding this ready supply of advice, research has shown that up to 90% of change programs fail to deliver their expected outcomes. This book surfaces the elements behind leader sensemaking that add to or detract from their ability to critically question their current thinking.

Knowledge Management in the Development of Data-Intensive Systems

Edited by Ivan Mistrik, Matthias Galster, Bruce R. Maxim and Bedir Tekinerdogan

The advent of big data and software-intensive systems utilizing big data opens a new area of growth for innovation and software development. Accordingly, software engineers need to enhance traditional software development processes, practices, and techniques. This can be done by including explicit knowledge construction and management in software development and by supporting system design and development as a process of social construction of shared knowledge. This edited book explores the application of established software engineering practices to developing big data systems, enhanced with dedicated knowledge management during software development.

Managing IT for Innovation

Dynamic Capabilities and Competitive Advantage

Mitsuru Kodama

Series: Routledge Studies in Innovation, Organizations and Technology

With recent advances in IT in areas such as AI and IoT, collaboration systems such as business chat, conferencing systems and unified communications are rapidly becoming widely used as new applications in global corporations' strategic activities. Through in-depth longitudinal studies of global corporations, the book presents a new theoretical framework and implications for IT-enabled dynamic capabilities using collaboration systems from the perspective of micro strategy theory and organization theory. Primarily written for academics, researchers and graduate students, but will also offer practical implications for business leaders and managers.

New Frontiers in Real Estate Finance

The Rise of Micro Markets

Patrick Lecomte, Henley Business School, University of Reading, Malaysia

Series: Routledge Studies in International Real Estate

This book introduces three innovative concepts and associated financial instruments with the potential to revolutionize real estate finance. With factorisation, digitalisation and tokenisation, commercial real estate is at the forefront of innovations. Factor-based property derivatives, digital rights and tokens embody how commercial real estate can push the boundaries of modern capitalism and, in doing so, move at the centre of tomorrow's smart economies. This book is essential reading for all real estate, finance and smart technology researchers and interested professionals.

Ownership and Governance of Companies

Essays from South Africa and the Global South

Edited by Jonathan Michie, Oxford University, UK and Vishnu Padayachee, University of KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa

Why have alternative corporate forms not been pursued more vigorously, with ownership in the hands of customers, employees, and local communities? In the case of South Africa, where the majority of customers and employees are black, this could have delivered on the ANC's mission to replace the apartheid era with a democratic one. This edited volume explores this and looks at ways to align corporate forms with economic and social goals.

Philosophy and Leadership

Three Classical Models and Cases

Brent Edwin Cusher and Mark Antonio Menaldo

Series: Leadership Horizons

This book connects three classic works of philosophy (Plato, Aristotle and Machiavelli) to contemporary research on leadership, and clarifies how these works apply to current leaders' ethical thinking and doing in a quick and easy-to-digest format. This book is ideal for readers who are acquainted with philosophy and those who are uninitiated. The connections made between philosophy, leadership literature, and real-life leaders enable readers to appreciate how deeper reflection into the themes of leadership might merit scholarly attention and bear witness to the close union between the philosophy of leadership and the real world.

Public Value and the Digital Economy

Usman W. Chohan

Series: Routledge Advances in Management and Business Studies

How can the public manager create and co-create value in the digital economy? There is a pressing need to recontextualize public value theory, specifically in the fluid and dynamic environment that the digital economy has produced. This is why a conceptually-driven exercise in contemporizing PVT would be of great value to public administration's theoreticians seeking to lead the theory in catching up to the praxis. This book seeks to answer the question of creating and co-creating public managerial value by proposing chapters that revisit categories central to the functions of public managers in relation to other value-creating agents under PVT.

The Emergence of Corporate Governance

People, Power and Performance

Edited by Knut Sogner and Andrea Colli, Bocconi University, Italy

Series: Routledge International Studies in Business History

Corporate governance is not just about models of best practice organization or prescriptions following laws or social conventions. Corporate governance is also about persons of power-seeking performance, and they do so in ways that transcend structures and pre-conceived notions of the structural set-up of the business. This book emphasizes the decision-making dimensions of corporate governance, placing it right in the messy middle of the ever-changing world of capitalism, focussing on the interplay between professional managers and shareholders.

Trademarks and Their Role in Innovation, Entrepreneurship and Industrial Organization

Edited by Carolina Castaldi, Joern Block and Meindert J. Flikkema

This booktakes stock of the emerging academic research on how companies use trademarks. It collects a rich set of contributions from several research perspectives and disciplines and proposes an integrated view bridging different levels of analysis: individual, firm, industry, and country level. Specifically, the book combines an industrial organisation, innovation and entrepreneurship perspective to understand why, when and with what effects entrepreneurs, innovators and firms use trademarks.

A History of Cold War Industrialisation

Finnish Shipbuilding between East and West

Saara Matala

Series: Perspectives in Economic and Social History

A History of Cold War Industrialisation charts the development of the Finnish shipbuilding industry from the Second World War to the EU membership and shows how the industrialisation took form in the polarised context of the Cold War. The prolonged confrontation between east and west politicised technology worldwide, but the historiographic attention has been focused merely on military powers or strategic industries. This book examines the material and economic consequences of the global Cold War in a small neutral country and civilian industry.

A History of International Monetary Diplomacy, 1867 to the Present

The Rise of the Guardian State and Economic Sovereignty in a Globalizing World

Giulio M. Gallarotti, Wesleyan University, USA

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

As voting was expanded to the masses in the late 19th Century, political leaders faced new pressures to deliver prosperity to their newly enfranchised populations. A History of Monetary Diplomacy, 1867 to the Present details and explores how the rise of democracy has transformed economics over the past 150 years. This book clearly demonstrates the advantages of an interdisciplinary understanding of how politics shapes economics, and will be invaluable reading for students and scholars of international economics, politics and economic history.

A Market Process Theory of the Firm

An Alternative to the Neoclassical Model

Mateusz Machaj

Series: Routledge Studies in the Economics of Business and Industry

This book demonstrates how a successful theory of the firm can be presented without flawed notions of a neoclassical framework and used to comprehend actual business history. The author argues that we should start from the assumption that businesses are inevitably heterogeneous, as that is their nature, in the process of economic evolution. This is a valuable reference for scholars and researchers who are interested in a range of topics from microeconomics, through pricing theory to industrial organization, history of economic thought and managerial economics.

Asian Foreign Direct Investment in Europe

Edited by Prana Krishna Biswas and Robert Dygas

Series: Routledge Studies in the Modern World Economy

This book analyses the most recent trends in Foreign Direct Investment from the major Asian economies to the EU, focusing on China and Japan's FDI in the EU, and Poland in particular. The authors assert that, from a European perspective, there is a strong need for further Asian FDI into EU nations, which will establish mutual benefits. This is the first book to explore the outflow of FDI from Asian nations to other countries, especially to EU member states, whereas the extant literature focuses on the inflow of FDI to Asian nations. It will be particularly useful for graduate and PhD students of International Economics, Business and Trade.

It includes a ranking of countries most and least likely to be affected by Brexit, identification of the main determinants of the expansion of companies on the British market and the creation of a typology of strategies used by these companies. The book is a complex and multidimensional research work that draws its roots from distinct yet simultaneously interlinked research area and will find a broad audience among academics and students across diverse fields of study, as well as practitioners and policy makers.

False Feedback in Economics

The Case for Replication

Andrin Spescha

Series: Routledge Studies in Economic Theory, Method and Philosophy

This book provides a comprehensive account of the challenges encountered in empirical economics. It explains approaches used implicitly by researchers and shows where they are adequate and where they break down. The author asserts that the main impediment to progress in economics is "false feedback", which is defined as a false result in an empirical study, such as empirical evidence produced by a statistical model that violates some of its assumptions. Because false feedback is hard to recognize, economists have difficulty knowing where they stand in their inquiries and regularly leads them to the wrong conclusions.

Foundations of Modern Slavery

Profiles of Unfree and Coerced Labor Through the Ages

Caf Dowlah

Series: Routledge Studies in Labour Economics

This is a rigorous academic inquiry into how labor power has been dehumanized and commodified around the world through the ages for creation of wealth, capital accumulation, and industrialization. Major forms of unfree and involuntary labor markets around the world—from slavery to serfdom, from feudalism to indentured servitude, from guestworker programs to human-trafficking—have been analyzed theoretically and empirically from multidisciplinary and comparative perspectives.

Intellectual Property in Russia

Natalia M. Udalova, National Research University, Higher School of Economics, Russia and Anna S. Vlasova, National Research University, Higher School of Economics, Russia

Series: Routledge Studies in the Economics of Business and Industry

Intellectual property rights are essential for a firm's competitive edge and success and form the significant assets for many firms. The authors of this book argue that intellectual property is a complex phenomenon, which inevitably requires a combination of both economic and legal considerations, because the lack of understanding of the mechanisms for the protection and preservation of IP can serve to undermine any of the potential economic benefits. The book will find an audience among researchers concerned with the economics and law of intellectual property, as well as, policymakers and practitioners involved in business IP.

Islamic Financial Contracts

A Research Companion

Hussain Mohi-ud-Din Qadri, Minhaj University, Pakistan and Nasir Iqbal

Series: Islamic Business and Finance Series

Islam encourages business and financial transactions as a way of securing the basic needs for all human beings, but these need to be conducted in accordance with the principles contained in the Qur'an and Sunnah. However, these legal concepts are not classified subject-wise, and the verses on commercial law, like all other topics, are scattered throughout the Qur'an, making it difficult for readers to gain a full understanding of the topic. This, therefore, is the first comprehensive book to demystify Islamic Contract Law and specifically Islamic Financial Contracts, and to examine its roots and history.

Inflation Targeting and Central Banks

Institutional Set-ups and Monetary Policy Effectiveness

Joanna Niedźwiedzińska

Series: Banking, Money and International Finance

Over the last three decades, inflation targeting (IT) has become the most popular monetary policy framework among larger economies. At the same time, its constituting features leave room for different interpretations, translating into various central banks' institutional set-ups. Against this backdrop, this book investigates the importance of institutional arrangements for policy outcomes. In particular, the book answers the question whether there are significant differences in IT central banks' institutional set-ups, and—if yes—whether they influence the ability of monetary authorities to meet their policy goals.

John Locke and the Bank of England

Claude Roche, University of Lille, France and Carl Pitchford

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of Economics

John Locke was one of the first shareholders of the Bank of England and participated in Parliamentary debates surrounding its creation. He had a key role in the monetary reform of 1696. This book examines Locke's thought in relation to credit, banking regulation, the monetary and financial system, the gold standard and the principles of Natural Right. It also establishes a link between Locke's economic and financial ideas and his political philosophy.

North Eurasian Trade in World History, 1660–1860

The Economic and Political Importance of the Baltic Sea

Werner Scheltjens

Series: Perspectives in Economic and Social History

This book offers the first long-term analysis of the protracted struggle between Britain, France, Prussia, Russia and Sweden for economic power and political influence in the northern part of the Eurasian continent between 1660 and 1860. The book shows how their commercial, diplomatic and military entanglements determined the course of Baltic trade from the late 17th to the mid-19th century, provoking, among other things, the decline of the Dutch Republic and the partitions of Poland-Lithuania. It is invaluable reading for students and scholars interested in world history, East European history, and the history of international relations and trade.

Markets in their Place

Context, Culture, Finance

Edited by Russell Prince, Massey University, New Zealand, Matthew Henry, Massey University, New Zealand, Carolyn Morris, Massey University, New Zealand, Aisling Gallagher, Massey University, New Zealand and Stephen FitzHerbert

Series: Routledge Frontiers of Political Economy

This book approaches markets from the ground up, and from a part of the world often still regarded as peripheral to global capitalism: the South Pacific. With a wide variety of case studies, including on indigenous economies, childcare, agriculture, finance, education, and housing, the authors show how complex local, social and cultural politics matter to how markets are made within and between places, and the insights that can be gleaned from studying markets in this part of the world. The book will be of particular interest to scholars and students working in and between economic geography, cultural economy, political economy, economic sociology, and more.

Pricing Carbon Emissions

Economic Reality and Utopia

Aviel Verbruggen

Series: Routledge Explorations in Environmental Economics

Pricing Carbon Emissions provides an economic critique on the utopian idea of a uniform carbon price for addressing rising carbon emissions, exposing the flaws in the economic propositions with a key focus on the EU's Emissions Trading System (ETS). The chapters build up understanding of orthodox economics' role in protecting the neoliberal paradigm. This book is written for a broad audience interested in climate policy eager to understand why decarbonizing progress is slow as it is. It marks a significant addition to the literature on climate politics, carbon pricing and the political economy of the environment more broadly.

Progressive Policies for Economic Development

Economic Diversification and Social Inclusion after Climate Change

Alfredo Saad-Filho

Despite the unprecedented gravity of the challenges posed by global warming, most political systems have not given them the required priority. The oil industry has resisted, and many countries have taken only token measures to reduce emissions and mitigate the worst effects. In this context, this book examines the progressive options available to today's developing countries as they face the limitations of neoliberalism and the existential challenge of global warming. This agenda for progressive economic development is essential reading for anyone interested in heterodox economics, development studies, international politics, international relations and sustainable business.

The Macroeconomics of Malthus

John Pullen

Series: Routledge Studies in the History of Economics

The views of Thomas Robert Malthus (1766–1834) on population continue to be hotly debated, either acclaimed or opposed, as do his views on microeconomics. There is also a widely held view that his macroeconomics lacks coherence and is more a collection of isolated jottings. This book challenges this assumption by presenting textual evidence that Malthus' macroeconomics constitutes a significant system of thought with considerable academic merit. This combination of a search for textual authenticity and a critical assessment of the views of commentators on Malthus will be of significant interest to students and scholars of economic theory and the history of economics.

The Political Economy of New India

Raju J Das

Critical of the economic and political power relations in contemporary India, this book is written from the vantagepoint of the working masses whose basic economic and democratic rights remain unmet. The essays that make up the book provide short critical commentaries on different aspects of Indian society undergoing significant changes in recent times. The essays are conceptually driven and include empirical details, but they generally avoid the usual perils of academicism, by expressing complicated ideas in a relatively simple language and by drawing out their practical implications.

Fundamentals of Capturing and Processing Drone Imagery and Data

Edited by Amy E. Frazier and Kunwar K. Singh

Unmanned Aircraft Systems are rapidly emerging as flexible platforms for capturing imagery and other data across sciences. Many colleges and universities are developing courses on UAS-based data acquisition. This book is a comprehensive, introductory text on how to use unmanned aircraft systems for data capture and analysis. It provides best practices for planning data capture missions and hands-on learning modules geared toward UAS data collection, processing, and applications. Readers will learn how to process different types of UAS imagery for applications such as Precision Agriculture, Forestry, Urban Landscapes, and apply this knowledge in environmental monitoring and land-use studies.

Cities Without Capitalism

Edited by Hossein Sadri and Senem Zeybekoglu

Series: Routledge Studies in Urbanism and the City

This book explores the interconnections between urbanization and capitalism to examine the current condition of cities due to capitalism. It brings together interdisciplinary insights from leading academics, activists and researchers to envision progressive, anti-capitalist changes for the future of cities.

The book also includes current debates on COVID-19 pandemic to consider post-pandemic challenges in envisioning a de-capitalised, eco-friendly society in the immediate future. It will be useful for academics and professionals in the fields of sociology, urban planning and design and urban studies.

Disclosing Elite Ecologies

Methodologies For 'Doing' Urban Elite Research

Edited by Bas van Heur and Bassens David, Vrije Universiteit Brussels, Belgium

Disclosing elite ecologies: Methodologies for 'doing' Urban Elite Research offers a set of methodologies to chart urban elites. Whereas most research has focused on the global super-rich, this book pays specific attention to the multidimensional urban geographies of elite reproduction and transformation, as elites depend on urban contexts for capital accumulation, consumption and leisure, and housing.

Internal Colonialism and International Relations

Tracks of Decolonization in Bolivia

Ana Carolina Teixeira Delgado, Universidade Federal da Integração Latino-Americana, Brazil

Series: Worlding Beyond the West

This book investigates decolonization as a local process and its connections to international relations, introducing "internal colonialism" as a crucial analytical category for internationalists. Using Bolivia as a case study, the author argues that the reshaping of colonialism and its resistance domestically is also reflected and reproduced abroad by political actors, be they the governments or indigenous movements. Of interest to scholars and students of IR, Latin American and Andean Studies, this book will also appeal to those working in the fields of area studies, anthropology, indigenous politics, comparative politics, decolonization and political ecology.

Monitoring Continuous Phenomena

Background, Methods and Solutions

Peter Lorkowski

The monitoring of continuous phenomena like temperature, soil moisture or air pollutants is becoming more common due to the availability of cheaper and better sensor infrastructure. Better methods for processing, storing and provisioning the data produced by such observations are still evolving. The fundamental features among them are interpolation, real-time provisioning, critical states definitions (e.g. exceeded threshold of the daily mean) and field data type management. The book gives an overview of monitoring and proposes several solutions for problems that occur in this context.

Smart Spaces and Places

Edited by Ling Bian, State University of New York

Smart Spaces and Places addresses questions such as how to make spaces and places 'smart', how the 'smartness' affects the way we think spaces and places, and what role geographies play in knowledge production and decision making in a 'smart' era. The collection of 21 chapters offers stimulating discussion over the meaning of spaces, places, and smartness; scientific insights into smartness; social-political views of smartness, and policy implications of smartness.

The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of Annals of the American Association of Geographers.

The Imaginary of Animals

Annabelle Dufourcq

Series: Routledge Human-Animal Studies Series

This book explores the phenomenon of animal imagination and its profound power over the human imagination. It examines the structural and ethical role that the human imagination must play to provide an interface between humans' subjectivity and the real cognitive capacities of animals.

Drawing on works in phenomenology, contemporary animal philosophy, as well as ethological evidence and biosemiotics, this book is the first to rethink the traditional philosophical concepts of imagination, images, the imaginary, and reality. It will appeal to philosophers, scholars and students in the field of animal studies, as well as anyone interested in human and

Informal Urbanization in Latin America

Collaborative Transformations of Public Spaces

Christian Werthmann

Various kinds of informal and extra-legal settlements—commonly called shantytowns, favelas, or barrios—are the prevailing type of urban land use in much of the developing world. Informal Urbanization in Latin America investigates prevailing strategies for addressing informal settlements, which started to shift away from large-scale slum clearance to on-site upgrading in Latin America over the last forty years, by improving its public spaces, infrastructure and facilities. The book is a must-read for all who are interested or working in the global urbanization as well as social equity.

The Humanitarian Machine

Reflections from Practice

Edited by Diego Fernandez Otegui and Daryl Yoder-Bontrager

Series: Routledge Humanitarian Studies

In The Humanitarian Machine aid workers reflect on their own experiences of working in crisis. As they write about their work and the ways in which they each approach the challenges of helping people, they comment on some of the most vexing issues facing the humanitarian sector. Each speaks from their own perspective, asking tough questions, sharing thoughtful reflections about their ongoing work and unpacking what it really means to be a humanitarian worker. The stories they tell, whether recounting a specific experience or reflecting on years of practice, reveal the dilemmas they face and demystify the overly romanticized aura that sometimes surrounds humanitarian practice.

Sustainability Accounting and Accountability

Matias Laine, Helen Tregidga and Jeffrey Unerman, Royal Holloway, University of London, UK

This bookwalks the reader through a spectrum of themes, which are essential for all accountants and organisations. It helps the reader to understand why our traditional accounting techniques and systems are not sufficient for navigating the contemporary sustainability challenges our societies are facing. Each chapter is supplemented with practical examples and academic reading lists to allow in-depth engagement with the key questions. This key book will be an essential resource for undergraduate and postgraduate instructors and students, as an entry point to sustainability accounting and accountability, as well as being a vital book for researchers.

Human Development and the Catholic Social Tradition

Towards an Integral Ecology

Séverine Deneulin

Series: Routledge Research in Religion and Development

This book brings development theory and practice into dialogue with the religious tradition, in order to construct a new, trans-disciplinary vision of development, with integral ecology at its heart. It focuses on the Catholic social tradition and its conception of integral human development on the one hand, and on the works of economist and philosopher Amartya Sen which underpin the human development approach on the other. This book is written for researchers and students in development studies, theology, and religious studies, as well as professional audiences in development organisations.

Indigenous Peoples, Heritage and Landscape in the Asia Pacific

Knowledge Co-Production and Empowerment

Edited by Stephen Acabado and Da-wei Kuan

Series: Routledge Studies in Indigenous Peoples and Policy

This book demonstrates how collaboration between researchers, local stakeholders and indigenous communities can lead to the co-production of knowledge and the empowerment of communities. This volume looks at local and indigenous relations to the landscape, showing how applied scholarship and collaborative research can work to empower indigenous and descendant communities. With cases ranging across Indonesia, Thailand, Taiwan, the Philippines, Cambodia, Pohnpei, Guam, and Easter Island, this book demonstrates the many ways in which co-production of knowledge is reconnecting local and indigenous relations to the landscape, and diversifying the philosophy of human-land relations.

Women Reinventing Development

The Odisha Experience

Edited by Asha Hans, Amrita Patel, Bidyut Mohanty and Swarnamayee Tripathy

Women in the State of Odisha have played an important role in development, however they remain mostly invisible in policy and research. This anthology undertakes a journey from the States' rich historical tradition to its present stage of development to locate women's spaces in this process. Through discussing areas of health, education, employment, migration and political role of women in decision-making institutions, the authors suggest that only when women or any oppressed groups gained substantially on these fronts, would it have greater dignity and power in society.

Sustainable Work and the Environmental Crisis

The Link between Labour and Climate Change

Chris Baldry and Jeff Hyman

Compared to twenty years ago, the jobs many people do today are increasingly characterised by low pay and insecurity, while countless others cope with workplace stress and ill-health. The consequences of our current model of economic activity are creating dangerous and critical changes in the planet's climate. This book demonstrates that there are definite and complex connections between degraded jobs and a degraded environment. ## The Politics of the Sustainable Development Goals

Legitimacy, Responsibility, and Accountability

Magdalena Bexell, Lund University, Sweden and Kristina Jönsson

Series: Routledge Studies in Sustainable Development

This book draws attention to political aspects of sustainable development goal-setting, exploring the Sustainable Development Goals at the global-national nexus during their first five years. This book explores three concepts to call attention to political qualities of processes related to the SDGs: legitimacy, responsibility, and accountability. Legitimacy is required to obtain broad political ownership for policy goals in order for them to become effective in addressing cross-border sustainability challenges. Responsibility needs to be clearly distributed among political institutions if a long-term set of broad goals such as the SDGs are to be realised.

An Ethnography of the Parsees of India

1886–1936

Edited by A. M. Shah and Lancy Lobo, Centre for Culture and Development, Vadodra

This volume explores a wide spectrum of Parsee culture and society derived through essays from the Journal of Anthropological Society of Bombay (1886 – 1936). Through contributions of Jivanji Jamshedji Modi, Bomanjee Byramjee Patell, Rustamji Munshi, eminent Parsee scholars, the essays in this book discuss the social and cultural frameworks which constitute various key phases in the Parsee life nearly a hundred years ago. An important contribution on Parsi culture and living, this book will be of great interest to scholars and researchers of sociology, social anthropology, ethnography, cultural studies, history, and South Asia studies.

Front-Line Workers in the Global Service Economy

Overshadowed and Overstretched in the Fast Fashion World

Giovanna Fullin, University of Milano-Bicocca, Italy

Following three years of field work with front-line retail workers and unionists in New York City and Milan, this book investigates both the lived experiences of salespersons in the 'fast fashion' industry as well as the possibilities of collective action and structured forms of resistance to these global trends. In the face of economic globalization and vigorous managerial efforts to minimize labor costs and to standardize the retail experience, mass fashion workers' stories tell us how strong the pressure towards work devaluation in low skilled service sectors can be, and how devastating its effects are on the workers' themselves.

Max Weber's Sociology of Civilizations: A Reconstruction

Stephen Kalberg, Boston University, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Social and Political Thought

This book contributes to the establishment of the new field of civilizational analysis. A guidebook that assists social scientists in identifying and explaining the origins, contours, and trajectories of civilizations, it approaches the analysis of civilizations through the works of Max Weber. It will appeal to comparative sociologists and historians, as well as to social theorists of all persuasions.

Gen Z

Between Climate Crisis and Coronavirus Pandemic

Klaus Hurrelmann, Hertie School of Governance, Germany and Erik Albrecht

Gen Z is a vital, thought-provoking portrait of an astonishing generation. Drawing on firsthand interviews and empirical evidence, it offers insight into the boom in political activism amongst those born post-2000, exploring its roots and wide implications for the future of our society. Gen Z is a compelling study of how fighting the climate crisis is only the beginning for these young people. It offers insight for all those interested in the study of adolescence and emerging adulthood, as well as teachers, youth workers, civil society activists, policymakers, politicians and parents who want to understand young people's aspirations for the future.

On Vulnerability

A Critical Introduction

Patrick Brown, University of Amsterdam, The Netherlands

On Vulnerability maps out an array of perspectives for critically examining the nature of vulnerability, its unequal patterning across different social groups, alongside the everyday social processes which make us vulnerable – interactions, identity and group dynamics.

Each chapter provides the reader with a sensitising framework for navigating and questioning what it means to be vulnerable or how people cope amid vulnerability. This book is designed to equip undergraduate and post-graduate students and researchers across the social, health and human sciences, aiding their students on the experiences and structures of vulnerability in our social world.

Inequality in a Context of Climate Crisis after COVID

A Complex Realist Approach

David Byrne, University of Durham, UK

Series: Complexity in Social Science

Inequality in a Context of Climate Crisis after COVID uses a complex realist approach to examine the crisis of three interconnected problems: economic inequality, climate change, and the COVID-19 pandemic.

Contributing to our thinking about dynamic social systems, this text deploys complex realism to understand our trajectory towards increasing inequality. This book will be of interest to students and scholars across the social sciences, in particular to those studying social inequality, climate change, heterodox economics, complex systems, and Master's students in programmes with an applied focus.

Rise of the Spectacular

America in the 1950s

John Hannigan

In this prequel to Fantasy City: Pleasure and Profit in the Postmodern Metropolis (1998), his acclaimed book about the post-industrial city as a site of theming, branding and simulated spaces, sociologist John Hannigan travels back in time to the 1950s. Unfairly stereotyped as 'the tranquillized decade', America at mid-century hosted an escalating proliferation and conjunction of 'spectacular' events, spaces, and technologies. Rise of the Spectacular will appeal to architects, landscape designers, geographers, sociologists, historians, and leisure/tourism researchers, as well as non-academic readers who are by a fascinating era in history.

Society and the Death of God

Sal Restivo, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in the Sociology of Religion

From a sociological and anthropological perspective, this book provides a scientific argument for the position that God and the gods are human creations, contending that the severity of the threats currently faced by the world requires us to correct our errors and re-establish belonging and compassion on a non-transcendental foundation. A wide-ranging study of the roots, nature and purpose of religion and theistic belief, Society and the Death of God will appeal to sociologists, social theorists and philosophers with interests in the scientific study of religion and the role of religion in the life of humankind.

Incarceration without Conviction

Understanding the Collateral Consequences of Pretrial Detention

Mikaela Rabinowitz

Series: Sociology Re-Wired

Drawing on extensive legal data to address an understudied fairness flaw in the criminal justice system, this book details how pretrial detention drives guilty pleas and fuels mass incarceration—especially of Black Americans. She documents the myriad harms that being detained wreaks on people's lives and well-being, even without conviction. Rabinowitz argues that pretrial detention erodes the very meaning of innocence in the criminal justice legal system.

Migration, Racism, and Labor Exploitation in the World-System

Edited by Denis O'Hearn and Paul Ciccantell

Series: Political Economy of the World-System Annuals

Since the early expansion of the world-system, the movement of people has been its central process. It creates a contradiction between capital's need to direct labor to where it enables profitability, and the desires of large sections of dominant populations to keep subordinate people of color marginalized and separate. This volume analyses this system and ends with a vision of a future where communities from below can come together to create a society that overcomes racism. Its final chapter is a hopeful call by Immanuel Wallerstein for people to make small changes that can bring real about real, revolutionary change.

The Global Left

Yesterday, Today, Tomorrow

Immanuel Wallerstein

This book presents a new assessment of global dynamics by Immanuel Wallerstein, with additional chapters by prominent social theorists. Global Left is a different concept from globalization and speaks to the analysis of global change and its implications both for intellectual understanding and political action. Wallerstein considers anti-systemic movements, dilemmas of the left in relation to the structural crisis of the modern world-system, and tactics and strategies for political action. The book includes new essays by Etienne Balibar, John K. Galbraith, Johan Galtung, Nilufer Gole, and Pablo Gonzalez Casanova in conversation with Wallerstein's core ideas.

The Pluriverse of Human Rights: The Diversity of Struggles for Dignity

The Diversity of Struggles for Dignity

Edited by Boaventura De Sousa Santos and Bruno Sena Martins

Series: Epistemologies of the South

The impasse currently affecting human rights as a language used to express struggles for dignity is, to a large extent, a reflection of the epistemological and political exhaustion which blights the global North. Inspired by struggles from all corners of the world that reveal the potential but, above all, the limitations of human rights, this book offers a highly conditional response to the prevailing notion of human rights today, as the hegemonic language of human dignity, that can only be resignified on the basis of answers to simple questions: why does so much unjust human suffering exist that is not considered a violation of human rights?

Anxiety in Middle-Class America

Sociology of Emotional Insecurity in Late Modernity

Valérie de Courville Nicol, Concordia University, Canada

Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology

Showing how Americans have massively turned to a self-help empowerment model to manage chronic feelings of insecurity, Anxiety in Middle-Class America explains why no group has ever been as anxious about anxiety and interested in tackling it as a moral and personal problem.

In providing a sociologically informed account of some of the most widespread emotional troubles of late modern life and the unique historical pressures that promote them, this work will be of interest to researchers in a broad range of fields, from sociology, anthropology, and mind/body/society studies, to cultural history, communications, and social philosophy.

Claiming Citizenship and Nation

Muslim Politics and State Building in North India, 1947–1986

Aishwarya Pandit, Assistant Professor, Jindal Global Law School, New Delhi

The book provides insight into the changing nature of Muslim politics and the ideas of citizenship in independent India. It studies the electoral mobilization of minority groups across North India, particularly in Uttar Pradesh where Muslims have been demographically dominant in various constituencies. The volume discusses themes such as the making and unmaking of the 'Congress heartland' and the threat of revival of 'Muslim communalism', alongside issues of representation, property, language politics, rehabilitation and citizenship, politics of Waqf, personal law and Hindu counter-mobilization.

Late Escapism and Contemporary Neoliberalism

Alienation, Work and Utopia

Greg Sharzer, Kyung Hee University, South Korea

This book suggests that escapism – the desire to leave one's physical or emotional circumstances for an ideal alternative – is a way to understand the social conflicts that structure our world. Considering this phenomenon across psychology, labour and cultural studies, the author suggests it has much to teach us about contemporary consciousness and how we resist and reshape the edicts of neoliberalism. It examines how escapism appears in our minds, workplaces and utopian imaginaries from fiction to music and as such, emerges as a constitutive feature of the late capitalist lifeworld that must be understood in order to create social change.

Migration Control and Access to Welfare

The Precarious Inclusion of Irregular Migrants in Norway

Marry-Anne Karlsen, University of Bergen, Norway

Series: On Edge: Ethnographies and Theories of Threshold Phenomena

This book explores the Norwegian state's response to irregular migration, offering an ethnographic study of the interaction and tension between welfare policy and entry control in a country that combines a comprehensive welfare state and humanitarian image, with strict immigration policies. Carefully examining the complex interplay between the geopolitical management of territory and the biopolitical management of populations, the book argues that irregularised migrants should be understood as precariously included in the welfare state rather than simply excluded.

New Perspectives on the Indian Diaspora

Edited by Ruben Gowricharn, Professor of Indian Diaspora Studies, VU-University of Amsterdam, The Netherlands

This book critically examines new perspectives on the transformations in Indian diaspora. The volume highlights the transformation of the old Indian diaspora into a new ensemble in which economic, ideological and cultural forces predominate and interact closely. It looks at various themes including Indian indentured emigration to sugar colonies, comparisons between labour migration from India and China, the Girmitya diaspora, Indian diaspora in Africa and the rise of racial nationalism, India's soft power in the Gulf region, and the repurposing of the 'Hindutva' idea of India for Western societies, undertaken by diaspora communities.

The Condition of Democracy

Volumes 1,2,3

Edited by Jürgen Mackert, University of Potsdam, Germany, Bryan S. Turner and Hannah Wolf

Democracy is challenged as a political as well as a normative term, and as a form of governance. Against the background of neoliberal transformation, populist mobilization, and xenophobic exclusion, but also of radical and emancipatory democratic projects, this collection offers a variety of critical and challenging perspectives on the condition of democracy in the 21st Century. The books offer both challenging theoretical perspectives and rigorous empirical findings of how to conceive of democracy in our times, which will appeal to academics and students in social and political science, economics and international relations amongst other fields.

Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology

Through an ethnohistorical chronicling of the emotionally-laden treatment of selected suicide media-events, this book offers a neo-Durkheimian account of suicide, addressing its social-moral threat and the ensuing need to gloss over its unsettling incomprehensibility. It will appeal to scholars and students of sociology and anthropology with interests in social theory, Israel studies, suicide studies, and the interpretation of societal and cultural processes.

The Condition of Democracy

Volume 2: Contesting Citizenship

Edited by Jürgen Mackert, University of Potsdam, Germany, Bryan S. Turner and Hannah Wolf

Democracy and citizenship are conceptually and empirically contested. Against the backdrop of recent and current profound transformations in and of democratic societies, this volume presents and discusses acute contestations, within and beyond national borders and boundaries. This volume addresses these refigurations by bringing together empirical analyses and conceptual considerations regarding the access to and exclusion from citizenship rights in the face of migration regulation and institutional transformation, and the role of violence in maintaining or undermining social order.

The Condition of Democracy

Volume 1: Neoliberal Politics and Sociological Perspectives

Edited by Jürgen Mackert, University of Potsdam, Germany, Bryan S. Turner and Hannah Wolf

Against the background of neoliberal transformation, populist mobilization, and xenophobic exclusion, but also of radical and emancipatory democratic projects, this collection offers a variety of critical and challenging perspectives on the condition of democracy in the 21st Century. With a pronounced focus on national and transnational politics and processes, as well as postcolonial and settler-colonial contexts, individual contributions scrutinize the role of democratic societies, ideals, and ideologies of liberal democracy within global power geometries.

The Condition of Democracy

Volume 3: Postcolonial and Settler Colonial Contexts

Edited by Jürgen Mackert, University of Potsdam, Germany, Bryan S. Turner and Hannah Wolf

Classical liberal democratic theory has provided crucial ideas for a still dominant and hegemonic discourse that rests on ideological conceptions of freedom, equality, peacefulness, inclusive democratic participation, and tolerance. This book discusses the settler-colonial regime that Israel has established in Palestine while still claiming to be a democracy. It discusses the failures of liberal democracy to overcome the structural and racist inequalities in post-Apartheid South Africa, and it presents hopeful outlooks on new ideas and forms of democracy in social movements in the MENA region.

The University Revolution

Outline of a Processual Theory of Modern Higher Education

Eric Lybeck, University of Exeter, UK

Series: Classical and Contemporary Social Theory

Revisiting the emergence and transformation of higher education since 1800 using a novel processual approach, this book recognises these developments as having been as central as the industrial and democratic revolutions in constituting the modern world, offering a new interpretation of the role of universities in contemporary society in order to re-orient our understanding of the importance of higher education in the past and future development of modern societies. It will therefore appeal to scholars of social science and history with interests in social history and social change, education, the professions and inequalities.

Understanding China through Big Data

Applications of Theory-oriented Quantitative Approaches

Yunsong Chen, Nanjing University, China, Guangye He, Nanjing University, China and Fei Yan, Tsinghua University, China

Series: Routledge Advances in Sociology

Chen, He and Yan present a range of applications of multiple-source big data to core areas of contemporary sociology, demonstrating how a theory-guided approach to macrosociology can help to understand a society, especially where traditional approaches are limited by constrained and biased data. These include social stratification, social networks, medical care, and online behaviours among many others. An essential read for sociologists with an interest in quantitative and macro-scale research methods, which also provides fascinating insights into Chinese society as a demonstration of the utility of its methodology.

Nonlinear Pedagogy and the Athletic Skills Model

The Importance of Play in Supporting Physical Literacy

James Rudd, Ian Renshaw, Queensland University of Technology, Australia, Geert Savelsbergh, Jia Yi Chow, National Institute of Education, Singapore, Will Roberts, University of Gloucestershire, Daniel Newcombe and Keith Davids, Sheffield Hallam University, UK

Nonlinear Pedagogy and the Athletic Skills Model examines contemporary pedagogical approaches, such as constraints-led teaching, nonlinear pedagogy and the athletic skills model, which are underpinned by the theoretical framework of ecological dynamics. It is suggested that through careful design, these models aimed at children, as well as young athletes, can (i) encourage and facilitate physical activity and motor learning in children of different ages, providing them with the foundational skills needed for leading active lives; and (ii), develop young athletes in elite sports programmes in an ethical, enriching and supportive manner.

Transforming Sport and Physical Cultures through Feminist Knowledges

Edited by Simone Fullagar, Emma Rich, Adele Pavlidis and Cathy van Ingen, Brock University, Canada

This feminist collection contributes to the movement of ideas and transformation of knowledge within and across sport and physical cultures. Authors explore the power relations implicated in the gendered formation of physical cultures (across leisure, sport, the arts, tourism, well-being and various embodied practices) from a range of disciplinary perspectives and theory-method approaches.

The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of Leisure Sciences.

Advances in raw material industries for sustainable development goals

Edited by Vladimir Litvinenko, Saint-Petersburg Mining University, Saint-Petersburg, Russia

This work presents the contribution of young researchers within the agenda of the Russian-German Raw Materials Forum. The main theme of this article collection is topical issues of subsoil use, as seen by young researchers from both Russia and Germany. In this book the authors regard complex processes of mining industry from various points of view – exploration, mining, processing or various mining services and technologies. This collection represents the results of their long and thorough work in the promising areas of cooperation between Russia and Germany.

Environmental Justice in the Anthropocene

From (Un)Just Presents to Just Futures

Edited by Stacia Ryder, Kathryn Powlen, Melinda Laituri, Stephanie A. Malin, Joshua Sbicca and Dimitris Stevis

Series: Routledge Studies in Environmental Justice

Through various international case studies presented by both practitioners and scholars, Environmental Justice in the Anthropocene explores how an environmental justice approach is necessary for reflections on inequality in the Anthropocene and for forging societal transitions toward a more just and sustainable future. The contributors focus on a critical approach to power and issues of environmental injustice across time, space, and context—drawing from twelve national contexts: Austria, Bangladesh, Chile, China, India, Nicaragua, Hungary, Mexico, Brazil, Sweden, Tanzania, and the United States.

Agrarian Capitalism, War and Peace in Colombia

Beyond Dispossession

Jacobo Grajales

Series: Routledge Studies in Global Land and Resource Grabbing

While land remains a key resource at the core of many contemporary civil wars, the impact of high intensity armed violence on the formation of agrarian capitalism is seldom discussed. Drawing on nearly two hundred interviews, this book examines land grabbing and the role of violence in capital with a particular focus on one key actor in the Colombian civil war: paramilitary militias. The book is essential reading for students, scholars and development aid practitioners interested in land and resource grabbing, agrarian capitalism, civil wars and conflict resolution.

Is CITES Protecting Wildlife?

Assessing Implementation and Compliance

Tanya Wyatt

Series: Routledge Studies in Conservation and the Environment

Humans are causing a biodiversity crisis, where one million species are facing extinction. Species are dying, in no small part, because they are overexploited, poached and trafficked and CITES is the main international instrument designed to protect traded wildlife. Does the state of the world's species mean CITES is failing? This book explores the implementation of and compliance with CITES by all one hundred and eighty-three member countries examining both implementation and compliance. This timely book will be essential reading for students and academics interested in wildlife law, trade and trafficking, green criminology and biodiversity conservation more broadly.

Phytotechnology with Biomass Production

Sustainable Management of Contaminated Sites

Edited by Larry E. Erickson, Kansas State University, Manhattan, USA and Valentina Pidlisnyuk

This book explains the concept of using phytotechnology with biomass production to improve soil quality and produce valuable products that have economic and social value. It is focused on the application of second generation biofuel crops to slightly contaminated or marginal post-military and post-mining soils. Based on recent research from the US, Ukraine, Germany, and Poland, along with studies from other countries, this is the first comprehensive book on using phytotechnology with biomass production at contaminated sites at a global level. It's also a great new resource for those who want to study and plan phytotechnology projects as well as those who carry them out.

Principles of Wildlife Conservation

Ankur Awadhiya

So how do we conserve wildlife? This is the question that Principles of Wildlife Conservation seeks to answer. It presents a lucid — cogent yet simple narration about the why's and how's of conserving wildlife. It begins with the first principles — and thus requires no more prerequisite than an urge to seek knowledge. It is full of pictures and case studies from the field — to facilitate easy grasping of the subject. The book builds a solid foundation of the theory of wildlife conservation, and tops that up with experiences from actually doing wildlife conservation. In this way, it equips the reader to master both the science, and the art, of conserving wildlife.

Split Waters

The Idea of Water Conflicts

Edited by Luisa Cortesi, Erasmus University, The Hague, The Netherlands and K. J. Joy, Society for Promoting Participative Ecosystem Management, India

Limited, finite, contaminated, unavailable or expensive, water divides people all around the globe. We all cannot do without water for long, but can for long enough to fight for it. This commonsensical narration of water conflicts, however, follows a pattern of scarcity and necessity that is remarkably unvaried despite different social and geographical contexts. Through in-depth case studies from around the globe, this volume investigates this similarity of narration—confronting the power of a single story by taking it seriously instead of dismissing it. In so doing, the invites to rethink water conflicts and how they are commonly understood and managed.

Ecological Film Theory and Psychoanalysis

Surviving the Environmental Apocalypse in Cinema

Robert Geal

Series: Routledge Environmental Literature, Culture and Media

Ecological Film Theory and Psychoanalysis argues that these films exploit cinema's inherent Cartesian grammar to construct texts in which not only small groups of protagonist survivors, but also vicarious spectators, pleasurably transcend the fictionalised destruction. This book applies ecolinguistics and psychoanalysis to explore how films fictionalising environmental disasters provide spectacular warnings against the dangers of environmental apocalypse, while highlighting that even these apparently environmentally friendly films can still facilitate problematic real-world changes in how people treat the environment.

Plant Growth Regulators for Climate-Smart Agriculture

Edited by Shah Fahad, Osman Sonmez, Shah Saud, Depeng Wang, Chao Wu, Muhammad Adnan and Veysel Turan

Series: Footprints of Climate Variability on Plant Diversity

Climatic conditions are key determinants of plant growth, whether at the scale of temperature regulation of the cell cycle, or at the scale of the geographic limits for a particular species. The climate is changing, due to human activities - particularly the emission of greenhouse gases - and therefore the conditions for the establishment, growth, reproduction, survival and distribution of plant species are changing. In contrast to animals, plants can continuously cease and resume growth. This flexibility in their architecture and growth patterns is partly achieved by the action of plant hormones.

The Ecological Constitution

Reframing Environmental Law

Lynda Collins

Series: Routledge Focus on Environment and Sustainability

The Ecological Constitution integrates the insights of environmental constitutionalism and ecological law in a concise, engaging and accessible manner. The book argues that an ecological constitution is one that codifies the following key principles: the principle of sustainability; intergenerational equity and the public trust doctrine; environmental human rights; rights of nature; the precautionary principle and non-regression; and rights and obligations relating to a healthy climate. This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of environmental law, ecological law, environmental constitutionalism, sustainability and rights of nature.

The Political Prospects of a Sustainability Transformation

Moving Beyond the Environmental State

Edited by Daniel Hausknost, Alpen Adria University, Austria, and Marit Hammond

With planetary ecological challenges like climate change spiraling out of control and dwarfing the environmental state's classical tasks of environmental management, new questions about the transformative capacities of the state are becoming acute today. This book explores these and other questions from a variety of theoretical and empirical angles, covering the fields of democratic theory, theories of the state, political economy, political sociology, rhetoric and political philosophy.

The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the journal Environmental Politics.

The Third Pillar of International Climate Change Policy

On 'Loss and Damage' after the Paris Agreement

Edited by Morten Broberg and Beatriz Martinez Romera

This book explores the present and future of loss and damage in the era of the Paris Agreement. It provides an up-to-date analysis of 'loss and damage' which is often described as the third pillar of international climate change policy. It is based around four main themes: (i) insurance schemes, (ii) key gaps in loss and damage governance, including non-economic loss and damage and slow-onset events, (iii) legal aspects of loss and damage, and (iv) novel approaches to loss and damage.

The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of Climate Policy.

Tourism Impacts, Planning and Management

Peter Mason, University of Bedfordshire, UK

This is a unique text, which links these three crucial areas of tourism - impacts, planning and management. Tourism impacts are multi-faceted and therefore are difficult to plan for and manage. This title looks at all the key players involved - be they tourists, host communities or industry members - and considers a number of approaches and techniques for managing tourism impacts successfully.

The text is written in an accessible style and includes a plethora of features that engage and aid understanding. This accessible yet academically rigorous introduction to tourism impacts, planning and management is essential reading for all tourism students.

Tourism Spaces

Environments, Locations, and Movements

Edited by Alan A. Lew, Northern Arizona University, USA

This book shows some of the ways that geographers and other social scientists bring spatial considerations to the forefront of our research and understanding of tourism. This is seen through the spatial arrangements and distributions of tourism phenomena, such as attractions, destinations, and in the spatial behaviour of tourists themselves. Today, these spatial arrangements and patterns are increasingly being captured, analysed, and understood through various forms of formal and informal digital data.

Understanding Young Chinese Backpackers

The Pursuit of Freedom and Its Risks

Xie Jia

Series: China Perspectives

This volume investigates contemporary young Chinese backpackers' views on backpacking culture and backpackers. The author discovers that the backpackers often begin their journey due to a desire to pursue freedom, and use the pursuit as a process of reflexive awareness but the risks of carrying out a freewheeling lifestyle within an individualised society drive the majority of them to return home. Students and scholars of sociology, tourism, and youth culture will be interested in this volume.

The Development of Empathy

Phenomenology, Structure and Human Nature

Laraya Zhuravlova and Oleksiy Chebykin

This thought-provoking volume offers psychological perspectives on the formation of empathy and how this determines both antisocial and prosocial behaviors in individuals. It offers a theoretically grounded and empirically proven integrated approach, helping readers gain a holistic understanding of human nature, and the need for empathic interaction between people. Considering a vision for a society based on empathic relationships, which could be a deterrent to discrimination, help resolve problems of environmental issues, harmonize interpersonal relationships and resolve conflict, this new text is for advanced students of developmental, and educational psychology.

Integrative Synchronization Mechanisms in Cognitive Neuroarchitectures of Modern Connectionism

Harald Maurer

The Mind and Brain are usually considered as one and the same nonlinear, complex dynamical system, in which information processing can be described with vector and tensor transformations and with attractors in multidimensional state spaces. Thus, an internal neurocognitive representation concept consists of a dynamical process which filters out statistical prototypes from the sensorial information in terms of coherent and adaptive n-dimensional vector fields.

Volume Two

Edited by Andrew M. Colman

Psychology plays an increasingly important role in today's society. Its influence can be seen all around us - be it in the home, the workplace, the school or our private lives. This covers all these main branches of psychological research and professional practice. The thematic arrangement is the result of the Editor's extensive research into syllabi, from which he distilled the 13 most frequently taught units. Students can consult and be referred to sections relating to their lecture programme, and can find lucid definitions of frequently used terms in the Glossary. Headings and sub-headings are clearly highlighted at the beginning of each chapter - ideal for quick reference. ;

Edited by Ilanit Hasson-Ohayon, Bar-Ilan University, Israel and Paul H. Lysaker, Indiana University - Purdue University Indianapolis, USA

Series: The International Society for Psychological and Social Approaches to Psychosis Book Series

This edited volume details specific therapeutic approaches as well as considering how treatments can be individually tailored and adapted to help persons whose mental health challenges may be either mild or more severe. By focusing on basic elements of the experiences of persons diagnosed with psychosis and exploring the broader meanings these experiences have, each of these treatments offers distinctive way to help persons define and manage their own recovery. The book includes measurable therapeutic processes, an empirically supported conceptual basis for understanding disturbances in self-experience and rich descriptions of the recovery process.

Treating Trauma and Addiction with the Felt Sense Polyvagal Model

A Bottom-Up Approach

Jan Winhall

In sharp contrast with the current top-down medicalized method to treating addiction, this book presents the Felt Sense Polyvagal Model (FSPM), a paradigm-shifting, bottom-up approach that considers addiction as an adaptive attempt to regulate emotional states and trauma. Chapters present a theoretical framework and then teach the clinician how to use the model in practice by providing detailed treatment strategies. This text's informed, compassionate approach to understanding and treating trauma and addiction is adaptable to any school of psychotherapy and will appeal to addiction experts, trauma specialists, and clinicians in all mental health fields.

A Contemporary Approach to Clinical Supervision

The Supervisee Perspective

Edited by Liat Shklarski and Allison Abrams

The most critical and influential relationship affecting one's growth as a mental health professional is the relationship between the clinician and the supervisor. Good supervisors breed good therapists. This book goes beyond facts and figures to provide an innovative perspective on the supervision process. Through contributions by seven supervisees and the supervisor they all shared, readers are offered a rare glimpse into what takes place during the supervision hour. For mental health professionals who are training to be supervisors or experienced supervisors looking to improve their skills, this book will serve as an invaluable resource for professional development.

Integrating Social Cognition into Therapeutic Practice

Beneath and Beyond the Process of Therapy

Edited by Louis H. Falik, San Francisco State University, California, USA

This book presents a new model for conceptualizing and applying a social and cognitive perspective on therapeutic practice. Building on the micro-skills framework for training, the author adds cognitive modifiability theories to create a social cognition approach to training and practice. Mental health professionals and students in advanced counseling course will find that this book broadens their perspectives beyond basic micro-skills approaches and provides an expansive and systematic framework for conceptualizing the therapeutic process.

Series: The International Psychoanalytical Association Psychoanalytic Ideas and Applications Series

In this book, Grassi explores the importance of music in psychoanalysis and the place of listening for rhythm within it, arguing that music is a basic working tool for psyche, as words are composed of sound, rhythm and intonation more than lexical meaning.

Illuminating the link between music and analysis in new and contemporary ways, The Sound of the Unconscious explores the resulting advances in theory and clinical practice and will be of great interest to practicing and training psychoanalysts and psychotherapists.

Psychoanalytic Readings of Hawthorne's Romances

Narratives of Unconscious Crisis and Transformation

David B. Diamond, PINE Psychoanalytic Center, USA

Series: Psychoanalytic Explorations

Offering innovative, psychoanalytic readings of Nathaniel Hawthorne's mature novels, this volume expertly applies Freudian theory to present new insights into the psychology of Hawthorne's characters and their fates. The text will benefit researchers, academics, and educators with an interest in applied psychoanalysis, psychoanalytic technique, and Freud in particular. Since its conclusions challenge many currently held critical views, this volume is especially relevant to those interested in interdisciplinary literary studies, Hawthorne studies, 19th century literature and romanticism.

Traumatic Narcissism and Recovery

Leaving the Prison of Shame and Fear

Daniel Shaw, Private practice New York City, and Nyack, New York. Training analyst, teacher and supervisor National Institute for the Psychotherapies New York City, USA.

Series: Relational Perspectives Book Series

This book looks at the trauma suffered by those in relationships with narcissists, covering topics such as surviving a cult, dysfunctional families, political dysfunction, and imbalances of power in places of work and education.

This book will be especially illuminating and rewarding for mental health professionals engaged in helping patients heal and recover from complex relational trauma, and equally valuable to those individuals who have struggled with the tenacious, often crippling shame and fear that can be the result of relational trauma.

Jungian Psychology in the East and West

Cross Cultural Perspectives from Japan

Edited by Konoyu Nakamura, Otemon Gakuin University, Japan and Stefano Carta, University of Cagliari, Italy

This unique edited collection explores the connections and differences between eastern and western approaches to Jungian psychology. Readers will discover through this volume, how much Western Jungians are implicitly or explicitly inspired by Eastern traditions - including Japanese - and, at the same time, how Jungian psychology - the product of a Western author - has been widely accepted and developed by Japanese scholars and clinicians. Scholars and students of Jungian studies will find many new ideas, theories and practices gravitating around Jungian psychology, generated by the encounter between East and West.

Artful Collaborative Inquiry

Making and Writing Creative, Qualitative Research

Edited by Davina Kirkpatrick, Sue Porter, Jane Speedy and Jonathan Wyatt

Artful Collaborative Inquiry comprises essays created collectively by a group of scholars and artists, the majority of whom have several decades of experience of working together. The book challenges commonly-held, individualistic beliefs about ownership, authorship and scholarly and artistic ethics and practices. The chapters combine the playful use and merging of time, space and place, researcher and researched, to give a unique exemplar of research and creativity in the rapidly emerging field of collaborative scholarship. It will be of particular interest to creative and qualitative scholars wishing to conduct more artful research, and artists engaging with scholarship.

The Politics and Ethics of Representation in Qualitative Research

Addressing Moments of Discomfort

Edited by The Critical Methodologies Collective

This book offers insights on politics and ethics of representation that are relevant to researchers concerned with struggles for justice. It takes moments of discomfort in the qualitative research process as important sites of knowledge for exploring representational practices in critical research. The Politics and Ethics of Representation in Qualitative Research draws on experiences from research processes in nine PhD projects. Drawing on grounded empirical research, the book offers input to students, PhDs, researchers, practitioners, activists and others dealing with methodological dilemmas from a critical perspective.

The Theoretical Framework in Phenomenological Research

Development and Application

Edited by Henrik Gert Larsen and Philip Adu

The Theoretical Framework in Phenomenological Research is an introduction to phenomenology in which the authors overview its origin, main ideas, and core concepts. They show the application and relevancy of phenomenological tenets in practical qualitative research, as well as demonstrate how aligning theory and method enhances research credibility. A reliable guide underpinned by foundational phenomenology literature, this is an essential text for researchers, instructors, practitioners, and students looking to design and conduct phenomenological studies in a manner that ensures credible outcomes.

Centering Diverse Bodyminds in Critical Qualitative Inquiry

Edited by Jessica Nina Lester and Emily A. Nusbaum

Series: Developing Traditions in Qualitative Inquiry

This book advances qualitative methods and methodological discussions from the ways in which "disabled people" are viewed primarily as research subjects without input of their own, to a place where disability embodiment and the lived experience of disability are potential sources of method and methodological advancement. As such, this book centers disability and, in so doing, examines methodological challenges related to normative and ableist assumptions in doing qualitative research.

Understanding Just Sustainabilities from Within

A Case Study of a Shared-Use Commercial Kitchen in Connecticut

Phoebe Godfrey, University of Connecticut, USA Series: Routledge Equity, Justice and the Sustainable City series

Written by the co-founder and former board president of a non-profit shared-use commercial kitchen, this book presents an intersectional analysis of CLiCK (Commercially Licensed Co-operative Kitchen), in order to explore what just sustainabilities can look and feel like from within and without. Through a unique combination of auto ethnography, participant observation, surveys and secondary research, this book offers insights into CLiCK's micro and macro successes, failures, and unknowns in relation to its attempt to put the concept of just sustainabilities into daily practice, and praxis.

Health and Welfare of Brachycephalic (Flat-faced) Companion Animals

A Complete Guide for Veterinary and Animal Professionals

Edited by Rowena Packer, The Royal Veterinary College and Dan O'Neill, The Royal Veterinary College

Health and welfare issues relating to brachycephalic (flat-faced) dogs are now one of the most pressing problems facing companion animals. This book aims to equip veterinary professionals, animal welfare scientists, dog breeders and the interested owner with the full story about brachycephalic health and welfare. Cutting-edge knowledge is provided on a range of disciplines including anaesthesia, ophthalmology, dermatology, respiratory disease, neurological, dental, reproduction and weight control. The book offers substantial practical advice for veterinary teams on welfare and ethical issues around choosing, owning and caring for brachycephalic dogs to share with clients.

Advances in Animal Disease Diagnosis

Edited by Suresh Kumar Gahlawat, Ch. Devi Lal University, India and Sushila Maan, Department of Animal Biotechnology, Lala Lajpat Rai University of Vety. and Animal Sciences (LUVAS), India

Infectious animal diseases caused by pathogenic microorganisms such as bacteria, fungi and viruses threaten the health and well-being of wildlife, livestock, and human populations, limit productivity and increase significantly economic losses to each sector. Pathogen detection is an important step for the diagnostics, successful treatment of animal diseases and control management in farms and field conditions.

This book will explore some key opportunities in the context of animal health, such as the detection of new microorganisms and development of the improved diagnosis of emerging or re-emerging diseases and other clinical conditions viz. biosensors, nanotools and omics technologies.

Metabolic Pathway Engineering

Analysis and Applications in the Life Sciences

Jean F. Challacombe

This book reviews studies on metabolism to current cutting-edge research in metabolic systems engineering. It includes examples to illustrate the applications of this technology in bioengineering to create high-performing microbes and plants that produce important chemicals, pharmaceuticals, crops and other natural products such as biofuels, as well as biological processes involving health and diseases of humans, animals, and plants.

Nanotechnology in Sustainable Agriculture

Edited by M. Anwar Mallick, Vinoba Bhawe University, India, Manoj K. Solanki, Agricultural Research Organization, Israel, Baby Kumari, Vinoba Bhawe University, India and Suresh Kumar Verma, KIIT University, India

Nanotechnology in Sustainable Agriculture presents applications of nanobiotechnology for eco-friendly agriculture practices. Implementing sustainable agriculture techniques is a crucial component in meeting projected global food demands while minimising toxic waste in the environment. Nano-technological tools – including nanoparticles, nanocapsules, nanotubes and nanomolecules – offer sustainable options to modernise agriculture systems. Written by nanotechnology experts, this book outlines how nano-formulations can improve yield without reliance on chemical pesticides and reduce nutrient losses in fertilization.

Cover Crops and Sustainable Agriculture

Edited by Rafiq Islam, Ohio State University, Piketon, USA and Bradford Sherman, Ohio State University, Piketon, USA
This book will not serve as the "encyclopedia of cover crop management," but it's close. The economic and environmental benefits of individual cover crops and blends/mixes for specific agronomic crop rotations and geographic locations are included. Photographs and illustrations show how cover crops look in the field, both above and below ground. The book includes details on the "hows" for successful cover cropping: how to choose cover crops for specific situations; how to plant; and how to terminate. As part of a continuous no-till system, cover crops provide long-term soil benefits and an economic return through higher yields.

Dalbergia sissoo

Biology, Ecology and Sustainable Agroforestry

Edited by Siddra Ijaz, Centre of Agricultural Biochemistry and Biotechnology, Pakistan and Imran Ul Haq, University of Agriculture Faisalabad, Pakistan

Dalbergia sissoo (Shisham) is a perennial tree species native to the Asian subcontinent. It is an economically significant tree for its value in forestry, agroforestry, and horticulture. The high-quality timber imparts this tree species a significant commercial value. Besides valuable timber, it also exhibits medicinal, industrial, and agroforestry allied attributes. This tree has been introducing to the geographical regions where it does not exist naturally, which indicates its significant properties, getting diverse communities' attention. This book provides information about this tree species based on the latest research trends and development on the subject.

Enzymology of Complex Alpha-Glucans

Edited by Felix Nitschke

Glycogen and Starch: So Similar, yet so Different. Both carbohydrates are central to the primary metabolism of a large part of the living kingdom. Generally, animals, fungi, bacteria store glycogen, while plants largely rely on starch. This volume provides a broad and current views on both glycogen and starch, in lower and higher organisms. Beside biochemistry, physiology and regulation of glycogen and starch metabolism the reader can expect an insight into glycogen storage diseases and select methods and relevant techniques.

Evolutionary Origin of Sensory and Neurosecretory Cell Types

Vertebrate Cranial Placodes, volume 2

Edited by Gerhard Schlosser

Series: Evolutionary Cell Biology

Most vertebrate cranial sense organs arise from placodes. These placodes give rise to sensory neurons that transmit information to the brain and neurosecretory cells. This book reviews the evolutionary origin of the sensory and neurosecretory cell types. It summarizes our current understanding of vertebrate evolution, clarifies conceptual issues relating to homology and evolutionary innovation of cell types, compares the sensory and neurosecretory cell types with similar cell types in other animals, and addresses the question of how cranial placodes evolved as novel structures in vertebrates by redeploying pre-existing and sometimes evolutionarily ancient cell types.

Edited by Anita Pandey and Avinash Sharma

The book Extreme Environments: Unique Ecosystems – Amazing Microbes is an attempt to showcase the uniqueness of extremophiles, the largely unexplored group that has the abilities to function in hostile conditions and represent the very ancient life forms that thrived on earth billions of years ago. The book covers a wide range of research achievements in the field of microbiology of extreme environments right from the conventional approaches of cultivation to recently evolved high throughput sequencing technologies. The book provides a broad spectrum of information about the taxonomy, physiology, ecology and biotechnological applications of extremophiles.

Fish Histology

From Cells to Organs

Doaa M. Mokhtar, Assiut University, Egypt

This 2nd edition provides up-to-date information that emphasizes the relationships and concepts by which cell and tissue structures of fish are inextricably linked with their function. The book also describes the most recent development in the sciences of fish histology. It includes new 5 chapters on the skeleton of fishes, gas bladder and gas gland, endocrine system, nervous system, and sensory system. Many new immunohistochemical and ultrastructural images illustrate the text along with a particular emphasis on tables that summarize the morphologic and functional features of cells, tissues, and organs.

Advancements in Natural Wellness and Disease Prevention

Edited by Cristobal N. Aguilar

This new volume provides important information on potential applications and new developments in functional health foods and nutraceuticals. It looks at health-promoting properties in functional foods and beverages as well as nutraceuticals. Some health issues that considered in conjunction with these foods and nutraceuticals include oxidative stress, obesity, pharyngitis, low cognitive concentration among others. Research topics include the antioxidant properties of certain products, the development of functional and medicinal beverages, nutraceuticals and functional foods for alternative therapies, and more.

Marine Microbial Bioremediation

Edited by Anjana Kiritsinh Vala, Dushyant R. Dudhagara, Bhakta Kavi Narsinh Mehta University, Gujarat, India and Bharti Dave, Indrashil University, Gujarat, India

Increased industrialization and urbanization has polluted the marine environment, the largest ecosystem. Hence, sincere efforts must be made to decontaminate marine ecosystem for sustainable use of oceans and their bioresources. Microbial population in the marine environment plays a very crucial role in degrading, transforming and detoxifying the pollutants. This book presents contributions from leading scientists across the globe who have worked extensively on polluted marine ecosystem in removal of pollutants, mycoremediation of salinity ingressed soils, etc.

Migration Strategies of Birds of Prey in Western Palearctic

Edited by Michele Panuccio, DSTA Department of Earth and Environmental Science, University of Pavia, Ugo Mellone and Nicolantonio Agostini

The book gives a complete overview of the migration ecology of Western Palearctic raptors. Across seasons and continents, with great navigation abilities and facing high mortality risks, these species move twice a year between their breeding and wintering sites. Morphology, behavioural adaptations and environment encountered en route have an impact in determining the migratory flyways of these top predators. Using a mixture of traditional methods and new technologies, this book resumes the results of the research carried out in the last decades.

Nitrogen in Agricultural Landscape

Edited by Lech Wojciech Szajdak, Institute for Agricultural and Forest Environment, Polish Academy of Sciences, Poland

Agriculture transforms the environment. The simplification of agroecosystems structure increases the hazards of leaching, wind and water erosion, and volatilization of chemicals from soil. Soil nitrogen is of interest as a major crop nutrient, but also as a potential environmental pollutant. Knowledge about the behavior of soil nitrogen is desirable in order to optimize plant growth and crop yield and to minimize environmental side effects. This book also gives information about the function of biogeochemical barriers in the form of shelterbelts, which efficiently decrease the concentrations of various forms of nitrogen in ground water.

Phenotypic Plasticity & Evolution

Causes, Consequences, Controversies

Edited by David W. Pfennig, University of North Carolina

Series: Evolutionary Cell Biology

Phenotypic plasticity – the ability of an individual organism to alter its features in direct response to a change in its environment – is ubiquitous. Understanding how and why this phenomenon exists is crucial because it unites all levels of biological inquiry. This book brings together researchers who approach plasticity from diverse perspectives to explore new ideas and recent findings about the causes and consequences of plasticity.

Sanjeev Kumar, S.N. Saravaiya and A.K. Pandey

The book features the concepts and applications of precision farming and protected cultivation broadly covered with theoretical and practical approach. The first 8 chapters provide detailed information on concept, applications and limitations of precision farming; precision management of insect-pests and diseases; yield mapping in horticultural crops. Rest of the chapters characteristically highlights the concept of greenhouse technology, agrivoltaic system, GAP for protected cultivation and economic analysis of protected cultivation. ; Note: T&F does not sell or distribute the Hardback in India, Pakistan, Nepal, Bhutan, Bangladesh and Sri Lanka.

Sustainable Blue Revolution in India

Latha Shenoy and Shridhar Rajpathak

This book provides comprehensive information on several dimensions of blue revolution in a structured form. The subject of sustainable development of fisheries sector being very vast, concerted efforts have been made to accommodate all the relevant elements. Very little reading material with proper analysis is currently available and this book is expected to bridge the gap and project way-forward to achieve sustainable development of fisheries and aquaculture in India under the blue revolution. ; Note: T&F does not sell or distribute the Hardback in India, Pakistan, Nepal, Bhutan, Bangladesh and Sri Lanka.

Vertebrate Cranial Placodes

Gerhard Schlosser

Series: Evolutionary Cell Biology

Most of the cranial sense organs of vertebrates arise from embryonic structures known as cranial placodes. Such placodes also give rise to sensory neurons that transmit information to the brain as well as to many neurosecretory cells. Schlosser discusses how these primordia are established in the early embryo and how individual placodes develop. The latter chapters explain how various placodally derived sensory and neurosecretory cell types differentiate into discrete structures.

Biotech in China

Innovation, Politics, and Economics

Rolf Schmid and Xin Xiong

This book provides a concise picture of the biotechnology-related research and development (R&D) in China. It presents succinct accounts on structures and developments in biomedicine, diagnostics, agriculture, fermented food, bioindustry, and environmental biotechnology, with reference to government, industry, and academia. It finally attempts to predict next steps in Chinese biotechnology, both for the national agenda and in view of China's ambitious global development strategy, the Belt and Road Initiative.

The Prospect of Industry 5.0 in Biomanufacturing

Edited by Pau Loke Show, Kit Wayne Chew and Tau Chuan Ling

This is the first book to present the idea of Industry 5.0 in biomanufacturing and bioprocess engineering, both upstream and downstream. It details the latest technologies and how they can be used efficiently and explains process analysis from an engineering point of view. In addition, it covers applications and challenges. This work enables readers in industry and academia working in the biomanufacturing engineering sector to understand current trends and future directions in this field.

Mycotoxins in Food and Beverages

Innovations and Advances Part I

Edited by Didier Montet, Catherine Brabet, Ramesh C. Ray and Sabine Galindo

Series: Food Biology Series

The book reviews the latest literature and innovations on important aspects of mycotoxins, e.g. mycotoxin producing fungi and the related ecosystems, mycotoxin occurrence, toxicity, analysis and management. Quantitative estimations of impacts of climate change on mycotoxin occurrence have been made recently, using predictive modelling. There is also a growing interest in the occurrence and toxicity of multiple mycotoxins in food and feed, including emerging or modified forms of mycotoxins. Innovative tools were also developed to detect and quantify toxinogenic fungi and their toxins.

Spray Drying Encapsulation of Bioactive Materials

Edited by Seid Mahdi Jafari and Ali Rashidinejad, Riddet Institute, Massey University, New Zealand

Series: Advances in Drying Science and Technology

Encapsulation of bioactives is a fast-growing approach in the food and pharmaceutical industry and this book serves as a source of information to offer specialized and in-depth knowledge on the most well-known and used encapsulation technology (i.e., spray drying) and corresponding advances. The book describes the efficacy of spray drying in encapsulation of bioactive ingredients and discusses the potential of this technique to pave the way toward cost-effective, industrially relevant, reproducible, and scalable processes. It presents the latest research outcomes and is of interest to food manufacturers, pharmacists, and chemical engineers.

Homelessness and the Built Environment

Designing for Unhoused Persons

Jill Pable, Florida State University, USA, Yelena McLane, Florida State University, USA and Lauren Trujillo, Florida State University, USA

This book considers the supportive role that design can play for unhoused persons and other users and argues that the built environment is an equal partner alongside other therapies and programs for ending a person's state of homelessness.

Homelessness and the Built Environment is an imperative and singular reference for interior designers, architects and building renovation sponsors, design researchers and students forging new discoveries, and policy makers who seek to assist communities affected by homelessness.

Digital Analysis of Vaults in English Medieval Architecture

Alexandrina Buchanan, University of Liverpool, UK, James Hillson, University of Liverpool, UK and Nicholas Webb, University of Liverpool, UK

Medieval cathedrals remain one of the most remarkable works in architectural history. The complex vaults spanning their vast interiors have fascinated visitors for over 900 years, prompting the question 'How did they do that?'. This book uses groundbreaking new methods to help answer these questions. Using digital technology to 'reverse engineer' these impressive buildings, the authors examine the geometries of medieval vaults to provide a new understanding of gothic design and construction. Featuring over 200 high quality illustrations, this is ideal reading for students and researchers in digital architecture, architectural history, building conservation, and medieval history.

Research for Architectural Practice

Katharine A. Martindale

With practice based examples throughout, this beautifully illustrated book is written in a clear and accessible style. It is an essential guide to conducting research that is relevant for architectural practices of all size, location and expertise. The first section discusses why research is relevant to practice, how it benefits both practice and their clients, and tackles the key challenges facing research in practice. Section two focuses on the mechanics of a research project providing a step-by-step guide. The final section presents profiles of twelve architecture practices followed by illustrated profiles of their design influenced research work.

Cognitive Architecture

Designing for How We Respond to the Built Environment

Ann Sussman, Boston Architectural College, USA and Justin B Hollander, Tufts University, Medford, Massachusetts, USA

In this expanded second edition of Cognitive Architecture, the authors review new findings in psychology and neuroscience to help architects and planners better understand their clients as the sophisticated mammals they are, arriving in the world with built-in responses to the environment.

A compelling read for students, professionals and the general public, Cognitive Architecture takes an inside-out approach to design, arguing that the more we understand human behavior, the better we can design and plan for it.

Modeling Processes and Effects in Architecture

Frank Jacobus, University of Arkansas, USA, Angela Carpenter, University of Arkansas, USA, Rachel Smith-Loerts, University of Arkansas, USA, Randal Dickinson, University of Arkansas, USA and Justin Tucker, University of Arkansas, USA

The Making of Things is about effect and intention in the schematic architectural model, a deep dive into the nature of architectonic form as the underlying syntax for all architectural work.

This is a must-have desk reference for beginning architecture and interior design students to stimulate their creative approaches and gain foundational knowledge of the underlying effects of formal typologies and how they manifest themselves in built forms around the world.

Edited by Marie Stender, Aalborg University, Denmark, Claus Bech-Danielsen, Aalborg University, Denmark and Aina Landsverk Hagen, Oslo and Akershus University College of Oslo, Norway

Series: Routledge Research in Architecture

The anthology gathers contributions from leading researchers from various Nordic universities, architectural schools and architectural firms as well as prominent international scholars all exploring, developing and innovating the cross-disciplinary field between anthropology and architecture. Several contributions are co-written by architects and anthropologists, merging approaches from the two disciplines in order to fully explore the dynamics of lived space. Through a broad range of empirical examples, methodological approaches and theoretical reflections, the anthology provides inspiration and tools for scholars, students and practitioners working with lived space.

Cybernetic Architectures

Informational Thinking and Digital Design

Camilo Andrés Cifuentes Quin, La Salle University, Colombia

Series: Routledge Research in Architecture

This book explains how the evolution of the computational perspective in architecture has been parallel to the construction of design issues in reference to the central ideas fostered by the cybernetic model. It unpacks and explains this crucial relationship, in the work of digital architects, between the use of information technology in design and the conception of architectural problems around an informational ontology.

Cybernetic Architectures will appeal to architecture students and scholars interested in understanding the recent transformations in the architectural landscape related to the advent of computer-based design paradigms.

Engaging with Heritage and Historic Environment Policy

Agency, Interpretation and Implementation

Edited by Hana Morel and Michael Dawson

A comprehensive review of policy and practice in the historic environment, this book exposes the tensions, challenges and difficulties faced by the heritage sector at time of political volatility. The thrust of the volume is the need to close the gap between research and policy production. This book is the most recent and comprehensive review of how the heritage sector has evolved and draws special attention to the importance of the historic environment, not just in planning policy but for the country as a whole.

The chapters in this book were originally published in The Historic Environment: Policy & Practice.

Louis I. Kahn in Rome and Venice

Tangible Forms

Elisabetta Barizza, Sapienza University of Rome, Italy

Series: Routledge Research in Architecture

Unlike much of the by now well-established literature on Kahn's work, Louis I. Kahn in Rome and Venice suggests that the basic premise of Kahn's invention is the idea of spatial, constructive organism, which explains how he created forms that were inextricably anchored in the past, without imitating any one kind of ancient architecture. The main objective of the book is to explain Kahn's methodology to architects and students showing how he was able to design an architectural object with the characteristics of the best designed objects: organisms, in which each part contributes with the whole to create "something made of indivisible parts".

The Routledge Companion to Women in Architecture

Edited by Anna Sokolina, International Archive of Women in Architecture

Routledge Companion to Women in Architecture illuminates the names of pioneering women who over time continue to foster, shape, and build cultural, spiritual, and physical environments in diverse regions around the globe.

The novelty of this volume is in presenting not only a collection of case studies but in broadening the discipline by advancing an incisive overview of the topic as a whole. It is an invaluable resource for architectural historians, academics, students and professionals.

Writing the Materialities of the Past

Cities and the Architectural Topography of Historical Imagination

Sam Griffiths, University College London, UK

Series: Routledge Research in Architecture

This book offers a close analysis of how the materiality of the built environment has been repressed in historical thinking since the 1950s. Author Sam Griffiths argues that the social theory of cities in this period was characterised by the dominance of socio-economic and linguistic-cultural models, which served to impede our understanding of time-space relationality towards historical events and their narration. Written for postgraduate students, researchers and academics in architectural theory and urban studies, Griffiths draws on the space syntax tradition of research to explore how contingencies of movement and encounter construct the historical imagination.

Atlas of Material Worlds

Mapping the Agency of Matter for a New Landscape Practice

Edited by Matthew Seibert

Atlas of Material Worlds is a highly designed narrative atlas illustrating the agency of non-living materials with unique, ubiquitous, and often hidden influence on our daily lives. Employing New Materialism as a jumping off point, it examines the increasingly blurry lines between the organic and inorganic. Atlas of Material Worlds offers this new relationship to our host environment in a time of mounting crises—accelerating climate change, ballooning socioeconomic inequality, and rising toxic nationalism—uniquely telling materialist stories for practitioners and students in landscape, architecture, and other built environment disciplines.

Community Visioning for Place Making

A Guide to Visual Preference Surveys for Successful Urban Evolution

Anton C. Nelessen

Community Visioning for Placemaking is a groundbreaking guide to engaging with communities to design better public spaces. It provides a toolkit to encourage and assist organizations, municipalities and neighborhoods to organize visually-based community participation workshops to evaluate their existing community and translate these images into plans that embody their ideal characteristics of places and spaces. The book will appeal to community and neighborhood organizations, professional planners, social and psychological professionals, policy analysts, architects, urban designers, engineers, and municipal officials seeking an alternative vision for their future.

Landscape Citzenships

Edited by Tim Waterman, The Bartlett School of Architecture, University College London, UK, Jane Wolff and Ed Wall

This book, featuring work by academics from North America, Europe, and the Middle East, extends the growing body of thought and research in landscape democracy and landscape justice. Grounded in the discourses of ecological, environmental, watershed, and bioregional citizenships, this edited collection evaluates belonging through the idea of landscape as landship which describes substantive, mutually constitutive relations between people and place. With a strong international focus across fourteen chapters, it delves into key topics such as marginalization, indigeneity, globalization, politics, and the environment, before finishing with an epilogue written by Kenneth R. Olwig.

Leadership in Planning

How to Communicate Ideas and Effect Positive Change

Jeff Levine

Leadership in Planning explains how to get support for planning initiatives so they don't just fade from memory. It will guide city planners to think less about organizational charts and more about:

- Being a respected voice within your organization, both with staff and with your boss;
- Being a good communicator with people outside your organization; and
- Being able to understand how and when to push for good planning ideas to turn them into actions.

Along the way, case studies bring these concepts to the real world of municipal planning.

Mapping Urban Spaces

Designing the European City

Edited by Lamberto Amistadi, Valter Balducci, Tomasz Bradecki, Enrico Prandi and Uwe Schröder

Mapping Urban Spaces illustrates how the characteristics that make life in medium-sized European cities pleasant and sustainable—accessibility, ease of travel, urban sustainability, social inclusiveness—can be traced back to the nature of that space. The case studies come from countries around Europe including Poland, Italy, Greece, Germany, and France, among others. The book will be of interest to students, scholars, and practitioners in architecture, urban planning, and landscape architecture.

Ornamental Lakes

Their Origins and Evolution in English Landscapes

Wendy Bishop

Ornamental Lakes traces the history of lakes in England, from their appearance in the early eighteenth century, through their development in the 1750s, and finally to their decline in the nineteenth century. Through detailed research, author Wendy Bishop argues that, contrary to accepted thinking, the development of lakes led to the dissolution of formal landscapes rather than following changes in landscape design. Richly illustrated and accompanied by case studies across the region, this book offers new insights in landscape history for students, researchers and those interested in how landscapes evolve.

Shaping Neighbourhoods

For Local Health and Global Sustainability

Hugh Barton, Marcus Grant and Richard Guise, University of the West of England, UK

Shaping Neighbourhoods is unique in combining all aspects of the spatial planning of neighbourhoods and towns whilst emphasizing positive outcomes for people's health and global sustainability. This new edition retains the combination of radicalism, evidence-based advice and pragmatism that made earlier editions so popular. Whether you are a student faced with a local planning project; a public health professional, planner, urban designer or developer involved in new development or regeneration; a council concerned with promoting healthy and sustainable environments; a community group wanting to improve your neighbourhood – you will find help here.

The Emerging Public Realm of the Greater Bay Area

Approaches to Public Space in a Chinese Megaregion

Edited by Miodrag Mitrasinovic, Parsons The New School for Design and Tim Jachna

Through illustrated case studies and conceptual re-framings, this volume showcases ongoing transformations in public space, and its relationship to the public realm more broadly, in the world's most populous urban megaregion—the Greater Bay Area of southeastern China—projected to reach eighty million inhabitants by the year 2025. This is a captivating new dimension of urbanism and critical urban practice and will be of interest to academics, students and practitioners interested in urbanization in China.

Post-Rational Planning

A Solutions-Oriented Call to Justice

Laura E. Tate

Post-Rational Planning confronts today's threats to truth, particularly after recent news events that present alternative facts and media smear campaigns, often described as post-truth politics. At the same time, it appreciates critical tensions: between rationality (prized by planners and other policy professionals) and desires for positive, socially just outcomes. Each chapter sheds new light on a specific topic requiring a response through post-rational practice. It starts with recent research findings, then demonstrates them with case examples, enabling their use in classroom and practice settings.

Resilience Reset

Creating Resilient Cities in the Global South

Aditya V. Bahadur, Overseas Development Institute, UK and Thomas Tanner, Overseas Development Institute, UK

Drawing on evidence from urban resilience initiatives around the globe, the authors make a compelling argument for a 'resilience reset', a pause and stock-take that critically examines the concepts, practices and challenges of building resilience, particularly in cities of the Global South. The book will be an indispensable resource to those studying urbanisation, development, climate change and risk management, as well as for those designing and deploying operational initiatives to enhance urban resilience in businesses, international organisations, civil society organisations, and governments.

Series: Environmental and Occupational Health Series

The book offers the educated reader both a broad overview of PFAS and a deeper understanding of specific PFAS issues. Without requiring an advanced degree, the reader will have knowledge of the big rocks that are associated with PFAS. Policy makers will appreciate the difficulties and pros and cons of new analytical methods and the difficulties of PFAS detection in various environmental media. Concerned citizens from the general public will be exposed to risk management thought strategies. The book will have value to teachers and students, it will demonstrate the push and pull between, environmental policy and water treatment operations and how that affects the cost PFAS-free drinking water.

4th Edition • NEW EDITION

The Science of Environmental Pollution

Frank R. Spellman, Spellman Environmental Consultants, Norfolk, Virginia, USA

This new edition of The Science of Environmental Pollution presents common-sense approaches and practical examples based on scientific principles, models, and observations, but keeps the text lively and understandable for scientists and non-scientists alike. This fourth edition has been updated throughout, and greatly expands its coverage of endocrine disruptors and includes all new information on persistent "forever chemicals."

Designing Aeration Systems using Baseline Mass Transfer Coefficients

For Water and Wastewater Treatment

Johnny Lee

The book is about the discovery of a Standard Specific Baseline Mass Transfer Coefficient ( $K_{L,0.20}$ ) that represents a revolutionary change in the understanding, designing, operation of aeration equipment, as well as providing a baseline for future research and development for water and wastewater treatment systems. It discusses the use of the Standard Model for oxygen transfer to determine the baseline, and its major finding is to show that the gas transfer model is a consistent relativistic theory of molecular interactions.

Engineering Aspects of Howrah Bridge at Kolkata (1943)

Amitabha Ghoshal, STUP Consultants Pvt. Ltd., Kolkata, India

Howrah Bridge is an iconic engineering structure of Kolkata and is in excellent condition after 78 years of extensive use. This book covers all the engineering aspects of the structure explaining planning, design of super-structures, sub-structures and foundations along with fabrication and erection with a separate section on special features. Aimed at civil and bridge engineering students and graduate engineers, professionals, practising structural engineers as also heritage structure enthusiasts this book covers detailed case study and a thorough description of a well-known and iconic bridge.

Resource Recovery from Wastewater

Toward Sustainability

Edited by Veera Gnanaswar Gude

Traditional wastewater systems have become increasingly energy-consuming and cost-intensive while also not meeting the increasing standards for nutrient removal and sustainable development. This book incorporates the latest developments in pollutant removal and resource recovery schemes in wastewater treatment. It highlights advances that have been made in microbiological processes; design of treatment methods; process configurations; energy conservation and efficiency improvement schemes; nutrient removal; recovery, reclamation, and recycling; beneficial uses of wastewater; and bioenergy and biochemical production from wastewater and sludge streams.

The Cathedrals of Pisa, Siena and Florence

A Thorough Inspection of the Medieval Construction Techniques

Pietro Matracchi, Department of Architecture, University of Florence, Italy and Luca Giorgi, Department of Architecture, University of Florence, Italy

Series: Built Heritage and Geotechnics

The construction techniques and concepts of the cathedrals of Pisa, Siena and Florence are examined in detail, based on new data and using a methodological architectural diagnostics approach. New detailed surveys have enabled us to identify the building phases and the different construction techniques used over time. The information thereby acquired also formed the basis for a new interpretation of the archival documents. The book is aimed at scholars of architecture and ancient building structures, graduate and postgraduate students, and architects and engineers who plan architectural conservation and strengthening works for historical buildings.

Water Transport in Brick, Stone and Concrete

Christopher Hall, University of Edinburgh, UK and William D. Hoff, University of Manchester, UK

This presents a unified description of transport processes involving saturated and unsaturated flow in porous inorganic materials and structures. It sets out fundamental physics and materials science, mathematical description and experimental measurement as a basis for engineering design and construction practice. This latest edition combines a systematic presentation of the scientific and technical literature, with some new analyses of technical topics and processes such as sorption isotherm, temperature dependence of sorptivity, time-dependent properties of cement-based materials, layered materials, air-trapping and new computational packages.

An Introduction to Safety Grounding

Asser A. Zaky

Protective or safety grounding is of vital importance for the protection of individuals from electric shock. To many electrical engineers the notion of grounding is nebulous and safety grounding is quite often confused with neutral grounding of the power supply. The main objective of this book is to give the reader a better understanding of safety grounding, why it is needed, where it is needed, and what are the requirements which must be met in order to have an effective grounding system. This book is a practical guide that provides comprehensive coverage of all types of grounding requirements and is intended for students and practicing electrical engineers alike.

Green Engineering and Technology

Innovations, Design, and Architectural Implementation

Edited by Om Prakash Jena, Alok Ranjan Tripathy and Zdzislaw Polkowski, Jan Wyzykowski University, Poland

Series: Green Engineering and Technology

Green engineering technologies help to create sustainable, eco-friendly designs and solutions with the aid of updated tools, methods, designs, and innovations. These technologies play a significant role in optimizing sustainability in various areas of energy, agriculture, waste management, and bioremediation; and includes green computing and artificial intelligence (AI) applications. This book examines the most recent advancements in green technology, across multiple industries, and outlines the opportunities of emerging and future innovations, as well as practical real-world implementation.

Construction Digitalisation

A Capability Maturity Model for Construction Organisations

Douglas Aghimien, Clinton Aigbavboa, University of Johannesburg, South Africa, Ayodeji Oke and Wellington Thwala, Department of Construction Management and Quantity Surveying, University of Johannesburg, South Africa

Series: Construction in Developing Countries

This book explores construction digitalisation, particularly in developing countries. The book conceptualises a digitalisation capability maturity model that will enable construction organisations to self-assess and benchmark their digital capabilities in their quest for digital transformation. It serves as excellent theoretical background reading for management researchers seeking to expand their knowledge on the digitalisation of the construction industry and other associated

Developing the Competitive Advantage of Indigenous Construction Firms

Matthew Kwaw Somiah, Clinton Aigbavboa, University of Johannesburg, South Africa and Wellington Thwala, Department of Construction Management and Quantity Surveying, University of Johannesburg, South Africa

Series: Construction in Developing Countries

This book takes a pragmatic approach to developing the competitive advantage of indigenous construction firms in the Global South, using Ghana as a case study. The book is therefore of interest to researchers in construction management, strategic management, civil engineering, business administration, marketing, entrepreneurial and economic studies. It is an essential manual for owners and managers of construction businesses. It is also useful for government departments and non-governmental agencies seeking innovative ways to develop the capacity of indigenous firms.

Dilemmas of Energy Transitions in the Global South

Balancing Urgency and Justice

Edited by Ankit Kumar, Johanna I. Höffken and Auke Pols

Series: Routledge Explorations in Energy Studies

This book explores how in the wake of the Anthropocene, the growing call for urgent decarbonisation and accelerated energy transitions might have unintended consequences for energy poverty, justice and democracy, especially in the global South. It examines case studies from countries including Bolivia, Sri Lanka, India, Ghana and Lebanon in order to expand our understanding of what energy transitions are, and how just energy transitions can be done in different parts of the world. This volume will be of great interest to students and scholars of energy transitions, environmental justice, climate change and developing countries.

Governance and Leadership in Health and Safety

A Guide for Board Members and Executive Management

Waddah S Ghanem Al Hashmi, Emirates National Oil Company and Bob Arnold, ICE Health & Safety Registered & Lead Consultant, Director, Managing Director, The BarGroup

It takes the high-level leadership and top management principles put forward in ISO 45001 and develops them into a comprehensive discourse on how, at the very top of any organization, large or small, leaders can drive the occupational health and safety (OH&S) agenda and ensure the effective implementation of the OH&S management systems. The book is written for top management teams of both non-executive and executive leadership, as well as senior advisors, in all organizations seeking to effectively implement OH&S policies and management systems. It can also be utilized to create training and learning materials to assist with implementation.

Methodological foundations, challenges and future directions

Edited by Kenneth Pettersen Gould, Associate Professor, Risk Management and Societal Safety, University of Stavanger, Norway and Carl Macrae, Professor, Centre for Health Innovation, Leadership, and Learning, Nottingham University Business School, University of Nottingham, UK

This book explores the challenges, opportunities, applications, and implications of applying qualitative research to critical questions of research and practice in the field of organizational risk and safety. The book brings together a diverse perspective to explore the practice of conducting qualitative research.

This book will provide academics, researchers, students, and professionals in the fields of safety, accident analysis, and risk

Aviation Safety and Security

Utilizing Technology to Prevent Aircraft Fatality

Stephen J Wright

The book focuses on ways to better manage and prevent aircraft-based homicide events while in-flight using alternate technology to replace the Cockpit Voice Recorder (CVR) and/or Digital Flight Data Recorder (DFDR) functions. While these events are infrequent, the implementation of real-time predictive maintenance would allow aircraft operators to better manage both scheduled and unscheduled maintenance events. The book explores historical events of in-flight homicide and includes relevant accident case study excerpts (i.e. NTSB, AAIB).

Forest Insects in Europe

Diversity, Functions and Importance

Edited by Beat Wermelinger, Swiss Federal Institute WSL, Zurich, Switzerland

Forest insects play important roles ecologically and economically. They pollinate plants, decompose dead plant and animal tissue, provide food for vertebrates, regulate pest organisms, and shape entire landscapes. Some are considered pests, while others provide usable products. This book has been written for professional entomologists but also for nature lovers generally. The descriptions of the various roles insects play in forest ecosystems are intended to be easily comprehensible, but still scientific. The book is richly illustrated with 580 fascinating colour images of over 300 different insect and spider species.

Subtle Agroecologies

Farming With the Hidden Half of Nature

Edited by Julia Wright, Coventry University, Centre for Agroecology, Coventry, United Kingdom

Series: Advances in Agroecology

This book forges a new discipline in the form of Subtle Agroecologies, a nexus of indigenous epistemologies, multidisciplinary advances in wave-based and ethereal studies, and the science of sustainable agriculture. Bringing together authors from 12 countries and 5 continents, it introduces the discipline and explains its potential contribution to Agroecology. The book is grounded in applied phenomena, offering different facets by which to approach and explore this invisible dimension of agriculture. Subtle Agroecologies could herald a new wave of more sustainable farming techniques and changing our relationship with nature to one of collaboration rather than control.

Dynamic Simulation and Virtual Reality in Hydrology and Water Resources Management

Ramesh Teegavarapu, Florida Atlantic University, Boca Raton, U.S.A. and Chandramouli V. Chandramouli, Purdue University Northwest, USA

This book focuses on the understanding, use, and application of system dynamics simulation and virtual reality approaches for modelling the spatial and temporal behavior of natural and managed hydro-environmental systems. It discusses concepts of systems thinking, system dynamics approach, and it furthers understanding of the dynamic behavior of natural and engineering systems using feedbacks and dynamic simulation. Numerous examples of models built using different system dynamics simulation modeling environments are provided. It also introduces concepts related to computer animation and virtual reality-based immersive modeling.

Mulberry

Genetic Improvement in Context of Climate Change

Edited by Maharaj Krishen Razdan, Former Principal, Shyam Lal College, University of Delhi, Delhi, India Former, Member, Delhi University Academic Council, Delhi, India and Dennis T. Thomas, Department of Plant Science, Central University of Kerala, Kasaragod, India

Comprises the latest research findings of experts in mulberry (Morus spp.), an important plant in sericulture. It includes systematics, conservation of germplasm, methods of cultivation, conventional methods of genetic improvement like sexual breeding, polyploidy and mutation breeding, biochemical and phytochemical studies, application of non-conventional breeding techniques using tissue culture in haploid and triploid plant production, somatic hybridization, and genetic transformation to improve quality and productivity as well as the development of stress tolerant adaptive traits in plants in context of global warming.

Nitrogen Cycle

Ecology, Biotechnological Applications and Environmental Impacts

Edited by Jesus Gonzalez-Lopez and Alejandro Gonzalez-Martinez

Anthropogenic activity has clearly altered the N cycle contributing (among other factors) to climate change. This book aims to provide new biotechnological approach representing innovative strategies to solve specific problems related to the imbalance originating in the N cycle. Aspects such as new conceptions in agriculture, wastewater treatment, and greenhouse gas emissions are discussed in this book with a multidisciplinary vision. A team of international authors with wide experience have contributed up-to-date reviews, highlighting scientific principles and their environmental importance and integrating different biotechnological processes in environmental technology.

Advanced Controls for Intelligent Buildings

A Holistic Approach for Successful Businesses

Siddharth Goyal, LG Electronics, USA.

This book focuses primarily on both technical and business aspects needed to select, design, develop and deploy control application (or product) successfully for multiple components in building systems. Providing a wide overview of the state-of-art in controls and building systems, providing guidance on developing an end-to-end system in relation to business fundamentals (distribution channels, stakeholders, marketing, supply-chain and financial management), the book is ideal for fourth-year control/mechanical/electrical engineering undergraduates, graduate students, and practitioners including business leaders concerned with smart building technology.

Application of Signal Processing Tools and Neural Network in Diagnosis of Power System Faults

Nabamita Banerjee Roy and Kesab Bhattacharya

Accurate, fast, and reliable fault classification techniques are an important operational requirement in modern-day power transmission systems. This book gives an elaboration of the power system faults and the conventional techniques of fault analysis. The book will provide necessary information and knowledge to an Engineering student and practitioners to carry out research activity. Readers will learn the method of programming and simulation of any network in MATLAB. They will learn how to extract features from a signal waveform by using a suitable signal processing toolbox. They will also learn the application of Artificial Neural Network.

Counter Electrode for Dye-Sensitized Solar Cells

Alagarsamy Pandikumar and Kandasamy Jothivnekatachalam

This book converses the various aspects of materials for the fabrication of counter electrodes, especially for dye-sensitized solar cells (DSSCs) which are believed to be the most promising in the third-generation solar photovoltaics (PVs). To improve the performance of DSSCs, many scientists have developed new counter electrodes made of platinum, carbon materials, transition metals, conductive polymers, and composites. Renewable energies have become an attractive option to overcome the energy demands in sustainable and affordable ways. Of the various renewable energies, one-third of the energy generation would be from PVs.

Dressings for Advanced Wound Care

Sharon Lam Po Tang

Series: Textile Institute Professional Publications

The book starts by helping the reader understand what advanced wound care is and the market size. It then explains how different types of wounds may require different environments to heal and how dressings can help in creating the right environment. It gives an overview of the various dressing technologies that are available to help manage wounds that are difficult to heal. It provides recent clinical evidence that support how well (or not) the technologies work, and also discusses on how such technologies are launched in the market. Finally, the book will highlight the current trends that may be directing the future of the advanced wound dressing sector.

Horia Mihai Mojit, Control and Instrumentation Association of Romania, Romania

This pioneering book includes both the new elaborated method of the flow measurement, named "the reaction force method of flow measurement", including its specific "reaction measurement system" which ensures its practical implementation, and the new basic types of flowmeters, named accordingly "reaction flowmeters". There are details on the individual (single) reaction flow meters, configured both without and with moving parts, the specific connections of two reaction flowmeters, named "extended reaction flowmeters", and the bypass type reaction flowmeters.

Heat and Mass Transfer Modelling During Drying

Empirical to Multiscale Approaches

Edited by Mohammad U.H. Joardder, Washim Akram and Azharul Karim, Queensland University of Technology, Brisbane, Australia

Most of the conventional dryer uses random heating to dry diverse materials without considering their thermal sensitivity and energy requirement for drying. Eventually, excess energy consumption is required along with attaining low quality dried product. Proper heat and mass transfer modeling prior to designing drying system for selected food materials can overcome these problems. Heat and Mass Transfer Modelling During Drying: Empirical to Multiscale Approaches extensively discusses the issue of prediction of energy consumption in terms of heat and mass transfer simulation.

Interplant Resource Integration

Optimization and Allocation

Chuei-Tin Chang, National Cheng Kung University, Tainan City, Taiwan R.O.C., Cheng-Liang Chen, National Taiwan University, Taipei, Taiwan ROC and Jui-Yuan Lee, National Taipei University of Technology, Taiwan R.O.C.

This book presents an introduction to the planning and implementation methods for interplant resource integration. The analytic tools provided in the book can be used for the tasks of formulating mathematical programming model(s) to maximize the achievable overall saving and also devising the "fair" distribution scheme(s) to allocate individual financial benefits among the participating plants. The superstructures of various resource-exchange networks, their model formulations, and the corresponding allocation algorithms are given in sufficient detail to facilitate practical applications.

Micro- and Nanofabrication for Beginners

Eiichi Kondoh

In this book, the fundamentals of micro- and nanofabrication are described on the basis of the concept of "using gases as a fabrication tool." Unlike other books available on the subject, this volume assumes only entry-level mathematics, physics, and chemistry of undergraduates or high-school students in science and engineering courses. Necessary theories are plainly explained to help the reader learn about this new attractive field and enable further reading of specialized books. The book is an attractive guide for students, young engineers, and anyone getting involved in micro- and nanofabrication from various fields including physics, electronics, chemistry, and materials sciences.

Teaching Electromagnetics

Innovative Approaches and Pedagogical Strategies

Edited by Krishnasamy T. Selvan and Karl Warnick

This book is a modern guide for electromagnetic educators addressing questions about curricular content and pedagogical methods primarily at the undergraduate level. Topics include teaching methods, lab experiences and hands-on learning, and course structures that help teachers respond effectively to trends in learning styles and evolving engineering curricula. The book will grapple with issues related to the recent worldwide shift to remote teaching. The end result should be impact on the reader represented by improvements to his or her practical teaching methods and curricular approach to electromagnetics education. The book is intended for electromagnetic professors and lab instructors.

Therapeutic RNA Nanotechnology

Immunomodulation and Dynamicity

Edited by Kirill A. Afonin and Morgan Chandler

This collection of research articles and reviews covers the latest work in the design, delivery, dynamic abilities, and immune stimulation of RNA nanoparticles which have driven the utilization of their immunomodulatory properties. The unknown immune properties of nucleic acid nanoparticles have been a major hurdle in their adaptation until the works herein began assessing their structure-activity relationships. This collection chronologically follows the path of investigating the recognition of design components to implementing them into nucleic acid nanostructures.

Applied Strength of Materials

Robert Mott, University of Dayton, Ohio, USA and Joseph A. Untener, University of Dayton, Ohio, USA

Introducing the theoretical background of the subject, with a strong visual component, the book equips the reader with problem-solving techniques. The updated seventh edition incorporates new technologies, with a pedagogical approach. It emphasizes realistic engineering applications for the analysis and design of structural members.

A "Big Picture" section starts each chapter to help students grasp the overall objectives and their application in industrial applications. Step-by-step problem-solving approaches are included throughout the book. While calculus is used sparingly, detailed developments of important design-related formulas are provided.

Application of Nanomaterials in Chemical Sensors and Biosensors

Edited by Jayeeta Chattopadhyay, Chemistry Dept., Amity University, Jharkhand and Nimmy Srivastava

Recent advances in nanotechnology has led the nanomaterials into the realm of sensing applications. This descriptive book utilizes a multi-disciplinary approach to provide extensive information about sensors and elucidates the impact of nanotechnology on development of chemical and biosensors for diversified applications. The main focus of this book is not only the inclusion of various research works, which have already been reported in literature, but also to make a potential conclusion about the mechanism behind this. This book will serve as an invaluable tool for both frontline researchers and academicians to work towards the future development of nanotechnology in sensing devices.

Bioelectronics and Medical Devices

Applications and Technology

Edited by Garima Srivastava and Manju Khari

Bioelectronics and Medical Devices: Applications and Technology provides an abundance of information on new applications being used today for biomedical applications. The book covers a wide range of concepts and technologies used in biomedical applications, discussing such modern technological methods as the Internet of Things, e-pills, biomedical sensors, support vector machines, wireless devices, image and signal processing in e-health, and machine learning. It also discusses the different types of antennas, including antennas using RF energy harvesting for biomedical applications.

Biomedical Signal Processing for Healthcare Applications

Edited by Varun Bajaj, IIITDM Jabalpur, India, G. R. Sinha, Department of ECE, Myanmar Institute of Information Technology Mandalay, Myanmar and Chinmay Chakraborty, BIRLA INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY, INDIA.

Series: Emerging Trends in Biomedical Technologies and Health Informatics

This book examines biomedical signal processing in which biomedical signals such as EEG, EMG, ECG are used to analyze and diagnosis various medical conditions. These modalities are used in diagnosis of dangerous illness related to the heart and brain. In combination with machine learning tools and other optimization methods, the analysis of biomedical signals will subsequently benefit the healthcare sector by improving patient outcomes through early and more reliable detection. This book can be used by a wide range of users including students, research scholars, faculty, and practitioners in the field of biomedical engineering and medical image analysis and diagnosis.

Biometric Data in Smart Cities

Methods and Models of Collective Behavior

Stepan Bilan, State Economy and Technology University of Transport, Ukraine, Mykola Bilan, Ruslan Motornyyuk, Main Information and Computing Center, Ukraine, and Serhii Yuzhakov

Series: Sensors Communication for Urban Intelligence

This book describes methods for processing biometric information in a smart city environment. The theoretical foundations of building a biometric multisensor network, which allows you to create a unified urban biometric community, are considered. Methods of biometric identification by gait parameters and the geometric shape of the auricle are described, which are effectively used in a smart city. A method for tracking dynamic changes in the state of a smart city in real time is considered. Models of behavior of colonies of living organisms, their formation, movement and interaction are described on the basis of the technology of cellular automata with active cells.

Bridging Circuits And Fields

Foundational Questions in Power Theory

Alexander I. Petroianu, University of Cape Town, South Africa; University of Calgary, Canada

The book proposes a new paradigm for power theory that can be used in power systems and electrical networks. This new approach links electromagnetic and circuit theories in a coherent way by taking a fresh look at the old debates of poynting vector and reactive power as well as offering a mathematically consistent and physically coherent interpretation of the power concept and the mechanism of power transmission. Seeing the advances in geometrical optics, quantum mechanics, and geometric algebra, the monograph illustrates that, to paraphrase Heaviside, there is no finality in the development of a vibrant discipline such as power theory.

Consumers and Nanotechnology

Deliberative Processes and Methodologies

Edited by Pål Strandbakken, SIFO, National Institute for Consumer Research, Oslo, Norway, Gerd Scholl and Eivind Stø

This book presents findings from EU (and other) projects on the theme of science in society, focusing on nanotechnology and the potential for democratisation of science. It is based on hands-on studies of a set of deliberative processes analysed by the European Commission's FP7 NANOPLAT project. With added material in the second edition, the book gives a unique insight into the development of deliberative processes on nanotechnology from the start in June 2004 in Denmark up to the present.

Cooperative Control of Complex Network Systems with Dynamic Topologies

Guanghui Wen, Wenwu Yu, Yuezuo Lv and Peijun Wang

As one of the most fundamental examples of cooperative behaviour, consensus within CNSs has gained considerable attention from various fields of research, including systems science, control theory and electrical engineering. This book mainly studies consensus of CNSs with dynamics topologies - unlike most existing books that have focused on consensus control and analysis for CNSs under a fixed topology. As most practical networks have limited communication ability, switching graphs can be used to characterize real-world communication topologies, leading to a wider range of practical applications. Both professional researchers and laypeople will benefit from this book.

Deep Learning and IoT in Healthcare Systems

Paradigms and Applications

Edited by Krishna Kant Singh, Akansha Singh, Jenn-Wei Lin and Ahmed A. Elngar

This new volume discusses the applications and challenges of deep learning and the internet of things for applications in healthcare. It describes deep learning techniques along with IoT used by practitioners and researchers worldwide. The authors look at the role and impact that deep learning and the IoT plays in healthcare systems, such as the convergence of IoT and deep learning to enable things to communicate, share information, and coordinate decisions. The book includes deep feedforward networks, regularization, optimization algorithms, convolutional networks, sequence modeling, and practical methodology.

Design of Optimal Feedback for Structural Control

Ido Halperin, Ariel University, Israel, Grigory Agronovich, Ariel University, Israel and Yuri Ribakov, Ariel University, Haifa, Israel

This book addresses problems in optimal structural control. It provides solutions and techniques for optimal control design problems related to passive and semi-active controlled structures. Optimal control theory is used in order to solve these problems in a rigorous manner. Modern theoretical notions, such as dissipativity and passivity of dynamic systems, are discussed in the context of the addressed problems. Novel solutions for optimal passive and semi-active control design problems are derived and verified by rigorous theoretical derivations and numerical simulations of typical civil structures which are subjected to different types of dynamic excitations.

Flexibility in Electric Power Distribution Networks

Edited by Hassan Haes Alhelou, Tisheen Univ, Syria, Ehsan Heydarian-Forushani, EEPDC, Syria. and Pierluigi Siano, Univ Degli Studi de Salerno, Italy.

There is a great research gap related to renewable-based distribution network planning with flexibility point of view. This book discusses the additional flexibility needs introduced by renewable energy sources (RESs) and describes general approaches to analyze the need for and provision of additional flexibility in future distribution networks at both planning and operational time frames. It successfully suggests new solutions and techniques to increase the flexibility in distribution systems. This book also highlights the needs for moving towards smart distribution grids in order to enhance the flexibility in modern and future power systems.

Electric Vehicle Integration in a Smart Microgrid Environment

Edited by Mohammad Saad Alam and Mahesh Krishnamurthy

As EVs find wider acceptance with major advancements in high efficiency drivetrain and vehicle design, it has become clear that there is a need for system level understanding of energy storage and management in a microgrid environment. Practical issues such as fleet management, coordinated operation, re-purposing of batteries and environmental impact of recycling and disposal need to be carefully studied in the context of an ageing grid infrastructure. This book explores such as perspective with contributions from leading experts on planning, analysis, optimization and management of electrified transportation and the transportation infrastructure.

Edited by Suman Lata Tripathi, Lovely Professional University, India., Mithilesh Kumar Dubey, Lovely Professional University, India, Vinay Rishiwal, MJP Rohilkhand University, India and Sanjeevikumar Padmanaban, Aalborg University, Denmark

The book summarizes commonly used AI methodologies in renewable energy, with a particular emphasis on neural networks, fuzzy logic, and genetic algorithms. Book outlines selected AI applications for renewable energy. In particular, discusses methods using the AI approach for the following applications using suitable examples: prediction and modeling of solar radiation, seizing, performances, and controls of the solar photovoltaic (PV) systems. It provides better incites to the solar

Nanostructured Multifunctional Materials

Synthesis, Characterization, Applications and Computational Simulation

Edited by Esteban A. Franceschini

This book provides a broad overview of the effect of nanostructuring in the multifunctionality of different widely studied nanomaterials. This book is divided into four sections constituting a road map that groups materials sharing certain types of nanostructuring, including nanoporous, nanoparticled, 2D laminar nanomaterials, and computational methods for characterizations of nanostructures. This structured approach in nanomaterials research will serve as a valuable reference material for chemists, (bio)engineers, physicists, nanotechnologists, undergraduates, and professors.

A Modern Approach via the Weighted Sensitivity Problem

Salvador Alcántara Cano, Dept. de Comunicació i Enginyeria de Sistemes, Escola d'Enginyeria, UAB, Bellaterra, BCN, SPAIN, Ramon Vilanova Arbós, UAB, Bellaterra, BCN, SPAIN and Carles Pedret i Ferré, Dept. de Comunicació i Enginyeria de Sistemes, Escola d'Enginyeria, UAB, Bellaterra, BCN, SPAIN

PID controller is the most common option in the realm of control applications, dominant in the process control industry. Amongst the related analytical methods, Internal Model Control (IMC) has gained remarkable industrial acceptance due their robust nature and yield good set-point responses, but result in poor load disturbance rejection for integrating/lag-dominant plants. This book presents an  $H_{\infty}$  design which avoids some of the limitations of the IMC method, devised to work well for plants of modest complexity, for which analytical PID tuning is plausible. To alleviate the usual difficulties, plain  $H_{\infty}$  weighted sensitivity problem has been used including chapters on Hinf and IMC control.

Protective Thin Coatings and Functional Thin Films Technology

Two-Volume Set

Edited by Sam Zhang, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore, Jyh-Ming Ting, National Cheng Kung University, Tainan, Taiwan and Wan-Yu Wu

Series: Advances in Materials Science and Engineering

This two-volume work captures advances in thin films and coatings, one focusing on protection and the other on functional applications. It highlights advances in the preparation, characterization, and applications of protective and functional micro-/nano-scaled films and coatings and includes theoretical modeling, growth/synthesis, and cholerization/properties. It benefits industry professionals and researchers working in areas related to semiconductor, optoelectronics, plasma technology, solid-state energy storages, and 5G, as well as advanced students studying electrical, mechanical, chemical, and materials engineering.

Robot Learning Human Skills and Intelligent Control Design

Chenguang Yang, Bristol Robotics Laboratory (BRL), University of the West of England (UWE), Bristol, Chao Zeng, University of Hamburg, Germany and Jianwei Zhang, Institute of Technical Aspects of Multimodal Systems, University of Hamburg, Germany

The book introduces recent results on the development of advanced LfD-based learning and control approaches to improve the robot dexterous manipulation. It explains the transfer of human user's arm variable stiffness to the robot, based on the online estimation from the muscle electromyography. It introduces the correlation between signals collected from demonstration, i.e. motion trajectory, stiffness profile estimated from EMG and interaction force. Some common human-robot interaction interfaces (like motion capture-based teleoperation) are presented, which allow a human user to interact with a robot and transfer movements to it in both simulation and real-world environments.

Safety, Security, and Reliability of Robotic Systems

Algorithms, Applications, and Technologies

Edited by Brij B. Gupta, National Institute of Technology Kurukshetra (Institute of National Importance (INI)), India and Nadia Nedjah, State University of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil
With the increasing demand of robots for industrial or domestic use, it becomes indispensable to ensure their safety, security and reliability. Safety, Security and Reliability of robotic Systems: Algorithms, Applications and Technologies provides a broad and comprehensive coverage of the evolution of robotic systems, as well as industrial statistics and future forecasts.

This book is an essential resource for students, professionals and entrepreneurs who wish to understand the safe, secure, and reliable use of robotics in real-world applications.

Steel Rolling

Principle, Process & Application

N.K. Gupta

This book covers all aspects and elements of rolling technology. It is exhaustive as topics ranging from rolls, rolls cooling, roll turning, roll reclamation, investigation of roll breakage, roll management and roll bearing all have been dealt in detail. A separate chapter has been dedicated to operational management of a rolling mill. This book will be a useful tool for shop floor personnel and for all senior management operating in the rolling mill industry. This book may also be useful as reference book for students/professionals of rolling technology. ; Note: T& F does not sell or distribute the Hardback in India, Pakistan, Nepal, Bhutan, Bangladesh and Sri Lanka.

Stress and Strain Engineering at Nanoscale in Semiconductor Devices

Chinmay K. Maiti, SOA University Bhubaneswar, Odisha, India

Based on extensive 3D process and device simulations with mechanical stress simulations by finite element techniques, this book explains performance assessment of nanoscale devices with strained SiGe and other stressors. It investigates the possible highest amount of process-induced stress transfer by various stressors for optimization of device performance. Further, it explains new developments at 7nm technology node and below in the area of strain-engineered devices using different material systems such as Silicon, high mobility semiconductors. Overall, material aspects, principle and design aspects of heterostructure devices, TCAD simulations and applications are discussed.

The Method of Moments in Electromagnetics

Walton C. Gibson, Tripoint Industries Inc., Harvest, Alabama, USA

This book is intended for students, researchers and industry experts working in area of computational electromagnetics and the MoM. Providing a bridge between theory and software implementation, the book incorporates significant background material, while presenting practical, nuts-and-bolts implementation details. Previous editions focused on the solution of radiation and scattering problems involving conducting, dielectric, and composite objects. This new edition adds a significant amount of material. Included are new chapters on the ACA and MLACA, advanced algorithms that permit a direct solution of the MoM linear system via LU decomposition in compressed form.

Thermal Energy Storage with Phase Change Materials

Edited by Mohammed Farid, Amar Auckaili and Gohar Gholambozani

This book focuses on latent heat storage, which is one of the most efficient ways of storing thermal energy. Unlike the sensible heat storage method, latent heat storage method provides much higher storage density, with a smaller difference between storing and releasing temperatures. With six chapters that cover the deep aspects of thermal energy storage and their practical applications, this book is an ideal research reference for students at the postgraduate level. It also serves a useful reference for electrical, mechanical, and chemical engineers and students throughout their work.

Wood Modification Technologies

Principles, Sustainability, and the Need for Innovation

Dick Sandberg, Chaired Professor of Wood Science & Engineering, Luleå University of Technology, Sweden, Andreja Kutnar, InnoRenew CoE, Slovenia, Olov Karlsson and Dennis Jones

The aim of this book is to put together the key elements of the changes of wood constituents and the related changes in wood properties of modified wood. Further, a selection of the principal technologies implemented in wood modification are presented. This work is intended for researchers, professionals of timber construction, as well as students studying the science of materials, civil engineering and architecture. ## Data Analytics and Visualization in Quality Analysis using Tableau

Jaejin Hwang, Northern Illinois University, United States and Youngjin Yoon, Pitney Bowes, Acacia Ln, Shelton, CT, United States

The purpose of this book is to help quality practitioners perform effective quality control and analysis using Tableau software, a user-friendly data analytics and visualization software. It initiates with basic introduction to quality analysis with tableau including differentiating factors from other platforms. It is followed by description of features and functions of quality analysis tools followed by step-by-step instructions to use Tableau. Further, quality analysis through Tableau based on open source data is explained based on five case studies. Lastly, it systematically describes the implementation of the quality analysis through Tableau in actual workplace via a dashboard example.

Influencing Customer Demand

An Operations Management Approach

Edited by Mahya Hemmati, Amirkabir University of Technology, Tehran, Iran and Mohsen S. Sajadieh, Amirkabir University of Technology, Tehran, Iran

This is the first book to discuss managerial, mathematical, and the conceptual framework of influencing factors on demand along with accurate mathematical analysis to evaluate and raise revenue.

The book provides an understanding of the key factors that influence buyer demand. It presents the mathematical relationship between the influencing factors and the demand functions. It discusses the methods used for influencing demand, how to measure demand dependence on factors such as price, quality, and inventory and it helps management improve alignment between supply and demand by affecting the levels and understanding the role within the SCM.

Achieving Product Reliability

A Key to Business Success

Necip Doganaksoy, Siena College, School of Business, William Q. Meeker and Gerald J. Hahn

Series: ASA-CRC Series on Statistical Reasoning in Science and Society

The audience is quantitatively literate readers who are interested in learning about how statistics is used to solve real-life reliability problems. The goal is not to teach the nitty gritty details and the underlying theory of such analyses. Instead, the authors use real-life examples and case studies to illustrate applications of statistics with heavy reliance of data and analysis graphs so as to provide a general appreciation of the subject. Only a rudimentary and perhaps dated knowledge of some basic statistical concepts is assumed.

Student Success Stories

Brian Cafarella

The book presents the results of a study focused on students who struggled in mathematics. Though their experiences varied, they all entered community college with a great deal of disgust and anxiety toward mathematics courses and requirements. These impressions and attitudes create barriers to success. However, all the students eventually succeeded in fulfilling their college-level mathematics requirement.

2nd Edition • NEW EDITION

Divided Spheres

Geodesics and the Orderly Subdivision of the Sphere

Edward S. Popko and Christopher J. Kitrick

This first edition of this well-illustrated book presented a thorough introduction to the mathematics of Buckminster Fuller's invention of the geodesic dome, which paved the way for a flood of practical applications as diverse as weather forecasting and fish farms. The author explained the principles of spherical design and the three classic methods of subdivision based on geometric solids (polyhedra).

This thoroughly edited new edition does all that, while also introducing new techniques that extend the class concept by relaxing the triangulation constraint to develop two new forms of optimized hexagonal tessellations.

Introduction to High-Dimensional Statistics

Christophe Giraud, Paris Sud University, France

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Monographs on Statistics and Applied Probability

This new, second edition preserves the philosophy of the first edition: to be a concise guide for students and researchers discovering the area and interested in the mathematics involved. The main concepts and ideas are presented in simple settings, avoiding thereby unessential technicalities. High-dimensional statistics is a fast-evolving field and much progress has been made on a large variety of topics, providing new insights and methods.

Javascript for R

John Coene

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC The R Series

Little known to many, R works just as well with JavaScript—this book delves into the various ways both languages can work together. The ultimate aim of this work is to put the reader at ease with inviting JavaScript in their data science workflow. In that respect the book is not teaching one JavaScript but rather we show how little JavaScript can greatly support and enhance R code. Therefore, the focus is on integrating external JavaScript libraries and no prior knowledge of JavaScript is required.

Malliavin Calculus in Finance

Theory and Practice

Elisa Alos, Universitat Pompeu Fabra, Spain and David Garcia Lorite

Series: Chapman and Hall/CRC Financial Mathematics Series

This book aims to introduce the study of stochastic volatility (SV) models via Malliavin Calculus.

The objective of this book is to offer a bridge between theory and practice. It shows that Malliavin calculus is an easy-to-apply tool that allows us to recover, unify, and generalize several previous results in the literature on stochastic volatility modeling related to the vanilla, the forward, and the VIX implied volatility surfaces. It can be applied to local, stochastic, and also to rough volatilities (driven by a fractional Brownian motion) leading to simple and explicit results.

Signal Detection for Medical Scientists

Likelihood Ratio Test-based Methodology

Ram Tiwari, US Food and Drug Administration, Silver Spring, MD, Jyoti Zalkikar, US FDA and Lan Huang, US FDA

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Biostatistics Series

This book presents the data mining techniques with focus on likelihood ratio test (LRT) based methods for signal detection. It emphasizes computational aspect of LRT methodology and is pertinent for first-time researchers and graduate students venturing into this interesting field. The book is written as a reference book for professionals in pharmaceutical industry, manufactures of medical devices, and regulatory agencies. The book deals with the signal detection in drug/device evaluation, which is important in the post-market evaluation of medical products, and in the pre-market signal detection during clinical trials for monitoring procedures.

A First Course in Ergodic Theory

Karma Dajani, Utrecht University, The Netherlands and Charlene Kalle, Leiden University, The Netherlands

This book provides readers with an intro course in Ergodic Theory. This textbook has been developed from the authors' own notes on the subject, which they have been teaching since the 1990s. Over the years they have added topics, theorems, examples and explanations from various sources. The result is a book that is easy to teach from and easy to learn from — designed to require only minimal prerequisites.

Advanced R Solutions

Malte Grosser, Henning Bumann and Hadley Wickham

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC The R Series

This book offers solutions to all 284 exercises in Advanced R, Second Edition. All the solutions have been carefully documented and made to be as clear and accessible as possible. Working through the exercises and their solutions will give you a deeper understanding of a variety of programming challenges, many of which are relevant to everyday work. This will expand your set of tools on a technical and conceptual level. You will be able to transfer many of the specific programming schemes directly and will discover far more elegant solutions to everyday problems.

Algebra & Geometry

An Introduction to University Mathematics

Mark V. Lawson

This book provides a bridge between high school and undergraduate mathematics courses on algebra and geometry. The text focuses on linear equations, polynomial equations, and quadratic forms. The first few chapters cover foundational topics, including the importance of proofs and a discussion of the properties commonly encountered when studying algebra. The remaining chapters form the mathematical core of the book. These chapters explain the solution of different kinds of algebraic equations, the nature of the solutions, and the interplay between geometry and algebra.

Algebraic Number Theory: A Brief Introduction

J.S. Chahal

Series: Textbooks in Mathematics

This book offers the basics of algebraic number theory for students and others who need an introduction and do not have the time to wade through the voluminous textbooks available. It is suitable for an independent study or as a textbook for a first course on the topic. The author presents the topic here by first offering a brief introduction of number theory and a review of the prerequisite material, then presents the basic theory of algebraic number theory.

Bayesian Networks

With Examples in R

Marco Scutari, Istituto Dalle Molle and Jean-Baptiste Denis, INRA

Series: Chapman & Hall/CRC Texts in Statistical Science

The book introduces Bayesian networks using a hands-on approach, through simple yet meaningful examples. Discrete Bayesian networks are described first (Chapter 2), followed by Gaussian Bayesian networks (Chapter 3). Mixed networks (which include arbitrary random variables, and typically mix continuous and discrete ones) are covered as well (Chapter 4). These chapters explain the whole process of Bayesian network modelling, from structure learning to parameter learning to inference. All steps in learning are illustrated with R code.

Giuseppe Campolieti, Wilfrid Laurier University, Waterloo, Ontario, Canada and Roman N. Makarov, Wilfrid Laurier University, Waterloo, Ontario, Canada*Series: Textbooks in Mathematics*

The book has been tested and refined through years of classroom teaching experience. With an abundance of examples, problems, and fully worked out solutions, the text introduces the financial theory and relevant mathematical methods in a mathematically rigorous yet engaging way.

This textbook provides complete coverage of discrete-time financial models that form the cornerstones of financial derivative pricing theory. Unlike similar texts in the field, this one presents multiple problem-solving approaches, linking related comprehensive techniques for pricing different types of financial derivatives.

Here, we use questions about various games (not just casino games) to motivate the mathematics, and the writing aims to emphasize a "just-in-time" mathematics approach. Topics are presented mathematically as questions about the games themselves are posed.

Linear Algebra and Its Applications with R

Ruriko Yoshida

Series: Textbooks in Mathematics

The book developed from the need to teach a linear algebra course to students focused on data science and bioinformatics programs. The author presents the topics in a traditional course yet offers lectures as well as lab exercises on simulated and empirical data sets. This textbook provides students a theoretical basis which can then be applied to the practical R and Python problems, providing the tools needed for real-world applications.

This book is designed from first principles to demonstrate the importance of linear algebra through working computational examples with R and python including tutorials on how to install R in the Appendix.

Linear algebra is growing in importance. 3D entertainment, animations in movies and video games are developed using linear algebra. The Fourth Edition of this popular text introduces linear algebra in a comprehensive, geometric, and algorithmic way. The authors start with the fundamentals in 2D and 3D, then move on to higher dimensions, expanding on the fundamentals and introducing new topics, which are necessary for many real-life applications and the development of abstract thought. Applications are introduced to motivate topics. This practical approach to a linear algebra course, whether through classroom instruction or self-study, is unique to this book.

Mendelian randomization (MR) uses genetic instrumental variables to make inferences about causal effects based on observational data. It, therefore, can be a reliable way of assessing the causal nature of risk factors, such as biomarkers, for a wide range of disease outcomes. This is a substantial revision of a popular reference on MR, which uniquely gives a comprehensive overview of methods and applications in this field. The field has changed dramatically since publication of the first edition, and so has the book.

Multivariate Analysis for Neuroimaging Data

Atsushi Kawaguchi

This book enables us to analyze statistically brain imaging data. It is meant for a wide range of researchers interested in biostatistics, data science, and neuroscience. It is useful to understand the background theory of standard software for neuroimaging data analysis. The state of art multivariate methods developed by the author's research team is explained here using numerical examples that have been formulated with the free statistical software R. This book supports the application of these methods to one's own data in neuroscience and encourages new research in biostatistics and data science.

Advanced Trends in ICT for Innovative Business Management

Edited by Katarzyna Szymczyk, Czestochowa University of Technology Faculty of Management al. Armii Krajowej 19B Czestochowa 42-200 Poland and Ibrahiem M. M. El Emery, King Abdulaziz University, Jeddah, Saudi Arabia

This book contains a collection of scientific chapters which address emerging trends in IT and telecommunications, and the issues which accompany them in business. It addresses issues in cyber applications, ICT solutions and innovative cyber know-hows, and demonstrates how high-tech IT communications resources can be used to improve business production, sales and service strategies, supply chains and logistics.

Artificial Intelligence for Business Optimization

Research and Applications

Bhuvan Unhelkar, University of South Florida and Tad Gonsalves

Artificial Intelligence for Business Optimization: Research and Applications is primarily a business book that discusses the research and associated practical application of Artificial Intelligence (AI) and Machine Learning (ML) in order to achieve Business Optimization (BO). AI comprises wide range of technologies, databases algorithms and devices. This book aims for a holistic approach to AI by focusing on developing business strategies that will not only automate but also optimize business functions, processes and people-behavior.

Big Data and Artificial Intelligence for Healthcare Applications

Edited by Ankur Saxena, Nicolas Brault, Institut Polytechnique Unilasalle, Beauvais Cedex and Shazia Rashid
Series: Big Data for Industry 4.0

This book covers a wide range of topics on the role of Artificial Intelligence, Machine Learning, and Big Data for healthcare applications and deals with the ethical issues and concerns associated with it. This book explores the applications in different areas of healthcare and highlights the current research.

The book covers healthcare big data analytics, mobile health and personalized medicine, clinical trial data management and presents how big data and AI can be used for early disease diagnosis prediction and prognosis. It also offers 5 case studies that describes the application of AI and ML in healthcare.

Cyber Security in Mergers & Acquisitions

The Industry Handbook

Rajinder Tumber

Cyber Security in Mergers & Acquisitions answers the question "How do I assess the maturity of an organisation's cyber security during the pre-deal phase, using security best practice?". This industry handbook is directed to professionals involved in M&A deals, as well as university students interested in M&A, private equity and cyber security. It adheres to cyber security best practice, and analyses key elements in the due diligence process, such as governance, risk management, supply chain assurance, regulatory compliance, cyber insurance, cyber threat intelligence, incident management, disaster recovery, and much more.

Rising from the Mailroom to the Boardroom

Unique Insights for Governance, Risk, Compliance and Audit Leaders

Bruce Turner

Series: Internal Audit and IT Audit

The journey from the 'mailroom to the boardroom' follows the story of a young banker who moved into the internal auditing profession as part of the 'new breed', then rose through the ranks into senior leadership and chief audit executive roles, before assuming audit committee and board roles that had an immense influence on governance, risk, compliance, and audit professionals. Success does not always follow a smooth and uneventful trajectory, and this story reflects insights from both the ups and the downs of the journey.

Parametric Design for Landscape Architects

Computational Techniques and Workflows

Andrew Madl, University of Tennessee, USA

This primer provides a sequence of tutorial-based workflows for the creation and utilization of algorithmic tools calibrated towards the field of landscape architecture. Contemporary practice and projective theory in landscape architecture requires the processing and design of data associated with complex systems to adequately represent composite, emergent scenarios. The book provides professionals and students with multifaceted skill-sets that, when applied in practice, expand and expedite conventional and speculative design workflows applicable to spatial design, and more specifically landscape architecture.

Research Software Engineering with Python

Building software that makes research possible

Damien Irving, Kate Hertweck, Luke Johnston, Joel Ostblom, Charlotte Wickham and Greg Wilson

This book introduces the concepts, tools, and skills that researchers need to get more done in less time and with less pain. Based on the practical experiences of its authors, who collectively have spent several decades teaching software skills to scientists, it covers everything graduate-level researchers need to automate their workflows, collaborate with colleagues, ensure that their results are trustworthy, and publish what they have built so that others can build on it. The book assumes only a basic knowledge of Python as a starting point, and shows readers how it, the Unix shell, Git, Make, and related tools can give them more time to focus on the research they actually want to do.

Beyond the Code

A Philosophical Guide to Engineering Ethics

Heidi Furey, Scott Hill and Sujata K. Bhatia

This book is designed to complement the National Society of Professional Engineer's 'Code of Ethics', by providing deeper ethical and philosophical discussion alongside applied examples. Each of the Code's six 'Fundamental Canons' receive a chapter of coverage, while a preliminary chapter provides an introduction to key theory such as normative and applied ethics. Chapters include case studies from the NSPE Board of Ethical Review, and end with guided readings. Aimed at students of engineering ethics, the book is introduced and endorsed by NSPE Deputy CEO Arthur E Schwartz.

Public Policy Analytics

Code and Context for Data Science in Government

Ken Steif

Series: Chapman &amp; Hall/CRC Data Science Series

Public Policy Analytics: Code & Context for Data Science in Government teaches readers how to address complex public policy problems with data and analytics using reproducible methods in R. Each of the eight chapters provides a detailed case study, showing readers: how to develop exploratory indicators; understand 'spatial process' and develop spatial analytics; how to develop 'useful' predictive analytics; how to convey these outputs to non-technical decision-makers through the medium of data visualization; and why ultimately, data science and 'Planning' are one and the same.

Software Testing

A Craftsman's Approach, Fifth Edition

Paul C. Jorgensen, Grand Valley State University, Allendale, Michigan, USA and Byron DeVries

The 5th Edition of Software Testing: A Craftsman's Approach responds to feedback from users and is a major rewrite, deleting outdated material and adding new sections on model-based testing and feature interaction testing. One major change is the shift to Java for both the procedural and object-oriented examples. The examples are updated and include an event-driven example. The fifth edition streamlines examples and more tightly coordinates the chapters. This best-selling textbook retains its strong emphasis on theory and rigor.

Techniques for Designing and Analyzing Algorithms

Douglas R. Stinson, University of Waterloo, Ontario, Canada

This text presents the main techniques of algorithm design, namely, divide-and-conquer algorithms, greedy algorithms, dynamic programming algorithms, and backtracking. Graph algorithms are studied in detail, and a careful treatment of the theory of NP-completeness is presented.

In addition, the text includes useful introductory material on mathematical background including order notation, algorithm analysis and reductions, and basic data structures. This will serve as a useful review and reference for students who have covered this material in a previous course.

Applied Evolutionary Algorithms for Engineers Using Python

Leonardo Azevedo Scardua, Instituto Federal do Espírito Santo Rodovia ES010, KM 6,5 Serra, ES 29173-087 Brazil

This book meant for students, scientists and engineers to help in the application of evolutionary algorithms to practical optimization problems. The presentation of theoretical background is complemented with didactical Python implementations of evolutionary algorithms that researchers have recently applied to complex optimization problems. Successful cases of application of evolutionary algorithms to real-world like optimization problems are presented, together with source code that gives readers an insight into the idiosyncrasies of the practical application of evolutionary algorithms.

Data Science and Big Data Analytics in Smart Environments

Edited by Marta Chinnici, Florin Pop, Politehnica University of Bucharest, Romania and Catalin Negru

Many applications generate large datasets, like social networking and social influence programs, smart cities applications, smart house environments, Cloud applications, public web sites, scientific experiments and simulations, data warehouse, monitoring platforms, and e-government services. This book will primarily encompass practical approaches that advance research in all aspects of data processing, data analytics, data processing in Cloud/Edge/Fog systems, having a large variety of tools and software to manage them. The book focuses on focuses on topics covering algorithms, architectures, management models, high performance computing techniques and large-scale distributed systems.

Edited by Wasim Ahmed Khan, GIK Institute of Engineering Sciences and Technology, Pakistan, Khalid Rahman, Associate Professor, GIK Institute of Engineering Sciences and Technology, Pakistan, Ghulam Hussain, Associate Professor, GIK Institute of Engineering Sciences and Technology, Pakistan and Ghulam Abbas, Associate Professor, GIK Institute of Engineering Sciences and Technology, Pakistan

Series: Computers in Engineering Design and Manufacturing

This book is on capacity building in strategic and non-strategic machine tool technology. It includes machine building in sectors such as machine tools, automobiles, home appliances, energy, and biomedical engineering along with case studies. The book offers guidelines for capacity building in academia on how to promote enterprises of functional reverse engineering. It discusses machine tool development, engineering design, prototyping of strategic and non-strategies machine tools, as well as presenting communication strategies, IoT, along with case studies.

Gene Expression Data Analysis

A Statistical and Machine Learning Perspective

Pankaj Barah, Tezpur Univ., Dhruba Kumar Bhattacharyya, Tezpur Univ. and Jugal Kumar Kalita, University of Colorado

The book explains with examples how complex gene expression data can be mined using powerful machine learning and statistical techniques to extract non-trivial, yet previously unknown interesting patterns for a given biological question. The readers will learn how a practical machine learning solution can be developed to analyze gene expression data using a co-expression or differential expression analysis approach to identify interesting gene(s), biomarker(s) or pattern(s) that can have high relevance in handling a critical disease. It will help understand the applicability of these approaches in real-life bioinformatics problem solving.

Handbook of Green Engineering Technologies for Sustainable Smart Cities

Edited by K. Saravanan, Anna University Regional Campus, Tirunelveli and G. Sakthinathan, Anna University

Series: Green Engineering and Technology

This handbook focuses on the complete exploration and presentation of Green Smart City applications, techniques, and architectural frameworks. It provides detailed coverage of urban sustainability spanning across various engineering disciplines.

The book will discuss and explore green engineering technologies for smart cities, covers various engineering disciplines and environmental science, emphasizes techniques, application frameworks, tools, and case studies. It plays a part in the evolution of sustainable green smart cities, and presents how to solve environmental issues by applying modern industrial

Internet of Energy for Smart Cities

Machine Learning Models and Techniques

Edited by Anish Jindal, Lancaster University, United Kingdom, Neeraj Kumar and Gagangeet Singh Aujla, Newcastle University, United Kingdom

Machine learning approaches has the capability to learn and adapt to the constantly evolving demands of large Internet-of-energy (IoE) network. The focus of this book is on using the machine learning approaches to present various solutions for IoE network in smart cities to solve various research gaps such as demand response management, resource management and effective utilization of the underlying ICT network. It provides in-depth knowledge to build the technical understanding for the reader to pursue various research problems in this field. Moreover, the example problems in smart cities and their solutions using machine learning are provided as relatable to the real-life scenarios.

Mohammad Rostami

Transfer Learning through Embedding Spaces provides a brief background on transfer learning and then focus on the idea of transferring knowledge through intermediate embedding spaces. The idea is to couple and relate different learning through embedding spaces that encode task-level relations and similarities. We cover various machine learning scenarios and demonstrate that this idea can be used to overcome challenges of zero-shot learning, few-shot learning, domain adaptation, continual learning, lifelong learning, and collaborative learning.

Microbial Bioinformatics in the Oil and Gas Industry

Applications to Reservoirs and Processes

Edited by Kenneth Wunch, Marko Stipanicev and Max Frenzel

This book brings together contributions from leading scientists, academics, and experts from the oil and gas industry to discuss microbial-mediated problems faced by the industry and how bioinformatics and an interdisciplinary scientific approach can address these challenges. This book presents the major industrial problems caused by microbes as well as the beneficial activities. It provides microbial ecologists, molecular biologists, operators, engineers, chemists and academics involved in the sector an improved understanding of the significance of microcosmos in oil and gas detection, production, and degradation, leading to better solutions impacting on operations and profitability.

Future of Sustainable Agriculture in Saline Environments

Edited by Katarzyna Negacz, Pier Vellinga, Edward Barrett-Lennard, Redouane Choukr-Allah and Theo Elzenga

Food production on present and future saline soils deserves the world's attention particularly because food security is a pressing issue, millions of hectares of degraded soils are available world-wide, fresh water is becoming increasingly scarce, and the global sea-level rise threatens food production in fertile coastal lowlands. Future of Sustainable Agriculture in Saline Environments aims to showcase the global potential of saline agriculture. Covering essential topics such as policy and awareness, soil management, future crops and genetic developments all supplemented by case studies that show how this knowledge gets applied.

Robert B. Raffa, Patricia J. Bush and Albert I. Wertheimer, College of Pharmacy, Nova Southeastern University, Fort Lauderdale, FL, USA

Most adults take at least one prescription medication for example, for high blood pressure, high cholesterol levels, depression, asthma, diabetes, COPD, or a variety of other reasons, but most people are totally unaware that medications can have direct negative effects on sexual functioning and performance. This informative and timely book written by three well-known medications experts explores the chemistry behind sexual arousal in men and women and clearly and authoritatively explains how the common categories of prescription and over-the-counter medications and abused substances might be the reason for their declining sexual performance or even

Lithium Niobate Nanophotonics

Ya Cheng

This is the first monograph on LN nanophotonics enabled by the LNOI platform. It comprehensively reviews the development of fabrication technology, investigations on nonlinear optical processes, and demonstrations of electro-optical devices, as well as applications in quantum light sources, spectroscopy, sensing and microwave-to-optical wave conversion. The book starts with an overview of the technological evolution of PICs, justifying the motivation for developing LNOI photonics. The next four chapters focus on LNOI photonics. The book concludes with a summary of the milestone achievements discussed in these chapters and provides a future perspective of this area of research.

Medicinal Plants and Mushrooms of Yunnan Province of China

Edited by Clara Bik-San Lau and Chunlin Long

Series: Natural Products Chemistry of Global Plants

Although many texts describe plants from China, the focus of this book is drawing on the rich culture and environment of medicinal plants and fungi/mushrooms of the Yunnan Province. This province in China is famous for the valuable resources and diversity of plants and fungi/mushrooms. In particular, The Kunming Institute of Botany plays an important role and is a highly regarded research institute, directly affiliated to the Chinese Academy of Sciences and dedicated to research in the fields of botany and phytochemistry. To summarise, this book covers those medicinal plants and fungi/mushrooms specific to Yunnan Province, and is written by various experts in this research field.

Environmental Chemistry in Society

James M. Beard, Catawba College, Salisbury, North Carolina, USA and Ruth Ann Murphy

This self-contained text offers all the information necessary for readers to understand the topics surrounding environmental science and the chemistry underlying various issues. It provides a foundation in science, chemistry, and toxicology, including the laws of thermodynamics, chemical bonding, and environmental toxins. This text allows readers to delve into environmental topics, such as energy in society, air quality, global atmospheric concerns, water quality, and solid waste management. The arrangement of the book provides instructors flexibility in how they present the material, with the crucial topics being covered first. This third edition had been updated throughout.

Instrumental Analytical Chemistry

An Introduction

James W. Robinson, Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, USA, Eileen M. Skelly Frame, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, New York, USA and George M. Frame II, New York State Department of Health, Albany, USA

This book is written to teach undergraduate students and those with no analytical chemistry background how contemporary analytical instrumentation works, as well as its uses and limitations. Mathematics is kept to a minimum. No background in calculus, physics, or physical chemistry is required. The major fields of modern instrumentation are covered, including applications of each type of instrumental technique. This text uniquely combines instrumental analysis with organic spectral interpretation (IR, NMR, and MS). It provides detailed coverage of sampling, sample handling, sample storage, and sample preparation.

Edited by Maria Lyra GeorgosopoulouSeries: Series in Medical Physics and Biomedical Engineering*

The use of MATLAB® in clinical Medical Physics is continuously increasing, thanks to new technologies and developments in the field. However, there is a lack of practical guidance for students, researchers, and medical professionals on how to incorporate it into their work. Focusing on the areas of diagnostic Nuclear Medicine and Radiation Oncology Imaging, this book provides a comprehensive treatment of the use of MATLAB® in clinical Medical Physics. It is an invaluable guide for medical physicists and researchers, in addition to postgraduates in medical physics or biomedical engineering preparing for a career in the field.

James Sung

This volume presents several aspects of superhard materials, especially diamond superabrasives and their manufacture, properties, and applications, and introduces several new designs of ultrahard materials that may be harder than diamond. It discusses diamond's connection with the origin of life, in particular, the origin of the first RNA. In addition, it throws light on the concept of diamond quantum computers with neutrons of the carbon-13 isotope as quantum bits.

Nanocellulose and its Composites for Water Treatment Applications

Edited by Dinesh Kumar, Central University of Gujarat, India
Nanocellulose and Its Composites for Water Treatment Application, first edition supplies insight into the application of nanocellulose and its nanocomposites for water purification and remediation. It covers different classes of nanocellulose—cellulose nanocrystal (CNC), microfibrillated cellulose (MFC), hairy cellulose nanocrystalloid (HCNC) and bacterial nanocellulose (BNC), for their competency with other renewable and carbonaceous materials like pectin, alginate, CNTs. Future perspectives of nanocellulose, and nanocomposites obtained from different biodegradable origins are also discussed.

3 Volume Set

Functional Neuroscience

3 Volume Set

E. Roy John, Robert W. Thatcher and Thalia Harmony

Series: Functional Neuroscience

The late E. Roy John is considered the pioneer in the field of neurometrics – the science of measuring the underlying organization of the brain's electrical activity. Volume 1, co-authored by Robert W. Thatcher, and Volume 2 both originally published in 1977, were among the first books in this field. Volume 3, written by colleague Thalia Harmony, followed in 1984. The field expanded significantly in the 1990s and thousands of articles have subsequently been published. Available together for the first time these 3 volumes were important foundational works for the fields of quantitative electrophysiology and neurometrics.

Robert W. Thatcher and E. Roy John

Series: Functional Neuroscience

Originally published in 1977, this title describes the basic structure and function of the brain, as well as the highest cognitive functions, using data from various disciplines to detail ways in which behaviorally relevant functions are mediated by the neural systems. Among the topics discussed are the neurophysiology of emotion, the chemical basis of memory, daily subjective experience and psychopathology, and information representation. A major purpose of this volume was to provide the student not only with a sound foundation in functional neuroscience, but also to equip them with a detailed understanding of how these facts and methods can be applied to clinical problems.

Clinical Applications of Quantitative Electrophysiology

E. Roy John

Series: Functional Neuroscience

Originally published in 1977, this volume attempts to show how the existing state of knowledge and technique in neuroscience can be effectively applied to a variety of practical clinical problems that at the time were dealt with less than adequately. Traditionally, clinical electroencephalography had been one of the major techniques by which our knowledge of neuroscience had been brought to bear upon these problems. The utility of this technique had been sharply limited and constrained by reliance upon qualitative interpretation of electrophysiological observations.

Thalia Harmony

Series: Functional Neuroscience

Originally published in 1984, the aim of this book was to interest clinical neuroscientists in the application of neurometrics to the evaluation of brain dysfunction in neurological patients. This methodology was hoped to produce substantial improvement in the neurological medical care of the general population at the time. Neurometrics is a methodology, based on quantitative measurements of the brain electrical activity, for evaluating anatomical integrity, developmental maturation, and the mediation of sensory, perceptual, and cognitive processes. This book focuses on practical clinical applications and the theoretical and experimental formulations on which these are based.

The Russian Horizon

An Anthology

Edited by N. Gangulee

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Russian and Soviet Literature

This book, first published in 1943, is a literary anthology purposefully presenting a picture of the Soviet Union to a new audience in the West. It collects together a rich variety of pre-revolutionary Russian literature as well as a host of Soviet literature. Together they reveal the dynamic character of Russian literature, and provide a useful contrast between the two styles of pre- and post-revolutionary writings.

Soviet Prose

Edited by Ronald Hingley

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Russian and Soviet Literature

This book, first published in 1959, contains passages with commentary from 12 of the most important Soviet authors. They are lively and typical passages, written in varying styles, depicting historical events such as the 1917 Revolution, collectivisation and the death of Stalin, as well as the everyday side of Soviet life. They are a key introduction to the Russian language used in the Soviet period, an analysis of the language used by its leading writers, and a snapshot of life in Russia at the time.

Russian Writers and Soviet Society 1917–1978

Ronald Hingley

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Russian and Soviet Literature

This book, first published in 1979, provides a systematic anatomy of Russia's modern authors in the context of their society at the time. Post-revolutionary Russian literature has made a profound impact on the West while still maintaining its traditional role as a vehicle for political struggle at home. Professor Hingley places their lives and work firmly in the setting of the USSR's social and political structure.

From Gorky to Pasternak

Six Modern Russian Writers

Helen Muchnic

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Russian and Soviet Literature

This book, first published in 1961, traces the lives and works of six outstanding Russian authors, each of whom is interesting and important in himself, as well as for his contribution to Russian letters. As personalities they are extremely varied, and also as artists, so much so that each of them might be studied as the centre of a distinct school of writing. Taken as a group they are a microcosm of Russian literature in the twentieth century, an age of rapid and extreme change.

25 Years of Soviet Russian Literature (1918–1943)

Gleb Struve

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Russian and Soviet Literature

This book, first published in 1944, is a comprehensive survey of post-revolutionary Russian literature up to the early 1940s. A huge range of writers are examined, and the analysis is made in the knowledge of the sometimes considerable pressure brought by the Government on writers in Soviet Russia. Links are made by the author between the writers being assessed, as well as to the Russian writers that had come before them. As a wide-ranging analysis of Soviet literature, this book has rarely been bettered.

Dictionary of Russian Literature

William E. Harkins

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Russian and Soviet Literature

This book, first published in 1957, provides essential information on the entire field of Russian literature, as well as a great deal on literary criticism, journalism, philosophy, theatre and related subjects. Russian literary tradition has tended to blur the distinctions between social and political criticism on one hand, and literary criticism on the other, and even, to an extent, the distinction between philosophy and literature. Although intended primarily as a reference work, this book also contains much critical analysis.

Russian Literature from Pushkin to the Present Day

Richard Hare

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Russian and Soviet Literature

This book, first published in 1947, examines the truly vital and enduring qualities of the leading Russian writers, as literature and as interesting documents of phases of Russian history. This is one of the most striking features of Russian literature since Pushkin – it treated artistically social and political issues that in the more prosperous and stable Western world were dealt with through journalism, mainly. This book analyses Russian literature's propensity for providing reassurance and guidance to withstand the harsher elements of Russian society by examining some of its leading writers.

Dostoyevsky

His Life and Work

Ronald Hingley

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Russian and Soviet Literature

This book, first published in 1978, demonstrates how Dostoyevsky's novels grew directly out of the pressures of their creator's tormented experience and personality. Ronald Hingley draws upon important fresh source material, which includes the definitive Soviet edition of Dostoyevsky's works with drafts and variants, Soviet research on the circumstances of his father's death, and a newly deciphered section of the diary of his second wife, Anna. Hingley considers with his analysis all Dostoyevsky's works, the ideas they contain, their varying artistic success, and their contemporary critical reception.

Solzhenitsyn

A Biography

Michael Scammell

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Russian and Soviet Literature

This book, first published in 1984, was the first full biography of Solzhenitsyn. Starting with his childhood, it covers every period of his life in considerable detail, showing how Solzhenitsyn's development paralleled and mirrored the development of Soviet society: ambitious and idealistic in the twenties and thirties, preoccupied with the struggle for survival in the forties, hopeful in the fifties and sixties and disillusioned in the seventies. Solzhenitsyn's life thus serves as a paradigm for the history of twentieth-century Communism and for the intelligentsia's attitudes to Communism. At the same time, this book relates Solzhenitsyn's life to his works.

Russian Writers and Society in the Nineteenth Century

Ronald Hingley

This book, first published in 1977, analyses the lives of nineteenth century Russian writers. It examines their environment: the geography, ethnography, economics, and the impact of individual Tsars on writers and society. A discussion of the main social 'estates' follows, and concluding is an analysis in their literary context of the activities of the competing forces of cohesion and disruption in imperial society: the civil service, law courts, police, army, schools, universities, press, censorship, revolutionaries and agitators. This book makes possible a fuller understanding of the works of Pushkin, Dostoyevsky, Chekhov and the other great Russian writers.

The Real Chekhov

An Introduction to Chekhov's Last Plays

David Magarshack

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Russian and Soviet Literature

What is Chekhov's method of ensuring audience participation? What does his stage direction 'through tears' mean? What happens between the first and second acts of The Seagull? Is there any reason for the despondency in Chekhov's drama? This book, first published in 1972, discusses these questions and many other issues around Chekhov's last four plays. David Magarshack, the leading translator and biography of many of Russia's greatest writers, closely examines Chekhov's work for the relevant facts about his writing, and demonstrates that no reliance should be placed on the so-called subtext which can introduce irrelevancies arising from pre-conceived ideas about the plays.

Nightingale Fever

Russian Poets in Revolution

Ronald Hingley

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Russian and Soviet Literature

This book, first published in 1981, examines the dramatic and tragic stories of four of the greatest Russian poets of the twentieth century, their struggle to survive the Stalin years, and their dedication to their art despite considerable personal danger. Interweaving the stories of Anna Akhmatova, Osip Mandelstam, Boris Pasternak and Marina Tsvetayeva, the noted Russian scholar Ronald Hingley traces their education, the literary schools and traditions with which they were associated, the impact of the Bolshevik Revolution on their work, and the emergence of their distinct and disparate styles. This book makes vivid the historic conflict between artists and political authority.

A History of Russian Literature

Comprising 'A History of Russian Literature' and 'Contemporary Russian Literature'

D.S. Mirsky and Francis J. Whitfield

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Russian and Soviet Literature

This book, first published in 1949, is an abridged version of Mirsky's classic two texts on Russian literature, updated with a postscript by the editor assessing the development of Soviet literature. Beautifully written, Mirsky's analyses of Russian writers and literature go hand in hand with his takes on Russian history. From the birth of Russian literature to its Soviet form, this book is a lively and comprehensive examination by one of its leading scholars.

Harry G. Johnson on Trade Strategy & Economic Policy

Harry G. Johnson, North Carolina State University, USA.

Series: Harry G. Johnson on Trade Strategy & Economic Policy

Harry G. Johnson was best known for his work on monetary theory and international economics, but he was also very active in the theory of distribution, trade strategy and development economics. These 4 books, originally published between 1967 and 1971 explore:

The relationship between nationalism and economic development
Trade policy to promote development
The use of geometrical tools in international trade theory
Issues surrounding multi-lateral free trade.

New Trade Strategy for the World Economy

Edited by Harry G. Johnson

Series: Harry G. Johnson on Trade Strategy & Economic Policy

Originally published in 1969, the studies in this volume deal with the proposal for a multilateral free trade association initiated by North Atlantic countries in the 1960s. Written at a time of protectionism in the USA, policy problems in the EEC and debates over Britain's role within it, as well as discussions about tariff preferences mean that many of the themes in this volume remain as pertinent today as when the book was first published. As editor of the volume, Harry G. Johnson drew together the threads of a global concept that was commanding increasing attention around the world.

Economic Nationalism in Old and New States

Series: Harry G. Johnson on Trade Strategy & Economic Policy

Originally published in 1968, this book contains contributions from anthropology, economic history, economics and political science in an exploration of the nature and effects of economic nationalism. The opening essays presents a formal theory of nationalism that relates the phenomenon to rational government processes. Following chapters explore whether nationalism and economic development went together and whether nationalistic economic policies actually promoted development. How far British economic policy was influenced by nationalism, or its corollary for a successful country-imperialism is also assessed. Examples from China, Mali, Mexico and Canada are included.

Economic Policies Towards Less Developed Countries

Harry G. Johnson

Series: Harry G. Johnson on Trade Strategy & Economic Policy

Originally published in 1967, this book examines the major problems of trade and aid policy posed for the developed countries by the UN Conference on Trade and Development in 1964. Johnson surveys the political and economic setting of the Conference; international aspects of economic development; trade policy to promote development; possible new international arrangements for trade in primary products; and the possibilities offered by international monetary reform for benefitting less developed countries. The divergence between the well-being of developed and less-developed countries remains one of the key problems of our time.

The Two-Sector Model of General Equilibrium

Harry G. Johnson

Series: Harry G. Johnson on Trade Strategy & Economic Policy

Originally published in 1971, this book presents in a lucid form the basic model of distribution in a two-sector general equilibrium system. While this model has been used by many economists, this was the first synoptic exposition of it to become readily available to students. The first part develops the two-sector model and its properties, using the geometrical tools of international trade theory. The second applies the model to some standard problems in the theory of income distribution, including the economics of redistributive taxes and subsidies, of trade union organization, and of minimum wage laws. The third part converts the model into a growth model.

Housing Improvement and Social Inequality

Case Study of an Inner City

Paul N. Balchin, University of Greenwich, UK

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Housing Gentrification and Regional Inequality

Originally published in 1979, this book discusses housing improvement, and particularly its effects upon the residential population of the inner areas of West London. The economic and social rationale is explained, and the role of landlords, developers and local authorities is analysed. The book concentrates both on the defects of the improvement process as a whole, and on the application of housing legislation within a specific geographical area. Housing improvement is related to the debate about the inequality of wealth by implicitly questioning who benefits and who loses from improvement policy.

Regional Policy in Britain

The North South Divide

Paul N. Balchin, University of Greenwich, UK

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Housing Gentrification and Regional Inequality

Originally published in 1990, this book examines the extent to which the 'north-south divide' in the UK has been a reality in recent years. It also reveals the degree to which the gap between the two parts of Britain has worsened. An issue of enduring relevance, particularly given the political drive to 'level up' the regions, the book focuses particularly on the 1980s, a period when regional assistance became a victim of both monetarism and free market ideology. The book reviews legislation and considers whether regional policy has been effective and consistent.

The Development of Housing in Scotland

Douglas Niven

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Comparative Urbanization

Originally published in 1979, this volume begins with an historical summary of housing development in Scotland. Scottish urban housing has always followed a unique and distinctive pattern from the rest of the UK. The book compares the policies and programmes of development in EU countries and Scandinavia. The problems caused by over-emphasis on public-sector housing in Scotland since the First World War are discussed. A break-down of the work carried out by housing societies and associations reveals little national or local support in Scotland, unlike in European or Scandinavian countries where such association have formed a vital element in their housing policies.

The City in American History

Blake McKelvey

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Comparative Urbanization

Originally published in 1969, this book the successive roles played by the explosive constellations of cities in American history. The book examines how and in what respects the planting and developing of cities influenced and was influenced by the colonial settlement, the achievement of independence, the occupation of the continent, the development of industrial enterprise, the challenge of foreign wars, the fluctuations of a dynamic economy and the frustrations of social and political strife in a democracy. Illuminating selections from original source documents add many graphic details and give a human dimension to this interpretation.

The Development of the Irish Town

Edited by R. A. Butlin

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Comparative Urbanization

Originally published in 1977, and now with an updated new Preface, this volume covers the question of Irish urban origins in the pre-Norman period, the character and development of the medieval towns, the changing forms and functions of towns and cities in the early modern period. It also examines the substantial changes in size and form effected by population growth and town planning in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. Ireland's urban history is unique and particularly interesting for the way it contrasts with developments in the urban history of western Europe. Unlike most west European regions, it was not colonised by the Romans.

Land and Housing Policies in Europe and the USA

A Comparative Analysis

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Comparative Urbanization

Originally published in 1988, this book concentrates on urban land policy and was particularly significant when originally published because the 1980s were an era when the rich were getting richer and the poor poorer and in which changes in the ownership of and access to real estate contributed to this polarisation. The book focusses on: The buying, selling and holding of land by public agencies; the land market, including the impact of taxation and subsidisation; the control of the land market through town planning controls. There are chapters devoted to urban land policy in the former West Germany, The Netherlands, France, the former Yugoslavia, the UK and USA.

The New Housing Shortage

Housing Affordability in Europe and the USA

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Comparative Urbanization

Originally published in 1993, this book is a detailed comparative examination of the housing issue by housing experts, looking at the USA, UK, Germany, the Netherlands and France. The volume offers an excellent blend of critical analysis and practical policy recommendations, including a better targeting of tax concessions, a move back to social housing more diverse than in the past and measures for reducing homelessness. Perennial issues which remain as pertinent today as when the book was first published are also discussed: homelessness, housing affordability for people on low incomes, changes in housing markets.

The Structure of Nineteenth Century Cities

Edited by James H Johnson and Colin Pooley

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Comparative Urbanization

When this book was first published in 1982, despite considerable research on 19th Century towns in Britain and America, there had been little attempt to search for links between these empirical studies and to relate them more to more general theories of 19th Century urban development. The book provides an integrated series of chapters which discuss trends and research problems in the study of 19th Century cities. It will be of value to researchers in urban geography, social history and historical geography.

The Cities of the Poor

Settlement Planning in Developing Countries

Edited by Alan Turner

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Comparative Urbanization

Originally published in 1980, this book was written by consultants in urban development with wide experience in the developing world and is a source book aimed at advisers (often from developed countries) who assist with urban planning matters on behalf of multi-lateral agencies such as the World Bank. It presents a style of consultancy which accepts that not all the problems of settlement planning in developing countries can be solved by the transfer of Western methods.

Suburbia

An International Assessment

Donald N. Rothblatt and Daniel J. Garr

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Comparative Urbanization

Originally published in 1986, and drawing on material from the USA, The Netherlands and Israel, this book addresses the question of whether suburban environments enhance the quality of life and which factors influence this quality. It examines whether suburbs really provide improved housing and community services compared to the central city and whether they foster rewarding social patterns and psychological well-being. It also analyses precisely what characteristics suburban areas offer and how congruent these characteristics are with the preferences of suburban residents.

Glasgow

The Making of a City

Andrew Gibb

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Comparative Urbanization

Originally published in 1983, this book sets the phases and elements of Glasgow's townscape evolution in their historical framework, from the medieval period when Glasgow was a small but important burgh to the growth of the town thanks to its command of the transatlantic tobacco trade in the 18th Century. Examining the solid growth which came with the textile phase of the industrial revolution and subsequent pioneering achievements in ship-building and marine engineering, the book also charts the subsequent collapse of the industrial base and attempts at urban renewal on a massive scale.

Inside Third World Cities

Stella Lowder

Series: Routledge Library Editions: Comparative Urbanization

Originally published in 1986, this book focusses on life within global cities in the developing world, analysing on a city-level the circulation and consumption of goods and services within them. When the book was first published it was one of only a few to offer systematic comparative analyses of developing world cities, and those stemming from different regions, with examples from different continents in each chapter. It discusses the problems faced by such city populations and shows how the procedures, distributive systems and social conventions reflect the complex histories of the cities.

1460-1571

Mortimer LevineSeries: Historical Problems*

Originally published in 1973, this book provides a detailed history and analysis of Tudor dynastic problems from their origin in 1460 when Richard of York asserted his claim to the crown, to 1571 when Elizabeth I's second Treasons Act virtually established parliamentary statute as the constitutional way to settle questions of succession. The book deals with each important development and provides a comparison of the dynastic attitudes of the three great Tudors which should be an important component in appraisals of these monarchs.

Slave Emancipation and the Abolitionist Movement in Britain

Edith F. HurwitzSeries: Historical Problems*

It was the vitality of British Protestantism in its relationship with the state which largely accounts for the achievement of emancipation and the success of the British Anti-Slavery Movement. This book, originally published in 1873, analyses the factors which made the Anti-Slavery Movement so successful. It exposes the roots of its passionate support and explains how the government came to accept the objectives of religious idealists. It sets the abolition of slavery in the larger perspective of British history.

The Dissolution of the Monasteries

Joyce Youings

Series: Historical Problems

Originally published in 1971 this book begins with the assumption that the Dissolution of the Monasteries was neither an integral nor an essential part of the English reformation. This book pursues the story chronologically and thus helps students re-discover what contemporaries knew was happening at each successive stage. An important part of this process consists in watching - with the help of a selection of surviving records - how the Court of Augmentation went to work not only centrally but in the field. The part played by Thomas Cromwell, in both the devising and the carrying out of the Dissolution is reassessed.

Germany in the Age of Bismarck

W. M. Simon

Series: Historical Problems

Originally published in 1968, this was the first time that a comprehensive selection of documents on Germany in the Age of Bismarck had been made available to students and other readers in the English language. The documents were chosen to illuminate not only Bismarck's own personality and policies but also the nature of the problems he faced and the reactions of his contemporaries. The substantial introduction serves as a general background and guide to the documents, which are in the form of letters, essays, polemics, speeches, and memoirs, produced in the period itself.

The Royal Supremacy in the Elizabethan Church

Claire Cross

Series: Historical Problems

Originally published in 1969 this book considers the theoretical extent of the royal supremacy in the Elizabethan church and examines how far this supremacy was effective in practice. The first part considers the reactions of Catholics and of moderate and more enthusiastic Protestants, both clerical and lay, to a lay head of the English church and the second part investigates the limits of the queen's authority. The documents, which range from the formal Acts of Supremacy and Uniformity to the letters of individual gentlemen who were guiding their local congregations, reflect the discrepancy between theory and practice.

The Treasury 1660-1870

The Foundations of Control

Henry Roseveare

Series: Historical Problems

Originally published in 1973, this book provides an account of the Treasury's early evolution, from its emergence as a department in the reign of Charles II to the point in 1870 when its powers and internal organization were comparatively mature. By taking this broad span it is possible to set the Treasury's development in perspective and concentrate on three main themes: the foundation of its unchallenged authority in the late 17th Century, the construction of a working relationship with Parliament, and its internal development as an efficient, professional organization.

The Coming of the Friars

Rosalind B. Brooke

Series: Historical Problems

Originally published in 1975, this book explains why the Movements of the 12th century remained much more enclosed and monastic or turned to heresy and how much the new orders of Friars owed to the earlier movements. The introduction is arranged to help the documents to speak for themselves: it opens with a direct confrontation with Francis then goes back to search the religious experience of the 10th to 12th centuries for movements and especially well documented individuals who can help explain the development of fashions and ideas. There are sections on precursors, both monks and heretics, and on the papal policies towards these movements.

Britain at Bay

Defence Against Bonaparte, 1803-14

Richard Glover

Series: Historical Problems

In 1803-5 Napoleon built 4 new harbours on his channel coast and assembled enough landing craft to put an army of over 165,000 men ashore on English beaches. Was this threat to Britain really serious? How did the English defend themselves? This book, originally published in 1973 shows why Bonaparte's flotilla was something the British were right to take seriously and also how their preparations to defend the beaches within reach of its bases made a revival of the flotilla after 1807 pointless. The book covers the background of the war, Britain's defence organisation, the Royal Navy's tasks, Bonaparte's preparations and how the British made ready to meet him.

Trade and Industry in Tudor and Stuart England

Series: Historical Problems

Originally published in 1977, this book investigates the controversial question as to whether England has seen two industrial revolutions, whether economic changes in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries in England deserve to be distinguished as a period in which an economic 'revolution' nearly took place, but eventually aborted. The book considers the changes that took place in the most important industries in the period and estimates the significance of these changes for the overall structure of the English economy. It also assesses the attitudes of the various historians involved in the debate and the nature of the evidence on which their arguments have been based.

The Political Economy of the Eurozone in Central and Eastern Europe

Why In, Why Out?

Edited by Krisztina Arató, Boglarka Koller and Anita Pelle

Series: Europa Perspectives on the EU Single Market

This volume examines the enigma that some Central and Eastern European (CEE) European Union (EU) member states have been keen to join the Eurozone while others have shown persistent reluctance and that attitudes towards joining have seemingly not correlated with either the level of economic development or the time spent as part of the EU, nor with any other rational reason such as the level of integration into the EU real economy, or the level of trust in the EU on the part of the public. Therefore, at first sight, the answer to the question 'why in, why out?' remains rather unclear.

The Routledge Handbook on the American Dream

Volume 1

Edited by Robert C. Hauhart and Mitja Sardoč, Educational Research Institute in Ljubljana, Slovenia

The Routledge Handbook on the American Dream offers authoritative and original essays by well-known scholars that address the social, economic, historical, philosophic, legal, and cultural dimensions of the American Dream for the twenty-first century. The American Dream, first discussed and defined by James Truslow Adams' The Epic of America (1931), has become synonymous with being American, and its ubiquity today necessitates a deeper understanding of its heritage, its implications, and its impact—to be found in this first research handbook ever published on the topic.

The Blue Economy in Sub-Saharan Africa

Working for a Sustainable Future

Edited by DONALD L. SPARKS

Series: Europa Regional Perspectives

The blue economy offers vast benefits for sub-Saharan Africa, with 32 being coastal states; 13 million square km of maritime zones; more than 90% of the region's exports and imports coming via sea; and the African Union hailing the blue economy as the 'new frontier of African renaissance'. This book provides a study of the constraints and opportunities the blue economy offers for sub-Saharan Africa. It includes sectoral analyses (including tourism, fisheries, mineral resources, culture, shipping and maritime safety); country case studies; and analyses of regional and international efforts towards better coastal zone and marine management.

Artefacts, Archives, and Documentation in the Relational Museum

Mike Jones, Australian National University

Artefacts, Archives, and Documentation in the Relational Museum provides the first interdisciplinary study of the digital documentation of artefacts and archives in contemporary museums, while also exploring the implications of polyphonic, relational thinking on collections documentation. It is essential reading for those who wish to better understand the institutional silos found in museums, and the changes required to make museum knowledge more accessible. The book is a particularly important addition to the fields of museum studies, archival science, information management, and the history of cultural heritage technologies.

Essays on Classical Indian Dance

Donovan Roebert

The book is a wide-ranging collection of essays on Indian classical dance. These include writings on dance appreciation, the criticism, theory and philosophy of dance, as well as some historical and light controversial articles. Also included a seminal and unique monograph on the contribution of Sanjukta Panigrahi to the development of Odissi. The book approaches the subject from an internationalist point of view and opens up new possibilities for the appreciation of Indian dance in the context of a global intercultural critique. In addition, it is beautifully illustrated with a number of photographs by Arun Kumar.

The Economic Value Of The Quality Of Life

Thomas M. Power

This book grew out of research funded by the Montana Department of Labor and Industry. This study will argue that the distinction between "economic values" and "social values" such as the "quality of life" is a misleading and dangerous distinction. There is nothing especially ethereal or spiritual or "noneconomic" about the quality of life (QOL). Similarly there is nothing especially "material", "practical" or "economic" about job opportunities or money prices.

Political Realism And International Morality

Ethics In The Nuclear Age

Kenneth Kipnis and Diana T Meyers

In essays that are at once insightful and accessible, noted political thinkers examine the tension of the conflicting demands of morality and national self-interest in the context of the foundations of international order, the possession and use of nuclear weapons, recourse to war, and the prospects for peace. A final postscript addresses the question of the responsibility of intellectuals in the national foreign policy debate. This book will appeal to scholars and students in any discipline dealing with international affairs as well as to lay readers who wish to explore the implications of taking morality and reason seriously in foreign policy.

Technology And Soviet Energy Availability

Technology Assessment Office Of

Endowed with abundant energy resources, the Soviet Union is the world's largest oil producer and a major exporter of both oil and gas. Energy exports provide over half of Soviet hard-currency receipts, and subsidized energy sales to Eastern Europe are vital tools of Soviet influence in that region. Despite this enviable position, there have been indications in the past few years that the U.S.S.R. may soon face an energy shortage. In addition to examining the significance of U.S. petroleum equipment and technology for Soviet energy development, this book addresses 4 major questions.

Security Implications Of Nationalism In Eastern Europe

Jeffrey Simon and Trond Gilberg

The contributors look at developing problems and trends in the region, including the cooling of relations between the USSR and individual countries in Eastern Europe, the continuing economic crisis, changing social structures, the influence of the intelligentsia, and the eroding importance of ideology as a key part of Eastern Europe's political culture. The second half of the book focuses on the impact of these shifts on political and military relations between the USSR and Eastern European countries and on the efficient functioning of the Warsaw Pact.

Subversive Imaginations

Fantastic Prose And The End Of Soviet Literature, 1970s-1990s

Nadya Peterson

Viewing the mutual interaction of Soviet/Russian literary output with aspects of the dominant culture such as ideology and politics, Nadya Peterson traces the process of mainstream literary change in the context of broader social change. She explores the subversive character of the fantastic orientation, its Utopian and apocalyptic motifs, and its dialogical relationship with socialist realism, as it steadily gathered force in the latter Soviet decades. The shattering of the mythic colossus did not put an end to these opposing forces, but rather diverted them in various unexpected directions—as the author explains in her concluding chapters on the new "alternative" literatures.

The Significance of Complexity

Approaching a Complex World Through Science, Theology and the Humanities

Edited by Kees van Kooten Niekerk and Hans Buhl

Originally published in 2004, this book deals with the importance of the sciences of complexity - for the humanities and theology. First, three scientists explain the science of complexity and illustrate it with concrete examples. Second, two scholars consider the concept of complexity and possible applications of complexity theory within the humanities, e.g. as a tool to understand the interplay between the artist, the work of art and the user in interactive art. Finally, three theologians ask what can be learned from the science of complexity for a religious understanding of humankind and the world.

The Year Of The Woman

Myths And Realities

Elizabeth Adell Cook, Sue Thomas and Clyde Wilcox

The 1992 American election saw more women running for office, at both local and national level, than ever before. The number of women elected increased by 50% in the House of Representatives and by a staggering 300% in the Senate. This book describes these key races, revealing the underlying tales of voter and institutional reactions to the women candidates and highlights the unprecedented levels of support garnered on their behalf.

The Women And International Development Annual, Volume 4

Rita S Gallin, Anne E Ferguson and Janice Harper

The articles presented in each volume synthesize a growing body of literature on key issues, suggest priorities for research, and propose changes in development policy and programming. Each volume is divided into three major sections. In the first, contributors distill and interpret research in review articles; in the second - a trend report - they provide original analysis of existing data sets; and in the final section, they analyze a specific research concern from varying perspectives.

Present Imperfect

Stories By Russian Women

Ayesha Kagal and Natasha Perova

Bold in thematic conception and stylistic experimentation, their stories are socially engaged—in the classic Russian literary tradition—and yet at the same time intensely personal. While many of these writers share a feminist outlook, their perspectives are vastly disparate and often steeped in a peculiarly post-Soviet irony: In one story, for example, a girl with no money and no prospects of earning any turns to prostitution—and fails because of her lack of entrepreneurial talent. Yet common to all are recurrent and interwoven motifs of self-discovery, sexual power, emotional attachment, social alienation, and vulnerability to uncontrollable forces. The ambiguous ways in which these themes

Sovereignty In Dispute

The Falklands/malvinas, 14931982

Fritz L. Hoffmann and Olga M Hoffmann

This study centers on the history of the dispute over the Falkland Islands (Las Islas Malvinas), a remote, windswept archipelago in the far reaches of the South Atlantic off the coast of Argentina. They are held by Great Britain and claimed by Argentina. Few people know anything about them, and when the war over them broke out in April 1982, many Britons had to run to a map to see where they were. But not the Argentines, who are taught from the cradle that "las Malvinas son argentinas" (the Malvinas are Argentine).

Peasants In Distress

Poverty And Unemployment In The Dominican Republic

Rosemary Vargas-lundius

A study of economic development in the Dominican Republic, this book argues that rigid economic structures and poor use of labour resources have created conditions that undermine the demand for labour, and maintain perpetual poverty and unemployment. Viewing the problem from a broad perspective, the author analyzes labour and credit markets, offers empirical data on agricultural yields, and examines such socioeconomic issues as the living conditions among the peasantry, the demand for immigrant Haitian labour, and migration from rural to urban areas.

Solar Energy And The U.s. Economy

Richard J Goettle IV, Christopher Pleatsikas and Edward A. Hudson

Twice during the 1970s – the Arab Oil Embargo of 1973-74 and the tight oil market of 1978-79 associated with the political upheaval in Iran – the U.S. economy experienced severe shocks as a result of massive price increases for imported oil. By 1980 the price for imported crude oil had increased to nearly twenty times the price in 1970. This book seeks to provide a basis for determining the macroeconomic effects of solar energy investments over the 1980 to 2000 time period. It structures its analysis in a multidimensional form, specifying variations in • conventional energy costs; • solar market penetration; • solar technology costs.

The Ecosystem Concept In Anthropology

Emilio F Moran and Susan H Lees

Critics of the ecosystem concept have noted the tendency of ecosystem-based studies to overemphasize energy flow, to rely on functionalist assumptions, to neglect historical and evolutionary factors, and to overlook the role of individuals as the locus of natural selection and decision making. In this volume, leading figures in the study of biological and human ecology evaluate these criticisms and propose ways to advance the state of knowledge in ecological research.

Riots And Victims

Violence And The Construction Of Communal Identity Among Bengali Muslims, 1905-1947

Patricia A. Gossman and Patricia A. Gossman

This book examines the origins and consequences of the violence that occurred between the Muslim and Hindu communities in pre-partition Bengal, which ultimately resulted in the creation of Pakistan. Gossman argues that communal violence and communal identity were not merely the consequences of long-term animosities, but rather ploys orchestrated by mid-level politicians for their own advancement and aggrandizement. Riots and Victims introduces new analyses of local violence and identity, and explores issues of far-reaching importance.

The Armed Forces In Contemporary Asian Societies

Edward A Olsen and Stephen Jurika

First published in 1986. This book integrates current knowledge about the military, political, economic, and cultural roles of the armed forces in sixteen Asian countries, examining the interplay of these factors and their bearing on each society's civil-military relations. The authors explore the history, current status, and potential future course of each country. Analyzing all key Asian armed forces, they provide a comprehensive view of the military's domestic role—a crucial factor in assessing the foreign and defense policy options facing Asia as a whole.

Painting In The People's Republic Of China

The Politics Of Style

Arnold Chang

This study is divided into three sections. Chapter 1 outlines the major statements of artistic policy and the theoretical structure upon which the policies are based. Chapter 2 deals with the effect of the artistic policies upon artists, and the reactions of painters to the political demands placed upon them. The third chapter will focus on the experiences of three such artists, Kuan Shan-yueh, Li K'o-jan and Ch'ien Sung-yen. All three specialize in landscape, a genre that has been especially problematic, and all three incorporate both Western techniques and traditional Chinese methods of drawing.

The Soviet Navy

Strengths And Liabilities

Bruce W. Watson, Susan M Watson, Calland Carnes and Brian Larson, PhD, Department of Psychology, University of Wisconsin–Whitewater

Since Admiral Sergei G. Gorshkov was appointed to the office of commander in chief of the Soviet Navy in 1956, the Soviet Union has made a massive investment in naval construction, training, and operations. As a result, the Soviet Navy has grown from a coastal defense force to one of the world's two strongest navies. This book offers a detailed assessment of every major aspect of the Soviet Navy, from fleet structure and training facilities to command and control procedures and warfare and intelligence collection capabilities.

The Soviet Naval Threat To Europe

Military And Political Dimensions

Bruce W. Watson and Susan M Watson

Originally published in 1989. Given the events of 1987 and 1988—the death of Admiral Sergei G. Gorshkov, who had served as Commander-in-Chief of the Soviet Navy from 1956 to 1985 and was so influential in the development of the current Soviet Navy, the Soviet policy of glasnost, the U.S.-Soviet arms negotiations, Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev's visit to Washington, President Ronald Reagan's visit to Moscow, and the treaty concerning intermediate-range nuclear weapons—a study of the Soviet naval threat to Europe is particularly timely.

The Soviet Union And Ballistic Missile Defense

Bruce Parrott and Helmut Sonnenfeldt

Originally published in 1987. In the debate over strategic defense, the Soviet dimension has not been adequately examined. Dr. Parrott's multifaceted discussion of the Soviet approach to ballistic missile defense (BMD) admirably fills that gap. Based on an analysis of Soviet statements and Soviet weaponry, the study surveys Soviet perceptions of the shifting relationship between the superpowers and the effect of BMD on that relationship. The author then traces the evolution of Soviet policies toward ballistic missile defense and the introduction of weapons into space.

Report On Cuba

Findings Of The Study Group On United States Cuba Relations

Edited by The Study Group

First published in 1984. The Study Group on U.S.-Cuban Relations was organized under the auspices of the Central American and Caribbean Program (CACP) at The Johns Hopkins University School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS) in Washington, D.C. The Study Group on U.S.-Cuban Relations met on three separate occasions. The first meeting on January 24 and 25, 1983, was devoted to discussion of U.S. interests and policy objectives in Cuba. The second meeting on February 28 was dedicated to analysis of the current U.S. policy toward Cuba, and the final report is a synthesis of the three discussions.

The Year Book Of World Affairs, 1981

George W. Keeton and Georg Schwarzenberger

First published in 1981. The Council of the London Institute of World Affairs has carefully reconsidered the lessons to be drawn from the Institute's record in its first half-century and reshaped its plans of activities for the 1980s. As in an earlier "cold peace" era, the Council is united in its resolve not to be taken by surprise by any of the contingencies that, on a darkening world scene, must be anticipated in medium-range planning.

Theories, Models, And Simulations In International Relations

Essays And Research In Honor Of Harold Guetzkow

Michael D Ward

Born in 1915, Harold Guetzkow might have been a child of the "Roaring Twenties." But in fact Professor Guetzkow is much more a "child of the depression" (to use his own term). A compilation of essays by scholars who took time and energy to pen their work in honor of Professor Harold Guetzkow. A representation and contribution to the study of international relations and document the influence of Harold Guetzkow in catalyzing that study over the last thirty years.

Past As Prelude

History In The Making Of A New World Order

Meredith Woo-cumings and Michael Loriaux

How do we interpret the recent changes in world politics and what is the future likely to hold? The contributors to this volume share an assumption that history repeats itself. The book places the events of the past few years in broad historical context, examining how the political, military and economic arrangements of the past are reflected in current events. By tracing historical patterns in Western Europe, Russia, East Asia, Latin America and the United States, the contributors aim to provide a new perspective on the pressing questions and conflicts that characterize international politics now and in the years to come.

The Foreign Policy Priorities Of Third World States

John J. Stremelau

Despite the growing economic interdependence that binds industrialized and developing countries-as well as the risk that regional conflict in the Third World could escalate into a major confrontation between the United States and the USSR-relatively little has been published on how governments in Asia, Latin America, and Africa. The authors of The Foreign Policy Priorities of Third World States identify and analyze key factors in recent trends in the international relations of Third World countries.

The Year Book Of World Affairs 1984

George W Keeton and Georg Schwarzenberger

First published in 1984. The final volume. The Council of the London Institute of World Affairs has carefully reconsidered the lessons to be drawn from the Institute's record in its first half-century and reshaped its plans of activities for the 1980s. As in an earlier "cold peace" era, the Council is united in its resolve not to be taken by surprise by any of the contingencies that, on a darkening world scene, must be anticipated in medium-range planning. It is thus only in keeping with comparable action taken in earlier phases of the Institute's existence that the Council has decided to suspend the publication of the Year Book after this Volume.

Strategies Against Violence

Design For Nonviolent Change

Israel W. Charny

The contributions are organized around three themes: the person, the community and the culture, and the world. Topics include a model for nonviolent strength to counter aggression by others; an examination of the psychology of Adolph Eichmann, with some startling conclusions about how men should cultivate their normal aggressive emotions and enjoy fantasies of violence; how the American democratic process can be turned unknowingly toward disastrous collective violence; and the problem of reducing the contagion of violence spread by daily newscasts of violent events.

Regulatory Reform Reconsidered

Gregory A Daneke, David J Lemak, Charles L Kennedy and Gerald Barkdoll

This book focuses on social and environmental regulation as they evaluate problems of costly and ineffective regulatory measures and argues that, although some programs have been made more cost efficient, performance has not improved, and offers alternatives for increasing effectiveness.

Statecraft In The Dark

Israel's Practice Of Quiet Diplomacy

Aharon Klieman

Secrecy in diplomacy remains as much a challenge for international politics as it is for national and foreign policy. This study undertakes to address aspects of clandestinely at both the domestic and external levels.

Syria And The United States

Eisenhower's Cold War In The Middle East

David W. Lesch

Focusing on regional politics and utilizing newly available primary documentation, Syria and the United States offers a multidimensional analysis of Syrian-American relations during the Eisenhower years and presents a new interpretation of the "Syrian crisis" and the evolution of U.S. foreign policy that led to it.

Superpower Involvement In The Middle East

Dynamics Of Foreign Policy

Paul Marantz, Blema Steinberg, John Sigler and Shmuel Sandler

This volume makes a major contribution to our understanding of Soviet and U.S. policy in the 1980s, highlighting explanatory variables that are likely to persist into the next decade. The text explores Soviet and U.S. policy in the Middle East by exploring how the superpowers define their goals in the region.

Rediscover Routledge Classics

CELEBRATING 20 YEARS OF GROUND-BREAKING PUBLISHING

With over 200 titles, Routledge Classics is an attractive and affordable series of the most innovative and important works of modern times; books that have, by popular consent, become established as classics in their field. Routledge Classics has brought to more than a million readers worldwide the very best of Routledge publishing over the last century and beyond, providing readers with field-defining and ground-breaking work across a variety of subjects.

“ It’s a remarkable series. These are the books that helped shape the intellectual life of the 20th century.

– Al Alvarez

“ Routledge Classics is more than just a collection of texts...it embodies and circulates challenging ideas and keeps vital debates current and alive.

– Hilary Mantel
